ROOSEVELT RECEIVED BY KING GEORGE

Ex-President Is Recognized as Special Ambassador From America.

Small Crowd Is at Station When Visitor Reaches London.

Other Members of the Delegation Are Named at Washington.

London, May 16.—Theodore Roosevelt, special American ambassador to the funeral of King Edward VII, arrived in London this morning, was received by King George at Marlborough house, and later visited the throne room in Buckingham palace, where the body of the late monarch is privately lying in state.

The entrance to the citty of the distinguished American was a quiet one and in marked contrast with his appearance at other capitals and with what would have been made of the occasion here, but for the demise of the British ruler.

It was whit-Monday holiday, but despite this fact the popular crowd at Victoria station was a small one. There was no cheering, but as Mr. Roosevelt alighted from the train and was escorted by Ambassador Reid to the royal carriage which had been sent for him, those who looked on silently lifted their hats.

The Roosevelt party, which included Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt and Kermit, left Berlin at noon yesterday and reached Flushing, Holland, last midnight. They continued upon the regular boat to Queensborough, England, where a special train was in waiting for them and which preceded

PRESBYTERIANS MEET THURSDAY

General Assembly Will Convene Then at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 16.—Arrangements for the meeting of the general assembly, the highest legislative body of the Presbyterian of church in the United States of America, which will convene here Thursday for a tendays' session, are about completed and the advance guard of the commissioners are expected to arrive tomorrow. All sessions of the assembly will be held on the steel pier and there will be about 900 delegates.

One of the first things the general assembly will have to do will be the election of a moderator. Among the candidates mentioned thus far are: Rev. Dr. George Alexander of New York city; Rev. Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield, president of Lafayette college; Rev. Dr. Charles Little of Wabash, Ind.; Rev. Dr. Robert Mackenzie, secretary of the college board, New York city; and Rev. Dr. Zenos, a professor in McCormick seminary, Chicago.

The general assembly will be opened at 11 a. m., Thursday, with the annual sermon by Rev. Dr. J. M. Barclay of Detroit, the retiring moderator. The election of a moderator will take place in the afternoon of the same day.

BROWNE TO FIGHT HIS INDICTMENT

Arguments in Bribery Case Will Be Heard on May 24.

Chicago, May 16.—The trial of Lee O'Neill Browne, the state representative, charged with bribing other representatives to vote for William Lorimer for senator, went over to May 24, today. On that date, Judge McSurley ruled that he would hear a motion to quash the indictment against Browne. His attorneys refused to intimate what points were depended on in the motion to quash the indictment.

The court ordered counsel for the defense to give notice to the state's attorney next Monday of the points on which the indictment will be attacked.

SOUTH AMERICAN TROOPS MOVING

Peru and Ecuador Getting Into Shape for Open Hostilities.

Lima, Peru, May 16.—A government transport, carrying a regiment of artillery, a hospital corps and a big cargo of ammunition and other munitions of war, sailed today for Tumbez, a port on the northwest coast of Peru, not far from the northern boundary.

Official advices received from Ayavaca, just south of the Ecuadorian frontelr, report that the troops of Ecuador can be seen approaching.

TRAINING PLACE OF NAVAL ASPIRANTS

SCHOOL SHIP NEWPORT.

New York, May 16.—The New York nautical school training ship Newport has left for her annual cruise and will not return to New York until Oct. 3. She carries 100 boys, all from the high schools, ranging in ages from 16 to 20 years. Lieut.-Com. Ley H. Everhart, U. S. N., is superintendent of the Newport, which, among other things, is provided with a wireless plant. The Newport will visit Belfast, Ireland; Copenhagen, Kronstadt, Russia; Southampton and Plymouth, Eng.; Funchal, Maderia Islands, and Hamilton, Bermuda.

MEN TO GET RAISE IN PAY

Arbitrators Make Award in Michigan Railroad Disputes.

Erie Road Employes' Votes on Strike Are Being Counted.

New York, May 16.—The trainmen and conductors of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad and the Michigan Central railroad have been granted wage increases identical with the Baltimore & Ohio award by the arbitrators, P. H. Morrissey and E. E. Clark. The announcement was made by A. B. Garretson, president of the railroad conductors today.

Railway conductors and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, made the following statement:

"In the award of the arbitrators in the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and Michigan Central cases has been handed down and it gives the same rates as obtained on the Baltimore & Ohio, thus making the rates on those two properties standard with the lines upon which settlement has formerly been made, the terms of the award being the same as the New York Central without the deferred payment in any case.

"It establishes the New York harbor rate across the province of Ontario on the Michigan Central from Detroit to Buffalo."

Count Erie Votes.

Important developments are anticipated within the next few days in the railroad wage dispute affecting both Eastern lines and those in the Central West. Count of the strike vote which was ordered re-

TWO WELLS ARE DEATH TRAPS

One North Dakota Excavation Claims Its Second Human Victim.

Stanley, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Lindstrom, a well digger employed on the Walters farm near this city, was fatally asphyxiated in a well about sixty feet deep. Lindstrom decided to enter the well, and ordered his helper to lower him. He had been lowered only about thirty feet when he was overcome by gas and fell to the bottom. When the body was raised to the surface by the use of grappling hooks, life was extinct.

Three years ago John Walters, the owner of the farm at that time, met death by asphyxiation in very much the same manner.

Minnesotan a Victim.

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—While loading a rock at the bottom of a 70-foot well, preparatory to blasting it, Henry Buse lost his life, being overcome by gas. This was the last well job that he intended doing, having just filed on a claim which he was going to prove up on. Buse came to this county from Evansville, Minn., three years ago, and was 22 years of age. No inquest was held.

ASTRONOMER HAS LOOK AT COMET

Prof. Brooks of Geneva Comments on Wanderer's Appearance.

Geneva, N. Y., May 16.—Excellent observations of Halley's comet were taken this morning by Prof. William R. Brooks, director of Smith observatory, who reported the comet's tail stretching out in a broad band across the heavens to a length of more than 45 degrees. The nucleus, Prof. Brooks said, was very bright, being easily visible with the naked eye long after all the stars except Venus had disappeared.

Dr. Brooks said that the comet, viewed through the telescope, showed the same remarkable changes in form that was noted three days ago. Its shape this morning was that of a pointed crescent, with the nucleus on the front end, much larger than noted at any previous observation.

RAIN COMES TO RESCUE OF SETTLERS

The Forest Fires of Northern Minnesota Are Being Quenched.

Bemidji Has a Narrow Escape From Being Wiped Out.

Weather Man Says Showers Are Widespread and Will Continue.

Rain has come to the rescue of Northern Minnesota, and with the showers of yesterday and today, in addition to those that are promised for tonight, the forest fire situation is expected to be so greatly modified that there will be but little danger at any point in the fire zone.

Bemidji, the county seat of Beltrami county, had a narrow escape yesterday. Forest fires have been making progress through the wooded country surrounding Bemidji for several days, but it was not believed that the town itself was in danger. Yesterday, however, driven by a strong south wind, the flames approached the city, feeding on the material afforded by a tract of land south of the city that is heavily wooded.

Fire Warden C. A. Shannon, assisted by the Bemidji fire department and a large number of citizens, exerted every effort to halt the on rush of the flames, and the battle was a desperate one so long as it lasted.

The coming of the rain saved the city, is the opinion of the fire fighters. Gen. C. C. Andrews, state forestry commissioner, was notified of the danger of the city and he in turn notified Governor Eberhart, who wired Col. Frederick E. Resche of Duluth:

"Communicate at once with Gen. Andrews and prepare to send relief without delay."

News that rain had fallen at Bemidji stopped preparations to go to the relief of the threatened town.

Duluthians yesterday saw a red sun. The smoke from the northern fire zone

MORSE DENIED RIGHT OF FILING

Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus Cannot Be Made.

Washington, May 16.—Charles W. Morse was today denied the privilege of filing an application for a writ of habeas corpus by the supreme court of the United States.

DR. HYDE IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDERING COL. THOMAS SWOPE; IS GIVEN LIFE TERM

DOCTOR CONVICTED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

DR. B. CLARKE HYDE.

VERDICT IS UNEXPECTED

Jury Returns Conviction of Doctor After Long Deliberation.

Attorneys Will Appeal and Also Seek New Trial of Case.

Supreme Court May Not Act for More Than One Year.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—Dr. B. C. Hyde was found guilty at 10:23 o'clock this morning of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope. His punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

"Oh, Clarke!" cried Mrs. Hyde when the verdict was read by Judge Latshaw.

She threw her arms around her husband's neck and wept silently. Then she patted her husband on the cheek.

Dr. Hyde sat motionless. He looked firmly at Judge Latshaw while the verdict was being received. As the words "imprisonment in the state penitentiary during his natural life" were pronounced his gaze was fastened on the floor.

"Don't worry, dearie," he said to his wife as she clasped him in her arms.

Mrs. E. N. Hopkins and Miss Laura Hyde, sisters of the physician, looked distressed, but did not break down. They tried to comfort Mrs. Hyde.

Has Not Lost Hope.

"We shall hope for the best," they said. "We don't understand this verdict. Clarke is innocent."

"I haven't lost hope," declared Dr. Hyde.

Within ten minutes after the verdict had been returned the doctor was on his way to his cell. Mrs. Hyde re-

FIXES DATE FOR BIG TRUST CASES

Supreme Court Will Hold Rehearing of Them on Nov. 14.

Washington, May 16.—The supreme court of the United States today fixed Nov. 14 as the date for the rehearing of the Tobacco and Standard Oil cases.

BALLINGER FIRES KERBY

Stenographer Is Dubbed a Traitor By Secretary of the Interior.

Also Is Accused of "Deliberately Misstating Material Facts."

Washington, May 16.—Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer in the office of the secretary of the interior, who on Saturday issued a statement regarding the Lawler memoranda on the Glavis charges to the president, was discharged from the government service by Secretary Ballinger today.

In a stinging letter dismissing Kerby "for the good of the service," Secretary Ballinger said that the stenographer was "unworthy to remain in it."

"The fact that your treachery," said the secretary, "is futile cannot mitigate the character of your offense."

GARDNER TALKS OF "BAD BOYS"

Rhode Island Man Addresses Conference on Children at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—"Do not tell a child how bad you think him," said E. E. Gardner, superintendent of the Sockanosset School for Boys, of Howard, R. I., in an address on industrial training in state schools, before the seventh annual session of the National Conference on the Education of Backward, Truant, Delinquent and Dependent children, which began its sessions here this morning. "Rather show him how useful he can become. Lead him to think that good is expected from everyone and that he amounts to something."

This was the keynote of this session.

The speaker defined a state industrial school as an institution provided and supported by the state for the care and instruction of delinquent children sent there by the authorities for cause, and whose object is to fit them as useful, law-abiding citizens, independent of the condition that was their undoing.

Other speakers at this morning's session were William B. Baker, superintendent of the Parental School of Spokane, Wash., and Ben Blewett, superintendent of schools of St. Louis.

This conference is a forerunner of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections which will begin its sessions here on Tuesday.

CLUB WOMEN HEAR OFFICIAL REPORT

Federation Has Prospects of Two Lively Fights in Convention.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 16.—With the recommendations of the president of the body before that organization as its principal subject for consideration at the morning session, the General Federation of Women's clubs convened today. Following the report of the head of the body there were many addresses.

At the forenoon session some of those who spoke were: Mrs. Edwin F. Moulton, Ohio; Miss Georgia A. Bacon, Massachusetts; Mrs. Frederick H. Coe, Nebraska; Mrs. Seota W. Kell, Michigan; Mrs. Imogene B. Oakley, Pennsylvania; Miss Alma Clark, Missouri, and Mrs. A. Starr Best, Evanston, Illinois.

The fight over the proposition to increase the dues in the state federations and also a movement in the direction of the retrenchment which would carry with it abolishment of the information bureau and possibly other minor departments promises to be a matter of serious contention among the delegates.

IOWA MINERS BACK AT WORK

Seventeen Thousand Men Return to Mines at Higher Pay.

Des Moines, Ia., May 16.—Seventeen thousand Iowa mine workers today resumed work after a suspension of more than six weeks. As a result of concessions granted the miners, the the operators have advanced the price of all coal mined in the thirteenth Iowa district 2 cents a ton.

WALKER GIVEN FIVE-YEAR TERM

Ohio Banker Found Guilty of Perjury in Making Statement.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 16.—U. G. Walker, former president of the defunct South Cleveland Banking company, was sentenced to five years in the Ohio state penitentiary today. Walker was found guilty of perjury, for making false statements to the state bank examiners.

COPPERS SAG AFTER OPENING

Firm Tone During the Early Hours Gives Way to Weakness.

After a firm opening the copper market sagged today and values were lower at the close than at the opening. There was slight liquidation, but the pressure on the market was insignificant. There was no support except early in the day when some shorts covered on reports of rains in the Northwest, which the market regarded as favorable for the crops. The trading was narrow and distinctly professional. Some of the specialties acted well, while a bull movement in two or three others fell flat, as the public refused to come in.

The memory of recent heavy losses in coppers is to fresh in the minds of the public to make large buying in the near future probable. The possibility of a serious political situation developing next fall is to near to make a sustained upward movement likely. The United States supreme court has fixed Nov. 14 for the rehearing of the American Tobacco and the Standard Oil cases. This will be another factor which, with the political situation, will tend to confuse the market next fall. In the meantime the market probably will be a scalping affair and a moderately good trading proposition. What the late spring and the early fall will bring forth will depend to a large extent on the political and crop developments.

The copper metal situation is improving. Amalgamated sold at $71.50, $72.25, $71.87½ to $72 and off to $71.25, selling at $71.50 at the close. Steel common sold at $83.50, $83.75, $83.62½, $83.25 and up to $83.37½. Butte Coalition sold at $20.50 to $20.75. Greene at $8.87½ to $9. Giroux at $8 to $8.12½ to $8. Calumet & Arizona at $63 to $64.50 and off to 62 point. North Butte sold at $34 to $34.75 to $33. Superior & Pittsburg sold at $12.50 to $12.25 and Mohawk at $50 to $51.

Trading here was fairly heavy but specialized. Alex-Scott, part paid sold at $3.06¼ to $3.12½. Denn at $2.18¾. Live Oak at $20. North Butte at $34 37½. Red Warrior at $2. Shattuck $34 37½ to $36.50 Butte & Superior at $1.81¼ to $1.75 and back to $1.81¼. Calumet of Sonora at $18. National at 37. 34 and 35c. Rawhide Royal at 3c. and St. Mary's at 15c.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is more active and prices are firmer. Lake is 13 to 13¼ cents and electrolytic is 12¾ to 13 cents per pound. Foreign speculative quotations are advancing, indicating the covering of short contracts and purchases by European consumers. The report of the Copper Producers' association showed an increase of 15,133,235 pounds in the surplus supplies in this country during April. While this is an unfavorable showing, it is not as bad as had been expected. Exports fell off about 9,000,000 pounds; but domestic deliveries increased by over 5,000,000 pounds, so that total deliveries were only about 1,000,000 pound below those of March.

"An examination of the Producers' figures in conjunction with those of the foreign visible supply brings to light the fact that consumption has equalled if not exceeded production for six months past. On Dec. 1 the stocks of copper in this country, combined with the foreign visible supply, were greater by 3,882,456 pounds than they were May 1. In the first four months of this year the world's surplus increased 2,972,448 pounds. This latter increase is readily explained by the fact that consumers were in a much more confident frame of mind in the closing months of last year than they have been for several weeks past, and were then carrying larger working stocks of copper which did not figure in the visible surplus. Therefore, one who is bullish on copper does not have to struggle or deceive himself to get encouragement out of the published statistics. While the situation greaw steadily worse in the first ten months of last year, the tide apparently turned in November and December, since which there has been no increase in the surplus.

It is to be expected, however, that the May and June production will be larger than that of April, and thus tend to check the tendency towards improvement in the statistical position of the metal. On the other hand, consumers were evidently impressed favorably by the producers' statement, as they have bought a large amount of copper in the aggregate since it appeared. If this buying movement continues it will more than offset the probable increase in production. The immediate future of the metal situation is difficult to forecast; but if the confidence of consumers has been restored, the price of copper will advance."

NO DANGER NOW AT BEMIDJI

Showers Have Put Damper on the Fires Raging There.

A special to The Herald this afternoon from Bemidji says:

Rain last night and this morning put a damper on the forest fires which raged fiercely south of Bemidji yesterday and at one time threatened to spread to the brick yard and saw mills and do great damage to property.

The work of the local fire wardens, aided by members of the Bemidji fire department and men from sawmills, confined the fire to a distance of one-half mile south of the sawmill yards at a point where the road intersects. Rain last night partially extinguished what fire was burning, and showers this forenoon have, it is believed, effectually stopped any element of danger. The fire is now believed to have originated from a small blaze kindled by timber trespassers who desired to cover up traces of operations on timber lands of others near Lake Plantagenet, and the smoldering fire was fanned into a conflagration that threatened to do great damage. Prompt action by fire wardens and farmers alone prevented several houses from being burned and possible loss of life. A misunderstanding of telephone communication with officials in St. Paul resulted in the governor calling out the Duluth militia companies, but the order was countermanded, as their services were not needed. C. A. Shannon, fire warden for this district, will make a thorough investigation as to the real origin of the fire and make an official report to Gen. C. C. Andrews, state fire warden.

BONES FOUND NOT THOSE OF COW

A story which was circulated today to the effect that the bones found in the shack of the Lambda Sigma fraternity at Lester Park, Saturday, were not human bones, but the bones of a cow, was exploded by those who had examined the bones.

Those who say the bones say there is no question but that they are those of a human being. The upper and lower jaw bones were found as well as the shoulder bone, and there is said to be no possibility of a mistake of the kind the story suggested.

The story circulated was to the effect that members of the fraternity had the bones in the cabin for use at initiation ceremonies. These bones may have been there, but the undertaker claims there can be no doubt but that the bones brought to him were those of a human being.

ALLEGED GAMBLER WILL BE ARRAIGNED.

"Rasty" Wright, who was recently arrested by the police on a charge of having gambling devices in his room at the Lincoln hotel, was indicted by the May grand jury, according to information obtained today. It is expected that he will be arraigned in district court this afternoon. The charge against him is conducting a gambling place.

MAN HIGHER UP PLACED ON TRIAL

New York, May 16.—Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, regarded by the government as the man "higher up" in the sugar underweighing conspiracy, was placed on trial today in the United States circuit court, Judge Martin presiding. John B. Stanchfield, Heike's counsel, renewed the plea of not guilty for his client and elected to have the case go to trial by jury. One hundred talesmen were summoned.

Heike's case has been a long time reaching the trial stage. He was indicted with five former employes of the American Sugar Refining company, Jan. 10, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the federal government by false weighing of imported sugar. Two of the government's important witnesses, Richard Parr, who exposed the fraudulent scales on the sugar company's docks, and Otto Schmeiter, an expert who had made important tabulations regarding the underweighing, are both so ill the case may be delayed at this time.

SOCIALISTS IN WORDY CLASH

Washington, May 16.—The temperance question came to the front at today's session of the national Socialist congress. J. W. Work of Iowa, chairman of the committee on organization, precipitated the discussion, which lasted all forenoon, by submitting a report that liquor and tobacco should be tabooed amongst Social Democrats.

Mr. Work urged that abstemiousness should be a prerequisite for membership in the party. Thus only, he declared, could womanhood and manhood be brought to a standard high enough to be compatible with the high aims of the Socialist party.

His views met with opposition from all parts of the hall. It was argued that such a rule would interfere unjustly with personal liberty and work a hardship on loyal followers of Socialism.

At the noon adjournment the matter was still under discussion.

CLUBS BREAK EVEN

In Opening Games of Upper Michigan Baseball.

Negaunee, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Baseball honors were about evenly divided in the opening games of the Upper Michigan league series here Saturday and Sunday. The first game went to Negaunee by a score of 4 to 1, and the second proved a shut out in favor of Ishpeming, score 2 to 0.

Costly errors caused Negaunee's defeat. Batteries—(First game)—Negaunee, Siebenthal and Lafave; Ishpeming, Goulette and Klebs. (Second game)—Negaunee, Rosevear and Cassidy; Dixon and Klebs.

At Crystal Falls, Saturday—Marquette 10, Crystal Falls 1. Sunday—Marquette 5, Crystal Falls 2.

Next Saturday and Sunday, Ishpeming will play at Marquette and Crystal Falls at Negaunee.

MRS. WASHBURN NOT A CANDIDATE

In a special dispatch to The Herald this afternoon from Cincinnati, Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city stated that she was not a candidate for office at the meeting of the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Twin City papers have been stating that Mrs. Washburn was likely to be elected to some office by the federation, but the telegram from Mrs. Washburn states that she is not a candidate. The telegram further stated that the Minnesota delegates indorsed the re-election of Mrs. Moore, as president, and of Mrs. Welch. Mrs. Welch whose home is at Fergus Falls, was treasurer of the federation, and the message from Mrs. Washburn stated that she was one of the most valuable and popular members of the board.

CONGRESS MAY HOLD TILL JULY 15

Washington, May 16.—"It looks to me as if congress may be in session until the 15th of July," declared Representative Dwight of New York, the Republican whip of the house, today.

This prediction was based on a careful calculation of the status of pending measures.

The railroad and sundry civil bills both show sure signs of having to go to conference. The general deficiency bill, the last of the supply measures, has not yet emerged from committee, and both the postal savings bank and anti-injunction bills will require time for debate.

The fortifications, agricultural, pensions, rivers and harbors and legislative appropriation bills now are in conference. The naval appropriation bill is pending in the senate, and a vast number of other measures are on the calendar of the house.

CUMMINS RAPS RAILWAY COURT

Washington, May 16.—By the exceptionally close vote of 29 to 28, the senate today revoked its decision of last week to meet hereafter at 11 o'clock for the purpose of expediting the consideration of the railroad bill. Today's action was the result of the tardiness of senators in coming in for today's session.

The railroad bill was taken up at 11:30 o'clock and Senator Cummins proposed an amendment striking out the court of commerce provisions of the measure. Congress was providing a new court of five judges to try cases at the rate of seven a year, he said. Commenting on this as an unwarranted act of extravagance, Mr. Cummins declared he could not understand "the insensibility of men who were willing to squander the public funds."

Mr. Cummins also found fault with the possibility that a court devoted to railroad cases might be subjected to especial criticism and temptation.

"We are inviting the danger that always has been apprehended with respect to specialized tribunals," he said.

MEET TO OPPOSE ANY RAISING OF RATES.

Chicago, May 16.—The fight being made by asociations of manufacturers and shippers against the proposed sweeping advance in freight rates began here today with the meeting of the executive committee of the Associated Shippers' Publicity bureau. It was stated that the railroads are making a profit of more than 70 cents on every train for every mile it is run. The formal session of representatives of various associations will begin tomorrow.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

McGuire and That Toga.

A. J. McGuire of Grand Rapids isn't saying much about his suggested candidacy for state senator, but his friends are talking about it with a great deal of interest, apparently. While it has been said that Mr. McGuire would be wasted as a politician or legislator, that view is not unanimously accepted. The Itasca County Independent, discussing the question, says:

"The Bovey Iron News says, regarding the prospective candidacy of A. J. McGuire for the state senate: 'Mr. McGuire is too good a man for politics, and as a specialist in his particular sphere, Northern Minnesota cannot afford that his time be abstracted from the great work, of which the Grand Rapids Experiment Farm is the nucleus.'

"This is an entirely erroneous view to take of the matter.

"Very little indeed of Mr. McGuire's time would be taken up by his legislative work were he to be elected to the senate. Nor does it necessarily follow that because of his selection as a law maker he would need be a politician.

"The state already has too many law makers who are politicians.

"The time which would be taken from Mr. McGiure's farm work should he be elected would be but three months every two years—while the legislature is in session.

"Not only that, but the sessions of the legislature have always been so that lawmakers could go home every week or so, and Mr. McGuire could take advantage of that and keep in touch with the farm work at all times. Other business men do it, and there are not many business men who look after their own business closer than Mr. McGuire looks after the state farm's business.

"The very efficiency with which the Iron News credits Mr. McGuire on the farm is an asset which the people will be exceedingly quick to pick up if they are given the chance."

L. H. Rice of Park Rapids is expected to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for the house. The Akeley Herald-Tribune remarks that "It's a cinch he will not put all his eggs in one basket and not be able to spin a thread when he arrives at the capitol," apparently hitting at the county option platform of Dr. Stone of Park Rapids.

M. C. Tifft will not be the only Democrat in the field for judicial honors in the Seventh judicial district. C. A. Peterson of Long Prairie and C. M. Johnson of Detroit are the Republican aspirants.

Forest Fires and the Tariff.

When Governor Eberhart was in Duluth last week, he showed much interest in the forest fire situation, and he did for a time consider the advisibility of making a trip through the region that has suffered from the spread of the flames. As the conditions seemed to be improving hourly, he said he believed he could put his time to better use in St. Paul and therefore he would not go out on the ranges. Being something of a king pin in the conservation alley, the governor naturally takes a lively interest in the fires that have swept over the northern woods. He indicated that it is his intention to have an inquiry made into the causes of the fires that have done so much damage this spring.

Local politicians are giving considerable thought to the statements made by Governor Eberhart in his Svea Republican club banquet speech in connection with the tariff law passed by the present congress. It is considered that what he said was about the only safe thing for him to say. The burden of his argument was that Republicanism cannot fairly be measured with a tariff yardstick. It doesn't make any difference what a Republican thinks about the tariff, although, as the governor said, the party is committed to the protective principle. The drift of the governor's talk was that everyone should forget what has gone before in a tariff way and look to the proposed tariff commission for the cure of all tariff ills.

Governor Eberhart's enthusiasm in praise of President Taft did not strike a responsive chord, apparently, and the governor noticed the fact.

W. H. Hassing, who until recently was a resident of Duluth, has assumed editorial and business control of the Carlton County Vidette, published at Carlton, and in his maiden editorial as editor of that paper he says, concerning the politics of the Vidette:

"The editor himself has always been a Republican, and expects to remain such. There are one or two minor things in the national and state party legislation which do not exactly coincide with our ideas of how the government should be run, but they will undoubtedly be remedied soon enough, and the Vidette will in all probability be found in the ranks of the reliable Grand Old Party."

FIRST MASS AS BISHOP

Rt. Rev. Timothy Corbett to Be Celebrant at Cathedral Sunday.

Will Return to Duluth After Consecration at St. Paul Thursday.

Next Sunday at 10:30 o'clock, Rt. Rev. Timothy Corbett, who will be consecrated bishop of the new diocese of Crookston at St. Paul next Thursday, will celebrate his first pontifical high mass.

The event will be an important one in the history of the Catholic church in Duluth—next in importance to the arrival of Bishop McGolrick in Duluth, twenty years ago to take charge of the newly created diocese of Duluth.

For twenty-one years, Father Corbett has been at the head of the Cathedral parish. He found a comparatively poor parish, with a little wooden church and residence and a frame school building as its property possessions and he leaves a parish strong numerically and religiously, with nearly half a million dollars' worth of property in real estate and buildings—one of the most prosperous parishes in the state. During his twenty-one years' pastorate, Father Corbett has won the hearts of his people. They rejoice at his elevation to the episcopal rank, while mourning the loss of his energetic personality at the head of the parish.

The large cathedral will be crowded next Sunday with former parishioners and friends of the newly consecrated bishop.

Father Corbett, who has been in retreat at Villa Scholastica, will probably leave tomorrow for St. Paul to prepare for his consecration. He will be accompanied by Bishop McGolrick, who will attend the ceremonies Thursday.

The consecration of six bishops, who are to take charge of sees in the Northwest, will be an impressive ceremony. Archbishop John Ireland will consecrate the new bishops and the ceremonies will be attended by priests, bishops and church dignitaries from all over the United States.

Bishop McGolrick and Bishop Corbett will return to Duluth next Friday or Saturday. Bishop Corbett will be installed as bishop of Crookston early in June and the ceremonies at Crookston at that time will probably be attended by many Duluth Catholics.

FALLING OFF IN COAL MOVEMENT

Many Boats Coming to the Head of the Lakes Without Cargoes.

According to the report of Duluth agents of coal companies that maintain docks at the Head of the Lakes, there has been a falling off in the quantity of coal shipped to the Head of the Lakes. The Pittsburg and Northwestern docks are practically cleaned out of coal, as all that has been brought up has been shipped out. Receipts should be heavier from now on.

According to the statement of a coal agent, there is a rumor that there is to be a slackening in ore shipments for the present. Whether the ore is going down the lakes too fast, or whether there is a slack demand for ore at the present time, has not been learned. No confirmation of the rumor could be secured from any local officials.

This morning there were sixteen vessels waiting at the Missabe dock to load, which would not look as if the let down in the ore shipments would be immediate. In addition to these vessels, there were six more ready to load when there was room at the docks.

EASTBOUND PACKAGE FREIGHT CARGOES LIGHT.

At the presnt time the Mutual Transit company is operating nine package freighters between Erie points and the Head of the Lakes. None of these boats are leaving Duluth light, though the officials of the company state that they have some difficulty in getting a full cargo for the eastbound trip.

All the package freighters are coming to the Head of the Lakes heavily loaded. The Anchor line Duluth officials also report that they have difficulty in loading their eastbound boats nearly as heavily as the boats coming up the lakes.

FORTY YEARS AT HEAD OF LAKES

Old Settlers Celebrate Anniversary of Their Arrival Here.

Forty years ago yesterday, five Duluthians who were identified with the early progress of the city came to Duluth, arriving at the Head of the Lakes on the same boat. They were: William McEwen, Thomas Bowers, James Dingwall, Robert Carr and Jacob Zimmerman. Of the five men but two were in the city yesterday to celebrate the anniversary of their coming to Duluth, Mr. Bowers died last week; James Dingwall died about two years ago, and Mr. Carr, who is an engineer at Brainerd, was unable to come to the city for the celebration. Mr. McEwen and Mr. Zimmerman, however, celebrated the day with a dinner at the nome of Mr. McEwen, and old times and early days and experiences were retold, and the affair greatly enjoyed by the two pioneers.

COUNTY OPTION BANQUET.

Advocates of No Saloon Have Love Feast at Sandstone.

Sandstone, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—What practically marked the beginning of the campaign of the county optionists in the Thirty-second legislative district took place at Larson Bros.' opera house, Friday night, when the civic and temperance societies of Sandstone met at the biggest banquet ever held here. The hall was tastily decorated with bunting and flowers and plates were laid for 300 guests. After an address of welcome by Rev. W. S. Middlemass, a prayer was given by Rev. William Stegeman, followed by speaking and a song by Miss Florence Webb. The chief speaker of the evening, F. E. Lobeck, then held the attention of the audience for over an hour. Mr. Dimmock sang a solo, and the Misses Daisy and Meda Bullis rendered a duet. Rev. W. S. Middlemass also spoke briefly.

Short speeches were also made by Cashier Dean of the First State bank, Manager Larson of the Sandstone Cooperative store, and Dr. H. P. Dredge. A brief review was made and thanks extended to the ladies for preparing the banquet by Dr. James Slaven and Rev. Middlemass, after which the gathering dissolved at the midnight hour, singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee." A number of guests were present from Pine City and Hinckley, and several speakers of prominence, including Dr. Clemans, were expected, but failed to make train connections.

The May Sale of White!!
Began this morning—on a bigger and more helpful scale than any previous event of this kind. It will prove a revelation in fresh and dainty merchandize.
Materials are better, measurements are full and ample, workmanship is unexcelled; good taste is evident in the beauty of the trimmings, and as to prices, we shall let you find out for yourself—how really moderate they are!
We have put lower prices on the goods for this month—lower in fact than any S. & B. Co. White Sale has ever known before.
Coupling the price abatement with the Quality of the Undermuslins it is one of these rare events in merchandizing that present themselves "once in a great while" to Duluth women.

COMBINATIONS
These are garments combining corset cover and skirts or corset cover and drawers. The drawers are open or closed models. Combinations of splendid nainsook, soft and fine, with plain fine lawn tucks, ruffle, embroidery or lace trimmed. Regular $1.25 value at $1.00.
Three-Piece "Kugel" corset cover, short skirt and drawers made of fine muslin, trimmed with fine lace edge. Regular value, $1.50 at $1.00.
The finest line of combination drawers and cover on the market today of fine nainsook with tailored seams, lace and embroidery trimmed. Regular values $2.00 and $2.25 at $1.55.
Combination of splendid Nainsook combining drawers and cover or skirt and cover, as well as the three-piece Kugel garments—the favorite with particular women—bedeckt with good laces. Regular $2.50 and up to $4.00. On sale at $2.15.
During the May White Sale—on all combinations above $2.50, including La Grecque, tailored and Kugel garments, we give an additional 10 per cent discount on the regular sale prices.

PRINCESS SLIPS
Every woman needs a Princess Slip for her lingerie gown.
Princess Slips, full length and width, of fine nainsook and lawn, trimmed with German val and cluny edge. Regularly $2.75 to $3.50 values, at $2.25.
On the finer and more elaborate slips above this price we give during the White Sale a 10 per cent discount on the regular sale prices.

CORSET COVERS
Of splendid Nainsook and Barred Muslins—plain but very good finisht with Swiss embroidery and lace edge. Regular price 65c. Sale price 50c.
Corset Covers trimmed with German vals and imitation cluny of good nainsook and barred muslins—regularly $1.00. On sale at 75c.
Beautifully Trimmed Corset Covers with medallions, laces, Swiss embroideries, daintily drawn with ribbons and closely fitting around hips. Sale prices $1.50 to $4.50. During the May White Sale an additional 10 per cent will be clipt off these prices.

CHILDREN'S UNDERCLOTHES
Children's Drawers of Fine Muslin with tuckt ruffle—from 2 to 16—regularly 35c and 40c, during May sale at 25c.
Skirts of Muslin with hemstitcht tuckt flounce—sizes 3 to 16—regularly 50c and 65c—on sale at 35c.
Back of these few items is a large stock of immaculate juvenile undergarments. Also princess slips—all sizes and all suffering from freshly clipt May sale prices.

GOWNS
The gowns are simply adorable! All styles, all manners of trimming. High neck and low, long sleeves and short puffs, butterfly and kimona fashion, empire and chemise models. Trimmed with good lace and embroidery, beading and ribbon.
Regular $1.25 and $2.00 gowns trimmed with lace and embroidery, also fine tucks—high and low neck, long and short sleeves—made of fine and heavy muslin—the best nightie you ever saw at $1.00.
Other gowns with imtation hand-embroidered yokes, fine pin-tuckt yoke, others trimmed with dainty little lace edgings, high or low neck—all sizes, etc., etc. You've never seen such gowns as these at $1.50.
More gowns—plain, trimmed with embroidery, lace and insertion, high and low neck, also empire styles. Regular $2.25 and $2.75 values. On sale at $2.00.
Ask to see the ultra exclusive line of gowns trimmed with cluny lace and Swiss embroideries and medallions. Cap sleeves of beautifully sheer nainsook, daintily finisht, from $2.75 to $15.00.
During the May White event a further discount of 10 per cent over regular May sale prices will prevail.

WHITE SKIRTS
Skirts of good Cambric cut with flaring hips and full clustered flounces of tailored tucks, finisht with a six-inch hemstitcht dust ruffle, just the thing for morning toilettes. Regular price $1.50. During the May sale for $1.19.
We have an unusually large assortment of skirts trimmed with nine and twelve-inch flounces of wide embroidery and insertion as well as flounces of lace tucks—all sizes and lengths. Everyday prices range up to $3.75. May sale price, $2.85.
Skirts above this price elaborately trimmed with Swiss embroideries, laces of all kinds draped in flounces and medallion effects, also dainty clusters of fine tuckings on dust ruffles will be sold during this May sale at 10 per cent less than regular sale prices.

DRAWERS
Fine Muslin and Cambric, circular and plain, tailored tucks and embroidered flounces, open and closed. 65c and 75c regular prices. May sale at 50c.
Drawers of Nainsook and long cloth cut circular with double flounce of tuckt India linen, also flounce of lace and insertion, others of embroidery. Regular prices range up to $1.50. May sale price 75c.
La Grecque Tailored Drawers, also the Isabella—open and closed, daintily trimmed with laces and embroidery and finisht with band top. Sale prices from $1.50 to $4.50. During the May Sale an extra 10 per cent discount will be offered Silberstein & Bondy patrons.

A MISCELLANY OF FINE FRENCH UNDERWEAR
Gowns, Corset Covers, Skirts, Drawers and Chemise, beautifully embroidered—All Hand-Done. Under the sale policy in force during this May Sale, these French pieces are quoted at ONE-THIRD LESS than regular prices.
The largest assortment of Paris-American Underclothes ever assembled for a sale of this kind in the White Sale history of the store awaits you here tomorrow at less than usual prices.
Simplicity and individuality are the keynotes thruout from the 50c corset cover to the higher priced garments. Many, in fact most of the styles, are exclusively ours. There are many new ideas shown, especially in the medium and higher priced affairs.
It is only fair to state that, large as the lots are, certain things will melt away in a day, and we may not be able to duplicate them. Others will take their places, but if you see something you especially fancy, do not wait to secure it.

ALBENBERGS
The Second Week of the Sale of Albenberg's Superior Store Stock
Started Today With Renewed Vigor
The response to our ad announcing this sale last week was most gratifying. Many lines yet remain to be reduced, however, and fresh lots have been brought forward, reinforced from our own lines, making this sale one of the most important money-saving events of the season. Stocks must be reduced as quickly as possible and former prices have been lost sight of in our efforts to bring about this result.
'Twill pay you to keep tab on the store's doings.
Silks and Dress Goods
There's going to be busy days here this week. The sale of the Superior Store Stock has placed hundreds of bargains in broken lines of Silks and Wool Dress Goods on the counters at practically giving away prices. Big piles of Remnants, in just the right lengths and materials for children's dresses or for women's wear, are here at a HALF OR LESS of their original values.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The regular meeting of the Greysolon duLhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Darling and Mrs. J. A. Campbell as hostesses. In response to roll call Quaker quotations will be given and the topic for the afternoon will be "Leading Quaker Women" with Mrs. Robert Smith as leader.

At tomorrow's meeting the chapter will discuss the part it will take in the maintainence of the Governor Sibley house at Mendotta which is now the property of the state organization of the D. A. R. The house will be a museum of historical things of interest to the development of the state and to the members of the D. A. R. Just what part the local chapters will have has not been decided. Many are planning to attend the excursion to the Sibley mansion to be conducted by the state D. A. R. June 14, Flag day.

SECOND LECTURE.

M. Papot Discusses the Influence of Louis XIV.

The second lecture in the series of six being presented Saturday evenings at the high school by M. Benedicte Papot was given Saturday evening, as given by M. Papot is proving The discussion of French civilization, as given by M. Papot, is proving of great interest to the many Duluthians who are attending the course, and a brilliant discussion of the development of the people of the country is being given by the lecturer.

M. Papot discussed the various influences and movements at work during and just after the close of the reign of Louis XIV. Saturday evening.

When the king died morality was thrown to the winds, atheists came to the front, and religion "as a factor in the daily life and the fundamental feeling of the human being was gone.' The lecturer declared the eighteenth century spirit was not philosophical but scientific.

With all else came the downfall of patriotism, since the people had no part in the government.

He took up the great trio of literary men of the time, Montesquieu, Voltaire and Rousseau, and reviewed the effect of their writings. Montesquieu's "The Spirit of Law," he declared, made America what it is today, and out of the teachings there set forth grew the American Constitution.

"Voltaire wanted a god," said the speaker. He wanted a god to act as a sort of general police department." Rousseau, on the other hand, brought out the side of sensibility. He it was who said, "Man is born good, and society has made him bad; therefore, let us go back to nature." Rousseau showed the people for the first time the beauties of nature all about them, and at a time when they were sadly in need of it.

HOME FOR ANIMALS.

Helen Holmes Interested in Its Establishment.

The many friends that Miss Helen Holmes made in Duluth during the summer that she was the leading women in the Lyceum stock company, will be interested in the following article from the current number of Vogue:

"Miss Helen Holmes a young actress who owns a dog, several cats and a canary, has announced that she is anxious to form an association of actresses who have pets that they cannot take on the road. There is at present no provision for such cherished encumbrances, except to leave them with professional or other friends, which is, at best, a precarious arrangement. Mrs. Holmes' plan is to make arrangements with some one who has the right kind of a place on Long Island to care for the pets on a business basis of so much for board, lodging and care, and in addition to require the members of the projected association to pledge themselves when in New York to make frequent visits to the home to see whether or not the stipulations in regard to the animals are being lived up to. Here is a chance for some enterprising woman to earn money, as well as do good humane work."

THE "UGLIEST WOMAN IN PARIS" IS COMING TO AMERICA

MLLE. POLAIRE.

Mlle. Polaire, "the ugliest woman in Paris," now the strange idol of the French theater-going public, has agreed to come to America in June for a four weeks' engagement on the Hammerstein Victoria roof garden at $500 a performance. She has been appearing in Paris in her Apache dance and has created a genuine sensation. Mlle. Polaire has been mentioned in connection with an automobile episode in which W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., figured.

HOME WEDDING

At Minneapolis of Interest to Duluthians.

The wedding of Miss Lois Tennant and E. McMaster Pennock took place Saturday evening at Minneapolis. The bride, who is a sister of Mrs. C. E. Adams of this city, is known to many Duluthians, having visited here often and the fololwing account from the Minneapolis Journal will be of interest to many:

"Another Delta Gamma bride of the year was married last evening, when the service for Miss Lois A. Tennant and E. McMaster Pennock was read by Rev. R. T. Wiltbank of the Oliver Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Tennant, 422 Sixth street, southeast.

"The color note of the house decorations was pink and white, and the scheme was carried out in palms, brightened by gladioli and hydrangias. Mrs. Lloyd Libby played the wedding music, and during the service Mrs. Chester Haynes Kinnard sang two selections, 'My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice,' from Samson and Delilah,' and 'Thou Art Like Unto a Flower.'

"The bride's gown was of white satin made on princess lines and trimmed with duchess and rose point lace. Her bouquet was of white sweet peas and lilacs and her jewel was the gift of the bridegroom, a necklace. Attending her was the sister of the bridegroom, Miss Alma Pennock, who was maid of honor. She was gowned in pink messaline satin with an overdress of pink chiffon, and carried pink sweet peas.

"Stretching the ribbon were four little girls, Elizabeth Adams of Duluth, a niece of the bride; Catharine Pennock, sister of the bridegroom; Marion Webster and Catharine Erb, the bride's cousin. Frederick Lighthall of Chicago was best man.

"There was a touch of sentiment in the date set for the wedding. It was also the wedding anniversary of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. E. Adams of Duluth. Mr. and Mrs. Pennock went away for a short trip and will be at home after Sept. 1, at 216 Fifth avenue southeast. The bride's going-away gown was of pongee with a hat to match."

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

What the Tongue Tells of Disease.

An inspection of the tongue when a person is sick is often of value in diagnosing a case of illness. A dry red tongue usually indicates a systematic condition of hyper-alkalinity and suggests the need of acids. A tongue that is pale with a whitish or brownish coat, would indicate a state of hyper-acidity and suggests alkaline remedies.

In grave poisonous conditions the tongue is likely to be darkish-brown and perhaps parched.

In typhoid fever the tongue at first has a white coat and remains red at the tip and edges. As the disease progresses the tongue turns brown and fissured in the center.

In digestive disturbances the tongue may be swollen or shrunken and usually presents either a whitish or brownish coat.

In intestional catarrh and diarrhea the tongue is usually red with the papillae showing prominently.

In chronic nephritis (inflamation of the kidneys) the tongue is likely to be fissured and shrunken.

In anemia it is pale and seldom coated.

The diabetic tongue is dry, red, and often cracked. A very dark, or bluish tongue may suggest Addison's disease.

Headaches in Summer.

Summer headaches are very often caused by errors in diet. Overripe or green fruit, tainted meat or fish, frequently cause an attack of sick headache in summer.

Everybody should eat less in hot weather than in cold, as the body heat has not to be kept up by food as in winter. Three simple meals a day of bread and butter, eggs, milk, vegetables, fruit and cheese, will cure most cases of headache. Butchers' meat should only be eaten in strictest moderation all through the hot weather.

Recital!

Assisted by William Hancock, Jr., baritone, at Foresters' hall (formerly Steinway hall), Fourth avenue west and First street, Friday evening, May 20. Admission—Adults, 15; children, 10c.

THE EVENING STORY

SHIELDED BY LOVE

By Vere Castle.

Eva Carr's busy typewriter stopped clicking when the buzzer sounded a call to the private office of Mr. Pilkington. Tom Ainslie looked up from his desk as she disappeared through the door, at which he gazed abstractedly, until aroused by the music of one of the popular love ditties of the day which Billy Parker, the red-headed office boy was softly whistling.

Tom glared at the boy fiercely, but the latter merely grinned.

"Keep your hair on, Romeo," the boy advised. "I care no more for the flash of your eyes than Miss Carr does for the longing in them. If you'll take the advice of your old uncle—and that's me—you'll drop all thoughts of that young lady, seeing that he boss has the inside track. He is more than a bit sweet on her, judging by the fag end of a little conversation I just heard when I went into his room sudden the other day."

Tom was inclined at first to give the boy a severe rebuke, but his curiosity was aroused.

"Billy," he said, with an uneasy feeling that he was looking singularly foolish, and that his words were of the same character, "as regards my sentiments toward Miss Carr, you're a young idiot and talking through the back of your head; but in the matter of the boss, I—I hope, for her sake, that you're right. What—what was it you heard the other day?"

"Oh, nothing," said the boy, "only that his manner with her wasn't at all businesslike. He was patting her hand and calling her 'my dear,' and they both looked foolish when they saw me."

Tom's heart sank, but he was a brave fellow, and turned to his work with the thought. "Well, Mr. Pilkington is a widower, and an honorable man. If there's anything up between them, it's all right. He can give Eva a fine home, and well preserved elderly men can somehow win the love of young women."

So Tom tried to forget his own love dreaming by working harder than ever. Mr. Pilkington several times expressed his appreciation of his fidelity. But one day he was called into the private office.

"Mr. Ainslie," said Mr. Pilkington, "I am sorry to have to say what I have to say. Yesterday there was about $80 in the petty cash box in the safe, which I accidently left open for a short time in the afternoon. Parker was out during the time it was open. I have questioned Miss Carr very searchingly on the subject, and she maintains she knows nothing of the theft. Now, you have served me very well and worthily, and it is with great reluctance that I have to put this question to you; but as you are the only other occupant of the room besides Miss Carr and the boy, I am forced to. Tell me, did you take the money?"

Bob had suddenly turned faint and sick. His heart seemed to stand still. His legs tottered under him, and the whole room revolved. His first impulse was to cry out an indignant denial, but he checked it. In his mind's eye he saw the girl he loved, cast out—possibly sent to prison—and with, as he knew, an invalid widowed mother. It was horrible! He pulled himself together, and looked his employer full in the face.

"—I will not deny it, sir," he said simply.

Mr. Pilkington looked at him keenly for some minutes without speaking. He seemed to be thinking deeply.

"Ainslie," he said at last, "it grieves me more than I care to express to hear you say that. This is your first lapse, and I hope fervently that it will be your last. I will be lenient with you. Here is a check for three months' salary. Take it and go. I hope, Ainslie, you will pull yourself straight and never again be led into doing wrong."

"You are kind, sir," said Tom, "but I cannot take your money. I will try to keep straight, sir, and shall not forget your generosity."

The next few weeks found Tom growing poorer and poorer day by day. Several good positions were possible until it came to a question of references, and he had none to give. Things went from bad to worse, until at last he found himself penniless and homeless. Hungry and tired he sat on one of the benches in Madison Square and fell asleep. He was awakened from a pleasant dream, in which Eva Carr was the central figure, by a rough shake.

"Come, you fellow! you can't sleep here. Get a move on you!"

The policeman who had awakened him stood until Tom started away. Something in the young man's appearance touched the feelings of the man in uniform, and as Toni almost staggered along the path he was halted by a kindly hand.

"Here's a quarter to get a meal and a bed," said the policeman to him. "I see you're a good sort, but down on your luck. Perhaps tomorrow will bring a change."

Tom was inclined to refuse the coin, but the policeman, with affected sternness, said, "Now you take it or I'll run you in."

It was a lucky coin, it seemed, for as Tom started to look for a lunch room he come face to face with Mr. Pilkington. He turned quickly about and was hurrying away, when his former employer hailed him.

"Hi! Here, Ainsle, I want to see you!"

Something in his tone reassured Tom, and he turned back to Mr. Pilkington, who was soon shaking him by the hand

A taxicab came rapidly towards them, and Mr. Pilkington stopped it. He pushed Tom inside, and gave an address to the driver, and got in himself.

"Tom, my boy," he said, with suspiciously moist eyes, "you behaved nobly. You're a fine fellow. I've been trying to find you for weeks. Poor little Miss Carr couldn't stand it more than a few days, and came and told me everything. Poor child, she's got a sick mother, and I can understand her temptation. Anyhow, I'm certain she'll never do such a thing in her life again!"

Tom couldn't find words to speak, and Mr. Pilkington was silent for some time, too.

"By the way," he said at last, "I'm going to double your salary."—Tom gasped—"and the girl's fond of you. I could see that from what she said. Why, don't you go in and win?"

This bluff suggestion entirely took the wind out of Tom's sails.

"But—but, don't you want her yourself?" he stammered awkwardly.

The other threw back his head and laughed.

"Good gracious!" he cried. "I can see it all. Why, you duffer, the girl's the daughter of a former bookkeeper of mine, who died penniless, and I promised to look after her, as a sort of guardian, as it were. That's all she is to me!"

Tom grasped his employer's hands and shook them warmly.

"God bless you, sir," he cried. "I'll ask her tomorrow!"

"That's good, my boy," said Mr Pilkington. "I'm certain it'll be all right."

And, sure enough, it was.

SPOILT APPETITES

By MRS. GEORGE BRANDT WINTHROP.

There are some children who would thrive on almost any conditions. Tough of constitution and wiry of build, they will "get on" in spite of persistent mismanagement.

But with the average child it is different. He is strong and good-tempered, or ailing and fretful, according to whether he is properly looked after, or the reverse, more particularly in the matter of diet.

Regular, simple, well-chosen meals will make of him a happy, healthy child; but over-feeding or improper feeding, will produce temper, dyspepsia and "nerves," just as surely as too little food will stunt growth and cause malnutrition.

It is strange but actual fact that more children die from over-feeding than starvation, because nearly all the ailments of baby life are due to improper diet.

When a child is given too little food it is marvelous how he will often "get on" in spite of it. Of course he will not grow so well as if he had sufficient food, but he will escape many of the ills that will fall to the lot of the poor rich child who is systematically overfed.

The average mother often imagines that the more food she can prevail upon her offspring to swallow the larger and healthier will he become. So she feeds him far too often, and never permits the unhappy child to know the luxury of hunger, of keen appetite for food.

If he turns from food she can prevail upon her offspring to swallow some dainties and often his last state is worse than his first.

"We must keep up his strength, health and happiness," says the mother, unaware that her conduct is undermining his health. For the child with a spoilt appetite is never happy. His small stomach refuses to allow him to feel either happy or comfortable, for the constant "tempting" with tasty food makes him refuse the ordinary, plain, easily-digested fare, and soon he is a regular dyspeptic. And an inclination to be fretful and peevish is, in more than 50 per cent, of cases, directly due to improper diet, to spoilt appetite, and spoilt digestions, to unwise consideration of children's likes and dislikes.

So if your children are cross and irritable and difficult with their food, first look very carefully into the matter of the nursery diet.

A little judicious starvation is exactly what an overfed, over pampered stomach requires.

Give them four or five hours interval between meals. Even a child of 2 years can quite well "last" for four and a half hours, and will be all the better for it.

By allowing this interval you give the stomach time to digest a meal, and to get up an appetite for the next.

Hundreds ofchildren are spoilt merely because they are improperly fed. They don't get a chance of being good and happy, and they make everybody around them miserable. In such a case it is worth while to try what a little judicious starvation will do.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE

Dreaming on Wedding Cake.

Dreaming on wedding cake is an ancient custom, and, as originally conducted, was a relatively simple ceremonial. Now, we have changed all that, and the latest fashion involves a game of chance that lasts for a whole week.

The names of six actual or not impossible suitors are written on as many slips of paper, and there is added a slip which is left blank; a slip for each night in the week, with the blank for the seventh, to indicate chance of one's being an old, or "bachelor" maid. These slips are shaken up and put in an envelope. Then the recent wedding guest tucks the little box of cake under her pillow and goes to sleep.

In the morning, no matter what her dreams may have been, she draws a slip from the envelope and discards it. And so on till only one is left, and this is the fateful one.

However, the rules of the game provide that if the result is not satisfactory, one may go to another wedding, bring home more cake, and try again

All this is interesting as a game of chance, but is seems rather mechanical. The old custom, however, of putting the cake under the pillow for three nights and assuming that the one you dream of for two of those three nights is to be your husband is best!

The Engagement Ring.

No romantic girl—and what girl is not romantic?—considers herself really engaged until "the ring" has been placed on the third finger of her left hand by the man who has asked her to be his wife. She not only looks upon it as the emblem and seal of her promise to him, but also of his eternal love and devotion to her. "If he had not loved me better than anyone else in all the world he could not have given this to me," she tells herself.

There are some men who cannot understand this "sentiment" in their sweethearts. They think that if a girl is assured that a man loves her, by his actions his words and his giving of gifts, she will never worry about an engagement ring—In fact, might prefer to be without one, so that she may still have her fun out of life without being branded as "an engaged girl," and therefore of no more interest to other men.

Men who think like that were never more mistaken. The girl who really loves is proud to wear the token of having given her heart into a good man's keeping.

Advice to Lover.

A Lover—It is highly improbable for her to do so. It always gives rise to gossip. You should arrange to see her quite often. She can hardly be expected to sit at home night after night.

FADS IN FASHIONS

Even if the Parisian authorities in fashion have been a little dilatory in disclosing their attentions with respect to spring modes, now that the latter are definitely declared they are seen to be marvelous confections, compounded of elegant colors and cut on exquisite lines. The magnificence of fabrics and the elaborateness of the embroideries alone show the sumptuous tendency of fashion.

Scarves are more worn this season even than last summer. Net and chiffon in the most delicate colorings are used, and even one tone is not sufficient, for where effects of nacre de perle are not introduced, painting of flowers supplies the decorations.

Green, as befits the season, is the most popular color for spring gowns. In the variety of tones, the cloth and silk manufactures rival nature itself, from the pale—almost white—green of the forming buds to the bronze of the sap-filled boughs, every graduation of color can be seen; but, without doubt, the greens tending towards olive preponderate.

The best toilettes seen in Paris show wonderful color effects (so many shades of chiffon being used over embroidered or fancy cashmere), the waistline is definitely marked, and for afternoon wear the round skirt touches the ground. For evening, trains are worn, but they are for the most part short and very scanty in effect; the tied--in skirt (with very little stuff employed in its construction) is still a prominent mode for day or evening wear.

Check and striped thin woolen fabrics with fine English serges are much used in Parisian tailor-made costumes for the coming summer. They are nearly always braided and with a touch of "Paisley" cashmere embroidery on "gilet" or revers. The majority of these tailor coats keep to severest lines with "jupe" quite short and for the most part kilted. In the toilette de visite or theater frocks, necks are cut slightly low and sleeves only cover the elbow, though at this point there is some indication of fulness and greater elaboration.

THE MAN WHO CURSED HIS COUNTRY

By FERDINAND C. IGLEHART.

The unhappy result of even a momentary and heedless lapse from patriotism is well illustrated by Edward Everett Hale's story, "The Man Without a Country," which, while it reads like history, has in reality no foundatio non fact. Philip Nolan is a young soldier, on duty at Fort Adams, and is charmed by the manner and character of Aaron Burr.

After Burr's trial for treason, the soldiers at Fort Adams whiled away their monotony holding mock court-martials. Nolan was accused of being tired of the service and, being found guilty, was asked if he had anything to say for himself. He cursed the United States and said, "I wish I may never hear of the United States again." The soldier was taken at his work and placed on board ship, with orders that he was never to see the United States again, nor even to hear its name mentioned. From that day in 1807 till the day he died in 1863, he was a man without a country.

The day before he died he called one of the officers on the ship to him, and told of his wretchedness, and of his real love for his country. He saw thirty-four stars on the flag, and begged to know the names of the states that had been admitted and of the progress of the country.

That night he died, and in his Bible this text was marked. "They desire a better country, that is an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a city."

Human government is a divine institution. In a good government loyalty to country is made out of the same material as loyalty to God. There are some who have a very poor estimate of the value of American citizenship. They have not the faintest idea of the privileges and responsibilities which it implies.

Some who come to our shores with false notions of authority, seem, by some Satanic frenzy, to cry out and fight against the very institutions that offer them the richest blessings. And some who are born in our own land are poisoned by the same spirit, and they do not hesitate to slay the officers of the law, and are happiest when the chief executive, the model ruler, the idol of the nation, is stricken down. It is time for the shame and crime to cease.

The country is waking up, alas! too tardily to the task of keeping or sending away from the shelter and sight of our flag, those who hate it so much.

NURSERY IDEAS

Letting the Children Go Hatless.

Many parents think it a good idea to let their children go bareheaded in summer. There may be some advantages in this, but the objections fully offset them. At least two are very strong ones.

The first is that the head is unprotected from the sun. This is a serious danger to children, as they are peculiarly liable to be affected by strong sunshine falling on the uncovered head—sunstroke has often been caused by this.

The other objection is the want of shade to the eyes. It is painful to see the amount of suffering caused to little children by the carelessness of those in charge of them in allowing glaring sunshine to fall directly on their eyes.

Mothers and nurses seem in many cases quite oblivious to the absolute torture that may in this way be inflicted on infants who cannot raise their hands to their eyes to protect them.

A shady hat is one of the first necessities for every child in summer.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, May 16.—It is significant that although the railroads placed very few orders for bridges last week, contracts for structural and fabricated steel were heavy, aggregating 40,000 tons.

The Steel corporation interests secured only about 2,500 tons of the total, losing the business to independent companies because of the inability of the Carnegie Steel company to supply the American Bridge company with structural shapes, under two months, while competitors are making deliveries in a few weeks.

There has been active competition among independent fabricators and structural mills for business and prices have continued low in consequence especially in the east.

Railroads are still giving small support to the steel mills directly, but including mining cars and a part of the Harriman purchases, contracts were placed last week for 4,500 cars. Locomotive orders aggregated 109 including fifty for the Chicago & Great Western. Rail contracts were only 30,000 tons

The principal feature of interest in pig iron was a drop of 50 to 75 cents per ton in the price of steel-making iron in the centra lwest toward the middle of the week. Standard Bessemer sold down to $16.25 and basic iron under $15 at valley furnaces. In the aggregate, about 15,000 tons were sold for shipment up to November and December.

In the east there was some little increase in orders for foundry iron aggregating about 20,000 tons, and contracts are pending for 15,000 tons additional.

GET READY FOR COMET

Astronomers Prepare to Turn Lenses on Visitor on Wednesday.

All Agree There Is No Danger---Some Predict Luminous Display.

Washington, May 16—Halley's comet will be greeted Wednesday, on its closest approach to the earth, by a bristling battery of telescopes flanked by rapid fire lenses in the celestial cameras of the naval observatory, the only national observatory in the United States. The government observers have prepared for the great star that is rushing through space, and elaborate calculations have been made as to the minute and second the flying comet will be at given places in the heavens, where it will be observed and photographed.

Prof. F. F. Naully of New York asserts that the tail of the comet is not composed of gas or minute particles of matter, or of meteoric bodies. The entire solar system, Mr. Naully says, is filled with gases in varying states of density. All these gases, poisonous and non-poisonous, are present in the earth's atmosphere in dense form.

Made Visible by Sunlight.

The changing spectrum of Halley's comet, according to Mr. Naully is due to the fact that as the comet's great tail of light sweeps through various parts of the solar system, it lights up different layers of gases, conveying the impression that the tail itself is gaseous. Mr. Naully says the spectrum of reflected sunlight is always present in the head and tail of the comet, thus proving that both parts of it are by sunlight alone made visible.

"The sweeping of this cometary cone of solar force does cause disturbance in the solar system," said Mr. Naully. "The earth and all planets are affected, not only when they come within the actual cone, as the earth will on Wednesday, but also by the ethereal waves set in motion by the comet's tail.

Effect on Earth's Atmosphere.

"It is the constant attempt of the earth's mass and atmosphere to adjust themselves to this disturbance that has caused the prevalent earth tremors, storms and other phenomen.

"The climax will be reached this week. There will be no collision of the earth and comet, nor will the earth be enveloped in poisonous gases. The effect of the passage may be to cause great condensation of atmospheric vapors, so that automatically the earth will be provided with a shield that will act as a lead screen used to protect X-ray operators."

May Be Aurora Display.

Boston, May 16.—New England astronomers agree that no harmful effect is to be experienced next Wednesday from the passage of the earth through the tail of Halley's comet.

Prof. David P. Todd of Amherst college thinks there may be an aurora effect. Prof. Robert W. Wilson of Harvard college observatory said there may be a darkening of the atmosphere, while Prof. Edward C. Pickering, head of the Harvard observatory, doubts if there will be any effect at all.

"There may be a shower of charged particles, but very small and numerous, which may affect wireless telegraphy," said Prof. Willson. "There is no cause for alarm or fear. Cyanogen exists only near the comet's head and the tail is a good vacuum."

Compared to a Candle.

Prof. Todd said there will be no more sensation than caused by the rays of light from a distant candle on a person's hand. There is an equal amount of cyanogen gas dissipated from each, proportionately, he says.

Leon Campbell, another of the Harvard astronomers, thinks a luminous display probable.

KENTUCKY LIQUOR TAX LAW IS UPHELD.

VALUABLE MINING PROPERTY SECURED

Capt. James H. Lanyon Heads the Idaho-Duluth Development Company.

The completion of the Gillmore and Pittsberg railroad into Salmon City, Idaho, has been very gratifying news to the mining world. The construction of this railroad has made it possible to develop one of the richest known undeveloped mining districts in the country, which is located on the middle fork of the Wimpey creek, Idaho. The inaccessibility of this district in the past practically prevented its development, but this advantage has been removed by the completion of the railroad. Already there is evidence of much activity in the district, and in a short time the Butte hill, with all of its wealth, will have a worthy competitor.

Capt. James H. Lanyon, a well-known and successful mining man of many years' experience in the Butte camp and in the copper and iron mines of Michigan and Minnesota, until recently superintendent of the Calumet & Montana mine, spent two months in this district this spring and with much care and skill secured valuable mining property, well located, for the Idaho-Duluth Development company, of which he is president.

Capt. Lanyon's report is as follows: "After going over the ground minutely, I secured six full claims, named respectively Saginaw, Mesabi, Vermillion, Virginia, Wanigas and Gogebic. Also a five-acre mill site and water rights on the middle fork of the Wimpey creek. These claims are located on the Idaho side of the Rocky mountains and contiguous to the Calumet & Montana mine and are noted for their rich outcroppings of high-grade copper and gold ores which carry good value in lead and silver. The entire hill on the Idaho and Montana side is highly mineralized and, in the estimation of mining men, will rival in richness and wealth the noted Butte hill, on which so many valuable mines are situated that have yielded great fortunes to their stockholders.

The Calumet & Montana mines have recently acquired extensive holdings on the Idaho side and are now driving a tunnel from the Montana side to Idaho, actively working on both sides of the divide to obtain access to the railroad now completed and in operation to Salmon City, Idaho. The Idaho-Duluth Development company's property is very favorably located on the slope of the hill and all of the claims have the same formation and lodes as the Calumet & Montana, which will average from 4 to 6 per cent copper and about $10 per ton in gold; silver four to six ounces per ton with quite a value in lead. The Wanigas and Gogebic claims have rich veins of gold which show an assay from samples taken from the surface of $11.40 per ton. There are rich veins of gold, copper and silver traceable on all these claims, which, with further developments, will make producing mines of great value. These claims are only three miles from the Gillmore and Pittsberg railroad. There is an abundance of timber on the ground for mining purposes and building."

With all of the advantages enumerated the Idaho-Duluth Development company offers the investor a very attractive and promising proposition. A limited amount of the treasury stock is offered to the public at $1 per share. Applications can be made in person or by letter to the company's office, 416-417 Lonsdale building, Duluth, Minn.

WEST END WILL REPRESENT LOCAL CHURCHES

Perishes in Destruction of Switch Shanty Near Bovey.

Bovey, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Walsh was burned to death and Edward Burns had a close call from being smothered by smoke when the Missabe road's switchmen's shanty near here, in which they were sleeping, caught fire and was destroyed early Sunday morning. The shanty was located on the high line. The men went into the shanty late Saturday night and the fire was discovered early yesterday morning. Burns nearly lost his life trying to save his companion. Burns is being held pending the outcome of the inquest the coroner is conducting.

"BACHELOR HALL" PLAYED BY CLUB

Gilbert School Teachers' Dramatic Club Presents Three-Act Comedy.

Gilbert, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The faculty of District No. 18, assisted by Frank A. Bowman, city engineer and Raymond Nolan, of the senior class of the Gilbert high school gave a three acts comedy, "Bachelor Hall," in the high school auditorium to a crowded house under the direction of the Gilbert Teachers' Dramatic club.

The play is a very laughable comedy, and the parts were all well taken, and received by the audience with much applause. The fun began soon after the opening of the first act, and there was no lull in the play from the standpoint of interest and amusement until the curtain dropped at the close of the third act. The High school band furnished music between acts under the direction of Prof. George E. Thompson. The play represented some very funny and entangling situations resulting from the patronizing of a marriage bureau by members of the same family, and the uproariously funny outcome of the various situations that arose from the mix-ups.

Much credit is due Miss Eugenie Kellogg for the success of the play and for the able manner in which she carried her part as the young "authoress." The part of doctor, by Prof. A. V. Jones, and Lae "cowboy" by Prof. Thompson, "Trouble," by Frank A. Bowman, "Tessie," the stenographer by Miss Elizabeth Lively, "Col. Peuckle," by Supt. Newberry, "Society Belle," by Miss Genevieve Tracy, "Reporter and man impersonating a Woman," by Raymond Nolan, "Detective," by Prof. Newton, "Mrs. Losta Mann," by Miss Maud Barr, "Friend and Adviser to Gwbdolyn Dashforh," by Miss Nydia Jones, were all of excellent selection and the parts were taken very ably.

The club was organized last fall for purposes of improvement and amusement, and for the purpose of assisting any worthy cause or movement that might be in need of financial assistance. The funds have been turned over to the High school art fund. Rehearsals are in progress for the annual senior class play to be given about June 1.

GILBERT PLAYERS WIN.

High School Nine Defeats Eveleth High in Rattling Game.

Gilbert, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an interesting game of base ball here Saturday afternoon, the Gilbert high school nine won from the Eveleth high in one of the speediest games played by the local team this season. The Gilbert high had the game won early in the afternoon, when they succeeded in shutting the visitors out and landed on the curves of the Eveleth high, chalking up four runs in the first inning. The score was 8 to 5. Mestinoch in right field, and Masterson and Hosking in the infield, did well. The Gilbert boys claim to be the champion ball nine of the ranges and in defending their title will meet the fast Hibbing high bunch next Saturday at Hibbing. After that they expect to meet the Chisholm nine.

ORE UNDER McKINLEY.

Stampede to Purchase Lots in Range Village Is On.

Gilbert, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a stampede to purchase lots in McKinley. A large number of transfers having taken place in the past few days.

It is generally understood that there is a large ore deposit under the townsite, and eventually the town will have to be moved as Sparta was moved.

Whether a new townsite will be platted and the buildings moved to the new point or whether the mining company will buy the property owned outright has not been decided as yet. The mining company has not as yet given out any information on the subject.

HIBBING CLASS CONFIRMED.

Miss Carrie Cudmore, who has held the position of stenographer here, left yesterday for her home in Washburn, where she has secured a position with the South Shore Lumber company.

The friends of Miss Ella Lundmark McLean, who was recently married to William McLean, Jr., gave her a shower Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Olson, on Central avenue.

Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Roskilly entertained for Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sarff Saturday evening and yesterday. The Sarff family left this morning for their future home at Long Prairie.

J. L. Booth has accepted the position of assistant manager of the Troy Steam laundry. Mr. Booth is a son of Mrs. James Lavliollette, owner of the laundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Johnson and family have gone to Cambridge, Minn., where they have purchased a sixty-acre farm.

O. G. Hall has succeeded A. V. Holley as superintendent of the Grant mine at Buhl. Mr. Holley has taken the position of mechanical engineer for all the Inter-State Iron company's mine on the range and will make her headquarters in this city.

Mrs. John Heritage, mother of Alderman Albert Heritage, has arrived from Scanlon, to make this city her home.

Mrs. Thomas Huartson and family left today for Winnipeg, where they will make their home in the future.

The ladies of the Episcopal guild will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. T. W. Lusk on Lake boulevard.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. D. E. Shea, 320 Cedar street.

The ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran church will give a basket social Friday night at North Pole hall.

The Norwegian Lutheran Young Peoples' society will meet next Thursday evening with Mrs. J. T. Faduna at the parsonage. The Ladies' Aid society will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Martin Nilson, Beech street.

Mrs. George Hastings and daughter left today for Chippewa Falls, where they will visit previous to going to Grand Rapids to make their future home.

RANGE AUTO OWNERS TO PERFECT ORGANIZATION.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the automobile owners of the range will be held here soon for the purpose of organizing an auto club. There are considerably over 100 machines on the range and the object of the club will be to secure much needed improvement of the roads on the range and leading to Duluth.

WIND HAMPERED WORK OF VIRGINIA SHOOTERS.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A heavy wind blowing in the faces of the members of the gun club who participated in the shoot yesterday, prevented them from making record scores. In the first ovent, out of a possible 50 targets, Backus made 38, Maitland 32, Van Evera 28, and Rough 23. In the 100 bird contest, Hawkins broke 74, Bellman 70, and Elliott 69.

Virginia Beats Eveleth.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Toddy Tossers of Virginia scored another victory over the Eveleth bunch on the local grounds yesterday afternoon, winning the game by a score of 15 to 11.

EVELETH ALL STARS MEET FIRST DEFEAT.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth All Stars met their first defeat of the season, yesterday afternoon on the Biwabik grounds, being beaten by the Biwabik city team, 9 to 6.

The Eveleth bartenders yesterday on the Virginia grounds won the second game of the series with the Virginia drink mixers, 7 to 4, in a five-inning contest, which was featured by the consistent hitting of the locals.

The McKinley city team yesterday afternoon defeated the Saarl, Campbel & Krake nine of Gilbert at McKinley, 21 to 12.

EXPLOSION DURING FIRE IN EVELETH

Dynamite Caps Go Off, Spreading Fire to an Adjoining Dwelling.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fire which started from a woodpile, which it is thought was ignited by sparks from adjoining forest fires early Sunday morning, destroyed the homes of Joseph Red and Joseph Rittco in the Spruce location, causing $1,500 damage. The occupants of the Rittco home had narrow escape. Mrs. Rittco and child had to jump through a window.

The firemen had a hard time reaching the scene of the blaze, and getting the water into play, it being necessary to run 2,000 feet of hose to the Spruce No. 4 water tank. At the Rittco home, soon after the occupants had safely escaped, many caps of dynamite exploded and cause the flames to spread to the Red building, which was soon devoured by the blaze.

HELD ON ARSON CHARGE.

Woodsmen Alleged to Have Caused Lumber Fire at Winton.

Ely, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A woodsman by the name of Christholtz has been held to the grand jury on the charge of setting fire to the lumber yards of the St. Croix Lumber company at Winton. It is claimed he had been drinking.

MEGLICH GOES FREE.

Accused of Stabbing Another in Eye, Establishes Self-Defense.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.—Joseph Meglich, arrested for assaulting Charles Mohar, with a pitchfork at a Spruce location wedding, had a hearing in municipal court before Judge Prince. About ten witnesses were called, and all testified that Meglich had committed the assault, and this Meglich admitted, but as the evidence showed that he hit Mohar with the pitchfork, so as to defend himself from Mohar's club, the case was dismissed.

WILL GO IT ALONE.

Eveleth Organizations Will Combine at Ely Lake Picnic.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the Cyril Method, Catholic Foresters, Holy Family, National Society of Presperity, Society of St. Barabarossa, and Holy Name of Christ orders, all local Austrian lodges, numbering 700, Sunday evening held a meeting at the Holy Family church, at which it was decided that each lodge will rent a separate hall, for the holding of separate entertainments, instead of a picnic at Lily lake, May 29, the date of the dedication of the new Holy Family church.

Rev. R. C. Johnson spoke last evening at the M. E. church on "What a Soldier in the United States Army Learns About God and the Devil," and illustrated his address with remarks of his experience as a soldier in the Philippines.

TWO HARBORS CATHOLIC PRIESTS HOLDING MISSION.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Holy Ghost Catholic church is holding a mission this week, under the direction of Father D. V. Patt and two other fathers. At high mass Sunday morning, the fathers opened the mission with a sermon. The mission will continue during the week, special services being held each day at 5:30 a. m. and twenty minutes of instruction, and 7:30 p. m., rosary and sermon and benediction.

On Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 4 o'clock a mission will be held for children.

TWO HARBORS BASEBALL CLUB BEATS BIG DULUTH.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local baseball park yesterday, to the tune of 7 to 2. The game was closely contested and a few sensational plays were made. Roberts and Chaffee and Irwin and Chaffee were the batteries for the locals and Murphy and Summers did good work for the Big Duluthians.

VIRGINIA CHILD IS CRUSHED UNDER LUMBER.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—While playing with several other children about the lumber piles of the W. T. Bailey Lumber company, Saturday, Ada, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tassi, was struck on the head by a falling timber and instantly killed.

The funeral was held from the Catholic church yesterday afternoon, followed by interment in Calvary cemetery.

Speakers on Collegian's Work.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Allison Hayes of Hamline university spoke at the First M. E. church last evening on "What Shall We Do to Work the Works of God," and from tals led up to the college work. He said that he had spoke to some 1,500 high school pupils and only one out of every ten knew what work they were going to take up.

Eveleth Shooters Have Sport.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth Gun club held two very successful shoots, Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning with many members present from this city and the surrounding towns, and many high scores were made.

Athletics are on the boom here and a tennis club is now in the process of formation.

cently on the Erie following the road's rejection of the demands of the conductors and trainmen is set for today, and awards of the arbitrators in the wage controversy on one or more of the lines of the New York Central system west of Buffalo are practically ready, with the possibility that they may be publicly announced at any time.

Erie Situation Critical.

The situation on the Erie is regarded by railroad men as the most critical that has so far developed. The road has claimed that it cannot afford to pay the rates granted by the Baltimore & Ohio, the Central and other lines upon which the award has already been made. The men's representatives have insisted that their services were worth just as much to the Erie as to those of their fellow organization men to the other lines. An appeal to arbitration under the Erdman act, as in the case of the Baltimore & Ohio was regarded as not an unlikely outcome in case the Erie men's vote favored giving their organization heads power to call a strike.

The text of the secretary's letter to Kerby is as follows:

"May 16, 1910.

"Sir: You are hereby discharged from the public service because you are unworthy to remain in it.

"Seeking to Injure Me."

"In divulging information obtained by you in the confidential relation of stenographer to the secretary of the interior; in communication that information to those whom you are bound to know are wrongfully seeking to bring reproach upon the administration and to injure me; and in deliberately missstating material facts as to which you did treacherously communicate, you show that you are unworthy and unsafe. The fact that your treachery is futile cannot mitigate the character of your offense. For the good of the service you are hereby dismissed. Respectfully,

"R. A. Ballinger, Secretary."

RAIN COMES TO RESCUE OF SETTLERS

covered the sky with a film that threw a shadow over the city.

Reports from Bemidji are to the effect that over that city there was a dense cloud of smoke that made the day dark as twilight.

Observer Richardson of the local weather bureau says that the skies promise more moisture. There is likely to be a heavy rainfall within the next twelve hours, and it will be general throughout the fire zone.

Rain Is Precious.

Every hour of rain is worth thousands of dollars.

Northern Minnesota needs the rain more than it needs anything else, just now, and the weather man says it will be forthcoming.

The showers that have fallen have done much good. The fires in the forests have been stayed and the situation now is much more encouraging than it has been for several days past.

Walker, Minn., May 16.—Rain late last evening saved from further destruction by forest fires of country surrounding Walker.

A special from Cass Lake, says forest fires there have been completely smothered by the rains.

At Crookston, a general rain fell Sunday afternoon and showers continued, this morning. Crops were not suffering but the rain will be very beneficial in hurrying germination of later sown grain. The fall was not heavy enough to stop the balance of the grain seeding and corn planting more than a couple of days. Pastures will be greatly benefited. The crop outlook could not be better.

A special from Houghton says: Captains of steamers coming into Portage Lake report that Lake Superior is covered with smoke and that navigation is attended with great danger. Only a heavy shower can prevent the total destruction of millions of dollars worth of timber, railroad and other property in that vicinity.

C. H. Carhart, sheriff of Cook county, in a communication to The Herald, says that the stories that have been printed seem to have been exaggerated. Extracts from his letter follow:

"This village has been in no danger from the fires this spring the property that has been burned has been in close proximity to eutover lands while we are surrounded by a growth of young poplar and birch which will not burn at this time of year and the soil is moist so that there have been no ground fires at all now, which makes the conditions very different from those which prevailed in the fall of 1908.

"Instead of the village being filled with scorched refugees, there has not been a single person come in on account of the fire. The fire has not been within one and a half miles of us at any time, and the sensational reports which both the Duluth papers have published have caused a great deal of unnecessary worry and expense, and are greatly deplored by the people here.

"We do not underestimate the great damage which the fire has caused, nor the danger there is from such conditions as now exist, but we wish that you would be careful to publish only truthful accounts and not allow the articles to be written by some reporter with a vivid imagination, who bases his stories on the reports furnished by inexperienced young men from here who like to send in sensational stuff."

In Northern Michigan the outlook is not satisfactory, according to a dispatch from Calumet. The weather bureau officials at that place can see no promise of rain and unless there is some rainfall the fires are certain to sweep over an extensive territory that has not to this time been included in the fire zone. Backfires are being built in most of the fire districts.

Duluthians who have been maintaining fishing camps in the country adjacent to the ranges have lost considerable property. The fires have swept over that country and taken everything. Aside from the comparatively small losses involved in the destruction of camps, the greatest loss is entailed by the destruction of cedar, spruce and pulpwood, of which large quantities have been lost.

Boat Excursion to Winnipeg.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Grand Forks is to repeat its performance of last year when it was sent to Winnipeg from Grand Forks on the Red River. The trip is scheduled to start Thursday, June 2, and it will take about four days. The trip is a very good sized one, and demonstrates that the days of river traffic are not yet over in this district.

Quakes in West Indies.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 16.—A sharp earthquake was felt at Georgetown, the capital of British Guiana, Saturday evening. There also were two slight shocks on the Island of Trinidad and a mild disturbance on the Island of Grenada.

Plague Epidemic in Amoy.

Amoy, China, May 16.—The bubonic plague is officially declared to be epidemic in this city.

GREETINGS TO FRIENDS

Rev. M. S. Rice Writes Interesting Open Letter From Mediterranean.

Most Striking Impression of Europe Is That It Is "Finished"

To the Editor of The Herald:

Traveling as I am through the graces of many friends and unable to write them of all my experiences and desirous of assuring them of my constant memory of them while I enjoy this treat, may I address to you my word of greeting? I am writing this from mid-sea on that famous blue sea, the Mediterranean. It has not been overdrawn by the many who have written about it, nor can it be. The trip across it, which we are now enjoying comes as a most delightful relief from a journey of three days on a European railway. I think that would be about the limit of endurance for an American. I am becoming more and more proud of my nationality the farther I travel. If you have any chronic howlers at the county there, ship them for a tour somewhere else, and I assure you they will come back content.

When I landed at the wretched little Italian port, Brindisi, after three days' riding by rail from London, I was prepared to maintain anywhere that the American railroads simply have no competition on earth. I must not let myself get started on that line, or I will use up all my space simply relieving my feelings.

We have passed by with a mere glance the unmeasurable attractive things of London and Paris, in our endeavor to get into Palestine before hot weather, and shall be content with a return visit to them, but the breath of their great history blew into our faces as we passed. We ran through the eloquent aisles of Westminister Abbey, and even thus the grip of those clustered immortals caught our hearts. It was my actual experience to find myself while looking up reading tablets on the wall, aware suddenly that my feet stood upon the burial slabs of Darwin, Livingstone, Dickens, Browning, Tennyson and Gladstone. And close clustering about me on every hand were the remains of men whose hands had been felt upon the whole world's life. No one can imagine what impress such a place can make upon the mind until it has actually been experienced. My boy was more impressed with the grave of Maj. Andre, than any other. Deep grooves worn in the stone paved floors always gave evidence of greatness and at the end of each such path we found some worthy interest. I found the tomb of unhappy Mary that way and near by her across the aisle the tomb of her persecutor, Elizabeth. But I cannot dwell here now. A chapter is needed for every isle of this great charnel house. We whirled through Paris and did it completely in three hours. What mockery! Every corner we turned was eloquent with historic interest. The sobs of a mad people are scarcely hushed from many of the streets and public squares. Great and magnificent monuments rise on every side, telling of the fierce experiences of the most maddening days any country has ever endured. The only way to comfort one's self with taking the first train out of such a focus of interest is that we will come back again, and try to behave before it all as becometh a sane man.

Journey Through France.

The long railroad journey down through France, and along the east coast of Italy, in spite of the trains is full of fascinating interest. How utterly different the customs and the people. Quaint little ancient towns. Houses all built of stone and brick, and every roof of tile or thin rocks. Everywhere the evidence of centuries of work put on fields and towns. Things seem finished. There is no evidence of construction. The people are past that period. Many, many generations have been born and buried since any man had any constructive impressions. This perhaps is the most noticeable and impressive fact which follows an American everywhere over here. Things are done. Nothing now remains but to make a mere living. And when people are reduced to that small incentive the response is but poor and beggarly. Everywhere they are met with patient oxen, and drive oxen and scrawny donkeys along the well-made roads. Women and girls in regular regiments are at work in the fields Children, dirty and unkempt, of course, are playing about village streets or clustering about the wharves of the ships. I wondered if there had been any, or was to be any discussion of the problem of women and labor. There is pathos of deepest color on every landscape. It is utterly impossible to dodge the persistent beggars and insistent porters. They actually weary one so that much of the pleasure is spoiled by them. They are wise as to their location. At every point of interest they congregate. The most interesting things of the world are swarmed about with the most uninteresting and disgusting people on earth. When a fellow sets out to see the things worth seeing he may be sure to be compelled to wade through a whole mob of undesirables. I wish I could sneak up unknown on these great centers of interest, or rather I wish I could see them surrounded by the real expression of the people. It makes me want to turn my feet away from the path of travel and go out into country places and find the real people as they are, for nothing on earth is so interesting as the people, though nothing on earth is more tiresome or disgusting, than that false representation the people get at most all the centers of world interest.

But I must not use your whole issue with a mere introductory chapter. We are not at our destination yet. We will soon be in Egypt for a short stay, and shall then spead some time among the cities and villages and country roads of Palestine, from whence come trooping the sacred memories so dear to so many on earth today. We will try to send you a word from there and hope it may at least, serve as a greeting from a far off citizen of no mean city, called Duluth, which citizen, the farther he goes becomes more and more in love with his home town and is convinced now beyond any dispute, that a man who can write on his satchel, "Port of Duluth," is registered from as good a town as the fond stars look down upon. Yours, M. S. RICE.

S. S. Samaramis, Mediterranean Sea, April 24, 1910.

INDICTED BY MAY GRAND JURY

"Madam" Mary Gain was indicted by the May grand jury on the charge of keeping a house of ill fame. The indictment was one of those kept secret.

The woman has left the state, it is said and when last heard from was in Superior. A warrant is awaiting her return.

The Palace "hotel" on St. Croix avenue is closed and the inmates of the place, getting their cue several days ago, have departed, it is said.

The woman has been arrested a score of times and the fight between her and the authorities has been long and bitter.

DULUTH ELKS TO VISIT DETROIT

Will Accompany the Northern Michigan Delegation to National Convention.

A delegation of Duluth Elks will attend the national convention at Detroit in July. They will travel with the Elks from the northern portions of Wisconsin and Michigan who will attend the state convention of Michigan at the same time. Duluth Elks will leave here on the evening of July 8 and will be joined by the Elks of the Copper country at Nestoria. The party will travel on a D. & C. steamer between St. Ignace and Detroit. They will reach Detroit Sunday afternoon, July 10. The convention will be held beginning Monday, July 11.

The Elks of Northern Michigan, about 1,000 will be dressed as miners. Each man will carry a mine lamp or candle on a leather cap. The famous Calumet & Hecla band will head the formation and will be a part of the massed band of 700 men which will give several concerts. It is said that more than 50 per cent of the Elks in Northern Michigan have promised to go to Detroit.

California Towns Jarred.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—This city and surrounding territory were visited Sunday by a series of earthquakes that alarmed many people, but did little damage beyond breaking dishes, destroying house ornaments and cracking walls of the lighter houses. Pasadena suffered the heaviest damage. Several buildings were cracked.

ACTIVITY IN BUTTE CAMP.

Recent Mining Developments Mean Much to Montana, Says H. G. Klenzie

The acquisition of part of Ex-Senator Clark's Butte mining properties by the Amalgamated Copper company and the announcement by F. Augustus Heinze that he will return to the Montana mining camp to develop some of his properties indicate much mining activity in the Montana town, according to H. G. Klenzie, a well known Butte mining operator, who is at the Spalding.

Mr. Klenzie is interested with local and Upper Michigan people in several mining propositions in the western state and comes here frequently on business missions. Besides being prominent in the mining world Mr. Klenzie is also known as the stepfather of Mary McLane the Butte girl who came into distinction a decade ago by her remarkable book satirizing human foibles and especially some found in the Butte locality. Miss McLane is at present in Butte and it is understood she is working on another book that will be issued soon.

Indian Chief Dead.

Ashland, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Moses White Chief of the Odanah tribe of Indians died at Odanah, Saturday, aged 65.

He leaves a widow, three sons, two of whom are grown up, one about 12 years of age, and one daughter. Moses White has been for many years a strong character, and has devoted a great deal of his life in helping the Indians and their cause.

S. S. S. CURES OLD SORES

Every old sore comes from some kind of impurity in the blood. It remains an open, discharging place on the flesh because the circulation constantly deposits into the fibres and tissues which surround the spot, the infectious matter with which the blood is contaminated. It is impossible for the sore to heal while the blood is in this impure state. S. S. S. heals old sores because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers; it goes into the circulation and removes the cause from the blood. When the blood has been purified there is no longer any inflammatory impurity or infectious matter to irritate the place, and nature causes a certain and natural healing of the ulcer. It is all well enough to endeavor to cleanse an old sore, or stop the itching, or absorb the discharge, with external applications, but a cure can never be reached in this way, because such applications do not reach the blood where the cause is located. S. S. S. does not simply cause a scab to form over an old sore, but beginning at the bottom it heals the place permanently by building new tissue, and filling the place with firm healthy flesh. S. S. S. is a purely botanical remedy, being made entirely of roots herbs and barks, each of which has a direct and lasting effect in removing impurities and poisons from the circulation. Old people who have suffered for years with a chronic sore will find S. S. S. a most helpful tonic and system builder in counteracting the debilitating effects of the old ulcer. # NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MANY POLES ARE COMING

President of National Polish Societies in Big Colonization Scheme.

Proposes to Locate Many Families in Northwestern Part of State.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank W. Grygla, president of the National Polish Societies of the United States, is the father of one of the greatest colonization movements ever attempted in the Northwest. He proposes to bring many Polish families from the cities and from the old country to the vast areas of rich lands now being drained and improved in eastern Marshall and Northern Red Lake counties. This drainage basin includes not less than 560,000 acres of land, of which about one-half is still subject to homestead entry.

Mr. Grygla has visited the whole section recently and is convinced that it offers greater opportunities for colonization and for successful and assured returns to the colonist than many of the much advertised Western colonization projects. He is now in attendance at the international meeting of the Polish societies at Washington, D. C. and on his return will be accompanied by various leaders who are interested in the great scheme.

Poles are Good Farmers.

He claims that all Poles are by nature and breeding natural farmers and dairymen and the mere fact that they are frequently found in this country congregated in the cities is no disqualification to their successful tilling of the soil.

As the rush of landseekers to this region has already set in, particularly those seeking homestead entries, Mr. Grygla and his associates are busily engaged in securing title to tracts of the lands through the local real estate offices. The Crookston land office being the one through which all homestead entries for this territory must be made, is feeling the increase of business incident to the taking of these homestead lands. The officers of the office state that some days as many as ten entries are made in this region.

BURNED GIRL IS NOT CARED FOR

Her Death Results After Two Weeks of Horrible Suffering.

New Salem, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald)—For two long weeks, her body a mas of burns from her knees to her waist, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Emmett, residing eighteen miles from New Salem, was without medical aid. Then a New Salem physician was called in, but it was too late, the little girl dying from her wounds. The funeral was held Sunday.

The little girl was working in the kitchen when her clothes became aflame. The body was horribly burned, and for two weeks she was given no medical attention. On the arival of the physician he found pus formed under the burned skin, while the parts of the body on which she had been lying were raw and bleeding. The cord in her legs were so drawn up and stiffened that the feet had turned back and could not be straightened, and the sufferer had been reduced to little more than a skeleton.

BOTTINEAU COUNTY TEACHERS MEETING.

Omemee, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—... very successful convention of the teachers of Bottineau county was held here Friday and Saturday. The principal address was by Prof. Gotfried Hult of the state university. The officers for the coming year follow: President, H. E. Layne, Lansford; vice president, Delmer Goode, Omemee; treasurer, Miss Dors Peebles; secretary, Miss Myrtle Kime.

CHARGED WITH PATRICIDE.

North Dakotan Is Alleged to Have Killed His Father.

Carrington, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a charge of murder in the first degree filed against him, Lee Miller is being held in the county jail. The coroner's jury that investigated the facts surrounding the death of J. D. Miller, the prisoner's father, declared that the shooting by Lee Miller was with felonous intent, and the young man will therefore have to stand trial for patricide. The date of the preliminary hearing has not been fixed as yet.

At the coroner's inquest a great deal of evidence was introduced. Young Miller's wife and sister declared he was insane, but other evidence was introduced to the contrary.

FUGITIVE IS WINGED.

North Dakota Half-Breed Shot Attempting to Escape.

Dunseith, N. D., May 16.—His attempt to escape from officials who had a warrant against him, resulted in Pat Gunville, a half breed, receiving a bullet wound in one of his legs. He started running when he caught sight of the officials, and they fired several shots over his head, without effect. Charles Allen then lowered fire and sent a bullet into one of the fugitive's legs, bringing him down.

IMMIGRANT'S BABY EXPIRES IN BOXCAR.

Portal, N. D., May 16.—Living in an open stock car here, in company with a number of horses, and sleeping in blankets soaked with water from the barrels which contained supplies for the animals, proved fatal to the infant son of B. Malsted, an immigrant. The child contracted pneumonia and died in the car.

Demented Man Takes Life.

Bowbells, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matthew Ron Rochsart, released three months ago from the asylum for the insane, committed suicide by the rifle route at the James Young home near Columbus, this county. He very probably became demented again. Rochsart was missed from his own home and it was not until after several hours of searching that his body was found.

SUSPECT FOUL PLAY.

Dickinson, N. D., Tinner Has Mysteriously Disappeared.

Dickinson, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although Albert Tuma, aged 23 years, has been missing for a week and with authorities searching for him during almost the entire time, no trace of the Dickinson tinner, who very mysteriously disappeared last Sunday has been found. Foul play is suspicioned, but no arrests have yet been made. He left here with Henry Brown. The theory that Tuma had gone to Brainerd, Minn., where he formerly resided and where he has quite a number of friends, was exploded when a telegram was received from Miss Jennie Barrett, asking that he forward her money for a ticket, supposedly to join him here. A subsequent telegram was from Staples, Minn., from the same woman.

A revolver, belonging to the missing man, has been found in the possession of Brown. When the tinner left Dickinson he had about $85 in cash and a valuable watch on his person.

SEARCHING FOR WOMAN SUSPECTED OF MURDER.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 16.—A hunt for a woman is in progress east of this city following the murder at midnight on Saturday of A. J. Sunderland in this city.

Accused by the police of having admitted the murder, the victim's wife left home at 1 o'clock Sunday morning and obtained a horse and buggy from a farmer and is now believed to have taken refuge in the timbered section thirty miles east of this city.

MOSINEE CHURCH IS USED AS POSTOFFICE.

Wausau, Wis., May 16.—Church, postoffice, store rooms, etc., is what the Episcopal church in Mosinee is being used for. It stands directly across the street from the burned section of the village and when the people attempted to save all they could, the church doors were thrown open and the mails and postoffice fixtures were carried into the left wing, where a temporary postoffice was arranged.

MINOT ATTORNEY TO DEFEND NOAH.

Minot, N. D., May 16.—Attorney D. C. Greenleaf of Minot has been appointed by Judge Goss to defend Robert Noah, farmhand, whose secondtrial for murder has been set for May 16 in the Ward county district court. The attorney declines to state what the defense will be, but it is generally supposed insanity will be claimed. Very few charged with murder have gone to trial with so forlorn an outlook, and the one fact that although he has no means whatever he will be defended by one of the ablest lawyers in the state is about the only bright ray in the dismal situation.

A confessed murderer, and legally dead according to the records of Ward county, sentenced to death, but through legal technicalities granted a respite when the gallows yawned over him, his position is most unenviable.

Injured By a Stallion.

Winona, Minn., May 16.—Eli Hull, a prominent citizen of St. Charles, was probably fatally injured Friday on the farm of Fred Roberson, one mile south of Utica, by an unruly stallion. The animal struck Mr. Hull on the head, knocking him down, and trampled on him.

Buys Duluth Cars.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 16.—A few days ago Manager E. E. Clark of the Public Service company went to Duluth and bid on four thirty-two foot street cars that the Duluth company had offered for sale. He has received notice that his bid had been accepted. The cars are of the same design as the ones now in use here, but are two feet longer than the longest now used. They will be shipped here immediately and put in use in place of some of the old cars that will be discarded.

POOL ROOM ORDINANCE OF CROOKSTON VETOED.

Crookston, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Allan McKinnon has vetoed two of the ordinances which were passed at the last meeting of the city council, the pool room ordinance which was changed so as to allow the pool rooms to run Sundays after 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other, regulating the cement work on sidewalks and curbs to be constructed in the future in this city.

Alston, Mich., Not Burning.

Houghton, Mich., May 16.—Joseph W. Alston, postmaster of Alston, in Houghton yesterday stated that the rumors regarding the burning of Alston by forest fires were untrue. Mr. Alston stated that no damage was done to the dwellings whatever, and that the fire was extinguished by the men before any damage could have been done.

Sandstone Firemen's Delegates.

Sandstone, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sandstone volunteer fire department has elected three delegates to attend the State Firemen's convention at Alexandria, on June 14 and 15. They are Chief Ghiringhelli, Simon Jensen and Albert Bobeck.

Crookston Civic League.

Crookston, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Van Buren, president of the Mankato Civic Improvement league addressed a gathering of club women of Crookston together with leading citizens, which taxed the capacity of the Commercial club auditorium Friday evening at the conclusion of which the Crookston Civic Improvement league was organized by the election of the following officers:

President, Mrs. George S. Chesterman; vice president, Mrs. C. E. Pott; secretary, Mrs. A. A. Just; treasurer, Mrs. George Wright.

Alleged Fire Bug Ill.

Granville, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two fires within three weeks resulted in the arrest of Joe Mathias on a charge of arson. Following his arrest he became very ill and is now under a physician's care, so the time for the preliminary examination is very uncertain.

Both of the fires were in buildings owned by Charles Stille, Mathias' former employer.

Catholic Indians to Meet.

Mandan, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Those in charge of the Indian Catholic mission on Fort Yates reservation, south of here, are doing their utmost to prepare for the big Catholic congress of Indians that will take place from June 25 to 29. An attendance of over 5,000 Christian Indians is expected.

EXPLANATIONS.

It was bad enough, in all conscience, when the president of the United States had to defend from very serious accusations the chief of one of the most important branches of the government and a member of his cabinet.

It was worse still when, in spite of that defense, given after an ex parte hearing at which, apparently, only the testimony of the accused person was considered, public suspicion of the accused cabinet officer grew deeper, and it was necessary to start a congressional investigation.

But what can be said of it, positive and comparative being exhausted and superlative seeming inadequate, when the president of the United States is called upon to defend his defense?

Though the majority of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee has carefully shielded the administration and has tried to keep the inquiry from spreading where it might become effective, the attorneys for the Pinchot side of the controversy, who really are unofficial attorneys for the people, are clever men, and they have dragged out one or two things that count.

For instance, the president's whitewash of Ballinger in answer to the Glavis charges appeared to have been prepared by himself upon a report by Attorney General Wickersham. As a result of it Glavis was discharged, and Shaw, Price and Pinchot himself followed rapidly.

Ballinger, to use his own expression, was "snake-killing."

Later it was developed that the report of the attorney general on which the president decided was written after the president had acted, and dated back to the day of the president's investigation. So it has become necessary for the president laboriously to explain that while it was true that the report was written afterwards and "back-dated," its substance was presented to him by the attorney general before his own letter exonerating Ballinger was prepared.

Now it appears that the assistant attorney general for the department of the interior, a Ballinger subordinate, prepared a letter at the request of the president giving Ballinger a clean bill of moral health, and that the president used part of that letter in making up his own decision in the case.

If you were a cabinet officer, and accused of unfaithfulness to the people, wouldn't you like to investigate your own case, make your own report on it, and write the president's decision regarding it?

So again the president is forced to explain. He didn't use the letter prepared by Mr. Ballinger's subordinate. He prepared his own letter, though he did use a few paragraphs of the letter submitted to him. The rest of it, however, was not satisfactory.

Clearing away every charge of corruption and dishonesty, it is still clear, most painfully clear, that Ballinger is no fit man for the high place to which the president called him. By instinct, temperament, tradition, environment and education, Ballinger is wholly unfitted for the place of guardian of the people's wealth. As well might the shepherd call to the charge of his sheep a half-tamed wolf lately sent out by the pack to scout for plunder.

As to Wickersham's reports upon the Ballinger case, the conclusion rapidly reaches maturity that the people would like some better surety for Wickersham than the fact that he is a member of the feeblest, most inefficient and least trustworthy cabinet called together in this country in half a century.

And the president! Surrounded by bad advisers, relying for his judgments upon men whose every instinct calls them to the service of privilege, giving his loyalty to the vice-regents of greed and his neglect to the common people whom he never understood and never will understand, the best that can be said of him is that it is evident that the fate of poor old dog Tray never taught him the lesson that there is peril in bad companions.

COMMON SENSE ON THE WATER.

That the season for boating and swimming and therefore the season for accidents is at hand is becoming unpleasantly evident. Though with no great faith that it will be heeded, the season is ripe for warning those who go upon the water that it is dangerous playground, and that there, if anywhere, common sense and caution are needed.

The other day six boys and six girls, high school pupils in the most charming time of life, went boating in Pennsylvania in two small skiffs, neither large enough for its load and one of them leaky. Gaily starting forth from shore and "cutting up" to express the exuberance of their spirits, tragedy followed quickly upon their pleasure, and eight of the twelve were drowned.

It is a sadly pathetic story; far sadder and far more pathetic than it would have been had these unfortunate children not been so obviously at fault, though thoughtlessly, for the tragedy that overtook them.

Their story is told. The days of eight of them are ended, and bitter sorrow has hushed the laughter of those who live. But their story is only the beginning of a long trail of tragedy that will stretch across the summer, with folly and foolhardiness paying the usual penalty. So common are such things that it would almost be possible to forecast approximately the number of lives that will be lost this coming summer by water accidents, nine out of ten of which will be caused by recklessness, thoughtlessness or brainlessness.

There is a kind of cowardice that often is responsible for tragedy growing out of pleasure. Almost any normal human being knows dangerous folly when he sees it, but not every normal human being has the good sense to rebuke it, and to get out of danger if the rebuke fails of its purpose.

There is no fool better known for his terrible record of tragedy than the fool that rocks the boat. Some people, finding themselves in the same boat with a specimen of this kind, have sense enough to tell him to stop his brainless folly, and to insist on being set ashore if he persists. Too many, however, fear to be called cowards if they show fear, and remain in the boat, perhaps to their tragic undoing, rather than run the risk of having their courage suspected. Yet theirs is the real cowardice, and there is no cowardice at all in the person who has common sense enough to refuse to expose himself to the penalty of another's folly.

There is no more dangerous beast in all the waters or jungles of the earth than the fool. The man or woman who fears the fool, and refuses to subject himself to the peril of his company, is no coward, but a person of great and unusual common sense.

There is good sport on the water, and lots of it. It is wholesome sport, too, and beneficial. But it ceases to be wholesome sport when fools bring in the element of unnecessary risk.

The proper thing to do when you find yourself in company with a fool who wishes to show his foolhardiness by overloading a boat, by rocking it or by venturing into unsafe places, is to kick that fool off the boat or to get off yourself.

Reasonable caution is about the most essential thing to take with you when you go upon the water; and, above all, be wary of that moral cowardice which leads people of weak mentality to prefer shivering in unnecessary peril rather than to risk being called a coward.

THE COST OF LIVING.

The analysis of the cost of living in Duluth prepared by a committee of the Commercial club and published in The Herald Saturday night shows that water, gas, electric light and fuel are, on the whole, cheaper here than elsewhere; that clothing and furniture are about the same as in other places; and that food and rent are in some cases higher than the average.

The committee did not find the differences so great as many had imagined. Indeed, living is so high in these days that every community is complaining, and the tendency to believe that living must be lower elsewhere is not confined to Duluth. It probably will be found in almost every community.

The cost of food can be attacked by readjusting railroad freight rates so that Duluth will stand on an equal basis with other cities; and this work is being attacked effectively by the Commercial club and business interests. It can be affected, too, by removing the condition under which the railroads have absorbed all the benefits of cheap lake transportation. Above all, it can be remedied by settling near-by acres, and this is being done.

Rents have been high in Duluth because the city grew faster than its accommodations. Rents have been lower in Superior because that city's accommodations were beyond its population. There are signs, now, that Duluth is catching up its growth, and rents have ceased going up.

Both these items are in the way of being adjusted.

DEALING WITH IMMORAL PLAYS.

There are just two ways to deal with indecency on the stage. One of these ways is the public boycott. Indecency on the stage will not flourish a minute after it ceases to pay, and that it pays now is only too evident.

In its relation to this problem the press is in a very delicate situation. Clearly it is the duty of the press to condemn indecency on the stage, as elsewhere, and to warn the public of the nature of the plays presented to it. Yet such condemnation and warning prove, in almost every case, to be advertising of the very sort theatrical panderers to depraved tastes wish for most ardently. When a play is produced with a view of catching the dollars of people with unclean minds, the fortunes of its managers are made if the newspapers condemn it as unspeakably vile.

The object of a newspaper in condemning a play for its filth is to warn the public against attending it. If the public would heed that warning, the device of the boycott would be effective. When the public, instead of heeding the warning and keeping away, flocks to the theater as vultures flock to a feast of a carrion, the newspaper has done harm by encouraging indecency on the stage when it meant to do good.

Very evidently the public, at least in the large centers of population, is not yet ready to use the boycott method of keeping the stage clean. Until it is ready there will always be managers willing to make money by catering to unwholesome tastes. Just so long as there are people to patronize unclean plays there will be managers to produce them. Newspapers may condemn them to their heart's content. It is interesting work, and allows a use of vigorous adjectives that satisfies the phrase-making impulse of the writers. But it is only adding fuel to the flames and putting money into the coffers of immoral theatrical managers.

But there is another way to deal with indecency on the stage. Until the public taste is greatly improved, that other way will be the best if not the only method available.

Mayor Gaynor, who has a way of his own for dealing with many problems that most people simply talk about and do nothing with, recently exemplified that second method of dealing with indecency on the stage.

Recently a play was put on in New York that was described as "an extreme type of degenerate farce." Mayor Gaynor instituted a quiet police investigation which showed the performance to be thoroughly objectionable. Incidentally, it may be noted that from a financial viewpoint the play was doing very well, indeed.

Having satisfied himself as to the nature of the play, Mayor Gaynor took a step that is noteworthy for its simplicity and effectiveness.

He closed the theater, and gave orders that it should remain closed until it "furnishes some guaranty of future decency."

That is one way of dealing with indecency on the stage, and if there is a better one we haven't heard of it.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A BOUQUET AND A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Many thanks for your kind and truthful records concerning the land opening. I have heard several comments by readers already, who say it is the truth and your issue had not been out an hour over on this side. We believe that The Herald is not subsidized and therefore not afraid to tell the truth.

I wish when speaking of forest fires The Herald would bring in the railroads for their share of the blame, for it is the railroads which have set most of the forest fires of late and have done so heretofore. I have seen fires set while watching Great Northern freight trains on the road from Cloquet west many times. A government official told me today the railroads had set the fires along the Great Northern line; also, a conductor on the Great Northern told me the same and also on the Brookston-Scanlon line the conductor said was the cause of the spread of much fire. Now I see the governor has been here gathering information about the fire and trying to fix the blame. I wonder, as many others do if he knows where to find Jim Hill or Weyerhaeuser, or in fact any railroad officials. The settlers, the fishermen, the explorers, and cruisers and hunters do not set the fires, as alleged by some newspapers. This class of men, especially the explorers and estimators or timber men live most careful of lives when camping, but some one must be made a scapegoat to cover the railroads. Watch now the evidence the governor will get and see the legislation that will be enacted as a result—laws that will strike terror to the heart of every settler and timber man who goes to the woods, while the railroads pull their long freights through the wooded country and start a big fire every dry time and smile and talk about the forest fires the careless campers have started. Very truly,

"Taps."

They are marching with a halting step—
A halting step and slow;
And many in those blue-clad ranks
Have hair as white as snow;
Their youth lies on the battlefields
Of forty years ago.

The faded, tattered flags they bear,
All torn by shot and shell,
Are sacred emblems of the dead,
Who loved their country well;
How great their love and sacrifice
No human tongue may tell.

Those scried ranks are thinning fast
That once with martial tread
The knapsack and the musket bore
Where Grant and Sherman led;
Their sleep is sound and peaceful
In the bivouac of the dead.

No more the reveille at dawn
Shall rouse them from their sleep;
No more shall wives and sisters mourn;
No more shall mothers weep;
Their names upon the roll of fame
Time's hand has graven deep.

And some lie on those hard-fought fields
Where now the Blue and Gray
Clasp hand across the battle lines
Their blood has washed away;
Where once the tide of battle flowed,
Their children's children play.

The passing years speed swiftly,
And silence round them wraps;
And to their listening ears there comes
No sweeter song, perhaps,
Than when the battered bugle sounds
Again the old call—"Taps!"

Steena and the Census Man.

William F. Kirk in Kansas City Star: "Why don't you get the work done up earlier, Steena?" asked my wife.

"Ay ban out on porch, talking to funny feller," said Steena. "He say he ban a sense taker. Ay bdon't tenk he take many senses, because it seem to me he ant got any sesnses at all."

"I wish you wouldn't pay so much attention to people that come around the house, Steena. You talked half an hour this morning to the milk man, you wasted twenty minutes with the ice man, and, now, when the breakfast things should be all put away, you come in and tell me you have been talking to the census taker."

"Ay yust can't help it," said Steena, a bit sullenly. "My life inside of house ban pretty dull, Ay tell you, listening to you and yure husband talking about neighbors. Ef Ay vant to talk to dis har funny senses taker, Ay skol talk to him, Ay bet ya."

"He asking me some funny tengs, tu. He ask me ef Ay been black or vite. At first dis ban making me mad, because he can see he take a look at me Ay ant ban black, but Ay say black, and he put it down black. He say to me den, 'How old ban yu?' Ay tal him Ay ban sexty-two, and all the time Ay ban only twenty-sax. He put dat down tu. Den he ask me, 'Var skol yu ban born?' and Ay say, 'In Ireland.' And he put down in Ireland. Ay tenk he ban a yackass, but Ay s'pose if dey ant yackasses dey ant around taking dese har senses.

"And dis here tengs he asking me ant the vorst," continued Steena. "He say to me, 'Vat sex, please?' Ay ask him vat he mean, and he say, 'Lady or yantleman?' Ay ban only short time in dis country, but ef Ay ant got more brains in sax minutes dan he having in sax years, Ay skol eat yure hat. And anoder teng he ask me—"

"Look here, Steena," said the wife, "I hope you realize that you can't stand around this dining room all day. Please get these dishes off the table."

"Ay skol getting dishes off all right," said Steena. "But first Ay van to tal yu sum more about dis funny faller vich ban taking senses. He say to me, 'State yure occupation.' Ay ask him vat he mean, and he say 'How skol yu getting yure bread and butter?' Ay tal him Ay don't eat none. He say, 'How skol yu make yure money?' Ay tal him Ay don't making enough money to talk about."

"And he say anoder question to me," Steena went on. "He say to me, 'State age and color of yure parents, and vether dav ban male or female.' Ay tal him ef he don't yump off porch Ay skol go and getting kettle of hot water. Ay don't like dese senses fallers."

"Did he ask any other questions, Steena?"

"Yu bet he do. He ask me, 'Is yure sister married, and if so please state age, birthplace and color of husband.' Ay tal him my sister ban married, but Ay don't know how old her husband ban, and Ay ant sure var he ban born. Ay tal him my sister's husband's color ban blonde.

"Dey make me gude and tired, all dese fresh fallers," concluded our angry domestic. "Over in Sveden Ay bet yu we ant having a lot of fresh geezers hanging around porch and asking if our parents are black or vite, and ef so, skol dey have the toothache, and ef so, how many nights in a row. Ay don't know vat it all ban about, anyhow, but ef more of dem fresh yentlemen come around to asking me tengs, Ay skol yust beat up a kettle of vater, and Ay skol scald dem."

Ignorant Unbeliever.

Washington Star: The late Neil Burgess used to clinch with an anecdote his claim that atheists were always ignorant.

"A coarse, swaggering fellow," he would begin, "declared in a barber shop:

"'I don't believe in no hereafter. You live and die and that's the end of you.'

"'Why, you must be a Unitarian, George,' the barber said.

"'Huh, not me,' was the reply. 'I'm too fond o' meat for that.'"

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I propose to open an exclusive hotel; no room less than $20 a day."

"Don't be too exclusive. You'll find that the richer guests like to have a few more people around to snub."

Washington Star: "Never make a fuss about what you can't help," said the homely philosopher.

"Nonsense," replied the fan. "That idea would take half of the excitement out of a baseball game."

Buffalo Express: "Don't you touch that sprig of celery!" commanded Mrs. Henpeck.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Henpeck.

"Ain't it good?"

"Good? Certainly it's good—it's the best there is. I'm keeping that for the canary."

The Housekeeper: "Now, Willie, you know I told you not to go in swimming, and yet you have been in the water this very day."

"I know, ma, but satan tempted me."

"Why didn't you tell satan to get behind you?"

"I did, and he kicked me in."

Cleveland Leader: "I am always cool in the face of danger," he boasted obliged to acknowledge that he told the truth. The only objection was that his coldness was all in his feet.

Philadelphia Record: Wigg—Guzzler has joined the Yahoo Yacht club, and he never sailed a boat in his life. I wonder what his qualifications are?

Wagg—He owns a yachting cap and an unquenchable thirst.

Cleveland Leader: "You had the nerve to ask Miss Oldud her age?"

"Well, I tried to do it diplomatically. I asked her when she was born."

"And what did she say?"

"On a Friday afternoon at about 4:30."

Philadelphia Record: Blobbs—Bjones is getting more absent-minded every day.

Slobbs—What's the matter now?"

Blobbs—He was terribly worried about something this morning, and now he's terribly worried because he can't remember what it was.

Chicago Tribune: "Mamma, Mrs. Beddiford must come of a very old and aristocratic family, doesn't she?"

"I don't know anything about the family. Why do you ask?"

"She always says kinsmen instead of relative."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: The near-great man imagines he is the real thing.

Some men are proud of their ability to tell a lie that passes for the truth.

When it comes to an argument a woman gives in only when she gives out.

Most people imagine they would rather be miserably rich than happily poor.

Don't fool away your time telling a man he's a liar. If he is he knows it.

We may know a good thing when we see it, but nine times out of ten the other fellow beats us to it.

When a woman refuses to remove her hat in a theater it's a safe bet that her husband doesn't cut much ice at home.

A woman never cries for the purpose of making herself feel better. She turns on the briny flow for the purpose of making some man feel worse.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Some people ask you to do them a favor as if they were doing it to you.

One good thing about a boy's going through college is it never has to happen but once.

Even a man who drinks nothing at a public dinner can be fool enough to make a speech there.

The reason a girl can fall in love so quick is she's trying to beat all the other girls doing it.

A man always thinks his brain would be more appreciated by people if the climate agreed with him better.

The Man Who Renounced a Throne.

Boston Traveler: Once upon a time, so the story goes, although there are no records now in existence to prove it, George Frederick, second son of the then prince of Wales, signed a solemn document renouncing forever all claim to the British throne. Two things formed his purpose—an intense dislike for the burdens and cares of state, and his love for a fine woman whom he could never marry so long as he remained a scion of royalty.

He had his will, and married the fine woman, and lived happily for several years with her and his children. Then stepped in the state and the church with the decision that he had no right to marry without the consent of the queen. His marriage was set aside by both royal and canonical authority, his solemn renunciation was declared never to have been made, and he was forced to return to court. The fine woman and the children, with a princely pension, went their way. His elder brother died, whereupon he was straightway married to the brother's affianced. Then his grandmother breathed her last, he became prince of Wales, and today he is the king of Great Britain and Ireland, of the dominions beyond the seas, and emperor of India.

They say he is a shy man, reserved, sometimes taciturn and often sad.

England is wondering what sort of king George V will make. He has mixed as little as possible in society. His shyness has prevented him making many friends, but those whom he has made say he is a quiet, kindly, warm-hearted gentleman. On the comparatively few occasions when he has been entrusted with affairs of state he has performed his duties well. It would not be surprising if he developed much of the tactful diplomacy that was his father's greatest royal asset. What he has done or has not done in the past has little bearing on the future—few people in or out of England believed nine years ago that Edward VII would make a very good ruler.

To the throne which once he renounced, and whose burdens he has always dreaded, George Frederick has at last come at the age of 45. The lot of royalty must seem to him very much like any other kind of slavery. But kings in these days are well trained; they almost always meet their duty bravely.

A Man, a Girl and a Curl.

On the rack it hung all day,
Near the ribbons bright and gay
And the ties.
But at night among her tresses,
When she wore her pretty dresses
In the guise
Of a bud of fashion's choosing,
It was really quite amusing,
Such sad sighs
The little curl would hear
Whispered in a pretty ear.
And the lies
(To make a ringlet tremble in surprise)
Of the crimson of her lips
And the crimson of her cheeks,
That lay all day
In an alabaster box
On the dresser, with the locks
Not far away,
And near it, on the side,
Peroxide!
When the ringlet heard him whisper
That he never could resist her,
All the beauty of her bloom
And of her charm,
The ringlet lost its grip
And suddenly let slip
To his arm;
Where it fell, a golden wave,
And, trying quick to save
It from harm,
The maiden lost her head,
And bitter tears she shed
In her alarm.
The sudden heavy shower
Washed the color like a flower.
From her cheeks.
And that's the reason why
Now he's very, very shy
When he calls
Upon the pretty lasses,
And always wears his glasses
To the balls.

Four Varieties.

Abe Martin in Indianapolis News: There's four varieties o' Republicans—out an' out, in an' out, down an' out, an' in bad.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••An important session of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad and the North Star Construction companies was held at Baltimore this morning, when the action taken by several directors in Duluth last week in reference to terminal facilities, yards, coal and iron docks was ratified. The offer of the West Duluth Land company of sixty acres of land and eight acres of water for $25,000, on condition that the Duluth & Winnipeg construct yards and tracks and erect ore, coal and merchandise docks, was accepted. The land is a strip running lengthwise of Grassy Point, just southeast of the works of the Duluth Iron & Steel company.

•••The New York Iron Car company is to be organized, and the Minnesota Iron Car company will continue as building agents. The treasury department of the company will be located in Duluth, and Col. Tanner has been appointed treasurer.

•••The West Duluth Electric company, with capital stock of $50,000, has filed articles of incorporation. The Incorporators are: H. D. Merritt, Joseph Sellwood, O. H. Simards, F. W. Merritt and J. L. Cromwell.

•••It is expected that seventy miles of the Lake Superior & Northwestern road will be graded this year. There is a good prospect that the company will float $2,000,000 of bonds, secured on its extensive property in the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, and as soon as this amount is secured work will begin.

•••Maj. A. B. Brackett has been retained as deputy United States marshal, under Marshal Danehower. J. A. Campbell, son of the former marshal, has also been retained as deputy. Gus Beaulieu has not been retained. T. Sheehan, formerly agent at the White Earth reservation, being appointed in his place.

•••Mrs. D. M. Leach of Spring Valley, Minn., is here visiting her sister, Mrs. M. J. Davis.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Taking Too Much Room.

Albert Lea Standard: Some farmers and consumers as well seem to think the middleman has a tendency to crowd over upon both sides.

Promises and Practices.

Milaca Times: Judging by what the new Socialist mayor and council of Milwaukee are doing, Socialism could be defined as doing the things that the old political parties promise to do but never put into practice.

No Hope Anywhere.

Red Wing Free Press: Will the Republican state convention endorse the Taft-Payne-Aldrich bill? If it does, it will receive the condemnation of the people of Minnesota. If it does not, it will be condemned by the federal administration and its cohorts. In either case it will mean defeat for the Republican party in Minnesota. And there you are.

What Better Reasons Could Exist?

Warren Register: Even if a Democratic member of the Illinois legislature did get $1,000 for voting for Boss Lorimer, that is so argument against the prevailing method of electing United States senators. It would be just as reasonable to say that the election of Stephenson in Wisconsin or of Clarke in Montana (his second election) is an argument against the election of senators by popular vote.

It Will Not.

Little Falls Herald: Puzzle and conundrum experts are invited to send in samples of a tariff plank for the Minnesota state Republican convention. It must be suitable to Tawney, who voted one way and to Taft, who signed what Tawney voted for, and it must also suit the two senators and eight congressmen who voted the other way. One or the other side is right. Will the state convention have the courage to say which?

He's Great for That.

Wabasha Herald: If any one wants to buy property at reasonable figures we would advise them to follow up the assessors as the assessors can get more reasonable figures on property than any individual we know of.

Those Bepraised by Taft.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The president pays a tribute to his secretary of state. Mr. Knox thus breaks into the Ballinger-Aldrich-Tawney class and becomes a sort of a second cousin to the "best tariff law ever enacted."

From a Postmaster-Editor.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: An exchange states that the only Taft newspapers in Minnesota are those whose editors are holding federal jobs, and The Ore rises to remark that not all of that sort, either, are within the presidential fold.

Name Your Man.

St. Peter Free Press: Minnesota Republicans know by this time that there is a difference between nominating a man for governor and electing him. The Journal-Press wants to see the man nominated who will be elected. Calling the Journal-Press Democratic and a knocker is the futile resort of feeble mind.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

Why don't you name your man? Give the other side a show to look him over. This constant nagging doesn't help things and only makes campaign thunder for the Democrats.

His Side Line.

For many years he labored to learn the druggist's trade,
And was at last rewarded for the efforts he had made
The sciences were mastered, and filled him to the brim,
And ev'ry art and artifice was easy meat to him.
A lawful druggist now was he from Aloes through to Zinc,
So he framed his new diploma, and settled down to think
How he should draw the public to patronize his store.
A showy soda fountain must be close inside the door,
With sundry kegs of other stuff and tonics cold galore,
Ice cream and college ices, tobacco and cigars,
With photographs of actresses and comic-opera stars,
A nickel-counter feature, and penny candies plenty;
And (strictly for dispensing) some Spirits Frumenti;
With postal cards and slot-machines of many different sorts,
And fancy nobby furnishings to meet the needs of sports;
Some envelopes and postage stamps, paints and brushes too,
And fiddle-strings and guessing bouts, cameras and glue,
A waiting room and magazines, a public telephone,
And blanks for money-orders, and the latest books to loan,
Directory of the city, and tickets to the show,
An agency for tailors and the Borax Laundry Co.
"That ought to draw them hither, but it isn't any more
Than what is always requisite to stock a druggist's store.
But, Great Unguentum Zinc! With that diploma there
I s'pose I ought to have some, the back room I might spare.
I do just hate a side line, but," and here his shooulder shrugs,
"It might be just as well, perhaps, to have a line of drugs!"

—Thomas Fardon in Puck.

Stricken.

Puck: "Oh, John," cried the farmer's wife, "I'm afraid I've taken that dreadful new disease!"

"What makes you think so, dear?" he asked, alarmed, gathering the frail little woman into his arms and stroking the thinning hair, as she sobbed out the story of her fears upon his broad shoulder.

"Well," she explained, "after I have gotten up, dressed myself and the children, cooked breakfast, washed the dishes, prepared the children for school, strained the new milk and set it away to cool, churned and worked the butter, swept and dusted, done the ironing, given baby his bath, cooked supper and washed the dishes, undressed the children and put them to bed, and sat down for the evening, I am too tired to do my darning! I never used to feel so. It must be hookworm."

A Georgina's Hard Luck Story.

Upson Parrot: His horse went dead and his mule went lame and he lost six cows in a poker game; then a hurricane came on a summer's day and blew the house where he lived away, and the earthquake came when that was gone and swallowed the land that the house was on; then the tax collector came around and charged him up with the hole in the ground.

A Suggestion.

Puck: If the gentlemen who compose the Beef trust will take it in good part, we would be pleased to offer them a suggestion. It is a simple one, easily stated. We sugest to these gentlemen that they reduce materially the price of meat, the price of every grade of meat which they handle, and at every one of their many distributing points. We suggest that they do this discreetly and gradually, assigning as a cause for the drop in prices any combination of legitimate reasons that their knowledge of the business can devise. Let the ultimate reduction be so marked that the ultimate consumer and all his many relations will realize that it is indeed a fact, and not a demonstration on paper. Even if it means a loss, a real money loss, let the low-price level prevail. For, all this time, gentlemen of the Beef trust, you will not be able to say to the country at large, feigning bland triumph in your tones: "Look, O American people, at the descending price of meat, and never heed again the demagogue's cry that High Protection for us means high cost to you?" Just at present, gentlemen, the number of persons who believe otherwise is large. Some of them are overturning Republican majorities in order to express their opinions unmistakably. Next fall a whole lot of them may elect a Democratic congress. In the meantime, gentlemen, anything you can do to dispel this impression from the public mind, even if it cost you a temporary loss, will be well worth while. It will help you if you can get a lot of good people to say: "Oh, I guess the tariff hasn't anything to do with the price of meat." It will help you much. Get people in that frame of mind now by a temporary sacrifice, and they will more than likely renew your right to soak them in November. Sacrifice the pawn of present profit to keep the king of Privilege and Monopoly.

Regrets—Ah, Vain Regrets.

(Lines to a sportive youngster in his twenties.)

It used to be when Life was young and tinged a rosy hue,
We measured up to all the marks as callow youngsters do;
'Twas not uncommon then to join a merry gang and stay,
Regardless of the penalty, until the break of day;
But now, with lagging step and halt,
we near our second score—
Instead of staying out all night we amble home at four!
'Tis hard to thus confess this proof of
Age, but sakes alive,
The things we did at twenty are passe
at thirty-five!

When years were young and hearts were light and youth a lurid red,
As far as we can now recall it never once was said
That we denied a pretty maid—or homely one—a kiss,
In fact as we remember it our strongest forte was this:
Right boldly we would osculate no matter who was nigh,
But now we have reformed of that—
and kiss 'em on the sly!
For Age is so discreet, you see, and proper—sakes alive,
The things we did at twenty are passe
at thirty-five!

As we are now so you will be, with shiny, hairless head,
And spend your time at dreaming dreams when Youth was rosy red—
When you cavorted free of care and
Folly held the stage—
Before you were what people called "a balanced man of age;"
And don't approach that senile time in dread of what you'll miss—
Of nights you cannot meet the gang or maids you cannot kiss—
But take it from a man who knows,
you'll still have fun and thrive,
Though things you did at twenty are passe at thirty-five!

—John D. Wells in Buffalo News.

The History of the Kiss.

Smart Set: The further away we journey from the days of Eve, the more assiduously the world seems to have cultivated the habit of kissing; in other words kissing is a mark and a test of civilization. Before the coming of the white man it apparently was totally unknown among the Indians of America and the savages of Africa and Australia; but who shall trace its beginning among the peoples of Europe and Asia? As far as we may go among these ancient white nations we shall find no age when this highly unhygienic practice was not popular. Indeed, Darwin attempts to trace it back to the habit our betalled ancestors had of grasping prey with their teeth!

This business of osculating became so popular among the Greeks that it is said many husbands, before starting out for the day's work, compelled their wives to eat garlic—a most effective preventive, we cannot doubt. The Romans attempted to be more cold-blooded and dignified. They were at least more systematic, for they divided all kisses into three kinds: the osculum, the kiss of friendship; the basium, the kiss of ceremony; and the suavium, the kiss of love. All of which simply implies that the Romans had three chances to our one. The ancients, however, were not in favor of a public display of the business; spooning was decidedly bad form. Plutarch says that Cato expelled the Senator Manilus for kissing his wife in the daytime and in the presence of his daughter.

This same Plutarch is our authority for the statement that Rome founded the now antiquated custom of wives saluting their husbands with a kiss. The women, after sailing many seas and reaching this place, refused to follow their husbands further, and under the leadership of Roma—a "new woman"—burned the ship. Then says the historian, Roma invented this pleasant method of appeasing the wrath of the husbands; and the remedy has been used with considerable efficacy until comparatively recent years.

Men Have Said of Woman.

Hindoo Proverb: Do not strike a woman, even with a flower.

La Bruyere: Woman's sword is her tongue, and she does not let it rust.

Louis de Beaufort: If the world was lost by a woman, woman alone can save it.

La Rochefaucauld: Women who love forgive grave indiscretions more easily than little infidelities.

Oliver Wendell Holmes: A woman never forgets her sex. She would always rather talk to a man than to an angel.

Schopenhauer: Justice is a masculine virtue; pity the virtue of woman. filling the office of magistrates is laughable, but Sisters of Charity are worth more than Brothers.

Police Say Jennie Murphy Made Harmless Bid for Notoriety.

Many Sensational Events in Short Life of Duluth Girl.

The West Duluth police sum up the demonstrations of Jennie Murphy, 21 years old, who told the police Saturday night that she had attempted to take her own life, because her lover, Thomas Dever, a West Duluth bricklayer, had failed for the second time to keep an appointment as a strong bid for notoriety and nothing more.

The woman has been married to a man named McAnulty, a sailor, and has one child, the police say. For the past two or three years they have not been living together. Her father is a house mover and has been living at 431 West Third street. This week the family is moving to a new location at Eleventh avenue west.

It is said that she is the same woman who six years ago jumped off a dock at Two Harbors in an attempt to drown herself. A year later, she took carbolic acid at Lincoln park, at the West end, with no serious results. Since that time, she married, but after domestic trouble her husband left her. Little is known of his whereabouts at the present time.

Thomas Dever, the West Duluth man, with whom the girl claimed to have an engagement, is well known to the West Duluth police. A few weeks ago, he came home drunk and raised such a disturbance that his family caused his arrest. Bail was furnished and the next morning he was caught in a raid on an immoral resort on West Superior street, it is said. Dever lives at Fifty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street.

The woman told the police that Dever had agreed to met her at Fairmont Park, Friday evening, but that he failed to show up. Another engagement was made for the following evening. The girl explains that after waiting until 9 o'clock for her faithless lover, she grew despondent and decided to end all.

George Lockhart, a Northern Pacific trainman, who lives in the vicinity of Fairmont Park, was attracted by the hysterical cries of the woman and called for an officer and also summoned Dr. David Graham. He took her to a small store at Sixty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue.

When Dr. Graham arrived he found that the woman was not suffering. An examination of the bottle showed it to be empty but there were traces of ether in it. Dr. Graham denies the published report in the morning paper that he administered any antidote and says that there is no authority for the story that there was rosewater in the bottle.

The girl was taken to the police station. Lieut. Wilcox questioned her and then turned her over to her father.

FUNERAL OF YOUNG WOMAN

Services at the Asbury M. E. Church for Miss Gertrude Smith.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, for Miss Gertrude Smith, 21 years old, who died Saturday at the family residence, 7 North Fifty-third avenue west.

For the past few years Miss Smith had been active in musical circles and was an accomplished soloist, taking part in many entertainments given by the G. A. R. and also singing in the choir of Asbury M. E. church. Her father, Benjamin H. Smith, a Civil war veteran, died two weeks ago. The family has lived in West Duluth about twenty years. She is survived by her mother, two brothers and a sister.

Rev. W. G. Boyle, pastor of Asbury church conducted the funeral service. Interment was made at Oneota cemetery.

Leaves Hospital.

Miss Effie Johnson, the 19-year-old Billings Park girl, who was shot four times by Nick Schommer, a jealous lover, about three weeks ago, was able to leave St. Mary's hospital for her home yesterday. The wounds are healing rapidly. She will appear in municipal court against Schommer on May 20. An operation will be performed to remove a bullet, which was yesterday located near the surface, as soon as the girl has recovered her strength.

Will Attend School.

Capt. Emanuel Rossiter, Lieut P. B. Clemens and Second Lieut. A. W. Fluegel, the commissioned officers of Company I, Wisconsin National Guard, will leave next week for Camp Douglas, Wis., where they will attend the regular yearly school for the officers of the state militia. The school will be in session May 24, 25 and 26.

Cases for Trial.

At the next term of the circuit court, thirty-eight cases are posted for trial. There are also a number of criminal cases which have been carried over from the November docket. Of the total number of cases thirty will be passed upon by juries.

New Police Commission.

The new police and fire commission organized this morning with three new commissioners out of five. F. B. Gerrard was elected president and H. V. Gard was chosen treasurer. The next meeting of the commission will be held in June.

Court Grist Large.

The police court grist at Superior this morning broke the spring record as far as the number of arrests made is concerned. Most all of the cases were "drunks" or vags." A few got off with a suspended sentence while a large number were sent to the workhouse for ten days.

Will Meet More Often.

In order to keep in closer touch with conditions, the board of health will meet in the future once a month to consider such matters as may require attention. In the past, the board has met but once a year for reorganization and to award necessary contracts. The new plan was decided upon at the last meeting of the board, Saturday evening.

F. L. GILBERT LEFT A BIG ESTATE

Bequests Were Made to St. Paul's Church and St. Luke's Hospital.

The will of the late F. L. Gilbert, president of the Red Cliff Lumber company, who died recently, was filed in probate court this afternoon. Mr. Gilbert left real estate and personal property valued at approximately $200,000.

Two-thirds of his entire estate was bequeated to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Gilbert. Bequests were made to St. Paul's Episcopal church and St. Luke's hospital, the amounts not being specified, and the remainder of the estate is to be divided between Eaton Gilbert, a brother of the dead man, and Samuel V. Gilbert, a nephew.

During his travels around the world, Mr. Gilbert picked up many works of art, curios and souvenirs, which he willed to old Duluth friends. Among those thus favored in the will are Dr. A. W. Ryan, Bishop James McGolrick, Judge Page Morris, Charles B. Woodruff, A. L. Ordean, F. H. De Groat, G. H. St. Clair, O. H. Clark, T. S. Wood and Joseph Le Bean.

WITH ROOSEVELT IN FRANCE AND HOLLAND

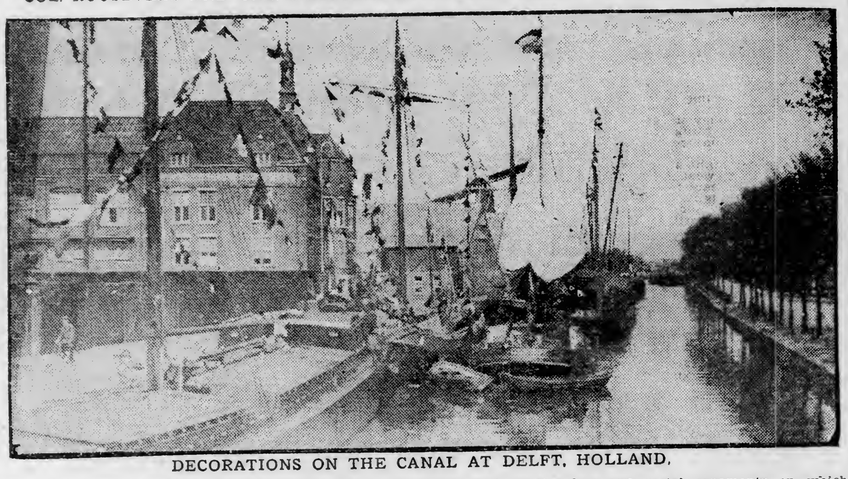
COL. ROOSEVELT AND GEN. D'ALSTEIN REVIEWING FRENCH TROOPS AT VINCENNES.



DECORATIONS ON THE CANAL AT DELFT, HOLLAND.

(Special Correspondence of The Duluth Herald. By George Grantham Bain.)

The Hague, May 1.—A good American arriving at the capital of Holland yesterday and knowing Theodore Roosevelt was here might have thought the Dutch were giving our fellow countryman a most enthusiastic reception. The city was gay with flags and bunting, the streets were filled with men and women and children, their faces bright with pleasure. Even the boats on the canals were "dressed" like men-of-war.

But the good American would have looked almost in vain for the Stars and Stripes. Red, white and blue there was in profusion—these are the Dutch national colors. But in the whole city he would have found only two American flags flung to the breezes—one on the American embassy and one in front of the hotel where Theodore Roosevelt was registered.

The bunting and the flags and the huge electric devices on the front of clubs and public buildings were in honor of the Princess Juliana, who was celebrating yesterday her first birthday.

An Important Baby.

With the possible exception of the czarewitsch of Russia, there is no royal child whose existence is as important to a nation as that of the little Dutch baby. For many years after the marriage of their beloved Wilhelmina, the Hollanders looked in vain for an heir to the throne. The throne itself was in possible danger if the queen died without leaving an heir. She was the last of the house of Orange and her consort was a German prince.

Germany for many years has had a covetous eye on Holland, whose long seacoast faces hated England. There was discussions of the possibility of a German princess being named as Wilhelmina's successor. There was even diplomatic discussion of the possibility of annexation. So to the free Hollanders, content with a beneficent hereditary rule, the coming of Juliana a year ago was a special dispensation of Providence. Her birth changed the almost hostile feeling of the Dutchmen toward Prince Henry into kindliness.

Nation Made Merry.

Juliana, the hope of Holland, has survived the infantile ailments of a year and is a fat and healthy baby. Hence the whole people of the country made very merry on the first anniversary of her birth. Everyone wore her colors—orange and white—usually in the form of an orange-hearted daisy. Those who didn't begin the day with this decoration acquired it very soon.

It was tag day at The Hague, and hundreds of red-cheeked Dutch maidens patrolled the streets selling celluloid daisies at 10 cents each—that is, 4 cents of our money. They are not pretty, these Dutch maidens. When one has seen a great many of them one recalls what the old lady said after she studied the hippopotamus: "Well, he certainly is plain." But they have nice, frank faces and a straightforward manner, and when I gave one of them 25 cents instead of 10 cents for my badge, she looked uncomfortable and said "too," because I asked her the price in French. I told her to keep the 25 cents—it was for the benefit of the hospital for consumptives—and moreover, I went to the salon of Mr. Meyer in the Passage and got a Dutch haircut in honor of the day. Mr. Meyer announces himself a French "coiffeur," but until my hair grows longer I shall have with me the proof that he is a Dutchman.

Honor House of Orange.

In the heart of The Hague is a body of water about as big as a pond, surrounded in part by public buildings. It is called the Buitenhof. On this water were small floats of elaborate design—always in the colors of the House of Orange. In fact, orange was more common than red, white and blue in The Hague yesterday. Where the Dutch flag appeared on a building, a stream of orange usually hung at the end of the staff. There were orange signs with the name "Juliana" in electric lights.

Through the narrow streets and across the squares thronged the merry Hollanders. They all looked very happy, and congratulated one another, with smiling faces on the first birthday of their little princess.

Into the midst of all this rejoicing came Theodore. It would be hard to say what proportion of the enthusiasm was his. Probably a very small proportion, for the Hollanders are a phlegmatic people in their ordinary relations with the outer world. Moreover, they were disappointed in our ex-president—or so I was informed by a youth who had been mingling with the crowds.

Where Dress Counts.

"They expected some one very fine looking," the fine uniform he said.

Theodore looked fine enough in his frock coat and silk hat, judged by our standards. But the Dutch people are accustomed to seeing royalty in full dress. Prince Henry is always pictured in uniform, and the Dutch would have no respect for even the kaiser if he wore a frock coat in public.

Mr. Roosevelt called on Queen Wilhelmina as soon as he arrived in Holland. His private car was taken from Rosendaal to Arahelm, whence he motored to Het Loo, which is the country palace of the queen. There he was entertained at breakfast and sat next the queen, and talked with her. From Het Loo he went to Amsterdam, and returned to his hotel at The Hague in the evening.

Yesterday morning he drove to the House in the Wood (Huis ten Bosch), which is now historic as the meeting place of the first Peace congress.

Visited the Queen Mother.

Afterward he drove to the palace of Queen Emma, the mother of Wilhelmina. This stands opposite the hotel where Mr. Roosevelt is staying. It is a plain building of white, two stories high, facing a public square, which is the terminus of several trolley lines. All that distinguishes it from other houses on the square is a guard of two soldiers, one at each end of the building.

As Mr. Roosevelt's carriage arrived, these two soldiers came to "present." But the Dutch salute is different from our own. The soldier saluting slings his gun by its strap over his right shoulder, and stands very stiffly at attention.

Queen Emma's guards were kept busy saluting all of yesterday, for in the absence of the queen all the dignitaries of The Hague called on the queen mother, and offered their congratulations. There was a big crowd in front of her home all day. It was very different from the crowds at Brussels. It was orderly, and moved back at a word from one of the black-helmeted policemen.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter drove up with the wife of the American minister there was a little buzz through the crowd. When Mr. Roosevelt came out and got into the carriage of one of the Dutch ministers there was mild excitement and a gentle Dutch hurrah. But the crowd stayed to watch the Dutch notables arriving and departing, after Mr. Roosevelt had gone.

Visit to Delft.

In the afternoon, our ex-president went to Delft in an automobile. The road to Delft is paved with brick. It is smooth and level and shaded by a line of tall trees on each side. There is not much shade from these trees as yet. The spring has been following us since we left Italy, but has hardly caught up with us. Holland's temperature is still below 50 degs. and overcoats are a necessity.

Mr Roosevelt's chief object in going to Delft was to visit the royal mausoleums. These are in the new church which faces the William the First, prince of Orange, Nassau.

By order of the states general, the celebrated Dutch architect and sculptor Hendrik de Keyzer commenced tais mausoleum in 1609 and finished it after 1620. It stands in the choir of the church.

The three bases on which the tomb stands are made of Dinant stone; the tomb itself is of the same kind of stone. It is adorned with carved borders and metal ornaments on which the figure of the prince is lying at full length on a beautifully carved mattress of pure white Italian marble.

Dog Statue on King's Tomb.

At the feet of the figure is the prince's dog, which after the death of his master would never take any food, and died of hunger and thirst. The figure, the matress and the dog are made of one piece of marble

Round the tomb are twenty-two columns of black Italian marble. The pedestals, bases and capitals of these columns are of white marble. The four sides of the pedestals consist of slabs of veined marble, and the eight large slabs placed behind the eight pairs of columns are inlaid with Dinant stone. The spaces between the different columns of every group are filled by three niches of white Italian marble; the niches at the inside are adorned with sixteen painted escutcheons, representing the four quarters of the prince's coat of arms, namely: Nassau, Stolberg, Hessen, Konigstein, which are placed in such a manner that the spectator always sees four, from whichever side he may regard the tomb.

In the four outer corners of the monument are round pedestals of white marble, adorned with the face of a woman and with festoons of metal, resting on a base of Dinant stone. On each of these pedestals a smaller one of black marble has been placed. On each of these four pedestals a female figure is standing before a niche. The figures represent Justice, Liberty, Religion and Valour.

Mottoes in Evidence.

The mottoes and allegories of the prince are carved in eight square slabs of white marble placed over the heads of the female figures. The ornamental parts of the cornice above these slabs, the cornice itself, and the right and left sides of the framework are of white marble, a few of the profiles of black-veined marble. Over the figures are four slabs of Dinant stone, surrounded by black and white marble Each of these slabs contains four skulls of white marble, surrounded by metal ornaments; on those skulls rests a quadrangular obelisk of black marble. On the top of these four obelisks are brass balls, covered with gold leaf, having sharp tops.

Above the columns are seven arched pediments of white marble, adorned with metal ornaments. On the two long sides of the monument above the middle column is a beautifully adorned niche, and on every capital the metal figure of a weeping child is sitting with a burning torch in each hand.

Prince in Full Armor.

At the head of the recumbent marble figure of the prince on the raised floor of the tomb, another full length figure of the prince, made of metal, in full armor, with the sword, the sash and the truncheon, and bare-headed, is placed in a sitting posture on a splendidly wrought seat. This crypt Mr. Roosevelt visited.

He also saw the memorial of Willem Frederik George, son of Prince William V and the memorial of Willem Alexander Ernest Casimer, son of King William II.

Of even greater interest to him was the memorial of Hugo de Groot or Gratius, a simple but beautiful monument made by Delft sculptor H. von Zwoll. The delegates of the United States of America to the International Peace Conference at The Hague commemorated the one hundred and Twenty-third anniversary of Independence day, July 4, 1889, by doing homage to the memory of Hugo Grotius in a striking manner. In the presence of a great number of guests assembled on that day in the church, together with the members of the Peace conference, the president of the delegates of the United States said:

"On this tomb, before which we now stand, the delegates of the United Staes are instructed to lay a simple tribute to him whose mortal remains rest beneath it—Hugo de Groot; revered and regarded with gratitude by thinking men throughout the world as Grotius."

Wreath Placed by Americans.

The wreath which he fastened to the tomb underneath the Latin manuscript is twenty-eight inches in diameter; the leaves of frosted silver, on one side being of oak—symbolical of civic virtue—with acorns in silver gilt, and on the other of laurel—symbolical of victory—with berries in silver gilt. The stems at the base are held together by a large ribbon and bow of silver gilt, and on this the inscription is placed in blue enamel.

Attached to this ribbon and bow, and held together by it, are shields of silver gilt, bearing in enamel, on the right side the arms of The Netherlands and on the left, those of the United States of America.

Last night Mr. Roosevelt witnessed with great interest the illumination of the city in honor of Princess Juliana.

Today he is visiting the flower show at Haarlem and tonight he leaves Holland for Denmark, where he is due late tomorrow afternoon.

This is the seventh of a series of illustrated letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald while accompanying Col. Roosevelt on his European tour. The next will appear at an early date.

EXAMINATION IS TOO HARD FOR THE MIDDIES.

New York, May 16.—Not one midshipman in the class which graduated from the naval academy in 1908 passed the recent examination for promotion to the grade of ensign, according to a statement which the Tribune printed yesterday.

"I have never seen such an examination in my life," one of the midshipmen is quoted as saying. "There was not a man in the class who could possibly have passed."

In view of the difficult examination, it is thought the navy department will raise to a pass mark all of those who stod the examination, with the exception of the twenty men who stood lowest. One of the midshipmen is said to have signed his paper in blank, and handed it in, after reading the quesftions. For so doing he is liable to court-martial.

Washington, May 16.—The indictments against Governor Haskell of Oklahoma in the so-called town lot Indian land cases will be pressed by the department of justice. It is the plan to have a jury pass upon the matter early in June.

Kills Daughter and Herself.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Emma Chapman, 47 years old, wife of Chief of Police Chapman of Baldwinsville, shot her daughter, Hazel, while the girl was asleep, yesterday morning, and then fired a bullet into her own heart. The mother died instantly and the girl lived two hours. Mrs. Chapman had been mentally deranged for some time through illness.

RESCUED MARINER GIVES 2,000 LOAVES OF BREAD.

Gloucester, Mass., May 16.—Fulfilling a vow made sixteen years ago, when a sudden shift of wind saved his storm-beaten vessel from driving onto a lee shore off Cape Cod, Capt. Joseph Mesquita, one of Gloucester's best-known fishermen, yesterday gave away to the poor 2,000 loaves of bread.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It is a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

HERALD NEWSBOYS MAKING GOOD IN VAUDEVILLE.

"Mascot," The Herald newsboy who is known to hundreds of Duluthians of former days, and who when he writes his real name puts down "William Oreckovsky," is touring the country in vaudeville. He has as his partner D. L. Dolsen, and they are giving a vaudeville sketch called "When We Were Boys," and the things that Mascot used to do for fun, when he was a Herald newsboy in Duluth, he is now doing professionally. "Mascot" was probably the most popular newsboy of his time and all those who knew him, intimately, or just by name, are interested in his success.

WASHINGTON WILL SEEK FOR TREATY WITH OTTAWA.

Washington, May 16.—The United States government has already taken steps looking to the negotiation of a trade treaty with Canada. The secretary of state has sent a communication to the British ambassador here, transmitting to the Canadian government the formal proposal of the United States that tariff negotiations between the two countries be initiated at the earliest time convenient and agreeable to the Dominion government.

New Aeroplane Record.

Mourmelon, France, May 16.—Daniel Kinet, the Belgian aviator, yesterday broke the world's record for an aeroplane flight with passenger, remaining in the air for 2 hours and 51 minutes.

Detective is Wife Murderer.

New York, May 16.—Maurice Lustig, a former private detective, has been found guilty of murder. The state contended that he poisoned his wife, Rhoda, with strychnine last October. She carried $2,000 life insurance and Lustig was in love with another woman.

An anonymous postal card first called the corner's attention to the case, after Mrs. Lustig had been buried.

Five Boilers Blow Up.

TAFT WRITES TO NELSON

Sends Letter That Is Reply to Charges About Glavis Affair.

Tells How Man in Ballinger's Office Prepared Draft of Exoneration Statement.

Washington, May 16.—President Taft last night took a hand in the situation which has arisen concerning the "inside history" of his letter of September 21 exonerating Secretary Ballinger from the charges of Special Agent L. R. Glavis and authorizing the dismissal of Glavis.

Over his own signature he addressed a long letter to Senator Knute Nelson, chairman of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, setting forth in minute detail the sequence of events following his receipt at Beverly on Aug. 18 last of the charges of Glavis.

The president makes no direct mention of a statement of Frederick M. Kerby, a stenographer in Secretary Ballinger's office, published Sunday, in which the stenographer declared that the president's letter of exoneration was prepared in Ballinger's office by Oscar Lawler, assistant attorney-general for the interior department. The utterance of Mr. Taft was, however, obviously provoked by Kerby's statement.

Asked Lawler to Do It.

Mr. Taft declared not only that Lawler did prepare such a letter as Kerby said he did, but that he did so by the president's specific direction. When he received it he found, he says, that it was not what he wanted to issue, and he wrote the letter himself in the form in which he desired it, using from Lawler's draft only one or two general statements.

The president goes still further and takes up the question of the "back-dating" of Attorney General Wickersham's summary of the Glavis charges, to which Attorney Louis D. Brandeis has drawn attention. Mr. Taft says that the attorney general's letter was in fact "back-dated" and that this was also done by his specific direction.

Following is the full text of the president's letter:

"The White House, Washington, May 15, 1910.

"My Dear Senator Nelson: In the hearings before the committee to investigate the interior department and forestry service, reference has been made to my decision upon the complaint and charges of L. P. Glavis, filed with me on Aug. 18 last, against Secretary Ballinger and certain other officials of the interior department.

Writes to Aid Record.

"The majority of the committee have decided that my action in this regard was not within the jurisdiction of the committee to investigate. In spite of this ruling, references to the matter have crept into the record. For this reason, I deem it proper to write you and state with such accuracy as my memory permits, what the facts are.

"Glavis' statement and charges were left with me by him on Aug. 18, 1909. I turned them over to the attorney general, who happened to be in the neighborhood, and he made notes upon his reading. We both had personal knowledge in respect to Secretary Ballinger's attitude towards the Alaska coal claims, which was the chief subject of inneundo and complaint, for Mr. Ballinger had very early in the administration consulted us both regarding them.

"Within two or three days after the filing of the charges, at a meeting at which the secretary of the treasury, the attorney general, and the secretary of the navy were present, a full discussion of the Glavis statement was had. It resulted in a general conclusion that jealousy between the bureaus of the interior department and the forestry bureau probably explained the attitude of the interior department officials, but that the intimations of bad faith by Glavis against Mr. Ballinger and others required that the statement be submitted to them for answer.

Sent Copy to Ballinger.

"Accordingly, copies of the statement were sent to Secretary Ballinger, to Assistant Secretary Pierce, Commissioner Dennett, and to Chief of Field Service Schwartz.

"Mr. Ballinger was at Seattle, but upon receipt of the charges he came to Washington to prepare his answer. On Monday, Sept. 6, Mr. Ballinger reached Beverly, accompanied by Mr. Lawler, the assistant attorney general of the department of justice assigned to the interior department. Mr. Ballinger sent to my house on that day the answer of the various persons concerned, together with a voluminous record of exhibits.

"I had a conference with him, the evening of the day he came, Sept. 6, and again on the following evening, Sept. 7. I talked over the charges with Mr. Ballinger the first evening, and asked such questions as suggested themselves, without intimating any conclusion, and said that I would examine the answers and the record and would see him the next day.

Had Reached Decision.

"I sat up until 3 o'clock that night reading the answers and exhibits; so that at my next conference I was advised of the contents of the entire record, and had made up my mind that there was nothing in the charges upon which Mr. Ballinger or the others could be found guilty of either incompetency, inefficiency, disloyalty to the interests of the government, or dishonesty.

"In the discussions of the second evening, Mr. Lawler, who was present at my suggestion, discussed the evidence at some length. I said that I was anxious to write a full statement of the case, and set out the reasons for my decision, but that the time for my departure on a long western trip, occupying two months, was just one week from that day; that I had six or seven speeches to deliver at the beginning of that journey, and that I could not give the time to the preparation of such a detailed statement and explanation as I would wish to render in the matter. I therefore requested Mr. Lawler to prepare an opinion as if he were president.

Called Wickersham In.

"During the eighth, ninth and tenth, I gave such consideration to the Glavis record as was consistent with previous engagements, but paid no attention to the speeches. On the ninth, I telegraphed the attorney general to come to Beverly in order that I might consult him in respect to the case. He arrived there Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11, and pursuant to an appointment, made by telephone, he came to my home on Sunday morning, Sept. 12. He then delivered to me the draft of opinion, prepared by Mr. Lawler, and said that he had had an opportunity on coming from New York to read the answers of Mr. Ballinger and others. I then said to him that I had made up my mind as to my conclusions, and had drafted part of my opinion, but that I wished him to examine the full record and bring me his conclusion before I stated mine. He took the whole record away.

"During the day I examined the draft opinion of Mr. Lawler, but its thirty pages did not state the case in the way in which I wished it stated. It contained references to the evidence which were useful, but its criticism of Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Glavis I did not think it proper or wise to adopt. I only used a few paragraphs from it, containing merely general statements.

Talked Over Decision.

"The attorney general returned in the evening with notes of the examination which he had made, and reported to me the conclusions which he had reached, which were in substantial accord with my own. We then discussed the matter at some length, particularly some points of law which were involved, and took up the opinion which I had finished and made a number of alterations; and as the result of that discussion, I determined the final form which I employed, and signed the same on Monday, Sept. 13.

"The conclusions which I reached were based upon my reading of the record, and were fortified by the oral analysis of the evidence and the conclusions which the attorney general gave me, using the notes which he had made during his reading of the record. I was sorry not to be able to embody this analysis in my opinion, but time did not permit. I therefore directed him to embody in a written statement such analysis and conclusions as he had given me, file it with the record, and date it prior to the date of my opinion, so as to show that my decision was fortified by his summary of the evidence and his conclusions therefrom. Sincerely yours,

WORRY CAUSE OF HIS DEATH

Engineer of Train Which Killed Man Is Found Dead in Bed.

Lee Douty, the engineer of the train which killed an unidentified man late Saturday afternoon at the Omaha crossing on Fifth avenue west, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his rooming house, 713 Garfield avenue.

He was troubled with heart disease and worry over the accident is said to have hastened his end. Mr. Douty didn't intend to go to work yesterday, it being his day off. He told his landlady before retiring, that he was going to try to "sleep it off," referring to the fatality of the previous day. He was about 57 years of age and lived at Minneapolis, where the body will be taken for interment this afternoon. He was a member of the Minneapolis Shriners of the Masonic fraternity, and they will have charge of the services.

The man killed by his engine has not been identified. He was horribly mangled about the head, his face being almost unrecognizable. He will be buried here at the expense of the county unless relatives appear to claim the body.

CHERRY MINE WIDOWS GETTING $1,473 EACH.

Chicago, May 16.—Widows of victims of the Cherry mine disaster at Cherry, Ill., Nov. 13 last, are receiving an average settlement from the St. Paul Coal Mine company of $1,473 for each life lost in the ill-fated mine.

At this rate settlement of death claims by the coal company will mean an outlay of $441,900. However, a number of cases for $5,000 and $10,000 damages will be fought through the courts.

PASTOR QUITS PULPIT, DUE TO FOSTER CASE.

Chicago, May 16.—After thirty-six years' service as a Baptist preacher, Dr. Donald D. MacLaurin, widely known Chicago minister quit his pulpit yesterday, as the result of the famous Foster controversy. He will embark upon a business career in Minneapolis, where he had his first pastorate. Dr. MacLaurin defended Dr. George B. Foster, university of Chicago professor, who was expelled from the church, though he denied that he shared his views.

BRITISH-BORN CHICAGO PEOPLE HONOR LATE KING.

Chicago, May 16.—So great was the crowd that gathered to do honor to the memory of the late King Edward VII of England at a theater here yesterday that many men and women fainted in the crush to gain entrance. The police had all they could do to prevent injuries to women and children. Hundreds of women and children of British birth were turned away from the memorial. A set of resolutions was adopted, proclaiming the reign of King Edward as one of the "most glorious in the annals of the British empire."

King George Will Arbitrate.

Washington, May 16.—Representatives of the American and Chilean governments in London having charge of the celebrated Alsop claim, which was shortly to have been presented to the late King Edward for arbitration, have been informed by this government and that of Calle that King George V will undertake the arbitration of this claim.

Solitude Causes Suicide.

Bottineau, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Loneliness is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide of Ole T. Olson, a homesteader residing near Lake Metigoshe, this county. Although his death occurred over a month ago, the remains were only discovered Saturday. Olson having selected an out-of-the-way place in the mountains to end his life.

H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

RAIN

Though some of the surrounding country was favored by a soaking rain yesterday and many forest fires were either checked or entirely extinguished, there was no downfall in Duluth. The weather man has finally seen the needs of mankind, however, and a rain is promised for tonight and tomorrow. The forest fires have been spreading, and the rain is badly needed.

A year ago today was a fine spring day.

The sun rose this morning at 4:30, and it will set at 7:37, giving 15 hours and 7 minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions.

"A disturbance, central over Western Texas and New Mexico, has caused light to copius rains during Sunday and last night in the West and rain or snow in the Rocky mountains. The rains have fallen over the greater portion of Minnesota, and during the ensuing twenty-four hours the outlook is very favorable for rains of sufficient quantity to check the forest fires in this state, as well as in Wisconsin and Northern Michigan. Much cooler weather attends a strong high pressure area central over Montana. Freezing temperatures prevail in Western Canada and the greater portion of the Rocky Mountain region.

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate south winds; cloudy and unsettled, with showers tonight and Tuesday on Michigan and Superior and tonight or Tuesday on Huron.

Chicago, May 16.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Upper Michigan—Showers tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight in extreme northwest portion; cooler Tuesday in west portion.

Minnesota—Rain tonight or Tuesday; solder Tuesday and in west portion tonight; temperature near freezing in northwest portion tonight.

Iowa—Rain tonight or Tuesday; cooler Tuesday and in northwest portion tonight.

North and South Dakota—Partly cloudy and colder tonight, with rain in east portion; temperature near freezing tonight; Tuesday fair with rising temperature.

Montana—Fair tonight and Tuesday; slowly rising temperature; frost tonight.

Wisconsin—Showers tonight or Tuesday; warmef tonight.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK

Brakeman and Fireman Meet Death When Train Leaves Track.

Engineer Jumps Through Cab Window and Escapes With Scratches.

Mike Lynch, engineer of a Northern Pacific train which was wrecked early yesterday morning near Finlayson, Minn., miraculously escaped with his life by jumping through a window of the cab, while two members of the crew, sitting across from him on the fireman's bench, were almost instantly killed.

The dead men are:

FRANK ST. JOHNS, fireman, Duluth.

W. E. YOUNG, head brakeman, St. Paul.

Lynch suffered only minor injuries, caused by his sensational leap for life.

The train, which was running about twenty-five miles an hour, was derailed by an open switch. The engine was thrown into the ditch, and nine box cars, loaded with miscellaneous merchandise, were piled on top of it. The wreckage caught fire shortly afterward. The crew and the Finlayson volunteer fire department fought the flames for eight hours.

The travel both ways was delayed until about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a wrecking crew from this city cleared the tracks.

The blame for the accident has not been placed. A party of Northern Pacific officials left for the scene yesterday to conduct a thorough investigation, and this afternoon had not yet returned. The coroner of Pine county will hold an inquest over the remains of the unfortunate men. The bodies will be brought to this city.

Joe Olson, of Olson & Crawford, West end undertakers, left today to bring the bodies here. That of Young will be sent to Gladstone, Minn., for interment, and that of St. Johns will be sent to Huron, S. D.

ROOSEVELT RECEIVED BY KING GEORGE

the regular express to London, arriving at Victoria station fifteen minutes earlier than the regular train, which followed at 7:45 o'clock.

At Queensborough Mr. Roosevelt was joined by the aides de camps appointed to attend upon him by King George—Lord Dundonald and Commander Charles E. F. Cunninghame Graham—and by Vice Admiral Sir George Neville, commanding a division of the home fleet, who received the former president in the name of the king.

Reached London at 7:30.

The transfer to the special was quickly made, and at 6 o'clock the party proceeded for this city, which was reached at 7:30 o'clock. It had been supposed that Mr. Roosevelt would arrive on the regular train, and this may have accounted in part for the comparatively small crowd at the station.

Upon the station platform awaiting the Roosevelts were Ambassador and Mrs. Reid and the members of the American embassy and their wives, all dressed in mourning; Consul General Griffiths and the staff of the consulate; Robert J. Wynne, former American consul general at London; Ogden M. Reid, son of the ambassador, and a small group of Americans resident here. There was no music, waving of flags or other demonstration.

When the greetings had been exchanged, Lord Dundonald escorted the Roosevelts and Ambassador and Mrs. Reid to the royal carriages which had been placed at their disposal by the king, and they were driven at once to Dorchester house, the home of the ambassador.

Visited the King.

Later, accompanied by Mr. Reid, Mr. Roosevelt, in the capacity of special American ambassador, visited the king at Marlborough house. Following his reception by the monarch, he was escorted to Buckingham palace and shown into the throne room, where, upon the catafalque, reposes the body of King Edward. Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied to the palace by Mrs. Roosevelt and the members of the American embassy and their wives.

The Victoria Station is closely picketed and patrolled by the police. Every entrance and exit is guarded and all applicants for admission are scrutinized. This precaution is taken for the protection of all the members of royalty and other official representatives who are coming here for the funeral.

In the course of the forenoon Mr. Roosevelt called upon the duke and duchess of Connaught at Clarence house.

Other Members Named.

Washington, May 16.—Henry White, former ambassador of the United States to France, who is now in Europe, has been designated by the president as diplomatic delegate from this country to the funeral of King Edward. The American delegation, of which Col. Theodore Roosevelt will be the head, will consist of Mr. White, Commander Andrew T. Long, naval attache of the American embassy at Vienna; and T. Bentley Mott, military attache at Paris, the two latter to act in the capacity of aides to Mr. Roosevelt.

DR. HYDE IS FOUND GUILTY

mained in the courtroom for some time. She was extremely weak.

Neither Mrs. Logan nor any of her children except Mrs. Hyde was in the room when the jury reported.

The physician will be sentenced in open court by Judge Latshaw either Thursday or Friday. The law allows that the defense has four days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

"Treat that prisoner the same as any other," Judge Latshaw ordered County Marshal Joel B. Mayes. "Give him few privileges and no luxuries." The usual custom of permitting prisoners to send out for their meals will apply in Dr. Hyde's case. But he must sleep in a cell.

Will Ask New Trial.

"I will file a motion for a new trial and then take an appeal of the case," said Frank H. Walsh, chief counsel for Dr. Hyde.

The verdict came unexpectedly. Every attorney in the case had given up hope that the jury, which had been out since Friday night, would reach an agreement.

It was reported this morning that one juror vowed he would "vote acquittal until I die of old age."

Judge Latshaw half an hour before the verdict came in decided to change his plan of discharging the jury tomorow morning if they did not agree. He planed to hold them several days longer.

When the anouncement came that the verdict was ready, the news spread rapidly, and every inch of space in the courtroom was soon occupied.

"There must be absolute quiet," said the court. "The marshal is ordered to arrest any one making a demonstration."

From out of a little side room there appeared Dr. Hyde, his wife and his sister. They sat down at the defense's table. The overcoat the physician had worn for two days as if he were ready to go home was conspicuously absent.

W. T. Jonnson and John H. Lucas, attorneys for the defense, came in and sat down. All of the state's attorneys were present.

The group at Dr Hyde's table was hopeful, but inclined to nervousness. Reports unauthorized but persistent were that for many hours the vote had been eleven to one for conviction. The arrival at an agreement made it appear certain the physician had been found guilty.

Tried to be Brave.

In the face of discouraging prospects, Mrs. Hyde evidently tried to be brave.

"I think it will be all right," she said to her husband, and smiled.

Little time was wasted in reading the verdict. The crowd heard it, and at the marshal's orders, arose and silently trooped out from the room without confusion.

Frank P. Walsh, the leading counsel for Dr. Hyde, said:

"The case will be appealed and we have every confidence in its final outcome. I have nothing else to say."

Attorney John H. Lucas, associate counsel for Mr. Walsh, said:

"The supreme court will remand the case for a new trial. There has been sufficient error in it to convince me of this."

No Statement by Mrs. Swope.

When news of the conviction was forwarded by telephone to Mrs. Swope in Independence, she shrieked and dropped the receiver. She refused to make a statement.

It is the belief of court attaches that the supreme court will be unable to reach Dr. Hyde's case for at least a year, on account of the crowded condition of the docket. In the meantime the prisoner may be kept in the coutny jail or sent to the state prison at Jefferson City by Judge Latshaw. The law of Missouri prohibits the courts from admitting prisoners convicted of murder to bail.

PICTURES ARE VERY REALISTIC

Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures are well worth seeing. A large audience at the Lyceum viewed them yesterday when they were put on for a week's run. The humorous subjects were greatly enjoyed, as were the more serious.

Among the most interesting of the pictures are those of the Wright aeroplane in action. The pictures are life in Egypt, Russia and other countries are, to say the least, entertaining.

The pictures of the Italian cavalry maneuvers in the mountains are particularly realistic. The subjects are larger than in the ordinary moving pictures.

Howe's pictures have the advantage of being put on in such a way that both motion and sound are reproduced, making the scenes perfectly natural and reproductions of what they are supposed to represent.

Crowd at Armory Applauds Eulogy of the Dead Poet.

Norwegians of Duluth Observe Independence Day of Norway.

The ninety-seventh anniversary of the independence of Norway was commemorated yesterday afternoon by former citizens of that country in a meeting at the Armory. The Independence day of Norway is May 17 and corresponds to the Fourth of July in the United States.

Prof. Gisle Bothne of Minneapolis was the leading speaker. He spoke upon patriotism and referred at some length to the great Norwegian poet, Bjornstjerne Bjornson, who died in Paris on April 26, this year. He characterized the poet as the greatest orator of Norway, a sentiment which was loudly applauded.

Rev. Carl W. Schevenius told of the development of Norway since the adoption of the constitution and the country's educational, religious and industrial progress.

Songs were sung by the Normanna chorus of men. Their rendition of Norwegian folk songs was excellent and elicited great applause. President John Heitmann of the Sons of Norway presided. Plaaten's orchestra played and solos were sung by Miss Frieda Hoecker and Miss Deodota Rossing. A picture of Bjornstjerne Bjornson was hung at the rear of the stage and was draped with flags of the United States and Norway. Most of the people in the audience wore small Norwegian flags.

John Skagberg, the young Norwegian poet of Duluth, wrote the following verses for the occasion:

O Seventeenth of May with memories
Reflecting on our hearts and minds of peace!
Born out of life's eternal cause for right
When worldly powers would dictate dependency;
Flashed through a people freedom's noble light
That onward led them to a grand ascendency.
Behold their path! What Sagas first bring forth,
Inspires us with the glory of the North.
Where Freedom was her captive on the seas
And liberty was echoed on the breeze.
Their prowess, skill and might made nations tremble;
The beacons on the heights their men assemble
Until the spirit, once so manly borne,
Was slumbering to wake another morn.

O Seventeenth of May! Thou came to light
And woke the people from a sleeping night;
Thy hopeful spirit fostered in the nation;
The Eldsvoldsmen brought to realization,
And through the people's hearts and souls and tongues
Have Wergeland and Bjornson sung their freedom's songs,
And though these patriots and poets now have gone
And left our eyes deep dimmed with tears, they won
Our gratitude and blessings that we may Forever celebrate the Seventeenth of May.

DID LIFE'S WORK WELL

Dr. A. W. Ryan Pays Tribute to Late King Edward VII.

Memorial Services for Dead Monarch Held at St. Paul's Church.

Services to honor the memory of the late King Edward VII of England were held in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Second street and Lake avenue last night. Dr. A. W. Ryan, the rector, delivered the memorial address. An elaborate musical program was given under the direction of A. F. M. Custance.

Dr. Ryan in discussing the life of the late king said that he was subject to more temptations than befall the ordinary man and that because of his position his acts were given great publicity and were subject to minute inspection and vitriolic criticism.

His death, said Dr. Ryan, occurred in a political crisis. At a time when a wise and intelligent ruler is needed the late king's death may draw together the many warring political elements. Edward's democratic life and his broad-minded liberal views may have more effect on the people of England than if the king were living. His works, said Dr. Ryan, will live after him.

The king, said the speaker, was strongly conservative. His love of sports endeared him to the British people. His attitude toward men was sympathetic and charitable; he was generous in action and thought; he responded to the demands and duties of religion for himself, individually, and as king of his subjects. He filled the popular ideal of an English gentleman.

His majesty did his life's work well, declared Dr. Ryan. He left a united people, loving and cherishing his memory; a great nation with a great future. Those attributes which made Edward admirable as a king would make us admirable as citizens; the common virtues are paramount and the ordinary developments of character in prince and peasant elicit lasting honor. Every one should be able to say as Edward spoke on his death bed: "It is all over, but I think I have done my duty." Mr. Ryan concluded with an extended reading from Tennyson's "Ode to Wellington."

The choir sang Chopin's funeral hymn and the anthem by Shelley, "Hark, Hark My Soul." Charles O. Applehagen sang an adaptation of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," as a bass solo. The orison, "Taps," by Mr. Custance was sung by Donald Alexander and choir, with a cornet obligato by Charles Helmer. The choir sang for the recessional, "Ye Servants of the Lord." Mr. Custance played the British national anthem on the pipe organ.

DR. HYDE IS BEHIND BARS

Shares His Wife's Confidence That He Will Yet Be Set Free.

Rumors of Fight Among the Jurors Are Denied By Them.

Kansas City, Mo., May. 16—Dr. B. C. Hyde, convicted by a jury of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope, his wife's uncle, Oct. 3 last, today is securely held behind the bars of the county jail. The prisoner smiled when he heard his fate.

Mrs. Hyde and two sisters of the convicted man wept and hoped. All of them believe the supreme court will reverse the decision.

In Independence, Mo., Mrs. Logan O. Swope, mother-in-law of Dr. Hyde, is near collapse. She was glad to be indorsed by a jury for her ceaseless prosecution of her daughter's husband, but the shock of conviction made her nervous and weak. She was not present when the verdict was returned.

Mrs. Hyde Is Confident.

An hour after the verdict was reached, Mrs. Hyde was able to go to her fashionable home on Forest avenue. Before leaving she said: "I am now over the first shock and am feeling strong. I shall take immediate steps to make a motion for a new trial. Failing in this, I shall arrange for an appeal. The case will be reversed in the supreme court. I am confident, because Clarke is innocent, and, therefore, it cannot be otherwise."

After their discharge, the jurors went immediately to their hotel to obtain their personal belongings. Their valises secured, the jurors did not separate at once, but remained to talk, and give promises of continuing the friendships formed in the jury room.

"We positively decided not to discuss our deliberations," Frank Clay pool, the foreman said.

Rumors of Row Among Jurors.

"Was there a row in the jury room last night?" he was asked.

"Absolutely not," he said. "Of course, we argued heatedly but there was no friction."

Juror Johnson of Sibley, Mo., who was said to have been in a fight, denied emphatically that there had been one.

"You felt justified, did you?" he was asked, "in holding out so long for acquittal?"

"Yes," he said.

In response to other questions Johnson refused to commit himself further.

Juror Lillard, who it had been stated was one of those who had held out for conviction from the start, declined to say what any of the ballots had been.

"Of course," he said, "we had some difficulty in reaching a verdict, as the length of time we were out indicated, but there was no friction of any kind."

Fight "Just Begun."

Attorneys Walsh and Lucas interviewed Dr. Hyde in his cell. Newspaper men were not permitted to see the convicted man. Upon leaving the prisoner, Mr. Walsh said:

"Dr. Hyde is bright and cheerful. He feels the fight had just begun. This probably appears dark for us, but really I am more cheerful than I was the day the case was started. The supreme court will treat us fairly."

Long Under Suspicion.

Dr. B. Clarke Hyde has been under suspicion in connection with the mysterious illness and deaths in the Swope family ever since the death of Col. Thomas Swope on Oct. 3, 1909.

The death of Col. Swope followed soon after he had suffered a severe convulsion, and the convulsion, it was charged by members of the Swope family, following immediately after the administration of a capsule at the direction of Dr. Hyde. Dr. Hyde said it was a digestive tablet.

It was proved at the trial that Dr. Hyde has purchased cyanide of potassium in five grain capsules and he was prosecuted on the belief that he gave one of these capsules to Col. Swope. Dr. Hyde said he bought the cyanide capsules to kill cockroaches in his office.

Cousin of Swope Died.

Two days before the death of Col. Swope, Moss Hunton, a cousin of the millionaire philanthropist, died at the Swope home, following a stroke of apoplexy. Dr. Hyde and Dr. G. T. Twyman of Independence treated Hunton. The patient was bled profusely, it is charged, at the suggestion of Dr. Hyde. After six pints of blood was taken from Hunton the bleeding process was stopped, but not until Dr. Twyman had repeatedly protested that too much blood was being taken from the old man.

Beginning early in December an epidemic of typhoid fever broke out in the Swope home, during which ten members of the family were stricken and one, Chrisman Swope, a brother of Dr. Hyde's wife, died.

Chrisman died after taking a capsule given at Dr. Hyde's direction, and after suffering a convulsion similar to the one that attacked Col. Swope.

Margaret Swope, Chrisman's brother, who was also treated by Dr. Hyde, had a convulsion after taking a capsule, but she was given an emetic at once by Dr. Twyman, and she recovered.

Body Secretly Exhumed.

Jan. 7, 1910, the body of Chrisman Swope was secretly exhumed, and four days later the body of Col. Swope was removed from its tomb and the viscera of the bodies were taken to Chicago for an analysis.

The analysis of the liver of Col. Swope's body resulted in the finding of fifty-two-sixty-sixths of a grain of strychnine by the Chicago chemists.

OMAHA FREIGHTS IN A COLLISION

Come Together Head-On Between Cumberland and Barronett, Wis.

Cumberland, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two fast Omaha freight trains collided head-on between here and Barronett early this morning, smashing both engines and nearly all the cars in both trains.

The injured: Al Peterson, engineer, of St. Paul, arm broken; O. Holmberg, fireman, of St. Paul, head and face badly smashed, internal injuries, thought to be fatal; J. Harrington, fireman, of St. Paul, cut and bruised. The injured were taken to Spooner. The conductor and three brakemen in one engine and Engineer Anderson in the other engine escaped injury by jumping. The track is now cleared and traffic has been resumed.

It is claimed that the wreck was caused by the operator at Barronett failing to hold the southbound freight in the block until the northbound freight arrived at Barronett.

JAMES W. VAN CLEAVE.

died of heart disease at his home in St. Louis, Mo., May 15.

A. M. Wilmarth, one of the oldest settlers of the St. Croix valley, died at Taylors Falls, Minn., May 11, aged 93 years. He went to Taylors Falls in 1849, engaged in the lumber business, and resided there continuously. He was unmarried and lived alone, doing his own cooking and housework. He amassed a large amount of property but he disposed of it twenty years ago, for the benefit of his relatives and friends when his death seemed near. His friends supplied his wants for many years. He was cheerful and active to the end.

Edward B. Garriot, chief forecaster of the weather bureau, died suddenly in Washington, May 13, of acute indigestion at the age of 57. Prof. Garriot had been at his office all day, apparently in the best of health. For more than thirty years, or practically since the establishment of the weather bureau, he had been connected with governmental work and for the past fifteen years was supervising forecaster.

FEAR OUTBREAK AT CHANG-SHA

Foreigners There Have Been Notified to Get on Board the Ships.

Washington, May 16.—Another uprising at Chang-Sha, China, is very much feared. The commander of the United States gunboat Helena has telegraphed the state department from Hankow to the effect that the conditions at Chang-Sha were most serious and that all foreigners were notified officially on the 11th instant to seek refuge on the ships that were available.

The war vessels in the river are believed to be sufficiently strong to control the situation.

Although the state department has not been officially advised as to the exact nature or cause of the present threatened uprising, it is believed that it is directed principally against the Manchu government. The present movement in Hunan province is more than of ordinary importance, as the province is one of the most wealthy and important in all China.

MANY FARMS NEAR DULUTH

High Cost of Living Starts "Back to the Soil" Movement.

Roads on Hill Lined With Homes and Cultivated Market Gardens.

"'Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good," is a trite saying, but the trite is very often true.

The high cost of living, an ill wind that is making many a man of family and small salary, lie awake at night and spend feverish days of worry and anxiety, is not without its good effect.

Back on the hill above Duluth, stretching to and beyond the city limits, is a vast tract of territory that for years was neglected. People held title to it because it was near the city and was regarded as good land for future development.

The high cost of living has hastened the development. Where there was one farm or garden tract two years ago, there are twenty today. Some of the roads back on the hill are almost streets, so entirely are they lined by little farms and garden tracts. People driving through the district are surprised at the wonderful developments that have come about, even since last spring.

In the five or ten-acre farm, or even the one acre garden, hundreds of Duluth people have found the solution of the high cost of living problem. Men retain their positions in the city and have their homes out in the country, within easy distance from their places of employment. During their spare hours, they work on the garden and they raise enough garden stuff for their own use, with perhaps some that finds a ready market.

The high cost of living, the evil that has used thousands of columns in newspapers, that has called for investigation by sociologists and economists, that has been denounced as sapping the blood from the social system, has started a "Back to the Soil" movement that could hardly be started in any other way.

Men driven to the necessity of obtaining greater revenue for the support of their families, have found it in market gardening. They have turned back to the soil and their success has held out hope to the others.

The movement has just begun in Duluth. There is a vast territory to be settled, and it all will be settled within a comparatively few years. Real estate dealers, who have put five-acre and ten-acre tracts on the market during the past year, say they sold them out with hardly an effort. Hundreds of people have obtained land, and though they may not all take up its cultivation immediately, they will ultimately get back to it, either to make agriculture a business or to supplement their activities in the city.

Those who have ventured into the field of market gardening and farming on a small scale in the vicinity of Duluth during the past two years have spread over the entire country on top of the hill. Every road leading from the city has its share of farmers on each side. Comfortable homes have been erected and the owners of the little farms are turning in with a will to cultivate the soil and to, ultimately if not immediately, make farming on a small scale a profitable business.

The extension of the street railway line in the direction of the Jean Duluth farm, which has been under consideration for some time, will, when built, give great impetus to the "back to the soil" movement as aplied to the district in the immediate vicinity of Duluth. The difficulty of communication with the city has been the greatest obstacle in the way of the development of the district back of the hill, and once that difficulty is removed, the high cost of living problem will be completely solved for many people who will settle in the district, and will be at least partially solved for the dwellers in the city, who will have cheaper vegetables and garden products as a result of the development.

SOX DROP TWO GAMES

Duluth Is Swamped in Saturday Contest at La Crosse.

The Outcasts Also Take a Close Game on Sunday.

La Crosse., Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duluth fell again Sunday before the local club of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league. The score was 5 to 4. The Brewers bunched hits in the second and third innings. The hits brought runs enough to win.

On an error by Taylor, the scoring started in the second inning. The feature of the game was Klingebiel's bare hand catch of a line drive made by Ward. Klingebiel's work was good but his support was not of the gilt edge variety. The score: R. H. E.
La Crosse .....03200000x—5 9 0
Duluth .....00021010 0—4 11 2
Batteries—Wittaker and Tregerser; Klingbiel and Buzz, Anderson.

The wildness and ineffectiveness of the Duluth pitchers, with the timely hitting by La Crosse, made a one-sided affair of the Saturday game between the White Sox and Outcasts, the champions getting the cipher in a 14 to 10 score. Marlon passed the first three men and a double by Kuehn scored them.

Kenny succeeded him and gave one pass, hit one man and allowed three hits before the side could be retired. Eight bases on balls were turned into runs before a man was out in the fourth.

O'Brien changed his men all around, Taylor succeeding Kenny in the box, in the fourth. Taylor allowed but one hit and did not pass one. The sensational feature of the game was Ward's clean steal home in the third and the second base work and hitting of Wals. Score: R. H. E.
La Crosse .....912200000x—14 10 1
Duluth .....000000000— 0 3 3
Batteries—Young and Tregerser; Marlon, Taylor and Anderson, Buzz.

SUPERIOR DROPS TWO GAMES TO ROCHESTER.

Rochester, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior lost the second game of the series to the locals yesterday. The score was 4 and 2.

The exhibition was fast and clean throughout and was one of the best ever seen in the city. McNeil for Rochester threw great ball, as did Scott for Superior. Both teams worked well in the field. Score: R. H. E.
Rochester .....00000040x—4 3 2
Superior .....00000110—2 4 2
Batteries—McNeil and Fischer; Scott and Lizette.

Jack Corrigan's braves took one big swat Saturday at the laurels of the Superior aggregation which had just administered three stinging defeats to Red Wing, the hated rival of the Queen City.

It looked as though there was nothing doing at the start, but in the sixth every Rochesterian up took a swipe at the ball, until it was necessary to send in Peterson to stem the tide that had netted seven runs for Rochester.

Dominick was on the mound for Rochester, but was replaced by McNeil in the sixth. Score: R. H. E.
Rochester .....00007 00x—7 9 2
Superior .....20000100 0—3 8 2
Batteries — Dominick, McNeil and Stewart; Clausen. Peterson and Lizette.

WINONA AND EAU CLAIRE DIVIDE THE HONORS.

Winona, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Otto Koepping won the Sunday game for Winona by slamming out a double in almost the last minute of play. Wagner and Graves scored, and the final tally was: Winona, 5; Eau Claire, 4. When the diminutive star of the Winona team went to bat there were two out, two on bases and Eau Claire was in the lead, 4 to 3.

Both teams played brilliant ball in the field, and it was nip and tuck till during the game. The batting of Wagner and Koepping was the feature.

Prater was ordered from the field in the third inning by Umpire Arundell, when he attempted to dispute a decision. Score: R. H. E.
Winona .....00002010 2—5 10 1
Eau Claire ....01001020 0—4 9 0
Batteries—Prater, Wagner and Stark; Nicholson and Benrud.

Winona Saturday dropped the game to the Eau Claire Commissioners, 6 to 8. In the fourth inning, with the score tied, a series of bonehead plays by Winona, together with heavy hitting by the visitors, netted Eau Claire five runs and cinched the game.

In the eighth Winona lost a chance to tie the score, when Killilan tried to stretch a single into a double.

Wagner was relieved in the fifth, when the ball was clouted to the far corners. McKee held the visitors to three scattered hits and no runs. Score: R. H. E.
Winona .....02100200 1—6 11 5
Eau Claire ....00250000 0—8 10 2
Batteries—Wagner, McKee and Killian; Morrow, Nicholson and Newell.

RED WING PITCHERS ARE EASY FOR WAUSAU.

Red Wing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Wausau team knocked Faulsch and Criss out of the box, clouted at will the offerings of Wiedell and took the second game of the series with Red Wing by the score of 9 to 2. The latter part of the contest was played in the rain which had begun to fall in the first part of the sixth inning. The locals played bonehead baseball. Score: R. H. E.
Wausau .....20105001 0—9 10 3
Red Wing .....01010000 0—2 6 3
Batteries—Schieffer and Johnson; Faulsch, Criss, Wiedell and Thomas. Umpire—Ollie Anderson.

Heavy hitting won Saturday's game for the visitors in a contest marred by excessive errors on the part of the local aggregation. Errorless Mike Malloy made one of the six bobbles charged up against Red Wing. Score: R. H. E.
Wausau .....10003010 4—9 10 4
Red Wing .....00100000 0—1 3 6
Batteries—Dunbar and Johnson; Nutting and Thomas. Umpire—Ollie Anderson.

DULUTH HEIGHTS DROP GAME TO HUMMERS.

The Hummers defeated the Duluth Heights yesterday by the score of 11 to 4. The game was played on the grounds of the latter team, hits on the part of the winning team and errors on the part of the Heights contributing to the one-sided victory. Score:
Hummers .....5040001011—11
Heights .....1010101000— 4
Batteries—Boyle and Olund; Danielson and Harwood.

OAK HALLS DEFEAT STRONG JEFFERSON TEAM.

The Oak Halls took the Jeffersons into camp yesterday, winning the game by the score of 11 to 9. The heavy hitting of the Oak Halls featured the game. The Jeffersons made a hard bid for the game in the last inning, but were stopped just as they threatened to pull the game out. Score:
Jeffersons .....0 0 0 0 3 2 0 0 4— 9
Oak Halls .....1 0 3 4 1 0 0 0 2—11
Batteries—Stevens and Baker; Schultz and Wedge.

NEW DULUTHS ANNIHILATE WOODRUFF LUMBER COMPANY

Yesterday the New Duluths defeated the Woodruff Lumber company team by the score of 21 to 9. Heavy hitting on the part of the New Duluth players and loose playing on the part of the Woodruffs account for the large score. Score: R. H. E.

GIRL MAKES NEW HIGH JUMP RECORD.

Quincy, Mass., May 16.—The world's high jump record for women is claimed for Miss Rachel Hardwick of this city, who in competition yesterday cleared 4 feet, 6 inches. This exceeds by an inch and a half the record established last week by Miss Theodora Wheeler of Fairfield, Conn., a student at Vassar college. Miss Hardwick's jump was made at the games of the Woodward Institute for girls.

BOAT CLUB CREWS HAVE CLOSE RACE.

Picked eights of the Duluth Boat club yesterday morning raced over the mile and a half course of the club. The eight stroked by Louis Thompson, better known as "Tommy," won the race by half a length, just nosing out the eight stroked by "Cy" Forgette.

The two crews rowed bow to bow down the course. The boats rowed in each other's water part of the time, the oars of the two bats overlapping each other.

Coach Peyton selected the two eights from the men who have been out the present season, making the two boats as evenly matched as he could. A closer race could not have been rowed. Good form was shown in both boats, considering the fact that so far the weather has been unfit for training.

PATCHING UP THE HOLES

New Men Are Already Being Signed for White Sox.

A. W. Kuehnow returned from LaCrosse this morning, not as yet discouraged over the showing the White Sox have made so far on the trip. According to Mr. Kuehnow, errors lost two of the Winona games and the game of yesterday with LaCrosse.

In yesterday's game with the Outcasts the Sox outhit their opponents, but threw the game away through errors. It was the same in the two games that were dropped at Winona. Mr. Kuehnow stated that the Sox looked stronger than the Winona Pirates.

Hark luck has been close on the trial of the Sox. Kozier is out with a bad leg and Fryn, the youngster, who has been showing good form on the bar, is sick and unfit to play at the present time. Wilhelm has failed to show the form expected of him and will be let out at the first opportunity.

Buzinsky has been spiked and is out of the game, Anderson replacing him behind the bat yesterday. Don Marion is not in the best of shape, being troubled with a sore arm, which puts the pitching staff in a bad hole.

A catcher by the name of Schomenaur will join the team today. He comes from Waterloo, Iowa, and is expected to fill up the weakness behind the bat. A new shortstop is also expected today. Both of these men will get into the game as soon as possible.

"Errors have lost all but one of the games so far on the trip," said Mr. Kuehnow today. "We had LaCrosse beaten yesterday but for inexcusable errors. Hard luck has been following us, but we are not discouraged. I have confidence that we have a strong team, once it gets started. There are some weak places and we are endeavoring to strengthen these weaknesses. The boys have been hitting the ball, which is at least encouraging. One or two changes and the team will win the majority of its games."

WEEK-END GAMES AMONG THE "INDEPENDENTS"

Cloquet, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Adams team of Duluth won a loosely played game from the Cloquet team yesterday by a score of 13 to 10. Heavy hitting by both teams featured the game. Score: R. H. E.
Adams .....50060110 0—13 11 7
Cloquet .....01100052 1—10 10 6
Batteries—J. Olsen and Behrens; Sandstrom, Gaskill and Bassett. Umpires, McGregor and Wagner.

Yesterday at Two Harbors the Big Duluths of this city were defeated by the city team of Two Harbors, the score being 7 to 2. Both sides played rather ragged ball at times, but the errors of the Duluth boys were more costly than the misplays of the Two Harbors team. "Dad" Irwin and Chaffee, formerly of the Superior Minmy league team, played in the battery role for the Two Harbors team. Score: R. H. E.
Big Duluths ..00002 0000—2 7 3
Two Harbors ..2 3 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—7 9 6
Batteries—Murphy and Summers; Murray, Irwin and Chaffee.

The Hayward, Wis., team yesterday defeated the Fitwells of this city by the score of 9 to 5. Hayward securing six scores in the first inning. Pitcher Johnson being wild and erratic.

After the first inning the Duluth pitcher struck out thirteen men and pitched a very strong game. He struck three men in the fifth with the bases filled. Frank for the Fitwells secured four hits out of five times up.

The lineup and score:

Hayward .....6 1 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—9 8 2

The Young Clippers of Superior defeated the Piedmont Avenue Cubs of Superior by a score of 13 to 3. The batteries for the Cubs were A. Twaddle and H. Sather, and for Superior Clippers: D. Gusfafson and Leland. A return game will be played on the Superior grounds next Sunday.

The Phoenix team defeated the Fedji Clothiers yesterday in a six-inning game, by a score of 17 and 6. The game was one-sided all the way through. The batteries for the Phoenix team were: O. Wick and Knutson, and for the clothiers: Mork; A. Olson and Gustafson. The score by innings:
Phoenix .....4 0 4 8 1 x—17
Fedje .....0 0 3 0 2 1— 6

By a ninth inning rally the Central high school team defeated the baseball team of the Superior normal school by the score of 12 to 11, the game being played Saturday afternoon at Athletic park.

The score was 11 to 7 in favor of the Normals when the Centrals came to bat in the last half of the ninth. Kelly walked, Larry Boyle bunted safely, Spencer hit for three bases, and was scored on Waldron's single. Greenfield singled and Johnson walked. Kristianson singled, scoring Greenfield and Johnson, winning the game with no gas out.

The lineup:

| Centrals | Position | Normal |
|---|---|---|
| Scanlon | p | Underhill |
| Kelly | c | Clark |
| Waldron | 1b | Susans |
| L. Boyle | 2b | Danielson |
| Greenfield | 3b | Zeiman |
| J. Boyle | ss | Campbell |
| Wharton | cf | Van Vleck |
| Kristianson | rf | Brown |
| Johnson | lf | Thorpe |
| Spencer | lf | R. E. |

Score:

Normal .....01100050 4—11 10 5

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Let's Have Hope.

It sure was a stinging defat the Outcasts handed us Saturday at the German city of La Crosse. But still, we are not without hope. Marion is not in condition to pitch, as the writer knows. Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis Nationals, nearly put the boy's arm out of commission by insisting that he change his natural style of delivery to one resembling that of Christy Mathewson.

Marion's arm has been examined by a doctor, who has stated that several of the muscles are strained and pulled out of place. When the big chap rounds to, he is expected to make one of the best heavers in the league. In fact, the race for premier honors should be divided between Marion and Dauss.

Both of these boys have everything that a pitcher should have. Maybe both are a trifle shy on control at times. Lack of control is the chief weakness that besets Dauss. The present season should be a great one for the two Duluth twirlers.

There is no secret about the fact that Duluth needs a catcher. We will have one, too. The team had been going along well until the game of Saturday. Bad weather necessitated experimenting on the trip. At the present time O'Brien is doing more or less experimenting with his twirlers.

He knows the value of Dauss, Marion and Cummings, as the Duluthite is expected to report the present week. What Thorsen will do the present season remains an experiment. Thorsen is on probation at the present time, and until he has proved without doubt that he means business, he cannot be taken seriously.

Kenney has shown nothing as yet. He is big and strong and complacent; outside of the fact that he ought to be able to pitch, he has so far shown no promise. O'Brien, it seems, will have to rely upon Marion, Dauss, Klingebell and Thorsen. If the two latter mound dwellers show what is expected of them, the staff of the Sox will compare with that of any of the other teams.

Big Louie Kozier will be tried out behind the bat when his leg heals. He was originally a catcher, and may fit into the place where the Sox are apparently woefully weak at the present time.

The hitting of the big fellow should help a lot. The team needs stickers, and Kozier has the reputation of being a player that can bang the ball out of the lot.

There are several changes necessary before the team will be as strong as the local officials intend it to be; for through. The batteries for the Phoenix team were: O. Wick and Knutson, and for the clothiers: Mork; A. Olson and Gustafson. The score by innings:

Commy's Popularity.

Headed by "Bill" Witherspoon, city passenger agent of the Minneapolis & St. Louis, who is very well known in this city, some of the citizens of St. Paul have organized a White Sox Rooters' association. Most every member of the association is a personal friend of the owner of the Chicago American team.

The members of the association intend to attend the first game in the new Comiskey baseball yard. And in the meantime the St. Paulites are in the meantime the St. Paulites are rooting for the success of the White Sox.

It would be possible to organize such an association in this city, for there is hardly a city in the country where the Old Roman has not a large number of friends. If a vote were taken to determine the most popular man in the American league, Charles Comiskey would win easily.

He was largely instrumental in the organization of the league, and through the trying days of the league, when it was not known whether the league would live or die, the sage advice of the veteran baseball man was of enestimable value.

Comiskey is the kind of a man who makes friends and he also holds his friends. The instance of the organization of the St. Paul rooters' association is merely an example of the widespread popularity of the veteran.

About Eddie McGoorty.

Just what class does Eddie McGorty possess?

Eh, what?

Those who really like McGoorty, and there are many who do admire the Wisconsin fighter, sincerely hope he will not get tangled up with Billy Papke or Stanley Ketchel in the immediate future.

Maybe the boy is a comer. He has shown lots of improvement in the past year. Yet his showing with Hugo Kelly at Milwaukee the other night was enough to convince the unbiased that the Badger had better leave Ketchel and Papke alone for a while.

Kelly is a great fighter and all that. He is one of the toughest nuts in the middleweight division. But at that he has been whipped in a punch by Papke and stopped in three rounds by Ketchel. It hardly looks as if McGoorty had the punch and strength to give successful battle to Papke and Ketchel.

Eddie is one of the most gentlemanly boys in the ring. He is a youngster and should show a great improvement. He is a fighter who has grown through systematic development. He is not naturally as rugged as either Ketchel or Papke. He takes better care of himself than either of the middleweight division leaders. In time he may master both of them. At the present writing Eddie hardly looks equal to the occasion.

"Errorless" Mike—No.

What a shame it is! What?

Why, "Errorless" "Mique Malloy is errorless no longer. He has joined the baseball goats and has pulled ruthlessly from the sheep with fleece of snowy white.

Red Wing has had a bad effect on Mique. The other day the whole team went wrong. Errors were made right and left. Then the awful occurred—Mique dropped one in the garden. Bitter tears were shed, and Mique hung his head as he walked from the rocky Red Wing outfield to the bench.

Strong men were smitten with grief profound and maidens wrung their hands and reached for small linen Handkerchiefs. It was a sad day, the dethroning of the King. Now that Mique has gotten into the habit, it may be that he will make errors every now and then. Perhaps—who knows.

Washington, Maybe.

There is the greatest incentive held out to the members of the junior crew of the Duluth Boat club, in the promise that the crew will be sent to the National regatta, to be held at Washington, in the event of the eight winning at Kenora.

There is everything in favor of the crew the present season. Winnipeg will have a compartively green junior eight, or should have. St. Paul surely will not have any better material than the Duluth coaches. In fact, Duluth should have the veteran crew of the regatta, in the junior events. Everything favors the local eight.

It ought to be Duluth's year. The enthusiasm is there, the crew is further advanced, and the candidates are working under more promising conditions. The incentive of the Washington trip should be one that will cause the men to work as no Duluth candidates have ever worked before.

SCHOOLBOYS' FIELD MEET

Contest for the Herald Cup Will Be Held on Saturday, May 21.

The date for the seventh interscholastic field meet conducted by the Boys' department Y. M. C. A. has been set for Saturday, May 21. It will be held at the baseball park at 2 p. m.

Great interest is being manifested in all the schools in this big event and the prospects are that there will be more contestants this year than in any previous meet. Monday afternoon at 4:30 there will be a meeting at the Boys' department of representatives from each school. They will elect the officers for the year, and make the final arrangements.

Open to Every School.

The meet is so arranged this year that every school has a chance to carry off some of the honors. The list of events follows:

Midget Division.

Boys 70 and under 90 pounds—
1. Potato race.
2. 50 yard dash.
3. Three standing broad jumps.
4. 440 yard relay race.

Lightweight Division.

Boys 90 and under 105 pounds—
1. Potato race.
2. 75 yard dash.
3. Running high jump.
4. Three standing broad jumps.
4. 600 yard relay race.

Middleweight Division.

Boys 105 and under 120 pounds—
1. 100 yard dash.
2. Running high jump.
3. Three standing broad jumps.
4. Quarter mile run.
5. 880 yard relay race.

Heavyweight Division.

Boys 120 pounds and over—
1. 10 pound shot put.
2. 100 yard dash.
3. Running high jump.
4. Running broad jump.
5. Half mile run.
6. One mile relay race.

The school winning the largest number of points gets The Duluth Evening Herald loving cup. This becomes the permanent property of the school winning it three times.

A brass tablet will also be presented by the Boys' department Y. M. C. A.

To the boy who wins the largest number of points in each division, a silver medal will be given and a silver badge to every boy winning a first place. A silver and bronze badge goes to every boy winning a second place, and a bronze badge to every boy winning a third place.

A special prize will be given to the school having the largest representation, they will have the privilege of electing the most popular boy in the school to attend Camp Miller for two weeks with all expenses paid.

JEFFRIES THREATENS

Rumor That White Fighter May Call Off Big Battle.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—When representatives of the rival fight camps assembled here this afternoon for their second conference on the question of a referee for the Jeffries-Johnson battle at Emeryville, July 4, they faced what is regarded as an extremely delicate situation.

The morning papers give much prominence to a rumor current here last night that Jeffries had threatened to call off the fight unless Johnson agrees to withdraw his candidates for referee.

Jack Johnson did his first gymnasium training yesterday afternoon and any suspicions as to the condition of the heavyweight were entirely dispelled by the way in which he went through his work.

Before a crowd of about 2,000 persons, who jammed their way into the big dance hall pavilion, Johnson went through the ordinary routine exercise and, wound up by boxing eight full three-minute rounds. When the last bout was over, Johnson was not even drawing a deep breath. That he could get ready for the coming fight in three weeks, was the general opinion.

The colored man was highly pleased with himself and remarked to his friends in his dressing room he was better than he had imagined.

Johnson Shows Up Well.

Veteran followers of the ring had their eyes opened at the way Johnson tackled the work ahead of him. His first three rounds were with George Cotton, a colored boy from Chicago. Cotton weighs about 155 pounds and Johnson found in him a willing worker. For all his weight, Cotton could not get inside the champion's guard and Johnson handled his dusky opponent much as he would a sack of wheat. He drew blood with a wicked uppercut in the second round.

Marty Cutler, also a member of the sparring staff brought here from Chicago, was the second opponent. The pair put up a classy three-round bout, in which Johnson's defensive work was noticeable. Denver Jack Geyer, a heavyweight from Los Angeles, who has had a couple of fights with Joe Willis, wound up the closing two rounds and it was well for him that he was in splendid shape as otherwise he could not have taken the punishment administered.

Because he was to work in the gymnasium, Johnson did little work on the road in the morning.

Jeff Boxes Four Rounds.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 16.—Jeffries delighted a record crowd of camp visitors yesterday afternoon by going four fast rounds with Bob Armstrong. There was to have been more boxing but Choynski was slightly ill and Armstrong was not good for an extension of the four-round limit. Jeffries showed marked hospitality to his guests and seemed in excellent spirits. He did five miles on the road in the morning under the hot sun and the afternoon show lasted about an hour.

Among the visitors to the camp yesterday were John A. Kelley, acting mayor of San Francisco; Sheriff Tom Finn and Supervisors John L. Herget and Con Deasey, all of San Francisco. Charley Eyton, the Los Angeles referee, dropped in unexpectedly. He expressed himself as astonished at Jeffries splendid physical condition.

After completing his work yesterday Jeffries devoted the entire evening to pleasure. He entertained his family and close friends at a chicken chill dinner and later in the evening was one of a large party that went to a dance on the Ben Lomond.

Jeffries took his first drink since starting to train Saturday afternoon. He split a bottle of stout with his business partner, Jack Kipper. The fighter explained, that with a goodly part of the grind still before him, he did not want to grow stale and that a drink of porter or ale occasionally would be beneficial.

SOX FAIL TO HIT ACCORDING TO AVERAGES.

Official averages for the Duluth team show the Sox are not landing on the spheroid with an abandon that has proved particularly destructive to the hopes of the opposition pitchers. To date the averages do not show the Sox up in a glaring light of hero worship. Many of the errors have been due to miserable weather, such as was encountered at Winona. The batting averages though show that the Sox have not been hitting hard.

The averages follow:

| | G. | AB. | H. | Pct. | PO. | A. | E. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Buss | 4 | 12 | 4 | .333 | 19 | 11 | 3 | .909 |

| Talor | 4 | 16 | 4 | .250 | 10 | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| O'Brien | 4 | 13 | 3 | .231 | 8 | 10 | 3 | .857 |
| Sweeney | 4 | 14 | 3 | .214 | 7 | 11 | 1 | .947 |
| Nelon | 4 | 16 | 3 | .188 | 9 | 1 | 1 | .909 |
| Anderson | 4 | 17 | 2 | .118 | 4 | 2 | 2 | .750 |

MAT McGRATH BEATS A WORLD'S RECORD.

New York, May 16.—Mat McGrath of the New York Athletic club, hurled the 65-pound weight 31 feet, 10¾ inches without run or follow, two inches and a fraction beyond the world's record here yesterday. It is probable that the new record will not be allowed by the A. A. U. officials a detachable handle was used, instead of the fixed handle prescribed. The record is 31 feet, 8 3-5 inches.

GRAND FORKS PICKETS DEFEAT FOSSTON NINE.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a six-inning game Sunday afternoon, the Fosston, Minn., Baseball aggregation was blanked by the Grand Forks Picketts, the final score being 3 to 0. Rain stopped the game.

In the fourth inning, the Picketts scored once. Chandler was sent to first by being hit by the pitcher. Conly reached first on a fielder's choice and was scored by a hit by Roy, the former Thief River Falls player. In the sixth the Picketts scored twice on errors by the visitors, and by one hit.

CLOQUET MAN WILL MEET SAILOR JACK.

Cloquet, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ed Alho, a Finnish wrestler of this city, will meet Sailor Jack in a catch-as-catch-can match here next Tuesday evening. The local man has had a good deal of mat experience, and believes he has an equal chance with the Duluth man. The match will be the best two falls out of three and there is a side bet of $50.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Prices Sag During a Quiet Session in Duluth Market.

Little Trading in Flax and the Undertone Is Weak.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—Wheat declined today in all markets. There was not much selling on the downturn. Values were not subjected to unusual pressure although conditions generally were strongly in favor of the bears. Trading was light. Chicago was the firmest market with the bears holding aloof. There was no outside pressure.

May wheat opened late at $1.09⅝ and closed $1.09⅜ bid. July was offered at $1.11 asked at the opening and sold at $1.10¾, $1.10⅝, $1.10½, $1.09⅞, $1.10⅛, and closed $1.09⅜-⅝. September opened $1.02 asked and sold 1c lower, then at $1.01¾, $1.01, $1.01-¾, $1.00⅞ and closed with bids at $1.01⅝.

Flax was dull with a weak undertone due to scattered offerings. May sold at $2.27½ and $2.26, and closed with offers at $2.26. July was $2.24 asked and $2.21 asked without trading. September was offered at $1.73 and sold 1c lower, then at $1.71½. October sold at $1.64, $1.63½ and closed with offers at $1.63½.

Cash wheat closed ¼c over July, with the mills paying ¼c over July for choice No. 1 northern. Oats closed ⅛c up, rye was unchanged, barley closed unchanged and durum was 1¼c off.

The bears had their innings today, although they showed some trepidation even in the face of a multiplicity of factors in their favor. Values opened weak and declined but firmed slightly on a few buying orders from scattered sources and then sagged lower. Trading was light.

There was no London or Liverpool market today. The market on this side opened weak on statistics, which were bearish in the main, although somewhat mixed, and the general rainfall in the Northwest and Southwest. World's shipments increased from 9,168,000 bu a week ago to 11,552,000 bu last week. The total visible decreased to 22,871,000 bu from 24,584,000 bu a week ago. Wheat on passage decreased 512,000 bu.

Rains in Texas and Oklahoma practically assure good crops in those states. The rainfall in Southern Kansas will aid the growing wheat there greatly. The bears think the wet weather will add 10,000,000 bu to the Nebraska crop. A copious rain fell over most of North and South Dakota and prospects thus far are ideal for a bumper crop. Rain is predicted for tonight in North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and the Central and Southwestern states. The temperatures tonight will be near to the freezing point. Freezing weather is predicted for parts of the Northwest. Fair weather and warmer temperatures are promised for tomorrow.

The sentiment in the Northwest was bearish and the Northwestern markets were weak. The Chicago market was characteristically stubborn and values yielded slowly. Early in the day the May option was higher than the opening and the futures had not yielded much ground. The market there is sustained chiefly by speculative interests and the bears think that the longs cannot continue to hold up prices to an artificial level. They believe that the large cash holders will receive a severe drubbing and that they will be unable to market their stuff except at a loss. The disposition of the Albany miller to deflect cash wheat to Buffalo instead of Chicago indicates the position of the interests who control the cash grain at Chicago, they think.

Of the 1,000,000 bu of No. 1 northern sold here to Chicago, 350,000 bu will be taken to Buffalo by Washburn-Crosby. Most of the No. 1 northern in store here and not sold to Chicago is said to be owned by the Peavy interests. All of the stuff which will be delivered on Chicago May contracts will have left this port by the end of the week.

If milling demand does not improve the bears think the holders of cash wheat will experience considerable difficulty in burying their "corpse," especially as the new crop promises to be a bumper one and there seems to be plenty of wheat for all purposes. The new flour trade is dull. Dealers appear to be well stocked.

The cash situation was weak in the East today and very little improvement was displayed in the Southwest. No stuff was reported sold here today either to the East or Chicago. Mills paid ¼c over the July option for choice North Dakota wheat. The July price and ¼c under were paid for some other stuff. The receipts are negligible compared with the demand. It is expected that receipts from the interior will show an increase in the near future as the farmer is beginning to realize the bears think that the crop in the Northwest will be unusually large and the winter wheat plant has not been as seriously damaged as the ardent bulls would like it to appear.

The Russian crop report for twenty-five provinces is extremely favorable and the weather, plant and soil conditions are excellent. The new Argentine plant is growing under first-class circumstances. Messages from Winnipeg said that the growing plant in Manitoba and Saskatchewan is in prime condition and that the rains of yesterday and last night were exceedingly beneficial although rain was not seriously needed.

Van Dusen-Harrington's report said: "It is plain that there has been damage to oats in some districts, by reason of the heavy frosts, and durum wheat in sections has made a bad start because of poor seed, but our small grain seeding was done so much earlier than usual that it has been possible for farmers to discover the thin fields of oats and urum, and reseed. There is still some flax seeding to be done, but we believe the entire small grain crop of Minnesota and the two Dakotas is today in excellent shape. We have had very little rain since seeding commenced, but we had two falls of snow, which were probably more valuable than rain, and the result is that the soil all over these states is found to hold sufficient moisture to carry the crop from one to two weeks further without rain.

"The result of hard frosts this spring has been to kill many of the weeds which were given a good start by the warm weather. Wheat was not injured by these frosts, but sent its roots deeper, and is now prepared to make splendid growth as soon as we have warmer weather and spring rains. We believe the prospect is very good for a large crop of wheat and flax, and an average crop of barley and oats."

Poehler's market letter of Saturday, which was written before the rains were general in the Northwest, said: "The continued dry weather in the Northwest is serious, but there is still time for a good, general rain to place the wheat crop in a promising condition. The top soil is dry but there is moisture below. The season is still early and the wheat plant may be taking a strong deep root."

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Easier Due to Heavy Rains in Growing States.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—Wheat today was easier on account of the heavy rains that fell in all the wheat growing states over Sunday. These showers were timely and the condition of the wheat was greatly improved. The Northwest now waits warm growing weather. The movement from first hands showed an increase. The United States visible supply decreased materially. Local elevator stocks decreased 250,000 bu for two days. May closed 1⅜c lower than Saturday, July, 1½c lower and September 1¼c lower. Minneapolis today received 229 cars of wheat against 275 cars a year ago; Duluth 21 cars against 7 cars, and Winnipeg 132 cars against 50 cars. May opened $1.10; high, $1.10; low, $1.09⅜; closed, $1.09½. July opened, $1.08⅜@1.09; high, $1.09¾@1.09½; low, $1.08½; closed, $1.08⅝. September opened, 99¾c; high, $1.00⅝@1.00¾; low, 99⅝c; closed, $1.00⅝.

Cash wheat was easier on account of the more liberal receipts. No. 1 northern today sold for 1@3c above the July option and ½c higher to go out. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.09½@1.11⅝; to arrive, $1.09⅜@1.09¾; No. 2 northern, $1.07½@1.09⅝; to arrive, $1.07⅝@1.09⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.04⅝@1.06⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 59@60c; No. 3 white oats, 39⅞@41⅜c; No. 2 rye, 70@76c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 2,017 tons. There was no change in the situation today. Demand continued slow, prices firm, and shipments light. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $18.00@18.25.

There was no change in the flour market today. Demand remained slow, shipments steady and prices firm. Shipments, 49,370 bbls. First patents, in wood, f. o. b, Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

Flax—Receipts, 21 cars; year ago, 3; shipments, 1. Demand was strong for spot flaxseed at 2½c above the Duluth July and to arrive at even July option. Closing price, $2.23½.

Barley—Receipts, 79 cars; year ago, 26; shipments, 38. The market continued steady. The bulk of offerings consisted of feeding grades. Malting barley received a very steady demand. Prices held firm.

New York Money.

New York, May 16.—Money on call steady at 3¾@4 per cent; ruling rate, 3¾ per cent; closing bid, 3⅞ per cent; offered at 4 per cent. Time loans easier; 60 days and 90 days, 4 per cent; six months, 4@4¼ per cent. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent; sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.83.80@4.83.90 for 60-day bills and at 4.87 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83¼@4.83¾. Bar silver, 54c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds weak; railroad bonds irregular.

Close Early May 20.

New York, May 16.—The New York produce exchange will close at noon Friday, May 20, the day of King Edward's funeral.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Prices Rise in Early Part of Session, But Gains Lost.

Close Easy and Dull, With Slight Losses in May Stocks.

New York, May 16.—The opening dealings in stocks today were light, in the absence of the usual orders from abroad, on account of the foreign stock markets being closed. Prices advanced in leisurely fashion, the gains in International Harvester and Reading second preferred reaching 1 and in Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Wabash preferred and in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Ste. Marie, large fractions.

The tone became stronger, but there was no corresponding increase in business. Reading, Southern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Ontario & Western, Chicago-Great Western preferred, Lake Erie and Western preferred, Amalgamated Copper, American Steel Foundries and Sloss-Sheffield Steel advanced 1; Northern Pacific, 1⅜, and Reading second preferred and American Car preferred, 2. Realizing sales depressed Canadian Pacific 2, and St. Louis & San Francisco, firts preferred, gave way 2½.

The desire to await the action of the supreme court added to the closing of foreign stock markets intensified the dullness. Prices were allowed to fall back a fraction but hardened again before noon. Reading and International Pump preferred rose 1⅜. Bonds were firmer.

Prices crept slowly upward, with the buying smaller as the advance progressed. Leading was the fature, touching 161¼, a rise of 2¼. United States Steel reached 84. Western stocks made the best showing of strength.

The market closed easy and dull. Appointment of a receiver for the Hocking Valley in a suit to prevent its sale to the Chesapeake & Ohio caused a decline of 1 in the latter stock and a reaction in the whole list. St. Louis & Southwestern preferred, Wabash preferred, United States Rubber and Hocking Coal lost 1. Western Maryland advanced 3½ and Great Northern Ore certificates 1. Reading reacted 1⅜ and fractional losses were established for many stocks.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 16.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 14 points under a renewal of scattering liquidation and local bear pressure encouraged by reports of rain in the western and central belt, and rumors that the recent relative weakness of May as compared with July meant that the big bulls were getting quite as much cotton as they cared to handle. The bulls, however, gave the market aggressive support around the initial figures and shortly after the opening, prices rallied sharply on this demand and covering.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 15.90; middling gulf, 16.15; sales, 18,251 bales.

WILL PASS THROUGH COMET'S TAIL EARLY WEDNESDAY EVENING

Many Duluth People Fear Dire Calamities Will Happen Then.

Weather Man Promises That Sky Will Be Clear for Event.

Wanderer Will Be Most Brilliant About Friday or Saturday.

If any dire calamities are to come from the near approach of Halley's comet to the earth and the passing of this planet through the tail of the celestial body, tomorrow night is the time for their occurrence. Astronomers unite in the statement that there will be no serious effects from the close proximity of the earth and the comet, but superstitious people still have fears, even in Duluth. Many people, who fear that a tidal wave will be caused on Lake Superior by the approach of the comet, believe that Park Point will be inundated, and many residents of that suburb will spend tomorrow night in the main part of the city, higher than their usual abode.

Astronomers point out that there cannot possibly be any evil effects from the visit of the comet. The tail of the comet is so rare, they say, that the most nearly perfect vacuum that can be obtained on earth is dense in comparison with it. Cyanogen gas is present, but in such a rare state that it cannot injure life on the earth.

Tomorrow night at 9:19 the earth, the comet and the sun will be in a direct line, the comet between the earth and the sun. From Duluth it is doubtful if anything will be visible, as the comet and the sun will be on the other side of the earth. Even in places on a direct line with the comet and the sun, it is doubtful if there will be any visible manifestations of the phenomenon. At other times when other

SMALL BOY IS HERO AT FIRE

Saves Baby Brother When Older People Are Driven Back By Flames.

Detroit, Mich., May 17.—Dudley Lappin, 13 years old, made a hero of himself here yesterday by rescuing his 2-year-old baby brother from their burning home after the children's mother and a neighbor had been driven driven back by the flames and given the child up for lost.

The little boy had the presence of mind to throw his coat over his head. With this protection he groped his way through the smoke and fire to the baby's bed, presently staggering out with the little one safe in his arms. The bed clothing had protected the infant from being burned and the boy rescuer escaped with painful though not serious burns.

ACTS ROLE OF THE LORELEI

Comet Attracts Chicago Man to Roof and Fatal Fall Follows.

Hoosier Sky-Gazer Slips and Takes Bad Slide Down Shingles.

Chicago, May 17.—While on a roof, gazing at the skies early today, with other members of a comet party, Israel Grigui, 33 years old, stepped on a glass skylight. He fell four stories and suffered a fracture of the skull At the hospital, where he was taken, it was said that he would die.

Hoosier Has Bad Fall.

Owensville, Ind., May 17.—Scantily clad, Lambert Wilson emerged through a trap door in the roof of his house early today to take a naked eye observation of Halley's comet.

No sooner had he poised himself and began to sweep the heavens, when a foot slipped and he coasted swiftly down the rough shingled roof and plunged off the eaves thirty feet to earth, yelling frantically the while.

The whole neighborhood was aroused and turned out to find Wilson lying on the ground, his clothing torn from him, and he was stunned and painfully bruised.

WON CHIEF HONORS AT FRENCH AVIATION MEET

MICHAEL EFFINOFF.

Paris, May 17.—Nice has just had one of the most successful aviation meets of the year. Michael Effinoff, a young Russian who has just learned to fly, on his Farman machine won in all about $15,000. He won for speed, distance, quick starts and passenger carrying. Paulhan was among the contestants.

CALL KERBY AS WITNESS

Ballinger-Pinchot Investigators Put Discharged Man on the Stand.

Author of Sensation in Glavis Matter Quizzed By Attorneys.

Washington, May 17.—Frederick M. Kerby, formerly a stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office, who was dismissed yesterday on the ground that he divulged confidential information bearing on the preparation of the Lawler memorandum, was called to the stand soon after the hearing began today in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

After Chairman Nelson had laid the president's letter to him before the committee, Mr. Brandeis said he thought Mr. Kerby's statement and the president's denial of last Saturday should go into the record with it. Mr. Nelson said that no statement of Kerby was before the committee, whereupon Mr. Brendeis said Mr. Kerby was present and was willing to testify.

Mr. Kerby appeared calm and confident when giving his name and age. Attorney Vertrees, counsel for Mr. Ballinger, questioned him about the position he held in the interior department.

Taking up the subject of Kerby's statement, Mr. Vertrees asked him if he had ever before given out confidential information.

Considered Action Necessary.

"I never considered it necessary before," was the reply.

Kerby said this was the only instance he could recall in which he had done so.

Kerby said that he was friendly to Mr. Garfield and that he had exchanged one or two letters with the latter

RIOT IN MADRID; OFFICER STABBED

Republicans and Gendarmes Clash Over Political Demonstration.

Madrid, May 17.—A collision between Republicans and gendarmes is reported from Valencia in connection with a manifestation in honor of the arrival there of the Republican deputy, Senor Seriano. The gendarmes charged, and the Republicans used knives and stones.

An officer was stabbed and killed, and many persons were wounded. Fifty arrests were made, and order was finally restored after the manifestants had sought refuge at the Republican club.

COMPLAIN OF MEN OF AMERICAN NAVY.

MEN IN JAIL LIKE DR. HYDE

Doctor Convicted of Poisoning Col. Swope Is Popular With Them.

Will Study Medicine While in His Cell---Juror Talks of Verdict.

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—While Dr. B. Clark Hyde, who was convicted here yesterday of the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope, is in jail, he is not going to permit his medical mind to become rusty. Today the physician had one of his attorneys bring him a score of texts from his office. He will study them regularly each day, he says.

Professional associates of Mr. Hyde are not surprised at his studying in jail. He was known among the physicians as a serious student and was well abreast of the times in medicine and surgery. It was largely in recognition of his ability, it is said, that he was elected president of the Jackson County Medical society last fall.

Hyde has become popular with the prisoners at the jail. He is an honorary member of the "mock court" by virtue of having paid a dollar initiation fee when the regular cost is but 50 cents. The doctor also plays cards with the inmates to while the time away.

New York Officers Explain Wounding of Man on That Theory.

New York, May 17.—The "Gopher gang," a West side organization, succeeded in "getting" George J. Gallagher, known otherwise as "Newburgh George," today, the police believe. Gallagher, known as a member of the gang, was taken in a dying condition to the New York hospital with two bullet wounds in his stomach.

Although he was conscious, he refused to say who shot him, but the police declare their belief that the shooting was an outcome of one of the numerous feuds in gang circles which frequently develop deadly assaults and murders. There is known to have been internal trouble in the "Gopher gang" recently.

RAT DAY FOR FARMERS IN CENTRAL KENTUCKY.

Lexington, Ky., May 17.—Hundreds of farmers of Nicholas county, Ky., today joined in a war of extermination against rats. This is the second anti-rat day, thousands of the rodents having been killed last year. The pests have caused thousands of dollars damage to the crops and stored grains in Central Kentucky and an effort is being made to extend the fight against them to other counties.

Says Buyers Must Be Educated to Regard Rise as Right.

Charlotte, N. C. May 17.—Owing to a new price level in cotton, buyers and customers must be awakened to a realization of the necessity of higher cost of cotton goods. This was the declaration made today by Lewis W. Parker, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, in his address to the organization, which began its annual convention here today. Speaking of increase in the price of cotton, Mr. Parker said:

"It must be admitted on our part, that a portion at least of the unfortunate results of the past year is due to ourselves. Throughout last summer and the early fall manufacturers as a whole, resisted the advance of the raw material which was consequent upon the shortage of supply. We apparently were slow to appreciate how short, indeed, was the supply, and in this appreciation were much behind the speculative element, which foresaw conditions much better than we did.

DENVER VOTING ON PROHIBITION

Initiative and Referendum Also Proposed to the Electors.

Denver, Colo., May 17.—Important questions are being decided by the voters of Denver at the municipal election today, the prohibition problem and the granting of a 20-year franchise to the Denver Union Water company being the principal features.

Three solutions of the prohibition problem are offered the voters: First, city-wide prohibition; second, high license and the restriction of the number of saloons to one for every 700 inhabitants; and third, continuance of present conditions—a $600 annual license fee and no restriction on the number of saloons.

A number of amendments to the city charter, including the initiative and referendum and the recall, also are being voted on.

London, May 17.—The body of King Edward VII "the peacemaker," was taken with stately pomp this morning from Buckingham palace on the first stage of the journey to the grave, and now lies in state in Westminster hall, where hundreds of thousands will pay a last tribute to the dead monarch before the final passage through the streets of the capital on Thursday.

Mr. Roosevelt, special ambassador to the funeral of King Edward, did not participate today in the ceremony attending the removal of the body of the king from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall. Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Kermit, American ambassador Reid and Mrs. Reid witnessed the procession from a house in Carlton House terrace, but Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning answering his accumulated correspondence.

People Dressed in Black.

SHIPPERS TO FIGHT RAISE

Men From All Sections of the Country Are at Chicago Meeting.

W. H. Burn Urges Them to Unite Against New Freight Schedules.

Chicago, May 17.—Vigorously opposing the proposed advance in freight rates which carriers in official classification territory and Western trunk line territory have decided to make, shippers from all sections of the country gathered in conference here today at one of the largest meetings of shippers assembled for years.

The conference was called to order by W. H. Burn, vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, under whose auspices the meeting is being held.

In opening the meeting Mr. Burn declared that the railroads, when their attempt to advance rates two years ago was defeated, promised the Illinois Manufacturers' association that in the future shippers would be notified before any attempt at advancing rates was made. No notice of the present advance had been given, he averred.

No Request for Conference.

"Your representatives have received no request for conferences, notwithstanding it is well known that the roads in official classification territory intend to advance their rates from 8 to 20 per cent, and the Western trunk line roads have already filed their tariffs for advances as great as 16 per cent," declared the speaker. "They have also withdrawn commodity rates and reached out to grasp the large increase in their net revenue.

"The situation which presents itself here today is unusual. Almost every important shipping center between the Rocky mountains and the Alleghenies is represented here today, and many of those who are not represented have taken steps to co-operate, or unite with each other in opposing the ad-

OFFICERS ELECTED BY CLUB WOMEN

General Federation Also Is Addressed By John Mitchell.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 17.—Chief interest of the delegates attending the General Federation of Womens Clubs' convention was centered today in the election of officers. Voting was held late in the afternoon.

Mrs. Phillip N. Moore of St. Louis was nominated for re-election as president, and most of the other old officers also were slated for a second term.

John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers, made an address before the convention entitled "The Death Roll of Industry."

A conference on industry and child labor was held in the afternoon.

The directors of the domestic science committee indorsed bills now pending before congress for disseminating information on domestic science in secondary and high schools. The resolution was signed by Mrs. James H. Kyle of South Dakota, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, and Mrs. J. W. Sheppard of Wisconsin.

ARTISTS GATHER AT WASHINGTON

American Federation Is Welcomed to the Capital By MacVeagh.

Washington, May 17.—Artists of national reputation, art patrons and others interested in art in its relation to the improvement of civic conditions, were welcomed to Washington today by Franklin MacVeagh, the secretary of the treasury, when the first annual convention of the American Federation of Artists opened for a three-day session. The organization has among its ninety chapters such organizations as the Museum of Fine Art and the Metropolitan Improvement League of Boston, the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Wasnington; the American Fine Arts society, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago, the University of Pennsylvania and many other great educational institutions.

HEIKE JURY COMPLETED

Sugar Scandal Trial Is Past First Stage in Federal Court.

Talesman Reports That He Has Been Approached By Outsider.

New York, May 17.—Completing the work of filling the jury box occupied only a short time when the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, was resumed today in the United States circuit court. Heike, with five others, is charged with conspiracy to cheat the government out of sugar duties, by underweighing cargoes. He is the highest officer of the so-called sugar trust to be prosecuted by the government in connection with the sugar underweighing scandals, and is specifically charged with indorsing checks drawn by the government for the refund thought to be due to the sugar company when the alleged false weights were turned in by the weighers.

Heike pleaded immunity, but his plea was disallowed by the United States supreme court.

One Man Approached.

The question asked each talesman today by Henry L. Stimson, the special government prosecutor in charge of the sugar cases, was, "Have you been approached by anyone since you were called as a talesman?"

It was learned that James Tole, president of a Typographical union, had reported yesterday that he had been approached as soon as was called as a talesman. Tole was excused from service in the Heike trial and instructed to return to court Monday next. Shortly before noon the jury was completed.

ART SCHOOL FOR PUBLIC

Instructors Secured for Exhibit at Court House Next Week.

School Children Will Write Essays on Pictures at Exhibit.

The people of Duluth will go to school next week—not to study the three "Rs," the languages, the classics or the sciences, but to learn the beauty of art and the interpretation of the product of the painter's skill and talent.

The exhibit to be conducted by the Duluth Art society at the court house, beginning next Monday, will be a school of art for the general public. The society has secured the services of Miss McCauley, a lecturer for the Chicago Art club, and Miss Monroe, art editor of the Chicago Tribune, and they will act as instructors. Other lecturers from outside of the city have been obtained and they will talk on art subjects with special reference to the pictures on exhibition.

The subect of the exhibit is educational. The Duluth Art society has for its object the promotion of a greater appreciation of art in Duluth, even among those who cannot hope to possess in their homes the original works of the great masters. Says Bishop McGolrick, president of the art society in his explanation of the purposes of the exhibit.

"What the very savages do, our very poorest people try to do better when they adorn their walls with highly colored daubs, cheap and nasty. No reason for that sort of thing in these days of almost perfect copies of the great masters, of oleographs which give in color exact presentations of the highest art."

The students in the seventh and eighth grades of the public schools will be permitted to attend the exhibit. They will be allowed one hour from their school time on various days in which to visit the exhibition. Similar arrangements will be made for the students in the Catholic schools.

School children will write essays on the subect, "The Picture I Like Best and Why." Students in the public, normal and Catholic schools will be eligible to compete. Students in the seventh and eighth grades will be permitted to use 100 words in expressing their idea. For thes grades one prize of $5, two of $2.50 and five of $1 will be offered. To the students in the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades the association will offer one $5 and ten $1 prizes for essays of not more than 150 words. The judges will be announced later. Essays will be given to the teachers of the respective grades who will forward them to Miss Carey of the Central High School.

J. W. Young of Chicago has offered a fine etching "A Summer Pastoral," as a prize to members of the art association for the best essay on one of two subects.

Duluth owned pictures will be hung in rooms on the top floor of the court house and outside exhibits will be displayed in the juvenile court room and the county commissioners' room. The bronzes will be displayed with the Duluth pictures.

Bishop's Statement.

Bishop McGolrick's statement of the object of the art exhibit and the results expected from it, follows in full:

"The great purpose of an art exhibition in this city, apart from its educational value, is to form an extended association which will, in time, found an art museum for the benefit of the citizens.

"The pictures collected from the generous residents of Duluth show that we have already many citizens who are real lovers of art and who adorn their walls with the best specimens of American artists.

"With the advance of prosperity, of photographic illustration, of admirable etching, of the comparatively recent success of the half-tone plate, as well as progress in free-hand drawing in our schools, we are favored by a people who know how to enjoy good pictures and are glad to encourage the rising American artist.

"As education spreads so grows the public taste for the beautiful in home, in surroundings, in city and country and thus, the lovers of art, almost without their knowing it, contribute to the general good. Those who learn to admire a beautiful wordless scene, or a piece of lake and sky are not the ones to allow their gardens and lots to grow into vulgar raggedness, to become an eyesore to the community. Every year the need for an outcry against unseemly front and back yards against the growth of noxious weeds instead of flowers, is becoming less and less, and this progress is due in part measure to the cultivated tastes of the large number of our people. The example and influence of one family, have frequently caused a decided change for the better in a whole locality, and this holds true as well in neat exterior appearances as in morality. Good is diffusive and properly expressed has more influence than evil.

"Who is there who has not noticed the artistic progress of our country within the last twenty years in the public buildings, the theaters, the churches and the schools?

"Who has not been gladdened by the beautiful, historic pictures placed in our capitols by the artistic illustration in many of our public libraries; by the munificent gifts of the wealthy to our art museums all over the country? Our country has won a brilliant record in the raising up of monuments to our military heroes, to our educators, to our artists and inventors, and to all who have eyes to see, this is an education in the right direction.

Appreciation of Art.

"To look upon a great work of art, and see in it what is best in beauty of form and truth to nature is an education in itself, and gives a new value to life To be able to appreciate tone and color and distance and harmony, lifts us from the lowliness of common life to a higher order, and all this our little efforts in the art exhibition will aid in bringing about. We need the good will and effective interest of every one in this community to make our city beautiful, to inspire our people, rich and poor, with an intelligent appreciation of the good and the true and the beautiful. Besides, our natural tendencies are toward the artistic, as it is said, 'the painter follows the plow,' so even the Indian or the Eskimo will look to the adornment of his pipe, or his fishing rod, when he has a little leisure.

"What the very savages do, our very poorest people try to do better when they adorn their walls with some highly colored daubs, cheap and nasty. No reason for that sort of thing in these days of almost perfect copies of the great masters, of oleographs which give in color exact presentations of the highest art.

"This again is the mission of our art association, to extend the knowledge of high-class pictures which can satisfy the artistic wants of the people and give them real pleasure.

"Art is always human, says Hamerton; it must yield to human prejudice and affection; what we really like in art is best for each of us, and the enjoyment of a good picture is both an entertainment and an education. What the artist has placed upon the canvass, if we learn to read it with the artist's conception, is valuable knowledge, but only attained by serious study.

Lectures of Value.

"Hence, the lectures on art that avoid technical terms and graciously yield to the limited acquirements of the young and the general public are of great value and ought to accompany every public art exhibition. Only the few have studied the mathematics of art, and there, when they look on a fine landscape painting, are silent about the mere drawing; the favorite landscape painter of France, Corot, could scarcely draw better than a schoolgirl, but he was true to nature in sky and water and tree and flower.

"Not one in a thousand ever studied a cloud with its varied form and mass, its ever changing beauty but see what charm an artist can express in his painting of it.

"Storm and calm and golden sunset—how lovely and entertaining all that is to the artist; part of that beauty we can make our own by a little study of the law of nature which is the law of God.

"Such is some of the work of the art association in Duluth—to foster art, to encourage the artist, to make everyday life happier and better; surely we ought to have a thousand members who would turn aside from the hard labor of mind and body and devote a few hours to the peaceful enjoyment of art.

"Within the last few years a large number of homes costly and artistic, as well as comfortable, have been built; they are an evidence of the good taste of the owners.

"They also serve to show that a large number of our wealthy citizens intend to make this city their abiding place and that we are destined to be what we ought to be, the first city of the state. Our enterprising business men, our millionaires and our highly educated college and university men and women give us reason to believe that together with the business growth of the city we shall have a corresponding growth in intellectual and artistic life.

"In a very few years we shall have 100,000 people in the city limits; the Duluth Art association will be no small factor in the artistic development of a place for which nature has done its very best."

MEETING OF CHARITY WORKERS

Rev. A. W. Ryan Tells of Work of the Humane Society.

At the meeting of the Associated Charities, which was held yesterday afternoon in Memorial hall in the courthouse, Rev. A. W. Ryan, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, told of the work of the Humane society.

Mr. Ryan said that it is the ambition of the society to look after the welfare of women, children and dumb animals. He said that the Humane society was not originally formed for a relief organization, but that of late years it was necessary that some relief work should be done.

The speaker told of the work of improving the moral life of some families; how deformed people had been sent away that they might be cured; and how food and other necessities of life had been from time to time furnished the unfortunate. He said that the Associated Charities is helping greatly in this work.

Dr. Ryan told how the humane agent visits every place in the city where animals are kept, investigating the conditions under which they live. He stated that it was very hard to get evidence against teamsters who are cruel to their horses, but that in the main the conditions in Duluth are far above the average.

Dr. Ryan's talk was very interesting and was given before a full attendance of the members of the Associated Charities. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. O. C. Hartman, who is president of the organization. Many of the members gave short informal talks and special cases were discussed.

The meeting held yesterday was a postponed meeting of the society. The meetings have hitherto been held in the morning, but as it seems to be more convenient, the meetings will hereafter be held in the afternoon.

EVERY GOOD CITIZEN WILL RAKE SUNDAY MORNING

Saturday Is the Official Cleaning Day Named By Mayor.

City Must Be "Immaculate" By Sunday, Says His Honor.

Men, women and children from Lakeside to Fond du Lac are expected to awake Sunday morning with tired muscles and aching backs.

Saturday, May 21, is cleaning day, the date having been decided upon by Mayor Cullum and Health Commissioner Webster last week, and if the administration has its way everybody will work so hard for the city beautiful that they will be sore all the next day.

That is said to be the reason Saturday was selected. With true forethought they agreed that Duluth would enjoy a day of rest after the strenuous cleaning day efforts. For they anticipate that before the sun goes down the last day of this week Duluth will be spick and span, spotlessly clad and with every eyesore obliterated.

"A word that will adequately describe the conditions here after cleaning day is rather difficult to hit upon," said the mayor this morning. 'Immaculate' is about the best one that I have heard. For unless I'm badly mistaken Duluth will show up like the floor of a ballroom."

The health commissioner is equally enthusiastic. He firmly believes that Duluth will resemble the original White City the coming Sabbath. He states that the sanitary inspectors have accomplished a great deal the last six or seven weeks, and that great quantities of tin cans, rubbish, dirt and unsightly matter have been hauled to the dumps.

The sanitary inspectors will be kept right on the job, however. The health commissioner declares that those who fail to clean their premises will not receive lenient treatment. He explains that the city is doing its share and is willing to go further than half way to get results. But if advice falls the tardy ones will be haled before the justice of the police court for punishment.

The postal cards distributed among the club women of the city are proving efficient aids. Many of them have been sent into the health department with notices of yards that ought to be cleaned. Several that might otherwise been overlooked in this manner, after which the inspector has been sent around to investigate.

The department also looks to the children for some good work in cleaning lines. They have heard much in the schools about sanitation and the authorities believe that they will be among the most willing helpers on Saturday. In the past they have turned to the task with all kinds of ambition, laboring from morning till night almost as though they were earning their first spending money.

AMUSEMENTS

Tomorrow night is going to be a great event in the lives of every Duluth newsboy who sells or delivers The Herald.

They are to be The Herald's guests at the Lyceum, where the Lyman H. Howe New York Hippodrome Travel Festival will entertain and they are going to experience the same thrills that the audiences at the big playhouse in New York have been having. There are twenty subjects with the ride on the runaway train through the Tyrolean Alps as the principal sensation. There are other remarkable features in the show, too.

A troop of cavalry is riding at breakneck speed across ground that appears impassable. At the brink of a dizzy precipice there is scarcely a pause. In single file the horsemen begin the almost vertical descent. Suddenly a horse slips and plunges forward, the rider goes over his head and man and animal roll over and over down the decline.

"Killed!" the spectators exclaim. Before the watchers can get their breath back an officer issues a sharp command and horse and rider emerge from a cloud of dust, the animal's sides wet with sweat and its nostrils quivering with excitement. With a bound the rider is again in the saddle and with one spring is out of the way of the horse and rider behind him.

Broken Arms and Heads.

On the squadron dashes, down steep embankments, across streams, through tangled underbrush and over walls and fences. It isn't a dress parade. The riders' coats are torn and wet. Their facts are scratched and bleeding. Some drop out with broken arms and heads.

Nothing is wanting to the realism of the scene. When the officer shouts his command the movement of his lips is seen, but his words are "lines" of an actor back of the curtain. When horses and riders plunge down the crumbling bank you hear the rattle of the stones and pebbles that are dislodged; you hear the breaking and snapping of twigs and branches; you hear the horses pant and the creaking and straining of the leather girths. And when the rider is flung headlong you hear the clang of his scabbard as he rolls over on the stony ground.

The Effect of Realism.

"The sounds? They are produced by mechanical devices," says D. J. Tasker, who produces the show. "And, of course, every member of the company has his lines to speak. They are the actors—heard, but not seen.

"Why do crowds come to see our moving picture show right through the summer when they won't go to a play? That's easy. The best play in the world is only simulation at best and cannot compare in realism with a picture—a motion picture—of something that really happened.

"Did you ever hear an audience exclaim 'O-h-h-h-h!' at a play? I never did. Well, that's the very mildest manifestation here when there's an exciting picture on the screen. Some persons scream and jump out of their seats. That's the effect of realism."

NEW VAUDEVILLE AT THE BIJOU

Clever Bill Pleases a Large Audience of First Nighters.

The bill at the Bijou this week is "all to the good."

Especially entertaining on a bill of more than ordinary merit, is the act of Miss Anita Diaz' troupe of trained monkeys. The first part of their act consists of gymnastic stunts. They walk on their hands, jump through boxes and do many other stunts. The big laughs come when one very large monkey acts as a dentist and with a pair of forceps draws a tooth for a diminutive companion who has been having the toothache. The small monkey makes almost as big a fuss over having the tooth pulled as a human.

The program this week opens with motion pictures which were meant to amuse. They do.

Harry and Katherine Mitchell claim to be "crazy for a minute." They have a clever line of talk, prove that they both can sing, and Harry plays the piano. Their parody on popular songs is a hit.

John Francis O'Reilly is styled "the missionary of mirth" on the program. He does say some funny things and he sings. O'Reilly's act is far different than the usual run of Irish comedian acts in that he does not burlesque the part. He appears on the stage in a twentieth century costume.

"The Moonlight, the Rose and You" is the title of the illustrated song. James B. Adams is the man who sings, and last night he was heartily received. So well did the audience like both him and the song that he was forced to respond to several encores. It was Adams' first appearance at the Bijou. He has a rich tenor voice and a winning smile.

Harry Tsuda, Japanese equilibrist, does some fancy tricks on a large ball. At one time during his act he balanced himself on three chairs, the first chair being balanced on the ball. The act is daring and sensational in the extreme.

William Zinell and Adelaide Boutelle present a musical comedy entitled "Two Hundred and Thirty-seven Miles From New York." Zinell is the possessor of a deep bass voice and he uses it well. Adelaide can also sing some. The only fault that last night's audience found with the act was that it was too short.

The most excellent entertainment is brought to a close with motion pictures which this week tell the story of a girl who would be down "directly." It was a long time, however, for the man who waited had grown a beard and his hair had turned white when finally she made her appearance.

The Bijou program this week appears with a new cover design. The drawing was made by Frank Hamm, and many were last night heard to comment on its excellence.

As a whole, the show this week is well worth while.

FIRES ARE QUENCHED

Soaking Rain Is Blessing to the Northern Part of Minnesota.

Smouldering Fires Cannot Make Progress Through Drenched Woods.

In the opinion of H. W. Richardson of the United States weather bureau, who says that the present rains were general all over the lake region, the forest fires that have been burning for more than a week past have been extinguished.

About a half inch of rain fell in and about Duluth. In some of the outlying districts nearly an inch has fallen. This is considered a good, soaking rain. The ground is well soaked and even though some of the fires are still smouldering, they cannot make much progress on the damp ground.

The rain which began last night included all the lake region, was central over Southwestern Wisconsin, the Mississippi, Missouri and Red river valleys. The downpour was widespread and was a blessing in a great number of places.

Mr. Richardson expected the rain to let up this afternoon. The wind will be strong from the northwest.

The weather man also announces that tomorrow night and the next night promise to be clear so that those who desire to see the comet will have a fine chance.

WARM PRAISE FOR DULUTH

No Territory More Fertile Than This, Says D. E. Willard.

"I wanted to see Duluth and the country around here when conditions were not adverse, so I came during the forest fire period," said D. E. Willard, development agent of the Northern Pacific railroad, who was in the city Sunday and yesterday.

"I wanted to get the most unfavorable outlook possible, and even after that I will say that there is no part of the country more fertile than right around Duluth. I don't say that just because I am here, and for the purpose of paying this part of the country a compliment, but I will say it elsewhere."

Mr Willard grew very enthusiastic regarding the prospect of market gardening around Duluth, stating that Duluth should be one of the greatest markets for garden truck, next to New York City, in the country.

CARUSO THREATENER IS SENT TO SING SING.

New York, May 17.—Antonio Misiani, convicted of an effort to extort $15,000 from Enrico Caruso by means of threatening letters, was sentenced to not less than three years and eight months or more than seven years and five months at hard labor in Sing Sing prison.

Antonio Cincotta, who was arrested with Misiani, has been released in $10,000 bail and will be tried next fall when Caruso returns from Europe.

TO GUARD HEALTH OF MILWAUKEE

Dr. Rucker of Federal Service Is Granted Furlough to Take Position.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 17.—Dr. William Colby Rucker of the United States public health hospital service has been granted a leave of absence for one year to accept the position of health commissioner of Milwaukee.

This information is contained in a special to the Milwaukee Journal, which states that Dr. Rucker's furlough was given by direction of President Taft, and that Surgeon General Wyman would so advise Mayor Emil Seidel of Milwaukee, who tendered the appointment to Mr. Rucker.

KNOX PLANS TO MAKE PEACE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Washington, May 17.—There is reason to believe that Secretary Knox contemplates taking some immediate action, having for its object the re-establishment of peaceful relations between Peru and Ecuador. The state department officials, however, decline to discuss the matter at tals time.

NIGHT SCHOOL PROSPERING

Class in English for Foreigners Now Numbers 135 Pupils.

Work May Be Taken Over By School Board Next Year.

The night school prospers.

At the last session of the night school which is being held at the Washington grade school building there were 135 enthusiastic students in attendance. Each time the school meets the attendance is increased until now those in charge do not know what to do with the pupils who wish to learn the ways, manners, customs and language of this country.

It is probable, so rapidly has the number of students increased, that no more will be taken in from this spring. The pupils range in age from the very young to students who have reached middle life. The older students are just as determined to master important subjects as are the younger ones.

Four instructors are kept busy and the progress being made is to say the least, surprising. Just at present there is a class of older men who are working to get their final papers and become citizens of this country. Nearly every nationality is represented. There is also a school for the more unfortunate youngsters who were forced to work that they may contribute to the support of the families, and they long for the knowledge that they would not otherwise be able to get.

The idea was introduced some months ago by a charity worker who discovered in several sections of the city little groups of foreigners both old and young gathered together in small rooms usually under the leadership of a very young child who was trying to teach them the lessons he or she had that day learned at school. So often did this worker find conditions of this kind and so anxious did they appear to learn, that she was struck with the idea of forming a night school where they could gather and learn.

The idea was acted upon. The first night there were about thirty in attendance. That was only a very short time ago. Now there are 135 and the applications are numerous.

Next year the school will be taken care of by the board of education as one of the regular schools of the city. It will be made broader. The classes will be divided more evenly and more individual attention will be given each student.

The ambition of a great many seems to be to read the daily papers. They continually ask the teachers how long they think it will be before they will be able to read the day's news.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result fom it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

BUY BEAUTY BY THE BOTTLE

Duluth Women Flock to the Lyceum to Learn Secret of Youth.

The Lyceum was filled yesterday afternoon with Duluth women from sixteen to an age when they should have known better, although Mme. Yale said that a woman was just beginning to realize her ripest charms when she was say seventy-five, but only, mind you, if she applied Mme. Yale's beauty cream and Mme. Yale's complexion soap and Mme. Yale's magical secret in just the right way. The attraction was Mme. Yale in a beauty talk. She told all about it and Duluth women blondes and others, drank in the directions as if they were gospel.

Madame flitted about the stage in the airiest possible manner. She showed how to walk and how not to walk and she did a spring song dance. She denied that she was her own daughter but far be it from her to deny that she looked like her own daughter might look when she was just passed sixteen.

The speaker dilated on woman and her beauty and how best to attain it and keep it, and when she had finihsed there was a straightaway free for all dash to the place where the magical lotions could be procured.

At so much a bottle, of course.

WEST END

COMPELLED TO CALL OFF PICNIC

Rain Puts Damper on "Sytende Mai" Celebration---Dance to Be Held.

Rainy weather today put a crimp in the plans of the Duluth Norwegians, who expected to celebrate the "Sytende Mai," the ninety-sixth anniversary of the Independence of Norway from Danish rule, with a program of picnic festivities at Lincoln Park this afternoon.

The picnic, with its program of music and sports has been called off. It had been planned to gather at the park this afternoon where after a few brief addresses by members of the different Norwegian orders, which arranged the celebration last Sunday, a program of races and tug of war contests would be indulged in.

A dance, however, has been arranged for the evening. It will be held at Lincoln park pavilion. Stel's orchestra will furnish the music. The dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

TEMPERANCE WILL BE THEME OF DAY

Scandinavian Churches of West End Will Hold Joint Service.

The Swedish churches of the West end will unite in a big "cold water" meeting next Sunday at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

The meeting has been scheduled for 3 o'clock in the afternoon Rev. Edward Erickson of the First Norwegian Danish M. E. church and Rev. Carl G. Olson pastor of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will be the speakers.

The choirs from the various Scandinavian churches will unite in a song service and special music has been arranged for the occasion.

WEST END UNDERTAKERS RETURN FROM FINLAYSON.

Joseph Olson and Oscar Lundquist of the firm of Olson & Crawford, West end undertakers returned this morning from Finlayson, where they took charge of the bodies of Frank St. Johns and W. E. Young, fireman and rear brakeman of the Northern Pacific train which was wrecked Sunday. The body of St. Johns has been sent to Huron, S. D., for burial while that of Young was sent to Gladstone, S D. St. Johns lived at the West end.

West End Shortrails.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Mission church will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the church parlors, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street. Mrs. Charles Erickson will be hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Lockhart of Twenty-four avenue west have as their guest Mrs. H. J. Goodrich of Fergus Falls, Minn.

Madame Hilda Hellstrom Gagnee of Stockholm and J. S. Osterberg of Providence, R. I., will appear in concert this evening at Columbia hall. The affair will be held under the auspices of the Swedish United Sons of America, Vasa order.

Miss Anna Nelson of West Third street left yesterday for a two weeks' visit with relatives at St. Paul.

The Epworth League of the First Swedish M. E. church will hold a social session tomorrow evening at the church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hedberg of 22 Exeter street will entertain the Young Ladies' Society of the First Swedish Baptist church Friday evening at their home.

Emil A. Olson of the United States block has gone to Montana to spend the summer. He will engage in railroad work.

The building committee of Grace M. E. church will meet this evening to make plans for starting work at once on the remodeling of the present edifice.

Dr. Arvid Gordh of Minneapolis will speak Thursday evening at the First Swedish Baptist church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

Commander Julius A. Pratt Post No. 143 Dept. Ill., G. A. R.

Mr. Isaac Cook, Commander of above Post, Kewanee, Ill., writes: "For a long time I was bothered with backache and pains acress my kidneys. About two months ago I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon saw they were doing just as claimed. I kept on taking them and now I am free from backache and the painful bladder misery is all gone. I like Foley Kidney Pills so well that I have told many of my friends and comrades about them and shall recommend them at every opportunity." Sold by all druggists.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

War Veterans Relieved of Burden of Preparation This Year.

Citizens' Staff Makes All Arrangements for Duluth's Observance.

The veterans of the Civil war, who are diminishing in numbers and failing in individual strength with the passage of the years, will be relieved of the entire burden of the preparations for the observance of Memorial Day in Duluth this year. The Citizens' staff has taken the preparations entirely into its own hands and the veterans of the war will be called upon to take part only in the exercises of the day.

The citizen's staff, which was organized three years ago, has heretofore acted in conjunction with the members of the G. A. R. in preparing for Duluth's observance of Memorial Day. The Grand Army men have been consulted this year, but the active work of preparing for the day has been done by the members of the citizens' staff. They will make all arrangements and bear all expense connected with the observance. A committee is now at work securing funds to defray the necessary expenses and considerable money must be raised during the next week.

The observance this year will follow the usual lines. On the Friday before Memorial Day, at least one member of the citizens' staff and one member of the G. A. R. will visit each of the schools in the city and address the children. The serious side of the war and the sacred character of Memorial Day will be touched upon and the old soldiers' will also relate some anecdotes and stories of heroic acts observed by them during the war.

Sunday, May 29, the members of Culver and Gorman posts, G. A. R., will attend services at the Endion M. E. church. Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the church, will preach an appropriate sermon.

On the afternoon of Memorial day, at 2:30 o'clock, the graves of soldiers of the Civil and Spanish-American wars buried in Duluth will be decorated with flowers.

The parade, which will be in charge of Col. F. E. Resche, will be one of the most pretentious ever held in Duluth on Memorial day. It will be headed by the Third regiment band and will have in line the members of the two posts of the G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans, Minnesota Naval Reserves, members of the citizens' staff and the school children of the city from the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades and the high schools.

Organization of Parade.

The organization of the parade follows:

FIRST DIVISION.
Police.
Chief Marshal, Lieut. Col. F. E. Resche.
Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Staff of Chief Marshall,
Third Regiment Band.
Maj. H. V. Eva, Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Staff.
Company A, Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Company C, Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Company E, Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Lieut. Com. S. S. Williamson, M. N. M.
Second Division, M. N. M.
First Division, M. N. M.

SECOND DIVISION.
Bentley P. Neff, in charge Citizens' Staff, Speakers in Carriages.

THIRD DIVISION.
Frank T. Phillips, in charge of boys from High, Washington, Jefferson, Endion, Lakeside, Washburn, and Lester Park schools.

FOURTH DIVISION.
F. N. Burrell, in charge of boys from Franklin, Jackson, Nettleton, Lowell, Emerson, Whittier and Webster schools.

FIFTH DIVISION.,
S. A. Foster and H. C. House, in charge of boys from the West Duluth Industrial high school, all West end and West Duluth schools.

SIXTH DIVISION.
Jacob Laux, in charge of boys from all the parochial schools.

SEVENTH DIVISION.
Gen.. M. W. Bates, in command. G. A. R. Drum Corps, Sons of Veterans, Spanish American War Veterans, Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, afoot and in carriages.

Carriages for Veterans.

Carriages will be provided for those members of the G. A. R., who, on account of age or infirmity, are unable to march in the ranks. There are many of them in Duluth and they do not want to miss the Memorial Day exercises, although they are not able to take such active part as they did a few years ago.

The exercises after the parade will be held at the First M. E. church and the Central high school. At the church, Rev. Alexander Milne, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, will deliver the principal address and Warren E. Greene will read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Horace W. Reyner will have charge of the musical program. At the Central high school, the meeting will be for the children who take part in the parade. Addresses, limited to five minutes each, will be given by members of the military organizations and the citizens' staff.

Following are the programs of the two meetings:

First M. E. Church.

Music ..... Horace M. Reyner.
Introduction of presiding officer, J. H. La Vaque ..... Hon. M. B. Cullum.

Address—"An Experience in the Spanish-American War" ..... J. E. MacGregor.
Musical selection ..... G. A. R. Drum Corps.
Address—"What We Owe the Old Soldiers" ..... Harvey S. Clapp.
Song—"Marching Through Georgia" Audience.
Address—"The Future Defenders of the Nation" ..... Frank Crassweller.
Address—"The Citizens' Staff"..... B. P. Neff.
Song—"Star Spangled Banner"..... Audience (standing).

PATTEN'S PARTNER IN TROUBLE OVER CENSUS.

Chicago, May 17.—William Hudson of James Patten's grain firm Bartlett, Patten & Co., has been held to the federal grand jury here for refusing to give information to a census enumerator.

Hudson's home in the suburb of Wilmette is owned by his wife and it was regarding this point that the grain man balked. He would not tell the enumerator whether he or his wife owned the place. His arrest followed. When arraigned before United States Commissioner Foote, Hudson was allowed to sign his own bond.

DATES SET FOR REGATTA

Duluth Crews Will Row at Kenora July 28 and 29.

Canadian Henley and National Regatta Will Follow Western Meet.

July 28 and 29 have been definitely decided upon as the dates for the holding of the Western regatta. The regatta will be held at Kenora and will be followed exactly one week later by the Canadian Henley at St. Catharines, Ont. Just one week following the events at St. Catharines will come the national regatta, which will be decided at Washington, D. C.

Officials of the Duluth Boat club today received word from the officials of the Kenora club, to the effect that the tentative dates submitted to the officials of the local club and to the officials of the Minnesota Boat club had been definitely decided upon by them.

Here it was hoped that the regatta would be held about the middle of July, as was the case last year. However, the holding over of the date will give Coach Peyton just so much more time to put the finishing touches upon his men.

The fixing of the date later in the summer will work more harm to St. Paul than it will to Duluth, as the weather at St. Paul is hotter and the men are much more apt to go stale under the hot weather rowing.

John Hector, who rowed at No. 7 last season and the season before that, has at last given his promise to come out and row. The announcement will be greeted with delight by well wishers of the crew, for the present season looks like Duluth, and the presence of Hector in the boat will add strength to the crew.

There is also a rumor that McDowell may come back. Just how well founded this rumor is, has not been learned as yet. If Crawford returns in June, Duluth will have a veteran boat to send into the junior race at Kenora.

While it is early as yet and the many discouraging events may happen before the season is much older, the prospects of the junior eight at the present time are much better than they were a month later than this time a year ago.

The boat is going better, the men are rowing better together and there is more rhythm to the stroke. The crew is in a crude state at the present time, to be sure, but the material seems to be there and Coach Peyton has every hope of turning out one of the fastest boats ever sent from the Head of the Lakes.

WILL MAKE HOME IN HOUGHTON

Chris. Person Has Decided to Make Copper Country His Home.

Chris Person, who has been making his home in Duluth the past winter, will leave tomorrow for Houghton, Mich., where he has decided to make his home in the future.

Chris has several matches in prospect in the Copper country. In addition to this he has received a good business offer to make his future home in the red metal district.

He has made a large number of friends in that part of the Northwest. As long as he is in the Copper country he will camp on the trail of Karl Lehto, in the hope of forcing the Finn into a match. There are a great many people in the Copper country who hold the opinion that Person can defeat the Finnish champion. These people have induced him to come to Houghton and make his home there.

If the prospects are good, Chris will open a physical culture school there. He has several business opportunities under consideration and at the present time is not decided which he will take up.

Person made a large number of friends in this city. Before leaving he stated that he was ready to meet Lehto under almost any considerations, even offering to throw the Finn three times in an hour. However, Person stated that he had little hope of ever getting the Lehto person upon the mat.

ENGINEER'S BODY SENT TO MINNEAPOLIS.

The body of Lee Douty, the engineer of the train who died Sunday after killing an unidentified man on the Fifth avenue crossing the day previous, was shipped to Minneapolis yesterday afternoon. The remains were in charge of his step daughter. Efforts to locate an other daughter have been unsuccessful. Douty died of heart disease, thought to have been aggravated by worry over the accident. The body of the man he killed will probably be buried at the expense of the county. No one has recognized him.

SQUARE DEAL FOR DRINKER'S HOME

An Honest Remedy for a Worthy Purpose.

Loved ones of those addicted to alcohol will be glad to know that they can get an honest remedy and an honest treatment.

White Ribbon Remedy is such a remedy put out by people who are sincere in their belief that their remedy will do untold good. They have been thanked time and time again for saving the drinker to a useful life. The remedy is odorless and tasteless, and may be given with or without the knowledge of the patient. Contains absolutely no habit-forming drugs. $1.00 per box, or $5.00 for six boxes. At the E. M. Tredway store, 108 West Superior street, or direct from the White Ribbon Remedy Co., Boston, Mass.

CLAIMS HE CAUGHT THREE TROUT AT ONCE.

George W. Perrigo, Chicago representative of the Urbana Wine company, was in the city yesterday on his way home from a fishing trip down the Alger-Smith road. He tried several streams with excellent results, he said. He claims to have made the most remarkable catch of his long experience with the fly rod at Sucker river, asserting that he got three strikes simultaneously on each of the three flies which were attached to a single leader. "You may not believe me, but I hooked and landed the three of them," he declared. "They were beauties, weighing about a pound apiece."

Raising the Gladiolus.

During recent years a great improvement has been made in the gladiolus, or lily or corn-flag. We now have gorgeous hybrids, very popular in many of our gardens. As a safeguard against indigestion use Golden Grain Belt beer. The daily use of this delicious beverage will nourish and strengthen your stomach nerves, enrich your blood and build you up physically. Order a case today for the home table. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

HAS GOOD WORD FOR JAQUES

Rev. Harry White, Now a Lawyer, Boosts Former Parishioner.

Harry White, formerly pastor of the First Unitarian church and now a lawyer practicing at Oklahoma City, Okla., has written to The Herald his views on the candidacy of Alfred Jaques for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Eighth district. Mr. White left the ministry some time ago, and is an active member of a law firm in the Southwestern city. His letter follows:

To the Editor of The Herald:

As a former resident of the city of Duluth and of the Eighth congressional district, I wish to congratulate the Democratic party of the Eighth district and of the state of Minnesota upon the prospective nomination and election of the Hon. Alfred Jaques to congress. It has been a matter of regret with me for a number of years that the Democrats of the Eighth district of Minnesota were so lacking in fighting qualities and in aggressiveness, so insensible of the great duty which they have to perform in the present history of the country and of the great message which democracy has to utter, that they have failed to put a man in nomination to represent them in congress. That the party has at last shown enough vigor or, at least, Judge Jaques has shown that he has enough vigor for the whole party, to nominate a man who so truly, so purely, so adequately and so strongly represents all that is best in democracy and all that is noblest in Americanism. As one who wishes the very best things politically for the Eighth district of Minnesota, I can not wish for anything better than the election to congress as a representative of the Eighth district of Alfred Jaques.

ENGINEMEN NOT FOND OF SPEED

Railroad Fireman Says Strain of Fast Train Work Is Killing.

Chicago, May 17.—The popular taste in favor of fast trains is not shared by enginemen, according to testimony adduced here today at the arbitration hearing of the demand of enginemen on forty-nine Western railroads for increased pay.

Gilbert H. Pierce, a fireman, said that his wages averaged $85 a month. "Yes, passenger firemen make more money—they get $115 to $120 a month—but not one man in a dozen can stand the strain. The local runs, full of stops and switching, which is easier, are best. They don't kill a man. A man has to be a human derrick to feed coal to the engine of a limited train."

BISHOPS DEFEND MISSION.

Methodists Issue a Statement on Roosevelt-Vatican Affair.

Philadelphia, May 17.—The board of bishops of the Methodist-Episcopal church, through its secretary, Bishop L. B. Wilson, has issued an official statement prepared by the board at its meeting in Chicago on May 9, relative to the Italian mission. The statement is the outcome of the recent controversy in Rome caused by the visit of Col. Roosevelt. The statement says in part: "Deploring and at all times seeking to void inter-denominational controversy, we are nevertheless compelled to recognize occasions when personal preference must yield to a proper sense of official duty.

"We cannot allow to pass unnoticed the recent un-provoked and unwarranted attempt to discredit one of our most useful missions by widely published accusations, which, if based on truth, would bring dishonor upon the church which supports that mission.

"We can only observe: That the mission in Italy, now for the first time thus publicly condemned, are the same that have been pursued from the beginning, almost forty years ago, and that the inference appears to be irresistible that other considerations than the methods of our mission in Rome must have been the real cause of this sudden outcry.

"We content ourselves with affirming our entire confidence in the moral integrity of our missionaries and their methods in Italy, and against the denunciations of their accusers we place the wide open record of the Methodist Episcopal church, both as to methods in America and throughout the world.

HARTLEY MINE SHIPPING.

Chisholm, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hartley mine began shipping for the season yesterday, the pit has been greatly enlarged by stripping, and it is estimated that 1,500,000 tons will be shipped from the mine this season.

—From the Atlanta Constitution.

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

By A. J. McGUIRE,
Superintendent of Northeast Experiment Farm at Grand Rapids, Minn.

Ten dairy cows may be made the means of a good, prosperous living for the average farmer of Northeastern Minnesota.

Ten dairy cows averaging 250 pounds of butter yearly would bring an income of $750 a year for butter alone. The skim milk fed to young stock, pigs and poultry would materially increase this amount.

For twenty years there has been no decline in the price of dairy products, but a constant good market and increase in prices. There is no other product produced on the farm that is assured of as constant a market and as compensating a price as butter. There is no product that the farmers of Northeastern Minnesota can produce to better advantage. In dairying there is an income every day in the year. The dairy farmer can pay cash.

On the experiment farm dairying has been the chief work. From a herd of six cows and a few head of young stock in 1904 the herd has increased to seventy-five head, of which thirty are cows, twenty are heifers that will come in milk within the next year, and twenty are heifers under one year.

The sales from the herd last year, 1909, amounted to $2,376.97. The sales were as follows: Butter, $637.88; cream, $1,152.52; milk, $67.89; buttermilk, $13.91; surplus stock, $501.06. There were actual sales, the herd not credited with the butter and cream used on the farm. No fancy or special prices were received, everything being sold at prices received by farmers on the same market.

Of the thirty cows milked six were heifers with their first calves and did not begin their milking period until the middle of the year. With the exception of six cows (pure bred), the cows are representative of the common cows of Northeastern Minnesota (the aim being to show what can be done with common cows).

Every farmer in Northeastern Minnesota can, in a few years, build up a herd of ten cows that will average as productive and profitable as the experiment farm herd.

The production of the experiment farm dairy herd will be taken up more in detail in a later bulletin, individual records, kinds of feed, care, feeding, etc.

The aim of this bulletin would be to encourage a greater effort toward the development of the dairy industry, where it is not receiving attention, and to point out a few things upon which the success of dairying in Northeastern Minnesota must depend.

First—The production of more feed, fodder corn, roots and clover hay. The buying of feed at prevailing prices very quickly reduces the profits in dairying.

Second—Stop selling the heifers for beef in the fall. Nearly every day I receive letters from farmers asking where they can buy cows this time of year. I don't know. Good dairy cows are not for sale at a price the pioneer farmer can afford to pay. The only practical way to get a herd of profitable dairy cows is to raise them. Club together and buy a pure bred dairy sire in every community and raise the future dairy stock.

Frequently the question of a creamery comes up in different sections and the objection is soon raised that there are not enough cows. There never will be while the heifers are sold for beef (and at 5 and 6 cents a pound). Butter sold from the experiment farm at the grocery store averaged 31 cents per pound during 1909.

Third—The foundation of the dairy industry is the farmers' co-operative creamery. The local market can buy products of a few herds but when every farmer in the community is dairying the jar and print butter becomes a drug on the market. With the creamery, the butter of 200 herds can be packed in tubs, put on board the car and sold in New York with less trouble to the farmer that selling a five-pound jar at the grocery store.

Creameries are being built in Northeastern Minnesota, though not as many as there should be. Some of the creameries in Northeastern Minnesota are forging ahead to be among the first in the state. Others are struggling hard to exist, due to a lack of patronage, and not infrequently a lack of appreciation and support.

If I could I would place the following lines where every farmer in Northeastern Minnesota might read them every day for a year: The dairy industry is the most profitable branch of all agriculture, and it may be made as profitable in Northeastern Minnesota as anywhere on earth.

The high price of butter enjoyed by every farmer who sells it is largely due to the farmers' co-operative creameries in other sections of the state and country.

The success of the dairy industry in Minnesota—the industry that has given Minnesota more distinction and success than any other industry in the state—has been wholly due to the farmers' co-operative creameries.

A co-operative creamery that brings the farmers the highest price for butter removes from the burden of tired farm women the work of butter making and gives to a community a higher comercial standing in the business world, is worth striving for, worth appreciating, worth supporting, even at the expense of a few dollars on the start.

When a creamery is to be started in your community, help to start it; stand by it; fight for it, if necessary, after it is started.

MAY SEND HYDE TO STATE'S PRISON

Judge Latshaw Talks of Possible Action in Murder Case.

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—If Judge Ralph S. Latshaw overrules Dr. B. C. Hyde's motion for a new trial when it comes up some time this week, the physician will be sent to the state's prison immediately. The court made this announcement today.

"The law provides," said Judge Latshaw, "that a convicted man shall begin serving his sentence as soon as his motion for a new trial is denied. Whether or not he appeals makes no difference. There are several men now serving in the state penitentiary whose cases are being considered by the supreme court. Therefore, if I see fit to deny Dr. Hyde a new hearing, he will be sentenced next Saturday and started to prison as soon thereafter as suits the convenience of the marshal's office.

"Of course, this does not mean that I shall not grant the physician a new trial. If his attorneys show what I deem good cause for another hearing, they shall have it."

DEMOCRATS FAVOR LOCAL OPTION

State Convention in Alabama Declares for Repeal of Prohibition.

Montgomery, Ala., May 17.—The state Democratic convention which was called to order today at noon by Chairman W. D. Nesbitt of the state committee, declared for local option, a liberal attitude toward capital, the repeal of any of the drastic prohibition laws of the present legislature that invaded the rights of trial by jury, and more effective and protective mining laws.

START CHISHOLM DEPOT.

Missabe Road Has Started Actual Work Upon Building.

Chisholm, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The construction of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern depot for this city began yesterday. W. H. Hoyt, assistant chief engineer, and E. J. Sponkeg, roadmaster were here and inspected the fill at the Pearce mine close to where the road approaches the depot. The depot will be completed within a month and train service will begin immediately. So far as can be learned a stub train will be run from Chisholm to Wilpen Junction, a distance of five miles, to connect with the main lines.

IS CONSIDERING CASS LAKE CASES

Land Office Is Expected to Rule Soon on Rights of Settlers.

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald)—Senator Clapp said this afternoon that the land office had taken up the protest of settlers on the cutover timber lands within the boundaries of the former forest reservation near Cass Lake.

These settlers, it is claimed, acted in god faith in going on the lands when the first order was issued declaring the lands opened, but the department now holds that they have no rights prior to May 10, the date of the last order.

Senator Clapp will have a decision in a day or two.

RAILROADS

NORTHERN PACIFIC WILL EXTEND LINE

Across Missouri River From Ryder, N. D., to McKenzie County.

Ryder, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the Northern Pacific railroad intends to extend its Turtle Lake line to a point south of Ryder, across the Missouri and into McKenzie county, seems to be settled judging from the work of right-of-way men in the last few days.

They have already secured a right-of way over the T. J. Gilbertson's, John Brasfield's and Miss Shea's farms, while a townsite will be located on the James Durning farm, fifteen miles from here. Four years ago the Northern Pacific put three surveys through that section and it is probable that one of those will now be utilized.

De Voy Heads Railway Club.

Chicago, May 17.—J. F. De Voy of Milwaukee was elected president of the Western Railway club at its annual meeting here yesterday.

DESTROYS SEEDLINGS.

Worst Result of Recent Fires in Northern Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The greatest damage done by the forest fires which have gone over parts of Northern Minnesota the past week is to the little seedlings which are just getting a start in the cut-over lands or other unimproved tracts," said S. B. Green, head of the state forestry school.

"It is seldom that any great damage is done to mature pine unless the underbrush is very dense, so that it gets a start. But a number of the fires where little apparent damage is done do untold damage, because they destroy the young seedlings that will make good timber if left alone.

"If there were less talk and effort toward replanting and more effort at forest preservation by keeping out the fires, a better timber supply would be assured for the future."

TWO NEW METHODIST BISHOPS ARE NAMED.

Asheville, N. C., May 17.—Revs. W. R. Lambuth of Tennessee and E. D. Mouzo and R. G. Waterhouse of Virginia were elected bishops on the fourth ballot at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church south according to the announcement made shortly after the opening of the conference today.

CREDIT MEN GATHER AT NEW ORLEANS MEETING.

New Orleans, La., May 17.—More than 1,000 delegates from all sections of the country are in attendance upon the annual convention of the National Credit Men's association, beginning its sessions here today. Recommendations that a fund of $1,000,000 be raised by the association for the suppression of fraud will be one of the most important matters under consideration.

SOUTH DAKOTA MAYOR FATALLY SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Madison, S. D., May17.—Mayor E. A. Rippe of this city committed suicide Sunday evening by shooting. His body was discovered Monday in his office. He owned the Madison elevator here and had been in the grain business nearly all his life. He came sixteen years ago from Minnesota. No cause is known for his deed.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN FIRES EXTINGUISHED.

Ashland, Wis., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A heavy soaking rain today is extinguishing the forest fires which have been burning here for weeks. They were the most destructive fires that ever occurred in this section.

South Bend, Ind., May 17.—A Lake Shore switch engine backed into a wagon of a circus early this morning and as a result three of the circus employes are in the Epworth hospital suffering from serious injuries.

Grand Jury Adjourns Again.

Chicago, May 17.—The special grand jury which returned three indictments in conection with legislative bribery, reconvened today only to take further recess until next Tuesday. On this date the trial of Lee O'Neill Browne is expected to begin before Judge McSurely. Browne is charged with bribing Democratic representatives to vote for William Lorimer for senator.

WOULD ARBITRATE WITH MEXICO

Washington Suggests Action Relative to Boundary Question.

Washington, May 17.—The United States has suggested to Mexico that the boundary question involved in the celebrated Chamizal zone case be submitted to some well-known jurist of a mutually friendly power for arbitration. The question involved is whether the southern section of the city of El Paso, Tex., valued at several millions of dollars, belongs by right under the boundary treaty to Mexico or to the state of Texas.

MINNESOTA WOMAN TALKS IN ST. LOUIS

Mrs. Morse Addresses Conference on Education of Abnormal Children.

St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—The aid New York gives to dependent children was discussed at today's session of the seventh national conference on the education of backward, truant, delinquent and dependent children by Mrs. Anna S. Covill, agent of the New York Children's Aid society.

Two other women, Mrs. Fannie French Morse, superintendent of the State Home for Girls of Minnesota, and Miss Beulah Kennard, president of the Pittsburg Playgrounds association, were on the program.

FOR SHOOTING AT DEER.

Polk County Man Pays Fine of $50 for His Action.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Johnson, a prominent farmer of Woodside township, thirty miles from Crookston, was arrested by Deputy Game Warden William Munch yesterday and taken before Judge Nels Paulsberg of Mentor, where he pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to shoot a deer out of season and was fined $50 and costs, which he paid.

The offense was committed last Tuesday, May 10, and it was but a few hours before one of Warden Munch's scouts reported the rumor and Warden Munch convinced Johnson that he might as well plead guilty. Johnson shot three times at the deer, and admitted it, and the fact that he did not kill the animal was due to its distance from him and his aim.

Three New Towns Started.

Tewner, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three new towns will be platted in the southern part of McHenry county as a result of the running of the new Ayr to Surrey cut-off line of the Great Northern through that section. The new towns will be known as Gutherie, Karlsruhue and Sincoe. Gutherie will be located seven miles south of Granville; Karlsruhue will be located ten miles north of Balfour while Sincoe will be just five miles from Drake. New banks will be established in each one of these towns by the Tallman Investment company, headed by A. Tallman of Wilmar, Minn.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The department of foreign literature at the library is being gradually increased. With many wants in the various departments of English literature, the board does not feel justified in spending large sums for the foreign literature, but timely gifts and a few purchases are keeping that section of the library well in proportion to the library's growth. A few months ago Col Graves of this city sent a gift to the Swedish people of the city. The gift was particularly apropos, as Col. Graves, an early citizen of Duluth is now representative of the United States at the court of Sweden.

A few weeks ago one of the Japanese students in the city—Dan Shibuya—who was called away and was unable to take his books with him, presented them to the library. They are books on economics, sociology and ethics, by native writers and in the Japanese language. H. M. Saito, another Japanese youth, also presented his books to the local library, which included translations into Japanese of Jules Vernes' "From the Earth to the Moon," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," Jack London's "Sea Wolf," Stockton's "Rudder Grange," a book of songs, "Cottage Physician" and a little art book and others.

Recently a collection of native papers from Calcutta, Honolulu, Manila, Penang, Hongkong, several South African papers, a copy of the Bethichem Express, others from Bombay, Burma, Ceylon, Java and the Transvaal have been presented the library, and are an interesting collection to be seen there.

There are besides about 100 French books, in the original, at the library, and about the same number of German books There are dictionaries in most of the modern languages.

An order of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish books is being arranged at the present time, and a large number of volumes will be added to the library soon for the benefit of the large part of the population whose mother tongue these languages are.

JUNE CONCERT.

Rena Vivienne to Be Heard June 8.

The date for the local concert by Rena Vivienne has been set for Friday, June 8, and at that time she will be heard in the only formal concert in which she will appear during her visit in Duluth. Since her return in March from Berlin, where she studied during the winter, Miss Vivienne has sung a series of engagements in New York and is now in Boston, singing in opera for a few weeks. She will come directly to Duluth after the Boston engagement and will sing here soon after her arrival.

Duluth people have not heard Miss Vivienne for two years and there is great interest in her local concert. Her plans for next year have not been announced but it is probable that she will head one of the Savage companies.

Reducing the Hips.

Sometime a young woman complains about the size of her hips and would like to know how to reduce them. The best way to reduce the hips is to take the rolling exercise. Lie flat on the floor and roll over and over for ten minutes three times a day.

Other exercises that might be found useful are the following:

(1) bring the knees up to the chest, remaining perfectly erect. Practice in alternate movements.

(2) Place the hand on hips, shoulders well back. Raise the leg, with knee flexed and give a high, quick side kick, bring the foot back again on the floor. Repeat ten times, first with the right foot, then with the left.

(3) Take standing position, hands on hips, and rotate the hips, bending the knees and keeping the chest and shoulders immovable. Contract all the muscles used in this exercise and resist. Bending exercises are also good.

Hair Tonic for Hot Weather.

Frequent brushing and washing are necessary to keep the scalp clean and prevent the hair coming out in hot weather. A usful tonic for use at the seaside is the following: Soft soap, sixty grains; spirit of rosemary, one ounce; solution of amonia, one ounce; water to eight ounces.

Washing a Sunburnt face.

If necessary to wash the face while it is smarting with sunburn do not use cold water, but water as hot as can easily be borne. Better even than hot water is an application of cold cream, which should be left on about ten minutes and then wiped off.

THE EVENING STORY

THE SILVER MUG

By C. Kennett Burrow.

It was an awfully hot day, so hot that even laughter had an air of languid imbecility rather than of active merriment. It was a day such as one seldom finds, and everyone seemed to have the tired feeling.

I had been lying in a hammock talking nonsense to Chips, who from an adjoining hammock had entertained me with the original opinions incident with the age of 12.

She had an immense number of ideas on a great variety of subjects, but sometimes she got them hopelessly mixed up.

"Chips," I said, "you-re an anarchist, and a conservative, and an anti-suffragette, and your general moral standpoint is quite hopeless."

She waved a black-stockinged leg in the air and tapped the dry ground with a tennis racquet.

"I can't help it," she said; "it's not my fault. People must think about things."

"Of course," I assented. "Just go on thinking, Chips, and some day you'll make a great discovery."

"What discovery?"

How do I know? Everybody makes one great discovery at least. Dr. Cook and Commander Peary say they discovered the North Pole. Perhaps you made one when you said a moment ago that you didn't see why ghosts should be expected to talk grammar."

"Don't be absurd," said Chips.

"Then there's always the possibility of discovering the Fairy Prince."

"That," said Chips, decidedly, "is all nonsense."

"Youth nowadays," I said mournfully, "doesn't even believe in romance, Heaven knows what things are coming to! I can see nothing for it but to live the rest of my life amongst very old people."

"Romance is all right," said Chips, condescendingly, "but it needn't be silly."

"It so often is, though. Anyway, it's too hot to discuss these lofty themes. Didn't I hear something said about lemonade this morning, Chips? Of course, as your guest, I shouldn't speak of it, but really when one's life depends—"

Chips was out of her hammock in a moment. "What an idiot I am!" she said, and sped across the lawn to the house.

I waited, in a summer dream, for Chip's return. It seemed to me extraordinary that a man could be so happy. There was work to be done, but no impulse to do it stirred my conscience. I regarded it as something entirely remote, not in any way connected with me.

What I particularly desired at the moment was the lemonade; also I wished that Chip's sister Teddy—she had been ridiculously christened Edina—would come and talk with me. She was, however, still practicing, for the notes of her violin reached me in a sunny melody that fitted the day.

Presently I saw Chips twinkling across the lawn at a dangerous speed, carrying a tray before her. As she approached she cried: "Here it is; haven't I been quick?"

"Hold on, Chips!" I said. Chips, however, could not hold on. The inevitable happened. She tripped, she and the tray went together, and thirsty grass took the lemonade that was intended for me.

"Well done!" I said. Chips picked herself up ruefully, regarded the ruin she had wrought, and then said that I was horrid.

I did not argue the point with her, because I was looking at the silver mug that had fallen alongside my hammock.

"Chips," I began, "I believe you've made your great—"

Then I saw Teddy approaching, and stopped short. She positively took my breath away, she seemed so much a part of summer, so balanced, so exquisitely fresh and fragrant.

"I knew you'd do it, Chips," she said. "Never mind, get some more, but don't run this time."

Chips picked up the tray with a vicious jerk and departed, holding her head very high. Teddy sat sideways on the other hammock and looked at me pitingly.

"Poor man!" she said.

"The cup of joy dashed from my lips, as it were," I murmured.

"I sympathize, though I can hardly understand."

"It's well for you that you can't," I said.

"I love that mug," seh said. "It suggests all kinds of strange and lovely things to me. • • • The worst of it is, it isn't ours!"

"Not yours?"

"There's a mystery about it," she said. "All at once it appeared amongst our silver, and nobody knows how it got there."

I reflected. Still holding the mug in my hands. When Chips returned with more cider cups she filled it, in a penitential way, and I drained the delicious coolness.

"Ah!" I said, "inspiration begins to work. By the way, do you remember that picnic we had last year?"

"Of course, I remember it," said Teddy, dreamily.

"You were wearing, I think, a sort of pink rose-colored gown."

"Yes," said Chips, "she was."

"I shall have to wear it again this year," said Teddy.

"Excellent; nothing could be better. • • • Teddy, I'll give you this mug."

"Well, of all the—" began Chips. Teddy was looking a little troubled. She interrupted with:

"But how can you give me what doesn't belong to you?"

"It's all pure enchantment," I said. "It was pure enchantment that made some blissful servant pack the mug into your basket instead of mine. It was a joint picnic, you remember, your good fathers and mine."

"Then why didn't you ask for it when you missed it?"

"Because—well, perhaps I thought you might drink out of it. And now I learn that you really have."

"Well, it's yours now anyway. • • • Will you drink out of it now, Teddy?"

And she did in the sweetest confusion, and I almost choked as I watched her.

"Teddy," broke in Chips, "when you're quite done with my hammock you won't know yourself."

But she did know something else.

TRY THIS DINNER

Codfish Soup.

Boil a pound of fresh cod free from skin and bones, and chop it fine. Return to the water in which it was boiled. Blend one tablespoon of butter and one flour and add a cup of cold milk. Mix with the fish and stock. Just before serving add two hard boiled eggs, finely chopped.

Vegetables—Macaroni au Gratin.

Cook half a pound of macaroni broken pieces, in boiling salted water till tender, adding one teaspoonful of butter. When done drain and let cool. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, put in the cooked macaroni, add salt, pepper, a good dash of paprika, grate of nutmeg and moisten with one gill of good white sauce.

Mix carefully so as not to break the macaroni, and add one heaping tablespoonful of grated cheese.

Pile this neatly in a buttered gratin dish, pour over a little more white sauce, then sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese and fine bread crumbs. Pour over two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes. Serve hot.

Meat—Roast Lamb a la Bretagne.

Remove the bone from the leg of lamb and stuff the cavity with bread crumbs, seasoning with minced parsley, marjoram, chopped onion and the beaten yolk of an egg. Cook it for an hour and a half, having first pricked the skin and rubbed it with garlic. Baste with the drippings, adding a little stock, if necessary. Serve with lima beans, seasoned and mashed.

Dessert—Apple Custard.

Steam two large tart apples that have been peeled and cored. Rub them through a sieve and add one cupful of milk, two teaspoonfuls of butter, fourth of cupful of sugar and the yolks of four eggs. Turn the mixture into baking cups, stand them in hot water and bake about 20 minutes. When they come from the oven pile the beaten white of egg on top of each cup, sprinkle with powdered sugar and place in the oven to brown slightly. Serve cold.

THE BOY WHO COULD SEE NOTHING BUT FLOWERS

By FERDINAND C. IGLEHART.

A poor clergyman at Rashhalt, Sweden, found himself possessed of a son who was the cause of much grief and great mortification to the worthy man, from his inability and unwillingness to pursue the learned studies then in vogue. Of musty books he would have none; nature was the only book he would attend to, and botany alone received his earliest attention.

Finding all his efforts useless, the pastor sent his son away to school, but he found, to his sorrow, that matters had mended so little that the teachers advised him to apprentice the youth to a shoemaker or tailor, as he would never be fit for anything better.

The discouraged father tried other institutions, but it was the same story everywhere; nothing could be said of the moral character of his son, but he could not acquire any knowledge, except such useless information as related to plants and flowers and the like, or in poring over such books as touched upon those subjects.

Finally, the father gave up the attempt to educate his son, and we find the latter taking matters thereafter in his own hands and turning up, eventually, at the University of Upsalo, where he devoted himself almost exclusively to his favorite study.

At that period botany was about the most unpromising pursuit that one could select; indeed, the science was almost entirely neglected, so that during the entire stay of the young man at college he never heard a public lecture on the subject.

Arriving at the university, the young man studied ardently at botany; all such works as were obtainable he devoured, and then there was the great book of nature, everywhere waiting for him. They were very trying times, those, to the youth; he was extremely poor and suffered from every privation.

The pangs of hunger were frequent visitors indeed; for much of this period he was indebted to generosity for food. His clothes were in the most dilapidated condition, and so full of holes were his shoes that he stuffed paper in the openings to protect his feet. Yet none of these things deterred the student, nor for one moment did he think of giving up his loved pursuit, but, in spite of all, the days and, indeed, most of the nights, were given up to study, so that each day he was accumulating an enormous store of botanical knowledge.

One day Celsius, the professor of divinity, who was himself somewhat inclined to botany, while walking in the academical garden, found the ragged student entirely engrossed in examing some plant.

Impelled by curiosity, he entered into conversation with him, when he was so amazed at the learning displayed that he at once took an active interest in the young man, made him an inmate of his home, saw that he was properly fed and clad and obtained for him employment in teaching some children, whereby his lot was made one of comparative comfort.

Nor did the good professor's kindness stop here. He brought the youth to the attention of Rudbeck, the professor of botany, who soon discovered such excellence in him that he had him appointed his adjunctus, and he henceforth delivered lectures in the college.

From this point life changed for the poor student; the way, indeed, was yet far from easy, many difficulties and trials lay in wait, but the struggling pedant surmounted them all, and lived to see his name—Linnaeus—known all over the world as its greatest naturalist. Honors from every nation poured in upon him, wealth flowed generously to him and every day his reputation so grew that when his end came, at a ripe old age, as one old chronicler expressed, "he died in a blaze of glory."

There has been this persistency of purpose which made Linnaeus so successful in all those who have rendered signal service or achieved distinction in the various departments of science. Difficulties that seemed insurmountable have been overcome; repeated discouragements have not disheartened them, but only tended to increase their courage. The difficulties that would have defeated men of weaker wills were thansmuted by their deep determination, into the instruments of their victory.

It is a lovely thing to see Linnaeus lost in the contemplation of God's realm and determined to learn the secrets God had ready to reveal to those who should persistently seek them.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Keep Pictures Straight.

A housemaid with a duster is everlastingly setting askew small pictures, and the average small room after dusting looks sadly awry. All sorts of picture hooks have been invented which are supposed to grip the picture, the clamps being driven into the wall, but everything of that sort has some objection.

The simplest and best way of keeping a picture immovable is by making a small gimlet hole in the extreme lower point of the frame where it touches the wall, and at this point drive a small brad into the wall, leaving about half an inch protuding. The hole in the frame caps this brad like a socket and the ordinary dusting of the picture does not move it the least.

Cleaning Colored Embroideries.

Colored embroideries should be washed in bran water, as this is most cleansing and keeps the colors clear. Put a pint of bran in a muslin bag and pour over it two quarts of boiling water. Let it cool and then remove the bran, squeeze the article to be washed in it until all the dirt is removed. Pour a second lot of water over the bran and use this for rinsing. Roll the articles in a clean cloth and iron shortly after.

Three Good Hints.

Lavender-scented sheets are said to induce slumber. Five cents' worth of dried lavender blossoms will scent the whole closet where they are kept.

When you have occasion to use plaster-of-Paris mix it with vinegar instead of water.

Do not put away a glove that is still damp from the warmth of the hand.

Decoration of Towels.

A simple decoration for hand towels is to embroider each end with joined links. Make the links as large as a dollar, interlacing them the same as in a chain. Work the outline with white floss in the briarstitch. Make one initial at the center and pad it with chain-stitch, then overcast with plain floss.

Removing Rust From Flatirons.

Flatirons which have become rusty should be washed in soda water and then rubbed well on a board sprinkled with polishing sand.

Coroner's Jury Blames Unknown Man for Northern Pacific Freight Wreck.

Bodies of Two Victims Badly Burned Before Being Recovered.

The coroner's jury which investigated the wreck of the Northern Pacific train near Finlayson early Sunday morning, when two men were killed, brought in a verdict yesterday declaring that the freight was derailed intentionally by unknown parties in possession of a switch key.

Special officers of the railroad are making a thorough search for the guilty party, but they state that they suspect no one. Two trains passed the scene of the wreck earlier the same night.

The verdict of the jury, which was sworn in by Dr. W. A. McEachern of Pine county, is as follows:

"We, the coroner's jury, find that Frank St. Johns and W. E. Young came to their death by being crushed and burned in a railroad wreck at Finlayson, Minn., on the Northern Pacific railway, about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, May 15, 1910. Said wreck was caused by a switch being opened by some unknown parties in possession of a switch key."

Engineer Mike Lynch, who miraculously escaped with his life, says that he didn't have time to jump. He states that when the engine hit the open switch he was shot through the window of the cab, landing in a heap about 100 feet away. He was bruised externally, and was slightly injured by escaping steam.

The remains of the two victims will be brought to this city to be prepared for burial. The body of Frank St. Johns, the fireman, will be sent to Huron, S. D., for interment, and that of W. E. Young, head brakeman, will be sent to Gadstone, Minn. Nine box cars telescoped on the engine and took fire, which practically cremated the bodies of the fireman and brakeman.

his own testimony on the witness stand, according to W. C. Crone, a juror. Crone is in reality the man who decided the physician's fate. Until Saturday night Crone and S. R. Johnson, a farmer from Sibley, Mo., held out for acquittal against the rest of the jury. Remembering Dr. Hyde's demeanor on the stand, Mr. Crone finally decided the accused man was guilty and voted for conviction. He then convinced Mr. Johnson, making the verdict unanimous:

"Dr. Hyde was his own worst enemy in the trial," said Mr. Crone. "His own testimony convicted him. When Dr. Hyde said he had bought cyanide for ten years and yet could not remember where he bought it, he damned himself as a witness. If he had not testified as he did, I think he would not be in the position he is.

His Son in Prison.

"At first I believed Hyde innocent and until Sunday night I voted to acquit him. Then I recalled his testimony about his cyanide purchases and I decided he was guilty. I told Mr. Johnson I had changed my vote and I talked about my decision. I think my conclusion had an effect on him."

A strange feature of Juror Crone's action is that his son, Albert, was recently sentenced to eighteen years in the state penitentiary for murdering Bertha Bowler, his sweetheart.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope said last night: "My home is still open to my daughter. I feel sorry for her."

But Mrs. Hyde is not going back to her mother. She is still loyal to her husband and confidently believes the supreme court will free him. She is going to take up his fight immediately and battle on until he is freed, or her funds are exhausted, she says.

"Clark is innocent, and he shall be freed," she said.

Not Admissible to Bail.

Hyde takes his imprisonment calmly. By law he is not admissible to bail. It is discretionary with Judge Latshaw whether Dr. Hyde be sent to states prison or held at the county jail pending the consideration of his case by the supreme court.

CLEARING

Well, the rain came at last—not a sprinkle, but a real soaking rain that will check the forest fire fiend, clear the atmosphere, assist vegetation and make everybody happy. The weather man is patting himself on the back, and the public is giving him a few pats too for good luck. He was slow in coming to the front, but he was right in the spot light when he landed. Clearing and cooler weather is promised for tonight, and tomorrow will be fair, according to the predictions.

A year ago today was a beautiful spring day.

The sun rose this morning at 4:27 and it will set at 7:39, giving fifteen hours and ten minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Southwestern storm has moved its center to Wisconsin. During the last twenty-four hours this disturbance caused copious rains in the western lake region, the Mississippi, lower Missouri and the Red river valleys and Southwestern states. Those portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northwestern Michigan affected by forest fires received quenching rains last night. The Rocky mountain high pressure has advanced its center to Wyoming, and has resulted in freezing weather over that state, Colorado, Southern Utah, North Dakota and Manitoba."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes:

Lake Superior—Brisk to moderately high shifting winds becoming northwest

Lakes Michigan and Huron—Brisk south to southwest winds, shifting to northwest on Michigan and becoming high

Rain tonight; Wednesday fair, except rain on Northern Huron and Eastern Superior.

Chicago, May 17.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Upper Michigan—Rain and cooler tonight; Wednesday fair, except rain and cooler in extreme east portion.

Wisconsin—Threatening and colder tonight, with rain in east and frost in west and central portions; Wednesday rain.

Minnesota and Iowa—Fair tonight with frost; cooler in east portion; Wednesday fair with rising temperature.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer Wednesday and in northwest portion tonight; frost in east portion tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight with frost in east and warmer in west portion; Wednesday fair and warmer.

Montana—Fair and warmer tonight; Wednesday fair.

WILL PASS THROUGH COMET'S TAIL EARLY WEDNESDAY EVENING

comets have passed between the earth and the sun, astronomers were unable to see anything, for the light of the sun obscured the comet, the rays of the sun passing through the comet's head, the fact being evidence of the loose formation of the nucleus of the celestial visitor.

May See Comet's Tail.

Early tomorrow evening, if the sky is clear, and the weather man says it will be, a portion of the comet's tail, extending up above the horizon at the southwest, may be visible and may slightly illuminate the sky at that point, near the bright star Antares. The probabilities, however, are that the moon will be bright, thus obscuring or discounting the illumination of the comet's tail. It is not likely that anything will be seen here at the time the comet is directly between the earth and the sun, although local astronomers will watch closely for any phenomena that may occur.

Tomorrow morning, if the sky is clear, a portion of the comet's tail should be visible in the south some time before sunrise, although the comet will be so near to the sun that there is some doubt of any part of the tail being visible.

After the passage of the comet between the earth and the sun tomorrow night, the comet will appear in the East. Thursday and Friday, it is doubtful if there will be much of a display visible from Duluth, although a portion of the tail may be visible above the horizon in the evening. The comet will still be so near the sun, however, that it will be rendered almost invisible by the sun's light.

At Its Best Soon.

If Halley's comet is to be at any time the brilliant spectacle that astronomers have promised, it should be between May 20 and 25. Then the celestial visitor should be at its best, visible in the west in the evening with a bright head and a long tail stretching away from it. Some astronomers have said that, from their observations, they have calculated that the tail of the comet it 45 deg. long, while others have made more conservative estimates of from 5 to 20 deg. Thus far, Halley's comet on this appearance has been a distinct disappointment. Morning observations have been disappointing to astronomers and the general public. To the naked eye, it was visible as a dim object to those who knew just where to look at it. To many, the tail was so indistinct as to be almost invisible.

It is possible that the comet will "make good" on its evening appearances the latter part of the month. It will be moving away from the sun and will grow less distinct as it moves away, but during the latter part of the month, if the sky is clear, it should be a brilliant object, unless it has lost much of its brilliance since its last appearance.

Observations of the comet have been impossible in Duluth for over a week on account of the haze of smoke caused by the forest fires. At his last observation over a week ago J. H. Darling of the United States engineers' office was unable to see the tail of the comet. The rain today will clear the atmosphere of smoke and the sky should become clear tomorrow or the next day, so it is probable that conditions will be suitable for observing the comet immediately after its passage between the earth and the sun.

Will Affect Telegraphy.

Although astronomers assure the public that there will be no serious effects from the visit of the comet, there will very likely be some effect in the way of interruptions of telegraphic communication, especially wireless communication. The United States hydrographic office has warned wireless telegraph officers and vessel masters on the lakes that wireless instruments and compasses may be affected by atmospheric conditions caused by the comet. It is possible that meteorites will be plentiful while the earth is passing through the comet's tail.

An Associated Press dispatch to The Herald from San Jose, Cal., today says:

Director Campbell of the Lick observatory yesterday gave out a statement concerning Halley's comet, in part as follows:

"Halley's comet was 90 deg. long at daybreak this morning, both as photographed and as observed by the naked eye. This corresponds to a length of 24,000,000 miles. The nearest point of the comet was 11,000,000 from the earth. Tuesday morning it will be nearly 7,000,000 miles away; Wednesday morning, a little over 2,000,000 miles, and Wednesday evening the earth will be passing through its tail. The present diameter of the tail at the point through which the earth will pass is a little over 1,000,000 miles. The two bodies will have a relative velocity of about 43,000 miles per second, and the time required for the passage, if the present dimensions remain unchanged, will be six or seven hours.

"It is true, comets are the most mysterious bodies in the sky, and many important questions concerning their origin and constitution remain unanswered. We do know, however, the tails are so attenuated that the most perfect laboratory vacuum is extremely dense in comparison. It is probable that both minute solid particles and isolated gas molecules are present in the tails, the proportion of solid particles to gas molecules varying in different comets.

Atmosphere As Blanket.

"It seems to be a conservative estimate that there is not more than one particle or molecule, microscopic in size, on the average per cubic yard. The earth's atmosphere will form a perfect protecting blanket against all possible constituents of the tail. There is absolutely no cause or excuse for anxiety as to injurious effects upon terrestrial life, animal or vegetable.

"It is very unfortunate that the moon, nearly full, will interfere with optical observations of the phenomena attending our passing through the tail. If the moon were absent, there is little doubt we should be able to see the night sky faintly illuminated by that part of the tail which projects beyond the earth. Because of the possible and probable lagging of the tail, there is a chance we may still be in the tail the latter part of Wednesday night and some evidence of its presence may be seen in the short interval between moonset and dawn.

"Astronomers of the Lick observatory have been credited in newspapers with the opinion that telegraphic service will not be affected. We have never expressed such an opinion. It would not be surprising if telegraph transmission were interfered with as is the case when strong aurorae are present in the sky. There might even be other electrical influences manifested."

COTTON NOT TO GO DOWN

a higher level of price than it has been in times past, and even the relatively high price prevailing during the last fall and winter, and now prevailing, is not out of proportion to other agricultural products and to the great mass of manufactured articles, many of these having risen in value as compared with conditions of thirty years ago 100 per cent; whereas cotton today is not above 50 per cent higher than what may be termed its normal price in times past.

"There must be a readjustment on our part that a new price level in cotton is both proper and necessary, and that we must bind our energies, not in the effort to reduce this price level, but in the effort to convince buyers of its necessity and propriety, and of the necessity therefore of a consequent rise in the price of manufactured products."

and enters the earth's backyard every seventy-five years for a visit, depends entirely on the length of the wanderer's tail. And this astral visitor has a happy and elusive faculty of putting on and dropping off a 25,000,000-mile appendage all within a day or two.

Whether this Halley's visitor will be accoutred with all his legginthy trappings tomorrow night is just what millions of people will sit up to see, since the learned astronomers don't seem to agree.

It Is Going Some.

Prof. S. A. Mitchell of the astronomical department of Columbia college gives the cheering news that the earth will pass through the comet's tail 14,000,000 miles from the head. The comet has a boasted speed record of over a hundred thousand feet per second, and it is figured that the transit through the tail will be of short duration. Friday evening the comet will be far away in the western skies.

Says We Can't Miss It.

Taunton, Mass., May 17.—The tail of Halley's comet now extends considerably beyond the earth's orbit, and the earth will certainly pass through the luminous train of the sky wanderer tomorrow night.

This is the conclusion of Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, a well known astronomer of this city, whose observations have been accepted by the officials of the Harvard observatory.

Educated Chimpanzee Dead.

Portland, Or., May 17.—Charles I, the famous educated chimpanzee, valued at $75,000, which has been exhibited all over the world, was suffocated in a car while en route from Seattle in this city. Charles I smoked cigarettes and could sign his own name.

GAINED FIFTEEN POUNDS

MR. WILLIAM A. BURGESS.

"Am in better condition physically than I have been for years. My stomach, kidneys and liver are in fine shape," says Mr. William A. Burgess.

"While serving in the U. S. Army, 1898 to 1901, I contracted stomach and kidney trouble, from which I have suffered ever since, and for which I receive a pension. I tried many remedies, but none gave any noteworthy effect. About three months ago I began using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a medicine. I have used three bottles and have gained fifteen pounds since I began using it. I am still using it, and I do not think there is any medicine made that is equal to it. My stomach, liver and kidneys are in better order than they have been for years, and if these three organs of the body are kept in order one will have few doctor bills. I cheerfully recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a tonic, a stimulant and renovator of the whole system."—WILLIAM A. BURGESS, P. O. box 575, Danville, Ill.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

KING EDWARD'S BODY IS LYING IN STATE IN WESTMINSTER HALL

eral palls of black and purple, relieved occasionally by green wreaths and bouquets of white lilies.

The first intimation that the crowd, which had been waiting for hours, had of the approach of the funeral cortege was the booming of the first of sixty-eight minute guns which were fired at St. James palace park, followed by the striking of "Big Ben," the great clock in the tower of the house of commons, which heretofore has been heard only as it struck the hours, and the roll of muffled drums.

With Sword Reversed.

Then a guardsman, with sword reversed, came down the Mall at measured tread, two other guardsmen following close behind. Then came the officers of the headquarters staff, the army council and the board of admiralty. As these appeared the troops came to a half-salute with reversed guns, and remained thus until Field Marshals Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener of Khartum, the admirals of the fleet, the Indian orderly officers in black uniforms and the aides-de-camp of the late king passed.

As the gun carriage on which the casket was borne approached, the order "Rest on your arms" was given sharply. With heads bowed the soldiers kept their eyes on the ground while the body of their late king passed by, coming to attention again for the royal standard, which was carried immediately behind the casket and in front of King George, who, like the officers and other members of royalty, was afoot.

Kings in the Procession.

The duke of Cornwall and Prince Albert, two little figures in the natty uniforms of naval cadets, followed their father. King Frederick of Denmark and King Haakon, with the Duke of Connaught between them, came next, and then followed the other members of the British and foreign royal families, in gorgeous uniforms, the only touch of mourning being the black bands on the sleeves of their coats. An array of officers of the late king's household, nearly all of them in bright uniforms, but a few of them in mourning dress, followed.

The greatest interest of the crowd was aroused at the approach of the first carriage, for in this rode Queen Mother Alexandra, to whom the hearts of all Britishers have gone out during the last week. Her majesty, wearing the deepest mourning, had lifted her veil, and the people reverently raised their hats to the pathetic figure who, even in the hour of her great grief, acknowledged the silent testimony of sympathy by bowing repeatedly.

Russian Dowager Present.

The queen mother was accompanied by her sister, the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, and by her daughters, the Princess Royal and Princess Victoria.

Queen Mary occupied the second state carriage, having for the occasion surrendered the first place to which as queen she was entitled. Her majesty was preceded by the sovereign's escort, the only mounted troops participating, with the exception of a few stationed along the route. Queen Mary was accompanied by her daughter, Princess Mary, and Prince Henry.

Seven other state carriages, goldbedecked and drawn by heavily caparisoned horses, carried the ladies of the royal families and the suites of the queen mother and the queen.

Life Guards the Bearers.

Arrived at the palace yard of Westminster, where a dense throng had gathered, the gun carriage stopped, the palls were removed and the bearer company, composed of Life Guards, lifted the casket and carried it into the hall.

The dominating characteristic of the procession was the impressive simplicity. There were 12,000 troops, afoot and mounted, and 1,000 sailors along the route, but in the procession itself the largest body of uniformed men was the massed bands of the Guards regiments, numbering 250 under Lieut. Morgan, the senior bandmaster of the British army, which played funeral marches. Upon leaving Buckingham Palace a corps of sixty drums played a special introduction at the conclusion of which the massed bands took up Beethoven's "Funeral March."

The most striking feature of the music was provided by a body of forty pipers, who struck up "Flowers of the Forest" as the procession passed Marlborough house, the music bringing tears to the eyes of many in the crowd. During the horse guards' parade the bands played Chopin's "Marche Funebre," and as the procession approached Westminster hall the strains of Handel's "Dead March From Saul" were heard.

SHIPPERS TO FIGHT RAISE

vances in rates to which I have referred.

"It is largely due to the railroads that this agitation about high living has taken place. They have got the public worked up to a point where it believes that the railroads are getting the worst of it; that they're not making any money.

Wants Shippers to Unite.

"We are here today to secure united action on the part of the shippers to prevent the proposed rates going into effect. As to what legal remedy we have, the lawyers will have to guide us, but I want to assure you, gentlemen, that there is no result-getter like public opinion. If the people of this country rise up and show their determination to stop the railroads from adding any more tax to their food, from adding any more tax to their clothing, from adding any more tax to the things they use, from adding any more tax to the argicultural implements they buy, the automobiles, the machinery, and the other things that are used in ordinary life and in conducting business, you will not have to appeal to the courts, or to the interstate commerce commission, or congress, or any state legislature."

DEMONSTRATION BEING PLANNED

Delegates to Finnish Temperance Convention Will Be Welcomed to Duluth.

It is now expected that at the national convention of the Finnish Temperance society, to be held at Duluth, the latter part of June, there will be 1,000 delegates from all parts of the country present.

All the temperance people of the city will welcome the delegates to this city. A monster demonstration is being planned in their honor. It will include a parade, in which all the societies will be represented. Plans for the demonstration are now being made by all the temperance societies.

The delegates who will visit the city will represent over 400 Finnish societies. These societies have a total membership of over 10,000.

There are in Duluth two Finnish temperance organiations. One is located in the center of the city and the other at West Duluth.

The Sixth and Seventh ward prohibition clubs will meet next week and the plans for entertaining the delegates will be taken up.

ECZEMA VICTIM GAVE UP HOPE

After Suffering a Year with Raw, Watery Humor on Hands and Face —Prescriptions Did Not Do a Bit of Good—Scratched Till Blood Came and Had to Quit Work.

COMPLETELY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I suffered with eczema for one year and had two of the best doctors in town, but their medicine did not help me. First of all there were small white pimples on my left hand and I had to scratch until the blood came. Then they would puff up and water would run out. Wherever this water would run there would be more pimples until my whole left hand was a mass of sores. Then my other hand became affected and they were like a piece of raw meat. Then it came on my face, neck and under my right arm so that I was unable to raise my arm for two weeks. It became so bad that I was obliged to give up work.

"About four months ago I started to doctor and the doctor told me it was eczema. So he told me to get —— ointment and soap. I used them for a month and they didn't do me one bit of good so I tried another doctor. He gave me three different kinds of medicines, but I was very much put out when these remedies did not help me. I was unable to sleep at night and I gave up all hope until I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and I am glad to say I am cured. Miss Nora Shultz, 243 North Third St., Reading, Pa., Jan. 4 and 7, 1909."

Hair Growth Promoted by shampoos with Cuticura Soap and light dressings of Cuticura. This treatment always itching and irritation, destroys hair parasites, cleanses, purifies and beautifies and tends to make the hair grow upon a clean, healthy scalp.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed free, 32-page Cuticura Book, giving description and cure of diseases of the skin.

PRAYERS FOR RAIN HAVE BEEN HEEDED

Upper Michigan Receives Good Soaking and Fires Are Extinguished.

Marquette, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A soaking rain during the night has checked the forest fires in this portion of Upper Michigan and no further devastation is likely.

The precipitation continues today. The woods have been parched a month and the flames had swept an extensive area.

Prayers for rain were offered in churches Sunday.

One of the biggest losers from fires is the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company. Twenty thousand cords of hardwood stored near McMillan were destroyed, causing a loss of $50,000. Twice that amount was saved only after a desperate fight.

WANT CANAL TO CROSS DOMINION

Manufacturers Put Forward Scheme for Federal Government.

New York, May 17.—Three important subjects for the consideration of the federal government were put forward in the opening session of the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers. One urges the participation in the building of a deep water canal through Canada as a means of aiding the transportation of ores and grains from the lake regions. Amendment of the immigration laws to provide more liberal terms for the admission of skilled labor, and steps to see that aliens are distributed in the farming sections where they are needed, instead of being allowed to congregate in large cities, also were advocated.

TO PREVENT DANDRUFF

This Home Remedy Keeps Scalp Clean and Hair Healthy.

Dandruff is not always a forerunner of baldness, but if dandruff is permitted to remain on the scalp it affects the roots of the hair, making the hair dull in color, dry and likely to come out when combed or brushed.

Any good shampoo removes dandruff, but it will form again in a day or two if the scalp is not in healthy condition. To give the scalp and hair health and vitality it is necessary to use a good hair tonic once or twice a week.

To make an excellent hair tonic at home, get from your druggist one ounce of beta quinol and one-half pint warm water. If preferred, the ounce of beta quinol can be mixed with a pint of bay rum. It is the beta quinol that nourishes the hair follicles, and makes the hair long, abundant and glossy.

LAND LINE IS GROWING

Twenty-Four Would-Be Settlers Waiting at Land Office.

The "land line" in the corridor of the federal building awaiting the opening of Fond du Lac reservation lands June 20 had grown to twenty-four this afternoon, a number of additions being made today. The men are whiling away the time as best they can, walking up and down the corridor, gather in groups and conversing, reading and sleeping. The men remain in the corridors most of the time, spending the night on camp stools or hard, stiff chairs. The discomforts are many, but they are all showing patience.

OBITUARY

Rear Admiral Bowman H. McCalla, "the man, who in command of a little gunboat, out of nothing carved a career second to no man engaged in the Spanish-American war," according to the testimony paid to him by some of his brother admirals, is dead at Washington, D. C. The funeral will be held from the residence of Rear Admiral Brownson.

Col. C. H. Brush, who was stricken with apoplexy a few days ago, died at Fergus Falls, Minn. He was born in Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 17, 1838. When the Civil war broke out before he had completed his law course, he enlisted as a private in the Fifty-third Illinois infantry. He rose rapidly in the service to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Col. Brush was admitted to the bar in 1865. He practiced law in Ottawa, Ill., until 1870, when he came to Minnesota and settled on a large farm in the vicinity of Campbell, Wilkin county. He became interested in the raising of blooded stock.

In 1888, he was elected to the legislature as the representative from Wilkin, Clay and Becker counties. He took an active part in framing the legislation of the 1889 session, and at its close was appointed national bank examiner for Minnesota, a position which he held until a few months ago, when he resigned on account of failing health. He has made Fergus Falls his headquarters for the last eighteen years, but still owned his fine dairy farm near Campbell, as well as other lands there.

Rev. G. W. Albrecht, pastor of the East Farmington, Wis., Lutheran church, is dead of a stroke of paralysis. He was 58 years old and had been pastor there three years.

RAIN AND SOLDIERS KEEP STRIKERS QUIET.

Hannibal, Mo., May 17.—The arrival early today of four companies of state militia and a heavy rainfall quieted the striking workmen at the plant of the Atlas-Portland Cement company at Ilasco, four miles south of here, where a riot was threatened yesterday. The 1,500 foreigners who threatened trouble retired before the state troops arrived. A guard has been placed around the buildings, which contain four cars of dynamite.

BRIEF RITES FOR THE KING

Services at Westminster Hall Occupy Only Half an Hour.

Lord's Prayer, Twenty-Third Psalm and Scripture Lesson Part of Ceremony.

London, May 17.—At Westminster Hall the service on the arrival today of the body of the late King Edward was brief. The casket rested high on the purple catafalque in the center of the hall, covered with a white and gold embroidered pall and draped with the royal design. Upon the ensign at the head were placed the jeweled crown, the orb and sceptre.

King George stood at the foot of the casket with the queen mother, Queen Mary and the young princes. Behind them were the members of royalty who had followed the body and a group of twenty roya lladies in deepest black, with long veils, no touch of color relieving their garb. Around this body were stationed the officers of the court of the royal household, the earl marshal, black rod, silver stick and others in their brilliant uniforms.

Peers and Commons Present.

In long rows on either side and extending nearly the length of the hall were massed the peers and the members of the house of commons, more than 400 from each chamber, the clergy surpliced in white and crimson, occupied an elevation at the south end of the hall under the vast stained windows. A step lower were stationed the red coated handsmen. The heralds and their pursuivants occupied a still lower position, but well above the floor, and the entire group suggested a chorus on the stage.

Grouped at the foot of the elevation were a hundred of the greatest generals and admirals of the empire.

The service occupied only a half hour. The archbishop of Canterbury, standing at the head of the casket, recited the Lord's prayer, which was repeated by the whole congregation. The archbishop then read the Twenty-third Psalm, and the dean of Westminster read the scriptural lesson from St. John, 5, 24-25. At the conclusion of the reading, the choir chanted a brief anthem, and the archbishop offered prayer, speaking of the deceased as the world's peacemaker.

Knelt by the Casket.

After the benediction, the queen mother, Alexandra, who had been seated in a purple covered chair while the others stood, rose, taking a step forward, knelt beside the casket, and, with hands clasped, remained a moment in silent prayer. Rising, she beckoned to her son to escort her, and moved slowly down the aisle, bowing slightly as she passed the guards of honor, who stood statue-like on either side. Queen Mary followed, als obowing, and the two preceded the others of the group of royalty from the hall.

From the foot of the steps at the south end of the hall to the northern doorway, a broad aisle was kept open, and through this clergy, with the cross borne before, advanced and met the funeral cortege upon its arrival from Buckingham palace. The heralds and gentlemen of arms preceded the casket, which was carried on the shoulders of non-commissioned officers to its resting place on the catafalque. King George followed, with his mother on the right and the Dowager Empress Marie, his aunt, on his left.

The entrance was made amid a profound hush, broken only by the rolling of the drums outside and the tolling of the bell in the tower above.

CITY LOSES IN COAL TAX CASE

Judge Smith Decides in Favor of the Hanna Coal Company.

The city lost out in the first round of the fight to compel the M. A. Hanna Coal company to pay the 1908 taxes on railroad coal stored at its docks and valued at $96,000, when Judge Charles Smith of the Superior court this morning handed down the decision that the assessments were illegal at that time and could not be collected now. The case will be appealed.

The fight has been a long one and has hung fire in the courts for the past three years. A decision was handed down in the circuit court in 1908 to the effect that the coal, being railroad property, could not be taxed except by the state. The city left the assessment off its 1908 rolls. Recently the supreme court of Wisconsin reversed the decision.

Since that time, an effort has been made to collect the taxes for 1908. When the Hanna Coal company protested, the matter was taken to the courts.

NO BURDEN ON CITY.

Municipality Relieved From Expense of Building Belknap Viaduct.

That the city will not be obliged to build the approach to the Belknap street viaduct and maintain the structure, was brought out yesterday at a hearing on the matter held before Chairman Meyer of the state railroad commission.

Through the efforts of City Attorney Tipton and his assistant T. L. McIntosh, records were uncovered establishing the fact that there was a highway there before the railroads. Under these conditions court decisions establish that railroads must not only build the viaducts and approaches, but also maintain them.

McKENZIE MAY DEMAND EXTRADITION PAPERS.

W. J. McKenzie, who a week ago assaulted Patrolman John Dindino, has been arrested at the Soo, where he is being held for Sheriff Gust Carlson, who left last evening for the Michigan town.

McKenzie clubbed the officer to insensibility a few days ago and escaped from the city. His description was telegraphed to nearby cities by the Superior police.

McKenzie was arrested as soon as he reached the Soo. It is possible that he may refuse to come back until the sheriff secures extradition papers from the governor of Michigan.

Transfer of Deputy.

Deputy United States Marshal William Pugh of Eau Claire will be transferred to Superior to act as a resident marshal. The law requires that the position shall be filled by some one living in Superior but the department of justice at Washington has decided that the expense of another deputy is not justified and accordingly the deputy at Eau Claire will be transferred to Superior.

Health Officer Returns.

Dr. P. G. McGill, health commissioner of Superior, who for the past two weeks has been at West Baden, Ind., returned yesterday to his home. Dr. McGill accompanied R. J. Agen to the springs. Mr. Agen will remain a few days longer and then will leave for his future home in Houston, Tex.

INDIAN GIRL GETS LAND

Mary Beargrease Wins Contest After Three Years' Litigation.

After three years of litigation, Mary Beargrease, a prepossessing Indian girl, has been awarded the homestead in 57-9, in which she filed at the opening of the town in November, 1906. Miss Beargrease secured her patent at the local land office today and went away happy.

The girl was put up against a stubborn contest soon after she filed on the land. Martin Steinmen of Minneapolis brought the contest, alleging among other things that the girl was a ward of the government and did not have necessary qualifications to file on the land, but lived with her father at Beaver Bay.

The local officials of the land office decided that the girl was never a ward of the government having never lived on a reservation and that she had shown sufficient claims to the land. The local officials were sustained by the commissioner and the case was carried to the secretary of the interior, who also sustained the decision.

Mary Beargrease is a daughter of John Beargrease of Beaver Bay, one of the best known Indians in this section of the country. She is well educated, energetic and progressive and she believes she can make a success in the unfeminine and un-Indian role of a farmer.

COPPERS SAG IN QUIET MARKET

After Firm Opening, Market Becomes Lifeless and Closes Weak.

In a light trading market without feature, coppers sagged from the slight bulge after the opening today, and the list closed weak at low levels. The market was bare of confidence, although there was not much pressure. Neither was there any support except shortly after the opening, when scattering buying and accumulation in a few specialties caused values to become firmer. Toward noon the market became lifeless and values drooped, the market slowly sagging to the low levels at the close.

It is reported that the steels may be listed on the Paris bourse. The bulls regard this as favorable. The effort to list the steels in Paris may be regarded as one of the measures which some interests are taking to bolster up the market. The delay in official confirmation of the reported sale of American bonds and notes abroad is causing an uneasy feeling among traders. The bulls think, however, that the big interests must sustain the market in order to acomplish their financing.

The foreign visible supply of copper decreased 1,587 tons in the last two weeks. Copper is steady with values of electrolytic at 12⅞@13c. The comestic demand is quiet and the export business is increasing.

Trading here today was moderate. Announcement was officially made of the assessment of $1 on the part paid Butte-Alex Scott, which was declared several days ago, but which was kept under cover. There are 50,000 shares out, which means that on July 1, when the assessment is payable, the company should have an additional $50,000 in its treasury. An assessment of $1 was paid about four months ago. The new assessment, it is said, is made to provide funds for finishing the development on the 1,600-foot and other low levels. The shaft, it is expected, will reach the 1,600-foot level about June 1. The management considers it of more importance to put the shaft to the 1,600-foot level before proceeding further on the developments on the 1,400-foot and other levels.

Butte-Alex Scott, part paid, sold at $3.12½ to $2.87½; Copper Queen at $30.62½ to $28.75; Red Warrior at $1.93¾; Shattuck at $31.50, $30.50 and $30.62½; Butte & Superior at $1.75 and $1.81¼; Calumet & Sonora at $18; National at 33c and 34c; Calumet & Montana at $1.12½; Calumet & Corbin at 65c.

Amalgamated sold at $71 to $71.25 to $70.37½; Steel common at $83 to $83.12½ to $82.50 to $82.75; Butte Coalition at $20.87½ to $28.75; Calumet & Arizona at $63, $63.12½ to $62.75 to $63; Ojibway to $7.75; Giroux at $8 to $7.62½ to $7.75; Greene at $8.75 to $8.50 to $8.62½; North Butte at $33.37½ to $34 to $3.753; Superior & Pittsburg at $12.37½ to $12.25.

C. J. DARDIS WILL SUCCEED RUNYON.

C. J. Dardis, formerly with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company, has entered the employ of the Northern Pacific and will occupy the position of soliciting freight agent, succeeding John H. Runyon.

For seven years before entering the employ of the Chicago Great Western and the Milwauke, Mr. Dardis was employed in the local freight house of the Northern Pacific, so that he is really returning to his early love.

Mr. Dardis is well known among local railroad men and also among the shippers of Duluth.

NORTH DAKOTA HAPPY.

Liberal Rains Have Given Soil of State Good Soaking.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farmers all over the northern part of the state and especially those in the Red river valley are jubilant over the splendid rain that has fallen since Saturday evening. In points west of here the rain fall has been considerably heavier than in the Red river valley. The rain comes just at the right time to help the grain which has all been sown.

Snow in Black Hills.
Deadwood, S. D., May 17.—A heavy snow fell in the Black Hills yesterday. The storm was followed by a below freezing temperature that killed much vegation and small fruits.

For Impaired Nerve Force
Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.
It quiets and strengthens the nerves, relieves exhaustion, headache and impaired digestion.

RED LAKE AND MARSHALL COUNTY CROPS PROMISING.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crops all through Red Lake and Marshall counties are promising to equal or even eclipse the best of former years, and this despite the exceedingly cool weather which was experienced during the early part of this month. The coolness is favorable for this stooling of the wheat and oat roots and for the production of feeders for the stalk. The farmers are increasing their acreage this season and a great deal of new land is being put under cultivation.

SOCIALISTS DEBATE ABOUT IMMIGRATION.

Chicago, May 17.—Emphatic expression of opposing views on the immigration question again occupied the attention today of delegates to the Socialist congress in session here.

John Spargo of New York renewed his argument in behalf of the minority report, which holds that Asiatics should be admitted.

"There's worse comes from some parts of Europe," he declared. "As for the Japanese, we ought to let them in and let them vote, too."

Ernest Untermeyer of California upheld the majority report favoring exclusion on economic grounds.

The liquor question, brought up by Delegate Work of Iowa yesterday, was referred to a committee.

Senator Stout Better.

Menomonie, Wis., May 17.—Senator Stout, though still seriously ill from ptomaine poisoning, passed a fairly comfortable night, Sunday. His improvement is apparent and he was able to converse a few minutes with his secretary this morning.

Cashier Gets Six Years.

Portland, Or., May 17.—W. Cooper Morris, former cashier of the defunct Oregon Trust & Savings bank of this city, convicted last week of the embezzlement of $75,000 from the bank, has been sentenced to six years in the penitentiary.

A CHANCE FOR PUBLIC SPIRIT.

While the effort to induce the owners of the Brooks-Scanlon logging road to operate it as a means of bringing farm products to Duluth from the rich territory it taps seems to have fallen through, owing to the fact that the owners have interests elsewhere which demand their attention, it is to be hoped that a way will be found to keep this road in operation.

It may not prove largely profitable at once, but nobody with faith in Duluth and in the soil near Duluth can fail to believe that the very fact that the road is to become permanent, and is to provide a means of getting farm products to the rich market of Duluth, will stimulate farming in that territory to such an extent as to guarantee a profitable business very shortly.

Surely here is a chance for men of money and public spirit, who are willing to assume a slight risk for the good of the community, to find an admirable outlet for their will to be of service. Such service, too, would do so much concrete good to the community, and would accomplish so much in its upbuilding, that no man of means could ask for a finer monument to his qualities as a citizen than it would provide.

Many will be surprised, as the investigators were, at the amount of development already done in the territory reached by this logging railroad, which is about to be abandoned unless somebody can be induced to keep it going. It parallels the lake shore back of Duluth for about twenty-five miles, running through some of the richest farming land in this state, and tapping the oldest farming communities in St. Louis county—communities settled many years ago and fairly prosperous even now in spite of the lack of transportation facilities to hitch up their gardens with the Duluth market.

The census recently made and reported to the Commercial club covers the townships of Herman, Canosia, Rice Lake, Normanna and Gnesen. Along the line of the railroad the investigators found 319 families with 1,451 members, owning 17,262 acres of which 6,163 acres are cleared. These families own 425 horses, 1,101 head of cattle and 12,384 chickens, and their buildings are valued at $313,300.

If a showing so good can be made without easy communication with the markets, it is clear that the opening up of such communication, followed as it would be by a prompt settlement of the thousands of acres now idle, would spread along the right of way of the Brooks-Scanlon road two broad bands of cultivated land, populated by a busy, comfortable, independent and prosperous people. At the same time, Duluth would be enormously benefited; not only because the new population would help support Duluth business industries, but because the cheaper living provided by this impetus to agriculture would make it easier to attract many new industries here.

Improving access to the market would stimulate agriculture; the growth of agriculture would make living cheaper in Duluth and attract more people here; the increase in wealth and population would improve this market for the farmer; improvement of the market would encourage additional settlement and cultivation of near-by soil: in short, a happy circle of consequences would be set going that would work with great and rapidly increasing effect toward the development of Northeastern Minnesota and the upbuilding of Duluth.

THE PARTY WHIP.

Do you hear a faint, broken crack, as of the snapping of a whip that has outlived its usefulness and is weak in its voice because it is frayed at its ends?

It is the Republican party whip. It is being used in a last attempt to put order into the serried ranks of the Republican organization, to drive back into the ranks those who have drifted away, and to force a compact front into line for the coming campaign.

But it is no such instrument as it used to be. There was a time when it was new and long and limber. Its stock was firm and it was held by men who knew how to use it effectively. Its lash was long and agile, and what time it was cracked, it spoke in sharp, decisive tones that brooked no disobedience. It was spick and span and efficient; and it glistened in the sun of party prosperity, cracking sharply over the backs of the few recalcitrants of those days, and when it stung those bended backs it cut deeply.

That was in the days of its youth. What a difference now!

Long use—and abuse—has worn off the glistening varnish. The stock, long held in unworthy hands, is soiled and dingy. The lash, owing to the increasing need of using it, has been worn out and frazzled and unraveled until it is nothing but a few short, frayed, separate strands which wave indolently in the breezes. The form of it has disappeared, and its spirit is gone.

Yet this poor old plaything of party bosses, which has had a long and hard service that has earned it retirement, is being lugged out for one last combat. Never before was it so useless. Never before was it needed so greatly. Those who used to shrink at its sound and crook the pregnant hinges of the knee apologetically at its touch stand harmless under its blows and laugh it to scorn. Yet it is being used. It must be used. Those who wield it know no other weapon. They never learned any other way of whipping voters into line behind the standard of the corrupt, the unfaithful, the unworthy and the untrue.

How else, save by the use of a whip, can those who hold the new tariff law to be a betrayal of faith and a breach of fair promises be urged into the support of those who wrought its infamies? How else than by its use can those who hold a president in contempt because he is led by party leaders who seek the betrayal of the people be driven into line? How, otherwise, are those to be coerced who refuse to accept the commands of the Aldriches, the Cannons, the Paynes, the Hales and the Tawneys simply because they call themselves Republicans?

The Republican party had two alternatives before it. It could have repudiated its false and treacherous leaders, broken down its organization which stands for government for the benefit of Special Privilege, and reorganized itself for the service of humanity under the leadership of those whom it now condemns as party traitors. That would have meant new life and victory.

Instead, it chose the other alternative, and that alternative means defeat and death. It has chosen to repudiate the element of insurgency which was the only vital spark of life and purpose remaining within it. It has chosen to rally 'round the party bosses, vice regents of Special Privilege who have worked to shackle the people to the chariot of plutocracy, and who have made the president one of themselves. It has chosen to crack the party whip, and to command those who dream of government by and for the people to cease dreaming and enlist themselves under the banners of government by the bosses of the many and for the few.

It is an interesting experiment, and it will have the value of showing how many of the people remain willing to shrink and obey when the arrogant crack of the party whip is sounded.

THE RAIN.

After weeks of drouth, when the woods went dry as tinder and caught fire from the slightest cinder or camp fire ember, scourging the settler in his humble home and making pioneer villages do battle for their lives, yesterday rain came at last all over the Northwest. Last night was one joyful parade of falling drops, precious every one. This morning the rain still fell; not in a torrent nor in a drizzle, but gently, steadily, as it should fall.

It is the same material, this rain, at whose coming you often have grumbled, and often will grumble again. But there is no grumbling now. The rain is quenching the forest fires, wetting the woods to prevent the spread of other forest fires, laying the dust, feeding the trees and grass and flowers and crops, completing the belated miracle of spring and bringing joy to the woodlands and prosperity to the farmer.

Seldom has rain been so greatly needed. From prairie to forest, from city to hamlet and farm, the cry for rain was growing up with increasing earnestness as the need of it became desperate. Grain crops were not in bad shape, but the rain will put them in better shape. The fight against forest fires had become heart-breaking in many places. Roads were inches deep in dust; it was dusty for those who rode in automobiles, dustier still for those who trudged behind in the dust raised by the automobiles. The grass was parched and the flowers were late and the leaves clung timidly to their winter wraps.

In a night all this is changed. The fires all but put out, and at least rendered impotent to do further harm, the ground soaked, the roots drinking in the moisture greedily, the leaves expanding so suddenly you almost can hear them, the flowers springing into new glory and fragrance, the crops given new strength and richness by the rain—all is hope and cheer and promise where yesterday was gloom and dread and despair.

THE POISONER.

We don't know whether or not Dr. B. C. Hyde of Kansas City poisoned Col. Thomas H. Swope for his money. The jury says he did, but it appears to have had a tinge of doubt strong enough to make it fix the punishment at life imprisonment instead of death. The fixing of the punishment is significant of compromise and doubt; for if any offender deserves death at the hands of society it is the poisoner.

Murder is an awful thing at best, even when there is apparent justification for it—if there ever is justification for taking human life. But murder in the heat of passion, murder in defense of life, property or honor—these are crimes very different from the crime of the poisoner. The use of poison necessarily involves premeditation. No murder is so "cold blooded" as the murder by poison. It is sneaking, treacherous, fiendish; it imposes on the trust of its victim by making his food or the medicine from which he hopes to get benefit the vehicle for his destruction. If poisoners were many no man could take a mouthful of food or a drink of water in safety.

If capital punishment ever is justified, it is justified as a punishment for murder by poison. The crime is so vile and so peculiarly devilish that it deserves the severest punishment imaginable; and it is so subtle, and mankind is so poorly protected against it, that severe punishment is called for not only as punishment, but as a warning to others that society has no mercy for poisoners.

THE COMMERCE COURT.

By a vote of 37 to 28 the reactionaries in the senate succeeded yesterday in keeping the provision for a court of commerce in the administration's railroad bill. This is a victory of the president, the standpatters and the railroads over the Democrats, the insurgents and the people.

The court of commerce section provides for five new federal judges who will have, at the present rate of going, an average of seven cases a year to try. It is defended by the president, the reactionaries and the railroads on the ground that it will expedite the decision of railroad disputes. It is opposed by the Democrats and standpatters on the ground that its only possible purpose is to delay the conclusion of proceedings against the railroads. It is suspected by the people because of the characters of its advocates, and the people's suspicions are strengthened by their knowledge of the characters of its opponents.

Yet it will be a part of the administration's railroad measure if, as now seems likely, that measure becomes a law.

The approval of the rain is unanimous; yet in about a week everybody will be saying, "Drat the rain!" Humanity is hard to please.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

FUNERAL OVER THE CITY CHARTER IS NEEDED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The report of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club is worth not only a careful study, but is full of information that certainly can't help but interest every citizen of Duluth. It is well to know of things that they have done. And what they intend to do is more interesting to the public in general. The report takes a shot at the board of public works, and perhaps it is in need of a shot. Boards are only boards, and like sidewalks, don't last five or six years. After that they are almost impassable, and ought to be changed to something more substantial. The change suggested by the report is too old to be tried. You can get a smell of it in Pittsburg that ought to be sufficient. What is needed at present in Duluth is a cleaning up process in our financial affairs, and a funeral over our present city charter. It is worse than many of our old tamarack sidewalks. There are so many things about it to criticise. But one will be enough at this time, and from my limited experience I will mention the revolving fund that fails to revolve, or perhaps travels so fast that we are unable to count the revolutions. If perchance you are interested in some little improvement that you are called on to contribute to, your mite goes into the wheel, and you call around to inquire about it after a year or so, and are handed the cold information that the fund has not revolved yet. That is what is termed by our present city charter as doing business on a cash basis.

Had the Commercial club spent the amount of energy for a commission form of government that was used on charter amendments we would be much nearer to that city beautiful that we hear so much of. Yours for government by commission.

SOME INCONSISTENCIES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Some inconsistencies in the speeches at the Svea Republican club banquet struck me, and I herewith submit them for Herald readers:

A boom for Eberhart on the ground of progress is bolstered by fulsome praise for Taft, the man who is linked to the movement to check insurgency.

Mr. Eberhart said there is no other Republicanism but progressive Republicanism, and bewailed the fact that there had been lack of harmony that prevented progress.

Mr. Elmquist said that the time has gone by when the Republican party can nominate any sort of an old thing, and yet he urged the very policy of voting the whole ticket that would have placed undesirable candidates of the past in office. Mr. Elmquist inferred that the last tariff bill, like the others, was framed by simply guessing and implied that it was the best law that was ever enacted—he meant perhaps the best guess—but how does he guess it?

Mr. Boyle said that the progressive young men, Irish and Swedish and of all nationalities, would join the Republican party because they do not say "Let us go back to our ancestors," and yet his main plea for Republicanism was that it had Lincoln as its founder. He said that the leaders of recent Republicanism didn't like each other, and he failed to show what Republicanism now stood for. He overlooked the fact that Lincoln left the Whig party for the same reason he would leave the Republican party today, for its lack of unity on the great principles at stake.

He implied that if the Republican party on its next state convention should choose to put itself as it has in the past few years against the issues clamoring for recognition that the majority of that party should, whether right or wrong, be supported by the people.

Future Generations.

Life: The best way to feel optimistic is to think about the future generations. Although the muckraker has made out a bad case for us, we are still able to contract debts which future generations will have to liquidate.

The Panama canal will (possibly) be ours, but future generations will have to pay for it.

We had all the glory of the Spanish war and the acquisition of the Philippines, but future generations will have to pay the pensions.

Future generations will have to read about the squabbles of the Daughters of the Embalmed Beef Heroes.

Future generations will have to respect the Constitution a great deal more than we do, because it will be older by that time.

Future generations will find that we have given away about everything that is valuable, such as franchises, public lands, etc.

Future generations will find it much harder to support the rich, for their heirs will have greatly multiplied.

Such Excellent Milk.

Once a Week: A simple-hearted and truly devout country preacher, who had tasted but few of the drinks of the world, took dinner with a high-toned family, where a glass of milk punch was quietly set down by each plate. In silence and happiness this new Vicar of Wakefield quaffed his goblet and added: "Madam, you should daily thank God for such a good cow."

Ben Bolt.

Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt—
Sweet Alice whose hair was so brown,
Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your frown?
In the old churchyard in the valley, Ben Bolt,
In a corner obscure and alone,
They have fitted a slab of the granite so gray,
And Alice lies under the stone.

Under the hickory tree, Ben Bolt,
Which stood at the foot of the hill,
Together we've lain in the noonday shade
And listened to Appleton's mill.
The mill wheel has fallen to pieces, Ben Bolt,
The rafters have tumbled in,
And a quiet which crawls round the walls as you gaze
Has followed the olden din.

Do you mind of the cabin of logs, Ben Bolt,
At the edge of the pathless wood,
And the button ball tree with its motley limbs,
Which nigh by the doorstep stood?
The cabin to ruin has gone, Ben Bolt,
The tree you would seek for in vain;
And where once the lords of the forest waved
Are grass and the golden grain.

And don't you remember the school, Ben Bolt,
With the master so cruel and grim,
And the shaded nook in the running brook
Where the children went to swim?
Grass grows on the master's grave, Ben Bolt,
The spring of the brook is dry,
And of all the boys who were schoolmates then
There are only you and I.

There is change in the things I loved, Ben Bolt,
They have changed from the old to the new;
But I feel in the deeps of my spirit the truth,
There never was change in you.
Twelve month twenty have passed, Ben Bolt,
Since first we were friends—yet I hail
Your presence a blessing, your friendship a truth,
Ben Bolt of the salt sea gale.

—Thomas Dunn English.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Puck: "The paper says that De Tanque presided at the banquet, but I didn't see him."

"That's funny; he was right under the head of the table."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Doesn't it ever make you unhappy to see the way the papers refer to your husband as a grafter?"

"It used to, but I don't let it bother me any more. He says he has things fixed so that he could stand any kind of an investigation."

Puck: "You say she is no longer editor of the 'Woman's Corner?'"

"No. She wrote so many articles on how to make over last year's hats that her readers began to suspect she was a man."

Buffalo Express: "You may be surprised, after we are married, to find how much things cost," he warned her.

"Oh, I don't know," she said, smiling; "I used to clerk in a delicatessen store."

Buffalo Express: "Can you tell me how I can keep a maid?"

"Madam, you are in the wrong place. The embalmer is next door."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Is this proposal the result of a bet or a joke or a dare?" asked the girl.

"No. I ask you to marry me because I love you."

"It is unusual, but after all the unusual is the proper caper nowadays, I accept you, Algernon."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Got anything good?" inquired the city editor.

"Brutal murder, neatly done."

"Well, play up strong on the inhuman interest."

Gateway: "Dar's one thing I likes 'bout old Satan."

"Tell me dat!"

"When he roasts a sinner nobody kin complain dat he ain't well done."

Fliegende Blatter: "What a dreadful thing an Arctic night lasting 140 days must be. Wouldn't it drive you mad?"

"But think of the relief it must be to be able to tell a creditor, 'Come tomorrow,' knowing that 'tomorrow' will be 140 days off."

Philadelphia Record: Hoax—That doctor spends money like water.

Joax—Yes; and he doesn't get it from the well, either.

Comic Cuts: Hospital Doctor—Well, what's the matter with you?

Patient—Well, sir, I dunno. I eats well, I drinks well an' I sleeps well; but as soon as I sees a bit o' work I comes out all of a cold sweat, an' trembles that much I can hardly stand.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: The flowing bowl looks like a cup of happiness to some men.

Every man has an idea that others think him important.

Many a woman wouldn't want a vote if she could boss some voter.

A man is as fat as he looks; a woman is as fat as she wants to look.

You can learn a good deal about women by pretending to be indifferent.

If an easy-going man ever acts smart it is when he gets soap in his eyes.

A woman always selects a good listener when she wants an entertaining companion.

You can't please everybody; it makes half the people sore if you please the other half.

We don't think much of a cooking school that doesn't teach pupils how to prepare dandelion greens.

When a man gets his first gray hairs his wife tells the neighbors they are due to his strenuous business cares. When a girl says a man is a cad he has probably talked baseball to her till she had to admit that she didn't know anything about it.

And it sometimes happens that when a woman sees her husband looking happy and contented she thinks there must be something wrong with him.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Hero worship begins nearer home than charity.

The man who loves his enemies doesn't love the truth.

The reason a girl is so surprised when a man proposes to her is she arranged it all.

No matter how much they like it people who live in the suburbs always apologize about it to their friends in the city.

A woman knows none of the references she writes for servants are true, but she believes all those that are brought to her.

The Pomp of Kings.

Chicago Evening Post: We wonder whether the blood of Democrats boiled in honest Democratic veins at the account of how Sir Alfred Scott-Gatty, the "Garter principal king-at-arms," and the Duke of Norfolk, the "hereditary earl marshal of England," paraded around London the other day to announce to all and sundry the accession of His Majesty George V, king of England. Such mediaeval foolishness! Such wicked pomp! What sense is there, your true Democrat demands, in such ceremony as this:

At Temple bar, which marks the boundary of the city, the heralds were met by the lord mayor, the sheriffs, the aldermen and the officers of the city.

Here a red silk cord barred the way and the trumpeters sounded three loud notes upon their bugles. This was to announce the approach of the officer of arms. At the third blast the city marshal rode forward with the challenging cry:

"Halt! Who goes there?"

Instantly came the response:

"The officer of arms, who demands entrance to the city, to proclaim his royal majesty's accession."

The lord mayor was informed of the presence of the royal herald and his command and at his command the latter stepped across the scarlet rope into the city. Here he handed the proclamation to the city's chief magistrate, who read it to the crowd.

This is demonstrably a wasteful method of spreading news which the city's ticker service had doubtless covered hours before. The utilitarian mind can prove to its own satisfaction that it is ridiculous for a lot of fat, overdressed men to face one another across a silk cord and chin through a mediaeval ceremony. "What's the good of it all?" Ah, here is the weak point of the Democratic position on this matter of ritual. This sort of thing is good for the only reason that anything is good because it has been found to work. When the London crowds are bored instead of stirred by gayly apparelled heralds, those heralds will disappear between the covers of antiquarian volumes.

Again Dr. Cook.

Brooklyn Eagle: Now comes announcement of a trip of exploration with the view of "determining the accuracy of Cook's assertions and observations," some of the facilities for which journey are to be furnished by Theodore A. Cook, a brother of the discoverer, so called, who says:

"Dr. Cook is not and never has been in South America. His mind is clear, but he is as yet in no condition to face the battle before him. From a man who weighed over 200 pounds, he has fallen away until he now weighs less than 135. He does not even get the newspapers any more."

All of which is of greater interest than the announcement alluded to. Peary has obtained leave of absence for six months, and wherever he goes, honors await him. Cook is concealing his identity, and makes his whereabouts known only to those he can trust to keep the secret, to say nothing of his loss of tissue. There are morals it is superfluous to draw.

Their Choice.

Not all that go to heaven would care
To sing always in heavenly choirs,
And jeweled crowns and halos wear,
And play hymn tunes on golden lyres.

If trees grew there as on the earth,
That flowers and fruit would ever bear,
Sweet fragrance blent with sterling worth—
Bright autumn wedding spring so fair;
They'd rather saunter in the shades
Than sit before the Great White Throne—
To live and love as youth and maids,
Than lyres, and crowns, and halos own.

—D. Sembur.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

Col. Graves, Maj. Upham, Luther Mendenhall, Clinton Markell, A. R. Macfarlane and A. J. Whiteman are practicing a sextette for male voices, the refrain of which is "We sail the ocean blue, our saucy ship's a beauty," and the cause of their glee is their late purchase of the beautiful steam yacht Picket, which cost $24,000 as she slid into the water at Brooklyn in June 1887. She was built for the W. F. Bottsford estate as a pleasure yacht. She is 100 feet long and has eight staterooms. It is appropriate that the pioneer handsome yacht of Duluth should be owned by gentlemen who are pioneer settlers.

The Jackson mine, the oldest iron mine in the Lake Superior district, has been sold to an English syndicate for $1,500,000. The price paid for the mine three years ago by Capt. Mitchell of Negaunee, William Chisholm and J. H. Wade of Cleveland was under $1,000,000. Since that time it has paid dividends of about $2,900,000

Ward Ames, Jr., and Charles A. Davis, two young boys and sons of well-known grain men, have returned from a week's ramble on Isle Royale, where they have been gathering birds' eggs. They have brought back with them about 450 eggs, principally of the gull variety.

The platter upon which the "Mascot" of the Second Minnesota regiment of the uniform rank, K. of P., journey from St. Paul to Duluth has been decorated by Sir Knight W. E. Wicks with a beautiful calla lily and, encased in a neat plush frame, now ornaments a wall of Lakeside division's armory.

There will be a vocal and instrumental entertainment at the Pilgrim Congregational church on May 27. Schilling's orchestra will play, and among those who will take part are Mrs. John Loman and Miss Florence Hart, Soprano; Mrs. C. F. Howe, contralto; Fred Eva and Mr. Farrington, tenors; Mr. Burrill, bass. The concert is for the benefit of the Congregational Sunday school, which now has over 450 members and an average attendance of about 350, making it by far the largest Sunday school in town.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

He'll Never Do.

Princeton Union: That man Gordon of Brown's Valley, who aspires to the lieutenant governorship on the Republican ticket, has the audacity to suggest that the Republican state convention ought to be permitted to select its chairman and complete its organization without interference by the bosses. It would never do to permit such a fellow as Gordon to become lieutenant governor. He might, if afforded the opportunity, appoint senate committees that would refuse to smother bills at the instance of the "interests," thus violating precedents of twenty years' standing. The lieutenant governor must be a tractable man and Gordon won't do—he has too much sense and backbone.

One of the Big Ones.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: If John Lind can be induced to accept the Democratic nomination for governor there'll be something doing long 'bout the fall season. John Lind measures up with the big men of this country, and John's a right smart campaigner, too.

Nor as Desiring It.

Elk River Star-News: One thing seems certain, nobody appears to want to go on record as predicting the re-election of Speaker Cannon.

A Housecleaning Needed.

Foley Independent: It seems almost too good to be true that Aldrich and a few of his colleagues are going to retire from public life and if such should prove to be the case it will be because they have allowed the people to get onto their tactics and thereby destroyed their usefulness as tools of the interests. In looking over the list of senators we find several other old corporation axes who should retire before the voters kick them out.

Let Joe Do It.

Le Sueur News: Secretary Wilson's cry of back to the farm is a good thing, but why don't he make Cannon mount the plow seat?

Well, Do They?

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: The owners of the big dailies of the country at the meeting of the Associated Press in New York recently seemed of the opinion that President Taft would be renominated. Their guess may be right but there's something radically wrong with the nation's election system if it is. The people surely do not want Taft and if he is nominated it will be another illustration of the fact that the people do not rule.

Trusts Stand Lots of "Busting."

Warren Register: Trust-busting is a favorite sport, but those who engage in it do not seem to have much success. Politicians ride into office by yelling "Down with the trusts!" but the trusts are all still doing business at the old stand. The courts impose heavy fines upon the trusts that violate the written laws of the land, but the only effect seems to be an increase of the dividends paid to the stockholders of the trusts.

The Leveler.

The king he reigns on a throne of gold,
Fenced round by his "right divine;"
The baron he sits in his castle old,
Drinking his ripe red wine;
But below, below, in his ragged coat,
The beggar he tuneth a hungry note.
And the spinner is bound to his weary thread,
And the doctor lies down with an aching head.
So the world goes!
So the stream flows!
Yet there is a fellow whom nobody knows,
Who maketh all free
On land and sea,
And forceth the rich like the poor to flee!

The lady lies down in her warm white lawn,
And dreams of the pearled-pride;
The milkmaid sings to the wild-eyed dawn,
Sad songs on the cold hillside;
And the bishop smiles, as on high he sits,
On the scholar who writes and starves by fits;
And the girl who her nightly needle plies
Looks out for the summer of life, and dies!
So the world goes!
So the stream flows!
Yet there is a fellow whom nobody knows,
Who maketh all free
On land and sea,
And forceth the rich like the poor to flee!

—Bary Cornwall.

Unusual State of Affairs.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer: It will be interesting to the public to know that the Nicaraguan army now numbers 2,000 men and only has one general.

Carrying Out the Roosevelt Policies.

La Follette's Weekly: When Mr. Taft came into power, Mr. Ormsby McHarg came also. He is the person who is said to have represented Mr. Hitchcock in the effort to get the Oregon legislature to commit the perfidy of electing Fulton to the senate instead of Chamberlain, which episode was adverted to in the second number of La Follette's under the heading, 'A Grave Aspersion."

Mr. McHarg was appointed assistant secretary of commerce and labor. He was a friend of Richard Achilles Ballinger. He boiled over at the first mutterings of the Pinchot-Ballinger tempest, and walked into the limelight foaming at the mouth with denunciation of the Roosevelt conservation policy.

He was fired. That is, he was permitted to resign promptly, and the president accepted his resignation He went to New York and opened a law office. This ends Chapter I.

Chapter II deals with the insurrection and insubordination of Albert C. Shaw, during the Roosevelt regime one of the legal advisers of the forest service. He was mixed up in the Glavis matter. He assisted Glavis in making the record against Ballinger. He, like Ormsby McHarg, was fired. That is, he was not permitted to resign. He was neatly excised from the payroll, the place cauterized and purged of the bacillus of insubordination.

He also opened a law office. He knew the department ropes, and he thought he could make a living by practicing before the land office. But he found the way to a livelihood there barred by the president. He was not allowed to make a living that way in Washington, D. C. It is said that the presidential ire was hot, and the presidential language Cannonian as the matter was so ordered. Mr. Shaw is said to have fled to the wilds of Spokane or Portland or some other place far from the White House, where, in the obscurity that befits his crime, he will try to live it down.

With this parallel between these two offenders and their downward road to ruin, endeth Chapter II.

Chapter III is brief. Washington dispatches of May 1 state that Mr. Ormsby McHarg has had Mr. Taft's O. K. placed on a fat contract with the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indian tribes by which he becomes their special counsel at Washington. He is to get $17,000 per annum. The labors of this connection are not so arduous as to interfere with his law practice in New York. "To err is human, to forgive, divine."

Chapter IV is still briefer. It is a picture of Mr. Shaw still skulking from the presidential wrath in the tall grass. We have no Siberia for political offenders. But for a young lawyer, the loss of all his accumulated experience and the benefit of his acquaintance will doubtless teach him that there is a God in Israel.

The Roosevelt policy of the "square deal" is thus beautifully exemplified.

Much Needed.

Chicago Record-Herald: "There's one thing we need in this country and nobody seems to be doing anything to furnish us with it; one thing that we need more and more as time goes on. I wish I could invent or devise it. There will be a fortune in it when it is perfected.'

"What is it?"

"Some kind of a device whereby people may be able to tell just how much to applaud when they want to make the entertainer feel good, without causing him or her, as the case may be, to mistake the demonstration for an encore."

Knocking Tennessee.

Atlanta Georgian: Living may be high enough in Tennessee, but life is certainly cheap enough.

LARGEST CLASS WILL GRADUATE

Fourteen Boys and Girls Will Leave Eveleth High This Year.

Eveleth, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The graduating class this year is the largest in the history of the high school and consists of fourteen pupils, eight boys and six girls: Harry Anderson, Dale Cerveny, Walter Corbin, Minnie Engstrom, Elmer Hill, Victor Mulligan, Emma Perrault, Harry Rabinowitz, Irene Davey, Esther Ferris, Anna Mulligan, Flossie Noel, George Peterson, William Saari. The officers of the class are: Harry Rabinowitz, president; Esther Ferris, vice president; Irene Davey, secretary and treasurer. The class has adopted maroon and gold as class colors and red carnation, as the class flower. The motto of the class is "From School Life to Life's School," and the class is the most active one that has ever attended the local high school.

Esther Ferris, the valedictorian and Harry Anderson, the salutatorian, have received honorary scholarships from the Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., their marks being exceptionally high, for their years as high school students. Miss Ferris, completing her high school work in three years, with the highest average ever attained by a high school student in this city. The commencement day program follows: music, orchestra; song, eighth grade; salutatory, Harry Anderson; address, J. H. Hearding; song, eighth grade; valedictory, Esther Ferris; presentation of diplomas; music, orchestra.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET NEXT WEEK

Annual Gathering of St. Louis County Organization at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the second annual St. Louis County Sunday school convention will be held here. Addresses will be delivered by various local people and by Rev. L. Trelstad of Chicago and Rev. Ralph E. Clark of St. Peter.

As the Missabe train came in Sunday evening at 7 o'clock the horse of J. A. Miller became frightened and attempted to run away. Unfortunately, one of the reins broke, making it almost impossible to handle the beast. The rig was overturned, throwing the occupants out, but luckily causing no serious injury.

Mrs. A. L. Anderson and son, Milton, of Duluth arrived Monday and will visit Mrs. Anderson's daughter, Mrs. Victor Munson, for a few days.

Miss Lydia Kronberg, clerk at the municipal court, left Monday noon for her home at Melby, Minn., where she will visit friends and relatives for several weeks.

Mrs. B. Fredin of Duluth returned home Saturday after visiting for a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Munson.

Mrs. J. Vrooman left Monday noon for her home at Superior after spending Sunday in this city with her husband, J. Vrooman.

Mr. and Mrs. L. McCormack returned Monday to Superior after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed.

E. C. Everett, turnkey at the village jail, left Monday for Stillwater for a visit with relatives.

J. A. Heasley returned home Monday from Superior, where he spent a few days on business.

STURGEON LAKE TIMBER BURNED

Many Millions of Feet of Pine North of Hibbing Damaged.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many millions of feet of standing pine timber were damaged by the forest fires in the Sturgeon lake district, north of here. Two cruisers just back from that section estimate that about 60,000,000 feet of pine was damaged. The fires have been checked by the rain, but in some places are still smoldering, and may break out again unless the country gets a good soaking.

It is claimed that the fires in the Sturgeon lake district were started about six weeks ago by some fishermen who camped in that vicinity. The flames have been smoldering from that time, and were started afresh by the heavy winds that swept over this section last week.

It is said that Sutpon & Mackey, contractors, have been logging in that region, and that they have left the slashings. Should the fire get started, at least six townships would be swept over, destroying large numbers of homes of settlers, besides thousands of dollars' worth of timber. The fires have been smoldering in log piles for weeks, and nothing but a long, hard rain can remove the danger.

Rain Extinguishes Fire.

Coleraine, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The almost continuous rain for last twenty-four hours has put out the forest fires in this part of Itasca county. While the villages in this locality have not been in danger, a pall of smoke has filled the atmosphere which the rains have cleared away. There has been considerable damage done by the fires to standing timber. It is reported that Harry Smith, a settler on a claim fifteen miles above Nelson postoffice, in this county, lost his home and household goods by the forest fire, and that other settlers' property was in great danger.

FORGED CHECKS ARE PASSED AT AURORA

Stolen From Check Book of Contractor and Crudely Filled Out.

Aurora, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of forged checks were passed in Aurora Saturday during the rush hours in the evening and several merchants defrauded out of sums of money ranging from $20 to $30.

The checks were stolen from the office of MacArthur Bros. company, who has the stripping contract of the Hudson mine, and bore crude forgeries of Bookkeeper Ruehle's name. As soon as the forgeries were discovered an investigation was made and checks numbered from 1352 to 1360 were found missing.

In each instance the checks were tendered in payment of small purchases, the balance of their face being secured in cash.

An effort is being made by the local police to apprehend the guilty parties, but as the checks were passed during the rush hour Saturday and not known to be forgeries until the following day, the merchants are unable to give descriptions of the parties passing them.

GRAND RAPIDS REVIVAL.

Evangelist Barker Is Stirring People at M. E. Church.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The revival that commenced here in the Methodist church continues with increasing interest. Nightly the church is filled to the doors with the people who come to hear Rev. G. L. Barker, the evangelist, who is preaching a gospel that awakens and stirs the hearts of all who hear him. The large chorus choir led by Prof. W. A. Andrews is doing good work in the meetings. He accompanies his own solos with his golden harp. Sunday was the banner day—through all the day large congregations filled the church. At the earnest appeal of the evangelist, the front seats were filled with men and women, who come to seek the better life. The meetings will continue until May 24.

IRRATIONAL AT NIGHT.

Peculiar Affectation of Homesteader Living Near Little Fork.

Virginia, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Mattson, a homesteader, living in 62-21 near the Little Fork river, was taken to Duluth this morning where he will be examined as to his sanity. Mattson imagines that the people in that vicinity are trying to "do" him and get his homestead away from him, and for the past few days has been carrying a gun around with him and threatening to shoot everybody in the neighborhood. It is said that in the day time he would be quite natural, but at night was under the impression that he had enemies who were scheming against him. He is about 34 years of age and unmarried.

CARSON LAKE FIRE.

Dwelling, Two Barns and Warehouse Are Destroyed.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Leetonia mine location at Carson lake, four miles from here, suffered a damaging fire late Sunday night when a dwelling, two barns and a warehouse were destroyed and for a time it was feared the location was doomed.

The mine officials telephoned for assistance from the local fire department. A chemical engine was sent to the place, but when it arrived the three buildings were so far gone that nothing could be done to save them, and the attention of the firemen was turned to the machine shop, which had caught fire.

The west end of the building was badly burned, but the greater portion of the structure and machinery were saved from destruction. The origin of the fire is unknown. The firemen worked for five hours before it was subdued.

The loss is estimated at $15,000, partially covered by insurance.

TROUT FISHING HAS BEEN GOOD

But Sportsmen Have Depleted Streams Around Hibbing; More Fry Needed.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing sportsmen this year are having their first trout fishing within a reasonable distance from the city. Many are taking advantage of it, and some are making the rounds quite regularly.

About five years ago a few local enthusiastic sportsmen applied to the state hatcheries for an allotment of speckled trout fry. The request was granted and about 100,000 fry were shipped here. They were placed in a few of the adjacent brooks and left there to bring about good sport in a few years. This year is really the first one that the fish have been of any size and large enough to allow the sportsmen to catch. The result is that so many have visited the streams that they are nearly fished out.

Some Streams Blasted.

Most of the fishing was done in the legal manner, which all real sportsmen follow, but in some instances reports have come in to the game warden stating that blasting was going on in the trout streams.

In the brook near Nashwauk and the one south of town, no better fishing could be had earlier in the year, but now one is lucky to land ten of the speckled beauties in a day.

There are several applications in for more trout, but these new additions will not be ready for several years to come, and if the present galt of the fishermen is kept up there will be a year or so intermission in which there will be no trout.

The trout brought in this year are the very best and could not be equalled anywhere. They averaged ten inches in length, which is a good-sized trout. The speckled trout seem to thrive very well in the iron country.

CUMMINGS' BODY TAKEN FROM LAKE

Brought to Ely From Knife Lake and Shipped to Cass Lake.

Ely, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The searching party composed of P. T. Brownell, L. M. Brownell, F. B. James, Clarence Graham and Mr. Mulligan, returned Sunday afternoon bringing the body of Alex. Cummings, who was drowned last week at Knife lake. The body was prepared for shipment to the home of the deceased's parents at Cass Lake. A brother of the deceased departed on Monday afternoon with the body.

Cashier L. B. Brockway spent Saturday afternoon in Tower.

Attorney J. D. Osborne and wife departed Sunday afternoon for a brief visit in Duluth and Superior.

Mr. Terry left Monday afternoon for his post at Harding after a week spent here at the Forestry reserve headquarters.

H. Hurley was called home Saturday by the serious illness of his little daughter who is afflicted with scarlet fever and diphtheria.

Mrs. W. D. Gallagher was a Duluth visitor last week, returning home Saturday.

The fire department and the Finnish ball teams played ball here Sunday. The score being 6 to 4 in favor of the firemen.

EVELETH COUNTY TO DECIDE ABOUT WALKS.

Eveith, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council this evening will decide whether all the present walks in the city limits and the recently acquired territory will be condemned and new walks of cement ordered at the expense of the abutting property owners.

Jacob Myllanen and family left yesterday for New York Mills, Minn., where they will make their future home, after a residence here of fifteen years.

Miss Caroline Milligan of this city, formerly of Hopo, N. D., has accepted a position with the Fisher Stock company of Hibbing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kenner, for the past three years residents of this city, will soon remove to Virginia where Mr. Kenner will enter the grocery business.

First Lieut. Fergus R. Ellsworth and Second Lieut. Cass Jenkins of the local militia, returned recently from St. Paul, where they took examinations, to determine their ability to hold their present military commissions.

DISCREDIT REPORT OF DEATH OF BOLSTROM.

Eveleth, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report that Charles Bolstrom, formerly of this city, was killed recently while dynamiting stumps in California, where he was employed on the farm of C. E. Bailey of this city, is not credited by Mr. Bailey or by Bolstrom's relatives here.

MANY EVELETH ELKS ARE GOING TO DETROIT.

Eveleth, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. C. Harton has been elected exalted ruler of the Elks' lodge to succeed B. O. Greening, resigned. B. O. Greening has been appointed delegate to the big Elk gathering at Detroit, and will be accompanied by about twenty-five members of the local lodge. George A. McCormack has been appointed to the position of loyal knight, made vacant by Mr. Barton's resignation, while Dr. E. K. Medler is the new lecturing knight.

CHISHOLM LIGHT SERVICE PROMISES TO BE FINE.

Chisholm, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Recent improvements at the plant of the Range Power company have enabled them to get 190-horse power from one producer, where before they were able to get but 150-horse power from two producers. The second producer will be ready for work within a short time when it is expected that 300-horse power or more can be developed easily and Chisholm will have an unexcelled light service.

SELF DEFENSE IS ACCUSED'S PLEA

Trial of Rade Ilbacich, Accused of Murder at Gilbert, Is On.

Virginia, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Self-defense will be the plea of the defendant in the case of the state against Rade Ilbacich, indicted for killing Wld Dresich at Gilbert April 25, last, which is on in the district court.

These comprise the jury: Elmer Lindsay, J. E. Matson, William N. Kespol, Andrew Hawkinson, John Promisich, Frank Keating, C. C. Butler, Timothy Shea, C. W. Olson, J. H. Hillyer, George E. Lindberg and Adalph Kellar. The case is expected to go to the jury tonight or tomorrow morning.

MUCH LUMBER TO BE SHIPPED

Boats to Take Large Amount From Two Harbors for Lower Lakes.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lumber boats C. H. Green and Our Son cleared today with a cargo of lumber for the lower ports. The capacity of the Green is about 800,000 feet of lumber, while that of Our Son is 1,000,000. There is a large amount of lumber to be shipped from this port for the lower lakes, and the business will be booming this summer. The Mohegan arrived Monday for a cargo of lumber and is tied up alongside of the coal dock until there is room for her at the lumber dock. She will take about 700,000 feet.

DULUTH CONTRACTOR GIVEN TWO HARBORS CONTRACT.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council has awarded contracts to J. D. O'Connell of Duluth for the grading in rock macadam of Poplar and Cedar streets from the north line of First street to the South line of Fifth street. These are two of the busy thoroughfares of the city and the grading of these streets will improve the appearance of the city. In order to supply the crushed rock required in this work, the council let the bid for the new rock crusher to be installed in their plant near the lighting station to the Austin-Western company.

Big Class Confirmed.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Mr. Carlson of the Norwegian Lutheran church confirmed a class of seventeen last Sunday, as follows: Richard Erickson, Oscar Dahl, William Johnson, Ernest Carlson, Elmer Hanson, Carl Carlson, Dean Swarthz, David Larson, Clarence Larson, Carl Christensen, Lizzie Rotein, Inga Salness, Edith Dahl, Edith Hanson, Anna Johnson, Mabel Satter and Annie Rafin.

Accused Man Attempts Life.

Ely, Minn., May 17.—Peter Charishanitz, who was bound to the grand jury Saturday for trying to burn the St. Croix lumber yards, attempted suicide at the Winton jail. He cut his throat with a piece of tin from a drinking cup. Seven stitches were taken and he was sent to a Duluth hospital.

Two Harbors Seniors Entertained.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The faculty of the high school entertained the seniors at a good luck party, Saturday evening at the home of W. B. Woodward. Good luck emblems of gray and red were hung around the rooms and each of the seniors received a gray horseshoe with the occasion of the gift in red. Prizes of horseshoes and charms were given to the winners of the games. Refreshments were served and the seniors departed with remembrances of the event.

Nagel to Take the Road.

Washington, May 17.—After a conference with President Taft at the White House yesterday, Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor announced that he would make a two month's trip to the Northwest and to Alaska, leaving Washington the latter part of June.

CALL KERBY AS WITNESS

since he left the Roosevelt service. He said neither of these letters related to the matter which he had since made public, but that subsequently he had a conversation with Mr. Garfield at which he had told him about it, but that he had first mentioned the matter to Hugh A. Brown, formerly private secretary to Mr. Garfield. He said he had met Brown in his office and the latter had asked him what he knew about the president's letter exonerating Secretary Ballinger.

Told Brown About It.

"I told him I knew considerable about it," said the witness, "as we practically wrote it in the secretary's office."

Kerby said he went to Mr. Pinchot's home one night when he learned Garfield was there, and he enanced to find Mr. Pinchot and Brandeis there also. He said Garfield appeared surprised to see him.

After Kerby had told Garfield his story, the latter told him he did not want him to endanger his position and would not have him called as a witness unless it was necessary.

Mr. Denby—Why did you assume that giving testimony would necessitate your dismissal?

Mr. Kerby—I knew what happened to Glavis.

Told Newspaper Men.

The witness added that he had not entered into an analysis of the matter. He said he believed, as had proved to be the case, that the matter would be a sensation and that Mr. Ballinger would not care to retain him if he made a communication of that character.

Mr. Kerby said he also spoke of it to Perry Arnold, a newspaper friend, who, he said, expressed surprise that the president should have been able to prepare his letter in such a short time after the facts had been laid before him. He said he told a newspaper man in confidence, and that the latter had observed the confidence.

Mr. Kerby said he gave his statement to Robert E. Wilson, a Cleveland newspaper man who had been introduced to him a week ago Sunday night by his newspaper friends.

Mr. Vertrees asked the witness if he had mentioned any other matter at the meeting at Pinchot's home.

Friendly to Ballinger.

Kerby said his feelings toward Ballinger personally were friendly; that the latter had always treated him like a son.

Mr. Denby: "Did anybody suggest to you the impropriety of your remaining with a man who had treated you as a son, after you had made public some of his confidential information?"

"No."

Kerby insisted that he did not consider there was any impropriety in what he did.

STAR-COMET CASE DROPPED.

Supreme Court Decides It Has No Jurisdiction.

Washington, May 17.—The jurisdiction of the supreme court of the United States does not extend far enough to determine whether the average citizen of America stops to distinguish the difference between a star and a comet. The court has dismissed "for want of jurisdiction" a case in which two manufacturers were disputing over the alleged infringement of a trade-mark. The owner of the "star trade-mark" claimed that ordinarily a person does not stop to distinguish between a star and a comet.

SELLS "COMET PILLS."

Voodoo Doctor at Port au Prince Is Getting Rich.

New York, May 17.—Whatever the comet may do to this long-suffering old earth of ours, the negroes of Port au Prince, Hayti, are prepared. They know they are safe because they are well packed with comet pills.

Comet pills are new to the pharmacopoia. Word of their appearance arrived by the Hamburg-American liner Allegheny, in from Port au Prince. Her officers said that all the negro stevedores there, all the farmers, servants, laborers, merchants, beggarmen and thieves are rushing pell-mell into the hut of a shrewd old voodoo doctor just outside the city, who is selling comet pills faster than he can make them.

The prescription is one pill for every hour up to the time the comet begins to recede from the earth, but many of the patients are making safety doubly sure by taking one pill every few minutes. The comet doctor guards his formula closely and is growing rich faster than Col. Mulberry Sellers in his wildest dreams.

AUTO KILLS EDITOR CHASING HIS HAT.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 17.—Simon Hickler, for fourteen years editor-in-chief of the Waechter und Anzeiger, one of the best known German newspapers in the country, died here last night as the result of an automobile accident. Mr. Hickler, with his wife and two children, was driving an automobile Sunday when his hat blew off. His dismounted to recover his hat and was knocked down by the car, which the chauffeur accidentally backed into him. His skull was fractured and he died without regaining consciousness.

Hickler was 49 years old. Before joining the Waechter und Anzeiger he held an editorial position in Milwaukee.

SMITH DEFENDS TARIFF IN IOWA CAMPAIGN.

Villisca, Iowa, May 17.—Congressman Walter I. Smith opened his campaign for re-nomination here last night with a vigorous defense of the regulars in congress, and criticised insurgency.

He said he felt that he would be able to convince the voters that they should support the administration of President Taft and not contribute to the further delay of great reform measures by weakening the strength of the regulars in congress.

He dwelt at length upon a defense of the tariff.

Judge Smith made a bitter attack on Senator La Follette, whom he charged with being the "master muckraker." He added that the real charge of Cannon and Aldrich adherence against himself had been that he would not be swerved by others than the 200,000 masters he acknowledged in his district. He said that Roosevelt's big stick would soon fall on the opponents of Taft.

QUITS PULPIT TO WAGE WAR UPON TEMPERANCE.

New York, May 17.—Rev. William A. Wasson has resigned from his Episcopal pastorate at Riverhead, Long Island, to work for limited license as against total prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. In a letter to the bishop of Long Island, Dr. Wasson says he wishes to give his whole time to fighting temperance, falsely so called, and advocating the true temperance, which means moderation and self-control."

BEER SALES ALLOWED.

Saloon Closing Order at Plummer Has Been Modified.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent order of the Indian bureau, whereby sales of liquors were prohibited in the southern part of Red Lake county and which practically closed the saloons in the village of Plummer, has been modified by telegraph. The latest order permits the sale of beer, but of no other liquor. As the saloon keepers had disposed of their fixtures and stock and had gone out of business on the receipt of the first order they are not in shape now to open up again. The bootleggers who had been in the habit of securing bottled goods from the saloons and taking it to the reservation have continued their activities along the line of railways running towards Duluth, so that this section so far has been free from their visits. As all this upper country is within the scope of the authority of the department with reference to the selling of liquor, the strictest care is taken to avoid giving offense and suspicious characters are hustled out of this city and away from the saloons. No complaint has yet been made in this section and it is the intention that no cause for any be given.

ARMSTRONG HELD AS FORGER AND PERJURER.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 17.—Director of Public Works, Joseph G. Armstrong has been held for trial by an alderman on charges of forgery and perjury and subornation of perjury. The charges are brought by the Voters' Civic league, which alleges Armstrong falsified the city pay rolls.

MANY HURT IN PANIC AT CIRCUS PARADE.

New York, May 17.—A mistaken cry of "the lion's loose" threw a circus crowd of women and children into a frenzy of panic at Newark, N. J., yesterday afternoon, and in the pell-mell rush seven children were badly crushed and cut, one man fell in a fit, a woman had her shoulder dislocated and many other persons suffered minor injuries. One little girl had her jaw broken.

The panic occurred during the parade. Even after the panic subsided, when it was proved to be baseless, many in the crowd were so shaken that they refused to enter the circus.

OWEN MUST PAY $10,000 AS ATTORNEYS' FEES.

Washington, May 17.—The supreme court of the United States has affirmed a judgment of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, requiring Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma to pay William W. Dudley and Louis T. Michener $10,000, as lawyers' fees. The controversy grew out of a contract whereby Dudley and Michener were to assist Owen, as attorney for the Cherokee Indians, in a claim against the government.

Council Lays Over Plan to Buy Auto for Fire Department.

Also Postpones Decision on Weekly "Offs" for the Firemen.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Laid over the proposal to give firemen one day off in seven beginning July 1 instead of Oct. 1.

Postponed action on the purchase of an auto for the fire chief.

Passed ordinance reducing license of second-hand dealers from $25 to $10, incorporating provision directing junk dealers to pay $2 a year.

Passed ordinance forbidding obstruction of theater aisles.

Passed ordinance requiring peddlers to get brass tugs for their wagons and provided that all peddlers' licenses shall expire May 1.

Requested owner of old Stewart livery on Second street between First and Second avenues to show some civic pride by tearing it down.

Directed city attorney to prepare amendments to building ordinance so permit can be granted for horse hospital.

Appointed Hans Johnson to succeed Capt. J. W. Mann as poundmaster at West Duluth.

Efforts to give the firemen one day off in seven beginning July 1 instead of Oct 1 and to purchase an automobile for the fire chief were both laid over one week by the city council last evening.

Favorable reports were brought in by the committees having charge of the questions, but the aldermen wished to investigate the propositions further before taking definite action.

The resolution placed a cost limit of $2,000 on the automobile. The council does not believe that a machine should be purchased for any but strictly business reasons. They desire to improve the efficiency of the department and the majority state that the fire car should be provided with extinguishers and other light apparatus to take care of small blazes.

Alderman Shartel stated that he has discovered that the fire department fund is in better shape than he had imagined, having been augumented almost $2,000 from the city's share of the mortgage tax. He introduced the same motion as was acted upon before except that the date for giving the men a day off every week is July 1 instead of Oct. 1. He was emphatic in the declaration that the men are entitled to that consideration and that the council should lose no time in granting them the improved conditions.

The council confirmed the appointment of Hans Johnson as poundmaster of the West Duluth district to succeed Capt. Jacob W. Mann, Civil war veteran. Assistant City Attorney O. S. Andresen said that the law gives preference to Civil war veterans, but that no provision is made for appointments of six months, which is the time of service of the poundmasters each year. I. M. Campbell's appointment as poundmaster at Lakeside was confirmed.

Mayor Cullum sent in a communication relative to the street car extensions in the Second ward above Fourth street with the letters from Herbert Warren, general manager of the street car company, attached. He stated that part of the extension at least is assured, but that the property owners must do their share by making some improvements.

A resolution was passed calling upon the owner of the old Stewart livery barn to tear it down, as it is unsightly, insanitary and a nuisance in a good neighborhood. The statement was made that the owner should have sufficient civic pride to remove the nuisance.

The city attorney was directed to prepare amendments to the building ordinance to cover the points mentioned in the letter of S. M. Kielley, building inspector. He was obliged to refuse a permit for the horse hospital which the city has ordered built at First avenue east and Third street, as the ordinance prohibits the erection of stables in residence blocks housing more than four head of cattle or horses. The ordinance can be gotten around as it now stands by erecting several small barns adjacent to one another, each for four horses or cattle.

The licenses of the second hand dealers were reduced from $25 to $10. The same ordinance requires all collectors of junk to pay an annual license of $2. It is claimed that the reduction of the second hand fee will result in many more licenses being taken out and that the revenue from the junk dealers will amount to a considerable sum.

The ordinance of Alderman MacDonell prohibiting crowding or obstructions in the aisles of all theaters, including moving picture shows, was passed.

The property owners on Lake avenue between Second and Fourth streets were granted an extension of sixty days in which to pay their assessments, no additional penalty attaching.

The city engineer was directed to prepare estimates for a sewer in Twelfth avenue west, betwen Michigan and Fifth street, the work to be done in three sections. The first section is between Michigan and First streets, the second between First and Third streets and the third between Third and Fifth streets. The creek now running down Twelfth is little better than an open sewer and it is the wish of the property owners and residents to have it covered.

W. S. McCormick, city comptroller, was voted $100 for his expenses in attending the meeting of the National Association of Comptrollers, to be held in New York, June 9, 10 and 11.

About ten miles of cement and wooden walks were ordered in all parts of the city. The work is done under the supervision of the board of public works, but all walks are ordered by the aldermen in their respective wards.

A resolution was passed providing that Mayor Cullum, the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, the city engineer and the board of public works be constituted a committee to consider the problem of removing the Point of Rocks.

The saloon license of F. W. Miller, at 1 East Superior street, was held up by the police and license committee.

SCULPTOR WHO WILL MAKE GOVERNOR JOHNSON STATUE

"From the Watch Tower" in the St. Paul Dispatch: "Who's he?" said the renowned Fingy Conners of New York, when some one compared Governor Hughes to Cromwell. Who's he?" we all echoed when it was announced that the commission on the Governor Johnson statue has selected, tentatively, one Andrew O'Connor as sculptor. A careful searching of "Who's Who" failed to reveal the whereabouts or whatabouts of O'Connor. Certain people had heard of him, but their knowledge was not sufficiently tangible for those who had not heard of him, or, indeed, for themselves.

Andrew O'Connor, Sculptor.

But sculptors, like murder, will out. And when a Paris art magazine lately declared that aside from their own Rodin, this Irish-American is the strongest sculptor now working in France, interest quickened in O'Connor. When also one learns that Augustus St. Gaudens spoke of O'Connor with faith, we may begin to accept him. St. Gaudens, so it is reported, was on one occasion shown a list of contemporary sculptors in connection with a proposed commission, and running his eye down the list till he came to that of Andrew O'Connor, he paused to comment, "Ah, this man is in a class apart—by himself."

If further approval is needed, Russell Sturgis said of O'Connor's work on the doors of St. Bartholomew's in New York city, that it was "Of singular boldness and intensity * * * worthy to rank with anything of modern times." J. Pierpont Morgan admired his work sufficiently to engage him to design the facade of the famous Morgan library, the late Stanford White was also an admirer to fostered O'Connor's art, while Sir Frederick Leighton and Whistler were full of praise for a relief, exhibited in the London Royal Academy, as far back as 1896. Of later contemporary fact is the purchase by the French government for the Luxembourg gallery—where the immortal living receive anticipatory honors—of several O'Connor pieces.

Classic and Contemporary Combined.

Andrew O'Connor was born on a farm near Worcester, Mass., in 1874, evidently of the second generation of those Irish who became Americans just before the mid-century. He escaped from the farm early in life, and most curious in any one intending to be a sculptor, went to Chicago, where he studied in the studio of William Ordway Partridge—whose "Nathan Hale" stands on the triangle of Summit, Portland and Western. After that, O'Connor was in the New York studio of Daniel Chester French, and of late has been working in Paris.

Before the sculptor went to Paris he professed as his sculptural gods, first Michael Angelo, and next Augustus St. Gaudens. Since he has been in Paris his work has shown the influence of two later admirations, Donatello of the ancient, and Rodin of the modern. Evidently his work combines still the two periods of his own development and of his marble deities. William Walton in the Scribner of just a year ago, comments upon O'Connor's work at length in phrases that promise much of modern interest.

Speaking of certain figures, "The first impression is of surprise at the unwonted fervor suddenly infused into familiar things." There is "a skillful combination of the contemporary and the classic"—which is perhaps what the Paris editor meant when he likened O'Connor to Rodin. Walton's description of the figure of Justice on the Newark courthouse intimates most positively the "difference" in O'Connor's work. "It is rather the terrors of the Law which are presented in this Michael Angiesque figure, seated, with his right hand extended over the wide back of his curved chair and his face so hidden in the close cap descending over his ears that on a sunny day it appears as a black spot against the blue sky. No prisoner, no accused, approaching this temple of justice, can look up to this menacing figure thrown on high, with an equanimity." Plainly this sculptor is a new sculptor, yet "the passion, constantly threatening to break its bounds, never does so, though we wait in something like apprehension."

It will be interesting to see how he develops the figure of a statesman, now he will treat Governor Johnson. He made the Gen. Lawton statue for Indianapolis, yet it might be asserted that the figure of a soldier has in it something more, both of the classic and the passionate, of Angelo and of Rodin. But he made also a bust of Robert L. Newman, citizen, which the Luxembourg has considered worthy of refuge under its honor-showering roof.

The Symbol of John A. Johnson.

It will be interesting also to see how this Irish-American will appreciate the Scandinavian-American of the Johnson features, of the Johnson personality. That he prefers to speak with the suggestive speech of Rodin may intimate that he will comprehend the symbol of the late governor as well as the embodiment, and the statue should carry both of these. It is a difficult thing at the best to prepare statues of men of our own generation; time reads in or out of all men much that is precious, characteristic. And no man carried more symbol to his state than John A. Johnson.

In this conection of race the latest news story concerning O'Connor repeats what American art lovers generally had hoped would not happen again in America. A statue is to be erected to Commodore Barry of the revolutionary navy in Washington, the statue to be executed by a sculptor of Irish descent. A competitive contest—$50,000, twice the sum for the Johnston statue, being involved—under an independent committee, gave the award of Andrew O'Connor. The decision was generally approved, and then the government commission, consisting of Secretary of War Dickinson, Secretary of Navy Meyer, Senator Wetmore and Representative McCall, withdrew the award, and said to another sculptor that if he can produce a satisfactory design, he shall have the commission.

WANTS EXPRESS COMPANY PROBE

Sabath of Illinois Says They Are Leagued With the Railroads.

Washington, May 17.—Alleging that the express companies are in combination with the railroads, resulting in a complete monopoly and exorbitant rates, Representative Sabath of Illinois has introduced a resolution providing for a congressional committee to investigate the various express companies engaged in interstate commerce. He asks that the committee inquire into many details of the business of express companies, including capital stock, the inter-corporate relationship with railroads, the ownership of all stock, extent of competition with the postoffice department in carrying mails, return of taxable valuations, market value of stock, etc.

The resolution would instruct the committee to secure information regarding "contributions paid to press agencies within the last ten years affecting literature opposing the establishment of a parcels post." The committee is empowered to administer oaths, hear witnesses and may sit during recess of congress. Mr. Sabath's resolution was referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

NO CHANGE IN INAUGURATION DAY

House Votes Down Proposal By Failure to Give Two-Thirds.

Washington, May 17.—The house declined to give the necessary two-thirds vote in favor of a change of the date of inauguration of president and vice president of the United States from March 4 to the last Thursday in April. The resolution introduced by Mr. Henry of Texas to amend the Constitution for this purpose received a vote of 139 yeas and 70 nays, one less than the two-thirds necessary for its adoption.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BIG MEETS THIS WEEK

Notable North Dakota High School Events at Grand Forks.

Track Meet, Declamation Contest and Final High School Debate.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—With four big high school events scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Grand Forks will be an exceptionally busy place, entertaining the largest gathering of high school students ever assembled in the state. The events are the annual interscholastic field and track meet, interscholastic declamation contest, final debate in the high school debating league and the conference of high school superintendents.

In the annual track and field meet there are seventeen teams entered. This meet has come to be recognized as one of the greatest in the state and this year it is anticipated that several of the state records will be smashed. The schools entered are Devils Lake, Grand Forks, Valley City, Fargo, Hannah, St Thomas, Bathgate, Cando, Cavalier, Crystal, Grafton, Edgerwood, Rolla, Langdon, Drayton, Minot and Jamestown. Each school has from three to eight men entered.

Annual Declamation Contest.

The annual declamation contest will be an interesting feature with contestants from twenty-two schools. There are two prizes offered, one for boys and one for girls. The contestants from the several high schools follow: Edgerwood, Julia McHugh and Edward Parizek; Grafton, Lois Tombs; Casselton, Gertrude Dalrymple and Max Taubert; Carrington, Susan Breunough; Park River, Charlotte Currie and Harold Dougherty; Crystal, Ruth Bunlie and Cleveland Bundlie; Cahalier, Edith Christie and Theodore Delchert; Williston, Rose Garritze and Norris McKay; Minot, Lois Smallwood and Howard Huston; Jamestown, Ruth Werner and Cassius Vissey; Northwood, Inga Leina; Buxton, Evelyn Hilleboe; Mandan, Dora Spaith and E A. Lange; Bathgate, Ella Nevin and John Willson; Drayton, Lou Goff and Ray Emerson; Westhope, Esther Johnson and H. A. Warner; St. Thomas, Elsie VanCamp and Thomas Hall; New Rockford, Eva Johnson and Vance Beer; Valley City, Florence Krantz and Bert Whitney; Cando, Vernon Jones; Hankinson, John Jones, and Fargo, Harry Rusch.

The final debate of the series conducted by the North Dakota High School Debating league will be between Carrington and Leeds, those teams having defeated all comers and proven their right to compete for the cup that has been offered by the Grand Forks Herald.

The conference of high school superintendents takes place at the university on Friday and Saturday, questions of vital interest to the members of the organization will be considered. The superintendents are to be entertained at luncheon by President and Mrs. F. L. McVey of the university.

EXPERIMENTS IN CROP ROTATION

Head of Crookston State Agricultural School Will Show Results of Scheme.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Acting Supt. Danielson of the state agricultural school this spring has started several practical experiments which will show a camparison of results obtained from five and seven-year crops rotation. The ground to be used is all staked off into half acre plots with a small space between which will be kept cultivated so the line of demarkation will be easily seen.

For the seven-year rotation the first crop will be wheat; the second, barley with grass seed to root for next year; third and fourth years, pasture or grass crops; fifth year, wheat; sixth year, oats; seventh year, corn and manure. Then the same rotation will be done again, cleaning crops being rotated with the weedy crops.

For the five-year rotation the first crop will be wheat with grass seed sown at the same time; second and third years, grass or pasture; fourth year, oats; fifth year, corn or potatoes with manure.

The five-year rotation is the better for the small farm and the seven-year for the larger farm.

These will be tried side by side with plats of the same size with continuous wheat, continuous corn, etc., and the value of rotation will be easily seen in comparison.

Side by side there will also be plots of the same size upon which experiments will be made with various grasses including medium red clover, mammoth red clover, alsike, bromus, timothy, red top, orchard grass and clover and timothy mixed.

Accurate accounts will be kept of the results obtained from each plot each year, and these can be seen at any time at the experiment farm and will be published at the end of each crop year in order that all may benefit from the results obtained.

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body---Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is good proof in the following testimonial:

E. S. Moulton, First avenue, Two Harbors, Minn., says: "I was suffering from a pain in the small of my back for a long time. I finally decided to try a good kidney remedy and procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was much pleased with the results of their use and I am now free from pain and feel better in every way. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a valuable remedy and am pleased to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

TWO ELEVATORS BURN.

Disastrous Fire at Barnesville, Minn., Does Heavy Damage.

Barnesville, Minn., May 17.—Fire early Sunday morning destroyed the Minneapolis & Northern elevator and the Grain Producers' elevator, and threatened to wipe out the Great Northern railway yards. The fire is believed to have originated in one of the Minneapolis & Northern elevator bins by spontaneous combustion.

The Minneapolis & Northern elevator was one of the largest types built by that company, except at the Head of the Lakes. It had a capacity of 50,000 bushels, and was managed by I. O. Kassa. The loss is estimated at $12,000, with about one-fourth insurance. Seven hundred bushels of wheat, 150 bushels of flax, 300 bushels of barley and 300 bushels of oats were destroyed.

The Ball elevator, now known as the Grain Producers' was of a much smaller type and was closed last year. The loss there was $6,000. Little, if any, insurance was carried.

DR. BRACKEN SICK.

Secretary of State Board of Health in Minneapolis Hospital.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. C M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has been taken to the Northwestern hospital, suffering from typhoid fever.

Dr. Bracken has been ill since his return from Washington, but it was not thought that he was in a serious condition. Sunday he developed a high fever, and his physicians became alarmed and arranged for his removal to the hospital.

DAUGHTER LIVING HERE.

Mrs. Garceau, Old Marquette Resident, Buried Tuesday.

Marquette, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Funeral services were held here today from St. John's church for Mrs. Mary Ann Garceau, who died Saturday evening. The deceased had made Marquette her home for thirty years or more, and she was among the best known of this city's French residents. Her husband, Eli Garceau, died some two years ago. Three daughters and three sons survive. They are: Mrs. C. Roberts of Marquette; Mrs. K. Lamon of Duluth; Mrs. J. C. Johnson of Marquette, and Alexander, Fred and Clifford Garceau.

DULUTHIANS TO ATTEND

Large Gathering of Knights of Columbus at Brainerd Sunday.

Brainerd, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ceremonies attendant upon the institution of a Knights of Columbus council in Brainerd on Sunday, May 22, will draw to the city the largest gathering it has ever entertained. The charter list of the new council embraces a hundred names. Over 800 delegates, visitors and friends, coming from all parts of the great Northwest are expected to be present to witness the ceremonies.

Crack degree teams from the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth councils will assist in exemplifying the elaborate ritualistic ceremonies of the Knights of Columbus.

Large delegations are to be present from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, St. Cloud, Bemidji and other points. The delegations from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth will travel in special trains.

GIRLS OUT ON BAIL.

Put Up Bonds to Appear Against Alleged White Slaver.

International Falls, Minn., May 17. —(Special to The Herald.)—The two girls who were detained here as witnesses against James Vincent, the alleged white slaver, who was bound over to the grand jury on a criminal charge, departed for home Thursday night in charge of W. H. Fierce of Appleton, Wis., uncle of the Newman girl. Cash bail for the return of the girls at the time of the grand jury session in July was given in the sum of $500 each.

NEARLY 200 GRADUATES.

St. Cloud State Normal Commencement to Be Held June 1.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 17.—The normal school year will close on Wednesday, June 1, and, as is customary formal graduation exercises will be held at the Davidson opera house. Hon. W. P. Pattee, dean of the state university law department, will deliver the address. J. L. Washburn of Duluth, of the state normal school board, will confer the diplomas.

The graduates during the year number 199. This is not quite as large as one or two other years, but it is a very numerous class.

SELLING CHEAP MACHINES.

State Prison Turning Out Many Harvesters and Mowers.

Stillwater, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be 250 harvesters and as many mowers turned out by the state prison this year for farmers of the state. They will be sold 20 per cent cheaper than the trust prices. This competition is making the combination take notice and it is no wonder that the trust has been putting up a hard fight against the manufacture of farm machinery at the state prison.

Only a portion of the many hundreds of Minnesota farmers who placed orders for the machinery this year can be supplied because of the limited number manufactured this year. But when the new farm machinery plant is established as part of the new prison the supply will be much greater.

The Minnesota harvesters are being sold at $100 and the mowers at $36 cash. These prices are far below what farmers have been paying and much lower than present prices of other concerns.

Not only are the machines cheaper but they are of superior quality. They are simple in construction and embody all the former improvements as well as some new features patented by the state.

Joseph M. Downing is superintendent of the prison farm machinery department.

BIG BISMARCK EVENT.

Installation of New Bishop Next Month to Be Notable.

Bismarck, N. D., May 17.—The installation of Bishop Vincent Wehrle into he new bishopric of Bismarck next week will be a notable event in the annals of Catholicism, not only in Bismarck, but in the western part of the state. It is expected that the attendance will be the largest of any gathering in the city in many years, and many notable figures in the Catholic world of the Northwest will be present. The executive committee in charge of the arrangements has held two meetings to consider the various details of the affair, and committees have been selected to take charge of the different features of the meeting.

The installation of Bishop Wehrle will be celebrated by the sixty priests of the diocese of Bismarck, and in addition to these priests each of the parishes will send delegates. There will be formal and interesting ceremonies during the two days' meeting and addresses both in English and German. Archbishop Ireland will be present.

A banquet will be given to the visiting dignitaries, including Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Wehrle, other visiting bishops and priests and a few invited guests from the city, and this will be one of the features of the installation ceremonies.

The banquet will be tendered by the citizens of Bismarck.

RAISES NOVEL POINT.

North Dakotan Convicted of Breaking Jail Has Decision Affirmed.

Bismarck, N. D., May 17.—The supreme court has affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of the state against William J. Wright, who was tried and convicted at the last term of court in Burleigh county on a charge of escaping from the state prison.

Wright advanced the novel claim that he was not on the state prison grounds when he escaped, and that he could not be convicted of the offense charged. He was convicted, and pending an appeal, he was confined in the Burleigh county jail, whence he escaped some days ago.

DOG PREVENTS RESCUE OF CHILD FROM FIRE.

Beaver Dam, Wis., May 17.—Mary Kryzinski, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kryzinski, died from burns received about her face, arms and chest while playing with matches.

Neighbors tried to rescue her from the flames, but a vicious dog drove them away.

The mother was burned about her hands, arms and face while putting out the fire in the child's clothes, but it is thought her burns are not serious.

CASS COUNTY INTERESTED IN DEVELOPMENT SCHEME.

Walker, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the Cass county development association is being held at Pine River today, when delegates will be choosen for the Crookston meeting on June 1. Great interest in the development movement is manifest in this county. The resent state land sale gave Cass county nearly a 100 new settlers, many of whom will be present at the meeting.

TEACHER WHO FELL INTO MINE IN BAD SHAPE.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Lulu Leisner, the high school teacher, who fell into a mine pit, is till in a precarious condition at the Ishpeming hospital. She was conscious for brief periods Saturday and Sunday, but she is weak and is suffering greatly from the effects of her wounds.

Crookston Celebration.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The erald.)—The "Sytende Mai" will be observed with a proper celebration at the United Lutheran church, where a program of addresses and music will be given. Rev. Mr. Dahle of McIntosh will deliver the principal address and in addition to the proper reference to Norway's Independence day, will pay a tribute to Bjornson. Miss Loe of Minneapolis will render several solos as well as O. W. Peterson and the Viking chorus of this city, with a banquet in the church basement bringing the celebration to a close.

It is believed that there was a dislocation of the spinal column at the lower portion of the neck.

Crookston—Capt. A. B. Davis has returned from Ada, near where he has just closed a deal disposing of a 3,000-acre tract of land, and reports the country looking fine and that crops are coming right to the front.

Aitkin—George Callahan, who for some time past had been making his home with John Pirner at Pine Knoll, last Wednesday fell from the door of a freight car containing railroad timbers, which was being unloaded by J. W. Cluff. He was rendered unconscious and died Thursday.

International Falls—William T. Sterrett, the former down-river homesteader who recently returned from Duluth, where he spent the winter, is an inmate of the hospital, where he underwent an operation on Thursday.

Bemidji—Thomas Bailey, Sr., who was for many years sheriff of Beltrami county, will soon engage in the hotel business here, having taken over the Merchants on a five-year lease. The hotel is being remodeled at a cost of about $15,000.

Little Falls—Word has been received of the death of Charles Ricker in a hospital at New Brunswick, N. J., which occurred on May 11. Deceased was a member of the local M. W. A. camp.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Madison—State Game Warden Rickemann said that during the last week his deputies have successfully prosecuted over a score of persons for violating the fish and game protection laws, compelling the payment of $657 in fines and costs, $586 of which went into the common school fund of the state.

Sheboygan—A new state bank will be opened in this village and a large number of well known residents of the Falls and vicinity have already subscribed for stock. State Bank of Sheboygan Falls is the title of the new institution and the capital stock is $20,000.

Lake Geneva—Mate Napper of this city is one of the few surviving members of the expedition which laid the first successful Atlantic cable in 1865 from Ireland to the coast of Newfundland.

Appleton—Louis Kurz, the 17-year-old son of Frank Kurz, was shot in the right eye and possibly fatally hurt Sunday morning while playing. The revolver was in the hands of Henry Eberhardt. The bullet penetarated the boy's eye and lodged in the brain. He has been unconscious for ten hours.

Madison—C. O. Bicklehaupt, 11, of Aberdeen, S. D., was elected president of the Harestoot Dramatic club at the state university. Richard A. Corbett of the National home was elected vice president, and John R. Frazer of Milwaukee, secretary and treasurer.

Kenosha—The old Gideon Truesdel homestead, a famous old farmhouse in Pleasant Prairie was destroyed by fire at a loss of $35,000. The house was once owned by the late Daniel Wells of Milwaukee.

Beaver Dam—The twelfth biennial convention of the German Roman Catholic Benevolent Societies of Wisconsin and Northern Michigan is being held in this city.

Ashland—The body of Ed Fennely of Ashland, who disappeared from home last November, was found in White river and brought to Ashland last Friday. Ed Fennely while temporarily deranged wandered away from home last November and it is supposed that in this state of mind fell into White river.

Try This When Your Hair Is Dusty

(From the New York Herald.)

"When the hair is dusty and dull, and you want to clean it quickly, just sprinkle through it a little dry shampoo powder made by mixing four ounces of orris root with four ounces of therox.

"Then brush the hair thoroughly and not only will it be clean, but it will have a rich and glossy lustre that can be given in no other way. So little time is required for this dry shampoo that it can be done profitably whenever the hair is dressed.

"Therox is excellent for the scalp and gives the hair new life and vigor. The regular use of this mixture heightens the natural color, while washing the hair with water too often causes it to lose color and become dull and brittle."

BIG FIGHT MAY NOT TAKE PLACE AT EMERYVILLE

Activity of Authorities May Cause Removal to Nevada.

Selection of Rickard as Referee Is Regarded as Tentative.

San Francisco, Cal., May 17.—With the apparent settlement of the refree question which was reached nt yesterday's conference by the selection of Promoter Tex Rickard to preside over the Jeffries-Johnson battle, July 4, the sporting fraternity barely had time to draw a breath of relief before ominous rumors of trouble at Emeryville plunged them into other billows of uncertainty and apprehension regarding the site of the championship contest.

A widely circulated report from Oakland that the fight promoters have been warned that the authorities may not permit the contest to be held at Emeryville became current. As a result of the disturbed situation the announcement recently made by Rickard that he was planning to secure a permit for the fight in Nevada was again discussed. The choice of Rickard for referee following turbulent incidents enacted at yesterday's conference is construed by the majority of the fans as merely a tentative settlement.

Rickard, who is associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries—Johnson contest, and who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., was yesterday selected to referee the battle between the two heavyweights.

In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear he would step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agreed upon another man.

This settlement of the difficulty came when it looked as if the meeting to select a referee would end in another deadlock and after bitter words had passed between Johnson and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager.

Johnson first suggested Rickard, but Berger refused to consider the Nevada man, saying he would not accept him on account of his inexperience. The colored champion declared he would stand pat on the other men he had mentioned—Jack Welch, Eddie Graney and Rickard—and Berger indignantly replied that he would leave the meeting. Then there came a further clash between Berger and Johnson, in which ugly words were used by Berger and threats made by Johnson. Berger stood up as if to leave the meeting place.

"So you want Rickard, do you?" he queried of Johnson.

"Yes," came the answer.

"Well, all right," replied Berger, and the crowd broke into a cheer as it finally realized one of the difficult points had been settled.

Willing to Step Down.

Rickard made the following statement: "To straighten out this affair, I am willing to act, providing my name is agreeable to all concerned. I don't want to act, and I hope before the fight takes place that Jeffries and Johnson will agree upon another man. If they can come to terms, I am perfectly willing to step down and out. But if they can reach no other agreement, I will not back down."

In spite of the agreement there is a feeling of mistrust among those who attended the session that the last word has not been said and that sooner or later the referee question again must be taken up. It has been rumored that to give the impression everything is in working order, Rickard has been named until the contestants have further time to look the field over. This feeling, in fact has been strengthened by the statement made by Rickard.

Berger Shows Temper.

Berger, during the negotiations, lost his head completely and missed many a chance to score a telling point. From the start he showed his temper and toward the close it looked for a time as if there would be a free-for-all fight.

Just before the compromise was reached, Berger, in an undertone, declared that "I'll go over and hit that black man," at the same time applying an epithet.

This was carried to Johnson, who warned Berger never to call him that name again. Berger denied he had said anything of the kind, but Johnson's followers declared he did, and muttered among themselves that if Berger repeated what he had said he would never leave the room.

"You're just an educated dog," said Johnson to Berger.

"Now come out and fight if you want to. I'll give $1,000 if you will come right out with me and box just three rounds."

They were finally quieted down and the session resumed.

At the start of the meeting Berger again named the five men he wanted—Eddie Smith, Billy Roach, Charley Fyton, Phil Ward and Johnny Herget.

Johnson renamed Welch and Graney and said he would stick to them. He intimated further that he would allow no one, not even the promoters, to make the selection for him.

All sorts of compromises were suggested. Berger said he would be willing to have the sporting editors of the five San Francisco papers name the referee, or that he would allow these same sporting editors to act in conjunction with the two promoters.

There was a world of horse-play all the way through, with Johnson playing to the galleries.

Jeffries Is Satisfied.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 17.—When word was received at the Jeffries training camp that Tex Rickard had been chosen as referee, Jeffries said: "If Rickard has been chosen as the third man in the ring that suits me. All I want is to see some good square fellow who knows something about the game in charge of affairs. I know Rickard will give me an even break and that is all I have ever asked. I am glad the matter has been settled so quickly."

Because of extremely hot weather, Jeffries confined his work yesterday to the morning and devoted the afternoon to fishing in company with Harry Green of Santa Cruz. Bag-punching and handball comprised the morning exercise. Jeffries perspired freely and took off something like four pounds.

"I worked hard enough in that handball court this morning to entitle me to a vacation this afternoon," Jeffries explained just before starting on his fishing trip. "In this hot weather I perspire too freely. I need plenty of weight on which to work and I'd never have it if I went back to the job this afternoon."

Jeffries and his fishing partner did not return to camp until late in the afternoon. A couple of red blotches that may turn out to be eruptions of the kind which set the big fighter back two weeks ago, probably had something to do with his failure to work yesterday afternoon.

THIRD GAME IS CALLED OFF

Rain Prevents Final Contest of Series at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis. May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rain prevented the final game of the series between La Crosse and Duluth, which was scheduled for yesterday. The White Sox will open at Rochester today. Schoenur, formerly with La Crosse, has joined the Duluth team and will be tried out.

SUPERIOR-ROCHESTER GAME CALLED IN EIGHTH.

Rochester, Minn., May 17.—Rain and wet grounds necessitated the calling off the Rochester-Superior game in the eighth inning yesterday afternoon, with the score 2 to 2. After the first inning Chase, the Indian pitcher, had everything, and Baertschi for Superior also pitched a good game. Despite a slow and heavy field both teams played fast baseball. Score: R. H. E.

FIGHTERS TAKE NO CHANCES ON ARREST.

New York, May 17.—Mike (Twin) Sullivan of Boston and Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee refused to go on last night for the 10-round bout that was to have been the main attraction of the Marathon Athletic club at Brooklyn.

They had good reason. Early in the evening the police entered the clubhouse, armed with seven warrants for the owners and officers of the club and for Jack Sullivan, Mike's brother, Tommy West and Billy Madden, who was in Benedict's corner last week. Only the owners and officers of the club were arrested.

The warrants charged the officers of the club with selling tickets to a prize fight, in violation of the law, and charged the principals and seconds, respectively, of prize fighting and aiding and abetting a prize fight.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Wonder if Old Man Curtis is going to be let loose by Winona?. Killian has signed Percy Solbraa, formerly with the Houghton club of the Northern league, and the new man, the Winona papers say, will be tried out at the initial sack. Curtis has been playing baseball for a few years back, but at that he appears to have some baseball left in his system.

Altermatt, who played in the shortfield for Winona, has been given his release. The player failed to show the real goods for Killian.

It is tated that Iwen Borth of Winona has been asked to open his purse for the strengthening of the Winona team. So far the Pirates have failed to show as strong as Killian expected. From here it does look as if several changes would materially strengthen the team. The Pirates don't at this distance, look the one best bet in the league.

As yet Eau Claire has failed to show the class expected. That oracle of wisdom, Kid Speer, has stated that the pitchers have failed to start right. That may be the trouble. Duluth's twirlers have failed to get started as yet. Schoonhoven has a fine bunch of players and it is really hard to see how the team has proved so consistent a loser.

Down at Winona they warned Kuehnow and O'Brien against the dopey condition of Wilhelm. "If you can keep him from going to sleep, you will have a good ball player," was the statement of Joe Killian. It seems that O'Brien had no more power in this direction than Killian or Safford. The little fellow looks awfully good some days and on other days one wonders how he ever broke into professional baseball.

Pete Schriner, shortstop of the La Crosse team has been given his release by Manager Safford, at his own request. Schriner has been offered a good position with an independent team of Grand Rapids, Wis., and was given his freedom so that he might take advantage of the offer. Schriner is a good ball player and the La Crosse team may miss his services.

Ollie Gregory is another player who has been let go by the Outcasts Gregory has gone to Red Wing. Mique Malloy needs infielders and he will probably use the ex Outcast.

Shorty Daggett, who started with the Sox at shorstop, left the city yesterday. The little fellow tried to get on with Superior but the Duke of Grandelville would not use the midget. Daggett will probably play independent baseball this summer.

Ktchnow is at the present time on the trail of a college man for first base. He will probably know today or tomorrow whether this chap will consent to play with the Sox. The boy Kuehnow is after is a hard sticker, and stickers are just what the Sox need at the present time.

Indian Chase, the pitcher secured by Rochester from Minneapolis, has so far performed very nicely for Corrigan. The Indian was recommended to the Minneapolis team by Veteran Roy Patterson, the former Duluth boy, who later made a name for himself with Comiskey's White Sox. In his games so far the Indian has shown that he has quite a lot.

Worman, one of the reliables for Eau Claire last season, has failed to show much for the Angels the present season. Reports from Eau Claire state that the twirler has a sore arm. Worman had a lot of stuff last season.

There has been a rumor started that Danny Kick, the midget outfielder of the Eau Claire team, is for sale. Several of the Minny league clubs made hasty inquiries along the line of the report, but Schoonhoven has so far refused to let the little fellow go.

Winnipeg, Man., May 17.—Police last night stopped the fight between Tony Caponi of Chicago and McLaglan of Winnipeg. The fight was to have gone ten rounds, but in the seventh McLaglan was so far gone that the officials stepped in.

BACKSTOP FOR THE PHILLIES

DOOIN
Of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Charles Dooin, successor to W. J. Murray as manager of the Philadelphia National baseball team, is working hard to make a good showing this season. He is doing the greater part of the backstop work for the Phillies. The team has made a good showing so far.

LINES OUT FOR PLAYERS

Kuehnow Wires to Minneapolis for Star University First Baseman.

Cummings Ordered to Report ---Catchers and Shortstop Are Signed.

Yesterday a telegram was sent to a first baseman of the University of Minnesota, a crack player and a heavy sticker. The chap in question is also a well known football star. If the player will consent to play professional baseball, there will be no trouble over the terms. As a matter of fact, Mr. Kuehnow has already made liberal terms to the college man, and the only matter that will prevent his joining the Duluth team, is the question as to whether he will consent to join the professional class.

A telegram was also sent yesterday to Al. Cummings at Cleveland, asking him to report immediately. Cummings has informed Mr. Kuehnow that he will be with the Sox the present season, but so far has given little indication of when he intends joining the team.

Frambes and Wood, two new catchers, and Ochs, the shortstop that Kuehnow reported he had signed yesterday, are excted to join the team at Rochester in time to take part in the present series. Slattery, a first baseman, secured from Fort Wayne, will also report and will be given a tryout while Fryn recovers from his injury.

Though the Sox have got off to a bad start, confidence has not been lost in the team. The pitchers are going wrong, much the same as the twirlers of the Eau Claire team have failed to show so far. In addition to this a persistent hoodoo has followed the team.

Buzinsky, Neelon, Fryn and Kozier were injured. Fryn was playing a good game at the initial sack at the time of the spliding. The injuries and lack of condition of the pitchers have for the time being placed the team under a handicap.

As that, all of the games with the exception of one, have been close and hard fought games, ones that a little element of baseball luck might have turned into victories.

So far the Sox have played in very hard luck. A shifting of the hoodoo and there may be a different story to tell.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Let Jamie Do It.

Personally few people have any objection to James J. Corbett. He is one of the smoothest and brightest men who have cast their abilities on the sporting sea. Many people believe the things James Joseph is wont to write upon, or have written for him. Some who know him more closely are apt to cut down the copy.

James Joseph is one of the very best boosters for the coming fight. In this attitude he is killing two birds with one stone. James is advertising himself as well, and in a more artistic manner, than he is the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

His latest is to laugh-not gently, with one of those harmless little gurgles, like unto the gentle brook, but rather one of those untramed and uncontrolled laughs, that breaking out on the sylvan quiet of the eventide, would disturb the quiet kine and nervous chicks.

James, the roguish rascal, says that up to the present time James Jackson Jeffries has not been fighting, or even boxing roughly; but that he has simply getting the muscles of his arms and shoulders into the right spirit.

But wait until "I" hit the game, intimates Mr. Corbett, and you can be assured that the dear public will see some fighting that will make the ordinary, regular ring quarels look like the meeting of a long parted pair of sentimental sillies.

On Aug. 14, 1903, Corbett and Jeffries met for their last fight. The records credit the boiler maker with a knockout. He handled Corbett something on the order of an irate older brother chastising little brother. The papers, in commenting upon the showing of the cleverest boxer the ring ever developed, stated that Corbett had lost his bewildering speed and that his lightning-like left was a thing of the past. W. W. Naughton, who at the present time is sending out dope from the Jeffries camp, also wrote a very touching little after thought on Corbett's condition.

He stated that an athlete's constitution is a limited institution; that one cannot run riot at night and enjoy feverish sleep in the broad daylight hours without suffering the consequences.

All of which was quite true. That was Corbett's condition seven years ago. How good will he be at the present time? How capable will he be of giving Jeffries anything like a fight? Of how much service would he be to any husky young fighter, who was looking for work, real work, aside from advice and coaching?

It would be foolish for any sporting editor to sit up and say that Jeffries hasn't a chance to win. Frankly, his chances don't look good. The wise ginks are in accord in this belief. But it is the duty of any writer to point out some really glaring inconsistencies that are humorous in their baldness.

The training so far has been a grim burlesque on the real preparation of a fighter. Almost every white man wants Jeffries to win; but why bunk the public into the belief that he is really training? That's what makes the whole affair look so funny.

And the Corbett statement. Corbett is one of the best moulders of sporting opinion in this country. Behind the scenes they smile good naturedly and say: "Jim sure does get away with that stuff fine, don't he?" Since he quit the ring Corbett has been living by means of the pleasant good morning route.

Corbett's statement only makes it look more suspicious. Is it that Jeffries is afraid to engage some live one? It looks that way. It looks as if he knew that he was unfit for hard work.

William Brady, known to many readers of the sporting page as "Billy" Brady, is perhaps the shrewdest man that was ever mixed up with fighters. At the present time Mr. Brady is one of the big theatrical producers of this country. He had brains and he left the fight game for higher things. He was at one time the manager of James J. Jeffries. He was in the corner of the big fellow in several of his greatest fights. Brady has the reputation of knowing fighters as few other men in this country know them. Therefore he should know something about Jeffries.

Well "Billy" Brady offered to wager $10,000 that Al Kaufmann could beat Jeffries. That was just before the Jeffries-Johnson fight articles were signed—the articles that forbade either principal fighting before the big fight.

Not only did Brady offer the wager on Kaufmann, but he also offered Jeffries $10,000 to fight. Jeffries didn't fight, did he? Brady doesn't offer wagers unless he is pretty Joseph to the way things are going. If Jeffries had been sure he could get right, he could have made some money kind of easy like, couldn't he?

It is fair to give facts. Every sport writer worthy of the name has opinions. Some people will call you a knocker. We can't all of us see things in the same light. There are some funny looking facts, sticking out like beacons in a fog, that are very hard to ignore.

It looks funny—the whole thing. Until Jeffries trains seriously why should writers of sports be asked to take the preparation of the ex-champion seriously? That is a very fair and also a very logical question.

Those who have rushed into print, denying that Jeffries is far from right, have given froth instead of facts. Is it because they have no facts to give? Why do they become so all fired "het up" when a few facts are given out? Looks funny, now, doesn't it?

Fine for Someone.

The present season the healthy swatter gathering, like the busy harvester, the most hits, will receive a nice automobile. What an incentive for a poor but honest player to swat for.

Mercy on us! Hark back to the days of Pete Browning, he of the unchecked and uncity broke grammar, and picture this mighty batsman riding around in an automobile. They had to coax Pete to ride on the choo-choo cars. What in heaven's sweet name would he do with a nice, red auto car?

Times are progressing, dear, and old fashioned ideas are vanishing like juicy cuts of steak. In the days of old the baseball players wore long, flowing beards and looked like a gathering of country parsons. Now they make a gathering of tailors look like burlesque actors who have had an off season.

It is an out of date baseball star who hasn't his auto. Wagner, Cobb, and the rest of them. Pretty soon now, little Billy, they will be offering automobiles for home runs.

The game is changing, and the player. On one of the big league teams is far more important than a delegate to an international peace conference. Can you name the delegates? No. Well neither can any of the rest of us.

Teach your little Arthur to play baseball in the early youth. He will provide a grand home, and automobile and several farms for you in the winter of your declining activities. It is one of the greatest professions open to the young men of our great and glorious country.

Why, Sure, We Will.

The masculine Elinor Glynn of Superior, who wades in pessimism six days per week for the evening paper and howls more dismally than a forlorn dog at the bright and beautiful young moon, has another outbreak.

He is wrathy and waxes eloquent over the belief that Duluth will spend money for baseball players.

Well, why not so, sonny? We could not possibly go through the season with such an aggregation as you were compelled to chronicle last year. Please don't be too hard. Over here we have acquired the habit. We spend money for tail buildings, advertising, and baseball players. It's mean to be envious and angry. We realize your position, of course, but really why play the dog in the manger act?

Please tuprn around and behave, as some one is laughing at you.

BREEN SOLD TO BREWERS

Former Duluth Player Will Probably Secure Regular Berth.

Sylvester Breen, last year the crack third baseman of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, who went to Boston at the close of the season and was later sold to St. Paul, has been purchased by the Milwaukee club.

The youngster was playing utility roles with the Apostles. He was too good a man to keep on the bench, and yet was given few opportunities to get into the game. It is very probable that he will be played regularly by Manager McCloskey of the Brewers.

Breen made a great name for himself at the tail end of the American association season of 1909. The present season he has had trouble with his arm, which may have prevented him from winning a permanent berth at third base with Kelly's Saints.

The youngster should make good with the Brewers.

ZBYSZKO WINS FROM ROLLER

Pole Takes Two Straight Falls From Seattle Man at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 17.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler and a candidate for Frank Gotch's title as champion, last night defeated Dr. Roller of Seattle in a finish match.

Roller's left shoulder was badly wrenched when the Pole slammed him to the mat for the first fall. It was announced that Dr. Roller was returning to the ring for the second bout against the advice of his seconds, and when he reappeared it was seen that his left arm hung helpless by his side. Zbyszko quickly got behind his man and when he began working upon the injured arm, Dr. Roller's seconds threw up the sponge. The time for the first fall was 1:05:40 and for the second 1 minute 40 seconds.

TAFT QUOTED IN REBUKE TO CHANCE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 17.—President Taft's recent utterance that baseball is a "clean, straight game" was quoted in the official promulgation by the national commission yesterday of its decision fining Manager Chance of the Chicago Nationals and players Tinker and Hoffman for rowdyism at Columbus April 10. The commission condemned Chance's action in switching his players, saying:

"There never was a case in which a manager intent on winning a game and giving spectators a square deal ever assigned pitchers to infield duty and a catcher to pitch."

The claim of the Houston, Tex, baseball club against the Brooklyn management for $1,000 for player Blakeley was allowed.

MORE ORE ON THE DOCKS

Bigger Supply at Lower Lake Ports Than a Year Ago.

Outlook Is for Decrease in Ore Movement This Month.

Statistics gathered by the Iron Trade Review show the amount of iron ore on the Lake Erie docks. A comparison of the present year with last year shows that there are 100,000 tons of more ore on the Erie docks than there were last year, the figures dating to the first of the present month.

The same flures also show that there was more ore on the Lake Erie docks at the close of navigation, Dec. 1, last year than there was the year before.

Trade rumors which have reached Duluth state that there will be a lessening of the ore movement the present month. There is very little demand for wild tonnage at the present time, though the regular line boats are loading rapidly here.

Reports from Cleveland indicate that there is somewhat of a falling off in the demand for ore there. If there is to be a curtailment of shipments the present month, it has not become effective at the Head of the Lakes as yet.

The figures referred to above are given below:

J. A. RYERSON IS SUICIDE IN CHICAGO

Relative of Duluth Man Is Crushed in Leap From High Building.

W. N. Ryerson, general manager for the Great Northern Power company in Duluth, has received word that his cousin, John A. Ryerson, a prominent Chicago business man, jumped from the thirteenth floor of the chamber of commerce building last night and was instantly killed, his body being smashed into an unrecognizable pulp. The only motive advanced by the Chicago relatives of the suicide is that of supposed financial difficulties.

Dr. E. W. Ryerson, a brother, said that his brother had invested a great deal of his wealth in the automobile business, and that he believed financial losses are responsible for the act. The dead man was president of an electrical company.

His wife, who formerly was Miss Violet Stone, daughter of Rev. James S. Stone, rector of St. James, Episcopal church, and well known in society circles, is prostrated and fears for her life are expressed by members of the family.

GOOD CROP CONDITIONS

In Red River Valley Despite the Present Cool Weather.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The weather continues very cool, local thermometers reacning 38 deg. last evening with a wind in north. It is growing colder and a light frost is predicted for tonight but it probably will not damage crops. There is just enough moisture for growing grain but warmer weather is necessary to promote rapid growth.

Cool weather is preferred as the grain is rooting deep as a result and wheat will stool far above ordinary though the surface showing is retarded by the cold. Crop conditions are very satisfactory.

OHIO JUVENILE COURT LAW IS HELD VALID.

Columbus, Ohio, May 17.—The supreme court today held the juvenile court law valid. Louis Travis of Franklin county was sentenced to a year's imprisonment in the workhouse by the juvenile court, on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of his 11-year-old daughter. His attorney appealed, claiming that the law was in contravention of the bill of rights. The supreme court upheld the sentence.

WHEAT IS UNCHANGED

Little Trend Either Way During Quiet Session in Duluth.

Flax Has a Sharp Decline in a Narrow Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 17.—In a choppy market today little headway was made by either side. After the opening weakness, which was due to lower cables, rains in the Northwest and Southwest and the arrival of Duluth wheat at Chicago, values firmed on buying by Bartlett-Patten, Bradstreet's decrease in the visible supply of wheat and buying against downs.

May wheat was lifeless here, closing $1.09 nominal. July opened with offers at $1.09½ and sold at $1.09⅜, $1.09¼, $1.09½, $1.09¼, $1.10, $1.09⅞ and closed at $1.09⅞ bid. September opened with offers at $1.00¾ and sold at $1.00½, $1.00¼, $1.00⅞ and closed at $1.00⅞ bid.

Flax declined sharply on scattered offerings, some of which was in the nature of profit taking by longs. Trading was without much significance. May sold at $2.26 to $2.20, $2.19, $2.21, the closing price. July sold at $2.20 to $2.10, $2.05 and up to $2.11. September sold at $1.71½, $1.70½, $1.70, $1.70½, the closing quotation. October sold at $1.63, $1.63½ and $1.61½.

Cash equalled May, oats closed ⅛c off, rye was unchanged, barley was the same as yesterday and durum closed ¾c off.

The early break was due chiefly to the rains in the Northwest although the Chicago market came under the direct influence of the arrival of a cargo of No. 1 northern from Duluth. Another is on the way. The presence of the additional supply of wheat caused a break in Chicago May, the effect of which was communicated to the deferred months.

The market was dominated chiefly by pit conditions. The situation appeared to be distinctly artificial. Values were stubborn and yielded slowly. In the last two or three days the short interest has been greatly enlarged and was responsible for several reactions, the market becoming congested. The bears were without leadership and their timidity prevented them from exercising much pressure on the market. The bears have been devoting considerable attention to loading up the leading holders of cash wheat with as much stuff as possible in order to intimidate them into selling.

The bears have been unable lately to get much wheat on the breaks and they are hesitant about selling the market so long as pit conditions are paramount. Their enthusiasm is unchecked in the abstract but they do not carry their opinions into the market. There is enough uncertainty about the crop situation to make them wary. Most of them believe that values must decline to a basis where the surplus will be disposed of and there is every reason to believe that there will be a healthy surplus from this year's crop for export.

The cash situation in the Northwest is moderately strong because of the small receipts. Millers are paying a slight premium over July for choice No. 1 northern from North Dakota. The deflection of cash wheat to Chicago from Duluth and Omaha should tend to help the market as eventually it will give the Chicago market a fair amount of contract wheat and will make manipulation more difficult. The May option is being closely watched. It is firm because of a shortage of actual wheat. The other crop months have been bought by the bulls on the strength of unfavorable crop advices. The foreign situation has been ignored but the bears think that the market must be placed on an export basis. The bulls have relied to considerable extent on the holding attitude of the farmer. They forsee a market glutted with wheat if the farmer maintains his present attitude and the winter wheat crop makes a bumper yield, as seems likely.

The market has received good support from the leading longs and their following. Values have churned up and down and the shorts appear to oversell the market on every dip. Neither side has appeared to be in control.

Stocks of wheat abroad are larger than last year. Flour stores are larger than last year and the new business is dull.

Toward the close today the market became oversold and values advanced higher than the opening. Trading was light and the slight buying found few offers, the market quickly reacting from the opening decline.

MARKET GOSSIP

Broomhall's foreign crop summary: United Kingdom—Growth of wheat plant has been very slow as result of continued cold weather but higher temperatures prevail. France—Growing crop shows further deterioration result of continued cold weather. Present outlook is for about an average crop. Germany—Outlook is very favorable although crop is somewhat backward, due to cold wet weather. Present Outlook good, weather conditions favorable. Roumania—Outlook generally good, although there are some complaints of lodging. Italy—Outlook generally good with exception of some of the southern districts and in north, where drouth has prevailed. Denmark, Sweden, North Africa, Holland and Turkey—Conditions mostly favorable. Australia—Drouth still prevails which hinders sowing of new crop and all diminishing acreage. Argentina—A good increase in acreage under wheat is expected. Weather is less favorable for harvesting of corn, being cold and wet.

Broomhall cabled: Wheat opened weak ¾d to 1¼d lower than Friday and during morning further declined ½d to 7⅛d with principal pressure on July. Selling was in way of profit taking induced by continued heavy world's shipments, particularly to United Kingdom, amount this week being 5,080,000 bu versus 3,616,000 bu last week. Selling was further encouraged by the pressure of Manitoba and La Plata parcels and return of brilliant weather here with more favorable crop advices. Winnipeg market weak and spot markets here were very heavy with Manitoba grade generally 2d lower and cargoes offered freely at 1½d to 3d decline. Just before midday there was a slight rally with some covering due to continued decrease in European visible supply. General market, however, was weak and from 1½d to 1⅝d lower than Friday. Corn dull at start and unchanged. Later there was an advance of ¼d on firmness of La Plata parcels. The European visible supply of wheat, 36,532,000 bu and 38,144,000 bu last week, decrease, 1,612,000 bu. Total balance in general fund, $80,-247,425.

FOX AND HOUNDS ON RAILWAY.

London Globe: Passengers by the local train from Dover to Deal yesterday afternoon witnessed a novel scene on the journey. On approaching the outskirts of Dover some of the followers of the East Kent Foxhounds, who had met some six miles from the town, were observed on the heights, and as the train rounded a bend of the line the driver in a deep cutting came upon the whole of the pack with the master and huntsman on foot and the fox in the midst of the hounds, having just been brought to his end.

The train was stopped by the huntsman divesting himself of his red coat and waving it, and after some little delay while the master secured the fox the death knell was blown and the hounds taken past the waiting train until the master could climb out of the cutting to reach his anxious field. The train then proceeded, having afforded the passengers a full view of the finish, which many a follower of the hunt oftentimes misses in a long run, although he may be well mounted.

THE CADDIE'S ADVICE.

Liverpool Post: The caddie followed him around the course silently, solemnly, but not unobservant. Their wake behind was marked by scars and gashes in the turf. At length he ventured on a tentative remark: "Ye'll be a stranger to these parts, maybe?"

"Well, not exactly a 'stranger.'" Whirr-whirr-swish! And no more gash appeared as a lump of tuft soared aloft and came down fifty yards away.

"You see," the golfer continued, "I was born here, but I have been away many years now. All my folks are buried hereabouts."

"I doot ye'll no' go deep eno' with your driver," remarked the caddie; "ye'd better tak' your iron."

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Little Change in the Lethargic Condition of the Market.

Opening of Foreign Exchanges Brought No Increase of Activity.

New York, May 17.—London sent lower prices for Americans today upon the resumption of business after three days' cessation. There was little increase in activity in the market, however, over the lately prevailing dullness. Northern Pacific and Western Maryland declined 1 and Chicago Great Western preferred 1¼. Reading advanced ⅝.

A rise of nearly a point in Reading strengthened the market, but the higher prices brought out more stock and a reaction followed to well below the opening figures. Union Pacific, Northwestern, Amalgamated Copper, United States Steel, American Sugar, Anaconda and American Tobacco preferred sagged 1, and Reading second preferred 1½. International Harvester advanced 1, which was lost later.

Disappointment is felt that the reopening of foreign stock exchanges brought no increase of activity. No influence was perceptible from any news event and the sag in prices was due to neglect. St. Paul lost 1, and Minneapolis & St. Louis 1¼. Bonds were heavy.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper Johnson & Case.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 17.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 11 points, May being 11 points lower and other positions 1 point higher to three points lower. The rain reported in Texas seemed to be causing considerable scattering liquidation, but it was said that temperatures were too low in some sections. The big bulls gave the market aggressive support and prices after opening held close to the initial figures. Liverpool will reopen for business tomorrow morning.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.
Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Ira Belding and Etta E. Belding, his wife, mortgagors, to Editha M. McEwen and Thomas Murray Quick, mortgagees, bearing date the 21st day of February, 1908, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 24th day of February, 1908, at 3:15 p. m., in Book 219 of Mortgages on page 221, which said mortgage, together with the indebtedness thereby secured, was assigned to D. L. Tyler, who is now the owner thereof, by said Editha M. McEwen and Thomas Murray Quick by written assignment dated the 22nd day of April, 1910, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds in and for said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of April, 1910, in Book 188 of Mortgages on page 450.

Said default consists in the nonpayment of Four Hundred Dollars ($400.00), the principal sum named in the note referred to in said mortgage and secured thereby, together with Seventy Dollars and seventy-five cents ($70.75) interest thereon computed to the day of this notice, and in the non-payment of the taxes on the premises described in said mortgage, before the same became delinquent, amounting to the sum of Fourteen Dollars and ninety-five cents ($14.95), which sum has been paid by said mortgagees and in the failure to keep the buildings on said premises insured according to the terms of said mortgage, which has been done by said mortgagees, for the sum of Twelve Dollars and ninety cents ($12.90) which sums have become a lien on said premises and a part of the debt secured by said mortgage by the terms thereof.

By reason of said default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-eight Dollars and sixty cents ($498.60), including said taxes and insurance.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is situated in St. Louis county, Minnesota, and is as follows: Lot numbered Six (6) in Block Two (2), First addition to Proctorknott, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said St. Louis county, Minnesota.

NOW THEN NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Sheriff's office in the County Court House in Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage including the said amounts paid by said mortgagees for taxes and insurance and additional taxes, if any on said property and Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees as limited by statute instead of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) as provided by said mortgage, together with the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of said sale as provided by law.

Dated May 9, 1910.

D. L. TYLER,
Owner of Mortgage.

E. J. KENNY,
Attorney for Owner of Mortgage.

THOUSANDS ABOUT BIER

All Classes Mingle to Honor Memory of King Edward.

Roosevelt Is Accepting No Formal Invitations Before the Funeral.

London, May 18.—From 6 o'clock this morning, when the doors of Westminster hall, where the body of King Edward is lying in state, were again opened to the public, a sombre-clad, silent multitude in four-deep formation filed past the bier.

The police, with some tact and much patience, maintained order and kept the thousands moving steadily. The mourners entered at one end of the hall, double rows passing on either side of the catafalque and emerging at the opposite ends of the building.

When the doors were closed at 10 o'clock last night between 50,000 and 60,000 persons had viewed the casket, while perhaps half that number were still waiting in the adjacent streets. Midnight found the waiting throngs swollen by many thousands.

Kept All Night Vigil.

These kept a night-long vigil with a purpose of paying a tribute to the dead monarch that would not be abandoned despite a heavy fall of rain that made them most uncomfortable.

The line extended for a mile or more and was made up of men, women and children of many classes. It was a strangely cosmopolitan throng. Every land and every color was represented. There was no class distinction. The laborer in curduroys touched elbows

MINERS RUN AND ONE IS SHOT DEAD

Chicago Police Fire on Three Men Who Flee From Them.

Chicago, May 18.—Three coal miners who had just arrived in Chicago from the village of Divernon, Ill., mistook four detectives for robbers early today and fled. The officers gave chase, and each fired a shot, killing one of the men instantly and severely wounding another. The individual killed was John Dubinski. His wounded companion is Michael Ventor. The third miner, Michael Dubinski, a brother of the man slain, was arrested.

JUDICIARY FIGHT ON IN TENNESSEE

Democrats Meet in Convention to Oppose Partisan Methods.

Nashville, Tenn., May 18.—Pursuant to a call signed by over 10,000 Democrats, representing every county in Tennessee, fully 5,000 delegates assembled in a convention here today. This convention was called to uphold the action of those candidates for judges of the supreme court and court of civil appeals who have taken the stand for what they declare as an independent judiciary in Tennessee.

The convention is the outgrowth of the action of recent state Democratic executive committee in adopting a so-called blanket primary plan, against which many Democrats of the state openly revolted. The convention was called to order at noon.

OHIO HORROR PROBE BEGUN

Authorities Start to Investigate Cause of Deadly Explosion.

Fourteen Men Are Dead and Many Others Injured at Canton.

Canton, Ohio, May 18.—An investigation into the cause of the boiler explosion at the plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company plant yesterday afternoon, in which fourteen men were killed and thirty injured, is in progress today. Coroner Marsh of Stark county has found no one who was employed at the mill able to give an explanation for the accident.

Thirteen bodies were removed from the wrecked plant last night, and an all-night search resulted in the finding of one more body early today. Four bodies, badly mangled, are at the morgue, awaiting identification. Several of the injured are in a critical condition, and probably will die.

An examination showed that but three of the battery of seven boilers exploded, the others being merely displaced by the concussion.

The force of the concussion was ter-

SCENTS GRAFT IN THE WORLD'S ARMAMENTS

DR. N. M. BUTLER.
President of Columbia University.

DR. BUTLER RAPS ARMS

Scents Profit for Somebody in Army and Navy Strength.

Says That Type of Patriotism Ought to Be Investigated.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 18.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, presided at the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration today and made the opening address. After ridiculing the idea that huge armies and navies are necessary to preserve peace and national honor, Dr. Butler made this declaration:

"My impression is that somebody makes something by reason of the huge expenditures in preparation for war. Have you ever noticed that about the time that the appropriations for military purposes are under consideration in the congress, in the house of commons, in the chamber of deputies or in the reichstag, or just before such a time, hostilities are always on the point of breaking out in two or three parts of the world at once?

Poor, Gullible People.

"Just at these times war prophets begin to see visions and to dream dreams, and the poor, gullible people rush off to their cyclone cellars, and shout timorously to their representatives to vote at once and as much as possible in order that great ships and guns and forts may be built to protect them from their fears.

"We have done of late some helpful and illuminating legislative inquiring in this country. It might be worth while to have the same sort of ability that has so brilliantly exposed to our repelled and astonished gaze other forms of political chicanery and graft, make some measurement of the sincerity and disinterestedness of the lively type of patriotism which accompanies these military and naval debates the world over."

GIRL KILLED; SIX MEN HELD

Youths at Target Practice Thought to Have Fired Fatal Shot.

Saco, Me., May 18.—Sitting at a window in her home last night, 13-year-old Ernestine Townsend was hit by a bullet which caused her death an hour later. The police have arrested six young men employed near by, who are said to have been in the habit of practicing with a revolver at a back-yard target.

RUST RETURNS FROM SHIPPERS' CONFERENCE.

C. R. Rust, treasurer and manager of Stone-Ordean-Wells company, has returned from Chicago, where he attended the meeting of shippers from Mississippi valley points. He was elected a member of a committee of seventeen that will carry on the fight of the shippers to prevent, if possible, the adoption by the railroads of higher freight tariffs.

Mr. Rust stated this morning that he had nothing to add to the Associated Press reports of the meeting.

Kroonland Passengers on Adriatic.

Southampton, May 18.—The steamer Adriatic sailed today for New York, having on board the first-class passengers transferred from the crippled Kroonland, which put in here Monday. The Kroonland broke a shaft after sailing from Antwerp on Saturday.

New York Village Burned.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., May 18.—The village of Faust was swept by fire today. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

Quiet At Cement Plant.

Hannibal, Mo., May 18.—Unless the striking workmen of the cement works at Ilasco make another outbreak, the militiamen on duty there will be withdrawn before the end of the week. The blowing of the whistle at the plant this morning brought a small number of workmen to their jobs. There was no trouble last night.

PULLMANS BEGIN FIGHT

Suit to Prevent Lowering of Sleeping Car Rates Is Filed.

Jurisdiction of Interstate Commerce Commission Attacked.

Chicago, May 18.—Legal warfare against the interstate commerce commission to prevent lowering of sleeping car rates as ordered by the committee, was begun here today in the filing of a bill for an injunction against the commission by General Solicitor Daniels of the Pullman company, with the clerk of the United States circuit court.

A hearing is expected next Wednesday.

The bill attacks the jurisdiction of the commission over the company and alleges that the company is not engaged in the business of furnishing transportation, merely renting its cars to the railroads as traveling hotels.

SAYS FILIPINOS WANT FREEDOM

Speaker Osmena Cables Statement to Delegate at Washington.

Washington, May 18.—Our desire for independence remains unalterable," declared Speaker Serjio Osmena of the Philippine assembly, in a cablegram to Delegate Quezon, who petitioned the house Saturday for immediate independence of the Filipinos. The message was one of a number congratulating Mr. Quezon on his speech.

Speaker Osmena cabled that the Filipino people craved the advancement of the national cause by all possible means; that ten years of American administration showed that the Filipinos were capable of maintaining an independent government, and that justice of the American people would decide in favor of Filipino freedom.

Chairman Alberto Barreto of the Nationalist party cabled his warm congratulations on the expression of the desire of the Filipinos to the American people. Delegate Quezon belongs to this party, which is dominant in the Philippines, embracing, it is claimed, 90 per cent of the people and sixty-five of the eighty delegates to the assembly.

COLEMAN IS GIVEN FIFTEEN YEARS IN JAIL.

Boston, Mass., May 18.—George W. Coleman, after admitting today that he looted the National City Bank of Cambridge of $209,000, was sentenced to fifteen years in the county jail at Greenfield, Mass., by Judge Haley in the United States district court today.

One Year for Grand Larceny.

Linton, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—For grand larceny, to which he pleaded guilty, Frank Keefe was sentenced by Judge Winchester to one year in the state penitentiary. Aug. Fredrickson, charged with resisting an officer also pleaded guilty but was not sentenced. Several prohibition cases were considered and continued until the next session.

INDORSED BY VOTERS IN OHIO PRIMARIES

CHARLES DICK.
United States Senator From Ohio.

DENVER DRYS LOSE AT POLLS

City Votes for Saloons By Over Five Thousand Majority.

Denver, Col., May 18.—The anti-saloon element which sought to make this city "dry" were beaten in the election yesterday by a majority of from 5,000 to 10,000.

The extension of the franchise of the Denver Union Water company for twenty years was decisively beaten.

HEAR ABOUT THE PROBATION IDEA

Conferees at St. Louis Discuss Treatment of Wayward Youths.

St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—The National Conference on the Education of Backward, Truant, Delinquent and Dependent Children was adjourned here today. "Dangers of Probation," was discussed by Judge Harvey H. Baker of the juvenile court, Boston, and Judge William H. Delacey of the juvenile court, Washington, D. C.

The only real danger of the probation system in the treatment of offenders against law, as pointed out by Judge Baker does not come from anything inherent in the probation system itself, but from other things, due to its faulty administration.

"What is most frequently suggested as a danger of probation," said Judge Baker, "is that its use will impair the deterrent effect on potential offenders of proceedings against actual offenders. Probation in its essence is the holding of fine and commitment in abeyance putting the offender under a trained worker who tries to put him right. Such oversight efficiently maintained is a strenuous experience for the boy who has got into lawless habits, and the way for courts and communities to avoid danger in the use of this system is to insist on effective administration by efficient probation officers."

ONE TARIFF MAN BEATEN

Ohio Voters Back All Other Republicans in Congress.

Primaries Also Result in Indorsement of Senator Charles Dick.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 18.—Forty-two candidates were nominated in Ohio yesterday for the twenty-one seats belonging to the state in the lower house of congress. Under the state election laws, Democrats and Republicans joined in the primaries.

Ralph D. Cole, Republican, of the Eighth district, was the only present congressman defeated for a renomination. Frank B. Willis takes his place upon the ticket.

A result of the election that was not wholly anticipated was the indorsement of Senator Charles Dick for a return to the senate by about two-thirds of the Republicans who participated in the primaries. His name was the only one presented for indorsement, but a brisk fight was made against him. In Akron, his home city, a number of voters wrote in the name of James R. Garfield in the place of that of Senator Dick.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL PROBE

Bureau of Labor Is About to Undertake an Extended Inquiry.

Washington, May 18.—A study of industrial education in the United States has been begun by the bureau of labor. The scope of the inquiry has not been definitely determined by Commissioner Neill. A special agent of the bureau is studying in a general way the various forms of industrial training.

Much public interest has been evidenced in the subject, and the department of commerce and labor has received numerous requests that the bureau of labor be permitted to embark on an exhaustive study of it. The American Federation of Labor and many economic institutions have petitioned the department in this regard.

Unions and Trade Schools.

St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—Members of labor unions, being jealous of their callings, have held aloof from encouraging the establishment of trade schools, said Sam De Nedrey, secretary of the Central Labor Union of Washington, D. C., last night.

"Labor unions," said Mr. De Nedrey, "while not opposed to trade schools as such, have so far refrained from encouraging or indorsing them, though sympathetically inclined toward them. The worker has nearly always found to his sorrow, in case of strikes, that the 'graduate' of a trade school had only a smattering of the trade he thought he was learning, and was only useful to an employer as a strike-breaker.

"Trade schools, if allowed to run wild, as they are, mean the very life of the apprenticeship system of labor unions, because they preclude the teaching of a trade to the boy."

SAYS DRINK IS THE LESSER EVIL

Bishop Codman Declares It Is Impurity That Ruins Nations.

Portland, Me., May 18.—Impurity and not drunkenness should be regarded as the chief object of church attacks, according to Bishop Robert Codman of the Episcopal diocese of Maine. In a report on diocesan work Bishop Codman says that since he came to Maine he has often been invited to speak on the temperance question, but his answer was that, dreadful as drunkenness was, there was a far more important fight to be made in the state of Maine, and that was the fight against impurity.

"The Anglo-Saxons have always been addicted to drink more or less," he continued, "but drink has not killed the Anglo-Saxon race. Impurity, however, will destroy the nation."

BETHLEHEM STEEL STRIKE CALLED OFF.

Easton, Pa., May 18.—The Bethlehem Steel strike was officially declared off today, the executive committee of the strikers accepting the terms offered by President Schwab of the Steel company.

SCIENTISTS GO TO ALASKA COAL FIELDS.

Seattle, Wash., May 18.—G. E. Martin, Theodore Chapin and F. J. Katz of the United States geological survey arrived in Seattle yesterday on their way from Washington, D. C., to Alaska, where they will spend the summer making an examination of the Matanuska coal fields, which Alaskans say contain the richest coal deposits in the North. The Matanuska fields will be tapped by the Alaska Northern railway, when the land is released by the government.

Art and the Public.

Washington, May 18—"Art: and How to Make the Public Appreciate It," formed one of the principal topics of discussion at today's session of the convention of the American Federation of Artists, which was formed here a year ago for the advancement of art in general.

WOMAN HAS LICENSE TO RUN AEROPLANE

MME. DE LA ROCHE.

Paris, May 18.—Mme. de la Roche is the only woman aeroplanist who has won an air pilot's license from the French Aero club. She flew four times around the aviation course at Heliopolis, a total distance of twelve miles. She has a pilot to operate her machine. Her costume is the latest thing in aeroplane fashion.

COL. AMES TO STAND TRIAL

Court-Martial Ordered as Result of Lieutenant's Suicide.

Janney Case Is to Be Aired Again in the Philippines.

Manila, May 18.—Upon instructions from Washington, Lieut. Col. Robert F. Ames was today confined to quarters and will be court-martialed on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and to the prejudice of military discipline.

The action against the officer is a sequel to the investigation of the circumstances which led Lieut. Clarence M. Janney, of the Twelfth Infantry, U. S. A., to take his life following a dinner party at the home of Ames at Fort William McKinley. The suicide's wife remains at the fort and probably will be the chief witness at the court-martial.

A Filipino coroner and an army board of inquiry found that Janney committed suicide.

Killed Himself in March.

Janney's death occurred on the night of March 12 last. On that evening Janney and his wife attended a dinner given by Ames. Capt. William H. Jordan, Jr., also of the Twelfth Infantry, completed the party.

According to the testimony of the witnesses, Lieut. Janney and his wife quarreled during the evening. Janney recognized in the home of his friend a champagne cooler which had belonged to him, but which Mrs. Janney had given to Ames. Janney upbraided his wife because of the gift and harsh words followed. Finally Janney demanded an apology from his wife and this was made. This ended the quarrel,

COMET HAS 'EM SCARED

Farmers at Neenah, Wis., Take Down the Lightning Rods.

Michigan and Alabama Men Commit Suicide in Fear of It.

Neenah, Wis., May 18.—Fearful that the rods might attract dangerous substances that might accompany the comet today, the farmers in this vicinity have removed the lightning arresters from their homes and barns and taken other extra precautions.

In the Polish settlement of this city the families will remain in their homes in prayer.

Conjure Bags in Demand.

Atlanta, Ga., May 18.—Dealers in "conjure" bags in the negro sections of the city carried on a thriving business today as the result of the scheduled trip of the earth through the Halley comet tail tonight. Meetings also were held in the churches throughout the day, thousands of negroes refusing to return to work until the passing of the "comic." The fact that cloudy weather throughout the South today and tonight will obscure the heavens, is expected to allay the fears of the superstitious.

Killed Himself in Fear.

Decatur, Ala., May 18.—Worry for fear the Halley comet would set fire to the world is attributed as the cause of the suicide of Wade Cowan, a farmer near here, who died yesterday of strychnine poisoning.

Negroes Joining Church.

Alexandria, Va., May 18.—Halley's comet is doing more in Alexandria and the surrounding country for the church than all the revivals have done for years past. The superstitious ones

UNCLE SAM TO BE ARBITRATOR

Will Work With Brazil and Argentina in Peru-Ecuador Affair.

Lima, Peru, May 18.—It is reported that the cabinet has decided to accept a proposal from the United States, Brazil and Argentina for joint mediation in the boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador which has brought the two republics to the verge of war.

Confirmed at Washington.

Washington, May 18.—Information received here today confirms the report from Lima that the United States, Argentina and Brazil will mediate between Peru and Ecuador to prevent hostilities. While no official acceptance has been received it is not doubted that both Ecuador and Peru will concur.

NO COMPROMISE WITH INSURGENTS

Regular Republicans in the Senate Will Not Alter Railroad Bill.

Washington, May 18.—At a conference of regulars of the senate it was decided that compromise with the "insurgent" Republicans was impossible. All propositions looking to an agreement through mutual concessions for an amicable settlement of remaining sections of the railroad bill are likely to be withdrawn.

UNCLE SAM TAKES HAND

Nicaraguans Are Notified That Bluefields Must Be Let Alone.

Crisis in Madriz-Estrada Warfare Is Expected Very Soon.

Washington, May 18.—Commander Gilmer of the United States gunboat Paducah has served notice on Gen. Irias, who is in command of the steamer Venus, that he will not permit a bombardment of the city of Bluefields, Nicaragua, and he has also notified Gen. Estrada and Gen. Madriz that he will not permit any armed conflict within the city.

These notices were sent after Gen. Irias had given notice of his intention to bombard the city should Gen. Estrada not surrender in the meantime. Gen. Estrada, is learned has refused to comply with the remand for surrender.

Crisis Is Near.

New Orleans, La., May 18.—A crisis of the Nicaraguan situation involving the supremacy of Madriz or Estrada is

HUNT GRAFT IN ILLINOIS

South Chicago Bill and Purchase of Furniture Under Fire.

Col. Ira Copley Offers Fund for Work in Lorimer Affair.

Springfield, Ill., May 18.—State's Attorney Burke has announced that he will begin an investigation into the passage of the legislative bill known as the "greater South Chicago bill." This bill authorized the sale to the Illinois Steel company and the Iroquois Iron company of land on the lake front in South Chicago for a consideration of $200,000. It was charged before the passage of the bill that the land in question was worth approximately $3,000,000.

Secretary of State Rose is expected to appear before the grand jury and bring documents regarding the award of a contract to a Chicago company for furnishing desks and chairs for the senate chamber and representative hall. Secretary Rose was one of the committee appointed to receive bids and award the contract. He says he opposed making any such contract because he thought new furniture was not needed, and also because he considered the bids too high and the quality of furniture proffered inferior.

Investigation of the work of the Illinois Manufacturers' association against labor legislation will be commenced tomorrow.

Copley Offers Fund.

Chicago, May 18.—Col. Ira Copley, millionaire magnate of Aurora, Ill., called upon State's Attorney Wayman here and offered to contribute a large sum of money to assist Mr. Wayman in carrying on the investigation into the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate.

Col. Copley went to the criminal court building, accompanied by Attorney Altschuler of Aurora and Attorney Frank R. Reid, representing Michael S. Link. They held a conference with Mr. Wayman lasting an hour.

When the conference had concluded, Mr. Wayman said: Col. Copley was on the ground at Springfield when the senatorial fight was on. He was interested to a certain extent and stands ready and willing to give all the information at his command. He voluntarily offered to contribute a substantial amount of money to aid in clearing up the case.

New Farmers' Club.
The Tri-County Producers' association is the latest farmers' organization to indicate an intention of joining the central association which has its headquarters here. The Tri-County association was organized at Farris, Hubbard county.

Heavy Penalty for Theft.
James McDonald was fined $100 and costs or sixty days in the county jail in police court this morning for stealing a watch and chain worth $3 from Julius Lawson yesterday afternoon. McDonald was captured by Patrolmen McDermott and Dickman after an exciting chase of several blocks on the Bowery yesterday afternoon. Lawson was arrested by the same policemen and charged with being drunk, but sentence was suspended on him this morning. Lawson met McDonald in the morning when he got off the train, and, being lonesome, offered to buy him a drink. He also bought him a dinner, and gave him some money.

TWO CHINAMEN ARE RELEASED

Prove Their Right to Remain in This Country.

Tom Yuen and Hom Yuk, two Chinamen held by the government immigration authorities on account of their inability to show good papers certifying to their right to reside in the United States, were released by United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell this afternoon with the consent of the government.

The claims set up by the two men that they were admitted to the United States on re-entry after a visit in China, their claim that they were merchants at Butte, Mont., having been substantiated at that time, was investigated by the government and found to be correct. Although the men are laborers now, their status as merchants was established at that so they were released.

The case of Chin Yip, who claims to have been born in the United states, will come up for further hearing tomorrow. Shew Chong and Neong Hin Han have been ordered deported and the case of Wei Tuck Tong, who also claims to have been born in the United States will come up May 26, he having been given time to secure papers to substantiate his claim.

MARKET DULL AND LIFELESS

Coppers Sag Throughout a Quiet Session and Close Weak.

The copper market was weak and lifeless today, although around midday there was some buying in the railroad list on the report that the Big Four had been successful in placing $10,000,000 in bonds in Paris. This caused shorts to cover, and firmness in the industrials and railroads was communicated to the copper list.

The strength was only temporary, however, and values sagged to the low points at the close. The public was not interested and professional trading was light. There was little news to influence the market. Declines were small.

Amalgamated sold at $70.12½ to $69.62½; Steel common at $82.62½ to $81.87½ to $82.37½; Butte Coalition sold at $20.75 to $20.25; Calumet & Arizona at $62.75 to $62; Giroux at $7.50 to $7.25 and back to the opening. Greene was traded in at $8.25 to $8.50 and down to the opening. North Butte sold at $33 to $33.12½. Superior & Pittsburg brought $12.12½ and $12.25.

Trading here was light. Butte Alex-Scott sold at $6.62½ to $6.56¼ and the part paid sold at $3. Copper Queen sold at 30c; Shattuck at $30.12½, $29.75 and $29.87½; Butte & Superior at $1.25 and $1.81¼; Calumet & Montana at $1.12½; Calumet & Corbin at 65 and 69c; Keating at $1.25; National at 30c; Sierra at $3.12½, $2.50 and $3.

WONDER ABOUT END OF INQUIRY

Ballinger-Pinchot Investigators May Not Report This Session.

Washington, May 18.—Members of the Ballinger-Pinchot committee are discussing the probability of a report during the session of congress. Several members said today that the hearings could not be concluded and the mass of testimony reviewed and passed upon before congress adjourned. Senator Root will leave at the end of this week for The Hague. The Republican regulars still will hold the control with Senator Root eliminated, even though Representative Madison, the "insurgent" member should vote with the Democrats. The vote would stand 6 to 5.

Chairman Nelson said today it was impossible to say just when the investigation would end. He said no agreement had been reached by members of the committee and that the matter rested with counsel. Hearings will be resumed tomorrow.

WILL PLAN WAR ON SHORT WEIGHT

Duluth Sealer of Weights and Measures to Meet Other Officials.

St. Paul, Mann., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leonard Norton, city sealer of weights and measures, will meet with the sealers of Minneapolis, Chicago, and Duran of Duluth, and other cities in Minneapolis on May 26, to exchange ideas as to how best to circumvent the dealer who wants to short-weight his customers.

Sealer Kjallener of Chicago has a national reputation as a man who promotes the use of correct weights and measures. He has succeeded in beating out bakers and others who fought his methods.

TELL HOW PRICES HAVE BEEN RAISED

Witnesses in Railroad Hearing in Chicago Include Tradesmen.

Chicago, May 18.—Groceries and meats have increased between 33 1-3 and 40 per cent in the last three years, according to the testimony here today of Casper Sengerberger, a grocer and butcher of Peoria who testified in the arbitration proceedings of forty-nine western railroads and their enginemen.

Edward Richley, a shoe dealer, testified that rubbers have advanced between 40 and 50 per cent in the last year and a half and that he had been notified of a further rise of 5 per cent next month. Shoes, he said, have advanced 20 per cent in the last three years.

MRS. MOORE RE-ELECTED

Federation of Women's Clubs Concludes Choice of Officers.

Mrs. Welch of Minnesota Declines to Continue as Treasurer.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 18.—On this, the last day of the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, officers were installed, invitations of cities for the next biennial convention were heard, and there were conferences on social hygiene and the white slave traffic.

Claims for the next convention were made by Chicago, New Orleans, Salt Lake City, Utah, and San Francisco. The council of the federation will decide later where the convention is to be held. The executive officers had no opposition for election and the following were chosen to serve during the coming two years:

President, Mrs. Phillip N. Moore of Missouri; first vice president, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, California; second vice president, Mrs. Mary Bell King, Sherman, Ill.; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry R. Dawson, New Jersey; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank N. Shiek, Wyoming; treasurer, Mrs. John Threadgill, Oxiahoma; auditor, Mrs. L. L. Blankenburg, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Welch Declined.

All of these were re-elected except as to the office of treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Welch of Minnesota, the incumbent, declining another term.

The election of directors resulted as follows:

Mesdames Desha Breckenridge, Kentucky, 577 votes; Elmer Blair, New York, 542; John A. Nash, Iowa, 521; Eurgenia Reilly, North Carolina, 520; C. H MacMahon, Utah, 517; J. Creighton Mathews, Louisiana, 499; L. H. Kiefe, Nebraska, 483.

Mrs. Blair, who polled the second highest vote, was one of two "insurgents" nominated from the floor of the convention yesterday. The other, Mrs. Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati, failed of election by forty votes.

That evening at the convention, Dr. Richard Burton of the University of Minnesota lectured on "The Theater and the People."

BRITISH POLO PLAYER SUICIDE

Captain in Second Life Guards Found Dead at Roadside.

London, May 18.—Capt. Claude Champion de Crespigny of the Second Life Guards, member of the Burlingham polo team that recently visited the United States, committed suicide by shooting today. The captain was found with a revolver in hand, seated at the roadside near King's Cliffe, in Northamptonshire, where he had been the guest of Lord Brassey. The suicide is a son of Sir Claude Champion de Crespigny, and was 37 years of age.

PLANS FOR RECEPTION

Public Welcome for "Bishop Corbett" on His Return.

Vestments and Jewels Presented By His Former Parishioners.

Monday evening at the Sacred Heart Cathedral auditorium, the people of Duluth, among whom Father Timothy Corbett has labored for twenty-one years, will tender a reception to him as bishop of the new diocese of Crookston.

Committees have been appointed and they are making elaborate preparations for the reception. Father Corbett, since the announcement of his appointment to the higher office, has been in retirement and no public expression has been made of the feelings engendered in the hearts of his parishioners by his elevation to the episcopate and the necessity of his departure for the new field of endeavor.

Tomorrow at St. Paul, Father Corbett, together with five other bishops-elect, will be consecrated to the episcopal office by Archbishop John Ireland. The elaborate ceremony, the most notable in the history of the Catholic church in America, and in the recent history of the entire church, will be attended by church dignitaries and clergy from all over the United States. Father Corbett and Bishop James McGolrick left for St. Paul yesterday. A number of Duluth priests and laymen also left today to be present at the consecration.

Bishop Corbett will return to Duluth Friday or Saturday and will be met at the train by a number of his parishioners. Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, in Sacred Heart cathedral, where he officiated as a priest for the last score of years, he will celebrate his first pontifical high mass.

The reception Monday night will be open to the public for an expression of regret over Father Corbett's departure and pleasure over the recognition of his excellent service for the church. It will be a reception and a farewell and the people in general will extend to the new bishop their well wishes for his work in the new diocese.

Numerous private expressions of esteem have already been offered the bishop-elect. Scores of individuals, friends and admirers of Father Corbett for many years, have presented him with gifts. The sodalities of the parish, the league of the Sacred Heart, the school children, the Bishop's club, the Catholic Order of Foresters, the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, the A. O. H. and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H., have all presented Father Corbett with gifts, most of which took the form of necessities for his new office. The gifts include rings, mitres, crosiers and vestments needed by the new bishop.

The installation of the new bishop at Crookston in June will also be a notable event, marking a great step forward in the progress of the Catholic church in the Northwest. Twenty years ago, the diocese of Duluth was formed as a new diocese, including in its territory all of Northern Minnesota. The diocese of Duluth in twenty years has progressed so under Bishop McGolrick's episcopate that it has become too great for one bishop's care and the new diocese was formed. As chancellor of the diocese of Duluth, Father Corbett gained an intimate knowledge of the needs of the territory of which he is to have charge and he will go to Crookston well equipped to take up the work of caring for and buiding up the new diocese.

The ceremonies of installation at Crookston will be in charge of Archbishop Ireland and will be attended by many church dignitaries and clergy. Many of Bishop Corbett's former parishioners in Duluth will go to Crookston to see him installed in his new office.

TAFT DENIES HE EVER SAID IT

Reports That Have Riled Insurgents Are Declared to Be False.

Washington, May 18.—President Taft today authorized several of the senators to deny absoutely stories in circulation during the past few days that President Taft recently had denounced the insurgents in unmistakable terms and had used language to which these statesmen took offense.

Reports reached the White House today that some of the insurgents smarting under what they had heard had been said of them, were determined to defeat the railroad bill and other of the president's measures regardless of what might happen to them or to the party. This latest phase of the much-troubled situation in the senate was discussed at the White House today at a conference between the president, Senators Aldrich and Root and Attorney-General Wickersham. The president declared he could not recall having said anything regarding the insurgents which could in any way justify the reports. The president was told that the remarks attributed to him were alleged to have been made to a number of newspaper men.

The insurgents also are said to have taken offense at the general tone of the discussion at the Saturday night conference at the White House. The president said he had not made any such remarks as were reported to any newspaper men or any men.

NOBLE REDMEN GET TOO MUCH FIREWATER.

Four redskins from the reservation came to Duluth yesterday to paint the town red, landing in the police station one after another. Joe Star was picked up by Patrolmen Barber and Butchart in the afternoon "four sheets in the wind." About midnight Pete Belanger, Joe Mesaba and Edward Luis were brought in with intervals about half an hour between the arrests. They thought they had gone to the happy hunting grounds, but they woke up in the bull pen this morning, surrounded by a dozen other bleary-eyed "Indians" who had gotten the worst of a fight with the fire water. They pleaded guilty in police court when their names were called and received suspended sentences. Joe Mesaba was from Canada and the others from the reservation at Odanah, Wis.

CHAUFFEUR IS ON TRIAL

Herbert Helmer Charged With Violation of Traffic Ordinance.

Case Is Outcome of Accidental Death of Mrs. Hannah Munroe.

Herbert Helmer, the 19-year-old chauffeur, who drove the automobile which killed Mrs. Hannah Monroe of 217 East Third street, April 21, was placed on trial in police court this morning before Judge Cutting, charged with violating the traffic ordinance. The allegation is that he crossed the intersection of Lake avenue and First street at a rate faster than one mile in eight minutes. The city completed its case this noon, and an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock.

For the purpose of enabling the witnesses who saw the machine the day of the fatality to better testify as to the speed of the car several were given a demonstration with the big Franklin of the police department early this morning. The machine was driven at different speeds over an estimated course on Jefferson street. The general opinion was that the car was going about twenty-five miles an hour. The complaint was sworn out by William H. Oakley, a relative of the victim. It is understood that the action in police court is brought as a preliminary to a civil suit for damages.

The witnesses who testified for the city were Bert Holcombe, John J. Mullin, Anton Hoglund, Leonard Ness and Chief C. H. Troyer. The latter told of his conversation with Helmer in the police station after he had been taken into custody on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree. He stated that Helmer told him he had looked at his speedometer before reaching the crossing at Lake avenue and that it showed he was going eleven miles an hour. The case was laid before the grand jury, but that body refused to return an indictment. Helmer was represented by Alford & Hunt and the city by City Prosecutor Dacey.

SOCIALISTS CHEER SEIDEL

Milwaukee's New Mayor Visits Party Meeting in Chicago.

Chicago, May 18.—Emil Seidel, the new Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, was recognized by only a few of his political comrades when he paid his frequently deferred visit to the Socialist congress here today.

"That's Seidel," the word went around until it had spread throughout the hall and was lost in wave on wave of cheering.

Consideration of the immigration question for the moment was lost sight of. The outbursts subsided long enough, however, to allow the choosing of the Milwaukee man to occupy the chair, and then broke out again.

"Cheer for the cause, not for the individual," shouted the mayor. (More cheers.)

"Don't talk; roll up your sleeves and get busy."

Presently Mr. Seidel was able in normal tones to declare that Milwaukee was doing even better than had been expected—was able, he asserted, to perform any feat of government which might properly be required of it.

Then the immigration question, now three days old, came up for renewed consideration.

PAUL FOURNIER IS AGAIN BEING TRIED

Third Trial of Beltrami County Man at Aitkin Under Change of Venue.

Aitkin, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The third trial of Paul Fournier, for murder alleged to have been committed in Beltrami county, is on in the district court here before Judge Stanton, a change of venue from Beltrami county having been secured. This morning's session of court was devoted to a fruitless effort to secure a jury.

Attorney McKusick is questioning the jurors for the state, and Mr. Scrutchin for the defendant. F. W. Hall and E. H. Krelwetz of Aitkin and J. Henry Long of Brainerd were appointed triers.

The state questions each juror as to possessing conscientious scruples relative to imposing the death penalty, and whether the juror would hesitate to return a verdict of guilty on purely circumstantial evidence when the death penalty might ensue.

Judge Stanton has intervened to explain several questions. The courtroom is filled with interested spectators.

Yesterday afternoon, John Okerberg pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Judge Stanton sentenced Okerberg to three years in the penitentiary. Okerberg stole three $20 bills and one $5 bill from a man at McGregor. This was his second crime of grand larceny in the second degree within two years.

Prepares System For Hot Weather

Remarkable Results of Robinson "Thermal" for Rheumatism, Nervous Breakdown, Kidney Trouble, Skin and Other Diseases.

Does What No Drug on Earth Can Do.

The results produced by a Robinson "Thermal" Bath inside of 30 minutes are almost beyond belief. Physicians everywhere are changing from drugs to thermal baths in the treatment of many diseases.

It has been found, for instance, in the case of rheumatism, that uric acid in the blood can be extracted from the system completely in a few days' time.

Eczema can be completely cured within a week.

After one or two thermal baths, nervous wrecks find the change to strength and vigor hard to realize.

Similar results are obtained in cases of kidney trouble, neuralgia, pimples, all skin diseases, throat and lung trouble, insomnia, constipation, lumbago and bad colds.

This is to certify that the undersigned, a resident of Newton, Iowa, was afflicted for twenty-one years with asthma, heart trouble, kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had taken everything known to medical science, together with three seasons at Mineral Springs, without receiving relief. I commenced taking the Thermal Baths in the Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet four years ago and was completely cured. I continue the use of them, taking the baths every week in preference to water baths for keeping clean.

L. B. WESTBROOK,
Newton, Iowa.

It is now possible for any man or woman to have Robinson Thermal Baths at home with hardly any trouble at all, and at a cost of only a few cents.

Whatever your disease or ailment, get a Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet, and you will not only cure yourself quickly but realize as you never did before what real vigor and health are.

The best remedy for sluggish blood and spring fever.

The Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinets are on exhibition and for sale in Duluth at A. E. Swedberg, White Swan Drug Co., Lyceum Pharmacy and Lenox Drug store—two stores, W. A. Abbett—three stores, A. C. # EARTH WILL BE IN COMET'S TAIL ABOUT SEVEN HOURS

Moon Will Interfere With Observations---Eclipse of Moon Monday.

Superstitious People Fear That Many Disasters Will Result From Visit.

From early this evening until well after midnight the earth will be in the tail of Halley's comet and superstitious people, who have expressed fears of the dire effects to come from the immersion, will be disillusioned. Astronomers, who have observed and photographed the comet's tail say that it is so filmsy that no harm can possibly come to life on the earth.

The earth, the sun and the comet will be the principal actors in the phenomena to occur tonight when the comet passes between the earth and the sun, but the moon is not to be outdone and it will take an unpopular part. The moon is bright and, while there might be something to see while the earth is in the tail of the comet, were there no moon, it is very likely that the light of the moon will discount the illumination of the filmy tail and people on this side of the earth will see nothing.

For evenly-balanced people, who do not give credence to superstitious tales, the phenomena tonight have interest as a spectacle only and many will remain awake late in the hope that they may see something. The passing of the comet between the earth and the sun will occur when it is evening in Duluth, so that the actual occurrence will be on the other side of the earth. It is doubtful if people there will see anything, for the comet's head is believed to be loosely formed, that the light of the sun will pass through and nothing will be observed during the passage.

In Direct Line.

The sun, the earth and the comet will be in a direct line at 9:19 by central time tonight. The comet's tail is said to be 1,000,000 miles in width, so that the earth will be seven hours or thereabouts in passing through it. The earth will enter the tail early this evening and will not pass out again until some time after midnight.

Astronomers are somewhat in doubt as to whether anything will be seen tonight. The moon will be a hindrance to observation, but even if there were to be no moon, it is possible that the tail would not be visible as it is so rare that it may be like a light fog, which may be seen from a distance but is hardly visible to those in it.

If the comet's tail still surrounds the earth when the moon goes down, some slight illumination may be visible in the air, but the moon will probably not go down until the earth has passed out of the tail.

Moon Will Be Hindrance.

The moon will be a decided hindrance to observations of the comet for the next week, except Monday night, when an interesting phenomenon may be observed if the sky is clear. A total eclipse of the moon will occur Monday night at about the time the comet should be visible here. People will have an opportunity, if the sky is clear, of observing the eclipse of the moon at the same time that the comet is in the sky.

The moon will be bright all during the next week and its light will somewhat obscure the comet. By the time the moon's interference ends, the comet will have moved some distance away from the earth and it is possible that the moon will prevent the comet being observed at its best at any time.

Tomorrow morning after the moon has set, the comet's tail may be slightly visible. Tomorrow night, a portion of the tail should be above the horizon in the west some hours after the setting of the sun. By Saturday evening, the whole comet should be above the horizon and, unless the light of the moon is a hindrance, the observance of the celestial visitor will be under most auspicious circumstances.

Comet's Tail Observed.

In regard to this morning's observations, J. H. Darling of the United States engineers' office said today:

"The clear air this morning, since the rainfall, enabled me to see the tail of Halley's comet at 2:45 o'clock, and for half an hour afterward, that is until 3:15, after which the twilight became too strong to see it later. It appeared as a long streak of feeble light, something like a streamer of an aurora, but it could not be the latter, for it remained in a fixed position, whereas the aurora streamers are continually changing in form and position.

"The head of the comet was not visible, it being near the sun, and there was a low lying bank of thin clouds over the lake near the horizon which shut off the portion of the tail nearest to the head. The portion of the tail visible stretched in a straight line from about the star Gamma Pegasi to the star Theta Aquilae, a distance of as much as 55 deg. The left hand end of this portion was nearly due east and 10 deg. or more above the horizon, and from this point the tail stretched away to the right, or southward and inclined upward, in the above described position.

"The head of the comet was probably about 43 deg. to the left of the star Gamma, so that the entire length of the tail must have been nearly 100 deg.

"The width of the tail was greatest near the star Gamma, where it was perhaps 3 deg. wide, and it narrowed in width to something like 1 or 1½ deg. at the star Theta. The form was rather peculiar, as it narrowed toward its farther extremity, instead of widening out, as is usual with comets. I could hardly be sure that this was the object which I was looking for, except for the reason that it lay in the proper position among the stars. Its great size is largely owing to its present near approach to the earth. Its length is such that it will undoubtedly reach out beyond the earth and surround our planet tonight for a few hours, but it is an exceedingly flimsy appendage and can do no harm to any one.

"What appearance the comet will present tonight is hard to predict. Possibly a hazy spot of light may be seen in the southern sky about 9 or 10 o'clock, in the constellation Scorpion, a few degrees to the right of the bright star, Antares, which will be in the direction of the comet's tail as prolonged in the opposite direction from the sun, but it would be faint and obscured by the bright moonlight, and I think more likely nothing will be seen at all by our observers."

There was a story going the rounds of the local marine circles, stating that some of the more superstitious of the captains had asked that they be allowed to stay in port until after the appearance of the comet, which is scheduled for this evening.

While the comet might possibly make some difference to the wireless telegraph operators, in that it would disturb the sending of messages, it can in no way have any bearing on navigation or the course of the ships. However, there are some very superstitious captains sailing the Great Lakes and several vessel agencies this morning verified the report that at least two captains had asked that they be allowed to remain in port until after the Halley comet had done its "durndest."

The expected appearance of the comet this evening or tonight will, however, make no difference in the sailing of boats, and no matter how superstitious a captain is, he will probably sail out of port today if his ship is ready.

"Has anybody here seen Kelly?" asked a man in the St. Louis hotel this morning.

"Nobody hasn't,' came the emphatic reply.

"That's what they all tell me," said the inquirer, with a hint of sadness in his tone. "Guess the comet got him. Poor Kelly!"

And he wandered away.

"It's the gas, you know. Tain't the comet itself. You see, the gas is made of some vacuum stuff, and that's deadly. There's no use talking, there's is danger from the comet. I don't know anything about it, but that's the way I feel about it."

That was the gist of the remarks heard on the Bowery. The speaker shook his head dubiously and headed for the West end, where vacuum stuff possibly isn't so deadly.

"B-r-r-r," went the telephone bell at 3:30 this morning, and the newspaper man bounded out of bed to get the message.

"Say," came the voice of a friend, "better get to a window and see Halley's comet. I've got it located, and it's just as plain."

The newspaper man hurried to a convenient window and gazed out in the direction indicated by the friend, from whose careful instructions he was able to locate the "comet." It was Venus.

Tonight will be a night of worry for the superstitious.

Because they fear a tidal wave some Park Pointers will sleep up-town. Some will stay with friends and others have engaged rooms at the various hotels. It is no joke with them, either. There are many Pointers, however, who scoff at the idea of a tidal wave and they will remain on the point all night.

H. W. Richardson of the weather bureau says newspaper reporters are the only ones who will see the comet. He says they are the only ones who stay out late at night. It might be mentioned that several—and they were not all newspaper reporters either—have thought they have seen the comet during the last few nights.

Many little parties have been formed for tonight. The parties are for various purposes. Some are really formed to see the comet. Others are formed because the comet offers a good excuse.

The weather man says that the night will be clear so that those who desire to see it will have a fine chance.

FORTY-SEVEN RUSSIANS DROWN

Boat Loaded With Workmen Upsets While Crossing the River.

Alexandrovsky, Russia, May 18.—Forty-seven workmen were drowned today through the upsetting of a boat in which a party of ninety-four laborers was being carried across the river Dnieper, near here. The cataracts are a short distance above. The current at this point is strong. The boat became unmanageable soon after leaving the shore, due probably to overloading. Suddenly, in midstream, it turned turtle.

MAN FALLS SIXTY FEET

Walks to Ambulance After Striking on Concrete Floor.

Cut in Shoulder Apparently the Only Injury Sustained.

Elmer Olson, a plasterer, employed at the new Hartley theater on Second avenue east between Superior and First streets, fell sixty feet down the elevator shaft shortly before noon today. Although he struck on the concrete floor in the basement he escaped apparently unhurt, except for a small cut on his shoulder, due probably to the fact that his fall was broken by two planks in the middle of the shaft.

He was rushed to St. Luke's hospital in Totman's ambulance, but an examination failed to show any injury. It is possible that he may have been hurt internally, but no indications that such was the case was discovered. He walked to the ambulance and had to be persuaded to go to the hospital.

Olson was wheeling a load of mortar on top of the building. The barrow tipped near the edge of the shaft, causing him to lose his balance.

HIS RETURN HIS UNDOING.

Wanted Michigan Man Comes Back and Faces Penal Sentence.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—(Special to the Herald.)—Esau Esamo of Renova, Houghton county, who almost succeeded in cutting Frank Brunette, one of the leaders among the French residents of the district, to pieces in July of last year and who escaped from the officer who arrested him and went to Cobalt, Ont., was foolish enough to return home last week. He was captured at Laurium, now he must stand trial and will probably be sent to state's prison for a term of from two to five years. Esamo escaped from the officer, who arrested him at the defendant's home, by asking to go into the basement to secure a bottle of beer. He obtained consent of the officer and climbed through a back window of the cellar.

QUEEN LIL IS BEATEN AGAIN

Court of Claims Refuses to Give Her Rental of Crown Lands.

Washington, May 18.—Liliuokalani, former queen of Hawaii, has again met defeat in her effort to secure $450,000—the rentals from the crown lands in Hawaii. The court of claims has just decided that the lands belonged to the government of Hawaii and that the queen had no personal claim upon them.

HEAR GLASS' CHARGES.

Are Probing Serious Allegations Against Marinette Attorney.

Marinette, Wis., May 18.—(Special to the Herald.)—The Glass charges are occupying the court in the Schwittay disbarment case here. It is charged that Schwittay promised Glass, who was in trouble for robbing a man named Allard, that he would let him go free if he returned the money stolen. It is admitted Glass returned the money but he was nevertheless sent to prison Allard alleges that he received from Schwittay only $28 of the $46 paid over to Glass.

He admits he gave Schwittay a receipt for $46. The defense produced a witness who swore that Allard had told him he had received form Schwittay the full amount due him.

ERIE WILL OFFER MEN NEW TERMS

Strike Is Voted, But Walkout Will Be Delayed for the Present.

New York, May 18.—The Erie railroad today averted a strike of its conductors and trainmen, for the present at least, by offering at a conference with representatives of the unions to submit a new proposition on the question of increased wages. Although both the conductors and trainment have authorized their leaders to call a strike in case the Baltimore & Ohio standard of wages is not granted by the Erie, and although the Erie insists that it cannot afford to grant this scale of prices, there is still strong hope of a peaceful settlement.

MENU FOR ENGLISH SERVANTS.

The English custom of allowing so many pounds and ounces of food a week to servants is practically unknown in this country. The Queen contains the following explicit figures in regard to servants' allowances:

"The usual allowance for tea is a quarter of a pound a head a week, and as long as the servants keep within this I should not bother much about when they have their tea; butter, half a pound a head a week for eating purposes; sugar, from half a pound to a pound a head weekly; cheese, from half a pound to a pound a head weekly, according to whether you allow meat for supper or not.

"The cocoa you would reckon separately from the tea, as you allow it instead of beer; the amount of this required depends greatly on the quality of the cocoa, but with a good brand you would allow a teaspoonful or rather under to each cup, so that if the servants have it once a day, the latter including bone; anything beyond seven pounds a head weekly indicates waste or dishonesty."

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Comment by public and press on the candidacy of Judge Alfred Jaques for congress seem to be general, and, except in distinctively Republican partisan circles, favorable.

Judge Jaques Gets Many Boosts.

Representative Miller's editor friends profess to see little danger to that member of the lower house from the Democratic side, but even they are apparently impressed with the fitness of Mr. Jaques for the office to which he aspires.

The Aitkin Republican, declaring that Judge Jaques' candidacy is hopeless, remarks that, "judging from his pronunciamento, he is going to eat Miller."

"As Congressman Miller made a campaign and was elected upon an anti-Cannon platform, and then voted for the speaker, he is in rather bad odor with his party associates," says the Mankato Review. "Judge Jaques' chances are regarded as very good."

The Grand Rapids Herald Review pays this tribute to the Duluth Democrat: "Judge Jaques is an able lawyer, an honest man, a student of political economy and would average well up with the men who congregate at Washington to make our national laws."

Locally, among Democrats who have known the judge for many years, there is a feeling of confidence that he will give Representative Miller the fight of his life and win the prize. August Hagberg, for instance, said: "The main point about the judge is that he will stand without hitching and will always be found right on all questions affecting the interests of the people. He is thoroughly honest and possesses barrels of ability."

Thomas J. McKeon is an enthusiastic supporter of Judge Jaques' candidacy. "I've known him for nineteen years," he said, "and in that time he has been a square man all the time, standing by his friends with a sturdy impartiality. If elected to congress he will represent the people of the Eighth district ably and honestly without regard to party. He will be for the people, not the interests. The people of the district now have an opportunity to further the public interest in a material way and I look to see Judge Jaques elected."

Quoting J. Adam Bede as having said that though he cannot be a candidate for congress, he will try to get Clarence Miller's scalp, the Gilbert Herald lifts a reproving finger and says: "Shame on you, J. Adam. It's a case of sour grapes."

Mayor Walter J. Smith's chances of landing the Republican nomination for state treasurer appear to loom larger as convention time approaches. The range papers are giving the Eveleth man's candidacy much space, and the Ely Miner has get the battle fought, won and inscribed on the political pages of history, saying he "is going to be the Republican nominee as sure as you're born. His candidacy is a continual ovation wherever he shows up." The Eveleth Star joins in the chorus with: "The holding of the state convention and the gathering of the delegates and the nominating of Mr. Smith is about all that appear to be left. It looks very much like Walter at this writing, and this judgment is based not only on the newspaper say-so, but upon the evidence of those whom we have met outside and who are none too friendly to the Eveleth candidate. These men declare that Mr. Smith has pretty nearly landed the plum already and that it is even generally conceded by his opponents. However, he does not expect to lose by laxity of effort in his campaign. He is getting in some excellent licks in the southern part of the state and is mixing with a smoothness that would do credit to a presidential candidate."

Enthusiastic for Walter J. Smith.

"Northern Minnesota is a highly important part of the state and we are entitled to representation, and the Virginian knows of no one better qualified to do the honor than Mr. Smith," says the Virginia Virginian.

"The boys in this neck of the woods who are acquainted with him, and there seems to be quite a few, say that he is a No. 1 fellow and is deserving of the support of his district," says the Bemidji Sentinel, which adds that he made a host of friends at the Bemidji development congress.

M. S. McMahon of Two Harbors, in a formal announcement of his candidacy for the legislature from the Fifty-first legislative district, says that he has been a resident of Lake county for twenty years, and promises that if he is elected he "can assure his constitutents of loyal and undivided service for the Fifty-first district and the state of Minnesota at large." He has filed for the Republican nomination.

* * *

W. F. Schilling of Bridgewater, Rice county, has filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator from the Twenty-eighth district.

Leader of Dairymen In Field.

He is president of the state Dairymen's association and editor of the Minnesota Dairyman. It is believed, according to advices from Rice county, that his chances are good. The county option people may put up a candidate against him, but without much hope of winning.

On the Democratic side, the incumbent, Frank L. Glotzbach, is expected to try for the nomination again. It is not known whether he will have opposition, but it may develop later.

Mr. Schilling is described as a man of exceptional energy and ability, with the advantage of an unusually complete county-wide acquaintance. His leadership of the dairymen of the state also is expected to be a benefit to him in candidacy.

Surprise was caused by the announcement that Mr. Schilling was in the field, but it was a pleased surprise, apparently, and he has been assured of good support both before and after the primaries.

If C. M. Sprague of Sauk Center, the candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, who was a Duluth visitor last week, had taken the advice of Frank M. Eddy when the Republican state convention was in session in Duluth in 1906, the Sauk Center man instead of Governor Eberhart would be chief executive of the state today. At least, so says Eddy. The former congressman, discussing the Republican political situation as it stands today, said in an interview that Eberhart will be nominated, without a doubt, and the candidates for lieutenant governor and treasurer will come from the Northern part of the state.

When Sprague Failed to Land.

"There is no candidate who appeals to those voters who are not politicians more strongly than Cassius M. Sprague for lieutenant governor," he said. "He would bring support to the entire ticket from strong men who do not take active part in plitics but do the voting, and who otherwise would not be interested in the election. Sprague certainly would add strength to the Republican ticket.

"Personally, I think that Sprague stands as good or better chance for the nomination than any one suggested for that office.

"His strength, I discovered in talking to politicians, and others, is not tied down to any particular place, but he is strong throughout the state.

"I always thought Sprague would have been nominated in place of Eberhart, and Sprague would now have been governor if he had permitted his name to be presented to the convention. Had he listened to my advice he would now be governor of this state."

FLICKERTAIL POLITICS

Grinder Olson of Graft has decided to try for state treasurer. In a statement issued yesterday he said that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination. An effort has been made to induce him to run for governor, but Mr. Olson was chary about that proposition and eventually turned it down definitely. He is a pioneer resident of the state and has long been prominent in North Dakota Republicanism.

Governor John Burke and United States Senator W. E. Purcell were strongly indorsed in resolutions adopted by the Mountrail county Democratic committee at Stanley yesterday. The resolutions urged Governor Burke to become a candidate for renomination and re-election. The Payne-Aldrich tariff law was unqualifiedly denounced. The committee elected M. E. Hanson, chairman and M. C. Graham, secretary.

By agreeing upon an equal division of the spoils, the stalwart and progressive wings of the Republican party in Cavalier county have patched up a truce and completed a slate for the county ticket. No definite arrangement was made for the legislative ticket. The meeting was held at Langdon.

RAT LOOSE ON SUPERIOR STREET

Rodent Furnished Excitement for Large Crowd of Citizens.

A large sized rat scurrying for cover at Third avenue west and Superior street about 8 o'clock last night furnished excitement for several women pedestrians, and led some boys a merry chase. The rodent came from Michigan street, and dashed across Superior street, pursued by the youths. It tried to enter the front door of a clothing store, then turned west and disappeared through the iron grating in front of the Western Union office. During the excitement one of the excited women nearly went into hysterics, and it was remarked that none of the men showed any inclination to move toward the animal, although several volunteered advice on catching rats.

SENATE DENIES EXTRA $3,000

Railroad Court Judges Not to Get Bigger Pay---Talkfest in House.

Washington, May 18.—The provision of the railroad bill for an extra allowance of $3,000 a year to members of the proposed court of commerce over the allowance of circuit court judges was stricken out by the senate. The greater part of the session was devoted to a discussion of the Cummins' amendment making the interstate commerce commission the defendant in all cases in courts growing out of orders of that commission, but no action was taken.

General debate on the sundry civil bill in the house gave an opportunity for several speeches. Mr. Campbell of Kansas denounced Democratic tariff revision, which he said was shown by experiences of the county to be destructive. Mr. Underwood of Alabama criticised the Republican majority of the house for failing to give publicity to facts on the corporation tax. Mr. Keifer of Ohio advocated his plan for an international agreement for preserving neutrality of the Panama canal. Mr. Barnhart of Indiana denounced machine politics in general and the Republican party in particular. Mr. Sisson spoke in favor of legislation abolishing gambling in cotton futures.

FORTUNE REPAYS KINDNESS.

But Relatives Assail Will Bequeathing Young Man $25,000.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, May 18.—Hoping to cut off Frank Cowles, a young man of this city, from a fortune of $25,000 which was willed him by the late Mrs. Nora Bolender of this place, Nora Johnson and B. F. Amerman of Ackley have filed in the district court a suit seeking to break the will of the deceased woman.

Mrs. Bolender died here suddenly last winter, and when her will was probated it was found that she had left the bulk of her fortune, estimated at $25,000, to Mr. Cowles, who had shown her many kindnesses. She had no near relatives, and she was practically alone in the world, so far as the care of kindred was concerned. Prior to her death she had said she wished to provide for the young man's musical education.

The case will probably be stubbornly fought. The estate includes property in this city, Ackley and a farm in Franklin county.

TAFT WILL TALK TO THE BRYN MAWR GIRLS.

Philadelphia, May 18.—President Taft has consented to make the annual address at the commencement at Bryn Mawr college on June 2. The occasion will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the college and the completion of a $500,000 endowment. The president is expected to speak on woman's college education. Miss Helen Taft, the president's daughter, is a student at Bryn Mawr, but will not be graduated until next year.

THE PRIZE "THRILLER"

The Los Angeles Times' "Exclusive Dispatch" From Grand Marais.

The Pathetic Tale of Carlo and His Untimely End.

The Duluth newspapers were "scooped" May 12.

The Los Angeles Times did it with a "direct wire" and an "exclusive dispatch" from Grand Marais, Minn., although there is no "wire" within 100 miles of Grand Marais except the barbed kind that keep the settlers' pigs from wandering into town. No "exclusive dispatch" burned up the ether waves between the wireless stations of Grand Marais and Duluth.

The newspapers here chronicled a hundred fires within a radius of 100 miles of Duluth; they incinerated a few people and pulled off two or three "hair-breadth" escapes, but it remained for the Los Angeles Times to come to bat with the prize thriller of the day. The fact that it did not happen does not rob the tale of its glittering literary qualities. The story indicates aptly the superiority of the superlative over the comparative. The positive is not even in the running.

Listen! 'Twas a dark and stormy night, and John B. Elving, "his wife, with her 1-month-old baby in her arms and six other children, the eldest 15 years old," made a "heart-breaking 30-mile trip through the sparsely settled country and flaming forest fires between here and upper Brule lake," and are in the hospital. "Here" is Grand Marais. It is interesting to note that the forest fires were "flaming."

They were five days on the way, it seems, and they were almost frozen to death once when their backs were not being scorched by the pursuing forest fires. May 12 was one of the hottest days of the year here, although it was not hot compared with Los Angeles. But at Grand Marais—when panting, perspiring Los Angeles read that folks were freezing to death in a Grand Marais forest fire, they probably gave voice as with one accord, "On to Grand Marais."

Once, when the fugitives weren't being alternately baked and frozen, two of the little tots were saved from drowning in the swift current of Brule river by the family's giant Newfoundland dog." It is painful to learn in the last paragraph that Carlo didn't get a Carnegie medal. Carlo met a cruel fate, being "cut off by fire while foraging for food." Out at Lester Park there is a dog that catches trout, but Carlo had not been properly trained for a six days' ramble through a forest fire.

Drove Beasts Aside.

The wild beasts of the forest were so numerous that "Elving was forced to drive them to one side in order to furnish a passage for his terrified retinue." All the while "burning cinderders dropped on the bareheaded woman and her charges," but not on Carlo, for Carlo was foraging for food. On the first day the party went ten miles. On the second day they progressed only five. "The woman was overcome by untimely fatigue and would not permit her husband to carry the baby." It is suggested that maybe Carlo came back, as he had not yet been consumed by the "devouring element," so why not let Carlo do it.

Fortunately "the party reached a former settlement and replenished their exhausted provisions." This was probably one of John Millen's lumber camps. "The night winds from Lake Superior chilled the semi-gloom." A respectable gloom should not stay out at night. It deserved to get chilled. But this was only half a gloom; perhaps the other half was off with Carlo foraging for provisions.

For one entire day the party hid in a cellar, but toward midnight Carlo came back like the dove to the ark and Elving saw that the hair on his back was unsinged, apparently, for the father led his little band forth "over the burning coals of the destroyed wood, when suddenly upon rounding a bend in the river (curses), they faced a veritable furnace speeding through the dry and crackling timbers toward them."

Took to Stream.

The reader is given three guesses as to what happened. They retreated. But wait—fires are seen creeping upon the party from the rear. They are cut off, even Carlo who is foraging for food. How can they save themselves. Help, help. Listen: "Elving with his handy ax cut limbs from trees on the bank, sought a favorable place in the stream and stationed himself and family neck deep in water underneath a wetted screen of underbrush." Saved!

This may satisfy more folks but a few scientifically inclined want to know how the baby and the two year olds could be neck deep in the water also, unless of course they swam around like Carlo foraging for food.

On the fourth day the party was enjoying itself in the stream when the "boiling water" a figure of speech used by many of our well known amateurs and female writers—swept the 2-years-olds down the streams but Carlo happened to be foraging food and he "warned Elving." Elving grabbed one and the dog saved the other.

On the fifth day they reached a settlement. One house was left. The logs were green and the cabin had not been burned—fortultuos fate. An Ox and an Ox-cart were in the house, it seems, and Elving "drove into Grand Marias early this morning."

But Carlo did not live to see the promised land. Carlo was "cut off by fire while foraging for food."

WILL GO TO LAKE CITY

Minnesota Militia Will Return to Their Old Camping Ground.

Duluth Companies Will Leave for the Camp on June 12.

The three Duluth companies of the Third Regiment with the band will go into camp at Lake City June 12

The Third Regiment will be the first of the Minnesota Regiments to go into camp this year. Companies from other parts of the state will follow later. For some time it was undecided as to where the Duluth companies would camp this year. At one time it was thought they would go to Fort Riley Kansas, where the national encampment was to take place. Later it was thought they would go to Sparta, Wis. Both these have been given up and Lake City will be the scene of the soldiers' annual outing.

Duluth has three militia companies They are Company A, Company C, and Comapny E. They are among the best in the state and Duluth companies have several times taken drilling honors.

The annual encampment is an event by the soldiers. There is a lot of hard looked forward to from year to year by the soldiers. There is a lot of hard work connected with the camp but there is also a good time in connection.

In addition to the annual outing of the militia men, the naval militia will have their annual cruise in August. Already the sailors are talking of their trip.

BOAT FOUNDERS NEAR DETROIT

Members of Crew Take to Boats and Are Saved.

Detroit, Mich., May 18.—pounded by a heavy sea and struggling through a 48-mile gale crossing Lake Erie yesterday, the steamer Faustin was unable to free herself of water shipped. It reached her boilers and the vessel became unmanageable and foundered in the Detroit river one mile east by southeast of Bar Point ligatship.

The Faustin's crew of seven men took to small boats and were later picked up and taken to Amherstburg, Ont.

The Faustin's lies in about fourteen feet of water, out of the path of vessels. She is owned by John N. Mullen of Amherstburg.

Storm warnings predicting heavy gales in the upper lake region have driven many crafts to shelter at Port Huron.

NEW WIRELESS STATION HERE

Second Company Is Equipping a Station on the Hilltop.

The Great Lakes Radio Telephone company is constructing a 350-foot tower at Tenth street, west of Ninth avenue west, near the incline terminal. The equipment will cost about $9,000. The plant will be a part of the wireless telegraph system now in operation on the Great Lakes. This is the second wireless station here, the other being operated by the United Wireless.

The new station will be ready for operation by June 20. The boats on the Great Lakes which will be equipped with the new service will be fitted out at this port. Six men will be employed here this summer for that purpose.

TUG CIRCLE GOES ASHORE

Calumet, Mich., May 18.—The tug Circle of Houghton went ashore in a fog near Agate Harbor, off Keewenaw Point, yesterday afternoon. United States Junior Engineer George H. Banks and the crew of five men from Houghton had narrow escapes, but succeeded in reaching Eagle Harbor in a gasoline launch. The tug is believed to be lost. The tug Valerie, from Houghton, has been sent to the scene of the wreck.

Ore Moving Freely.

Reports from the Missabe docks indicate that ore is leaving the dock at the rate of about 300,000 tons a week, which is about the same amount of tonnage that went down the lakes from here at this time last season. There is a steady movement of ore at the present time, with no indication that there will be an increase or decrease in the immediate future.

Halstead Leaves.

The barge Halstead in tow of the steamer Prentice, left Duluth yesterday for Chicago. The Halstead is the barge that was damaged in entering the canal, about two weeks ago. The damage was so serious that the barge sunk near the Peavy elevator. The Halstead was carrying a cargo of lumber at the time of the accident and left yesterday loaded with lumber.

WOULD RECOVER LARGE DAMAGES

Peter Simon Has Personal Injury Suit Against the Great Northern.

Peter Simon is suing the Great Northern Railway company for $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained when he was caught between two cars after an accident at Saunders, Wis., some time ago.

Simon states in his complaint that he was employed at the point mentioned as a section workman. He claims that while walking along the track a freight train came along which became derailed and he was buried under the debris.

As a result of the accident he claims that he sustained injuries to his back, spine and body. He says also that there was a huge gash in his head which had to be sewed up and that he had not been well since the accident.

Simon claims that the track was in bad condition and that the trucks of the care were in poor repair. The trial is going on before Judge Ensign and Samuel Anderson, the Minneapolis personal injury lawyer appears for the plaintiff.

To Clean Hair Brushes Without Injury

Good hair brushes are costly, but if properly cared for they will last for years. To wash them, have ready two basins, one three-fourths full of boiling water, and the other with the same amount of cold water. In the boiling water, dissolve a teaspoonful of Gold Dust washing powder and shake the bristles up and down in the solution until they are thoroughly clean, then at once rinse well in cold water and stand the brush to dry in the air or in a warm place, but not too near the fire. Of course the back of the brush must not be wet.

RAINS SAVED MILLIONS.

Upper Michigan Forest Fires Have All Been Put Out.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—(Special to the Herald.)—The rain prayed for in the churches of Houghton, Hancock, South Range, Lake Linden, Hubbell, Calumet, Laurium, Mohawk, L'Anse, Beraga and other towns of the Copper country on Sunday, last, to save several of these towns from the raging forest fires in their vicinity and all through the northern woods, began to fall Monday afternoon and torrents have been pouring down since. mf rfr

There was heavy rain all Monday night, all day Tuesday, Tuesday night and part of Wednesday, with more predicted. All fires in the vicinity of Lake Superior have been quenched. Portions of Lake Linden, Hubbell, L'Anse and numerous other small towns were undoubtedly saved from destruction by these rains, while millions of dollars worth of standing and cut timber and railroad and farm property, which seemed doomed to certain destruction, escaped the flames.

Minot Automobile Race.

THE BEST S. S. S. SPRING TONIC

Most persons, even those who are ordinarily strong and healthy, need a tonic and blood purifier in the Spring. Some have no particular ailment, but are weak, debilitated and run-down. Winter life with its decreased amount of outdoor exercise, and the fact that cold weather has kept the pores of the skin closed, prevented the proper amount of waste and refuse matter from being expelled from the system. These impurities entering the circulation have thinned and weakened the blood, and the body therefore does not receive a sufficient amount of blood nourishment. The general bodily weakness, tired feeling, fickle appetite, poor digestion, etc., show how anaemic the blood has become. Frequently skin diseases, pimples, eruptions, etc., break out and this is evidence of the impurity of the circulation. S. S. S. is the best Spring tonic, because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It is the only medicine on which you can rely to supply the system with the needed tonic effects and at the same time purify and enrich your blood. The use of S. S. S. at this time may save you from a long spell of sickness, and it will certainly prepare you for the strain of the long, hot Summer. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks; it is Nature's tonic, pure and healthful. It regulates digestion, tones up the stomach, improves the appetite and promotes strong, vigorous health. This will be your best Spring season if you use S. S. S. for your tonic.

INTERFERING WITH BUSINESS

Railroad Men Say Comet Is Keeping People at Home.

Today and yesterday were two of the lightest travel days in the history of the present spring passenger business, and railroad men here, with serious countenances, state that Halley's comet is behind the whole thing.

Ticket Agent Blakeney of the Omaha stated today that people did not like to travel when the comet was in such close proximity to the earth. He expressed the opinion that strong men desired to be home, near small and clinging wives.

Fred Hills, northern passenger agent for the Great Northern, is a newly-married man, so to speak, and he readily agreed with the opinion expressed by brother Blakeney of the Omaha.

Mr. Hills also bore out the statement of Mr. Blakeney that travel had been very light in the last two days, and stated that, in his opinion, it would show an increase as soon as the comet business was over with.

J. T. McKenney, passenger agent for the Northern Pacific, also fell in line with the reasoning of the other passenger agents. He stated that there had been a falling off in passenger business, and, when told of the opinion of the other passenger men, stated that it might have something to do with the decrease in passenger receipts.

BUSINESS GOOD IN FREIGHT DEPARTMENT.

Frank G. Gujer, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island lines, is in the city today. Mr. Gujer stated that though the passenger business was comparatively dull at the present time, the freight business of the Western railroads was very good, and that there was a large amount of freight moving from the West to the East.

MONTREAL WILL HAVE 600,000 PEOPLE.

J. M. Ferris, traveling passenger agent of the Rutland railroad, is in the city today. Mr. Ferris travels from Montreal, which city he says is expected to show a population of 600,000 by the new census. Mr. Ferris says the company he represents is doing a heavy amount of passenger business at the present time.

MANDAN MAY BECOME DIVISION HEADQUARTERS.

Mandan, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific railroad is evidently taking steps toward making Mandan a division point, having just established the office of train master here with J. H. Johnson in charge. Other new offices will be established as soon as traffic on the north and south lines out of here is opened.

SURVEYORS' MOVEMENTS START NEW RUMOR.

Esmond, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crew of Great Northern surveyors that have been located near this city for some time, left Monday for a point ten miles north. It appears that they are working on the survey of a line to run from Esmond to Towner, or from Esmond to Rugby.

OBITUARY

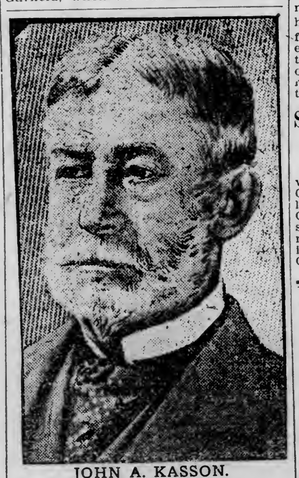
John A. Kasson, former United States minister to Austria, died in Washington May 18. John A. Kasson had been prominent in many walks of public life since the da.s of the Civil war. He was a contemporary and colleague of Garfield, when the latter was the Republican leader in the house of representatives, and had much to do with the framing of important legislation. He relinquished the legislative service to become minister for the United States to Austria and later minister to Germany and had a long career of diplomatic life.



JOHN A. KASSON.

Martin Hughes Gerry, fleet engineer under Admiral David Farragut at the battle of Mobile bay, died at his home in Minneapolis, Minn., May 18. Mr. Gerry made an enviable record in the United States navy during the Civil war, and also served in the late Spanish-American war. He is survived by one son, M. H. Gerry of Helena, Mont. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mrs. Sarah C. Hartlett, one of the pioneers of Winona county, Minn., is dead at the age of 92 years. She was born in Concord, N. H., in 1818, and came to Minnesota in 1855. During stage coach days her house was a regular stopping place, one of the best known early-day taverns. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Frank Merrifield of Winona.

Mrs. Rada H. Berg of Minneapolis, widow of the late Capt. F. R. Berg, died May 17 in the Soldier's Home hospital, Minnehaha park, aged 89 years. She had been a resident of Minneapolis since 1872. She is survived by two sons, Oscar F. and Ernest B. Berg, both of Minneapolis, and by four daughters, Mrs. H. Carlton, Minneapolis; Mrs. Harry C. Tracy and Mrs. Anna Jamison, St. Paul; and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Lloyd, Los Angeles.

Charles P. Forbush, Sr., commodore of the American Canoe association, died in Buffalo, N. Y., May 17.

GET RELIGION AS COMET GETS NEAR

Scores of Kentucky Negroes Also Quit Work and Go to Town.

Standford, Ky., May 18.—Scores of negroes professed salvation at all-night services held in their churches here last night to prepare themselves for whatever may happen when the earth passes through the comet's tail today. Fields are practically denuded of farm hands today, for negroes have refused to work and are flocking to town.

SURVIVORS BACK FROM COSTA RICA.

New York, May 18.—The first survivors of the recent earthquake in Costa Rico, in which more than 1,500 lives were lost in the destruction of Cartago, have arrived here on the steamer Prinz Joachim. There were nearly a dozen of them, mostly tourists, among them being Prof. Philip Calvert of the University of Pennsylvania and his wife. Prof. Calvert, a well known entomologist, and his wife had spent nearly a year in Costa Rico gathering specimens for the university. They had a narrow escape when the one-story adobe and plaster hotel in Cartago where they were stopping was wrecked.

Rome, May 18.—The pope today gave a private audience to the Right Rev. Joseph J. Fox, bishop of Green Bay, Wis.

McEWEN LAUDS GERMAN WAYS

Writes in Praise of the Industrial Conditions in That Country.

St. Paul, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner, has written to E. G. Hall, his deputy, sounding the praises of industrial Germany. The letter comes from Berlin, under date of May 5. He says that Germany leads the world in the care of the worker.

The day before writing Mr. McEwen inspected the Krupp gun shops. He says they are, in many respects, models, and that he secured many suggestions for safety devices.

Scotland and England did not arouse the admiration of the commissioner, and he evidently does not consider them ahead of the United States in protection of the workmen. He will study conditions in Germany for several days before starting north.

PEDDLER IS HELD FOR LARCENY

L. W. Dietrich, Arrested at Cloquet, Has Stolen Timepiece in Possession.

L. W. Dietrich, who was arrester yesterday at Cloquet for peddling worthless jewelry, will be brought to Duluth to face a more serious charge of grand larceny.

Dietrich is accused of having stolen a watch, valued at $110 from J. H. Dickenson, clerk at the Spalding hotel. Dickson rooms at the Sixth avenue hotel and recently missed his timepiece from his room.

When Dietrich was searched at Cloquet, the watch was found in his possession

BOARD OF VISITORS MEETS IN ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of visitors is meeting this afternoon at the governor's ffice. The electin of a president in place of S. G. Smith, resigned, will be the most important matter up. In all probability the new president will be L. R. S. Ferguson of St. Paul, recently appointed. The report of George R. O'Reilly on the board of control report on the asylum for the insane at Rochester will be considered.

BUY STERLING SILVERWARE

Twenty years ago a dozen plated teaspoons cost five or six dollars; today a dozen sterling silver spoons can be bought for a few dollars more. The intrinsic value of the metal is worth more than the difference in price. Many use plated silverware on the table as a matter of custom. Years ago when sterling ware was sold at prohibitive prices every one used plated ware, at least every day; today it is real economy to buy the best even for daily use. You can buy a whole outfit of tableware in sterling silver, including six-inch knives, forks and spoons of all sizes for less than $40.00. The following list will give you some idea of the low cost of sterling silverware today:

MARSE HENRY TELLS VIEWS

Col. Watterson Talks on Journalism at Canadian Press Meeting.

Laments Substitution of Libel Suit for Pistols and Coffee Code.

Toronto, Ont., May 18.—Col. Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, addressed the Canadian Press association last night upon the changing conditions in the newspaper profession.

In answering questions put to him he said that newspapers were losing the affection of the people because some of their methods are wrong. He described as brutal the publicity given by some newspapers to the private affairs of a certain Washington young lady and an Italian prince, presumably Miss Elkins and the duke of the Abruzzi.

Col. Watterson was to have spoken at a banquet, but this function was postponed because of the death of King Edward VII.

Journalism, which he assumed to be a profession, was Col. Watterson's theme.

"There is more written and said and less thought," said Mr. Watterson, "about the profession of journalism in which we are engaged and to which we have dedicated our lives, than about any other topic under discussion.

Profession Without Code.

"I assume it to be a profession. Yet it is without any code of ethics or system of self-restraint and self-respect. It has no sure standards either of work or duty. Its intellectual landscapes are anonymous, its moral destinations confused if not impalpable. The journalist, be he of city or town, has few if any mental perspectives to fix his professional horizon, no canon laws to guide his wayward footsteps, neither chart of precedent nor map of discovery upon which his sailing lines and travel lines have been distinctly marked. He is a law unto himself, too often a free lance, only the more self assertive because he lacks assured position and is without authority.

"The press everywhere, in England and in America, even in Germany and France, where the personal equation still sets the pace, has deteriorated in weight, whilst elaborating its methods and augmenting its enterprise.

Old Order of Journalism.

"The old order of personal journalism, with its ideas of individual accountability, often mere egotism and vanity, has passed away. The new order of impersonal journalism, with its ideas of commercial honor and of public obligation, has not quite adjusted itself to its enlarged habitation and richer apparel.

"We hear a deal about yellow journalism. It is much like the pot calling the kettle black. Offenses against decency are more or less relative and qualified. The scandalmonger will in time be relegated to the category of the unprosperous as well as the disreputable, and the detective driven out of newspaper service to the company of the police, where he belongs.

"We can as little expect that each newspaper worker shall be a gentleman as that each lawyer and doctor shall be a gentleman, but manly conduct and aspiration should fix the rule, the brutal and vulgar the exception; the journalistic brand should be no less accepted and honorable than those of physic, divinity and jurisprudence.

Duel and Libel Suit.

"The leading editorial, whose disappearance is predicted and whose decline is obvious, has suffered most of the transition process to the impersonal. There was exhiliaration in pistols and coffee. The duel was more interesting and less expensive than the libel suit. The good old times of gun play are, alas, no more. If a gentleman nowadays shoots another gentleman they call it murder.

"Most of us have to work for a living and some of us even to be trained to it. I do not wonder that the wooden nutmeg affair in big type, which for the most part defaces the editorial page, as it is called, having nobody behind it, and neither continuity of purpose nor the spirit of intellectual virtue and accountability, has fallen into discredit.

"In a word, I do not think the newspapers should consider themselves as a public prosecution system; rather the friend and neighbor of good men and good women, pouring in upon the community the sunshine of heaven, not kindling and stirring the fires of hell; its aim and end, first, last and all the time, to enlighten and brighten, to radiate and to warm, not to embitter, to browbeat and to dazzle."

Woman Is 107 Years Old.

Philadelphia, May 18.—With mind still keen and with an unabated interest in life, Elizabeth Wonderly greeted her 107th birthday yesterday at the Methodist-Episcopal home for the aged in this city. Mrs. Wonderly was born in Smyrna, Del. Her father, who was a soldier in the Revolution, lived to be 99 years old and her grandfather was 105 when he died

HONEY WILL BE SCARCE

Frost Destroyed Blossoms That Furnished Food for the Bees.

Honey may be a scarce article next Fall. Blossoms which had come out beautifully were destroyed by the recent cold weather which prevailed in most of the state from where honey comes. Dandelions were about the only flowers left for the bees to work on. Basswood and clover, especially the red clover, were not injured and most of the honey will come from them. The amount which will be gathered will be exceedingly small, according to present indications, which should cause honey prices to soar.

The fruit crop was not so badly injured as many people appeared to believe. Growths which were injurious to the trees were killed while in most instances the blossoms were not injured. This is said to be especially true of the peach trees.

BAD WEATHER HURTS CROPS.

National Bulletin Tells Conditions Throughout the Country.

Washington, May 18.—Unfavorable weather throughout the country prevailed throughout the last week, much to the detriment of all kinds of crops, national weekly bulletin. Of the conditions it says:

"Much cloudy weather prevailed over the central valleys, especially from Kansas and Nebraska eastward over the Lower Missouri, Middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the Middle Atlantic states. Farm work over this region has been greatly retarded by the unfavorable weather, and vegetation made but little progress on account of the lack of warm sunshine.

"Over the mountain district there was a general lack of rain, and considerable damage was caused by forest fires in the upper lake region. Cold, unseasonable weather continued throughout most of the week over these regions, and vegetation and farming operations made but little progress. Over the interior of the North Atlantic states, continued cold retarded plant growth, but no serious damage appears to have been done by the frequent and heavy frosts."

DULUTH MAN ON SHIPPER'S BOARD

C. R. Rust Is One of Those Chosen to Lead Freight Rate Fight.

Chicago, May 18.—Demanding by a resolution that the question of proposed advances in railroad freight rates be arbitrated before the interstate commerce commission, the gathering of shippers adjourned here late yesterday, after electing a shippers' conference committee of seventeen men to carry on the active fight against the railroads. This committee is composed of the following:

E. F. Spencer, St. Louis, chairman; F. E. Williamson, Cincinnati, secretary; A. C. Bannister, Moline, Ill.; George W. Sheldon, Homer A. Stillwell and Avern Noyes of Chicago; P. M. Hanson, St. Louis; O. C. Barber, Akron, Ohio; Andrew F. Wilson, New York; John Birby, Jr., Dayton, Ohio; J. M. Bellville, Pittsburg; S. C. Meade, New York; M. N. Newmark, Los Angeles; Van Willen, Grand Rapids, Mich.; W. B. Conkey, Hammond, Ind., N. A. Kennedy, Kansas City; W. P. Trickett, Minneapolis and C. R. Rust, Duluth.

Address By Poole.

Addresses supporting the demand for prompt action specified in the resolutions were made by Henry Clow, Chicago; W. H. Frederick, Buffalo; C. H. Hanson, St. Louis; Charles Bosworth, Quincy, Ill.; F. S. Poole, Minneapolis, and Francis B. James, Cincinnati.

Copies of the resolutions will be sent to the heads and traffic managers of the railroads.

"I shall call a meeting of committee when I reach home," said Chairman Spencer of the conference committee, after the general meeting had concluded. "We will be in action inside of the next seven days."

If the committee fails to secure an arbitration hearing before the interstate commerce commission it is empowered to take such action as will, in its judgment, prevent the proposed general advance in rates.

In this connection, Mr. James of Cincinnati said that recourse could be taken to the anti-trust act of the Sherman bill.

JUDGE LETS POLICE CLOSE CORT THEATER.

Chicago, May 18.—In dissolving an injunction restraining the police from closing the Cort theater, Judge Scanlon holds that the musical farce "Get Busy With Emily," which has been on in the play house, is immoral. Club women took the initiative in seeking to have the play ousted, objecting in particular to a dance which was featured, and to the name of the piece itself. The police sought to close the house, but were restrained from so doing by the injunction which was dissolved

CASS COUNTY FAVORS PLAN

In Line With Ideas of Northern Minnesota Development Association.

Enthusiastic Meeting at Pine River Perfects Organization, Electing Delegates.

Pine River, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass county got into line yesterday with the other counties of Northern Minnesota and organized a county development association at a meeting held here, elected delegates to the meeting at Crookston, June 1, 2 and 3 and officers, and adopted resolutions calling for a better apportionment.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles W. La Du, Pine River; vice president, B. B. Bartlett, Hackensack; secretary, Chris Burns, Cass Lake; treasurer, J. S. Scribner, Walker.

The following were chosen delegates to the Crookston meeting: M. N. Koll, Chris Burns, Cass Lake; J. S. Scribner, Walker, B. L. Perry, Backus, H. H. Hill, Pine River.

Want Reapportionment First.

The resolutions declare:

"That we call upon our representatives in the legislature to insist that a proper reapportionment bill be enacted prior to other legislation, giving Northern Minnesota the representation to which it is justly entitled.

"That we are in favor of some plan of selling state lands whereby larger areas in compact bodies can be put on the market at more frequent intervals by that system nearby towns will be interested in advertising and helping to bring settlers and purchasers in larger numbers in the various localities, thereby facilitating the building of roads, bridges, schools and churches.

"That we favor some plan of taxation to be devised whereby the construction of good roads is made possible, and that all land be made to bear its equitable portion of the cost of the construction of said roads, whether it is in the hands of private owners or a part of the public domain."

ALL COUNTIES ARE TO BE REPRESENTED

Secretary MacKenzie Expects Thirty Counties' Delegates at Crookston Meet.

Crookston, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary W. R. MacKenzie of the Northern Minnesota Development association held a conference here Monday with Secretary Brown in regard to the program for the coming convention on June 1, 2 and 3.

Mr. MacKenzie is enthusiastic over the reports he has received relative to the interest and enthusiasm existing throughout every county in Northern Minnesota, and he firmly believes that the coming convention will be one of the largest, as well as most important, that has ever been held in the state.

For the past week he has been devoting his time to the organization of county development associations, and he has met with great success. He says that there is no question but that each of the thirty counties in the organization will be represented by full delegations and some counties will have four times as many present as will be entitled to act as delegates. Duluth and the Iron Range will be represented by large delegations and there is no question but that they will bring such enthusiasm with them as will sweep all before it.

Word has been received from Hubbard county that a special car will bring its delegation, and a movement is on foot to bring the county's concert band along.

BISMARCK DOUBLE CRIME.

Former Minnesota Barber Kills Woman in Resort and Himself.

Bismarck, N. D., May 18.—Ole Quamme, a hanger-on of disreputable resorts in the city, killed Grace Fox, one of the demimonde, and then committed suicide Monday in a resort in the "Jungles." The deed was committed with razors. The couple had been quarreling since early Sunday morning.

It developed at the inquest that the woman's real name was Grace Madden and that her home was formerly in Minneapolis.

Ole Quamme came to Mandan from Kerkoven, Minn., about two years ago, and has been working at the barber trade until about eight months ago when he came here and went to work in a blind pig.

RURAL CARRIERS TO MEET IN FARGO SOON.

Fargo, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notices of the annual meeting of the North Dakota Rural Letter Carriers' association have been sent out by Secretary C. D. Willis of Leonard. The dates as announced are May 29 and 30. The sessions will be held at the federal building in this city. One of the features will be an address by a representative of the department.

To Remove Superfluous Hair

Dr. Duvall, the prominent physician says: "I consider De Miracle the only safe, sure and radical cure for that very common and objectionable trouble, superfluous hair." ## COSHOCTON COUNTY SETTLING RAPIDLY

New Settlers Taking Up Much Southwestern North Dakota Land.

Bowman, N. D., May 18.—With settlers arriving in this city daily, bound for different points in Coshocton and adjoining counties the work of settling up the southwestern part of the state is going forward rapidly. In one month 193 cars of immigrants' goods were unloaded at this point alone, and at many other cities in this section of the state there have been similar records established this year.

In the months of March and April, 1,158 homesteaders arrived in Bowman, each one taking up 160 acres or a total of 185,280 acres, a large part of which has been broken and sown this year, thus increasing the acreage considerably. Quite a number of these settlers have located across the line in South Dakota, in territory tributary to this city.

Prospects for a good crop this year are of the very best. The seeding was pushed forward rapidly and in many places the grain is already coming up in good shape. There has also been a goodly amount of moistures, general conditions never being more favorable than at the present time.

SUPERIOR NORMAL PLANS.

State Board Discusses Specifications for the New Dormitory.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 18.—Senator Thomas Morris of La Crosse, C. H. Crownhart, Superior; W. O. Hamilton, Whitewater; Dr. Almah J. Frisbie and Theodore Kronshage, Milwaukee, and Duncan McGregor, Platteville, members of the executive committee of the state board of normal school regents were in session Monday afternoon at the Plankinton house, preparing the specifications for the new dormitory which the state is to build at the Superior normal school, the first normal school dormitory in Wisconsin.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.

Three Crookston Youths Facing Terms in State Training School.

Crookston, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Earl Delude, Carl Knutson and Clarence Erickson are charged in the municipal court with incorrigibility.

The three boys practically have confessed to four crimes within the past month. These consist of breaking into the creamery of the Bridgeman-Russell Co. and robbing the cash drawer, robbing Larson's hardware store of a small amount of cash, 100 rounds of ammunition and some revolvers, stealing 400 pennies from the Grain Ten Cent store after breaking in through a basement entrance and coming up through a trap door, and removing a screen from the rear of the Ed Erickson butcher shop, entering the window and stealing $14 from the cash drawer. Knutson was arrested at Fertile, where he had bought a suit of clothes, new hat, shoes, a watch and a ring, and was still possessed of $10 in cash.

All three boys are believed to be the gang who have robbed many other places during the past few months and will probably be committed to the state training school at Red Wing.

BELGIANS ARRIVE.

Colony From Old Country Is Locating Near Karlstad.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large colony of Belgians, parents and large families, arrived at Karlstad, just north of this city, this week. They came direct from Belgium and all were farmers or gardeners in the old country. They have secured a tract of good land and are the forerunners of what will be the largest Belgian colony in the United States. These settlers will determine whether their friends in Europe shall emigrate to Minnesota or seek new homes in other lands, for it is settled that a numerous body of these frugal people have resolved to leave their old homes and settle in some new country offering greater and quicker returns for their labor than what is afforded them now. The land they have selected is the choicest in the Red river valley, is well drained, and good markets abound for their farm and dairy products.

MADE IN AN HOUR.

Auto Journey From Park Rapids to Itasca State Park.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the coming of summer weather dwellers in cities and those living in the warmer sections of the country will be looking for cooler places and scenery where they may spend their summer outing to the best advantage. Among all of the locations in Minnesota few offer greater attractions than Lake Itasca, which is situated in the northern portion of Minnesota and has the distinction of being the primal source of the mighty Mississippi. Traditions cluster around its headwaters, where the great Hudson Bay Fur company and the Northwestern Fur company came together and for years fought for supremacy in gathering the furs for those historic companies.

In 1888 and 1889 the lake was surveyed and later, with surrounding land, taken over by the state as one of its state parks. The park is situated twenty-four miles north of Park Rapids. L. H. Rice has just returned from there in his auto. He attached a Warner autometer and measured the distance. He found it two rods short of twenty-four miles from the Great Northern railroad depot at Park Rapids to the front steps of the Douglas lodge.

Much work is being done on the road to the park this spring. As soon as this work is done the run can be made from Park Rapids to the park house in one hour by auto.

GETS HIS LOST MONEY.

Minneapolis Man Robbed of Large Sum Has It Handed Back.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—L. O. Gale, 2551 Bryant avenue south, on whose complaint Michael Rock was locked up Monday after a $1,000 robbery in a revolving door, rushed into police headquarters yesterday, shouting "I've got my money back."

Gale told to the police he was accosted on a downtown corner by a heavy-set man, who asked him: "Are you Gale?"

He was, and said so.

"You lost $1,000 yesterday didn't you?" said the stranger, "and had this man Rock arrested. I understand that no charge has been brought against Rock as yet. Here's your $1,000. That ought to settle the matter," whereupon the man walked away.

Gale was too surprised to do anything but count the bills. Rock has been released.

TAKES LANTERN INTO HAYMOW; BARN BURNS.

Cambridge, Minn., May 18.—A large barn of Nels Helsene was destroyed by fire Saturday night, with contents. Mr. Helsene was in the haymow and accidentally knocked over a lantern, setting fire to several tons of hay and shutting off his escape. He was compelled to jump from a second story window. The loss is $1,000.

CROOKSTON BEAUTIFUL PLANS OF CIVIC LEAGUE.

Crookston, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Civic Improvement League organized last Friday evening has already started a campaign for a Crookston Beautiful, and much will be accomplished before the Development convention here June 1, 2 and 3. A junior league has been organized and the plan will be outlined at once and the work started. It will be a completion of the campaign started during Arbor day week by the students of the public schools when some splendid work was done.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN ASSURED BIG CROPS.

Cumberland, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The heavy rains here yesterday extinguished all forest fires and assured bumper crops for Northern Wisconsin.

Wausau, Wis., May 18.—A heavy rain yesterday put out all the destructive and threatening forest fires in this region.

Young Murderer Sentenced.

Wausau, Wis., May 18.—Judge Ahrel has sentenced Ferdinand Zingler to eighteen years in Waupun prison for the murder of Mrs. Mary Nitchie. A new trial was denied.

Noah's Second Trial.

Minot, N. D., May 18.—The trial of Robert S. Noah, charged with the murder of Gus Johnson, a Kenmare homesteader, and who on his first trial was sentenced to be hanged, eventually being saved by the supreme court, is on here. It is generally understood the case will be fought and that some interesting legal points are involved.

Drops Dead Ringing Up Fare.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 18.—Jacob Mihm, one of the oldest street car men in Milwaukee, dropped dead Monday morning on State street Car No. 223, while in the act of ringing up a fare as the car was crossing the intersections of West Water street and Grand avenue.

Ties and Wood Burn.

Bayfield, Wis., May 18.—Forest fires Sunday afternoon destroyed 7,000 ties, 870 cords of shingle bolts, and 6,000 posts, at Russell's crossing, ten miles north of Bayfield, on the Bayfield Transfer Railway line. The burned property belonged to the Bayfield Mill company. A crew of seventy men were helpless before the flames.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Linton, N. D.—The annual convention of the Emmons County Sunday School association will be held here Saturday and Sunday. Delegates have been elected to the convention from practically every Sunday school in the county.

Williston, N. D.—While filling the burner of a chafing dish with wood alcohol, Mrs. J. J. Blair was painfully burned, the fluid becoming ignited and exploding. She showed great presence of mind by running to her room and securing a heavy bath robe, which she drew about herself and extinguished the flames.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Norway's Independence day was celebrated here Tuesday night by two gatherings in the Metropolitan opera house. A splendid entertainment was given, with Col. E. Smith-Peterson of Park River as the orator of the evening. The Young People's Society of the Zion Lutheran church also had an excellent program arranged.

Fargo, N. D.—The Builders' & Traders' association will hold a social session on the evening of Thursday, May 26, instead of the regular business meeting. New members will be present to mix with the older and their friends, so that a good time is expected at the exchange.

Huron, S. D.—Plans have been approved for the new Odd Fellows building to be erected here the present season, and bids for the work are now being asked for. It will be a brick structure, three stories high with a basement; first floor to be for business purposes, second for offices and third for lodge purposes.

Pierce, S. D.—Governor Vessey appointed S. R. Green, assistant state engineer, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. Handercook.

Michigan, N. D.—Michigan shut out Petersburg in a fast game of ball by the score of 5 to 0 on Sunday. Lynch starred behind the bat for Michigan and Holdren at short. Wright for Petersburg played his usual fast game at third, getting several hard assists to first.

Grand Forks, N. D.—John Glasson of St. Anne, Ill., father of the late Harry Glasson, who died Thursday night as the result of inhaling inluminating gas escaping from a gas jet, arrived in Grand Forks on Saturday evening, and returned home with the body of his son on Sunday. Representatives of the local order of the Masons and representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen accompanied the remains to the depot.

Fargo, N. D.—The twenty-first anniversary of the Epworth league of the First M. E. church was commemorated Sunday and in the evening there were special services in the church which were very largely attended. The entire service was in the hands of the league.

Bismarck, N. D.—In the federal court here Monday the jury returned a verdict of $3,000 in the case of Taylor against the Northern Pacific railway. The damage was for injury to a traction engine owned by Taylor which was struck by a locomotive while the former was crossing the railroad tracks. The case went to the jury Saturday and for a time it looked like a disagreement.

Aneta, N. D.—Steen Haabak, at his home near Kloton, this county, died from the effects of alcohol. During the evening he had been drinking with two companions and the next morning he was found lying on the floor of his house, apparently sleeping. Little was thought of it for two or three hours after he was first noticed, and when relatives then endeavored to awaken him, he was dead.

Bowbells, N. D.—Sheriff Sorenson passed through here en route to Columbus, where he was called to investigate the death of Mathew Rockford, who was found dead in his claim shack as the result of a bullet discharged from a .22 rifle. Rockford was 33 years of a age, a bachelor and had served some time in the state insane asylum at Jamestown.

Fargo, N. D.—The condition of Edward A. Lindgren, the Northern Pacific switchman, whose death from an accident was reported in Fargo Saturday morning, is quite serious, but there is every reason for believing that he will recover. He was squeezed between two cars at Lake Park, Minn., and it was at first thought that he had but little chance of recovery.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Hancock—Englishmen of Mistletoe Lodge, Sons of St. George, will honor the memory of their former sovereign at memorial services which it is planned to hold next Sunday.

Calumet—Mrs. Henry Shortc, aged 63, died at her home in Centennial Sunday night as a result of dropsy. A husband, one son, George, and one daughter, Mrs. Bessie Henwood, all of whom reside here, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Houghton—It is possible that James J. Byers, the present sheriff of Houghton county, may be a candidate for re-election at the coming fall election. Mr. Byers has not exactly intimated the possibility, but he has not denied the rumor and in fact in some ways has confirmed it.

Hancock—One of the company houses on Back street, Franklin location, was destroyed by fire early Monday morning. The fancy fire department turned out, but the flames had gained too much headway, and the building was a total loss. The dwelling was tenanted by an Italian family, which lost a large part of its furniture.

Escanaba—The Calumet Chemical Works, recently moved here from Calumet and established in the Hess building at the corner of Ludington and Oak streets, will soon be in operation. Much of the machinery used in the operation of the works has been received and is now being installed.

Calumet—A joint installation of officers was held in the Temple of Honor hall, Saturday evening, when officers of Union Temple of Honor and Temperence, the Beehive Social, and the Hope of Calumet Section, were installed by Thomas Rundell, district deputy, assisted by Alfred Goodsole, grand usher.

Houghton—Memorial services will be conducted at the Trimountain M. E. church, Sunday next, in honor of the late king of England. George C. Bentley of Hancock, Supt. F. A. Jeffers of the Adams township schools, Rev. R. L. Hewson of the Painsdale and Rev. Fred Deighton of Redridge will speak.

Marquette—T. J. Maney, who was recently appointed a deputy game warden by State Game and Forestry Warden Pearce, has also been deputized by Mr. Pearce to act as deputy fire warden for Marquette country, and has full authority to enforce the laws.

Negaunee—James Marcom, a stone mason, living at Jackson, died Sunday morning after an illness of nearly a year. During the holiday season the deceased was operated on at the university hospital, at Ann Arbor, but since then he had been failing gradually, and his death was not unexpected. The deceased was about 40 years of age, and is survived by his widow.

Marquette—F. W. Hathway reports that flowers planted on graves in Park cemetery were cut down by vandals, presumably in the night. If the guilty parties can be ascertained arrests will be made.

Calumet—The former dry house at the Pewabic shaft of the Quincy Mining company, which was destroyed by fire last spring, is being replaced by a better and more substantial structure. A building mostly of concrete is being erected. It will be practically fire proof.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—The proposal made by J. A. Van Wie and Theodore L. Hays of Minneapolis, to build an opera house in Crookston to cost not less than $30,000 exclusive of site, for a bonus of $10,000, was accepted at a special meeting of the Commercial club and the subscribers to the bonus fund.

St. Cloud—An action has been started in the district court by Jacob Szymaneski and Francis Szymaneski, his wife, against their son, Joseph Szymaneski, and Peter Kokot for the recovery of forty acres of land which the father gave to his son on condition that the son was to support his father and mother for the rest of their lives.

Brainerd—The fire department was called out Sunday morning to extinguish a blaze in the sawdust banks near Boom lake. This section of the city is out of the range of any hydrants and so the department formed a bucket brigade.

Stillwater—Charles E. Hall, who is indicted with Louis Spero as suspects of the safe blowing at Wildwood last August, was brought over from the St. Paul jail by Sheriff Oscar Ostrom Monday and after being arraigned was taken back to that jail. The local sheriff does not intend to take any chances on his trying to escape or to permit the two men to confer in the jail courts.

Thief River Falls—One of the few people of this section who saw Halley's comet when it could be seen from the earth seventy-five years ago was Mrs. Downs, mother of Mrs. J. Halvorson. She was then 5 years of age and can remember the event very clearly.

Red Wing—Ole Burgo, while in an intoxicated condition, Saturday, fell off the high bridge on the Wisconsin side of the river to the ground seventy-five feet below and escaped with only a badly bruised hip and shoulder. He is now in St. John's hospital but will be able to leave the institution in a few days.

St. Cloud—Prof. Wilson of the state agricultural college returned Saturday to the Twin Cities after spending several days on the experimental farm operated by F. E. Utz of Haven Prairie. While here Mr. Wilson investigated the manner in which the farm was being conducted and found everything satisfactory.

Moorhead—Wallace A. Alley, aged 22, of St. Paul died Sunday afternoon at a local hospital. Young Alley was injured while assisting in unloading from a car the marble slabs intended for the new normal dormitory. His leg was badly crushed, but since being treated the leg has done finely and would not only have been saved, but would have been all right.

Bemidji—Miss Vivian Porter of Minneapolis, who was brought to Bemidji a month ago, suffering with pulmonary tuberculosis, died Sunday at her temporary residence on Irvin avenue. She was attended in her brief residence in Bemidji by her sister. The remains were taken to Long Prairie, her old home.

East Grand Forks—Judge Watts Monday denied application for temporary injunction of George K. Chambers against the city council, Mayor O'Leary and the Valley View Publishing company, restraining them from taking further steps to make the franchise recently granted the Tri-State Telephone company legal.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—The Wisconsin Press association will hold its annual meeting in Milwaukee in July, according to word received on Tuesday from President George Cooper, editor of the Badger State Banner, Black River Falls.

Eau Claire—The engagement of Frank G. Owen, son of John S. Owen, a prominent lumberman of this city, to Miss Lelia Lane Shelby of Portland, Or., is announced. The bride-to-be is a granddaughter of the first governor of Oregon, Gen. Lane, who was also the first United States senator from that state.

Ridgeway—Henry Moe was badly injured and narrowly escaped death while riding the carriage of a sawmill on the David Walters farm near this place. Moe was caught in the saw and thrown from the carriage. His left leg was broken near the thigh and the foot badly torn by the saw.

Manitowoc—Eagles of this city will send a uniformed delegation of 100 to the state convention at Sheboygan next month, and the Marine band of thirty men has been engaged to accompany the delegation. The local delegation will make a bid for one of the state offices and may seek the 1911 convention as well.

Reedsburg—Henry Liberstedt, a farmer residing near this place, dropped dead Monday noon from heart trouble.

Eau Claire—Arthur Thompson returned home Saturday night from Hibbing, Minn., where he has been visiting relatives.

Fond du Lac—M. K. Reilly, formerly city and district attorney, and a leader in Democratic circles, will probably be a candidate for Congressman Weisse's seat in congress. Mr. Reilly admits that he is considering the matter seriously and that he will have something to say when it is positively known that Mr. Weisse is out of the field.

Ashland—Hans August Jensen, son of the well known liveryman, suddenly died at Washburn Monday, from heart failure. Mr. Jensen appeared to be well Sunday, driving one of the teams to Odanah, in attendance at the Moses White funeral. Last evening with his wife and child, he went to Washburn for a short visit with his wife's sister, Mrs. Emil Scanlon.

THE CITIZENS' STAFF.

The burden of carrying on the Memorial day observance has grown too great for the veterans of the Civil war. Their numbers are smaller, their strength, individual and combined, grows less year by year. The burden never should have been theirs, anyway. It was wrong that they should have been forced to assume it, thought undoubtedly they assumed it gladly, and quite as much through choice as through force.

Yet they must not be asked to continue it longer. Other shoulders, younger, straighter, sturdier, must take it up. Hence the Citizens' Staff.

The Citizens' Staff in Duluth embraces a membership of about two hundred.

It ought to have a membership ten times that great.

As always, the active work of arranging and conducting the memorial services falls upon the active and willing few. The least anybody can do, however, is to join the Citizens' Staff and pay its due of a dollar a year, which goes toward paying the cost of the observances, long borne by the veterans themselves.

CLEANING DAY.

By official proclamation, next Saturday is cleaning day in Duluth.

On that day everybody who has not already done so is expected to put his house and yard in spick and span condition.

There is no reason why a cleaning day should be needed at this late date in the spring. The snow went long ago, and there has been plenty of fine weather in which to put the yard in shape. Yet sundry sights and smells prove only too clearly that many have failed to take advantage of their opportunities.

Hence Cleaning Day. The city issues a polite invitation to everybody to get busy on that day and set their houses in order for the summer. It trusts that everybody who has not cleaned up will clean up then.

And finally, just to show that it means business, it adds that those who fail to get into the game and clean up Saturday are very likely to be haled into court next week to show cause why they should not be punished for annoying their neighbors and shaming the city by keeping filth and debris on their premises.

This word from the city sounds very much like that word which, to the wise, is sufficient.

WHAT ONE MAN CAN DO.

For many years it has been notorious that the city government of New York was more largely a field for private graft than it was a source of activities in behalf of the public. It was not merely suspected that corruption was rife; it was known. There was scarcely a man in the community who did not know it. Yet the condition continued, undisturbed by the few criticisms and the large disgust of those who were familiar with them.

Several years ago the Bureau of Municipal Research started to show up some of the evidences that the government of New York was rotten with extravagance and corruption. It had public exhibits of a very striking character, showing by uncommonly vivid object lessons how the stealing was done.

People witnessed these exhibits in crowds. They were described in the newspapers and magazines. Pretty nearly everybody became familiar with them. Pretty nearly everybody said "Isn't it dreadful?" and pretty nearly everybody considered his duty done when he had said that. Stealing still went on in a very open and brazen manner.

Then, by some happy chance, Gaynor was elected mayor of New York. Maybe public appreciation of what was going on had something to do with his election; certainly one would wish to give public spirit some credit if it is possible. Gaynor, made mayor, didn't do as the public did. He didn't say "Isn't it dreadful?" and then go on about some other business. No, indeed. Whenever he saw a piece of graft he attacked it. If he found that public employes were not doing the work they were paid to do, he made them do it or discharged them. Presently the public awoke to find Gaynor doing, actually doing, things that nobody had supposed possible. The people seem to have come to the conclusion that graft was inevitable, and that though it wasn't nice, it was something that had to be put up with.

That's likely to be the attitude of the public in too many large cities. Everybody's business is nobody's business, so public business is neglected. Public officials think that if the public doesn't care they needn't care; so they do nothing, or, perhaps, get busy and partake of the graft while it is going.

It is different with Gaynor. Just as a specimen of his public acts, here is a letter he wrote the other day to Patrick A. Whitney, commissioner of corrections:

"The comptroller calls my attention to a bill against your department dated March 25, for one dozen one and a half inch valve wheels, at $1.50 each, total $18. He has sent out in the market and is able to buy them freely at 6 cents apiece.

"You will please forthwith put on trial the purchasing agent, J. C. Long, and the prison warden, Peter A. Mallon, who certified to the correctness of the order and the bill, and dismiss them from the department summarily unless you can bring to me some good reason to the contrary.

"The thing seems to be very scandalous, and I am not able to perceive the slightest excuse for it. Anyone looking at the little iron wheel about four inches in diameter would know that it could not cost $1.50. Meanwhile I shall expect you to look over your entire department to see if such things are not occurring everywhere. Such miserable thievery has got to be rid of in some way."

New York's public servants have been buying little 6-cent wheels and hooks and nails and things for $1.50 apiece for years, and the public let it go on. When a real man came on the scene it was different.

THE COMET.

This is the day of the comet's visit, and all is in readiness. The rain stopped the smoke from forest fires, and the weather man promises clear skies. When the earth enters the comets' tail tonight, therefore, there should be every opportunity to see whatever there is to see. Whether there will be anything to see, however, seems in doubt. The comet itself, we are told, will be on the other side of the earth from this point. The tail will stretch out into the vast abyss of space from our side of the globe, but, according to specifications, it is so impalpable and diaphanous that even the closest observers may see or feel nothing. The earth has passed through comet's tails before, and nobody knew anything about it until astronomers figured it out afterward.

Despite the wonder of the calculations that enable the astronomers to tell us in advance just about what the comet is going to do, there seems to be a division of opinon that is slightly confusing. One astronomer, accredited to a good university, says that the comet will be 14,000,000 miles away when the earth passes through its tail, and that the passage will take only a few minutes. Another astronomer, speaking for Lick observatory, says the comet is only 2,000,000 miles away today and that it will take six or seven hours to go through its tail.

All are agreed, however, that there is no possibility of harm from the comet. Astronomers are not unanimous in saying that even if there were a head-on collision at full tilt between the earth and the comet, the earth would be seriously embarrassed by it, though nobody appears anxious to try the experiment.

At any rate in a day or two the comet will be keeping decent hours, and will be at its shiniest during the evenings for a few days just as it is leaving for its 75-year swing through the solar system.

PUZZLE: ON WHOM IS THE JOKE?

The railroads, it seems, charge higher freight rates from the East to inland points in the West than they do to coast points still farther west.

Naturally, these inland points do not like it, and the result of their dislike was the amendment offered to the pending railroad bill prohibiting railroads from charging more for a short haul than for a long haul.

As the railroads didn't approve of this amendment, nor the communities which benefit by the present arrangement, there was a fight on the Dixon amendment. After a very merry war about it, there was a compromise.

And, curiously enough, everybody seems to be happy over the compromise. Aldrich is tickled half to death, Dixon smiles widely, and the standpatters and insurgents who joined together to vote for the compromise are, for once, united in rejoicing.

It seems worth while to look into what has been accomplished by the compromise.

The present law on this subject forbids railroads—

> To charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of passengers or of like kinds of property under substantially similar conditions for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance; but this shall not be construed as authorizing any common carrier within the terms of this act to charge and receive as great compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance. Provided, however, that upon application to the commission as appointed under this act such common carrier may, in special cases, after investigation by the commission, be authorized to charge less for longer than for shorter distances for the transportation of passengers or property; and the commission may from time to time prescribe the extent to which such designated common carrier may be relieved from the operation of this section of this act.

That is the way the law has stood for some time. The compromise amendment forbids railroads to charge more for a short haul than for a long haul, qualifying the prohibition as follows:

> That the interstate commerce commission may from its knowledge or from information or upon application ascertain that the circumstances or conditions of the longer haul are dissimilar to the circumstances or conditions of the shorter haul, whether they result from competition by water or rail; then it may authorize the common carrier to charge less for the longer than for the shorter distances for the transportation of passengers or property, but in no event shall the authority be granted unless the commission is satisfied that all the rates involved are just and reasonable and not unjustly discriminatory nor unduly preferential or prejudicial.

Under the present law railroads can't charge more for a short haul than for a long haul unless the interstate commerce commission gives them permission to do so.

Under the compromise amendment the railroads can't charge more for a short haul than for a long haul unless the interstate commerce commission gives them permission to do so.

What was the fight about? Why are both sides so pleased over the compromise? What is its meaning? On whom is the joke this time, anyway?

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY.

A. J. McGuire, whom the state employs to teach farmers how to farm in Northeastern Minnesota, is a valiant champion of the dairy cow, and in a breezy and convincing bulletin in The Herald last night he said that ten dairy cows can be made to furnish a good, prosperous living for the average farmer in Northeastern Minnesota . And then he proceeded to prove it. It is good stuff, and true; only for those handy to markets like Duluth the advantages of truck gardening should not be overlooked.

Ballinger is very busy "snake-killing," but the people are getting ready to do a little snake-killing with Ballinger in the role of snake.

The president defended Ballinger, and then had to defend his defense. Presently he will be called upon to defend his defense of his defense.

Ballinger has discharged the man who gave away the fact that the president's exoneration of Ballinger was largely prepared in Ballinger's office. More "snake-killing."

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

MURDERERS AND SOCIETY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

"No murder is so cold blooded as the murder by poison," you say in an editorial that interested me greatly last evening. I can name one that is. It is the murder by society of a convicted murderer. Society spends months planning the deed, where the murderer may have spent days or even hours. Society hires its most capable men to decide whether the murder shall be committed or not. When they decide on the murder, society coldly prepares the rope and the scaffold. The doomed man is given a month's grace. What a horrible mockery that word "grace" is, applied to this case! The man about to be murdered is told a month in advance that the deed is to be committed. His victim at least had the boon of a quick taking off, perhaps a shot from a gun, or even a dose of painless poison. Society tells its victim a month in advance that at a certain time he is to be choked to death, grimly adding, "And may the Lord have mercy on your soul"—for we have none, or on your body, either. Mob murder is less brutal, less revolting. Mob murder is committed in the heat of passion, or the fury of hate and blind rage. There is some excuse for such a murder—perhaps not excuse, but at least we can appreciate why it is done.

Organized society does a more finished job. The old thumb screw and the rack were no more brutal than the horrible mental torture we mete out to murderers in these days of supposed civilization.

RECKLESS CHAUFFEURS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Some time ago A. D. Cummings pleaded, through the morning paper, for fair play for Herbert Helmer in the First street auto accident, but in his zeal forgot to talk about fair play for the family of the lady who was killed; and, in justice to them, I beg leave to say that a man may be of good family, a high school graduate, an expert chauffeur and yet be a reckless man, especially if he puts into practice his baseball training when running an auto on the streets, and I think that it is just the time to teach such reckless men that people's heads are not baseballs; that autos are not ball bats; and that the public streets are not baseball grounds, where extraordinary risks can be taken; and show them that such chauffeurs are liable to receive a jail sentence, which is about the only thing that will stop such recklessness, for fines or bail are of small account when the auto owner is prepared to pay even the maximum fine to retain his hired man when he can stop said fine out of the chauffeur's wages and not lose his services.

To show that there is a necessity for such drastic measures, I will say that a special officer was engaged a year ago to keep track of these high school auto scorchers, who were not above breaking into and taking autos from the Rhodes Motor company's garage and taking their best friends on a joy ride, by striking the high spots between there and the pumping station, between midnight and daylight, while the owners were taking the sleep of the just. Also, there has been a police notice against fast driving posted up in the above garage for the especial benefit of the scorchers, fast drivers and jolly fellows, since Jan. 17. Again, I contend that a chauffeur has no more right to blow a horn on the street than a fish peddler or a sleigh driver, especially as some chauffeurs act as if blowing their horns relieved them of all liability and puts the burden of risk on the foot passenger, but which is contrary to the common right of the road, which always gives the foot passenger the right of way, and places the burden of risk on the vehicles in proportion to their speed, as a measure of fair play to all citizens. Thanking you for space, I am, like A. D. Cummings, a lover of fair play.

HUGH WAKEFIELD.

Duluth, May 17.

What He Had.

Chicago News: Privileged Friend—By the way, what did you operate on Gotrox for?

Eminent Surgeon—Twenty-five hundred dollars.

Privileged Friend—You don't understand me. I mean, what did he have?

Eminent Surgeon—Why, he had $2,500.

The Editor's Cross.

Collier's: In Osborne county, Kansas, a newspaper called The Farmer has at least one man on it who certainly can write, probably because he can think and feel. "The other day," he says, "we picked up a dinky weekly paper that comes to our desk every week. As usual, we found something in it that made us somewhat tired, and we threw it down in disgust." As the editor sat and glanced at it again, a change came over him. There were few advertisements; behind them he saw the wolf howling outside the door of the little print shop. The printing was poor, and he knew the editor had a family. In this family he imagined he saw the gaunt specter of adversity, and he goes on: "it is all-fired easy to and he goes on: "it is all-fired easy to poke fun at the dinky papers when the waves of prosperity are breaking in over our own doorstep." This sounds to us a good deal like Christianity, and we pass on our compliments to the editor of the Osborne County Farmer.

All Alone.

Wasp: An amusing story about Mr. Roosevelt has just become public after many years. Doing the honors at the White House to an English guest, the president regaled the latter with stories of his prowess during the Spanish-American war. Kermit, who had been listening attentively to the monologue, finally broke in with the anxious query:

"Say, popper, couldn't you get anybody to help you lick the Spaniards?"

The Song That Reached My Heart.

I sat midst a mighty throng
Within a palace grand,
In a city far beyond the sea
In a distant foreign land.

I listened to the grandest strain
My ear had ever heard,
Enraptured, charmed, amazed I was,
My inmost soul was stirred.

I looked on the singer fair,
My heart was at her feet.
She sang of love, the old, old theme,
In accents low and sweet.

And then she sang a song
That made the teardrops start;
She sang a song, a song of home,
A song that reached my heart.

That night I shall never forget,
That night with its pleasure and pain,
I think of the singer, I think of the song,
And I wish I could live it again.

In fancy again I recall
The scene with its splendor bright;
The mighty throng, the palace grand,
Oh, the memory of that night!

My fancy it may have been,
But never had I heard
A song that thrilled me o'er like this,
Like this so strangely stirred.

The memories of that night of bliss
Will never from me part.
She sang a song of "Home, Sweet Home,"
The song that reached my heart.

CHORUS.

Home, home, sweet, sweet home,
She sang the song of "Home, Sweet Home,"
The song that reached my heart.

—JULIAN JORDAN.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

When Vindication Is Conviction.

Foley Independent: It is rumored that the Ballinger investigation committee will whitewash Mr. Ballinger and give him a clean bill of health. This, however, will not disarm popular distrust for a vindication at the hands of the average senatorial investigation committee is equivalent to a conviction in the minds of the people.

A Blessing in Disguise.

Fertile Journal: Farmers in this vicinity are elated over the recent cold wave, as prior to the frost there were millions of grasshoppers just getting interested in life and promised a complete destruction of the crops. The recent cold wave killed the hoppers and the crops have thus been saved from whatever injury might have been caused by the hoppers.

That's Its Only Fault.

Mankato Free Press: The Albert Lea standard has discovered one argument against walking. It stimulates the appetite—"and incidentally increases the cost of living to the walker."

Will They Get a Chance?

Anoka Union: The insurgents are likely to be the salvation of the Republican party.

He Certainly Should Not.

Northfield News: Hon. R. C. Dunn, in common with a number of active Republican politicians, deplores the insurgent movement in the First district and its probable effect on the political fortunes of Mr. Tawney. It is not surprising that Mr. Dunn's sympathies are with Mr. Tawney. He himself has been the victim of popular ingratitude, and the fact that he is now in private life demonstrates that people don't always realize where their best interests lie. However, this is a Republican form of government, and if Mr. Tawney does not represent the people of the district, be they right or wrong, he should not be sent back to Washington.

The Finish of Aldrich.

Cass Lake Times: With the opposition rolling up against him and which threatens to engulf him, Senator Aldrich has decided to retire, on the plea of ill health. Wise and astute politician, Aldrich declines to accept the fate which awaits Cannon, a fate he justly deserves, and in making his health an excuse for dodging that fate he believes, as he always has believed, that he can deceive the people—it will be his last public deception, however, and for that mercy the long-suffering public is profoundly thankful.

That's More Important Still.

Hendrum Review: It is rumored that both Aldrich and Cannon will retire at the expiration of their term. It is also to be hoped that the system, under which it has been possible for these men to control congress, will be retired with them.

The Dog and the Tail.

Sauk Center Herald: The Republican state central committee did the right thing when it cut down the representation of Hennepin and Ramsey counties and gave each county five delegates at large. The tail has wagged the dog long enough; now let the tail wag when the dog tells it to.

The Unwritten Law.

I live and look abroad and take delight
Delight my dearest income is from lands I hold in fee.
The sun-loved turf belongs to me of many an old domain,
And shimmering fields all silver under touch of wind and rain,
Horizon-stretching prairies blest and comforted with flowers,
And meadows lush and gardens sweet from kiss of summer showers;
White desert sands, far tropic isles,
with strange, sweet fruit bedight,
And swamps with cardinal flowers by day where fireflies gleam by night,
Wide valleys green and forests dim,
slow rivers slipping by,
And storm-kept peaks, uplifted, fearsome passes stark and high—
All these are mine by the unwritten law, the unwritten law of the lover.
The greatest and grandest of landlords am I of landlords the wide world
over!
I hold the little calling waves that play
along the sand;
Mine are the tempest-broken ships by dauntless sailors manned,
Mine are the colors, pink and green and mauve, of heart's desire,
The sea shot through with beauty, through and through with tender
fire;
The seething, treacherous, midnight
sea, on hidden mischief bent,
The morning breakers, bearded, angry,
foiled and impotent,
The old, unknown, unowned high seas,
highroad of galleyed kings,
The living sea, profound and vast,
great ancient womb of things—
All these are mine by the unwritten law, the unwritten law of the lover.
The greatest and grandest of sea lords am I of sea lords the wide world
over!
The flickering amber light through pale, slow dropping autumn leaves,
The quiet place where Dawn her lovely, fragile garment weaves,
The blinding blaze of sunlight hanging over desert noons,
The glittering northern stars and soft,
voluptuous southern moons,
The gray slant rain and the white still snow, too beautiful far for words,
The wonder of butterflies drifting past and joy in the flight of birds,
White clouds and the open sky, and the sun and the heaven above,
The earth and the sea, the beast and the man, and God and freedom and love—
All these are mine by the unwritten law, the unwritten law of the lover.
The greatest and grandest of air lords am I of air lords the wide world
over!

Mind and Heart.

Emerson: The key to every man is his thought. Sturdy and defying though he look, he has a helm which he obeys, which is the idea after which all his facts are classified. He can only be reformed by showing him a new idea which commands his own. The life of man is a self-evolving circle, which from a ring imperceptibly small, rushes outward to new and larger circles, and that without end. The extent to which this generation of circles, wheels without wheel will go, depends on the force or truth of the individual soul. For it is the inert effort of each though, having formed itsel finto a circular wave of circumstance, as, for instance, an empire, rules of an art, a local usage, a religious rite—to heap itself on that ridge and to solidify and hem in the life. But if the soul is quick and strong it bursts over that boundary on all sides and expands another orbit on the great deep, which also runs up into a high wave, with attempt again to stop and to bind. But the heart refuses to be imprisoned; in its first and narrowest pulses it already tends outward with a vast force and to immense and innumerable expansions.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

Prof. and Mrs. E. T. Critchett entertained the teachers and seniors of the high school at their residence, 326 Third avenue west, last evening.

Thomas Dowse is now in Washington, having just returned from a brief trip to England on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richardson and Frank A. Day have returned from a two months' trip through the South, spending much of their time at Galveston, Tex.

L. A. Marion and wife have returned from a two months' sojourn in the Bermuda Islands. They found the climate salubrious and the people pleasant, and were surprised at the many American tourists.

Col. William H. Fuller of Elgin, Minn., formerly register of the United States land office, has been in the city this week among his old friends. He is astonished at the phenomenal growth of Duluth.

Librarian Olin S. Dours writes that he expects to leave Topeka for Duluth on May 26, and that he is preparing lists of books and needed apparatus.

At a meeting of the New Duluth Land company, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. R. Webber, president; C. E. Lovett, vice president; J. W. Norton, general manager and secretary; J. M. U. Thompson, treasurer; John Smith, superintendent of work. The company will clear about 400 acres this year, the work beginning immediately. The company has located its central offices in room 409, Chamber of Commerce building.

Capt. H. R. Harvey, a well known mining expert of Duluth, died today in Chicago. Mr. Harvey had been in ill health for some time.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Washington Star: "Just think," said the student of history, "there was a time when men seemed to enjoy torturing their fellow-beings!"

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "and even now a smart lawyer seems to derive a great deal of satisfaction from cross-examining an expert witness."

Judge: Mr. Honey Mooner (at lunch)—Pettle, there's something the matter with this tea; it's hardly lukewarm.

Mrs. Honey Mooner (apologetically)—Yes, dear, I know; but, you see, I couldn't risk having it any warmer. The box was labeled "Gunpowder Tea."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "That's a fine umbrella you are carrying."

"Th-thank you."

"For what?"

"For n-not claiming it."

New York Sun: First Blade—What are you looking for?

Second Blade—The keep off the grass sign.

Bon Vivant: Master—Joseph, aren't you ashamed to get into such a condition? Suppose any one found you outside like this?

Servant—It's all right, sir. I always have one of your cards on me.

New York Sun: Noah mused. "This is just the result of local rains in several spots at once," he cried. Thus we deduce the fact that he was a good old Republican.

Life: Philanthropist—Will you subscribe $5 to help a poor man who is troubled with loss of memory?

Financier—No, I won't. A lost memory is as good as a fortune these days.

Harper's Bazar: Stella—Are they wealthy?

Bella—They gave baby an auto tire to cut its teeth.

Lampoon. "What do you think of Mr. Sporter?"

"He's so nice to every one, I don't think he can be a gentleman."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The things a man is proud about himself his family aren't.

The only game that seems to have no rules at all is lying.

Good resolutions would improve with age if they ever lasted that long.

What makes a woman wild about getting stout is it always happens in the spots she'd never pick out for it.

There is nothing that will make a girl want to get married to most any man more than to want to prove she could when somebody said she couldn't.

Use Simple English.

Syracuse Post-Standard: Benjamin Franklin once decided to rewrite the Bible. He got as far as the allegory of Job. He erased the passage "Doth Job fear God for naught?" a question supposed to have been put to the Almighty by Satan. This is how Benjamin, who was bent upon making the Bible dignified, academic and scholastic, transformed that passage: "Does Your Majesty imagine that Job's good conduct is the effect of personal attachment and affection?"

Improving upon the simplicity of simple English always has just that effect.

By way of contrast between this pompous foolishness and the writing of a gifted man with a sense of humor, I note that Mark Twain, on page 177 of "Innocents Abroad" (edition of 1870), tells how he left a room at night when he was a boy, having found a corpse upon the floor:

"I went away from there. I do not say that I went away in any sort of hurry, but I simply went—that is sufficient. I went out at the window and I carried the sash along with me. I did not need the sash, but it was handier to take it than it was to leave it, and so I took it—I was not scared, but I was considerably agitated."

Young men who are meditating a literary or journalistic career, as well as young men who think of writing for a living, will do well to study Mark Twain. Then they can pick up the thousand-legged Latin derivatives as they are needed from the writings of Burke and the speeches of college presidents and professors.

The Music Master.

I've taught it quite a lot of music pupils in my time;
Some played the deuce, some played—that's all—a few could play in time,
Some learned to say "Her Wagner," but would keep me on the rack
By the horribleness of the way they said "Sebastian Bach!"

Now one of these Americans was full of much surprises,
The way she practiced faithfully on finger exercises,
I loved her for her faithful work—but what an awful shock
It was to hear her say the master's name like beer—"John Bach!"

One little boy was schoen! He didn't call George Cohen "swell,"
And I gave him deutsche Lieder, and he played them very well.
I really thought I'd found Pepito Arriola's match Till he spoke about Der Meister—and he called him "Mr. Bach!"
They call him "Bach" to rhyme with
"gash," and "Bach" to rhyme with
"chalk;"
They call him "Bach" to rhyme with
"Gosh;" I never heard such talk!
I thought I'd find some pupils in America, but Ach
Mein Gott! How can a fellow play who can't pronounce it "Bach?"

—E. M. Robertson in Toledo Blade.

Where Was John?

May Lippincott's: A San Francisco woman whose husband had been dead some years went to a medium, who produced the spirit of her dead husband.

"My dear John," said the widow to the spirit, "are you happy now?"

"I am very happy," John replied.

"Happier than you were on earth with me?" she asked.

"Yes," was the answer; "I am far happier now than I was on earth with you."

"Tell me, John, what is it like in heaven?"

"Heaven!" said John. "I'm not in heaven."

An Experienced Waiter.

Lippincott's: At the first meal on board the ocean liner, Smythe was beginning to feel like casting his bread upon the water. His friends had told him that when he began to feel that way he should stuff himself. He tackled a cutlet first, but it didn't taste right. He observed to the waiter: "Waiter, this cutlet isn't very good."

The waiter looked at his whitening face, then said:

"Yes, sir; but for the length of time you'll 'ave h'it, h'it won't matter, sir."

Provocation.

Housekeeper: Silas Jones and his good wife were sitting by the fire. Silas thought that a taste of new cider would be good and he took the pitcher and started to the cellar. From the darkness came the sound of a crashing body, as Silas tripped on the top step and rolled downward.

"Oh, Silas," cried his wife, "did you break the pitcher?"

"No, durn it! But I will" and the crash followed.

CLOUDY

The rain did its work well in clearing the atmosphere, and last evening was beautiful. Today dawned bright and clear, but clouds had gathered by noon, and the weather man issued warnings. Rain may fall, but the chances are that the clouds will only trouble those who want to look for the comet.

Threatening weather prevailed a year ago today also.

The sun rose this morning at 4:28, and it will set at 7:40, giving 15 hours and 12 minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance central Tuesday morning over Wisconsin has moved to Eastern Ontario. During the last twenty-four hours it caused rains throughout the entire Lake region, the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and in Atlantic and Gulf states. A slight depression overlying Eastern Montana and Western North Dakota is causing some rain throughout Western Canada and warmer weather over Rocky mountain states and the Eastern slopes. The Wyoming high pressure has advanced southward, and now covers the greater portion of Southern states. Temperatures are moderate generally, except that freezing weather prevailed this morning in Southern Utah, Wyoming and Northern Saskatchewan."

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes—Moderate westerly winds, becoming variable; fair tonight and Thursday.

Chicago, May 18.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight, possibly light frost in low places in west portion; Thursday fair.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight with probably light frost in lowlands; Thursday partly cloudy with warmer in south portion.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Thursday, except probably threatening in north portion; warmer in west portion tonight.

Iowa—Fair tonight and probably Thursday; warmer in west portion tonight.

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; cooler Thursday and in northwest portion tonight.

South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; cooler Thursday.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; cooler in east portion Thursday.

DEATH DUE TO PARALYSIS

Mrs. Calvin F. How Dies Very Suddenly in St. Paul.

Was Talking Over Telephone to Friends When Stroke Came.

While talking over the telephone to friends in St. Paul yesterday morning, Mrs. Calvin F. How was suddenly stricken with paralysis from the effect of which she died yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock.

Mrs. How and her son, C. F. How, Jr., had been in the South at Springfield, Mo., for several weeks and on her return home remained in St. Paul for a short visit with friends. Her son returned to Duluth. Although Mrs. How has been an invalid for years and the Southern trip was taken for the benefit of her health, she was greatly improved and no fear of her death was entertained by her friends.

Yesterday morning she was talking with friends on the telephone when the stroke came. Mr. How was immediately notified and left at 2 o'clock for St. Paul. An hour later a message came that Mrs. How was not expected to live, and her son left on the late afternoon train. Both husband and son arrived too late to see her alive.

Mrs How is widely known in Duluth where she has lived for many years, but during the last few years she has lived in retirement owing to ill health. Mr. How and his son have gone to St. Paul to take charge of the body.

Rev. J. S. Kirtley will conduct the funeral service, which will be held in St. Paul Saturday at 10 a. m.

rific. A mere sheet of the building is left. Identification of the men is difficult.

Dismembered by Blast.

Heads were blown from several bodies. Arms and legs were torn from trunks. Fragments of bodies blown several blocks from the scene, and bits of human flesh have been picked up on the porches and roofs of houses and in trees. But a dozen or so of the 100 men at work in the plant escaped. The ruins took fire, but the fire department extinguished the flames.

The body of one man, unknown, was blown through a house over 700 feet from the plant. The body entered the house from the east side and continued in a straight line through a bedroom and out the other side of the house. The torso of another man was found in the garden of a yard about 500 feet from the scene of the accident. Arms, legs and parts of bodies were strewn about the neighborhood.

The bodies of seven men, mutilated beyond recognition, were found in the north end of the mill.

In today's files women appeared to predominate. By noon the total of those who had paid their respect had passed the hundred thousand mark.

Roosevelt Meets Friends.

Mr. Roosevelt is seeing may personal friends at Dorchester house, the house of Ambassador Reid, but is going out very little and is accepting no dinner invitations. On Friday he will be present at the funeral of King Edward in his capacity as a special ambassador of the United States.

The appointment of Henry White, former American ambassador to France, as the diplomatic delegate from the United States to the royal obsequies, is regarded at court as a thoughtful act by President Taft because Mr. White had long known King Edward. Mr. White was appointed second secretary of the American legation in London in 1884 and was promoted to secretary two years later. Subsequently he was recalled by President Cleveland, but returned as secretary of the embassy in 1897, continuing in that office until 1905, when he was appointed ambassador to Italy.

Sees Seth Bullock.

Mr. Roosevelt began the day with a long walk with his old friend Seth Bullock, deputy United States marshall in South Dakota. Mr. Bullock had lunch with Secretary Phillips of the American embassy.

During the forenoon the former president was received in audience by King Frederick of Denmark. Mr. White was received at the same time by his majesty.

Buckingham palace, where most of the members of royalty are staying; Marlborough house, still the residence of King George and Queen Mary; and other royal homes opened their doors again and again as calls of courtesy were exchanged. Mr. Roosevelt was among the callers at Marlborough house.

Dispute Over Kiefer.

Columbus, Ohio, May 18.—The nomination of Gen. J. Warren Kiefer of the Seventh district and of Albert Douglas of the Eleventh district is in dispute, their Republican opponents claiming that they have secured the nomination. General belief is that both Kiefer and Douglas have pulled through.

COMET HAS 'EM SCARED

see nothing but dark forebodings in the comet's approach, and are passing the word from one to the other that "Dis yere Halley's comet's gwine to hit de erf, an' man! We's all gwine to die."

Never before in the annals of the negro churches in this part of Virginia have so many new members got the religious fever at any one time.

Michigan Man Suicide.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—After brooding for weeks over fear that Halley's comet might strike and destroy the earth, Gustav Kaiser, aged 72 years, a retired miner of Rockland, committed suicide by hanging himself in a chickencoop. Kaiser acted peculiarly for the past few days and talked continually of the comet, telling about his fear of it striking the earth. Friends and relatives, however, did not suspect he intended to kill himself. He had a wife and several children.

Chicago Sees It.

Chicago, May 18.—A splendid view of the tail of the comet was enjoyed here from 1 to 3:30 o'clock this morning.

"The comet's head was not above the horizon until just before the sun rose, but the tail presented an exceedingly bright picture," declared Prof. E. E. Barnard of the Yerkes observatory.

"The width of the tail was from 5 to 6 deg., while its length was 107 deg. It was brighter than any portion of the milky way. It was slightly convex at the north and slightly more brilliant at the middle. The edges were well defined, and throughout there were no condensations or other irregularity.

"Although the tail looked longer owing to the fact that it is nearer, it is much shorter than it was last Sunday—considerably less than 20,000,000 miles, but probably more than 15,000,000. It will be about 1,000,000 miles wide where we break through it.

"There is now a curve that I believe has not been seen before. It is in our plane of vision, however, and therefore we cannot tell much about it. It is not great enough to swing the tail away from us."

Lectures on Comet.

Prof. D. J. McHugh in a lecture at De Pauw university today described the tail as shaped like a megaphone made of gas with a void in the hollow.

"We shall pass first through one wall," said he, "then through the void, as usual, and then through the outer wall. While this is happening I look for a faint light in the sky."

If the Estrada forces are able to repel the attack at Rama, said to be the only possible gateway to Bluefields, and the steamer Venus is held off from attack of the harbor, the revolutionary forces will, it is believed, be in a position to obtain recognition for an east coast government.

It is reported that the United States gunboats Dubuque and Paducah at Bluefields might interfere in case of an engagement in the Bluefields harbor.

according to the testimony, and the dinner was resumed.

A little later, however, Janney left the house, returning soon with a revolver with which, it was testified, he shot himself, either through design or accident, in the presence of his wife and Col. Ames. It was testified that Janney had rushed into the dining room and flourished the revolver while he talked wildly.

Following the shooting Ames was placed under arrest, but a preliminary investigation of the special board of inquiry having cleared him, he was released.

Ames Was Arrested.

The only witnesses of the tragedy were Col. Ames and Mrs. Janney. Mrs. Janney testified that her husband and Ames had been good friends.

The Janneys were married in New York in 1908. She was Madeline McKassick and belonged to a prominent family of San Francisco. She first married Dr. Pedar Bruguiere, whom she divorced upon grounds of failure to provide for her. When she married Janney he was stationed at Governor's Island. He went with the Twelfth regiment to the Philippines in July, 1909.

JAMESTOWN ASYLUM NEEDING MORE ROOM.

Jamestown, N. D., May 18.—When the next appropriation bill is presented to the state legislative assembly by the officials of the state asylum for the insane, a requestion for an appropriation for the construction of another ward building for women will be made. The present structure is entirely inadequate to care for the number of patients and additional space is absolutely necessary.

EX-BRITISH SOLDIER BURIED AT NEGAUNEE.

Negaunee, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen the funeral of James Jordon, who died Sunday was held this afternoon. He had resided here for some years. Before coming to this country he served in the British army in India. He was about 47 years of age and is survived by his widow and four children. Mrs. Jordan is a daughter of Frank Bashaw, one of Negaunee's oldest citizens.

FARMERS' EQUITY COMPANY TAKES OVER ELEVATOR.

Pingree, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—On July 1 the newly organized Farmers' Equity & Trading company of this city will take over and operate the elevator formerly operated by the Occident Elevator company in this city. The farmers also will conduct a fuel business. The purchase price of the Occident company property was in the neighborhood of $10,000.

New Foster County Bank.

Carrington, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another new bank will be opened in Foster county soon, as a result of the construction of the new Great Northern line. It will be opened at the new townsite in Glenfield township. The incorporators are A. H. Berg, John O. Olem and J. H. Berg, Cooperstown; H. P. Palmer and George E. Berg, Courtney, and H. S. Halvorson, McHenry.

Great Purchase of Rugs

We have just received the greatest purchase of rugs ever brought to Duluth. These rugs are a well known Eastern manufacturer's surplus stock of late spring patterns. Each and every rug is this season's newest and most popular pattern. Every design and every color tone that has met with the approval of critical buyers is shown in this splendid array of high-grade rugs.

These rugs were offered to us at a price that we knew was ridiculously low and we at once decided to purchase the lot and give Duluth people a treat in rug buying, the like of which has never before been offered in this city. The entire lot, consisting of practically all sizes, goes

NATURE'S REMEDIES FOR DISEASE.

Nature provides more effective remedies in the roots and herbs of the field than we ever produced from drugs.

Thirty years ago, Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy made from roots and herbs, which has proved more efficacious in curing women's diseases than any other medicine the world has ever known, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is looked upon everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Duluth club women will be interested in the following item from the gossip of the general federation meeting written by the staff corespondent of the St. Paul Dispatch:

"The position of Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth is another subject for discussion in the Minnesota delegation. That she is a coming woman in the General Federation is not questioned, and she is a great favorite of the board. As she is on the committee for revision of by-laws—the committee which is asking for more money, naturally she favors the raising of dues, and also naturally she is at sword's points with the rest of Minnesota women on this point—that is, she and Mrs. Welch. The real facts are that Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Washburn stand with the general board on every point, and the remainder of Minnesota thinks the general board has too much power now and enough money.

"The case of Mrs. Philip N. Moore following Mrs. S. Platt Decker as president, puts her in the same position as President Taft in following Roosevelt, for Mrs. Decker is to the club women of this country what Roosevelt is to the American people. She has that dominant personality, that great magnetism which simply made her 'the whole thing when in the chair, and, to tell the truth, she is also that when out of the chair. In a way, too, she is what Mrs. Donald McLean is to the D. A. R. about the only woman who can obtain absolute quiet when she speaks, and Saturday when Mrs. Becker spoke from her box, for a moment you could have heard a pin drop. Mrs. Moore is an excellent presiding officer, fair and just, polished and courteous, but she is not Mrs. Decker and never will have her following.

WORLD CONVENTION

To Have Several Minnesota W. C. T. U. Delegates.

Mrs. Bessie Laythe Scovell who is well known in Duluth, and who was state president of the Wemen's Christian Temperance union for many years, was a member of the Minneapolis delegation that left Monday for New York to sail for Glasgow to attend the world convention of the union. Other Minneapolis women who left were the state president, Miss Rosette Hendrix and Mrs. Effie Burgan.

The Duluth women who will attend the convention are Mrs. Alfred Merritt and Miss Jessie Mauck.

FLAATEN CONCERT.

Special Tickets for the School Children.

The family circle and top gallery at the Lyceum have been reserved for schol children throughout the city for the May concert by the Flaaten School of Music, to be given next Sunday afternoon, in which the Flaaten Conservatory orchestra will play an ambitious program. The tickets for the school children will be for the nominal sum of 10 cents and there will be several chaperones to see that the little folks are well cared for. The tickets may be secured from the principals at the various schools or at the Flaaten school, and are for any child of school age.

Mr. Flaaten has been working most industriously on the program to be given and every member of his orchestra is doing the best work possible. The program promises to be a most interesting one.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST

For Symphony Concert Closed This Week.

Although the advance subscriptions for the June concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra to be given at the Lyceum, are larger than in any previous years, there are still many Duluthians who should send in their subscriptions and have not yet done so. The advantage of early subscriptions is considerable as the committee has arranged a material reduction in price for the advance subscribers. The subscription list will remain open only this week and after Saturday there will be only the public sale. Any one may telephone or mail his subscription to H. W. Reyner, 429 East Second street.

There is much interest in the special children's matinee and Superior has asked for 300 tickets for that performance for the school children in the city across the bay.

FLAG SALE

To Be Held By DuLhut Chapter of D. A. R.

The members of the Greysoln duLhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold a flag sale at Seekins' florist shop tomorrow and Friday. The proceeds of the sale will go toward the chapter's share in maintaining the Governor Sibley mansion at Mendotta, Minn. Many hundreds of flags have been provided in cost ranging from 5 cents to $20, and it is hoped that every household in Duluth will provide itself with the necessary flags for Memorial day, flag day, which comes June 14, and for the national holiday, July 4. Flags of every description are arranged for from silken flags and those of bunting and they are all well mounted, and some of them have handsome flag staffs. Automobile flags are a special feature and every driver is invited to provide his machine with this emblem of patriotism.

The sale will be held all day tomorrow and Friday.

WIFE OF WRITER, ROMANTICALLY WOOED, NOW A MEMBER OF NEW YORK'S DIVORCE COLONY

MRS. G. BRONSON HOWARD.

Mrs. George Bronson Howard, nee Miss Skinner, who dropped from view so suddenly after her elopement with the writer only to appear as a show girl at the New York theater, is still living in New York. Her stage experience was limited. In "The Soul Kiss" she appeared nightly posing as Ethel Barrymore. She did not have to say a word. Her duty was to look and act as nearly like "our Ethel" as possible and she succeeded admirably. As Miss Skinner of Baltimore she had often been compared in the "beauty class" with Miss Barrymore. George Bronson Howard declared she was the possessor of the most charming face he had ever seen when he first met her by chance in the box of a Baltimore theater. That night he awakened to the clang of fire bells and on following the engine he found the Skinner home burning and Miss Skinner watching the flames wrapped in a blanket. He proposed and was accepted on the spot. Then followed their journey to London and their parting—brought about, so Howard declared, by his wife's association with what he called the "horse and dog set."

Dies in Arizona.

Mrs. Simon Miller of 620 East Fifth street received word yesterday of the death of her son-in-law, Alexander Dennis in Arizona. The young man was 23 years of age and death was due to tuberculosis. He had been living in the West, hoping to recover, but had recently decided to come to Duluth for his remaining days but death came suddenly. Mrs. Dennis will bring her husband's body to Odanah, Wis., for burial and she will then come to Duluth to make her home with her parents.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

FARM AND GARDEN

Hardy Carnations.

Carnations are among the most choice of all open-air border flowers in summer. Some of the old hardy sorts live out for years and become huge masses. These do not produce the largest of flowers, but they bloom in great profusion and furnish armfuls of sweet flowers. Some people are in the habit of dividing these plants into a number of pieces. This is not a good practice, as no multiplication will produce such pleasing results as the masses, and to upset them would cause a disturbance that would not be remedied for years. It is better that all with big or promising clumps of carnations should leave them alone.

For setting out carnation plants that have been kept indoors through the winter the soil must be well prepared. This is the secret of success later. Give a good dressing of soot, horse or stable manure, and any old burned refuse in the form of wood ashes. These are more appropriate for carnations than any other crop. Dig all well in; then plant, keeping the plants about fifteen inches apart. Make the soil very firm around them. Those in pots may require the roots loosened a little before planting. Put a stake to each, and tie the stems up as they develop.

A Handsome Oriental Annual.

Polygonum orientale is a robust, hardy annual, and grows very rapidly—in fact, few plants run up so quickly. In the tropics it attains a height of eight feet, but will only reach three or four feet in our climate. The racemes of rosy-purple colored flowers last well into the winter. Seed may be sown out of doors any time about now.

The leaves are exceptionally bright deep green, and show off the florescence well. The seedlings must be well thinned, otherwise the noble proportions of the plants will not be so marked.

The Resurrection Plant.

The rose of Jericho, sometimes called the resurrection plant, and botanically known as Anastatica, is one of the most marvelous phenomena in the floral world. It is a half-hardy annual, and seeds are obtainable of some seedsmen. It possesses the remarkable power "to come back to life" after having been as dry as a twig and apparently dead. The seed should be sown in a cold frame in spring, and the plants put out in a sunny border.

MANAGING A HUSBAND

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

The husband most women get wants, not only a great deal of managing, but a great deal of minding. In the opinion of some he demands much more that he is entitled to under the terms of the partnership. To be candid, I really think he does, and, what is more, I really think he always will. But, after all, this is not much to the point. We have to take the creature as he is, or leave him; and as he is we are face to face with the fact that he expects the woman who marries him not so much to look after herself as to look after him.

In a word, the sort of man most women get as husband is just a big baby who wants careful mothering, and who will sooner or later make considerable fuss if he doesn't get what he wants. He must be cuddled, and fed, starched and ironed, and sewn and cleaned and brushed, and generally managed so that he may be turned out a credit to his fellows.

In a manner of speaking he is really one of the most helpless things in creation. He is always wanting to lean up against his wife, because he knows that without her he would fall right over. And if a woman wishes to be happy in marriage she has not to mind. On the contrary, the more she encourages him to lean up against her the happier she will be, because, while he's all cosy and all comfy he cannot possibly have anything to grumble at; wherefore he becomes tractable, humane, companionable and, above all, hugable.

A famous artist once said: "Please govern me as little as possible," but that is not the prayer of the husband most women marry. His prayer to us, I verily believe is, "Please govern me as much as possible; but above all things, don't let me see you do it." The most successful wife is, therefore, she who governs him in secret, and in my sense, at any rate, all successful wives are happy.

I need not say that governing in this way demands not only infinite tact, but infinite love. I do not think the task is as easy as darning socks; but just as I believe that the immortal soul of a man is often to be saved by keeping all his buttons in a condition of permanency, so do I believe that women's happiness may be saved to her through all the years of marriage if she will ceasingly study how best she can govern, without his knowing it, the helpless and wayward creature whom love and Providence has given into her keeping.

There is not a woman in the world who ever knows a man when she marries him, and whether she gets to know him when she has married him depends not only on her careful appreciation of all his good points, of which he has several, but on her careful appreciation of his bad ones, of which he has many.

I pray her not to be startled when I put upon her the hard task of appreciating his bad ones. All bad is just upside down, and the sort of husband whom most women marry cannot be got to realize that he is other than a solid mass of virtues which have only to be known to be appreciated. He has, therefore, to be appreciated in the lump, and appreciated not only in silence—which too many women think sufficient, but loudly, so that he can hear with both ears. This done, it is less difficult by gentle goverance to turn his bad points upside down, and make him, not merely in his own estimation, but in her own as well, as tolerable a specimen of the genus as will be found anywhere else upon the earth.

And again, he may voluntarily admit that his wife has made more out of him than he could have possibly made out of himself without her, and this is her dear reward. But she must not look for this praise, until she has proved herself by long service. Even so it may be that she will have a less outspoken praise, finding, perhaps, her joy in his greater and greater dependence upon her as the years gather round them both; a close binding of their lives together in that perfect understanding which needs not words to express its reality to either of them.

I believe that there are men, rare of kind, who make married life almost all of poetry. But then there are men who marry women rare of their kind also. It would be strange indeed if among so many men and women there was not an angel of a man mated with an angel of a women now and again, and here and there. But most wives and most husbands are commonplace alike in thier defects and their qualities, and in proportion as they can find the golden rules of a working partnership will their happiness be assured.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A LADY

By HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

The term "lady" had originally a signification that explains something of this ambition and pretense. It can claim either of two derivations, the one coming from the verb "to lift," meaning that a wife was lifted to her husband's rank, and insofar as she was made mistress of his house, had received a desirable elevation from her "previous condition of servitude."

The other derivation is from the Anglo-Saxon words that signify the daily delivery of the loaf to servants, guests and beggars, thus implying the features that generally distinguish the idea of the lady to the present day—supposed dignity of marriage or of years, the wealth that makes it possible to dispense the loaf, the gentle civility or charity that does dispense it.

The recognition of a lady from the day in which this custom originated has been as the mistress of a manor, of revenues and retainers, one who followed the established manner of the feudal days in feeding them that hungered.

The recognition of a lady now should only be changed by the progression of events and ideas, the abandonment of all thought of the necessity of possession by her of the Christian charities; for she who practices the Christian charities, and practices them with reflection, cannot fail to be gentle and well bred, and that is the whole of a lady. Certain small conventionalisms of place or fashion are of no account in the scale; to conceal vexation, to guard the unruly member—"for the tongue is a fire"—to give pleasure, to regard the feelings of others—can a lady do more?

One may, perchance, demur a little at this characterization, yet no other is at all practicable. To fix education and accomplishment and wealth as the criterions of a lady would scarcely be possible, owing to the very various degrees of these qualities, if for our purpose they may be so termed.

The wife of the merchant prince who is taxed for a hundred millions may not know how to make a drawing of her teacup, or how to play a tune on the piano-forte, or how to tell a fine poem, a fine picture, a fine sonata, when she reads it, sees it, hears it. We cannot make her wealth one of our criterions.

Or, again, it is credible that one may be educated in books to the last degree, yet know nothing of good manners; may wipe her pen in her hair and her fingers on her gown; may quarrel with her tradesmen, slap her servants' faces, insult her neighbors, brawl at her gate, and indulge in such peccadilloes as an inherited kleptomania or a spontaneous dipsomania. Her education cannot be one of our criterions. The woman whose painting hangs on the academy wall may not be worth a farthing in money, but then, in addition, she may not know how to sing a stave by note, and may be totally uneducated in everything but her special art. Her aptitude in painting cannot be one of our criterions either.

The woman whose accomplishment in music is extraordinary, who can delight you by the hour with her rendition of the choicest music, who, if she appear in concert, will be half hidden from sight with the flowers flung for her taking, and whose songs yield a fortune every year, may be utterly unlettered, utterly ill-bred, unable to speak her mother-tongue correctly, almost ignorant of the existence of any other art than her own, a vulgar glutton; we cannot make the phenomenally sweet voice, her knowledge of counterpoint, her accomplishment in music, any criterion of the lady.

Thus we see that as neither wealth in the one one instance, nor education, nor genius, nor the natural endowment of a sparkling voice elevated to its utmost, is to be admitted as the essential of a lady, something else must be wanted, and that something else can only be the thorough high-breeding which is measured by the length and breadth of the Golden Rule.

To be a lady, then, it is clear, does not depend on any of these factitious circumstances with which we have nothing to do, but entirely on ourselves. The woman who does the washing may, indeed, be as much of a lady in some respects as the woman who employs her, if, that is, she carries her self-respect into her work, and is that gentle thing from which the word gentility was born—gentility, which belongs only to those who strive to do what is fit and becoming to do so well, insofar as she does it well, insofar she is a lady. Yet only so far. Other things than the mere routine performance of a coarse duty are requisite in this grand inventory; those gentle manners which offend none; that consideration for the feelings of others which pleases all; that absence of anything which can produce a sentiment of repulsion or of disgust; that submission to the fact that the humblest woman in the street is a soul of equal value in God's eye.

THE EVENING STORY

THE FATEFUL DANCE

By Grace Tanton.

I had broken off my engagement to Frank Hibbard ages ago.

Just why it was I don't exactly remember, but it had something to do with the color of Dora Wiley's hair which I am positive she bleaches and which Frank seemed to admire.

I had not seen Frank for years, at least so it seemed to me. In reality, it was about six months. I was at the end of a period on a visit to my Aunt Emily at Lakewood, who was anxious to see me "Mrs. Henry Whitmore."

Now, Henry is tall and limps, but he was in politics, was in the legislature, and was looked upon as a future representative in Congress. I didn't fancy him.

Nevertheless, I consented to accompany him to a ball one evening and had to give some of the numbers on my engagement card. I emerged from the first waltz with him aching all over through his awkward bumping me against other couples. He had me engaged for the supper dance. Much to my relief, he came to me and said:

"Oh, Dorothy! I've gone and made a botch of my program and have put myself down for the supper dance on the card of a giggling juvenile over there beside the mater. How I came to be such a fool I don't know. It is the next dance. Shall you mind very much if I bring you another fellow?"

"Oh, no! I shall not mind in the least. All men were the same to me that night.

He hurried away, and, just as the orchestra struck up the Lancers, returned to me with a man whom he ceremoniously introduced as "Mr. Frank Hibbard," and, looking up, I founk Frank smiling into my eyes.

"You here!" I gasped.

Henry had gone, and in the general scramole for places we were unnoticed.

"Why not?" he asked coolly. "It is a public hall."

It seemed to me that those Lancers ended in half the time of any other set that night, and at their conclusion, of couples streaming off into the supper room, I left the hall on Frank's arm. The tables and comestibles appeared all to have been pounced upon when we arrived, but in his usual unconcerned way, Frank calmly piloted me to a little curtained alcove, half filled with plants, and furnished with a couple of chairs.

"You sit down here," he said, "and I'll commander a small table and we'll have something to eat and drink in no time.

And so he did. And how thankful I was to have escaped the bore of Henry.

From past experiences, Frank knew exactly what I liked at a dance, and so I sat there munching my favorite sandwiches and sipping my port, with him opposite me, looking so natural and so handsome, with all the old lovelight in his eyes. I forgot all about Dora Wiley's hair, and put out my hand to him across the table, saying, almost before I knew it: "This is just like old times, isn't it?"

He had the curtain down over the aperture of our cosy corner in a moment and was kissing me.

"Yes darling," he whispered; "exactly like old times! Don't you think that the old times were best after all, and that we were a couple of sillies?"

I don't know what I said, I'm sure—it is so difficult to talk when your face is buried on a man's shoulder; but I know that the supper interval had ended, and several dances of the second part of the program were over, before I thought of my other promised dances.

Henry met us as we re-entered the ball room

"The last was our dance, Dorothy," he said reproachfully. "I have been searching everywhere for you.

"Awfully sorry!" I said. "I am engaged to Mr. Hibbard now."

Frank and I started to waltz.

Later on I introduced Frank to auntie, but she was immersed in the domestic servant problem with another lady, and paid but very scant attention.

However, she noticed how frequently he was my partner towards the close of the ball, for driving home, she remarked:

"You seemed very friendly with that young stranger you introduced to me, Dorothy."

"Yes, auntie, dear," I answered, lamblike, thinking it best to launch my bolt under cover of darkness; "I am engaged to him."

"Engaged to a man whom you have only met a few hours at a ball!"

"Not at all, auntie," I said sweetly, "he is Frank Hibbard, you know and we made it all up again tonight.

TRY THIS DINNER

Chicken Bouillon.

When cooking the chicken to use for the "curried chicken" put in a small onion sliced, the coarse part of a stalk of selery cut fine and a small bunch of parsley. Simmer until the chicken is done, being careful not to have too much water. Strain through a cheese cloth, season to taste, and you have chicken bouillon, which should be served in cups.

Ment—Pot Roast Beef.

Lay a round of beef in a broad deep pot. Four in a cup of boiling water and add two slices of onion; cover closely and cook ten minutes to the pound. Transfer to a dripping pan, rub with butter, dredge with flour and brown in a quick oven. Strain and cool the gravy left in the pot, take off the fat, put the gravy into a saucepan. Season with pepper, salt and a little kitchen bouquet and thicken with a tablespoon of brown roux. Boil up once and serve in a gravy boat or pour round the base of the beef.

Salad—Pepper Salad.

Slice the tops from green peppers, remove seeds and veins and soak in boiling water for fifteen minutes. Drain, chill and fill with finely cut celery mixed with mayonnaise. Shredded cabbage may be used instead of the celery, or mixed with it.

Dessert—Apple Meringue.

Prepare one pint of stewed apples, and while hot add spices, one teaspoon of nutmeg and one-half teaspoon of cinnamon; add one tablespoon of lemon juice and the grated rind of one-half lemon. Mix with this two tablespoons of butter and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Beat until light, adding gradually one-half of a cup of granulated sugar. Bake in a covered baking dish for ten minutes in a moderate oven. Remove and cover with a meringue made from the whites of the eggs, four tablespoons of powdered sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Brown and cool slightly before serving with cream.

ABE LINCOLN AND THE LOST OX

By FERDINAND C. IGLEHART.

As I approached the Lincoln farm in Spencer county, Indiana, where Abe spent most of his time between 6 and 21 years of age, I said to a lawyer sitting near, whom I knew: "Is there anyone on this train who lives in this neighborhood? I should like to get some absolutely new stories of Lincoln."

He looked around and said: "There is a man whose father was the nearest neighbor and dearest friend Lincoln had in this country." He took me over and introduced me to him.

Sitting in the seat beside him, I said: "Tell me something your father has told you about Lincoln that the newspaper reporters have not found, if such a thing is possible." He said: "When Abe moved with his father from this neighborhood to Decatur, Ill., they put all they had in the world in a wagon and hitched two oxen to it. They had gotten a day's journey from home, and, as was the custom in those days, turned the oxen out to graze for the night. One of the oxen broke away and came back home. Father saw him coming along the road and, recognizing him, turned him in his lot.

The next day Abe came back, looking for the ox. He said to father, 'Seen anything of our ox?'

"'Yes,' replied father.

"'Where is he?'

"'In my lot,' said father.

"'I have come for him,' said Abe.

"'How are you going to take him?' asked father. 'You have no rope, no halter, no saddle nor bridle.'

"'I will show you,' answered Abe. 'When I yell "Open!" you open the gate.'

"He went into the lot with a switch, ran the animal around a little while to master him and yelled 'Open!' Father opened the gate, and the ox made a break for it. Abe ran swiftly after him, and, jumping high in the air, he alighted astride of the ox and, holding his heels in the flanks of the steer, he drove him on the run back to the wagon. When he wanted to go to the right he would take his old slouch hat and with it hit the beast on the left side of the head; if he desired to turn to the left, he would hit him on the right side of the head."

I thanked the man kindly for relating this and other incidents, and said to him: "The will power with which Abe, the barefooted young farmer, rode that ox without halter or saddle or bridle, was the same power with which he ruled the nation and abolished slavery." As I found my friend in the car seat religiously inclined, I continued: "There was but one power in the universe to which Lincoln's Imperial will bowed, and that was the will of the Absolute. The human will has so much to do with earthly success and spiritual victory. Out of the heart are the issues of life, but the will has so much to do in determining those issues, either in leading one from sin to holiness or in fighting successfully the battles of the cross.

"The will determines what we are to be, creates the deserts of gardens, the dungeons of palaces of the great future. There can be no certainty of aim and no surety of destiny unless the human will be lost in the will of God." The brakeman called out the station, "Lincoln," and my friend left the train.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE

Will Attend the Consecration of Six Bishops at St. Paul.

Most Impressive Catholic Ceremony Conducted Outside of Rome.

St. Paul, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Preparations for the consecration ceremonies of six new bishops for the Roman Catholic province of St. Paul began yesterday and all will be in readiness Thursday, when the Most Rev. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate, will be present as representative of the pope. Archbishop John Ireland will conduct the ceremonies on the grounds and in the chapel of St. Paul's seminary.

The apostolic delegate arrived from Washington today. He will be entertained by Archbishop Ireland in the archiepiscopal residence on Portland avenue, and at the ceremonies will occupy the place of honor.

More than 800 visitors, including archbishops, bishops and priests from all sections of the United States, are to be present. It will be the most impressive ceremony ever conducted by the Roman Catholic church outside of Rome. Never before were so many bishops consecrated at one time and especially for one province of the church's field. The rapid growth of the Northwest is reflected in the necessity for creating six bishops to care for the pastoral duties in this section.

Dinner in Tent.

The grounds will be fitted for the entertainment of the visitors. A large tent has been pitched, where dinner will be served to the 800 visitors. The seminary grounds will be decorated with electric lights for the reception to be tendered in the evening at the close of the consecration ceremonies. The street railway company is making special arrangements to care for the transportation on this occasion.

The general executive committee on arrangements is composed of Reverends P. O'Neill, chairman; A. Oguilin, treasurer; R. M. Jung, F. X. Boyce, J. O'Connor and H. R. Jordan, secretary. Other committees have been named.

Word From Bishops.

The dinner, to be served in the large tent after the ceremonies, will be presided over by Archbishop Ireland. At his right will sit Most Rev. Diomede Falconio. Bishop James McGolrick of Duluth will make the address of welcome to the new bishops and each will respond.

The public reception will be at 8 p. m. Thursday, in the administration building of the seminary, when the laity of Minneapolis and St. Paul and outside visitors will meet the new bishops.

Many Are Coming.

The executive committee announces that those heard from already who will attend indicates that there will be a large assemblage. Ten monsignori and 450 priests have responded. Among the bishops who have responded are Rt. Rev. S. G. Messeur, archbishop of Milwaukee; Rt. Rev. P. J. Garrigan, bishop of Sioux City; Rt. Rev. J. Janssen, bishop of Belleville, Ill.; Rt. Rev. R. Scannell, bishop of Omaha; Rt. Rev. M. F. Burke, bishop of St. Joseph, Mo.; Rt. Rev. P. P. Muldoon, bishop of Rockford, Ill.; Rt. Rev. T. Bonacum, Lincoln, Neb.; Rt. Rev. J. Davis, Davenport, Iowa; Rt. Rev. J. M. Koudelka, Cleveland; Rt. Rev. S. S. Ortezusky, Greek bishop of Philadelphia; Rt. Rev. A. F. Schinner, bishop of Superior, Wis.; Rt. Rev. P. Engle, O. S. B., Collegeville, Minn.; Rt. Rev. F. Conrad, O. S. B., Conception, Nev.; also Bishops James McGolrick of Duluth, Thomas O'Gorman, Sioux Falls, and James Trobec of St. Cloud.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds. Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery would have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Cougas, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. ## ALUMNI PLAN ANNUAL FEASTS

Adams and Emerson Associations Arrange for Banquets in June.

At a meeting of the Adams Alumni association last evening at the school building, plans were made to hold the annual banquet of the school on June 10. The graduating class of thirty-four members and the faculty of the Adams school will be guests of honor.

Although the details of the program are still to be completed, it was decided last evening to invite John H. Norton, county attorney, to be the principal speaker at the affair. There will be a number of musical and literary numbers on the program.

Aleck McEwen will act in the capacity of toastmaster. He is president of the Adams association. The final preparations for the feast will be made before June 7, when the annual meeting of the association will be held. The program for the banquet will be announced in full at this time.

The Emerson School Alumni association last evening at a special meeting, appointed committees, which will make preparations for the annual banquet which will be held at the schol building June 3.

The graduating class and faculty will be asked to attend the affair. Final plans for the annual play and entertainment which will take place May 26 at the school assembly hall were also made last evening.

The committee named for the banquet follow: Program, Earl McNelly, Ed McArthur and Anna McArthur; refreshments, Elizabeth Donovan, Lillie Teske, Margaret McArthur, Nellie Dinham, Myrtle Perry, Mary Dryden and Ed Stevens; Hall, Frank Page and Jack McArthur.

"Sytende Mai" Dance.

About 500 people attended the "Sytende Mai" dance given last evening at Lincoln park pavilion in celebration of Norwegian Independence day. The affair was under the auspices of the Sons of Norway, the Varde club and the Normanna Singing society. The program was started with a grand march, led by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Simonson.

CARS WILL RUN JUNE 1.

Extension of Street Railway on Piedmont Avenue Almost Completed

Cars will be running on the Piedmont avenue line extension about June 1, according to the statements given out by officials of the Duluth Street Railway company. The work is being pushed, and is now nearing completion.

Tracks are being laid from Nineteenth avenue west and Third street, along Piedmont avenue, to Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street. The grade has been reduced along the avenue, and the laying of cement walks to correspond with the new grade is now going on.

Preparations are now under way to celebrating the opening of the new extension with a big banquet, which will be held at the Ensign school. The affair will be in charge of the West End Hillside Improvement club, and the street car officials will be honored guests.

The date for the celebration will be set as soon as it is known just when the first cars will run on the new extension.

West End Shortrails.

Dr. C. L. Haney has returned from a visit to the Twin Cities.

Miss Marie Phillips of 17 North Twenty-fourth avenue west is reported to be ill at her home.

The West End Missionary Society of St. John's English Lutheran church was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Brightfelt.

Mrs. M. O. Stockland of 310 North Twenty-second avenue west left yesterday for Oklahoma City, Okla., where she will visit relatives.

The choir of the First Swedish M. E. church will meet Friday evening at the church for rehearsal.

The church bazar and supper of St. Peter's Swedish Episcopal church, which was to have been held Thursday and Friday evenings, has been postponed. The affair was to have been held at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, has gone to Minneapolis to attend the Northwestern conference of the Swedish Mission churches.

Mrs. G. Lillyman of 1923 West First street was surprised by friends at her home last evening, the occasion being her fifty-eighth birthday.

The musical entertainment given last evening at Columbia hall by Madame Hilda Hellstrom Gagnee and J. S. Ostberg was well attended.

Miss Marie Rathie of 319 North Twenty-eighth avenue west has returned from a visit with her parents at Fergus Falls, Minn.

John Gelstman of the U. S. block has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the National Iron Works of West Duluth. He is now working on the ranges.

LAWLER GIVES LIE TO BRANDEIS

Assistant Attorney General Loses Temper While on Witness Stand.

Washington, May 18.—A day filled with interesting episodes reached an exciting climax in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation late yesterday, when Assistant Attorney General Oscar Lawler, author of the now famous Lawler memorandum, rose wrathfully from the witness seat and accused Attorney Brandeis of uttering a deliberate untruth. Then, after he had been rebuked by several members of the committee, Mr. Lawler withdrew his remark and apologized to the committee.

Mr. Lawler was called to the stand by the defense to explain the circumstances under which he had prepared for the president a memorandum containing his opinion on the charges that had been filed by Special Agent Glavis against Secretary Ballinger.

Kerby Contradicted Ballinger.

Several hours had been consumed in the examination of Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office who was discharged because he made public confidential information of the department relating to the Lawler memorandum.

Directly contradicting Secretary Ballinger's testimony before the committee, Kerby said his former superior knew about the preparation of the memorandum and that he participated in a conference on the subject. Furthermore he said Lawler had told Private Secretary Carr in his presence that he had left a copy of the memorandum with Mr. Ballinger.

"I prepared the memorandum without consulting a single person under heaven," exclaimed Lawler. "The statement that anyone assisted me is an absolute falsehood."

Bookless Guest Room.

It is a compliment to your guest to remember his or her comfort, and it is distinctly the reverse to forget it. He may want a book to read or a drink of water. When entertaining be sure to serve Golden Grain Belt beer with your meals. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

SHOW COST OF LIVING.

Women Open Account Books to Railroad Arbitrators.

Chicago, May 18.—Submitting their family account books, in an effort to establish their contention that it is impossible to "make both ends meet," wives of enginemen here told of the high cost of living before the arbitration board which is settling the wage dispute between 27,000 employes and forty-nine railroads at Chicago.

Mrs. Marion Oliver of Chicago presented the following comparison of prices now with those of three years ago, before the members of the board:

| Articles, per pound— | Now. | Three years ago. |
|---|---|---|
| Sugar | 6 cents | 5 cents |
| Round steak | 14 cents | 10 cents |
| Liver | 8 cents | 3 cents |
| Bacon | 26 cents | 20 cents |
| Ham | 26 cents | 16 cents |
| Lard | 19 cents | 12½ cents |
| Butter | 38 cents | 25 cents |
| Prunes | 10 cents | 8 cents |

"Meat is too expensive to eat, cabbage is nearly a luxury, and we can't afford to buy anything but the cheapest of clothing," concluded Mrs. Oliver.

NEWSBOYS TO VISIT THEATER

To Be Guests of The Herald at Howe's Moving Picture Entertainment.

Tonight is the night of the big theater party given the newsies by The Herald at the Lyceum theater. At 8:10 sharp the doors to the entire upper floor of the Lyceum will be thrown open and the kids will have that section of the playhouse all to themselves.

Today tickets were given each Herald merchant and they will be taken abroad with Mr. Howe tonight.

The Howe moving pictures are faithful reproductions of great events, realistic and interesting. The entertainment has been drawing good crowds at the Lyceum.

AUSTRIAN HAS TALKED ABOUT COL. ROOSEVELT.

New York, May 18.—Alexander Nuber von Pereked, for several years Austro-Hungarian consul in New York, has left the city, presumably on a vacation, but the World says today that recent derogatory remarks he is alleged to have made about Theodore Roosevelt are at the bottom of his departure. This is denied, however, by the acting consul general.

BURIED AT HOUR WHEN HE WAS TO HAVE MARRIED.

Baltimore, Md., May 18.—As a dramatic and pitiful climax to her long trip from Italy to this country to marry Eugene Piazza, the sweetheart of her girlhood days, Miss Madeline Zanolla yesterday, at the hour fixed for the wedding, followed his body to the cemetery. Miss Zanolla reached this city Monday night and went at once to her fiance's home. Piazza died Saturday of pneumonia, but the fact was concealed from her for several hours after she arrived.

JELLY ROLL
3 Eggs
1 Cup Fine Granulated Sugar
3 Tablespoons Cold Water
1 Cup Duluth Imperial Flour
1 Teaspoon Baking Powder
1-4 Teaspoon Salt
Jam or Jelly
Beat the eggs and sugar until quite thick, add the water, then the flour, salt and baking powder sifted twice; fold these in with as little stirring as possible. Have ready a very shallow baking pan lined with greased paper, pour the cake batter in and spread evenly over the pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven from ten to twelve minutes. When done, turn out immediately on to a cloth sprinkled with sugar, tear off the paper and spread with jelly or jam that has been slightly warmed. Roll up quickly and let the cloth remain around the roll for a moment. Cool on a sieve or wire cake cooler.
The cloth, by holding the steam, makes it easier to roll the cake without the edges cracking.

O'BRIEN GETS SHORTSTOP

Gilles, From Appleton of Wisconsin-Illinois League, Joins Team.

Al. Cummings Is Expected to Join Sox at Eau Claire.

Gilles, a shortstop secured from the Appleton team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, will join the Sox at Rochester today. The new comer will be given a tryout at the shortstop position, as since the opening of the season this has been one of the weak places on the team.

The new man may take part in the game this afternoon. He is said to be a good sticker, and if he is as good with the bat as reports say he is, he will prove a valuable addition to the team.

Mr. Kuehnow wired transportation to Al. Cummings this morning. The Duluth boy is expected to join the team at Eau Claire. In a letter received from Cummings, he states that he is in good condition at the present time and will be ready to take his regular turn in the box as soon as he joins the team.

It is expected that Cummings will get into one of the Eau Claire games. He has been working out at Cleveland this spring.

Woods and Slattery have joined the team and will be used this afternoon. Woods comes with the recommendation of being a good catcher. That is what the team needs, and it is to be hoped that the new man will fill the bill.

Kenney will be let out. The big chap has failed to show anything to date. If Thorsen keeps right and shows the goods, Darby will have Dauss, Marion, Klingebell, Cummings and Thorsen to rely upon. Five pitchers will be all the Sox will carry the present season.

Mr. Kuehnow is confident that the Sox will start winning when the pitchers are in better condition. Duluth looks to have the best pitching staff in the league. With Dauss, Marion and Cummings right, Duluth will have a hill trio that should win the majority of their games.

If Thorsen keeps in condition he should rank with the leading twirlers of the league. What Klingebell will do the present season time alone will tell. However, with the infield working better, the Sox will pull out of the basement of the league and will be fighting at the top of the percentage column.

FLYNN IS EASY FOR KETCHEL

The Middleweight Champion Knocks Boston Boy Out in Third Round.

Boston, Mass., May 18.—Stanley Ketchel, world's champion middleweight fighter, sent James (Porky) Flynn of Boston down and out in the third round of a scheduled 12-round bout at the Armory Athletic association last night. Flynn, however, gave a good account of himself in the first two rounds, keeping the champion at long range and jabbing him hard in the face with his left while landing an occasional right.

Ketchel landed terrific swings at will on Flynn's head and body in the third and sent him to the floor twice with left punches to the stomach, Flynn taking the count on the last fall.

FORMER GOLF CHAMPION WILL VISIT DULUTH.

It is stated that Alex Smith, professional golf champion of the United States in 1906, will come to Duluth next month to play a series of exhibition games with W. D. Leith, the new coach of the Northland club, and R. D. Patrick, one of the best players of the local club.

While in the city Mr. Smith will also direct the laying out of a new eighteen-hole golf course.

ONE OF THE SPEED FIENDS IN ACTION

POOLE IN A SIMPLEX AT BRIGHTON BEACH.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

First Baseman Ward of the Outcasts has proved a find in the games he has worked in so far. The man secured from the Canadian league is hitting the ball hard and consistently and is fielding his position in faultless style. Safford evidently has a find in the new man.

Wais of the La Crosse outfit is another gent who is playing a mighty sweet game. In last Saturday's game the player accepted twelve chances at second with nary a skip. He is also doing some very nice execution with the old bludgeon.

As a matter of fact all of the players of the team are going at top speed at the present time. The team is hitting hard and is also fielding in faultless manner. The Outcasts are going to good to be true. They are bound to trip up, as several of the games they have won have been of the horseshoe variety. So far this team has had all the golden sunshine luck on the league. Will some one please turn the good luck spout in the direction of the discouraged Sox.

Down in La Crosse they profess to believe that Kuehn is every bit as good as Mique Malloy. The new member of the Outcasts is sure playing a very sweet game for Safford. If he can continue the present brand of playing he will probably make the fans forget Mique.

• • •

Reports from Red Wing indicate that every effort is being made to strengthen the team. The proud and haughty Mique Malloy has discovered the league is faster than he had any idea of, or that the players he has signed are not as fast as he fondly imagined. That defeat of the Chicago Logan Squares made Mique believe he had a team that would walk through the little league with comparative ease. Mique has several thinks coming.

• • •

The attendance at La Crosse so far the present season has been very good. The playing of the Outcasts no doubt has had much to do with the increased attendance. But at that, if the reports from the city are correct, there is more interest in the game the present season than at any time since La Crosse left the old Wisconsin State league. If the other towns over the circuit will follow the lead of the citizens of La Crosse, the present season will be the most prosperous in the history of baseball in this part of the country.

Kourick has been pulled from the Superior outfield and switched to second base. In the outfield, the St. Louis recruit failed to show very much. He has failed to show dazzling ability at the second sack so far. As the season progresses the wrath of the Superior fans over the loss of Koepping will probably continue to grow. In Koepping, Winona has secured a great little baseball player. His playing to date has featured the Winona games. How sweet the child would look in the O'Dea family!

Mique Malloy is looking hopefully toward the securing of some players from the Wisconsin-Illinois league. As that league is not any faster than the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, it is very hard to see where a player let loose by any team of that organization can prosper in the Minny family.

It is also stated that Mique is in correspondence with Charley Carr of the Indianapolis team, and that he has hopes of landing some player that Carr cannot use the present season. There are several managers of the Minny league who are on the still hunt for players. Funny how a few games will change the opinion of a manager.

Mike Sweeney, third baseman for the White Sox, has made a hit in the towns he has showed. The third sack guardian of the Duluth team looks good and has shown improvement since the opening game. If O'Brien had four infielders like the harp, he would have a team that would be very tight in the first line of defense.

• • •

Down in Eau Claire they are sighing ruefully for the return of Russ Bailey. The hitting of the big fellow has been sadly missed in the games that have been played so far. Callahan has as yet failed to show the class of Bailey. McCloskey shows no indications of letting Bailey go.

BOWLING SCORES

Massey and Olsen took first place in the two-men bowling tournament that was completed last evening at the Central alleys. City teams entered the tournament. The first fifteen teams rolled as follows:

LANGFORD WINS IN SECOND ROUND

Al Kubiak Takes Bad Beating at Hands of Boston Negro.

New York, May 18.—Sam Langford, the Boston negro, punished Al Kubiak, the Michigan heavyweight, so severely last night that the referee was forced to stop a scheduled ten-round bout at the Fairmont Athletic club in the second round. Kubiak outweighed the black by at least forty pounds, but the shifty negro scored with such terrific body blows that the white man suffered keenly.

Releases Announced.

Chicago, May 18.—One contract, that of L. Channell, with New York, was announced here yesterday by President Johnson of the American league, together with the following releases: By Boston to Denver, Fred G. Ehman; to Providence, C. A. Thompson and E. B. Steele; to St. Paul, Louis Leroy; by New York to Boston, C. Engle; by Cleveland to Columbus, Ward; outright by Northampton, Conn., G. D. Weaver; by Chicago to San Francisco, Royal Shaw.

THE MANAGER OF THE DETROIT TIGERS IN ACTION

JENNINGS OF DETROIT.

Manager Hughey Jennings of the Detroit team of the American league is shown in a characteristic attitude on the coaching lines shrieking his famous "E-yah!" A shrill whistle follows this cry, which is known over the entire circuit. This picture was made at the game the other day when the New York Americans shut out the Detroit team.

FAST BOAT MAY BE BROUGHT HERE

Efforts to Arrange Match Between Eard and Dingle Capitol.

Efforts are under way here to bring to the Head of the Lakes the Eard, a very fast motor boat of Michigan, to this city. The object of the coming of the Eard, will be to secure a race with the Dingle Capitol.

Dick Scheil is taking the 100-horse power engine out of the old hull of the Dingle Capitol, which was too light for the power engine, and will have a new hull for the speed producer.

With his new hull Mr. Scheil expects to have the fastest boat in the Northwest. He stated yesterday that he was ready to race the Eard or any other boat that was brought to the Head of the Lakes.

It is also expected that the Red Wing Flyer will be brought here the present season. W. F. Leggett has heard from the owner of the boat, who has stated that he will be glad to enter the boat in the open events of the Duluth Boat club regatta.

JIM JEFFRIES GOES FISHING

Fighter Takes Day's Vacation From the Training Grind.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 18.—Instead of the usual half-holiday which Jim Jeffries takes on Wednesday afternoons to break his week's training grind, he will take the whole of today off from work. The camp was early astir preparing for an automible trip to Santa Cruz. The greater part of the day is to be spent by Jeffries and his companions in a fishing excursion on the bay.

Jeffries kept at his training grind yesterday afternoon for two hours and fifteen minutes, the longest uninterupted session he has undergone since beginning training.

The program included shadow-boxing, bag-punching, rope-skipping and hand-ball, and at the finish, although he had been on the jump every instant of the workout, the big fighter did not appear in the least fatigued.

In the handball game Jeffries played three men—his brother Jack, Joe Choynski and Bob Armstrong. He took the trio into camp in two straight games. No boxing was included in the routine.

Roger Cornell, condition expert and masseur, arrived yesterday morning and took charge of the rubbing room. He deserted the Portland baseball team to join the Jeffries staff.

Barry to Join Camp.

Milwaukee, May 18.—It is considered here that Jim Barry of Chicago will go to Ben Lomond as a member of the Jeffries training camp. Barry's manager has received letters from Berger and Jeffries making tenders for the services of the Chicago Boy.

YACHT RACES PLANNED FOR SANTA BARBARA.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 18.—Officers and directors of the South Coast Yacht club of Los Angeles have formally accepted the invitation of the Santa Barbara Yacht club to come to Santa Barbara for a week's regatta of races and festivities during August. It will be the biggest amateur sporting event of the summer on the Pacific coast.

The Los Angeles club announces that its fleet of yawls, schooners and sloops will sail from San Pedro for Santa Barbara in a long distance race on Saturday, Aug. 13, and that the fleet will remain here throughout the following week until Aug. 20 to compete for cups put up by the local yacht club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Santa Barbara club.

The regatta will give Santa Barbara a summer entertainment par excellence for residents and visitors. The largest fleet of white wings that ever gathered here will compete in several thrilling races each day, within full sight of spectators on the boulevard and wharf.

Cups to be raced for this year include one new first and four new seconds to pass into the permanent possession of the winners. The club has one first cup now in its possession and other cup races will be for the Chamber of Commerce and Santa Barbara club perpetual trophies.

JOHNSON MAY BOX TEN FULL ROUNDS.

San Francisco, Cal., May 18.—Jack Johnson, with the selection of a referee off his mind, went through his usual grind yesterday. After the hard work Sunday there was not the slightest complaint from the negro that his muscles were stiff.

"If anything," he said when questioned on the subject, "I felt better than ever for boxing, and went through some stiff work. I am glad of it as it showed people I am in good shape. I expect to do as much if not more boxing tomorrow afternoon and may make it ten rounds instead of eight."

Manager George Little says he has a couple of volunteers who want a chance to show what they can do, and he will let them go on today.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Duluth's Best Chance.

"What are the chances of the crew this year? We are all interested in rowing up here, and there are a lot of us who want to see a Duluth eight take a first place."

A citizen of Duluth, who is not even a member of the boat club, made that statement the other day.

The answer to the question is simple and to the point: The chances of the crew are very good.

Conditions change the complexion of horse races as well as political contests. You can apply the same to boat races. Especially is this true when there are eight men in a boat.

But the chances of the junior eight of the Duluth Boat club, two months before the holding of the regatta, seem to be better than those of either St. Paul or Winnipeg.

Last season at St. Paul the present junior eight won second place. The race was won by the veteran eight of the Winnipeg Rowing club, Duluth beating out St. Paul for second place.

The winning of the 1909 junior race meant that the 1909 junior crew of the Winnipeg Rowing club was graduated to the ranks of the seniors. St. Paul and Duluth remain in the junior class.

Last year's junior eight of the Winnipeg club was accounted by many close students of rowing, as the fastest crew at the regatta, not excepting the crack senior eight of the Minnesota Boat club, which won the senior eight race and was later sent to the National at Detroit.

The present season Winnipeg will be compelled to develop a new eight. The material that the St. Paul had last season did not compare in point of excellence with the material that sat in the Duluth junior eight. In fact, Duluth had, with two exceptions, a crew of giants with infinite possibilities. If the material that rowed last year and that which is at hand the present season, can be developed to a higher degree of efficiency, the chances of the Duluth eight would seem to be the best of the three crews likely to furnish the competition at the Kenora events.

If John Hector comes out to row, and "Bill" Crawford comes back, there will be available for Coach Peyton six of the men who rowed in the boat last season. It is not at all certain that all of these men will make the boat. There is some very fine material at hand—men who did not row last season. The material is the best that has been available for some time.

There are many conditions against Duluth. The weather here is very bad. The rough water makes finished form hard to acquire. But the fact that the regatta the present season will be held on a lake, should be in favor of the local crews.

Viewing the various conditions in their logical light, and not allowing for the various accidents that must always be counted in, at this time it does look as if Duluth has the long awaited chance of winning in the Western regatta.

It is up to the men in the boat to get down and work as candidates for a Duluth crew have never worked before. All of the men seem to have the right spirit. The second year men are already rowing better than they rowed last season, which is natural. The boat is further advanced today than it was last season. It is the 1909 season.

Figuring on present appearances and the improvement the future should bring about, Duluth should send a junior eight to the regatta at Kenora that will make the other eights row awfully fast to beat it.

What We Missed.

Suppose, gentle reader, that black Jack Johnson and Samuel Berger had become mixed up. What a fine line of dope we would have had, at this early distance before the fight, of the possible prowess of Jeff and Johnson.

Suppose the second—that Johnson had put Berger into a nice gentle sleep, with a few well directed punches —the thought is really horrible and forbidding—but it is only a supposition—would Berger have boxed with Jeffries hereafter, and would Jeffries believe it up to him to slug Sammy to the land of slumbers. Just to convince a rather skeptical public of his abilities?

All this would have been extremely interesting. It would have been a play with a play as it were. It would have furnished the press agents with columns of speculation and copy. It would have made things really interesting. Viewing the situation calmly, it would seem that Berger missed a golden opportunity for copy. Of course he might have been beaten up but what then.

How They Look.

Viewing the race in the Minny league, from the distance the teams have traveled to date, La Crosse would appear to have the strongest team in the league.

Opening the season at home with the strong Eau Claire team, the Outcasts have yet to lose a game. The Safford-ites took the series with the Schoonhoven brigade and also took two games from the Duluth team. Five straight on the home grounds, though, is not to be marvelled at.

Superior will have the opportunity, it is to be hoped, of breaking up the winning streak of the Outcasts. In the games played so far the Outcasts have shown that the members of the team are hitters, or else the pitchers working against the La Crosse bunch have been away to the bad.

Eau Claire to date has been the real surprise of the league, as the team was generally picked as the dark horse. Schoonhoven's pitchers have been working badly and the team has not been able to pull out victories with weak work in the box.

Darby O'Brien has been troubled with pitchers who are not in condition. Dauss worked with a sore arm in the opening game with Winona. The boy worked under conditions that would make an ordinary pitcher quit. But with Marion troubled with a sore arm and the other pitchers not feeling any too good, there was nothing to do but pitch George.

Red Wing has failed to show anything to date. The team appears to have a weak infield and lack pitchers. This is taking into fact that the season is young, a mere weakling, as yet.

Winona has played an in and out game. That team was very lucky in making it two out of three with Duluth, as two of the Winona victories were of the lucky order. Winona took two out of three from Eau Claire, and the series shows little difference thus early in the season between the two teams.

Wausau looks stronger than last year and Rochester has proved quite a pleasant surprise. Superior has a fine fielding team, but it looks as if there will be some more changes in the team before O'Dea will be satisfied. At the present stage of the young race, Superior does not look dangerous.

Duluth has failed to show as yet. However, the fans have great hopes for the boys when the pitchers strike their true gait.

TO ABANDON EMERYVILLE

Jeffries-Johnson Fight Will Probably Be Held in San Francisco.

Promoters Fear Interference on Part of Alameda County Officials.

San Francisco, Cal., May 18.—It appears to be a generally accepted thing now that the Jeffries-Johnson fight will take place in this city, instead of at Emeryville.

No difficulty in securing permission to hold the fight here is anticipated for the promoters but in order to comply with articles of agreement covering the battle, it will be necessary for Rickard and Gleason to have the city officials make a special concession relative to the number of rounds. Forty-five rounds or no fight, say the regulations in effect, and that is just twenty-five rounds more than is included in the purview of the local ordinance governing boxing exhibitions. It is thought, however, that no objection will be forthcoming from the authorities to the extension of this particular event beyond the usual limit.

Tex Rickard said yesterday, however, that no action had been taken or contemplated by the fight promoters for a change in the site of the match. He declared as the affair did not violate any law he condemned Deputy District Attorney Donahue, nor Sheriff Barnett would interfere. Rickard said, however, that as great pressure had been brought to bear on these officials to cause them to stop the bout, steps would be taken to change the site if the promoters become convinced interference was contemplated.

That he does not fear the loss of the Emeryville track by adverse action on the part of the California Jockey club, was asserted by Rickard who declared that Thomas H. Williams, president of the racing organization, had assured him he would not under any circumstances cancel the lease of the track held by the promoters for the July 4 date.

While none of the Alameda county officials will say positively they will try to stop the fight, and neither Rickard nor Gleason will admit they have charged their plans, there is a well-rumored belief in sporting circles here that the big battle will not be held in the Emeryville racing grounds. Admitting that the question of the law in the case is an open one, it is pointed out that the tremendous amount of money involved in the fight already, will deter the promoters from taking any chances of even attempted interference.

Gleason and Rickard and others interested, were in conference all yesteraay morning, but declined to give out any statement beyond Rickard's terse assertion: "The fight will be held in California."

Williams Explains.

Oakland, Cal., May 18.—Thomas H. Williams, president of the New California Jockey club, which controls the race track at Emeryville, where it was proposed to hold the Jeffries-Johnson fight, explained yesterday the report that he had withdrawn his permission to hold the battle there on July 4.

"Whether or not the combat will be held across the bay is entirely in the hands of Tex Rickard," said Williams. "When he first asked my permission for the use of the race track, I canvassed the business men and prominent people in Alameda county, and they all urged me to allow the fight to be held at the track. Recently these same men have come to me and indicated that they did not want the fight in the vicinity, I suppose as a result of the pressure brought to bear on them.

"I sent for Rickard and placed the situation before him, telling him that I would prefer that he did not hold the fight at Emeryville. I informed him however, that my personal promise to him would hold good and that he could hold the fight at the track if he desired. I said plainly that I preferred that he did not, but I did not cancel my permission, and if he cannot arrange to hold the bout elsewhere, or prefers to keep me to my original promise, he can do so. That is the whole situation."

Governor Will Not Interfere.

Chicago, May 18.—According to Governor J. H. Gillett of California, who stopped over in Chicago last night on his way home from Washington, Jeffries and Johnson will fight in California without legal interference.

"There is an old law," said the governor, "prohibiting prize fights, but one paragraph in the law gives the several boards of supervisors authority to license boxing contests when given by some duly organized club or association. For this reason there is no chance for interference, and, in my opinion, none will be made from a legal standpoint. There may be other causes to prevent the fight, such as disputes or wrangling, but nothing from the law department."

BALTIC MINER KILLED.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—Joseph Tarsar of Baltic, an Austrian miner, was killed Sunday by falling sixty-five feet down the shaft. The base of his skull was fractured, and he died instantly. Tarsar was about 26 years of age and single. He was buried yesterday morning from the Atlantic Catholic church.

ROOSEVELT IN NORWAY AND THE NETHERLANDS

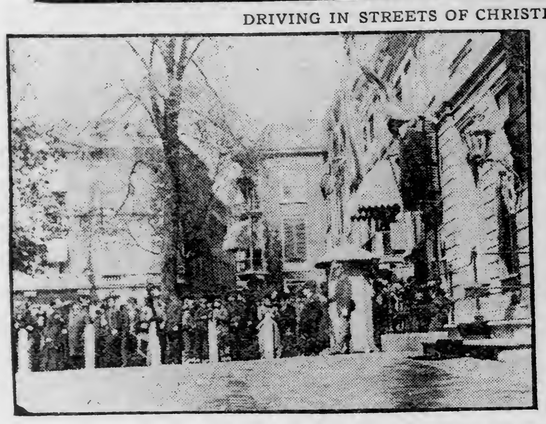
DRIVING IN STREETS OF CHRISTIANIA.



CROWD OUTSIDE THE HOUSE OF THE DOWAGER AT THE HAGUE WHEN COL. ROOSEVELT CALLED THERE.

TYPICAL DUTCH SOLDIER.
On Guard at the Home of Dowager Queen Emma at The Hague.

(Special Correspondence of The Duluth Herald. By George Grantham Bain.)

Copenhagen, May 3.—Roosevelt's trip from Holland to Denmark through Germany was far from agreeable. They have "through sleeping cars" in Europe, but they are, for the most part, dirty and uncomfortable and they cover only a few routes. For example, if you want to go from The Hague, the capital of Holland, to Hamburg, one of the greatest German cities, only eleven hours' journey, you must get into a stuffy day coach at The Hague at 7:30 and rode to Amersfoot, two hours away, before you meet the through car from Rotterdam to Hamburg. Then, if the telegram (for which you have to pay) has arrived in time and they have reserved a berth for you, you get a sleeping place. But you have no assurance of a reservation, since no answer to your telegram has been sent.

Mr. Roosevelt has had special arrangements made for him throughout his trip, but in the transfer from one route to another on the way from Holland to Denmark, something went wrong and the ex-president was hustled out on the platform at Hamburg at 6:30 in the morning and the faithful Abbot rushed around in vain hunting for the ex-presidential wardrobe.

Enforced Informality.

The luggage was all astray and the result was that when Mr. Roosevelt was received by the crown prince of Denmark he wore a gray business suit and a slouch hat. However, he was probably not much concerned, for the king and queen of Denmark had the bad taste to go to Nice on a holiday just before Mr. Roosevelt's arrival, and the prestige of being met by a crown prince was as nothing to Mr. Roosevelt's experience in other places.

This comment must not be taken too seriously, however, for Mr. Roosevelt's reception in the capital of Denmark was really one of the best planned and most enthusiastic he has experienced in Europe. It was, in fact, such a reception as no plain citizen of any country has ever known, even in democratic Denmark.

The king of Denmark is not a very potent factor in his country's government, but the traditions and conventions of royalty are well preserved and it was a great honor to Mr. Roosevelt and to the American people to have the ex-president housed in the king's palace, and to have Miss Ethel Roosevelt couched in the bed usually reserved for the queen of England. These were the honors paid to Mr. Roosevelt by the royal family.

"Stormende Hurraraab."

The crown prince and princess met the Roosevelts at the train, and, amid what the Copenhagen papers described as "Stormende Hurraraab," escorted them to the palace.

The decoration of Copenhagen was on a rather fine scale. There were flags everywhere—chiefly Danish flags. Here and there were American colors. They flew, of course, over the local offices of American Insurance companies. That we have found in other cities as well. They invited the breeze, as a matter of course, at the American legation, over which Minister Egan presides so efficiently. They were flung from the offices of the Scandinavian American Steamship company, and the Hotel d' Angleterre.

"Gull of the Comet."

This tall, by the way, has grown a little since we left Naples. There are now not alone the useful Abbot, but a secretary and a valet, to say nothing of a maid for Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel. Then there are ten representatives of English and American newspapers and press agencies as follows: Elmer Roberts, Associated Press; Gibson Gardener, United Press; Walter Wellman, Chicago Record Herald; F. E. Sturdevant, New York World; H. Walter, London Times; Fred Grundy, New York Sun; A. J. Lambert, New York American; Ward Price, London Mail; H. D. Blauvelt, American Press Association; George Grantham Bain, Daily Illustrated News Service. These correspondents have, for the most part, struggled with all the obstacles which beset an enterprise of this kind without aid or encouragement.

It is the custom of American presidents when traveling to recognize the accredited correspondents as of their party, and to ask that courtesies be extended to them for prosecuting their work. This does not apply to expresidents, apparently, and for the most part our diplomatic representatives have been too busy with the social diversions attending Mr. Roosevelt's visit to care whether the correspondents had facilities for doing their work or not. Hence a large part of the time of the newspaper men has been wasted hunting for local officials and seeking tickets to functions given in Mr. Roosevelt's honor.

The "Roosevelt March."

When Mr. Roosevelt drove through the streets of Copenhagen in the carriage with the crown prince, he was cheered very heartily. He saw a brave display of Danish flags with an occasional glimpse of the Stars and Stripes. And in one window on the chief shopping street, he might have seen a hundred copies of the "Roosevelt March," composed in honor of his coming, adorned with an excellent portrait of him, set in a framework of the American colors. There were excellent portraits of him in the windows of the booksellers, and it was evident that the whole population was alive to his coming.

But the most significant demonstration occurred on the day after his arrival. On the morning of that day he was taken in an automobile to visit the historic old castle of Frederickisborg and to see the famous fortress of Helsingor, which tradition identifies as the "Elsinore" of Hamlet. He rode under gray skies through a chilling air. But nothing chills Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiasm. And a few minutes after noon, when he boarded the Queen Maude of the Scandinavian line at the Helsingor wharf he looked, in his yellow military overcoat and slouch hat, the picture of vigorous interest.

Cakes Iced in Red, White and Blue.

The entertainment on the Queen Maude was unique and one of the most interesting which has been prepared for him. The ship is comparatively small—it plies between Copenhagen and Christiana—but in its equipment it is like a little ocean liner. It was originally intended that Mr. Roosevelt should travel by this ship from Copenhagen north, but a change in the length of his stay made this impossible. In honor of his coming, however, the ship had been put in a gala condition. And in the dining saloon where luncheon was served each table had been decorated with the Danish and American colors and even the cakes in their silver baskets were iced in the white and red of Denmark and the red, white and blue of the United States.

Before he went to luncheon, Mr. Roosevelt met the guests of the occasion on the upper deck. They were introduced by Admiral Richelieu, the chairman of the steamship company's executive committee. Admiral Richelieu sat opposite Mr. Roosevelt at the luncheon and proposed his health, to which Mr. Roosevelt responded with a characteristic tribute to the Danish people. It was worthy of note, however, that neither at this luncheon nor at the dinner given on the same evening was the name of Jacob Riis, Mr. Roosevelt's "model American citizen," even whispered.

At the luncheon Mrs. Richelieu sat on the ex-president's right and the Countess Rapen (who was born an American) on his left. The American minister, Mrs. Egan, and Miss Egan also occupied places of honor.

Reviewed Danish Fleet.

As the luncheon drew to a close, the Queen Maude entered the fine harbor of Copenhagen and Mr. Roosevelt accompanied Admiral Richelieu to the bridge, where he reviewed the vessels of the Danish fleet. These warships were dressed as for royalty and their bands played "The Star Spangled Banner," as the ex-president stood with his hat held in salute. A minute later he doffed it again as the band on the Queen Maude played the Danish national air.

There was an enormous crowd on the wharf to greet Mr. Roosevelt, and the royal carriages with their scarlet-coated coachmen and footmen awaited his arrival. Again there was a chorus of cheers as Mr. Roosevelt entered his carriage and drove away.

In the evening a dinner was given in the town hall, a remarkably fine building of comparatively recent construction and of characteristic architecture and decoration. The Danes listened with respectful attention to some of the moral sentiments which Mr. Roosevelt has expressed in previous speeches, and responded with cries of "Good!" to many of his sentiments.

At 9 o'clock a great crowd filled the station to see the special "sofvogn" or sleeping car of Mr. Roosevelt pull out for Christiana.

This is the eighth of a series of illustrated letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald while accompanying Col. Roosevelt on his European tour. The next will appear at an early date.

ERLANGER ON THE RUN

John Cort Now Most Important Figure in the Theatrical World.

"Abe's" Resignation From Association Failed to Produce Stampede.

According to New York newspapers, John Cort is now the most important figure in theatrical circles. To him a great part of the credit for the breaking up of the theatrical trust is due, and he now occupies a position where it is believed, Klaw & Erlanger will soon be asking him for bookings.

For years Klaw & Erlanger have controlled the theaters of the country, ruling with an iron hand. No favors were granted; westerners had to beg for attractions, and their power was absolute. The theaters throughout the country could take the attractions offered or nothing. There wasn't any manager who liked it, but he was powerless to help himself and many resigned themselves to conditions which they believed must continue indefinitely, so great was the power of "Little Abe."

Then about a year ago a light began to appear. It was small at first but it penetrated very quickly. The Shuberts had left the trust, it was announced, and they had several theaters in which to play their attractions. They succeeded in getting backing, too, for several houses were erected, some were built over, and managers of some of the theaters in the larger cities fell into line. During the year past the theatrical managers have watched with anxious eyes the fight being waged between the independents and the trust. The battle seems to be practically over, and the Independents have won. At the present time there seems nothing else for Klaw & Erlanger to do but to come in with as much grace as possible and accept the conditions as they now present themselves.

The Last Stand.

Down in New York the other day, the last stand was taken by the trust. Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, hoping to hide his distress from the public resigned from the National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers. Several persons went with him. Some of them are really producing managers and others are merely figure heads. He sought to make a great show but his scheme failed and instead he gave further proof of what has been evident along Broadway for some time; namely, that the theater trust is a mere shell of some fifty theaters some of which will be shortly withdrawn. Not only has he lost control of 1,500 theaters throughout the country, but he admitted by his acts that he had lost control of the producing managers. Soon it is believed that he will be forced to ask John Cort for bookings at the one-night stands. The only men of prominence who went out with Erlanger, are George M. Cohan, who has several shows, and his partner Harris.

"Abe" Formerly Ruled.

Erlanger formerly controlled the association, and ruled it firmly. It was organized for the mutual protection of the producing managers, but the only managers who received any benefit from it were Erlanger and his close allies. Nobody else ever derived any advantage. The directors were elected at Erlanger's direction, and did his bidding. There are about 200 members of the organization, comprising managers who produce farce, others who produce burlesque, and managers representing other branches of the theatrical world, except vaudeville. Producers who never have a play in New York, but who send them over the one-night stand routes, were members. Charles Frohman, David Belasco, Charles B. Dillingham and Daniel Frohman never were members. When Erlanger controlled the theaters throughout the country, he had every producing manager by the neck. When, however, John Cort combined the various circuits and announced the owners meant to play all the attractions, regardless of the trust, the situation changed.

The producing managers found hope, and they threw off the yoke of Erlanger and the syndicate. Erlanger learned last week that he no longer controlled the association, and he decided to withdraw. He tried frantically to get many other members to quit with him, but his efforts were feeble. Henry W. Savage, William A. Brady and many other producing managers are members. Many other producers would have nothing to do with the organization while Erlanger was the supreme power in it. The reason for the sudden resignation of Erlanger and his allies is simple. Now that Cort controls the theaters in the country, and is ready to book any show he sent word to the producing managers' association he would like to speak to its members. His letter was received by the board of directors last Thursday. Erlanger's supporters would have liked to lay it on the table until they could run over to "Abe" and find out what he wanted. They did not dare to do that, for they were outnumbered, so they acquiesced, passing a resolution appointing any time within two weeks in which to hear Cort. Erlanger was furious at this. He sent for the various directors and tried to get them to stand by the syndicate. He found he was outnumbered, and he fully appreciated that when the directors met Cort and heard his statement, they must vote to support the "open door' movement.

Erlanger thought he could pull a master stroke by resigning in high dudgeon. He did not make the impression he wished to create and, although now, to all appearances, badly beaten at every point of the game, "Little Abe" says that he is not yet licked and that he will be stronger than ever in a hort while.

For a year at least the Western theaters will be played by the independents. John Cort has them firmly tied up and the open door policy is now in vogue.

Minneapolis After Credit Men.

New Orleans, La., May 18.—Federal bankruptcy statutes were scheduled for discussion at today's session of the National Credit Men's association. Amendments to the existing law are proposed. A spirited fight for the next meeting place of the association has been launched, with Detroit, Minneapolis and Buffalo regarded as the chief contestants.

An Antiseptic That Cures All Germ Diseases

Salubrin that most wonderful antiseptic (germ destroyer) does more than merely destroy all kinds of disease germs, whether in the skin where they cause itching and eruptions, or in open sores, which they prevent healing, or in internal tissues, where they produce catarrh, bronchitis or tuberculosis. Salubrin counteracts and neutralizes the poisons (toxins) produced by disease germs (bacteria, bacilli) and strengthens the tissues so as to enable them to resist further attacks from these enemies, something which no other antiseptic or antitoxin ever accomplished.

No wonder leading physicians all over the world are resorting to the use of Salubrin in every case of germ disease, from a common cold or a slight skin eruption, sore or wound, to the most complicated and stubborn affections of the skin and internal tissues, relying on Salubrin to cure when everything else has failed. And the beauty of this new eradicator of disease is that any person, even a child, can use Salubrin with perfect safety and success.

If you want to learn more about the magical efficacy of this greatest medical discovery of the age, call on your druggist for a free Salubrin booklet or write to Salubrin Laboratory, 26 Salubrin Bldg., Grand Crossing, Chicago.

SAYS ALL WOMEN AND SOME PASTORS ARE LIARS.

Chicago, May 18.—Rev. Edwin C. Brown of Moline, Ill., precipitated a lively debate during an address at the opening of the annual Western Unitarian conference here yesterday when he said:

"All women are liars and telling falsehoods is woman's chief sin."

Two hundred women were attending the meeting, and Mrs. C. V. Mercerau interrupted the speaker. She declared that Rev. Mr. Brown could not prove his assertion.

Another outbreak occurred when Rev. Mr. Brown said he knew a number of ministers who were "liars," who preached that things can be measured by nobler things than money and yet lived their personal lives with money as their chief object of worship.

REAL ESTATE IS IN BIG DEMAND

Numerous Deals in Chisholm Addition Property Are Being Recorded.

Chisholm, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The real estate market continues very active. Saturday the Townsite company sold sixteen lots, many of which will be built upon at once. Hayes & Hackett sold five lots in their addition, on which they have contracted to put up five residences. Frank Austin, Dr. Shellman and Nels Nelson have residences under construction at the Northern addition. Tony Tanzic has started the construction of a ten-room house which will cost about $5,000, also at the Hayes & Hackett addition. The grading of Hemlock street leading into the Hibbing-Chisholm road three blocks south of Lake street is nearly completed, and there will be considerable building on this street at once.

Definite information has been received here that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company will build a depot at Buhl, between the Kinney townsite and the village. Activity in mining and concerted action on the part of Buhl business men, who took the matter up vigorously with Duluth, Missabe & Northern officials, caused the latter to make a decision in favor of giving them a depot.

A large number of Chisholm people spent Sunday at Tom Hickey's Island lake resort fishing. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Deac Blough, Leonard Krause, Ed Rupp and John Lenz, all of whom brought back fish. Ed Lockhart and John Dwyer brought back two fine pickerel whose combined weight was twenty-five pounds.

At the last meeting of the Modern Woodmen lodge a class of eleven new members was initiated. This makes a total of 145 members gained for the year, and again gives the Chisholm lodge a good lead in the state competition for new members.

The fire department was called out at 2:30 Sunday afternoon to a forest fire at the Clark location at the village limits in the southwest portion of town. A fire was burning fiercely to the south of the location and was being driven towards the location by a strong wind. It required three hours' hard work on the part of the department to get the fire under control. The rain has extinguished all fires in this locality.

MARBLE WELL PROTECTED.

Clearing aand Excavation Around Town to Keep off Fire.

Marble, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the employes of the Oliver Iron Mining company at the Hill mine here have been busy the past week making a fire girdle around the village. It is about 100 feet wide, clean of brush and timber and dug up with dirt and encircles the town. In case of the forest fires coming within a dangerous limit of town the citizens will be able to fight it to good advantage as it keeps the fires from traveling beyond this girdle at no greater pace than it can be controlled. This precaution with the recent showers of rain has lessened the dangers of fires to a great extent around Calumet and Marble, where there were many threatening fires that were being watched all last week. The dangers now are practically over on this end of the range.

A Deep Cut in Pianos!

ABOUT ONE MILE WILL BE PAVED

Virginia Council Orders Bids for Work Advertised at Once.

Virginia, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council will ask for bid for the paving of about one mile of streets, and last night instructed the city clerk to advertise for such bids. Chestnut street for one block from Central avenue to Lake boulevard, Central avenue from Willin to Sage street, Maple street from Railroad to Virginia, and the avenue of Mesaba, Wyoming and Cleveland for one block north and south of Chestnut street are to be paved. The advertisements will call for bids for creosote blocks, bithalitic, granitoid and doncelite, the council to select the best.

The Virginia & Rainy Lake company petitioned for the vacation of that portion of the Mud lake road, which runs through its lumber yard, and a hearing on the matter will be advertised for in the near future. The farmers of the Mud lake district have entered a protest against the vacation of this road unless another road for convenient entrance into the city is given them.

The ordinance re-establishing the grade on Central avenue from Hemlock to Tarch street received its second reading.

Street Commissioner Christopherson was instructed to lay a storm sewer on Railroad avenue from Maple to Poplar street to connect with the main sewer there.

Meat Inspector John Byrne reported all meat markets in the city in first-class condition with no bad meats for condemnation. He was instructed to inspect all meats brought into the city from the meat dealers of Mountain Iron.

The clerk of the municipal court reported fines collected for the week ending May 14, amounting to $168.55.

The bid of the Austin-Western company to furnish the city a 600-gallon sprinkling wagon for $298.50 was accepted. The bid of the Studebaker Bros. of $292 was turned down because of no guarantee.

The First National and the American Exchange banks were designeated city depositories, both agreeing to pay the city 1 per cent per annum on all daily deposits of $5,000 or over.

A representative of the Decarie Incinerator company of Rankin, Pa., was present and explained the workings of their plants, estimating the cost of installing one here at between $10,000 and $12,000. The matter was referred to the board of health to report at the next meeting.

City Clerk Bickford was instructed to present a resolution at the next meeting establishing the width of sidewalks on Central avenue. It was proposed to make the walks on this avenue from Chestnut to Poplar street 16 feet wide, and from Poplar street to the terminal either 8 or 6 feet wide.

NAME SUPERINTENDENT.

L. L. Johnson placed in Charge of the Gilbert Water System.

Gilbert, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the last meeting of the water, light, power and building commission L. L. Johnson was appointed as superintendent of the village water system at a salary of $75 per month.

A report of water service permits granted and amount collected for tapping mains under the direction of the superintendent was read and accepted and placed on file.

It was ordered that the clerk get prices on a plumber's cart and on a first-class modern tapping machine, also that the Grand theater be supplied with electric current at a rate of $30 per month until the commission shall install a meter in the building, said service dating from the day the wires are connected up with the building.

R. S. Hartley was employed to set four poles at the direction of the commission for the carrying of current from the village hall to the Grand theater.

R. S. Hartley was also employed to set four poles in the alley northwest of Broadway street between Michigan and Wisconsin avenues in seven foot holes, attaching cross arms, doing all in first-class shape for the sum of $1.50 per pole.

EVELETH ORDERS MANY NEW WALKS

Large Amount to Be Expended in Laying Down New Cement Walks.

Eveleth, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last evening ordered many cement sidewalks built at the expense of the abutting property owners. This means the largest improvement for streets ever ordered by a city council, and by the end of this summer there will not be one single boardwalk in the entire city limits—all will be of cement construction. If the property owners fail to do the work by July 5 the city council will have the work done and charged to the owners.

W. M. Prindle of Duluth informed the council that the company he represents would not accept the street railway franchise granted unless the traction people were allowed a year's time from the date of acceptance to have one mile of railway line built and in operation, instead of by Jan. 1, 1911, as originally; also a $1,500 cash bond, instead of $10,000 security bonds, and that the section requiring the line to be built through the Fayal location direct to Gilbert be amended so as to enable the builders to build through from Eveleth to Gilbert by way of the old "mud hen" tracks. He asks the council to repeal the present franchise and pass one of more adequate provisions and the matter was accordingly referred to the ordinance committee.

The light and water committee recomended that the city pay the Home Heating and Electric company the same rates for the arc lights in the Missabe township, as paid by the township officials formerly, and the city clerk was accordingly instructed to make the necessary arrangements with the electric people.

A communication from the county auditor recommended that the city council and Missabe township board meet and decided on the per cent of taxes for the acquired territory, and the city clerk was accordingly instructed to make suitable arrangements for the meeting.

A petition from many residents on Grant avenue from Hayes street north, requesting that the city council adopt the present grade instead of establishing a new grade as hertofore requested, was placed on file.

The applications of Dan Berg, Ed Finch, Holka and Johnson for a renewal of their liquor licenses, and August Lund for a transfer of his license to Charles Johnson, were all granted.

The city street commissioner reported that the work on the new road to the Virginia mine stripping had been completed, and he was also instructed to remove a obstructions on the Virginia road in the north end of the Adams location, which was recently acquired by the city, in the annexation of the North side division.

The report of the municipal court clerk for the week ending May 14, showed a total amount of fines of $141.38, and for May 7, $56.

ENCAMPMENT TO INITIATE

First Set of Candidates to Be Taken By New Hibbing Lodge.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.—Tomorrow evening the members of the new encampment of Odd Fellows which was formed recently will have a session in their new hall over Ersgmer's store, when about ten new members will be initiated. This will be the first degree work done since the encampment was formed and will be done by mixed teams from all over the ranges. Several different lodges will be here Thursday evening from over the range and a good time will be given all those who attend.

Thursday evening Company N, G. M., will elect a captain to succeed George O'Sullivan and a second lieutenant to succeed Basil F. Fitch. George Healy, first lieutenant will probably be elected captain; Jason L. Lewis and E. J. Roble are candidates for first lieutenant, and Walter Crandall is candidate for second lieutenant.

An auto party consisting of Dr. H. Welrick, Nat Bemish, James Nickolson, Henry Little and John Bray drove out to Sturgeon lake Monday afternoon and visited with George McArthur, who has been out at the lake for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Ben Lippman returned home Tuesday noon from Duluth.

CURFEW ORDINANCE.

Hibbing Council to Keep Young People Off Streets Evenings.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—Special to The Herald.)—The village board last night decided to enforce the curfew ordinance. This provides that from May 1 to Sept. 1 all children 16 years of age or under must be off the streets by 9 o'clock in the evening and during the remainder of the year by 8:30.

At the request of the fire chief it was voted to secure badges for the firemen which will designate their standing in the department. There will be fourteen of them.

The street railway franchise was not ready and a special meeting of the council will be held Friday night to consider several clauses which it is desired to include in the franchise.

Cement walks have not been put in by all the property owners and the council voted to go ahead and install them at the expense of the village and charge the cost against the property.

The street commissioner was instructed to improve the appearance of the cemetery by removing a number of fences before Decoration Day.

It was voted to secure a block north of Mahoning street and west of First avenue for playground for the school children. The village will install a baseball diamond and the school board will put in swings and other devices for the amusement of the youngsters.

"JUST LIKE PAPA."

Children Glad to Have Their Drink Like Their Parents.

More than any of the old folks realize, the little folks at the table like to have food and drink the same as Father and Mother.

Perhaps you can remember the time when a fork-full of the meat or potato or a sip from the cup that your Father or Mother was using seemed to possess some remarkable merit and flavour.

If children can be given a strong, nourishing food drink such as Postum it satisfies their desire to have things like the older folks, and at the same time gives them a drink they love and fatten on.

A lady up in Oakes, N. D., says that since their family have been drinking Postum the children are stronger and better than ever before, and are so glad that they can have coffee to drink "just like popa."

The husband and father was taken sick with a very severe attack of stomach trouble and had to give up work, being confined to the house for some weeks, suffering greatly. For some time he had been in the habit of drinking coffee for breakfast, and tea for dinner and supper. The wife writes: "After reading some of your advertisements we wondered if coffee and tea had not been the cause of his sickness.

"We finally decided to have him quit tea and coffee and try Postum. He dates his recovery from the day he commenced to drink Postum, and has not had to stop work from sickness since then.

"Some years ago I tried a package of Postum and did not like it, but I know now that it was because I did not make it right. It is easy to make good Postum if the simple directions on the package are followed. The only failure is when people do not boil it long enough."

Two Harbors, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The membership of the local Y. M. C. A. has increased until at present it is 1,030. Last fall at the end of the campaign to secure a membership of 1,000 or over, the total was 1,006. Since N. W. Benning resigned last fall, the Y. M. C. A. has been in charge of several different local men until a few weeks ago, when J. G. Hamaker arrived to take charge, and under his direction the Y. M. C. A. will continue to increase.

Fires in Pennsylvania.

Ridgway, Pa., May 18.—Forest fires have been raging unchecked in many parts of Elk county for the last week. The town of Laurel Mills, two miles from Ridgway, has been practically burned out.

ATTACKED WITH KNIFE

Adi Seppanen Is the Victim of a Murderous Assault.

Stabbing Is Claimed to Have Been Result of Saloon Brawl.

Adi Seppanen, a woodsman, was slashed in a dozen places shortly after 11 o'clock last night, with a clasp knife wielded by William Mackie, a countryman, who had been lying in wait for him at the rear of Jacob Mattson's saloon, 324 Lake avenue south.

Mackie was arrested an hour later in a nearby boarding house by Sergeant John Roberg. Partially disrobed he was found in a drunken stupor on top of the covers with the bloody knife grasped in his hand. He is charged with murderous assault.

The trouble is believed by the police to have started earlier in the evening in the saloon, but the nature of it had not been learned this morning.

The victim is at St. Luke's hospital, where it is thought that he will recover. Although weak from loss of blood he slept all night and showed an improvement.

The men engaged in a fist brawl before the knife was used, according to the police. This morning they located two women living on St. Croix avenue who claim to have seen the fight. One of them, Eva Hill, said that Macki was getting the worst of the encounter when Seppanen drew the knife on him. The other, Susan Johnson, reached the scene a little liner and did not know as much about the fray. Detectives Terry and Toewe investigated the case this morning but they were unable to get much definite information as to the cause of the bad blood between the men. It is thought that it was an old quarrel. The battle took place shortly after the saloon closed.

Seppanen was found by a passer by, bleeding profusely. Helping him to his feet he led him up Lake avenue to Superior street, where they were met by the police sergeant. The sergeant accompanied them to the station, where Dr. Abbott was called to dress Seppanen's wounds. Sergeant Roberg and Seppanen's companion started a search for Mackie, locating him in the boarding house back of the saloon.

OLD SLEEPERS ARE REPLACED

Antiquated Cars Are Taken Off Duluth-Grand Forks Run.

According to the requests of the traffic commission of the public affairs committee of the Duluth Commercial club, the Great Northern Railway company has finally taken the two antiquated sleeping cars, which did service on the Duluth-Grand Forks branch for many years, off the run and have replaced them by two cars that are modern, although not entirely up-to-date.

The present arrangement is only temporary, however, and ultimately the Duluth-Grand Forks line will be adequately equipped for the accommodation of night travelers. New cars have been ordered for the Duluth-Twin City branch, but their delivery has been delayed. As soon as they are delivered, the sleepers now in use between the Twin Cities and Duluth will be put on the Duluth-Grand Forks line. They are modern standard sleepers in good condition, and will be satisfactory to travelers who have long complained of the relics formerly used.

The sleepers now on the run have recently come from the shops and are in much better condition than the sleepers that were removed, although they are not strictly modern. They will serve well until the more satisfactory arrangement can be made.

DOCTOR'S NOVEL STUNT.

Suffering With Broken Leg, Sets Another's Fractured Limb.

New Rockford, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—An operation under unusual difficulties was performed here, when Dr. Roy McKenzie, while lying on a bed with a fractured leg, set a broken shoulder bone for Tom Ferdon. While occupying his own bed, the man with the broken shoulder bone was brought to his side for treatment. Although the work was performed under the greatest of difficulties, Ferdon is now getting along well. Dr. McKenzie had his leg fractured in a baseball game, and chanced to be the only physician in town, the others being away at the time.

TAKE CONFEDERATE MONEY.

Winona Moving Picture Houses Fall for an Old Game.

Winona, Minn., May 18.—The United States grand jury indicted Charles I. Dukes on a charge of having in his possession obligations and securities made in similitude of United States gold certificates of $10 denominations. Dukes is said to have passed Confederate money on moving picture theaters here, and is suspected of having done the same at Wausau, Chippewa Falls and Eau Claire. Melvin E. Wold of Byron pleaded guilty to violating the meat inspection law in shipping an immature calf to Chicago, and was fined $25.

Memorial for Crittenton.

St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—A memorial service in honor of Charles N. Crittenton, the founder of the organization, was held by the National Florence Crittenton Mission conference this morning. Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, national president, conducted the services, in which prominent social workers paid tribute to the man who made the organization possible.

NORTH DAKOTA CHILD IS FATALLY BURNED.

Wishek, N. D., May 18.—Returning home after taking her father some lunch, the 7-year-old daughter of Bernard Kasman, living thirteen miles southwest of here, stopped beside a burning strawstack and lost her life. She got too near the flames, and, her dress taking fire, was burned to a crisp before help came.

Celebration at Thief River.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local society of Sons of Norway celebrated the natal day of the Norwegian people by a grand celebration last evening at the Antlers club. Addresses were made by several speakers and songs were sung and a lunch served to the large audience of people who claim descent from Norwegian parentage. During the day several Norwegian flags were floated from staffs about the city.

NOT BROMO SELTZER.

Former Minneapolis Woman Makes Fatal Mistake in North Dakota.

Ashley, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. George Sharatt, the wife of a farmer residing a short distance from here, met a very sudden death when she drank a quantity of poison. She got up early in the morning, not feeling well, and going to a neighbor's secured what she thought was bromo seltzer. Within a few minutes she showed symptoms of having taken poison. A physician was called but the woman was dead inside of a very few minutes of his arrival.

Mrs. Sharatt removed to this county with her family only six years ago, coming from Minneapolis, Minn., where she lived practically all her life.

Pinioned Under Water Tank.

Kenmare, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unconscious and with blood flowing profusely from wounds about his head and arms, William Kramer, a farmer residing near here, was picked up under a heavy water tank which had pinned him down when it was tipped over by a team of runaway horses. While he was very badly bruised from head to foot, no internal injuries resulted.

INSPECT THE PROPOSED ROUTE

Cut-Off to Morris Thomas Road Will Be Built.

The board of public works, Street Commissioner Joseph Becks and the two Eighth ward aldermen, L. A. Barnes and W. B. Getchell, this morning made an inspection of the proposed route for the cut-off to the Morris Thomas road. It is expected that condemnation proceedings will be begun this week.

The proposed cut-off leaves Highland street at about Sixty-fifth avenue West and follows Keene creek for a mile and a half to the city limits. It is understood that should the city build the road to the city limits, the county would take up the work and extend it a mile farther to the Morris Thomas road.

The Morris Thomas road opens up a large farming district in the vicinity of Adolph and with the proposed cut-off it would be an easy matter for the farmers to come to the city on an easy grade. The roads in use now are hilly and lead to the city in a round-about way.

From the Bay View Heights power house there is a good road to Proctor. When the proposed road is built the agitation for a stret car line to Proctor from Duluth will again be renewed. A day will soon be set for a hearing on the condemnation proceedings.

TO MAKE PLANS FOR JULY 4

West Duluth Business Men Will Hold a Mass Meeting.

West Duluth citizens who are desirous of having a big celebration in the western end of the city on the Fourth of July, will have an opportunity to show their enthusiasm for the project at a mass meeting which has been called for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms.

The Commercial club at West Duluth is interested in the project and at its last meeting decided to call a mass meeting for Thursday. A canvass has been made among the business men in this part of the city to secure their attendance at this meeting. A celebration was held at West Duluth ten years ago and a fund of $100 was left over from this affair.

If the citizens of West Duluth decide to go ahead with the celebration, committees will be appointed to make necessary arrangements.

THOMAS CHAPIK FOUND GUILTY

West Duluth Man Took Liberties With 15-Year-Old Girl.

Thomas Chapik was found guilty by a jury in district court yesterday afternoon of taking indecent liberties with Helen Maleski, a 15-year-old girl.

The trial, which was very short, was heard before Judge J. D. Ensign. Chapik was indicted by the May grand jury.

The jury was out but twenty-five minutes.

ELECTRICAL COMET FOR DANCE HALL DECORATION.

Those who attended Halley's Hop last evening at Wade's hall, Central avenue and Ramsey street, saw a comet with a long tail at close range.

It was, however, of the electrical variety. It stretched across the ceiling of the dance hall, comprising the decorations for the second dance given by the Comet club this season.

The affair was a very enjoyable one.

May Replace Structure.

Thomas Foubister, who recently returned from a two-months' tour of the Southern states, may erect a new modern structure to replace the store buildings which were burned at the corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Grand in a recent fire. The old structure was badly damaged by the flames. It was erected twenty years ago.

Undergoes Operation.

Miss Mabel Brouillette, 16 years old, daughter of Michael Brouillette of 608 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, this morning underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Duluth hospital. She will recover, it is said.

Anniversary Concert.

A concert in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of St. Stephen's Evangelical German Lutheran church, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street, will be held this evening at Gilley's hall. Those who will take part are: Miss Alice Sjoselius, Rev. Otto Hattstaedt, Rev. Richard Schmidt, Rev. Walter Sievers and Frederick Rielle. The affair is held under the auspices of the Young Peoples' society.

West Duluth Briefs.

BOUND OVER ON SERIOUS CHARGE

W. J. McKenzie Accused of Murderous Assault on Policeman.

W. J. McKenzie, arrested at the Soo for murderous assault on William Dondino, an officer of the Superior police force, waived examination when arraigned this morning in police court. He was bound over to the superior court. Not being able to raise $5,000 bail, he was taken to the county jail.

McKenzie, a week ago, struck Dondino down with an iron bar, and after beating the man into insensibility, escaped. On information furnished by the Superior police, he was arrested at the Soo. Sheriff Carlson brought the man back to Superior last evening. No extradition papers were required.

Officer Dondino had a warrant for the arrest of McKenzie on a charge of wife-beating. When he apprehended the man at the Hotel Superior, McKenzie protested, claiming that the officer had made a mistake. He said that he would take Dondino to his home, where he would clear up matters.

McKenzie led Dondino to a quiet section in the residence district, and when the first opportunity presented itself, he picked up an iron bar and beat Dondino into insensibility. Dondino has been laid up for several days.

BELKNAP TO BE PAVED.

Council Orders Improvement After Long Discussion.

The contract for the paving of Belknap street between Oakes and Clough avenues with brick was directed to be let to Ed Johnson, on his bid of $67,005.31, at the council meeting last evening. The matter has hung fire in the council for several weeks.

The council allowed Comptroller Erickson an appropriation of $150 for a trip to New York to attend a meeting of comptrollers of cities throughout the country.

Plats for the "Townsite of Oliver" and "Steel Plant Addition No. 1" were approved by the council.

The council also passed a resolution providing for two drinking fountains on Tower avenue.

Add New Equipment.

For the purpose of keeping paved and turnpiked streets in good condition, the city will purchase a reversible grader and leveler. It will be added to the equipment of the city's street department and will be tried out under the supervision of Commissioner Anderson. The machine is made at Oberlin, Ohio.

Contract for Lockers.

At a meeting of the board of education last evening the contract for furnishing a total of 1,312 steel lockers for the new high school building and thirty-six for the Nelson Dewey was awarded to Robinson, Cary & Sands of Duluth, on their bid of $5,852.26.

May Rush New Road.

The county board may take an active hand in helping to build the "steel plant road" from the southern city limits to the eastern end of the Interstate Transfer company's bridge. At its meeting this afternoon the board is expected to direct that bids be submitted on the work.

CLOQUET VOTES BONDS

For Water Extension, But Turns Down City Hall.

Cloquet, Minn., May 18.—(Special to he Herald.)—The voters at the special election yesterday favored the proposition of issuing $40,000 in bonds to extend the water system, but denied the proposition of voting money for a new city hall. The present city hall has been condemned but the vote was 136 to 76, a two-third vote being necessary so the proposition will have to be voted on again. The vote for the water bonds was 183 to 39.

FLAX HAS A BIG SLUMP

May Option Declines Fourteen Cents, But Rallies Slightly.

July Option Also Off---Wheat Is Quiet and Weak.

Duluth Board of Trade May 18.—Flax declined heavily today in an active market. May sold at $2.21, $2.19½ to $2.07, $2.11, $2.10 and closed $2.10b. July sold at $2.11, $2.01, $2.07, $1.98, $2.01 and $1.98, closing with offers at $1.98. September was $1.70b, sold ½c higher and at $1.72, $1.69 and closed with offers at $1.69. October sold at $1.61, $1.61½, $1.63, $1.61 and closed $1.61b. The upturn in May at the close was due to short covering.

Wheat was weak under pressure, values declining from the opening. The firm spot around midday was caused by short covering. Values slumped toward the close. The sale in this market today of two cargoes aggregating 360,000 bu of No. 1 northern for delivery at Chicago caused that market to decline rapidly and there were heavy offerings on the downturn. Thus far 1,300,000 bu has been worked here for Chicago.

May wheat opened at $1.09½ and sold ¼c lower and then at $1.09⅝, closing $1.08⅝ bid. July opened with bids at $1.09½, sold at $1.09⅝, $1.09¼-⅜, $1.09⅜, $1.08¾, closing $1.08¾ bid. September opened with bids at $1.00¼, sold at $1.00½ and $1.00¼, closing with offers at $1.00¼.

Cash wheat closed on a parity with May. Millers offered ¼c over for Minnesota wheat and from ¾c to 1c over for choice No. 1 northern from North Dakota. There was no cash business in wheat, as nothing was offered, according to reports. Oats closed ½c off, rye and barley were unchanged and durum closed ½@¾c off.

The flax market was a lively proposition from the beginning. At the outstart the crushers set a price of 5c under Duluth May in the Minneapolis market, which would permit of a profit of 2c a bushel on shipments to Duluth and would also save a switching charge of about ½c a bushel. This started the opening of the bottom of the market which soon fell out.

The crushers were out of the market and evinced no disposition to pick up offerings. There are about 300,000 bu of flax in store at Minneapolis and the crushers evidently have sufficient supplies. The action of the crushers induced selling in all options, especially the May and July. A crushing interest rallied in the fore part of May bought cash flax with the intention of shipping it out of this market in car lots sold the May option today and delivered the seed, which is a part of the 65,000 bu in store here.

Shorts took advantage of the situation to hammer the market and values quickly tumbled. There was some realizing in May and July and a few shorts picked up scattering lots. Pressure was insistent, however, and the slight support from the shorts failed to cause a rally. The September option was sold heavily and the buying was of a good nature. Brokers who usually act for crushers bought September and one firm sold more than 75,000 bu. Most of the selling in September seemd to be from new shorts. Some of the buying appeared to be profit taking from shorts who sold at previous high levels. There was considerable selling in October with profit taking by shorts.

With the crushers out of the market values declined steadily and the market was barren of support except from profit taking shorts. At the close the market was exceedingly weak.

Wheat was fairly stubborn although the undertone was weak, news being favorable to the bears. The warmer weather and clear skies in the Northwest and Southwest were responsible for considerable selling by the Northwest. Pit conditions, although tight, were not sufficiently aggressive to maintain values at opening levels in the early hours. The chief factor in the wheat market continues to be the attitude of the leading long interest, the pit situation and the cash market.

It was intimated by the bears that the opposition has been selling under cover and that considerable buying in other grains has been due to the efforts of the bulls to maintain an appearance of strength in the general market. The public is not interested on either side of the market. The bulls claim that the rains in the Northwest in the last few days have not made the crop, and that additional moisture will be necessary. They claim that the subsoil is comparatively dry. The report that Texas will harvest 15,000,000 bu to 18,000,000 bu did not discourage the bulls. They said that Texas has never grown enough wheat for home consumption. They maintain that the winter wheat crop will not be much over 400,000,000 bu.

The short interest in wheat has been greatly enlarged in the last few days, and the market is in a strong technical position from a buying standpoint, as it is susceptible to rallies on moderate accumulative movements. The bears have found offerings scarce on the breaks. They think, however, that the market is valueless from a buying standpoint, except possibly from the viewpoint of the scalper who is inclined to act quickly and confine his operations to a brief duration.

The cash markets are inclined to be slightly firmer. The flour trade shows a small improvement and the outlook is not discouraging so long as the market maintains its present strength. A break, however, might shut off the shipping directions which are beginning to come in with more frequency. Heavy deliveries of wheat at Chicago are due to the arrival of 620,000 bu of No 1 northern from Duluth guaranteed to grade at Chicago. Waterman is supposed to have paid for the stuff.

Reports from Russia said that the weather has turned hot and dry and that it is unfavorable for the crop, some deterioration being reported. In the South the outlook continues good. The Central portion is regarded as satisfactory. Arrivals at ports are small and stocks are decreasing. A Hamburg cable said that Russian and Argentine offers were at 4½c under the lowest offers of Manitobas. A small amount of export business in Manitobas was done here today. Eastern business is conducted intermittently in small lots and the milling demand from that territory is poor.

The Winnipeg grain exchange will be closed all day Friday.

Broomhall cabled Wheat market opened with offerings light and shorts rather more nervous, stimulated by the persistent show of strength in American markets and values were ¼d higher. Following opening speculative buying developed and values further advanced ⅛@⅞d with principal support in October, there was also general covering by shorts. Support at this time was due to a bullish Indian report as the outlook for the Punjab is much below expectations. Russian advices are less satisfactory with stocks small and Russian offerings smaller with no pressure to sell. There is an improved demand reported from continent. At midday market was firm and ⅜d to 1⅛d higher than yesterday. Corn market neglected and unchanged with steady undertone. Flax—An official report covering the Punjab places the yield of wheat at 129,904,000 bu against 114,880,000 bu. Natives are declining to sell at present prices and offers of new crop wheat are tight. Russia—A private report received here states that the outlook in the southwest continues favorable with a moderate temperature.

The board of trade will open at 11 o'clock Friday morning and will close at the usual hour. The delay in opening is because of the funeral of the late King Edward of England which will be held Friday.

Wheat stores decreased 300,000 bu in three days to 4,420,000 bu and flax stores decreased 2,000 bu to 65,000 bu.

Shipments not reported: North Lake 109,764 bu spring wheat; Parks Foster, 104,000 bu spring wheat. Loading, cars 16,000 bu flax.

Car receipts of wheat:

Foreign market closed: Liverpool—Wheat, ½@⅝d higher; corn unchanged. Paris, wheat closed unchanged; flour, ½@1c lower. Antwerp, wheat unchanged. Berlin, wheat, 1¼@1½ higher. Budapest, wheat, 1⅛c lower.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying Orders in Wheat Are Scarce and Opening Unsettled.

Chicago, May 18.—Buying orders in wheat were scarce today, the trade appearing slow to follow yesterday's closing bulge. Seasonable temperatures for the growing crops tended to deepen this feeling. Hamburg cabled that Russian and Argentine wheat was offered there at 4½ cents under lowest offers from Manitoba. The bears cited this as confirming assertions that prices here were out of line with the rest of the world, making a particularly risky situation. The market opened unsettled ⅛@¼c lower to ⅝c higher, the latter for May. September started a shade lower to ⅛c up at $1.01⅜@1.01½, to $1.01⅜ and gradually declined to $1.01.

Reappearance of warm weather and sunshine following general rains and promising proper growth kept prices easy. September touching $1.00¾@1.00⅞. A rally to $1.01⅛@1.01¼, ensued on news of big clearances at Boston, but they were exclusively Canadian, and the market dropped to $1.00⅝ on free selling and because of the chartering of 250,000 bu at Duluth for Chicago. The close was weak at $1.00⅞ a net loss of 1⅛c.

General unloading by longs made corn weak. Fine weather was the stimulus and heavy offerings from the country. September opened unchanged at 63½c and fell to 62¾c.

The decline continued until abated. September reaching 62¼c and closing weak at that price, a net decline of 1⅜c.

In the oats pit the traders were selling. September started a shade off at 39⅜c and, influenced by wheat, sagged to 38⅞c.

Scalpers hammered the market for provisions in a small way. Quotations at the start were unchanged to 10c down. With the September option at $23.15 for pork, $12.72½ for lard and $12.70 for ribs, a decline all around followed.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Turns Easier on Strong Bearish Sentiment in Pit.

Minneapolis, May 18.—Favorable news from the wheat fields and a strong bearish sentiment made the market easier today. Congestion in May and concentrated holdings of September made the early market fairly steady, later, however, easiness set in and July sold down 1⅜c below yesterday's closing price and closed there. Local elevator stocks decreased 475,000 bu for four days.

Wheat and flour shipments so far this week were 367,000 bu in excess of the wheat receipts. Minneapolis today received 112 cars of wheat against 115 cars a year ago; Duluth 26 cars against 2 cars and Winnipeg, 110 cars against 20 cars. May opened $1.08⅞, high $1.09, low $1.08½, closed $1.08⅝; July opened $1.08⅝, high $1.08½, low $1.07½, closed $1.07½; September opened $1.00, high $1.00⅜, low 99⅝c, closed 99¾@99¾c.

Cash wheat was strong and steady today. Demand continued in excess of the daily receipts, as was shown by the decrease in elevator stocks. No. 1 northern sold ⅞@1⅛c above the July option. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.08⅛@1.11½; to arrive, $1.08⅛@1.11½; No. 2 northern, $1.06⅛@1.09½; to arrive, $1.06⅜@1.09½; No. 3 wheat, $1.01⅜@1.05⅛; No. 3 yellow corn, 58@59c; No. 3 white oats, 39¼@40½c; No. 2 rye, 70@73c.

Flax—Receipts, 5; year ago, 1 car; shipments, 11. The market was about steady, demand being strong for both spot and to arrive. Closing prices were 13c below yesterday's close. Closing price, $1.98.

Barley—Receipts, 34 cars; year ago, 21. Shipments, 36. There was no change in the situation today. Demand remained strong for all grades at steady prices. Closing range, 53@61c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,050 tons. There was no quotable change in the situation today. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $18.00@18.25.

Shipments continued to increase in flour, being heavier so far this week than those of a year ago. Prices held firm and demand slow. Shipments, 25,168 bbls. First patents in wood f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.10.

New York Grain.

New York, May 18.—Close: Wheat—May, $1.15½; July, $1.09¾; September, $1.06¾.

Corn—May, 69c; July, 70c; September, 70¼c.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, May 18.—Close: Wheat—Spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, no stock; futures quiet; May, 7s; July, 7s ½d; October, 7s 1¾d. Corn—Spot quiet; new American mixed nominal, no corn offered; American mixed, 5s 7½d; new kiln dried, 5s 5½d; via Galveston, 5s 6¼d; futures quiet; July nominal.

STAGNATION OF STOCKS

Close of Market Heavy and Lifeless With Little Change.

Slow Recoveries During the Final Hour Wipe Out Losses.

New York, May 18.—Stocks opened today at prices an eighth to one-half lower than yesterday, but the market was scarcely more than nominal. There was only a sprinkling of orders even in the most prominent speculative stocks. Great Northern preferred showed the maximum decline of ⅝. National Railways of Mexico first preferred sold at an advance of 1½ and International Harvester ⅝.

When the opening recessions failed to invite buying orders, room traders began to offer stocks down. United States Rubber was forced down 2 points, St. Paul preferred and Consolidated Gas 1¼ and Northwestern, Southern Railway, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting, Interborough Metropolitan preferred and American cotton oil 1.

The sustained strength of foreign exchange carried implication against reported sales of bonds abroad. London also sold stocks in New York. The stock market was inanimate and depressed. American Locomotive, Colorado Fuel and Pittsburg coal lost 1 and American Steel Foundries 1½.

Bonds were easy.

There was an almost imperceptible hardening of prices later despite the meagerness of the demand. Erie, first preferred, fell 1⅝.

The market closed heavy and lifeless. There were slow recoveries during the final hour which reduced the day's price changes to insignificant fractions. The market then became virtually stagnant and yielded slightly.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, May 18.—The condition of the treasury at the beginning of business today was as follows: Trust funds—Gold coin, $354,654,869; silver dollars, $490,231,000; silver dollars of 1890, $3,724,000; silver certificates outstanding, $490,231,000.

General fund—Standard silver dollars in general fund, $1,821,866; current liabilities, $96,512,157; working balance in treasury offices, $18,088,074; in banks to credit of treasurer of the United States, $35,050,786; subsidiary silver coin, $2,540,719; minor coin, $1,372,953. Total balance in general fund, $81,398,376.

New York Money.

New York, May 18.—Money on call steady at 3½@4 per cent; ruling rate, 3¾ per cent; closing bid, 3¾ per cent; offered at 3¾ per cent. Time loans easier; 60 days, 3¾ per cent, and 90 days, 3¾@4 per cent; six months, 4@4¼ per cent. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4¾@5¼ per cent; sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.83.90@4.84 for 60 days and at $4.87.20 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83¼@4.83¾; bar silver, 53⅝c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds easy.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 18.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 1 point on May and 7@13 points in other months in response to easy cables, good rains in the Southwest, the failure of the weather map to show predicted frosts, renewed liquidation, bear pressure, and spot house selling of July. There was active covering at the decline and with some support from the bull leaders prices rallied slightly but the tone of the market was nervous and unsettled.

Spot closed quiet, 35 points decline; middling uplands, 15.40; middling gulf, 15.65; sales, 11,145 bales. Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: May, 14.93; June, 14.93; July, 14.98; August, 14.90; September, 13.57; October, 12.73; November, 12.63; December, 12.57; January, 12.62; March, 12.57.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Peter Norman, widower, of Virginia, Minnesota, mortgagor, to Sattler Liquor company, a corporation, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, bearing date December 17th, 1905, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of December, 1906, at 11:45 o'clock A. M., in Book 233 of Mortgages on page 65.

Said default consists in the nonpayment of $310.93 of the principal of the note referred to in said mortgage, together with $94.83 interest thereon.

The name of said Sattler Liquor company, which is a Minnesota corporation, has been duly changed since the execution and delivery of said mortgage, to Sattler Brothers company, which is now the name of said corporation.

By reason of such default, the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has ever been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (SW¼ of NW¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (SE¼ of NE¼) of Section thirty (30), all in Township fifty-seven (57) north of Range twelve (12) west of the fourth principal meridian, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, containing eighty (80) acres.

There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of $405.56.

NOW THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the sheriff's office in the County Court House in Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on Thursday, the 2nd day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage and taxes, if any, due on said premises, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorneys' fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated this 18th day of April, 1910.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE—

WHEREAS, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Amasa McComber and Emily A. McComber, his wife, mortgagors, to Julia M. Landon, mortgagee, dated October twenty-first (21st), 1895, and which was duly recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on October twenty-second (22nd), 1895, at 3:50 o'clock P. M., in Book one hundred seventy-seven (177) of Mortgages, on page twenty-three (23); such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum thereby secured, with interest thereon at six per cent per annum, from May first (1st), 1909, and no part of which has ever been paid; and

WHEREAS, there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of three thousand one hundred eighty and 50-100 ($3,180.50) dollars, principal and interest; and

WHEREAS, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, being the following described tracts or parcels of land, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit: Lots numbered two (2) and fifteen (15), of Block three (3), in Helm's Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the Register of Deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth (25th) day of June, A. D. 1910, at ten (10) o'clock A. M., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five ($75) dollars attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

COMET'S TAIL NEVER TOUCHED THE EARTH, SAY THE WISE ONES

Maybe It Will Miss Us Altogether or Perhaps It Is Coming Yet.

Some Others Think We Are in It Already, But Admit Doubts.

Halley's Wanderer Has the Sky Gazers Guessing Worse Than Ever.

Williams Bay, Wis., May 19.—Shattering all scientific calculations and completely puzzling learned astronomers, who declare they made sure of the unprecedented phenomena with repeated observations here before daybreak this morning, the glowing tail of Halley's comet appeared in the eastern sky today at a time when the world's comet authorities had agreed it would be in the west, thus indicating that the earth did not pass through the diaphanous light band last night as supposed.

Such eminent astronomers as Prof. S. A. Mitchell of Columbia university, New York; Prof. Edwin B. Frost, head of the Yerkes observatory staff, and Prof. Edward Barnard of the University of Chicago, witnessed the startling fan of light in the East and all agree that it was the comet's tail.

Have Three Explanations.

Prof. Mitchell, Prof. Frost and Prof. Barnard say that any one of the following three explanations may be right.

First—The curvature of the comet's tail, first discovered and noted by Prof. Barnard Tuesday night, may have developed to a wholly unexpected degree, while the head of the comet has passed the earth on schedule.

Second—Like Borelli's comet of 1903, Halley's comet may have ceased its tail-making activity, cutting off the glowing fan that is so puzzling the scientists.

Third—It is possible that all calculations are wrong and that the comet has not yet passed the earth.

As nearly as could be computed, the period of the appearance of the comet's tail in the east extended from 10:38 o'clock Wednesday night to 3:20 o'clock this morning. It was still plainly visible at a time when the astronomers were confident the earth

Suicide of Man Who Confessed Murder Is One Incident in Series.

Chicago, May 19.—Stephen Zacak, 24 years old, who yesterday after fifty-two hours of almost continuous questioning, during which it is said he was not permitted to sleep, confessed to the murder of a policeman, committed suicide today. The alleged slayer hanged himself with a handkerchief while in his cell at the stockyards police station.

The patrolman said to have been killed by him met death attempting to arrest robbers plundering a freight car. The ordeal to which Zacak was subjected and the shooting of two men yesterday who did not halt at the command of detectives not in uniform have aroused much comemnt as to police methods in this city.

FIFTY DIE IN EXPLOSION

Three Tons of Dynamite Explode at Pinar Del Rio Barracks.

Dropping of Case By Workman Is the Cause---Hundred Are Hurt.

Havana, May 19.—Until the ruins have been more thoroughly examined it will be not known positively how many lives were lost when the rural guards' barracks in the city of Pinar del Rio was demolished by an explosion of dynamite late yesterday. There is reason, however, for hope that the fatalities did not exceed fifty. The wounded will number more than 100, it is believed.

It is almost certain that the explosion resulted from the accidental fall of a case of dynamite from the hands of an employe of the public works department, who, with others, was loading upon wagons seventy-two cases of the explosive, which was to be transferred from the barracks to the government magazine in the city.

Among the bodies recovered were those of Capt. Alfred Ravena of the rural guards, his wife and three children. With the exception of a daugh-

KAISER IS IN LONDON

Emperor William Arrives to Attend Funeral of Late King.

Is Met By King George and Later Receives Roosevelt at Palace.

London, May 19.—Emperor William arrived in London at noon today. The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern reached Sheerness last evening but his majesty did not land until this morning, when he proceeded to the capital.

At Victoria station the emperor was welcomed by King George, the Duke of Cornwall, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Henry of Prussia and others of the royal family and diplomats.

The greetings of the monarch was most affectionate. From his cousin the emperor turned to the young Duke of Cornwall and kissed him on both cheeks.

As the emperor and King George drove to Buckingham palace great crowds in the streets exhibited a lively interest in the German ruler. Arriving at the palace the emperor was taken at once to the apartments of Queen Mother Alexandra.

Roosevelt Has Busy Day.

Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning writing and reading. He saw no visitors.

At luncheon at Dorchester house the former president met Lewis Harcourt, first commissioner of works. During the week he has met some forty men distinguished in the public life of Great Britain, including, with two or three exceptions, all the members of the cabinet. This afternoon Mr. Roosevelt called upon Emperor William at Buckingham palace.

LAWLER ON STAND AGAIN

Assistant Attorney General Answers Questions for Brandeis.

Ballinger-Pinchot Hearing May Be Ended Next Week.

Washington, May 19.—Assistant Attorney General Oscar Lawler continued under cross-examination by Attorney Brandeis, counsel for L. R. Glavis, at the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation today. Mr. Lawler already had told the committee that he prepared unassisted the memorandum which President Taft had before him when he wrote his letter exonerating Secretary Ballinger and dismissing Glavis, thus contradicting the testimony of Stenographer Frederick M. Kerby to the effect that the officials of Mr. Ballinger's office helped prepare it.

It was expected that when today's hearing began that the entire day would be occupied on the subject of the Lawler memorandum. Stenographer Massey, who helped typewrite the document, probably will be called to relate the circumstances under which the matter was prepared.

Hope to Hurry Case.

Counsel for both sides hope to have all the testimony before the committee by next Saturday night, in which case argument would begin next week.

The committee held an executive session before the public hearing opened. When the open hearing began Chairman Nelson instructed the clerk to read a letter from Secretary Ballinger. Mr. Ballinger wrote that Mr. Finney had found nine letters between himself and George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co., regarding the naming of two glaciers and a fiord which Perkins thought he had discovered while on a trip to Alaska last summer. Mr. Ballinger wrote that no other letter had been found.

Mr. Brandeis inquired the date of the letters and was informed that the first, from Perkins was dated Dec. 20, 1909, and the others were written subsequently.

Protest by Sutherland.

Senator Sutherland protested that Mr. Brandeis was consuming time on

Cabell Makes Decision That Will Hamper That Business.

Washington, May 19.—Establishments in various large cities of the country engaged in the extraction of soakage from the staves of empty barrels that formerly contained spirits, are in danger of being put out of business, if a decision announced today by Commissioner Cabell of the internal revenue bureau be upheld.

The commissioner does not prohibit the business entirely, but the restrictions imposed are said to be such as to make its continuation practically impossible.

SIX BISHOPS CONSECRATED

Impressive Sexenary Rite Is Performed By Archbishop Ireland.

Several Hundred Bishops and Priests Assist in the Ceremony.

Mgr. Diomede Falconio Present as Representative of the Pope.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Significant of the majestic growth of Catholicism in the new world was the splendid ceremony performed by Archbishop Ireland in St. Paul today, by which, for the first time since the church came to America, six bishops were consecrated simultaneously.

These six new bishops of St. Paul province received their divine commission at the hands of their own venerable metropolitan, assisted by two of his remaining bishops, in the chapel of St. Paul's seminary, almost precisely at the spot where Father Louis Hennepin, the first Christian missionary to the region of the future province, landed on the bank of the Mississippi, "a league below the falls of St. Anthony," 230 years ago.

The archbishop, his nine bishops and his 600 priests out of 900 now in the province, represented a Catholic population of 600,000 souls, where at the time the first bishop of St. Paul was consecrated sixty years before, there had been two priests only and perhaps 1,000 children of the church.

The consecrator himself and the preacher of the consecration sermon, Bishop Thomas O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, were the two first seminarians of the diocese of St. Paul chosen from among the boys of the first parish school by Bishop Cretin, first bishop of St. Paul. They were thus conducting today an ecclesiastical ceremony of the first magnitude and of national importance in the beautiful chapel of the St. Paul seminary, before the governor of the state and his staff, before 600 priests, 50 bishops, 150 seminarians and Archbishop Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate to the United States.

The New Bishops.

The bishops consecrated were:

Rev. James O'Reilly of Minneapolis, bishop of Fargo, N. D.

Rev. John J. Lawler, Cathedral of St. Paul, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of St. Paul.

Rev. Patrick R. Heffron, rector of St. Paul's seminary, bishop of Winona, Minn.

Rev. Timothy Corbett of Duluth, bishop of Crookston, Minn.

SNEAK THIEF GETS $32,000

Adams Express Company Packages Stolen at Oil City.

Station Agent Hides Them Behind Desk and They Vanish.

Oil City, Pa., May 19.—Three packages of money containing $32,024.24 were stolen from the Pennsylvania depot at 3:30 o'clock this morning while John J. Truby, the station agent, was loading baggage onto a Buffalo-bound train. The money was being shipped by the Adams Express company to Philadelphia.

The railroad detectives investigating the robbery are of the opinion that the theft was the work of one man. The Pennsylvania railroad pay car arrived in Oil City late last night and turned over to the day station agent three packages of money wrapped in manila paper containing $32,024.24, which were receipted for in the name of the Adams Express company. The money was consigned to the treasurer's office of the Pennsylvania railroad in Philadelphia. The packages proved to be too bulky for storage in the small station safe, and Night Agent Truby placed them under a sack behind the ticket counter, covering them carefully.

At 3:30 this morning a Buffalo-bound Pennsylvania train pulled into the station and Truby stepped out on the platform, closing the office door behind him. The door is self-locking. While about 200 feet from the station office Truby saw by the light of the station platform lamp that the office door was not closed. Hurrying back, he discovered the three packages of money were missing.

Shouting loudly, he attracted the attention of five policemen who were within a block of the place. A hurried search of the train and vicinity of the station were made with no results.

Express company and railroad detectives arrived here this morning.

FEDERAL BUILDING LIKE A BOWERY LODGING HOUSE

Twenty-Four Settlers Are Camping in the Upper Corridor.

Ventilation Very Poor---Much Complaint at the Present System.

When lands were first opened for filing at the United States land office here, people anxious to get their filings in early were on hand several hours before the opening. At later openings, some of the birds began to come earlier to get the worm and gradually the time of waiting has been extended until now twenty-four men are settled down in the corridor on the second floor of the federal building to wait six weeks for the opening June 1.

People are beginning to ask if the time will not come when men will camp in the federal building all the time, awaiting the announcement of a land opening.

Very little land is to be opened in the future in the Duluth district, for it is almost all gone and perhaps it is late to complain of the system. But there never was such dissatisfaction with it as there is on the occasion of the present opening and the formation of the "land line" in the federal building.

Employes in the different offices in the federal building and people who visit the building on business do not have to be of a very aesthetic temperment to raise serious objections to the use of the corridor as a lodging house. The people in the "land line" may live in the open a great deal, but they have not learned the value of fresh air during sleeping hours. Place twenty-four men in a narrow corridor all day and all night, with the windows closed and the result is obvious.

Time was when the federal building was locked up at 10 o'clock at night and people waiting in the "land line" were excluded from the building during the night. They camped outside during that time and the doors were finally opened to them. While they waited two or three days, or a week, no serious objections were raised, but some people believe that a wait of six weeks is overdoing the thing.

Certain it is that if it is known that any other land openings are contemplated some effort will be made to prevent a recurrence of the conditions which prevail at present. The announcement of the opening could be held up until a week or two before the date set or the custodian of the federal building could exclude prospective settlers from the building during the night until about a week or so before the opening.

System Is Wrong.

The present system is regarded by people as all wrong. The lottery system has its defects, but every man who flies has an equal chance. Under the system as practiced here the man with the greatest celerity in getting to the door of the land office after the announcement of the opening and the greatest patience for the wait has everybody else beaten. At the same time a man may display almost superhuman patience, wait in the close corridor for six weeks, file on his land and come out to find himself facing a contest that may drag for years, take all his money and leave him penniless and without land. About the only people benefited by the system are the land lawyers, who reap rich harvests from the periodical crop of contests.

There are twenty-four in line now at the door of the land office. Their discomforts are evident. They sit in hard chairs or walk around the bare corridor during the day and sleep in the hard chairs or on the tile floor at night. Few of them read. Some play cards or checkers. All are killing time with the prospect of it availing them nothing in the end.

The discomforts of those who pass through the corridor in the morning before it has been properly aired out fully equal the discomforts of those who sleep there. Many object to the corridor of a public building being turned into a lodging house—at least for six weeks. If it were but one week or two there might not be such objections. But six weeks is an abuse of the privilege—a circumstance that comes about in most cases where privliges are given.

GIVEN LIGHT SENTENCES

Rolland Esterly and Ignatz Beyenka Fined for Leaving Pesthouse.

Case Against Fred Bennewies Is Dismissed By Authorities.

Rolland Esterly and Ignatz Beyenka, arrested on warrants charging them with violating the health ordinance, pleaded guilty in police court this morning. Esterly paid a fine of $16.74 and Beyenka, one of $17.50.

About two weeks ago Esterly and Beyenka who were confined in the pesthouse on account of smallpox left before they had been discharged. They came into the city and visited several places on Fourth street. They returned to the institution the same night of their own accord.

Fred Rennewies was arrested on the same charge but as there was no evidence against him, the case was dismissed when called this morning. Assistant Attorney Dacey recommended that the men be given light sentences, stating that there were extenuating circumstances, and Health Commissioner Webster said that he took a similar view. Esterly it appears was cured and ready to leave.

REGULATIONS AT SOO CANAL

Superintendent Ross Drafts Rules to Govern Vessel Movements.

The following rules, regulating the movement of vessels through the locks at the Soo, have been drafted by Supt. Ross:

"All downbound vessels, when waiting for the lock, must tie up at the north side of the entrance or at the south pier beyond the bend.

"All upbound vessels, when waiting for the lock, must tie up at the south pier, below the bend, unless otherwise directed by the linesman on the pier.

"Linesmen will be stationed on the south lower entrance pier and on the north wall of the upper entrance just below the bend and on the south upper pier.

"The duties of these linesmen are to take lines from vessels until they get their own linesmen ashore, and to direct the movement of the vessels. They are not expected to carry the lines ahead beyond the limits of their beats. All vessels using this canal must take their turn, and if traffic becomes congested so that there is not room at the piers for all waiting vessels the latest arriving vessels must come to anchor in the river until there is room for them in the entrance."

NO DEMAND FOR GRAIN CHARTERS

Charters Offered at 1 Cent, But Movement of Grain Is Light.

There is little of interest in the marine situation at the present time. There is but a slight movement of coal to the Head of the Lakes, with little change in the ore movement since the first of the present month.

Today the grain charters are offered at 1 cent, with some vessels asking 1¼ cents. Last year at this time the rate on grain charters was 1½ cents. There is no demand for grain charters, vesselmen here stating that the present rate will remain in force until the grain movement becomes heavier. There will probably be no increase in the grain movement at least during the present month.

There is no change in the package freight movement. Railroads are moving little freight here for shipment by the lake-and-rail route. The westbound movement continues heavy.

There is little demand for wild ore cargoes, and many boats are coming here light for ore.

ORE MOVEMENT TO LAKE MICHIGAN PORTS.

The Marine Review gives figures showing the amount of ore that has gone to Lake Michigan ports: "Out of the total shipments of 1,520,305 tons of ore from the mines during April, 179,911 tons went to Lake Michigan ports. The receipts of ore at the various Lake Erie ports are not yet all in. Following are the Lake Michigan receipts:

The Poor Man's Orchid.

The iris has been appropriately called the "poor man's orchid." This is probably due to their beautifully and curiously constructed flowers. While Golden Grain Belt beer is not necessarily a poor man's beverage, but for rich and poor alike, it is within the reach of all, and no one should neglect to have a case on hand at all times for daily use. It is invigorating and puts new life into your body. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

TWELVE MEN SECURED TO TRY PAUL FOURNIER

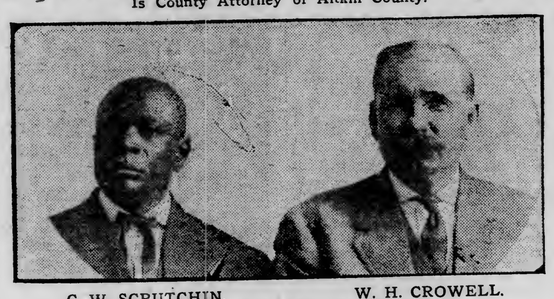
CHESTER McCUSICK. LOUIS HALLUM.
COUNSEL FOR THE STATE.
The First Named Is County Attorney of Beltrami County and the Other Is County Attorney of Aitkin County.



C. W. SCRUTCHIN. W. H. CROWELL.
COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENSE.
The First Named Is an Attorney of Bemidji, While His Co-counsel Is a Brainerd Lawyer.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A jury to try Paul Fournier for murder was secured at 11:30 a. m. today and the attorneys for both the state and the defense are making splendid headway in examining veniremen.

Sheriff Haugen returned a special venire of twenty-five at 9 o'clock this morning and the examination of veniremen was taken up at once. Three jurymen were accepted yesterday and it was not until twenty-one of the special venire were questioned that the twelfth juror was accepted. Only one person known to be of Scandinavian birth has been accepted and all the members of the jury are farmers but two, one being an ex-Methodist minister, the other a timber cruiser and mine inspector. The jurymen who will try the case are: Preston Chapman, W. B. Gorsuch, Collin Hyslop, James E. Ryan, H. Brooks, D. Peddecourt, Rev. C. S. Kathan, John L. Packer, Andrew Magnussen, C. M. Smith, W. A. Eastwood and Zach Harris.

When the jury had been selected Judge Stanton discharged all of the special veniremen who had not been chosen jurymen and adjourned court until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Chester McKusick opened the case for the state and began the introduction of testimony.

Both the state and the defense seem well pleased with the jury. Interest still keeps the court house crowded and Fournier is the center of many eyes. He remains composed and unaffected by the proceedings in court.

IS LAST DAY OF LYING IN STATE

Scores of Thousands Pass By Casket of Late King of England.

London, May 19.—The last day of the lying in state of the body of King Edward brought a repetition of yesterday's scenes on an even larger scale. The resolute band of a thousand or so persons, mostly women, who had braved the storm throughout the night, was increased by a score of thousands before the sun rose.

Because of the enormous number of persons who were sure to be disappointed last night, it had been planned to keep the doors open until midnight instead of closing them at 10 o'clock as was the original intention. This plan, however, was frustrated by the action of those nearest the entrance, who became unruly.

SHOOTS MAN WHO HAD SHOT HIMSELF

Chicagoan Attacks Dying Man on Finding Brother Wounded.

Chicago, May 19.—Joseph Le Blanc had shot and probably fatally wounded John Roach and fired a bullet into his own head here today, when William Roach, a brother of John, came upon the scene in the repair shop of the board of education. According to the police, when William saw his brother unconscious on the floor he wrenched the revolver from Le Blanc's clenched hand and fired two more shots into the latter's body.

Le Blanc died on the way to the hospital. He is said to have shot Roach, who was his foreman, when the latter discharged him, charging that he shirked his work. William Roach was arrested.

POTATO PLANTER WILL BE TESTED.

The test of the potato planter that was to have been made at the county poor farm yesterday was postponed on account of the unfavorable weather conditions, and it is not known definitely just when the test will be made, but it will probably be soon. John Bjorback, who was to have supervised the test, is laid up with a slight illness today. It is expected that as soon as weather conditions will permit, the test will be made. Many farmers living in the county have evinced interest in the machine and the claims that have been made for it.

WIFE SHOULD COME FIRST

"If Music Bothers Her, Cut Out Music," Says Judge.

Better Half Has Right to Smash Husband's Violin.

Men with musically-inclined minds, beware!

Beware particularly if you are the possessor of a violin, mandolin, horn or drum which can be easily broken.

For Judge Windom declared in police court yesterday afternoon that your wife has a perfect right to smash any musical instrument if you annoy her at home by playing it.

So sit up and take notice. Put on the soft pedal. Play only when "by request" in the confines of the home, and then only such as will please your better half. Keep your weather eye open, and if the gentle smile of your helpmate change to a frown when you strike a discord, cease instantly. For she has a perfect right to take the instrument from your hand, no matter how deeply it be interwoven in your musical heart strings, and bang it over the stove, or the chair, or on the floor, or whatever may be the handiest—except your head.

Judge Windom says that a man has no license to worry his wife with music when it is distasteful to her. He says that he doesn't blame her if she demolishes the instrument of torture.

The court made the declaration yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the trial of Otto Steel for assaulting his wife. Steel was much grieved over the loss of his fiddle, which, he exclaimed, had been rendered useless by his wife. He gave the destruction of the fiddle as an excuse for slapping her. Steel stated that once before she had almost demolished it.

"She was justified in taking the measures she did," said the court. "She didn't enjoy what you called 'music,' and that was the only way she could make you stop."

The court asked Steel how he fixed up the fiddle when it was smashed the first time. He replied that he had glued it together after much labor, and procured some strings.

"You got better music than ever from it then, didn't you?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir," replied Steel.

"Twenty days in the county jail in default of a payment of $15 and costs," declared the court.

Steel went over the hill. He didn't have the cash and his wife said it was no wonder, as he never worked.

PUT AT HIS EASE.

Los Angeles Times: Walter Camp, at a football dinner in New Haven, told a number of football stories of Wesleyan college. He said:

"Then there's Wesleyan, where the Methodists hold forth. Wesleyan always puts out a good football team. A Princeton man once said to me:

"'The first time we played Wesleyan I was afraid I was mixing up with a set of parsons and all that; but the first man I took hold of howled:

"'"Who the —— are you collarin'?"'

"'I felt quite at home after that.'"

LINE UP FOR CROOKSTON

Duluth and St. Louis County Will Be Well Represented.

Trainload of Delegates to Northern Minnesota Development Convention.

It is probable that a trainload of delegates to the Crookston convention of the Northern Minnesota Development asociation will be in that city June 1, 2 and 3 from Duluth and St. Louis county. John G. Williams and W. A. McGonagle will be the official representatives of Duluth, with voting power.

The delegates from this part of the state will travel on a special train, according to plans now under consideration, and at Crookston the train will be sidetracked and used as a lodging place for the St. Louis county visitors.

President Hearding of the St. Louis county club, which is the central organization of commercial and farmers' clubs throughout this county, has received advices from many of the groups which indicate that the country and range people are taking the liveliest interest in the coming convention. President Hearding sent to every one of the organizations a circular letter advising them of the arrangements made for the representation of the county at Crookston, and replies have been received from numbers of them, but quite a few remain to be heard from.

The information he has received led Mr. Hearding to give Eveleth three instead of two delegates, as at first allotted, Virginia the same, Hibbing the same, and Biwabik two instead of one. These delegates will possess voting power, and besides them there will be many others from all of the points along the line. The increased representation is due to the inability of some of the smaller clubs to send their apportioned delegates.

Two auto loads of enthusiastic boosters for the development of Northern Minnesota will make the trip to Crookston. Hibbing is certain to send a large delegation, Eveleth and Virginia will contribute generous quotas, and individuals and groups of members of clubs affiliated with the county organization will be there.

POUNDED HIS ASSAILANT

Although Badly Wounded, Adi Seppanen Fought Back Gamely.

William Macki Waives Examination and Is Held to Grand Jury.

Although slashed in a dozen places, Adi Seppanen, who was stabbed by William Macki back of a Lake avenue saloon, Tuesday night, was far from being incapacitated.

The police learned yesterday afternoon that he was giving Macki a gruelling trouncing when one of the women living in a nearby house ran out and attempted to stop the fight. She told the officers that Seppanen was beating him furiously although severely stabbed.

It appears that Macki was underneath and continued to wield the knife, making furious efforts to sink it into the breast and abdomen of his assailant. He failed to reach any vital spot. The woman stated that she could see the knife flashing as he swung it to and fro.

Fearful each instant that murder would be committed, she flung herself upon the struggling men, pulling Seppanen away. She called for help and one of the men who had been attracted to the scene started with Seppanen to the police station, while Macki retired to the nearest boarding house, where he was apprehended by the police, with the bloody knife still clasped in his hand.

Seppanen is at St. Luke's hospital, where it is stated that he will recover. Macki was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon, where he waived examination and was bound over to the next grand jury for assault in the second degree. Bail was fixed at $2,000, which he was unable to furnish.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

There has been much entertaining guessing indulged in on the subject, but one thing about the nomination of a Democratic candidate for governor is a certainty. That certainty is that the nomination will not be made until the convention meets. It seems to be the wish of Minnesota Democrats generally that John Lind shall be the nominee. The opinion prevails that Mr. Lind, if nominated, will be elected, and there is no present reason to doubt it. However, it is said there is some possibility that he may refuse to accept the nomination. In view of the generally accepted belief that he can be elected, with a big majority and an easy campaign, this possibility does not strike most commentators as being a very formidable one.

The Democratic Nominee.

Winfield Scott Hammond, representative in congress from the Second district, has been picked by some as the probable candidate. Should Mr. Hammond be nominated by the Minnesota Democrats, the chances are believed to be good that he can be elected.

Several days ago there appeared in the political column of a Twin City paper an article which assumed to impart the information that Mr. Hammond will be the nominee for governor. Ralph Burns of St. James, who is Hammond's law partner, was quoted as having said it is his personal opinion that the Second district congressman will head the state ticket, and State Senator S. D. Works of Mankato was quoted as having said recently: "After all, it may become necessary for me to make the congressional fight in this (the Second) district."

John Lind hasn't shown any inclination to compete with the Republicans in a talkfest on what Minnesota Democracy had better do about it.

In the Second district, particularly, and in other parts of the state as well, there is much speculation as to what the upshot will be in that district—whether Mr. Hammond, who defeated McCleary in their second test of strength two years ago by a majority of 3,625, will consent to forego the advantages he is said to enjoy as an almost unbeatable candidate for congress, and to give up the official career that has so auspiciously opened for him in congress, or whether he will decide to stick to the congressional game.

This is what Representative Hammond says:

"I am not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, do not want to be nominated, and I may add that I do not expect to be nominated. I am a candidate for renomination to the place I now hold in the house.

"I have not authorized anyone to place me in the field for the gubernatorial nomination, nor have I been consulted by anyone with a view of inducing me to make the race.

"I am a candidate for re-election to congress and have been strongly urged by many people in my district to continue in the fight. It is my intention to do so."

All in all, it seems that the Democratic nominee for governor will be nominated after, and not before, the state convention is called to order.

Ralph W. Wheelock has nominated Frank A. Day, his predecessor in the office of secretary to the governor, to head the Democratic state ticket. "Twould be a proper caper to take that nomination at its face value, and then some good Democrat would succeed Mr. Wheelock next January on the present secretary's own motion.

The St. Louis county bar association may soon take some action on the question of whom it will indorse for the place on the state supreme court now held by Associate Justice Charles L. Lewis, who has held the office for two terms. St. Louis county is conceded one of the justiceships. Local attorneys have been quoted as saying that they believe it only fair that some jurist or lawyer from this county be given an opportunity to enjoy the honor and distinction of occupying a seat on the state's highest tribunal. The suggestion has been made that Judge Homer B. Dibell of the district court would be a wise choice for the place. The bar association will meet next Wednesday, and some action may be taken at that time. Justice Lewis' second term will expire in January, 1912, but his successor is to be elected this fall. He is a native of Illinois, and came here in 1880.

For Supreme Court Justice

Ray G. Farrington, state senator from the Fifty-sixth district, will be opposed for the Democratic nomination by P. J. Bresnahan, it is said. Mr. Farrington is a resident of Ortonville, where he practices law, and Mr. Bresnahan is a merchant of De Graff.

• • •

That from one party or the other will come a strong and sincere demand for reform in the methods of the state of Minnesota in the administration of her land laws is the hope expressed in many quarters since Judge C. W. Stanton made his strikingly effective speech before the Koochiching County Development association at Big Falls. In the counties where state lands have been made available for settlers, many unjust conditions of transfer have been encountered numerous times, and in some districts there is a strong indignation to blame the state auditor's department for the evils.

Good Work for Legislature

Settlers who have staked their time and money against the chance of winning out in a contest with the state authorities, who base their rulings on technicalities of the law, have been loud in their complaints when forced to surrender land they have lived on and improved. Their cause has been espoused by many men who are deeply interested in the rapid development of Northern Minnesota, with the result that State Auditor Iverson has been put on the defensive. He, however, insists that it is unfair to hold him responsible. The laws are on the statute books, he declares, and it is his duty to enforce them. It is not likely that Mr. Iverson would go out of his way to incur the displeasure of Northern Minnesotans, say his defenders, and they join with those less friendly to the auditor in urging that the laws be remade to suit conditions.

Settlers who are doing the actual work of bringing to market the vast resources of the north are growing bitter in their contention that they are not being fairly treated, and Judge Stanton's speech, while distinctly not a political address, is likely to have a beneficial effect in bringing sharply to the attention of legislative candidates the needs of this part of the state in this connection.

Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston has been quoted recently as saying that Al Kaiser of Bagley seems to have the best of it in the race for the Republican nomination for treasurer. In view of the reputed fact that Senator Stephens is managing Mr. Kaiser's campaign, his statement of the situation has a modest tone.

Several weeks ago Sam Y. Gordon, candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, was in Duluth renewing acquaintance with St. Louis county Republicans. It was remarked by several prominent men of that party that Mr. Gordon was a good Republican and also a rather able fence builder. Undoubtedly Mr. Gordon's attitude of fairness toward Northern Minnesota did him good as a candidate. His platform declars explicitly for reapportionment, and soon after he had been in Duluth he published in his paper, the Interlake Tribune of Brown's Valley, an editorial setting forth at some length his reasons for being an advocate of reapportionment, making it clear that he considered such legislation no more than fair. When here, Mr. Gordon said that there was no disposition on the part of the Southern Minnesota people to oppose such a measure. The following paragraph from the Interlake Tribune, however, seems to indicate that there still remains some trace of sectional feeling:

Sam Y. Gordon and Reapportionment

"It has come to the editor of this paper, in a round-about way, that some of the Southern Minnesota counties will not support him for the office of lieutenant governor, because he has declared in favor of reapportionment of the state in the matter of legislative representation. While some members of the legislature in Southern Minnesota counties do not wish to have their districts disturbed, we cannot be led to believe that the rank and file of the voters in Southern Minnesota, or any other portions of the state, will raise a voice against fair and just reapportionment. The people of any portion of the state should have equal representation with those of any other portion. The proposition is so eminently fair that there is no argument against it, and we can't believe that we will be opposed in a political way for having declared in its favor. If such is the case, however, we will have to take the consequences, for we can't modify or change our views."

"From now until convention time I will get busy," says R. J. Wells of Breckinridge, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for state auditor. He has been too busy on his farm of late to get onto the firing line, but adds: "Am receiving plenty of encouragement from all sections of the state, and am confident of winning out."

Alvah Eastman of the St. Cloud Journal-Press tells an interesting narrative of a boom that died a-borning. Referring to a recently published story about Twin City politicians that was promptly denied, according to a Minneapolis writer, "by those who know," Mr. Eastman proceeds to give currency to another rumor that "will probably be denied 'by those who know,'" to this extended effect:

Good Luck of A. J. Halstead.

"The story goes that the 'organization' back of Governor Eberhart is not satisfied with any of the candidates for lieutenant governor. Most of them have been too pronounced in favor of county option, and they want a man who would stand without hitching on this issue. They also want a country editor, to divide the newspaper support going to Sam Gordon, and they want him located in the Sixth congressional district, for the benefit of other candidates on the slate.

"With these points in view they decided that Editor Halstead of the Brainerd Tribune would fill all the demands. He is well liked by the newspaper boys, is a man of ability and integrity and is against county option. It was agreed, so it is reported, to start a boom for Halstead—all unknown to that gentleman. In fact some of the indorsements were already prepared to be sent to various papers close to the organization, but one of the gentlemen happened to get hold of a late copy of the Tribune, in which Halstead had said a few things about Governor Eberhart in which there was the sauce of sarcasm—and Halstead is a sarcastic cuss when he feels that way.

"The 'organization' was hastily called together, and there was both wrath and sorrow in camp. It was decided that Halstead would not do—that he had eliminated his chances of being lieutenant governor of this great commonwealth by his editorial upon the governor of the state.

"This will probably be news to Brother Halstead and for the first time he will realize how near he came to being 'Mr. President of the senate' when he reads this issue of the Journal-Press.

"We have no doubt that Ed Smith, the genial, Dar Reese, the smiling, will deny the truth of this story—but it is a good story—and it is also true."

"Mr. McInnis is one of the pioneers of the north country and has a host of friends who will give him all possible or needed assistance in the campaign," says the Virgina Enterprise in commenting on County Commissioner McInnis' announcement that he is a candidate for renomination and re-election.

TALK OF COURT FOR THE NATIONS

Mohonk Conference Delegates Also Hear From British Church Dignitary.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 19.—An international judicial arbitration court was the topic assigned for discussion today at the Lake Mohonk conference for international arbitration. Simeon E. Baldwin, former chief justice of the supreme court of Connecticut, expressed a hope that the proposition to make the judges of the international prize court ex-officio judges of the court of arbitral justice, which was indorsed by this government last year, would receive general indorsement.

A letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury, commendatory of the proposed world-league of churches in behalf of peace was read last night. It is likely that the conference platform will indorse the peace movement of the churches of the British and German empires, and will urge the churches of this country to join therein.

CONTEST IN CORN-GROWING

Seed Is Now Being Distributed Among Boys and Girls.

A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of the agricultural department of the Duluth Commercial club, is now distributing the seed corn that will be planted by the contestants in the corn growing contest in which boys and girls of the city will participate. Two more days of distribution will exhaust the supply.

The contest is arousing the deepest interest among the children of the city and good results are expected in more ways than one. Not only will the children gain valuable knowledge of agricultural methods, but it is expected that the planting of different kinds of food plants will be encouraged.

GREAT JOB COMPLETED

Largest Engineering Work of Kind in the World Finished.

Soo Road Spends $600,000 in Filling of Two Immense Gorges.

Ashland, Wis., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an approximate cost of $600,000, and nearly five years of more or less uninterrupted work, the Soo line has completed a job of engineering which has attracted the attention of engineers and trade journals all over the country, said to be the largest of the kind in the world. Two immense gorges have been filled, immense concrete arches have been put in, the grade of the roadbed has been materially reduced, and trains are now regularly running over the completed tracks on the fills.

A few miles south of Ashland is the gorge of the White river, spanned by a 3,000-foot steel bridge. A few miles further south is the Highbridge gorge, on a branch of Bad river, also spanned by a steel bridge which is approximately 1,000 feet in length. Crossing these bridges necessitated a slowing up of all trains, and this, with the added delay of the upgrade approach, especially to White river, has been a serious inconvenience, especially during the rush of the ore season, when ore trains were added to the regular business of the road.

Work Started Five Years Ago.

In 1905, the Wisconsin Central began work at Highbridge, completing the fill two or three years ago, and at the same time beginning to duplicate the job on a much larger scale at White river.

At White river an entirely new grade was selected, and the roadbed was lowered and graded for a distance of one and one-half miles south of the river, and for a distance of three-quarters of a mile north of the river. This newly graded roadbed, together with the 3,000-foot fill of the river gorge, makes a total distance of fully 14,000 feet, or nearly three miles. The new roadbed across the White river is thirty-five feet below the now abandoned steel bridge, which shows the reduction in the grade, which has been reduced to 1 per cent, a very easy grade. The railway station at White river is also being moved from south of the river to a mile north of it.

White River Gorge.

At the bottom of the gorge the waters of White river flow and at the outset this stream had to be taken care of. Excavation was made on the river banks to a depth of thirty feet, concrete filling and piling then being placed and a concrete arch was constructed. In this arch 2,200 tons of cement was used and when completed it was 175 feet long, 60 feet wide and with a space of 90 feet between the river bed and the top of the arch. This arch looked like a pigmy at the bottom of the big gorge, but after its construction the work of filling in the 3,000-foot space from bank to bank began. It continued during 1907-8, and in 1909 the constant settling, especially after heavy rains, necessitated constant refilling. This spring two work trains and a large crew have been operating, loading and spreading gravel, and on Sunday, May 15, trains began running regularly over the new road.

The Highbridge gorge fill is of sand, that at White river of red clay. In some places the bottom is 300 feet wide. Obstacles have been encountered, such as the sudden discovery of springs under the fills, which caused a huge mass of earth to spread out and cave in, but the roadbed is now in a first-class condition, and in a short time, after all settling has ceased, all trains will run at full speed over both gorges and their approaches. The White river gorge is 113 feet deep for nearly the whole width, and the Highbridge gorge is 111 feet deep.

STATUE OF GEN. CUSTER

President Will Aid in Dedicating the Michigan Monument.

Monroe, Mich., May 19.—President Taft and other men prominent in military and civil life will, on June 4, assist in the dedication of an equestrian statue of Gen. George Armstrong Custer, famous Indian fighter, whose family lived on a farm near here.

The cord releasing the veil covering the monument which is located in front of the county courthouse, will be drawn by Elizabeth B. Custer, widow of the general. Will Carlton will read an original poem and a chorus will sing "The Old Brigade."

The statue was authorized three years ago by the Michigan legislature and was designed by Sculptor C. C. Potter.

While officials and business men are busy arranging the details of the celebration, Nevin Custer, the only surviving brother of the general, sits on the veranda of his farm near here in black satin shirt and overalls and gazes out over the orchards and fields he and George bought back in 1863.

Brother Lives on the Farm.

Stooped a little from his labor about the farm, Nevin Custer is still robust, bearing his 68 years as lightly as though little more than half their burden rested on his shoulders.

"It doesn't seem natural, some way, their doin' all this for George," he said to a friend who called on him recently. "Of course, we all know he deserved it, but when you think of him and me a-hoein' corn together and how pap used to put us fifty yards apart so we couldn't loaf and talk, why, it don't seem as though he had grown up to be a general, and had died, and was being honored by the president of the United States.

"Seems as though he's the same fellow that used to get lectured for carrying a book with him into the fields.

"Before George could graduate from West Point the war broke out and he was sent south as a lieutenant to fight in the battle of Bull Run. We didn't get the war spirit so fast, back on the farm, but it came, straight enough, and I enlisted, but rheumatism made me quit.

"Finally came the Indian campaign out west. George got to be quite a hunter, and I always wondered at it, because he wasn't much for handling a gun around home.

Keeps Relics of the War.

"Relics? Yes, we've got a few. This little mortar was made from bullets picked up by the soldiers around Fort Hell, and the desk was one George had with him through the war. All of his swords and guns are down to the armory, I guess, except what his widow has with her in New York.

"It is no use tellin' yuh about his Indian fights, is it?" asked Mr. Custer. "Yuh got all those in history. Things went on about as usual here at the farm. Don't seem as though anything much happened here.

"But we kept hearing news of Indian uprisings and battles and finally come the word about the Little Big Horn and that George and Thomas and Boston all were killed. Tom and Boston had gone back with him after his last visit home, just to see the country and be along with him as leader of the expedition.

"I remember I had been down in Ohio to see about some land and was driving back to Monroe I pulled into Hastings, O., for the night, and when the mail come in there was news of the battle. I didn't believe it at first, but I drove on home as fast as the team could travel and there I found Monroe all draped in mourning.

"After all, we didn't see much of each other, George and I. He was away making a name for himself, taking an active part in things. And I stayed home and tended the farm. George liked the soldiering and the public honors; I never could have been satisfied that way.

Have You Ever Cooked Beans and Brown Bread, at Home?

If you have you will appreciate the severity of the test our demonstrator will submit the Fireless Cooker to on Friday, when beans and brown bread will be served.

In the ordinary way the beans have to be cooked for from seven to eight hours, making a constant and hot fire necessary all that time and, in addition, filling the house with unpleasant odors.

When you are through—your beans and brown bread are not one-half as good as those cooked firelessly.

The heat must percolate through and through, in order to break down the tough fibre.

That's the way, the fireless cooker cooks!

Come Friday and see!

HAD BEEN DEAD SEVERAL DAYS

Body of Recluse Found in His West Duluth Home.

The body of August Hoffman, 48 years old, unmarried, was found by Lieut. Wilcox and Sergeant Bradley of the West Duluth police station last evening at his home, 5715 Tacony street, where he is supposed to have died last Friday night from natural causes.

The body was found in bed and was in the first stages of decomposition. Neighbors had missed Hoffman since Friday evening. In an attempt to locate him some of the neighbors had tried his doors and found them locked.

The first suspicion that he might be dead came when children reported that they peeped through the keyhole of Hoffman's house and saw a key on the inside of the lock at the rear door. Andrew Peterson of 5713 Tacony street and W. S. Myers of 5719 Tacony street reported the matter to the police.

The officers broke into the house and found the body lying on the bed. Coroner McCuen was notified. The body was ordered removed to the undertaking rooms of M. J. Filiatrault.

The dead man had worked on the streets for Commissioner Becks and last year was employed at Proctor. His relatives are unknown.

An autopsy performed over the body of the dead man this afternoon revealed the cause of death as heart trouble. It is probable that the coroner will appoint a special administrator for the estate of the dead man, as he was an extensive property holder in West Duluth and has no known heirs.

BOAT HOUSES AGAIN ENTERED

Thieves Continue to Strip Brass Fixtures From Launches.

It is probable that arrests may follow recent thefts at West Duluth boat houses on the bay front. Within the past two nights thieves have again broken into some of the places where boats are kept and stripped the launches of almost everything of value. The police are investigating today.

William Kilby who has a boat house at the foot of Fifty-eighth avenue west will probably swear out a warrant today for the arrest of a West Duluth man, who is suspected of having taken a hand in some of the recent depredations. Mr. Kilby says that the boat thieves have stripped his boat for the third time this season.

Most of the boat owners along the bay front find it necessary to take the detachable fixtures of their launches home with them, not daring to leave them in the boat house even under lock and key.

The boat owners believe that the bay front should have better police protection. The remedy has been suggested in the way of a police patrol boat.

MRS. ZILDA ZECK PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Zilda Zeck, 25 years old, divorced wife of Albert Zeck, died this morning at the Duluth hospital where she has been confined for the past two weeks. A week ago she gave birth to a child.

Just prior to her illness, Mrs. Zeck secured a divorce from her husband in the district court. After the decree was granted she made her home with friends at the Merrill & Ring row, West Duluth.

The Zecks were married five years ago and lived in West Duluth. Besides her infant child she is survived by a daughter, 4 years old.

MINISTERS GIVE CONCERT PROGRAM.

A musical entertainment of considerable merit was presented last evening at Great Eastern hall in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the St. Stephens Evangelical Lutheran church.

With one exception, the program was furnished by ministers of Lutheran churches which joined in the celebration. Rev. W. Sievers, pastor of St. Stephen's church is an accomplished violinist. He rendered a number of difficult selections.

The work of Rev. Otto Hattstaedt, pianist, and Rev. Richard Schmidt, a visitor from Galva, Iowa, baritone, was commendable and Miss Alice Sjoselius, a soprano, sang in her usual pleasing manner. Frederick Rielle was accompanist.

STORE NOT RUN BY SOCIALISTS.

The Zenith City Co-Operative Association is not a Socialist concern, nor is it dominated by any political party, according to P. G. Phillips, secretary, who says that a wrong impression seems to have gone out in regard to management of the company store at West Duluth.

In explaining he says:

"Our store is based upon the belief that a number of working men banding themselves together for the purpose of carrying on a commercial enterprise can do so in a more efficient manner, and which will bring better results to a greater number than can be done upon the individual plan."

Farewell Party.

Miss Maud Mansergh of 323 North Sixty-second avenue west, left last evening for the West. Monday evening she was the guest of honor at a farewell surprise party held at her home. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Mansergh, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zell Mrs. P. Walsh, Miss Bina Knox, Miss Ida Olson, Miss Jennie Polasky, Miss Stephania Polasky, Miss Jennie Olin, Miss Marie Holt, Miss Louise Sand, Miss Anna Larson, Miss Ida Johnson, Miss Clara Peterson, Arthur Cettel, Harry Peterson, Jack Ceyborski, Gust Olson, Axel Martson, Tom Suderlund, Everett Weir, Jesse Sand, Howard Mansergh and Bert Mansergh.

SUPERIOR

SLASHED WOMAN WITH HIS KNIFE

John Hill Held for Stabbing Belle Cline, a Resort Proprietor.

On a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, John Hill, 25 years old, a railroad man, is held at the Superior police station to answer for a bloody cutting affray which took place shortly after midnight in a lower Hammond avenue resort, in which Belle Cline, the proprietor, was the victim of a murderous attack.

Hill was arrested this morning shortly after the affair and was taken to the station. He maintains his innocence, and says that he does not remember what he did last night, as he was drunk. Witnesses have identified him as the right man. He will not be arraigned in police court until tomorrow.

Hill and others were carousing and drinking at the Cline resort, and when the woman remonstrated with them, it is claimed that Hill drew a knife and attacked her. She was badly slashed, but will recover. Hill and his companions escaped but were caught. Emil Heikly is held by the police as a witness.

ADVERTISING FOR BIDS ON STEEL PLANT ROAD.

At the meeting yesterday, the county board decided to advertise for bids for the construction of the steel plant road westward from the city limits to the eastern end of the Interstate Transfer company's bridge across the St. Louis. The awards will be made about June 14. The board awarded to J. J. Shea for $1,121, the contract for filling in the approach to the so-called Tower avenue bridge.

Crusade Is Continued.

John Brandser paid a fine of $5 after pleading guilty to a charge of keeping his clothing store at 619 Tower avenue open on Sunday, May 15. The warrant was sworn out by Gus. Bergren head of the retail clerks' union of Superior. This the second conviction on the same charge secured this spring by Mr. Bergren.

Methodists Win Game.

By a score of 25 to 8, the East End Methodists trimmed the First Presbyterians in a baseball game played at the East end grounds. The Presbyterians made four runs in the first frame and score two more before the Methodists got their bearings.

Grain Thief Sentenced.

Harry W. Smith was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary on a charge of aiding and abetting the burglary of a grain car at the Great Northern elevator. Smith was arrested April 21.

RAILROADS

ADVANCE RATES FROM THE COAST

Railroads Will Raise Freight Tariffs Next Autumn, It Is Said.

Washington, May 19.—Information reached the interstate commerce commission that the trans-continental railroad lines next autumn will advance the freight rates on all forest products and perhaps on other commodities from the North Pacific states to eastern destinations. On forest products the advance probably will be about 10 cents a hundred pounds. The increase will take effect on the execution of the commission's orders in the North Pacific lumber cases.

Revive North Pacific Cases?

Washington, May 19. — Indications clearly point to a re-trial before the interstate commerce commission of what are known as the North Pacific coast lumber cases, which consumed so much time before the commission nearly two years ago.

STATE SUES FOR CHICAGO BEACH

Quo Warranto Proceedings Involving Millions Are Filed at Chicago.

Chicago, May 19.—Litigation involving many millions of dollars in lake front lands and considered by the plaintiffs the most important ever entered into by this municipality was begun today when six suits were filed by the city against occupants of the land.

The land involved was formed out of the lake by accretions and filling-in operations from Sixteenth street to Fifty-sixth street, a distance of four and one-half miles. At places the strip is 500 feet wide. The greater part of the made land is claimed by the Illinois Central Railroad company, whose right of way runs through it, but there are five other holders against whom suits also have been filed.

Holds Many Buildings.

The land is occupied in addition to the railroad, by many magnificent residences, hotels and some industrial structures. Should the city be successful the land will be made into parks and bathing beaches forming a system whose beauty, it is said, would stand unequaled in the world.

The suits, which are in the form of quo warranto proceedings, are filed in the name of the state of Illinois through Attorney General W. H. Stead. The name of States Attorney Wayman of Cook county also is attached.

Accretions Are Rapid.

The rapidity with which accretions from the lake make land is shown in the case of the late James Morgan, who purchased three and three-sixteenths acres about three years ago. He built piers into the land and by 1893 was able not only to sell $50 worth of sand a day from that caught by his piers, but to furnish a site for the Chicago Beach hotels.

A WIDOW WITH ONE ACRE.

New York Sun: "How have I managed to clear $1,300 a year from one acre of land?" a Massachusetts woman said, repeating the reporter's question. "By hard work and good judgment, I should say, if you want the explanation in one sentence. I had never earned a dollar in my life when my husband died suddenly something over seven years ago. He was a lawyer with a growing practice and we had always looked forward to beginning to save when his earning got larger. The result of this habit of living in the future was that after paying our few debts I found myself with less than $500 in bank after my husband's death.

"To save this it was necessary for me to get something to do at once. Everything I thought of or my friends suggested needed special training. When I protested that I must get something that would pay from the start and would not call for this preparation, one of my friends informed me that farming and domestic service were the only callings that didn't call for training.

"Of course, this was sarcasm, but it gave me the idea of growing things on a small scale, for I had always been lucky with flowers. Knowing that my capital would not allow me to undertake anything on a large scale, I proceeded to look for as tiny a farm as could be had near the city. I found this place, house and all, covering just one acre.

"Because it was an old place and not in good repair, I succeeded in getting a three-year lease of it at $150 a year. There were a few vines and flowering shrubs in the front garden, some small fruits such as raspberries and gooseberries, in the kitchen garden and one small tumbledown shed in the back lot.

"Before I signed the lease of the place I called on the husband of a friend who was in the habit of keeping his wife well supplied with cut flowers. I told him of my plans and asked him to let me have his orders instead of sending to the florists. As he was willing to give me a trial I learned the varieties of flowers of which his wife was particularly fond, and laid in a supply. I knew if I could succeed in satisfying those people there would be other orders forthcoming.

"After moving in, my first act was to set a man at work plowing and harrowing every inch of my little farm. While he was at work I visited an orphanage to which I had already sent an application for a child to adopt.

"On being left alone I had determined to take a little girl, but the door was opened by a little boy, a bright, rosy little boy, who greeted me so cordially and answered my inquiries so intelligently that he won my heart. After looking over the little girls who the matron had thought might suit me, I asked about the little lad, and, on being told that he could be adopted, I invited him to pay me a visit of two weeks. The best thing I ever did was taking that child.

"Since the moment he arrived on this place he has been my inspiration and brave assistant. It was during his second week with me that I told him of my plans and asked him if he would like to become my son and live with me permanently instead of returning to his friends in the orphanage.

"Although he said he would stay I could see that he was not thoroughly certain, so, on the advice of the matron, I took him back with the understanding that he could come to me whenever he wished and stay as long as he wanted. The second day he made his appearance at my side in the garden, where I was busy planting out bulbs. He explained that as there were so many to help at the orphanage he had come to help me, as I was all by myself.

"My seeds, bulbs and plants that first year cost me $40. My tools and flower pots consumed $5 more. I spent $15 for stock, chickens and eggs, while the balance of my expenditure for that year—$395— went for clothes, household expenses and rent.

"On the other side of our account book that first year was $206 for eggs, chickens, flowers and vegetables sold. Of course the deficit had to be made up from my little bank account, but because my stock had increased materially and because of the knowledge that I was learning my business and only needed perserverance to make both ends meet, I was encouraged rather than dismayed.

"I had begun with twenty hens. In the autumn I had 150 young pullets that I had raised myself. They began to lay in December and did well all winter in the way of giving me fresh eggs, and in the spring were ready to set.

"It is to these young hens that I owe much of our success during the second year. The raspberries, currants and other small fruit that I had planted made no returns the first, second or third year. On the other hand my vegetables, bulbs and flowering plants did their best to help the chickens to pay expenses. The second year we cleared just $15.

"Beginning the third year with a much better prospect I was encouraged to sign a new lease for ten years. This was before the old lease had expired and I signed it to prevent my place from being taken by a truck farmer who looked upon me as a rival and was desirous of getting me out of his way. Although our start had been encouraging, the end of the year showed a balance of only $10, with a reduction of ance of only $10, with a reduction of more than one-half in my flock of chickens.

"Cholera had broken out in my flock early in the summer and for the time matters looked very blue, indeed. The experience led me to make a special study of the disease and its preventives and there has never been the slightest return of it, though the fowls of my neighbors have suffered.

"During March of our fourth year I added six white Pekin ducks to my poultry yard and before Christmas they had paid for themselves three times over. No I sold only the young ducks that year. By careful selection with both my chickens and my ducks I now sell eggs and stock for breeding, but that has only come about during the last two years. It has added to my income materially and is now one of the best paying departments of my miniature farm.

"I have been asked why I did not go into the business on a larger scale by persons who wanted chickens, vegetables, fruits or flowers when I could not supply them. In the first place there is no more land to be had in this locality, which is especially convenient, being less than twenty miles of several suburban resorts. My second reason is that from my experience I do not believe it would be to my advantage to enlarge one department without enlarging all.

"As my farm now stands I have just enough refuse from the fruit and vegetable department to supply the poultry department, while the demands of my flower and vegetable beds are just sufficient to take up all the fertilizer produced by my chickens and ducks. I never buy green food for my poultry and seldom have to supplement my home manufactured compost.

"Of course growing vegetables and flowers and tending chickens and ducks is harder physical work than canvassing for customers, but I have found the latter about equally important to success. How, when and where to sell are points that every gardener and poultry raiser must work out for himself. There are two points, however, on which I think a person of experience can always advise a beginner: Never send any product from your garden or your orchard that is not of the first quality; never promise to fill an order unless you are reasonably sure of being able to do so. I have found reliability one of my very best assets.

"When I was starting out the truck farmer, who afterward tried to rent the place over my head told me that the first thing to remember in raising and selling vegetables and fruits was money, and the last thing to forget was money. He boasted of selling all he raised good, bad and indifferent, and mixing it so that he got the highest market price.

"When I persisted in having the berries at the bottom of my baskets as good as those on top he assured me that I would never succeed. When I did succeed, having more demands for my products than I could supply, he tried to drive me out of the business. Today I am sure I clear as much on my one aacre as he does on his twenty and I attribute the difference to the quality of my products."

A CHINESE SMUGGLER.

Rangoon Gazette: An ingenious instrument for smuggling was discovered at Rangoon, when a Chinaman named Oheng was arrested at about 7 o'clock in the morning as he stepped ashore from a sampan. The prisoner was carrying what appeared to be a tin of kerosene but on examination of the tin a cunningly contrived smuggling outfit was discovered.

The corner of the tin, where the opening to admit the oil was situated, was in the shape of a cube four inches square and the other part of the tin was used as a receptacle for contraband, the bottom of the tin sliding out. In this hidden receptacle the excise inspector found fifty-five tolas of beinchi and fifty-two one-eighth ounce bottles of cocaine.

WHEN BROWN BOUGHT A MULE.

Mayor Schunk of Dubuque, at a recent press banquet, recalled a quarrel between two Dubuque editors.

"But Smith," he said, "got the best of Brown unquestionably when Brown, who owned a small farm, bought a mule.

"Smith printed a paragraph about this purchase, and headed it, 'Extraordinary Case of Self-Possession.'"

RAIN

We missed the comet's tail according to the statements of astronomers this morning, but when last night's thunderstorm came up with a heavy downpour of rain many nervous ones feared that the comet was just beginning to get in its work. The storm cleared away later in the evening, but this morning it was cold and cloudy, with prospects of rain tonight.

A year ago today it was warm and clear.

The sun rose this morning at 4:27 and will set at 7:41, making fifteen hours and fourteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Disturbances central Wednesday morning over Northeastern Montana and Arizona have joined forces in a depression of moderate intensity that overlies the Dakotas, Wyoming and Eastern Montana. This low pressure area caused light rains or thunderstorms in the upper lake region, the Northwest and in most districts immediately west of the Mississippi valley, and higher temperatures in central valley states. Freezing temperatures prevail in Western Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The barometer is high over South Atlantic and North Pacific states. Some rain occurred over New England states, due to a disturbance that has moved from Easter Ontario to the North Atlantic coast since Wednesday morning."

General Forecast.

Upper lakes: Lake Superior—Moderate east winds, becoming variable except brisk northeast in extreme west portion; showers tonight or Friday.

Lakes Michigan and Huron—Moderate winds, mostly south; fair tonight and Friday.

Chicago, May 19.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan — Partly cloudy with showers tonight or Friday.

Wisconsin — Increasing cloudiness with showers late tonight or Friday.

Minnesota — Rain tonight or Friday; colder in west portion tonight and in south portion Friday.

Iowa — Showers tonight or Friday; warmer in east portion tonight; colder Friday afternoon or night.

North Dakota—Rain and colder tonight with temperature near freezing; Friday partly cloudy.

South Dakota — Showers tonight or Friday; colder.

Montana — Partly cloudy and colder tonight, with frost; Friday fair.

SIX BISHOPS CONSECRATED

missionary band in the archdiocese of St. Paul, bishop of Lead, S. D.

Assisted by McGolrick.

Archbishop Ireland was the consecrator, and was assisted by Bishop James McGolrick of Duluth, and Rt. Rev. James Trobec of St. Cloud, Minn. Rev. Francis Schaefer was master of ceremonies.

Rev. T. J. Gibbons of St. Paul was the assistant priest to the consecrator. Rev. J. C. Byrne of Minneapolis and Rev. Paul Rulquin of St. Paul were the deacons of honor, and Rev. A. Ogulin of St. Paul and Rev. O. Erren of Minneapolis were the deacon and sub-deacon of the mass.

As an event of great moment in the Catholic church, it is said by ecclesiastics to have been overshadowed once in modern times, when the pope himself consecrated fourteen new French bishops, and in the United States the only ceremony which approximated it in significance was when Archbishop Ireland consecrated Bishops Shanley, McGolrick and Cotter at the same time.

Under the direction of Rev. Father Schaefer, the procession of about 800 priests and 150 seminarians formed on the south side of the spacious grounds, presented a striking appearance as it wended its way underneath the great oak trees to St. Mary's chapel, where the consecration ceremonies were held.

Following the priests came the bishops, then the bishops-elect, and last, the archbishop, all in the robes of their office.

Public Not Admitted.

An immense gathering of the laity witnessed the procession, but owing to the fact that he chapel had seating capacity for only the priests, the public was not admitted to witness the consecration.

The consecration ceremony, which began at 10 a. m., and lasted about three hours, started with the reading of the apostolic commission, followed by the taking of the oath and the examination, the latter made almost in the same language prescribed by the Council of Carthage. During the examination the bishops-elect professed categorically their belief in the different matters of faith which have been particularly attacked by heretics, especially the doctrine of incarnation.

These preliminaries having been duly observed, the solemn intoning of the mass was begun, the consecrator and bishop-elect simultaneously betokening their faith. During the ceremony, the plain chant was intoned by the seminarians.

Crosier and Ring.

At the conclusion of the consecration ceremony proper the new bishops were invested with the crosier and ring necessary to the episcopal order, accompanied with prayers and admonitions.

The mass then proceeded with the consecrator and new bishops celebrating it in unison at the same altar. Then came the partaking of communion, which was followed by the investiture of the mitre and gloves previously blessed by the consecrator with much pomp. While the Te Deum was intoned, the new bishops were enthroned in the episcopal seat. Later they were led around the church, blessing the congregation as they passed along.

The final act of the function was the bestowal of the kiss of peace by the consecrator.

The sermon during the consecration was delivered by Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, S. D. After the ceremony, the archbishop, the bishops and all the priests were served with dinner under the trees on the seminary grounds. The dinner was presided over by Archbishop Ireland, and at his right sat Mgr. Falconio, the apostolic delegate. Bishop McGolrick made the address of welcome to the new bishops, and each responded. A public reception was arranged for tonight, permitting friends of the new bishops an opportunity to offer congratulations.

Many Churchmen Present.

Among the distinguished churchmen present, in addition to those previously mentioned, were: Rt. Rev. Fergus P. MacEvoy, archbishop of Toronto, Ont.; Rt. Rev. S. G. Messeur, archbishop of Milwaukee, Wis.; Rt. Rev. P. J. Garrigan, bishop of Sioux City, Iowa; Rt. Rev. J. Jensen, bishop of Belleville, Ill.; Rt. Rev. M. F. Burke, bishop of St. Joseph, Mo.; Rt. Rev. P. Muldoon, bishop of Rockford, Ill; Rt. Rev. T. Bonacum, Lincoln, Neb.; Rt. Rev. J. Davis, Davenport, Iowa; Rt. Rev. J. M. Koudelka, Cleveland, Ohio; Rt. Rev. S. S. Ortezusky, Greek bishop of Philadelphia; Rt. Rev. A. F. Schinner, bishop of Superior, Wis.; Rt. Rev. P. Engle, O. S. B., Collegeville, Minn.; Rt. Rev. F. Conrad, O. S. B., Conception, Nev.; Rt. Rev. J. P. Carroll, bishop of Montana; Rev. A. P. Doyle, rector of the Apostolic Mission house, Washington, D. C.; Rt. Rev. R. Scannell, bishop of Omaha, Neb.

ter, Graciella, the whole family perished in the destruction of their home.

Some Bodies Recovered.

The body of Lieut. Dihigo of the rural guards and those of a score of privates also have been recovered. Many wounded guards have been rescued.

Andrea, daughter of E. Gomis, the Spanish consul at Pinar del Rio, could not be found today and it is believed that she was killed. Senor Leagre, engineer of the province, also is thought to be among the dead.

The quantity of dynamite exploded was nearly three tons. The government wireless station was shaken to bits.

This morning twenty-eight bodies had been recovered and forty injured persons have been taken to the hospitals.

All Witnesses Killed.

The barracks was occupied by four troops of rural calvary and employes of the public works department. During a recent alarm all the dynamite in the possession of contractors was removed to the barracks. It was decided to transfer the explosive to Havana and the work of moving it was begun yesterday afternoon. The workmen, the only witnesses of the cause of the accident, were blown to pieces.

Peculiar to Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla Has No Equal as a Blood Medicine.

"I think there is no other blood medicine equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have a family of five little ones, and have used it every spring for twelve years. There is something about Hood's Sarsaparilla which other medicines lack. My husband was bothered with boils. He was so bad he could scarcely get around. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured him." Mrs. Lillian Dixson, Pike, Ohio.

GUARANTEED BRIDGE WORK

The immense advantages and possibilities of bridge work in the hands of skilful dentists are not fully understood by the general public. It is generally supposed that where most of the teeth are missing a plate is the only recourse. Nothing is farther from the truth. If you have two firm teeth, we can attach a bridge, without a plate, that will be perfectly firm, look as well as natural teeth and chew your food to your entire satisfaction.

FOUR PERISH BY CAVEIN

Falling Earth in Leetonia Mine Near Hibbing Snuffs Out Lives.

Accident Happened Wednesday Afternoon and Coroner Butchart Is Investigating.

Hibbing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four lives were claimed by a cave-in at the Leetonio mine, in the Carson lake country, four miles from Hibbing about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The dead:
MIKE STIMICH.
STEVE JURVICH.
ALBERT KELLY.
LOUIS ROMAVIDCH.

The victims are all reported to be single and comparatively young in years. Coroner Butchart is investigating the affair today, and will hold an inquest. The bodies were brought here last night to a local morgue.

The Leetonio mine is part open-pit and part underground. The unfortunate men were working in the underground portion, in a drift, when, without warning, the cave-in resulted. Little is known here about their relatives, if they have any in this country.

CHISHOLM'S NEW BLOCK SOON BUILT

Handsome Structure Erected By George Kreaty of Bemidji About Ready.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Kreaty of Bemidji has almost completed his brick block on Lake street. The block is one of the handsomest here. It has a beautiful plate glass and white enamel front. The building has been rented by Phil Ploof, who will open a billiard and pool hall there in the near future. Handsome mission oak fixtures and finishings have been purchased of the Brunswick-Balke Manufacturing company, and are now being installed.

The village jail at the Munroe location has been completed by Henry Fugere, who took the contract at $1,200. The building will be turned over to the village council tomorrow, when the council will meet.

Iver Osmer has been appointed patrolman, vice Lloyd Smith, resigned. Officer Osmer began his duties yesterday morning.

The wiring of Chisholm's great white way was begun yesterday morning by Manager Sid Grenshal of the Mesaba Electrical company.

The entertainment given Saturday evening in the auditorium of the high school by children of the Chisholm schools proved very successful. The little folks acquitted themselves with great credit and to the delight of those who attended. The program was arranged by Supt. Vaughan, assisted by Miss Mabel Tuttle Frusch and Miss Gilman, and was one of the most successful of the series of entertainments arranged for the past winter.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church will give a dinner Thursday afternoon at the church.

Lawrence Grant of the fire department has resigned. Mr. Grant intends to leave for Marshfield, Or., where he will reside in the future.

Dog licenses to the number of 185 have been issued up to date.

The Euclid mine began shipping ore Monday.

LIVERY HORSE IS KILLED BY BRUTES

Three Drunken Austrians Drive Gilbert Animal Into Ditch, Breaking Its Neck.

Gilbert, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most shocking cases of brutality to animals was brought to light here yesterday when two Austrians were brought before Judge Welch and fined $225 for driving a horse to its death on the road from Gilbert to McKinley. It develops that three men much the worse for liquor hired a horse and buggy from the Broadway livery to drive to Elba some two miles distant. The horse was cruelly beaten and at break neck speed they forced it to take the curve on the hill near the La Belle mine. The horse was thrown and in falling its neck was twisted under its body and broken. The sight was sufficient to arouse even the most indifferent person to indignation. The road was spattered with blood, the horse stone dead and the carriage was badly damaged. The men fled. The two were captured and released on payment of the damages. Much indignation exists here that the matter has been taken so lightly. Evidently the only wrong done was in the destruction of $225 worth of property, as no effort has been made to punish the offenders under the criminal law. The men were released on paying the owners for the loss.

ELY PIONEER DIES.

Joseph Searphine, Father of Police Chief, Is Called.

Gilbert, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Searphine, father of Chief of Police Searphine and of Jack, the foreman in the composing room of the Ely Miner, died last night of dropsy, aged about 56. He was one of the pioneers of Ely. He was injured in the Pioneer mine about a dozen years ago and has not been steadily employed since. Mr. Searphine, besides his two sons is survived by his widow. The funeral will be held Saturday.

CHISHOLM MAN HURT.

Foot Run Over and His Toes Have to Be Amputated.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man named Jgmilvija Ensich, while at work laying track on the Great Northern railroad, had his foot crushed yesterday afternoon at 1:30, being run over by the last car of a work train. The unfortunate man was carried to the hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the toes of the right foot. The flesh above the ankle was badly lacerated.

McKINLEY-ELBA HIGH HAS AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Gilbert, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The exhibit of works of art from the Beard art galleries was yesterday at the McKinley - Elba high school and was a great success, both from the standpoint of the instruction given the pupils and financially. The pupils of the lower grades visited the exhibit in the afternoon and the public was entertained at night with addresses, music, drills and refreshments. The students of domestic science classes prepared the refreshments, under the direction of Miss Ethel Macmillan, teacher of this work. Booths were constructed by boys from the McKinley-Elba manual training school. The exhibit was arranged by Miss Ida Jones, teacher of drawing and art. The following program was rendered: Selection, Elba Club House orchestra; dances, Elba kindergarten; milk maids' drill, McKinley first and second grades; sopes, Elba kindergarten; song, Miss Jones; umbrella drill, Elba first and second grades; mother goose drill, fifth grade; selection, orchestra; dumbell drill, sixth and seventh grades; song, "Spring," Miss Lively; doll drill, third and fourth grades; club swinging, eighth grade and high school; selection, orchestra; picture exhibit and talk, Supt. Newberry.

FOUR WOMEN ARE TAKEN TO COURT

Arrested at Leetonia Mine Location Charged With Blind-Pigging.

Hibbing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.) — Four women were brought in from the Leetonia mine location, charged with running blind pigs. Three of the women appeared in the municipal court before Judge Thomas E. Brady and were fined respectively in the following sums: Katie Povich, $75 and costs; Rosa Rosakegan, $75 and costs, both of whom paid their fines and were released. Neela Mealnach, who also appeared, was fined $81.50 or eighty days in the county jail in Duluth. Neela refused to pay her fine and was taken to Duluth Thursday. Antonia Arlhac will appear in municipal court Friday.

Owing to the stripping being done by the Winston-Dear company on the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine, it will be necessary for the village to build a new road to the town of Nelson, which will be done by Aug. 31.

W. J. West has agreed to allow the village to use the plot of ground owned by the Oliver Iron Mining company west of First avenue and Mahoning street as a playground for the children. The village council will hold a special meeting Saturday evening to consider the granting of a street car franchise.

Miss Signa Ekstrom and Miss Lillian Keifer entertained the high school baseball team at a dinner Wednesday evening in the cooking room of the Lincoln high school.

L. L. Baskins left Wednesday noon for a few days on business in Duluth.

Mrs. Roy Des Prois returned home Tuesday from Hudson, Wis.

M. D. Nides left Wednesday for Duluth.

Joseph Zantz left Wednesday for Duluth, for a few days on business.

Mrs. W. Reusswig returned to her home at Grand Rapids, Minn., after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pickard in this city for a few days.

Mrs. A. Anderson and son, Milton, of Duluth, returned home Tuesday after visiting a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Munson in this city.

Mrs. Fletcher Benham left Wednesday noon for an extended trip through the Eastern states.

MINING COMPANY TO FURNISH A BALL PARK.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club has received word from the Oliver Iron Mining company that the concern is willing to turn over, for the purpose of a baseball park, a tract of land consisting of forty acres on the north side of the city.

The lack of suitable grounds has been the drawback to the formation of a strong Virginia ball team, and now that a park is available it is believed that it will be but a short time before this city will have a ball team that can hold its own with the best on the ranges.

Drops Dead at Chisholm.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Olopicich, a stranger in these parts, aged about 35, dropped dead yesterday afternoon in the Monroe location.

IS FACING LONG TERM IN PRISON

Rade Ilabacich Found Guilty of Murder in Third Degree.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—After deliberating nearly two hours the jury in the district court that heard the evidence in the case against Rade Ilabacich clarged with killing Wld Radish at Gilbert, April 25, last, returned a verdict of murder in the third degree.

The punishment is from seven to thirty years in state's prison. The case of the state against Domenik Jerome on a charge of selling liquor to a minor was dismissed. When a small boy was arrested at Eveleth in February for stealing pool balls he said that he had sold the balls to Jerome, who is an Eveleth saloon keeper, in return for liquor. The question of jurisdiction caused the dismissal.

TWO ARRESTED FOR MAKING BAD THREAT

Pair Coming From Duluth Caught at Ely and Deprived of Weapons.

Ely, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mille Tonsen and Millatson Tonson of Duluth will not carry out their alleged threat to kill John Martin of this city. They were arrested at the depot here last night on the arrival of the Iron Range train from the Zenith city, deprived of their weapons and locked up pending an investigation. One man had a gun and the other carried an ugly knife.

Chief of Police Seraphine was informed yesterday afternoon by Martin that he had been advised by wire from Duluth that the two men were coming here to kill him because he objected to his sister living in West Duluth from marrying one of the men.

Pair Easily Identified.

Accompanied by a policeman the chief went to the depot and easily identified the pair from the descriptions Martin had given. The officers drew their weapons and promptly had the men under arrest. At the jail they were searched and the weapons found. Two telegrams came to Martin from Duluth telling him of the murderous intentions of the pair.

Both messages were in the Montenegrin language. One was from Anton Fever, 271 Fifty-fifth avenue west and the other from John Cononich.

Each stated that the two men were coming to Ely on last night's train for the purpose of killing him because he was aiding his sister in avoiding and refusing to marry one of them.

Martin at once notified the local police.

EIGHTH GRADE PROGRAM

Will Be Given By Eveleth Schools Friday Evening.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The eighth grade class, the largest in the history of the local schools tomorrow evening will give an entertainment.

The program follows: Class chorus; Goldie Finn, German recitation, "Die Loreley"; class chorus; John Bernard, French recitation, "Barra;" Catherine Cosgrof, recitation, "The Pine;" class chorus. The entertainment will conclude with the class play, "Tho Obstinate Family." The following compose the cast: Samuel Owens, Mr. Harwood, (Harfood's father- in law); Mary Prince, Mrs. Harwood, his wife, (Harfood's mither-in-law); John Felr, Henry Hartood; Daisy Wallace, Jessie Harfood, his sister; Earl Corbin, James, (Harfood's butler); Margaret Van Buskrick, Lucy the maid.

The seniors are also practicing diligently for their class day entertainment.

GAVE AWAY A PIG.

Two Harbors Theater Made Unique Present to a Patron.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A novel stunt was pulled off by the management of a local theater last evening. The management advertised that a live baby would be given away at their performance Wednesday evening, and to the surprise and astonishment of the crowd, they presented L. H. Bryan with a live pig, dressed in child's clothes.

The Two Harbors Automobile association held a meeting last evening at the city hall and almost all the members were present. Several committees reported and a general discussion of automobile topics was indulged in.

Rev. J. D. Nelsonius returned Wednesday evening from Chicago, where he went for an operation. He is at present doing nicely and on the road to comlete recovery.

MUST GRAFT SKIN

On Eveleth Linotype Operator Who Was Badly Burned.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Ecklund, the linotype operator at the Star office who some time ago was severely burned in a printing accident, and who has been treated at a local hospital, left the forepart of the week for Duluth, to receive special care, and it may be necessary to resort to skin grafting before Mr. Ecklund will be able to return to work, as his hands are badly scarred.

J. V. Mulligan has accepted a position as associate editor of the Star.

P. E. Dowling, editor of the Star, is packing up his household goods prior to removing this week with his family to Duluth to reside.

WANT MINES SCHOOL.

Eveleth Hopes to Secure the Proposed Federal Affair.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eveleth wants the school of mines embodied in the bureau of mines bill, which recently was passed by congress, and the city council has directed the city clerk and city attorney to communicate with Senators Nelson and Clapp, and Congressman Miller. The council has also directed the city clerk to communicate with the Commercial club, to have that body take active steps in the matter.

The Commercial club's request of the state's representatives, that they urge the passage of the Owens bill, establishing a national board of health, is meeting with a large degree of success.

OLD BUHL RESIDENT.

Jacob Vittala for Ten Years Range Resident Called.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jacob Vittala of Buhl died suddenly yesterday morning of heart failure. Mr. Vittala had been ailing but two days. He leaves a widow and on child, a week old. Mr. Vittala has been on the range for ten years and in Buhl the past three years. He sold his livery barn in Buhl a week ago. The funeral will be held from Phillip's undertaking parlors Friday. Interment will take place at Hibbing.

FINE MARBLE WALKS.

Two-Year-Old Range Town Makes Presentable Appearance.

Marble, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contractor Cooper of Coleraine has resumed the work of putting down the balance of the cement walks and street grades which he began last November, and on account of frost and snow it was postponed until spring. Main street is already fixed up in fine style, and with these new sidewalks under way Marble need fear no more of the past disagreeable experiences with muddy walks during wet days. For a town two years of age, Marble is a wonder in improvements.

CHAUFFEUR IS GIVEN FREEDOM

Herbert Helmer Released After Hearing in Municipal Court.

Herbert Helmer was discharged in police court yesterday afternoon, after being tried on the charge of violating the traffic ordinance at Lake avenue and First street on the afternoon of April 21, when he was driving an automobile which struck and killed Mrs. Hannah Monroe of 217 East Third street.

In passing upon the case at its conclusion Judge Cutting stated that he was surprised at the lack of evidence against the young man, who had previously been bound over to the grand jury in the same court for manslaughter, but had been released.

The court stated that he had expected the evidence to show that Helmer had been traveling twenty-five to thirty-five miles an hour at the time the machine struck the unfortunate woman. He stated that it was possible that it may have been exceeding eight miles an hour, but that the evidence didn't show it. Judge Cutting explained that he couldn't allow the fact that a fatality had occurred to influence his decision as all that he had to consider was the rate of speed at which the automobile crossed Lake avenue on First street.

COMET,S TAIL NEVER TOUCHED THE EARTH SAY THE WISE ONES

would have passed completely through the tail.

Facts vs. Theories.

After leaving his telescope at daybreak, Prof. Frost issued the following statement:

"Greater than all the theories and all the computations are the facts. And the fact is that the tail of Halley's comet has been appearing in the east in practically the same position as it appeared yesterday morning. There is no question about that. The tail which glowed from the horizon close to the milky way from before midnight until dawn has not yet been penetrated by the earth. That is a certainty. In addition, it is also certain that there is no material diminution in the size of the tail as compared with the tail of the day before.

"We are confident that the calculations of the passage of the head of the comet between the sun and the earth are correct.

Sure of Calculations.

Unquestioned astronomical authorities, working independently of each other in all parts of the world, arrived at these calculations, which have been corrected in detail ever since the comet passed Venus on May 2.

"We are also confident that the head of the comet made the transit as per schedule. But the mystery of the appearance of the tail in the east this morning is the great puzzle. It cannot be explained satisfactorily at this time."

Harvard Men Stumped.

Boston, Mass., May 19.—Officials at Harvard observatory did not obtain a single glimpse of Halley's comet last night or early today, and were unable definitely to state today whether the earth had passed through the tail of the rapidly-moving visitor of the skies. It was admitted that the bright moonlight may have shut out the view of an illumination from the comet's tail, and some of the observers said that the earth probably had passed through the tail without it becoming apparent. The presence of cyanogen gas, they said, could not be determined until reports were received from Harvard's astronomical station at Arequipa, Peru, where especial attention was to be given the gas.

No effects of the comet were felt on wireless telegraph instruments in this vicinity.

Another Doubter Found.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 19.—Prof. J. H. Porter of the Cincinnati observatory doubted whether the earth came close to the tail of Halley's comet last night.

"I noticed the milky way just before dawn," said Prof. Porter. "It seems very improbable that the observers at Williams Bay were deceived by this. But it is possible that with their larger glass they were able to see the tail when we could not."

May Dodge It Altogether.

Johannesburg, May 19.—According to the observations made at the Transvaal observatory, of which R. T. A. Innes is the director, the earth had not traversed the tail of Halley's comet at dawn today. The tail was still north of the ecliptic, and at the observatory it was thought probable that the earth would pass considerably to the south of it.

Surprised at It.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 19.—Prof. D. W. Morehouse, head of the astronomical department of Drake university, was astounded when he discovered the tail of Halley's comet in the east at 2:45 this morning. Prof. Morehouse noted that the tail tapered to a point instead of assuming the fan-shape as heretofore.

St. Louis Men Disagree.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—Local astronomers are not agreed on the passing of the tail of Halley's comet across the face of the earth last night.

The Rev. C. J. Borgmeyer, professor of astronomy at St. Louis university, said the earth did not pass through the comet's tail last night and that we will not pass through it.

Father Martin S. Brennan retains his faith in the statement that the earth passed through the tail.

"We did not see anything that would prove this to be so," said Father Brennan, "but I have not much doubt myself but that the earth passed through."

Balloon Trips in Vain.

Fraught with mundane excitement but not eventful astronomically, the balloon expedition to explore the tail of Halley's comet, which began here last night at 6:35 o'clock, ended near Hillview, Greene county, Ill., at 11:20 o'clock. The aerostat traveled sixty-five miles.

"I noticed no phenomena which I could confidently attribute to the effect of the passage of the comet's tail, in which we rode for two hours," said Prof. James. "If the earth passed through the comet's tail the voyage proved that there is no danger, even in the upper air strata, from the whisking of a comet's tail across the earth. It confirmed the scientific opinion as to the vacuum-like tenuity of the comet's constituency. It proved that no perceptible quantity, if any, of the comet's gases was able to penetrate the earth's atmosphere."

Saw No Signs.

Prof. George O. James of Washington university, who made the trip with John Berry, pilot, and Andrew Drew, a newspaper man, had with him an aeroscope, an anerold barometer, a thermometer and a telescope. Prof. James said he did not see any traces of the comet's tail although he often scanned the heavens with his telescope. The balloon at no time reached a very high altitude.

Behind Schedule, Anyway.

Princeton, N .J., May 19.—The earth did not plunge through the tail of Halley's comet at the time scheduled by astronomers, according to Prof. Henry Norris Russell of Princeton and Zaccheus Daniel, the discoverer of three comets, but was several hours late in making the journey. This failure of the comet to be on time, they said today, was due to the fact that the tail had developed a pronounced curve and it was long after sun up in this section of the country before the passage of the earth through the comet's appendage.

Prof. Russell at 2:45 a. m. noticed a distinct streak of light in the east that resembled the milky way. He then came to the conclusion that the earth had not passed through the comet's tail because the tail was curved away from us and that the sun would be well above the horizon when the passage was made. At that time, he said, the head of the comet had passed the disc of the sun and was well on the other side of the sun.

Shortly after 3 a. m. the light in the East disappeared and Prof. Russell said it was possible for the inhabitants of Hawaii and possibly the astronomers at the Lick observatory in California to detect in the darkness the passage of the earth through the tail.

Prof. Russell added that the reason why most astronomers had not been able to tell that the tail was curved was because they had been looking at the tail edgewise.

Light in the East.

Mr. Daniel said today that he also noticed the light in the east shortly before 3 a. m. and also suggested that the earth had not passed through the tail of the comet because of the curvature of the appendage. He expressed the belief that the passing of the earth through the tail would make the curve more pronounced. The time at which the earth made the passage, he said, could not be ascertained at Princeton because the arch of the curve was not known there.

Mr. Daniel explained that it was not unusual for comet tails to be curved and called attention to the fact that the comet of January, 1910, had a distinct curve in the tail.

Are Undeveloped Planets.

Mare Island, Cal., May 19.—Prof. T. J. J. See, astronomer in charge of the United States naval observatory at Mare Island, announces as the outcome of years of research in cosmical evolution a theory on the origin of comets, which he said, were some of the primitive masses once forming the solar nebulae, and could be properly described as immature, undeveloped planets.

"In the course of researches made at Mare Island the last two years on the origin of the solar system," said Prof. See, "I have proved that comets are really survivals of the outer shell of ancient nebulae from which our system was developed. All the inner parts of the nebulae have cleared away in producing sun, planets and satellites, but many small masses still survive on the outer shell of old nebulae. These are the comets."

Clouds Baffle Europeans.

Madrid, May 19.—Cloudy weather prevented observations of the comet's passage from Spanish observatories.

Rain in Portugal.

Lisbon, May 19.—Torrential rains fell throughout Portugal early today, and a search of the heavens by the astronomers was impossible.

Cloudy in England.

London, May 19.—Cloudy atmosphere prevented an observation of the comet at the Greenwich observatory this morning.

Bad Weather at Paris.

Paris, May 19.—Bad weather rendered futile the elaborate preparations which French astronomers had made for the comet. The balloons which were to have sampled the air at high altitudes did not ascend.

LAWLER ON STAND AGAIN

an unimportant matter, but the attorney explained that his purpose was to locate two other letters from Perkins to Ballinger, one dated June 19, 1909, and the other written some time in September last.

The first letter, he said, was one in response to which Ballinger wrote one on the following day expressing regret that his son, Edward, would be unable to accompany Perkins on his trip to Alaska.

Mr. Brandeis said he had reason to believe there was another written by Perkins to Ballinger in September, but he did not indicate its nature. Mr. Finney promised to make further search of the files in an effort to locate the two letters.

The cross-examination of Attorney Lawler was resumed. Mr. Brandeis asked the witness why in his letter responding to his (Brandeis') last to the interior department for a copy of the Lawler memorandum, he had not stated he had delivered the original or copy to the president's secretary.

"I didn't think it material," was the answer.

Telegram from Ballinger.

Mr. Brandeis called to the attention of the witness a telegram sent from Seattle by Mr. Ballinger to assistant Secretary Pierce on Aug. 29, last which read:

"Must see Lawler before his departure. Holding reports Cunningham matter."

Asked why Ballinger wanted to see him, the witness said he did not recall.

"Did it have anything to do with Harry White, an Alaska coal claimant?"

"No."

"Did it have anything to do with Perkins?"

"No. I had never heard of Perkins in connection with the matter."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS HELD

John A. Barron Heads the Local Branch of Typographical Union.

John A. Barron was elected president of the International Typographical union, local branch, No. 136, at the meeting held last night.

Edwin Anderson was elected vice president; H. N. Wilson, recording secretary; Peter C. Simons, sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Barren in addition to being elected to head the local body, was chosen delegate to the Minnesota State Federation of Labor.

William E. Towne, S. S. McDonald and Wallace H. Witchall will represent the union in the local trades assembly during the coming year.

The only contest was on the election of a delegate to represent the local union at the Minneapolis convention to be held Aug. 8. There were two candidates, James J. Murray being elected over Charles Kiene by a vote of 39 to 19.

Militia Being Withdrawn.

Hannibal, Mo., May 19.—The withdrawal of the militia, who have been policing the cement plant at Hasco since Monday, began today.

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit.

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam A. Hoover, Progress, N. C.

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principal of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Dept. 490, Dodge Building, Chicago, Ill.

SUMMER SCHOOLS IN NORTH DAKOTA

Seven Special Terms Have Been Planned for This Year.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seven special summer terms of school will be held this year in North Dakota for the benefit of the teachers. The several sessions follow:

For Grand Forks, Pembina, Walsh, Cavalier and Ramsey counties, June 27 to July 29, at the university, Grand Forks; Joseph Kennedy, conductor.

For Nelson, Steele and Traill counties, July 18 to August 26, at Mayville; Thomas Hillyer, conductor.

For Barnes, Stutsman, Griggs, Eddy, Foster, La Moure and Ransom counties, July 19 to Aug. 26, at Valley City; A. McFarland, conductor.

For Cass county, Aug. 1 to 26, at the agricultural college, Fargo; A. W. McArdle, conductor.

For Richland county, June 28 to July 22, at Wahpeton; F. E. Smith, conductor.

For Dickey county, June 13 to July 1, at Ellendale; M. W. Kern, conductor.

For Ward, McHenry, Pierce and Bottineau counties, Aug. 8 to 26 at Minot; A. G. Crane, conductor.

PUBLIC DRINKING CUP'S DAYS DOOMED

Minnesota State Board of Health Unanimously Against it.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The public drinking cup as an institution in Minnesota is doomed.

This does not necessarily mean that it will vanish suddenly, but its going will be certain. That this fate is in store for the time-honored "everybody-take-a-sip-out-of-my-tin-cup" was learned today when members of the state board of health were asked for an opinion on the subject.

Collectively and individually the doctors who compose this board are against the public drinking cup. They have in the past had the matter under serious consideration. They will in the future have it under consideration and in the end will doubtless recommend to the state legislature that the thing be banned finally and eternally.

Agitation against the tin dipper has been growing more and more during the past few years.

ISANTI COUNTY WILL ORGANIZE

County Development Association to Be Formed at Cambridge May 27.

Cambridge, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Isanti County Development association will be organized at a meeting to be held here Friday, May 27, at 1:30 p. m.

State Immigration Commissioner Welsh will be present to speak to the assemblage upon the benefits to be derived from organization for the development of Northern Minnesota. Secretary W. R. McKenzie of the Northern Minnesota Development organization will also be present and advise with those attending the meeting as to the means of procedure. The organization of Isanti county will make twenty-nine counties in Northern Minnesota that have either organized county development associations or are planning such organization.

MONTANAN LOSES PURSE.

Williston, N. D., Too Gay for Rancher From Treasure State.

Williston, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A visit here cost W. J. Carter of Chester, Mont., $1,975, of which $75 was in cash, the remaining being a draft. Mr. Carter has just recently arrived in this district from Marion, Ind., locating on a claim near Chester. He was here looking after some matters of business when he lost his purse. Payment on the draft has been stopped.

CAUGHT UNDER PIANO.

Grand Forks Man, Employed By Draying Company, Is Killed.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jame Harris, employed by a local draying company, met death yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by being caught under a falling piano. He was assisting in unloading the instrument from a dray when he slipped, falling down and allowing the piano to fall on him. It caught him just across the chest, from the effects of which he died an hour and a half later at the hospital, where he was immediately removed.

FIREBUG IS SENTENCED.

Man Who Caused Mosinee, Wis., Fire Gets His Deserts.

Wausau, Wis., May 19. — Charles Blake of Des Moines has confessed to setting fire to a barn, which caused the blaze that destroyed half of Mosinee on May 10. He was sentenced to seven years and six months at Waupun prison. It was reported at the time that Mosinee was burned by forest fires.

Blake evidently had no intention of destroying anything but the barn when he applied the match.

Bowman, N. D., Flour Mill.

Bowman, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bowman will soon have a first-class flour mill, information to that effect having been received from Fairmont, Minn., from officials of the Rippe Grain & Milling company, who will establish the plant here. In connection with the flour mill they will also operate an elevator. Bowman has grown greatly in importance as a wheat marketing center.

FIRES CLEARED LAND.

Man From Hines, Minn., Says Much Benefit Resulted.

Bemidji, Minn., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—"Fires near Hines last week did $15,000 worth of good," said Charles S. Carter of Hines here yesterday. "Very little timber was destroyed, and I estimate that it would cost about $15,000 to clear up the land burned over. I am sowing 320 acres of the burned over land with timothy and clover. Of course, it is well that the rains came or the fire might have done some damage."

ABATTOIRS ORDERED CLOSED

State Board Acts on Complaints Against Slaughter Houses.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—The state board of health nas ordered the slaughter houses at Waseca, Rockford and Hasty in Wright county and Lake Centerville to close within a specified time. The board gave an extended hearing to the parties concerned and witnesses were examined on both sides of the cases.

The plant at Waseca does a large business, while the others are smaller concerns. The Waseca case has been before the board for several months and was considered at the meeting last December but action was postponed. The other cases came in later.

MANY CRIMINAL CASES

To Be Tried at Next Term of Houghton County Court.

Houghton, Mich., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.—Prosecuting Attorney W. J MacDonald has prepared the criminal calendar, which numbers thirty-six cases, one of the largest for the county in some time. Circuit court convenes next Monday, May 23.

The calendar covers a wide field of crime, there being six cases of assault with intent to murder, two cases of assault on children under 16 years of age, four cases of larceny, three cases of forgery, nine charges of violation of the liquor laws, three charges of keeping gaming rooms, etc.

SOO RAILROAD DEPOT AND BRIDGE BURNED.

Bruce, Wis., May 19.—The big wooden bridge of the Soo Line over the Chippewa river was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday. A terrific wind fanned the flames. All eastbound trains out of the Twin Cities on the Canadian Soo come to Chippewa Falls from Cameron Junction over the Omaha line and thence to Owen and up to Ladysmith.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 19.—The Soo depot at Wheeler, thirty miles west of here, burned Monday. It was set on fire by sparks from a westbound passenger. Records, freight, express and baggage were all consumed. The loss is over $1,000. A high south wind prevailed.

EAU CLAIRE MAN IS DEAD FROM SCALDING.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 19.—Alexander Nehr, aged 50, died yesterday as the result of scalds received four weeks ago while repairing the roof of a paper mill when a steam pipe under which he was working was exhausted. Harry Lincoln, 19 years old, working with him and also terribly scalded, is recovering.

BESSEMER MAN KILLED WHILE SLEEPING ON TRACK.

Bessemer, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While sleeping on the track, it is believed, John Palm, an old and well-known resident of Bessemer, was run over and killed by a Chicago & Northwestern train about one mile north of here. The train, which was in charge of Conductor Wedell of Ashland, was running about thirty miles an hour. Undertaker Frick was sent for to pick up the remains, which were scattered in all directions. The deceased was about 55 years of age and has been a resident of this city for many years. He was employed at the Ironton mine the past year. He had no known relatives in this country.

Thespians After Damages.

Stillwater, Minn., May 19.—J. H. Elliot and William P. Elliot, claiming to be interpreters of the dramatic art and residing at South Stillwater, have commenced an action in the municipal court against the North American Telegraph company. They allege damages in the sum of $494. The cause asserted for the damage is failure to deliver a telegram for ten days, so that they lost a theatrical engagement.

Aitkin Pioneer Dead.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—Henry R. King a former resident of Aitkin, died at the Sisters hospital at Grand Rapids Sunday morning as a result of erysipelas and blood poisoning.

Mr. King was one of the early settlers of this village and conducted a drug store here for a number of years.

Grand Forks Sangerfest Dates.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dates have been selected for the sangerfest which will be held in Grand Forks under the direction of the Red River Valley Young People's league, June 14 and 15 being determined on. Choruses from all churches of the society in the valley will be present, numbering in all about 200. At the same time the annual meeting of the league takes place.

Millhand Gets Verdict.

Stillwater, Minn., May 19.—A jury in the district court has returned a verdict of $1,500 in favor of Guy Price in his damage suit against James E. McGrath. Price was a millhand and was struck in the face by splinters from a saw and severely injured. He sued for $6,000.

Gus Lippens, a Belgian, aged 19, has been arrested for stealing $29 from a fellow-laborer. He admits his guilt.

Helena to Buy or Build.

Helena, Mont., May 19.—The city council has adopted a resolution providing that an offer of $250,000 be made for the plant of the Helena Water Works company, which now is in the hands of a receiver.

The resolution further recites that if the offer is rejected the city will construct its own plant.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—Arrangements have been completed for a new industry in the western part of the city, which will employ about fifty men. The mill of M. J. Bell of Bellwood will be moved to Ashland, and will occupy the old Durfee mill site. Mr. Bell is the man who furnished the piling for the Co-operative Coal dock. He is the leading dealer in piling and cedar in Northern Wisconsin.

Eau Claire—The annual session of federal court will convene in Eau Claire on the first Tuesday in June. When United States district court meets here next month it will be in the new government building, and the court chambers in that structure will be used for the first time for such purposes.

Marinette—Leo Winkler, a timber cruiser of Middle Inlet, is missing and a search of mour for five days in the woods has failed to locate him. There are rumors of murder and officers have left to make an investigation.

Janesville—Thomas Clark, a young farmer of the town of Johnstown, committed suicide at his father's home in this city on Tuesday by hanging. He had been in poor health for some time.

Green Bay— Gus. J. Pireaux of this city who was found not guilty of robbing the Farmer's Exchange Bank Nov. 3, 1909, by a jury in the municipal court after two trials. The jury in the first trial disagreed.

Algoma—During a barroom brawl at Rubens' saloon, twelve miles west of here, Sunday night, Louis Flemal shot and probably fatally wounded Louis Lardinois. Both boys were about 18 years of age, were near neighbors and were attending a Pentecost dance when the trouble started.

Madison—Mrs. Ellen M. Pray, wife of T. B. Pray, former president of the Stevens Point normal school, died here Tuesday night. The funeral will be at Whitewater.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Brainerd—H. B. Wood, representing Wells & Dickey of Minneapolis, was the successful bidder at Monday night's sale of municipal bonds, buying them at $20,200.

Aitkin—The Soo road is to establish a log landing at the new town of Palisade at their crossing of the Mississippi river. This is to be used for dumping logs belong to the Weyerhaeuser people, to be cut in Northwestern Aitkin and Eastern Cass counties, and will make considerable business in that locality.

Brainerd—The big electric light pole opposite the new Brainerd Improvement company's block on South Sixth street was tilted over Monday night by the heavy rains, taking six or more wires to the ground. It was repaired Tuesday morning.

Aitkin—The farm home of J. S. Sheeks in the town of Davidson, near Kimberly, was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday. The fire caught from the kitchen stove during the preparation of the noon meal. Partial insurance was carried.

Little Falls—The big drive shaft which was purchased in Chicago and prepared for installation at a Minneapolis iron works, arrived Tuesday from Minneapolis and a crew has been at work all day installing the mammoth piece of casting. Crews will be kept at work night and day until the drive shaft is set the mill ready to resume sawing.

Detroit—Elmer E. Smith of Fargo and John K. West and T. A. Nettage of Detroit have incorporated the Shoreham Hotel company and are now erecting, near the old Chautauqua ground between Lakes Sally and Melissa at Detroit, a hotel, a large dining hall and a number of small cottages. They are laying cement sidewalks and in other ways beautifying the grounds.

Moorhead—The funeral of the late Wulf C. Krabbenhoft was held Monday afternoon at the home near Sabin, the Rev. D. McIntyre officiating. A line of carriages over a mile in length followed the remains to their last long resting place.

Stillwater—The funeral of the oldtime resident, Michael Sheridan, was held Tuesday morning with requiem mass at St. Michael's church, conducted by Rev. Andrew Doyle. The interment took place at St. Michael's cemetery.

Fergus Falls—Supt. Sovereign has resigned the superintendency of the Fergus Falls division of the Northern Pacific on account of continued ill health. He is now in a Chicago hospital and is reported to be improving. F. L. Birdsall of Jamestown, N. D., has been appointed to take his place.

East Grand Forks—Dick Ridler, proprietor of a restaurant, appeared in municipal court Monday charged with having stolen property in his possession. It was at his place that the thirteen hens stolen from M. Simon in Grand Forks were found, and inasmuch as he refused to give a description of the fellows who sold him the chickens he was bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $100, which he furnished

Crookston—At a meeting of the creditors of the New York store, held here, a plan was evolved by which $10,000 of the present indebtedness can be raised and the stove will be allowed to reopen and continue in business. Just what steps will be taken to raise the amount was not definitely determined.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Dr. Dunham, meat and milk inspector for the city, Tuesday, made an analysis of several samples of milk that he had collected within a day or two, and found that in some instances the milk was not up to the standard. He will notify the dealers.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Word from Dr. Merrifield, formerly president of the university, conveys the information that he and Mrs. Merrifield are comfortably settled at Pasadena, Cal. Work on their new residence will be commenced immediately and the structure will be all completed and ready for occupancy next spring.

Kenmare, N. D.—Pelicans are gathering in large numbers on the shore of Des Lacs lake this year. For several years few pelicans have frequented North Dakota, and it is out of the ordinary for that bird to make its nest in this latitude. Even those best acquainted with the habits of this bird are at a loss to account for their choice of a breeding place in this section.

Kensal, N. D.—While showing his sister the manner of operating a revolver, William Wright shot the young lady accidentally. The bullet took effect in her thigh, but no serious effects are anticipated unless complications set in. At the present time, Miss Lucy Wright, the injured girl, is getting along well.

Grand Forks, N. D.—H. J. Hinck, who was for a short time connected with H. Bendeke & Co., in this city, has purchased a controlling interest in the Devils Lake Abstract company at Devils Lake and will at once assume charge of the business.

Fargo, N. D.—By the appointment of the bishop, the twenty-third annual convention of the district of North Dakota, will meet in Gethsemane cathedral, Fargo, May 29, 30 and 31, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, 1910. The Rt. Rev. James D. Morrison of Duluth has been invited to preach the convocation sermon which will be during the Sunday morning service.

Devils Lake, N. D.—G. H. Bredahl was arrested charged with assault with intent to commit rape on the person of a little 5-year-old girl. He was arraigned before Judge Juergens for hearing. Witnesses appeared who identified the man as having been seen with the little girl. He was held.

Bismarck, N. D.—The May term of the district for Burleigh county began Monday. This will be a jury term and there are twenty-two criminal cases on the calendar and forty-seven civil cases and the term will probably take some time in disposing of the accumulated business.

Bottineau, N. D.—Believing that this city is entitled to a new depot, a committee has been named by the Commercial club to interview the officials of the Great Northern at St. Paul. On this committee are J. J. Scully, E. C. Bowen and William Collins.

Cando, N. D.—Construction has been started on the new Norwegian Lutheran church here. It will be constructed during the summer month and the dedication will occur next fall.

Hope, N. D.—Hope has decided to hold a big market day and carnival celebration June 11. The Commercial club is boosting the proposition and will do everything possible to make it a success. Many farmers throughout this section are expected to attend.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—A meeting of the Calumet Business Men's association will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Red Jacket town hall. Plans will probably be made for the reception and entertainment of the Detroit Wholesalers & Manufacturers' association, whose members will visit this section next month.

Hancock—William S. Cleaves of Ripley continues in a doubtful state. No improvement in his condition is shown, and attending physicians are not over hopeful for his recovery.

Calumet—Physical Director Sherwood of the Y. M. C. A. has received an invitation from the state association to take charge of the athletic department for the boys at the state camp at Torch Lake, in the Grand Traverse bay region, the weeks of July 7 to 21, and has accepted.

Houghton — The Houghton County Typographical union has elected the following officers: President, Edward Thompson; vice president, George Daigle; secretary-treasurer, D. L. Brown; recording secretary, John Rodda; sergeant-at-arms, Jacob Maki; executive committee, Edward Witzelsteiner, William Gragin and John Koppelman; auditing committee, John Koppelman, Wilfrid Landry and George Burke.

Hancock—Whether Italian Catholics of Quincy and Franklin will build a church of their own will be decided this week by a committee of twelve appointed Sunday by Father Sousa. The twelve will confer with the members of the congregation and their decision will be made to the visiting father on May 22.

Calumet—Street Commissioner John Hunt has a force of men at work on Isle Royale and Pewabic streets placing the streets in good condition. Considerable filling is being done on Isle Royale street between Second and Third streets and a hill between Third and Fourth streets is being cut down.

Lake Linden—Anton Faller, aged 46, who had been at the Newberry hospital the past month passed away there Monday. Anton Faller was one of the best and most widely known of Lake Linden's citizens.

Marquette—Townsend A. Ely, the state highway commissioner announces that a county road institute for the county of Marquette will be held at the courthouse on Friday, May 27, at 10 a. m. The state highway department will be represented by one of its officials.

Ishpeming—Ed. St. John, who pitched for the Hibbing, Minn., baseball team last season, has located in Ishpeming and will be on the staff of the Ishpeming nine.

Negaunee—Thomas Kindlan aged 70, an old and well known resident of Sands, passed away at the home of his son-in-law, Miles Doyle, of Negaunee, Tuesday. Mr. Kindlan had been a patient at a Marquette hospital, but he left there a short time ago, feeling well. He suffered a sudden change a week or so ago and had at times since then been in a serious condition.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelp of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

MRS. WASHBURN TALKS TO WOMEN

Tenth Biennial of Women's Clubs Closes at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 19.—"Twenty Years of Retrospect and Action," was the theme at the closing session of the tenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here last night. The day had been the busiest of the entire session as well as the most interesting. The afternoon was taken up in various social conferences.

Last evening the principal address was made by Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Colorado, who took as her subject, "Tomorrow — An Outlook into the Future." She followed Mrs. Joseph P. Mulford of Pennsylvania and Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth, Mrs. Mulford opened the evening with an address on "Yesterday—The Magic Motto—Unity in Diversity."

Mrs. Washburn spoke on "Today—Its Spirit and Opportunity."

Mrs. Decker, just prior to sine-die adjournment, took the stage and for three-quarters of an hour told the delegates of the possibilities of the organization to which they belonged. The convention city will be chosen later.

KIRBY AGAIN HEAD OF MANUFACTURERS

Ohio Man Attacks Federation of Labor and Civic Federation.

New York, May 19.—John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton, Ohio was re-elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers and the association adjourned. The annual banquet was held at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. The association will meet in New York again next year.

President Kirby again criticised the American Federation of Labor and the National Civic Federation, of which Seth Low is president and President Taft a member.

"The American Federation of Labor, with the Civic federation behind it," he says, "has all it can do to retain its position. The Civic federation is the greatest asset of the American federation. One of the greatest of American educators after listening to what I have said on this subject, declared he felt grateful for what I had done, and added that he could no longer be a member of the Civic federation."

The educator he referred to was not mentioned by name, but a member said privately that it was Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard.

JAPANESE MINE OWNERS HERE

K. Uukawa and C. Kimura, wealthy mine owners of Japan, and K. Tanabe, a mining engineer, left Duluth this morning for the Mesaba range, where they will investigate the method of mining and handling iron ore. They will return to Duluth and will then visit the Copper country. They will go to Germany from the United States. They will inspect mines in several other countries before returning home. The nine owners control a copper property near Tokio and a coal mine in Southern Japan.

K. Yukawa is the only member of the party who understands and speaks the English language. He said he was in the United States several years ago familiarizing himself with methods of mining coal. He has a letter of recommendation from Baron Shibusawa, the Japanese commissioner who conducted a party of Japanese business men through Duluth on a tour of the world last September.

Credit Men Postpone Plan.

New Orleans, La., May 19.—The National Credit Men's association in convention here today declined to take action on a proposition to raise a fund of $1,000,000 for the investigation and prosecution of fraud in credit transactions. It was declared that a fuller inquiry into the proposed measure was desired.

Kerby Has a New Job.

Washington, May 19.—Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer who was dismissed by Secretary Ballinger as a result of the statement he issued regarding the Lawler memorandum to the president on the Glavis charges, has taken a position with the press association to which he gave his information.

How to Keep Your Complexion Young

(From the New York Herald.)

"Age-marks—whether due to passing years, or premature and undeserved—show first in the complexion," said Mme. D'Mille. "Keep the complexion young and you will never 'look old' before your time—and truly every woman can be fair at forty if so she wills.

"The coarse and dark skin, the spots and blotches, the unwelcome crows' feet, the loose skin, the stray hairs—any and all of these blemishes that so mar the appearance can be prevented (or, if already present, diminished) by simple home treatment.

"You soon find a wonderful improvement in your complexion if you dissolve a small, original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel and massage the face, arms and neck with this solution once a day. The skin recovers the lovely and soft tints of youth, becomes free from spot or blemish and the growth of fuzzy hair is prevented. No, you need never use powder again, nor any cosmetic."

Danderine

and we can
PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 22. Matt. xiv, 1-12: Death of John the Baptist.

THE CONNECTION.

Some weeks have passed since the events of last lesson. He had performed many wonderful works of kindness and spoken many marvelous truths. He is at the very zenith of His fame.

People were talking, pharisees were plotting, all were excited. Herod, who had spent most of his time in Perea, the section of his province east of the Jordan, now heard of him and he thought it must be John, whom he had beheaded only a few weeks before. That leads Matthew to go back into the story and tell how Herod had imprisoned and afterward murdered John.

THE LESSON.

I.

Herod's Conscience Aroused, 1-2.

"At that season, Herod, the Tetrarch, heard the report concerning Jesus, and said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore do these powers work in him."

1. IGNORANCE—Singular that he heard of Jesus for the first time. Perhaps he had heard, but was not aroused. He saw and heard chiefly what appealed to his ambition or passion for pleasure. Besides, preparations for war with Aretas, king of Arabia, kept him in his secluded castle of Macherus, over east of the Jordan and the Dead sea.

2. VICIOUSNESS—Son of Herod the Great, the Idumean monster, he was bad by heredity; trained in self-indulgence, he was bad by habit, even before he stole his brother Philip's wife. As Tetrarch he was a tool of Rome, and held his position by servile sycophancy.

3. ALARM—At the report of the wondrous Jesus, memory bells began to ring, and he concluded that John, whom he had beheaded a few weeks before, had arisen and was at work again, on even a larger scale, clothed with the supernatural powers of the other world. His conscience was aroused, but it awakened superstition rather than reverence, credulity rather than faith. He believed in ghosts. Now Matthew goes back and tells the story of the murder of John.

II.

How He Imprisoned John, 3-5.

"For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for the sake of Herodias, his brother Phillip's wife. For John said unto him, 'It is not lawful for thee to have her.' And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they counted him as a prophet."

1. PERFIDY—Old bloody Herod's favorite granddaughter was Herodias and she, thinking that Philipp would inherit his father's kingdom, married him, though her half uncle. She was disappointed when Philipp was retired to private life at Jerusalem, though on a large fortune. Then she and this other half uncle, Herod Antipas, who had become ruler of a large part of his father's territory, under the title of Tetrarch, began an intrigue which resulted in her going with him. Herod's wife heard of the plot in advance and fled to her father, Aretas, who promptly made war on his daughter's recreant husband.

2. REPROOF—The marriage was illegal, bestial, unnatural. John told him so and that showed his courage for he knew he took his life in his hands. He told Herod so repeatedly for that is the meaning of the word, and that shows moral earnestness and inflexible purpose. He told him so, though Herod was an admirer of John's and it requires a fine form of courage to rebuke one who is saying appreciative things about us and is showing a pleasant interest in us.

3. IMPRISONMENT—Admiration for John, fear of the people who adored John, for they might have sent a delegation to Rome and have him dethroned; a little bit of conscience left—all these were overborne by the demands of the bloodthirsty tigress at his side, who longed for vengeance on John for his righteous reproofs. She compels him to incarcerate John in the dungeon under the palace and waits for her day of revenge, which comes about a year later. She will even degrade and dishonor her daughter and husband in order to wreak her sleepless vengeance.

III.

The Murder, 6-12.

"But when Herod's birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced in the midst, and pleased Herod. Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask. And she, being put forward by her mother saith Give me here in a charger the head of John the Baptist. And the king was grieved; but for the sake of his oaths, and of them which sat at meat with him, he commanded it to be given; and he sent and beheaded John in prison. And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel; and she brought it to her mother. And his disciples came and took up the corpse and buried him; and they went and told Jesus."

VANITY.—His birthday made him feel large and liberal. Courtiers flattered and wine inflamed. He was pliant in her hand and he would want to impress the courtiers with his liberality.

2. LUST.—She degraded her daughter to the level of a dancing girl, in order to inflame his lust. Though a girl, Salome was advanced in her knowledge of vice and she was in sympathy with her mother's bloody scheme. They both knew their game and played it well.

3. OATH.—Of course, the maudlin brute was pleased with the girl's dancing and he promised to give her anything, to the half of his kingdom. He had no kingdom to give and he soon afterwards lost what he thought he had, but in his drunken dignity he wanted to impress his muddled courtiers with his greatness. The girl soon counseled with her mother and came back with only a simple request—to have a prisoner killed, a common and cheap thing among orientals. But it was John and at once an angry conscience and a wholesome fear of the people sobered Herod.

Against his will, too, for he would rather have refused. Why did he not, when sober, refuse to do the crime he promised to do, while drunk? Two reasons are given—"a fantastic sense of honor," "for his oath's sake," a superstition about keeping his oath, as he had referred to it so frequently; pride lest his friends laugh at him to his face, or make fun of him among themselves.

4. THE CRIME.—At once, too. The request was specific—"here," which meant then and there; "on a platter," like some new dish served in order to complete the feast. Herodias knew that delay was dangerous and she did not care to carry the case from Herod drunk to Herod sober. An officer went down at once into the dungeon under the castle and struck off the head of John, but that blow opened the gates of unalloyed bliss to the great, tired man. Herodias had lived in Rome and knew the story of how, when they brought the head of Cicero to Fulvia, the wife of Mark Anthony, against whose treachery he had aurled his hot words, she thrust her bodkin through his tongue, saying "now wag no more," thereby insulting the tongue whose eloquence she could not answer.

John's disciples tenderly buried the headless trunk and then did the wisest thing—went and told Jesus.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

"My conscience hath a thousand several tongues,
And every tongue brings in a several tale,
And every tale condemns me for a villain."—Shakespeare in Richard III.

"The woman proved the curse and ruin of Antipas. First came the murder of the Baptist, which sent a thrill of horror through the people, and to which all the later misfortunes of Herod were attributed. Then followed a war with Aretas, in which the Tetrarch was worsted, and, last of all, his wife's ambition led him to Rome to solicit the title of king, lately given to Agrippa, the brother of Herodias. Antipas not only failed, but was deprived of his dominions, and banished to Lyons in Gaul. The pride of the woman in refusing favors from the emperor, and her faithfulness to her husband in his fallen fortunes are the only redeeming points in her history. As for Salome, she was first married to her uncle, Philip the Tetrarch."—Edersheim.

It is very common to hire dancing women at entertainments (e. g., the Hindoo nautch girls), but it is commonly taken for granted that they are women of bad character. The Romans, too, had their dancing girls at entertainments, but regarded it as a disreputable calling. It was therefore a bold step which Herodias took in sending her daughter to dance before Herod and his grandees.—Broadus.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Is it possible to cover up any crime from view?
2. Is there enough conscience left in the criminal to take God's side in the day of judgment?
3. Why is the loss of purity usually followed by the loss of mercy?
4. Is it right to break a promise to do wrong?
5. What was the supreme test of John's courage?

THE EXODUS HAS BEGUN

Duluth People Are Leaving City for Their Summer Homes.

Park Point and Fond du Lac the Favorite Resorts.

With the approach of June 1, Duluth people who have summer homes are preparing to occupy them and those who have nothing but the desire to get out of the city for the summer are looking around for suitable locations.

It is not surprising that comparatively few Duluth people leave the city for the summer, for Duluth itself is a summer resort. No better air, no finer temperature, no greater opportunities for wholesome enjoyment of the summer season can be found anywhere than in Duluth. But some people want to get out of the crowded centers and the atmosphere of the city during the summer and those Duluth people who have that desire are able to satisfy it without sacrificing any of the comforts that attend a summer of beautiful days and cool nights in Duluth.

Within a short distance of the city, there are scores of beauty spots, where one may spend the summer in the open with woods and lakes and fishing streams to add to the enjoyment, yet without getting out of reach of the bracing breezes that come off of Lake Superior. Just as people from the inland cities come to Duluth to escape the oppressive heat of the summer and enjoy the beautiful Duluth weather, Duluth people leave the noise and dust of the city and get back to nature away from their usual surroundings.

Of all locations for summer homes in the vicinity of Duluth, Park Point and Fond du Lac are the most popular. Both are unique in their excellence as locations for summer homes. They offer fine air, cool temperatures, opportunities for water sports and for quiet enjoyment of the summer away from the crowded centers of the city, yet they are within such a short distance of the city, that one may live in either, spend every evening there and not lose a moment from his office or place of employment.

The real Park Pointer, who lives on the narrow strip of land all the year around and declares that people in Woodland and Lakeside are living in dreams and people in the main part of the city are positively insane, objects to Park Point being designated as a location for summer homes. The real Park Pointer is prejudiced, however, for living on Park Point in winter has its disadvantages. But in summer, the Park Point dweller gets the finest breezes and the coolest temperatures the weather man sends to Duluth and he is near the water to enjoy the invitations for enjoyment and always on hand to take advantage of the boat club pervileges.

Cottage Leased.

Almost every cottage on Park Point is under lease by this time. People who do not live on the point all the year around scramble over one another in the spring to secure the cottages that are for rent. Park Point has the advantage of gas and electric lights, good street car service, fine water for the expenditure of a little energy at the pumps and all other comforts of home while virtually "camping out."

Fond du Lac shares the popularity of Park Point as a summer residence place and also has its "all the year around" dwellers, who say there is no other suburb to compare with it. Fond du Lac is the mecca for the amateur farmers of the city. The Park Pointer is a "camper," nothing more. The Fond du Lac dweller is the real "back to nature bug," who commutes back and forth between his summer home and the city, toils in an office during the day and toils with a hoe or a shovel in his garden during his leisure hours.

The summer dweller at Fond du Lac does not call gardening work. He thinks getting out in the open and doing real manual labor is recreation. Of course, he has his other forms of amusement, including fishing and boating on the river, but farming is his forte and he works at it most of the time. The summer population of Fond du Lac will be considerably increased this year. A number of summer homes are being erected at the suburb and they will be ready for occupancy June 1. Some of the regular summer residents of Fond du Lac have already taken to daily journeys on the gasoline car, but most of them will wait until June 1 to take up their residence at the river suburb.

Duluth is well represented at other summer resorts in the vicinity of the city—resorts more remote so that the head of the family can only spend the week end at his summer home. A number of Duluth people have summer homes at Deerwood and others live at Solon Springs during the summer months. There is quite a colony of Duluth people at the Brule river every year and Pelican Lake also draws some. Duluth people also have scattered cottages on the different streams and lakes in the vicinity of the city, either for week end visits or continual residence.

Isle Royale is enjoying more and more popularity each year, for short vacations as well as for summer residences. Some Duluth people have cottages on the island, but the greater number of those who go from the city live at a hotel during the two weeks or more they spend there.

CLAIMS HE IS HEIR TO COL. SWOPE'S MILLIONS.

Kansas City, Mo., May 19.—John G. Paxton, executor of the estate of Col. Thomas H. Swope, has gone to Martinsburg, W. Va., to investigate the claim of Elmer Swope of Martinsburg, who alleges that he is the son of Col. Swope and therefore is entitled to the estate, valued at almost $4,000,000.

Stewart Fleming of Columbia, Tenn., a nephew of Col. Swope and co-executor of the estate with Mr. Paxton, will join Mr. Paxton at Martinsburg and assist in the investigation. The visit of the executors to West Virginia will be the first move Mrs. Logan O. Swope, her children and other legatees have made to prepare to contest the suit that Elmer Swope's attorneys say he will file within two weeks.

SENATE ACCEPTS HOUSE PROVISION

Railroad Bill Gets Another Advance---Hawaiian Bill Passes House.

Washington, May 19.—By a vote of 40 to 23 the senate yesterday amended and accepted the house provisions of the railroad bill which places the defense of suits before the interstate commerce commission in the hands of the attorney general, but permits the commission and shippers to intervene and even to continue the suit in case the attorney general withdraws. The period during which rates of railroad companies may be suspended by the commission was extended from 60 to 120 days on motion of Mr. Aldrich.

An early adjournment was taken to afford the Democrats an opportunity to confer over certain propositions made by them by the regular Republicans.

Hawaii Bill Passed.

The house spent the entire day debating a bill to extend to the territory of Hawaii the laws of the United States concerning appropriations that are enjoyed by territories within the United States. The bill was passed, having been previously passed by the senate.

Mr. Hamilton of Michigan defended the measure, which was opposed by Mr. Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations on the ground that it afforded the house less opportunity to supervise the expenditure of money on the islands.

Profit in Coffee.

Herman Sielcken, a New York coffee importer, told the house ship subsidy investigating committee that the middleman's profit on coffee in this country is approximately 15 cents a pound against Germany's 7 cents profit. Mr. Sielcken said that during a period of many years the price of coffee laid down at New York has averaged 7½ cents, and the cost of roasting and preparing it 2 to 2½ cents, the consumer paying for this 25 cents a pound and upward.

Commander Julius A. Pratt Post No. 143 Dept. Ill., G. A. R.

Mr. Isaac Cook, Commander of above Post, Kewanee, Ill., writes: "For a long time I was bothered with backache and pains across my kidneys. About two months ago I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon saw they were doing just as claimed. I kept on taking them and now I am free from backache and the painful bladder misery is all gone. I like Foley Kidney Pills so well that I have told many of my friends and comrades about them and shall recommend them at every opportunity." Sold by all druggists.

EX-BUSINESS MAN IS HAPPY NOW IN RAGS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—To attain the peace of the simple life, Henry H. Tieman, 60 years old, who has a grocery here, abandoned a business in Cuba, Mo., worth $12,000 and was found today in Shreveport, La., in rags, selling newspapers and half starved, according to a dispatch. He said he had slept in swamps, gone without food and risen at 4 a. m., but that he feels free and can sleep now for the first time in his life.

"I will not return home," said Tieman. Business worries nearly killed me but now I am free and happy at last."

He disappeared from his home in Cuba, Mo., Feb. 7. Tieman was found by James Smith, cashier of a bank at Cuba, who took up the search at the request of Tieman's wife. Tieman refused to return home.

"This life may be hard," said the old man, "but it is preferable to one of business anxiety and worry."

Foley Kidney Pills contain in concentrated form ingredients of established therapeutic value for the relief and cure of all kidney and bladder ailments. Sold by all druggists.

FIFTY THOUSAND JEWS TAKEN FROM CITIES.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—Fifty thousand Jews have been removed from the congested cities of the East to the West, where they are now able to make a living, according to David Bressler, manager of the Industrial Removal association of New York, in his report to the national conference of Jewish charities here.

The removal office is the clearing house of Jewish immigration, said the speaker, and the work has been eminently successful. The Galveston bureau, established by Jacob H. Schiff, was highly praised.

WILL BE FREED FROM PRISON TO GET MARRIED.

Washington, May 19.—Because he wanted to be married before Christmas President Taft has commuted thirty days from the sentence of five years' imprisonment imposed on Charles T. Thornton, convicted of embezzling funds of the Hamilton National bank of Chicago. With good behavior allowances the term would have expired Jan. 8, 1911. At the department of justice it is said Thornton has been engaged to be married for some time and during his term had been an exceptionally good prisoner.

CHICAGO RAILWAYS IS HELD LIABLE FOR BONDS.

Chicago, May 19.—Judge Ball in the superior court has announced a decision holding in effect that the Chicago Railways company is liable for the bonds of the old Chicago Consolidated Traction company. The court entered a judgment against the railways company for $1,500,000 in favor of bondholders of the Consolidated.

The decision is said to open the way for extensive rehabilitation of the outlying lines.

AITKIN INDICTMENTS.

Grand Jury Finishes Its Work, Reporting Several True Bills.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
They have made many a happy home in Duluth.

Read what a grateful citizen says:

J. Vaughan, 5333 London road, Lakeside, Duluth, Minn., says: "Some years ago I told in a public statement of the great benefit I had received from Doan's Kidney Pills. Kidney trouble had kept me in misery for a long time and I had dull, heavy pains through my loins that made me very restless at night. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and contained a sediment, resembling brick dust. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me at once and it was not long before I was entirely relieved. At this time I am glad to say that my cure has proven to be a permanent one."

WILL FIGHT IF NECESSARY

Big Shippers of Country in Finish Contest With Railroads.

Arbitration First and Then Any Weapon That Comes Handy.

Most of the big Duluth shippers are members of the billion dollar conference which has thrown down the gauntlet to the railroads for a finish fight. The contest will be nation-wide and the injunction will be one of the most potent weapons resorted to.

The railroads propose to make a general advance in freight rates in the entire territory between the Mississippi river and the Atlantic seaboard, north of the Ohio river, effective about Sept. 1, which will also effect practically all through freight rates in the United States except transcontinental rates. The proposed advances will range from 8 per cent on sixth-class freight to 20 per cent on the first three classes with corresponding increases in commodity rates. The advances, if made effective, will add over $100,000,000 to the revenue of the railroads.

The shippers reply:

That the financial condition of the railroads does not warrant any general advance in freight rates at this time, but would afford a better argument for reductions. That any general advance in rates be suspended pending a complete investigation by the interstate commerce commission of the facts. That pending such investigation the advance will be opposed by the shippers.

A committee of seventeen has been appointed to carry into effect a plan of arbitration. Failing in conciliatory methods, an injunction will be asked in the courts to prevent the proposed advance going into effect. A fund of $50,000 has been raised to defray the expenses of the campaign.

Oppose Increase.

At the Chicago meeting of shippers at which C. K. Rust of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company represented Duluth shippers and was made a member of the arbitration committee, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Officials of the principal railroads of the United States have contended that increased cost of operation in recent years justifies and necessitates an increase in freight rates; and,

"An analysis of the statistics filed by the railroads and compiled by the interstate commerce commission, notwithstanding such increased cost of operation, indicates the net income per mile of road for 1907, has increased 345 per cent over 1897, which years were taken by the chairman of the trunk line roads in his argument for an advance in rates; the statements filed by the carriers with the interstate commerce commission for the first seven months of the year ending June 30, 1910, indicate even more favorable net income than for the year ending June 30, 1907, the banner year for the carriers; and,

"The railroads in official classification territory have announced they will make effective at an early date a general advance in all class and commodity rates; and,

"Most of the principal trunk lines in said territory show a substantial increase in net operating income for the first seven months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, over a corresponding period of 1909 and 1907, thus indicating a healthy growth of business and relatively cheaper operating cost throughout official classification territory; and,

"In the judgment of this convention a careful analysis of the statements filed with the interstate commerce commission by the carriers shows more reason for a reduction than for an advance in rates in said territory;

"Resolved, That this convention demands that the carriers in official classification territory suspend the proposed advance in class and commodity rates and submit the question to the interstate commerce commission for arbitration to determine from the facts whether any general advance in rates is reasonable or necessary; and be it further

"Resolved, That pending and during such arbitration we oppose the general advance in rates as proposed by the lines in said territory; and be it further

"Resolved, That a committee of fifteen be appointed by the chair to carry into effect this plan for arbitration.

"Failing in such conciliatory methods, said committee is empowered to take such action as will in its judgment prevent the proposed general advance in freight rates."

CANNON OPENS HIS BATTERIES

Thunders Denunciation of Insurgents at Banquet of Manufacturers.

New York, May 19.—Shooting were too gentlemanly a fate for certain Republicans, thundered Speaker Cannon as he addressed the annual banquet of the National Association of Manufacturers at the Waldorf last night. He was making an eloquent defense of his conduct as speaker and he was wildly cheered.

"You believe we have a majority of 44 in the house of representatives and two-thirds of the United States senate," said the speaker, "and yet we are under the sway—I will not say of dishonest—of mistaken people and now and then a demagogue, seeking power; and I can pick out among them men who would have competed with Judas, who betrayed his master.

"We have a great president and a Republican majority, yet we cannot say whether there are not enough cowards to flock with the Populistic Democratic minority and leave us without an efficient Republican majority.

"Too Honorable a Death."

"If there were two armies drawn up in actual conflict do you know what would be done with such men?"

"Shoot them," cried one of the diners.

"Shoot them!" thundered the speaker, "Shoot them? That would be too honorable a death for them. Hanging would be their fate.

"It is in the interests of popular good that majorities should rule and be held responsible for their mistakes. Therefore, I ask you to make a manly fight for the Republican party, so that when the polls close in November next you may give a majority to the Republicans in the house of representatives and hold it responsible, or give a majority to the Democratic-Populistic minority.

"In 1912 we elect a president. On March 4 the present congress goes out of existence. If I were a mere partisan, I'd like to see the Democrats have a full power in both houses, so that they would be forced, because of their opposition to the Payne tariff law, to act upon their pretensions and enact a new tariff law. Then they'd have that to defend rather than misrepresent the present tariff law. They'd have a baby of their own to protect.

Not "Mere Partisan."

"If I were a mere partisan I'd welcome Dolliver, Bristow, La Follette and Clapp of Minnesota, joining hands with Champ Clark & Co. But that would bring sorrow, shortened wages and misery to millions of hearthstones; therefore, as a man of 74, who will soon be where I will wear either a muslin or asbestos halo, I'd rather march to defeat in the future than have our Populist or so-called progressive friends reaping victory.

"I would rather that we carry the next house and senate by a real Republican majority even though we lost in 1912. I'd postpone the evil day as long as possible and perchance—though it be a forlorn hope—wisdom might come south of Mason & Dixon's line. God bless you—you needn't bother about New England; she'll take care of herself."

Wages Are Advanced.

Oil City, Pa., May 19.—An advance in the wages of the employes of the Standard Oil company and its affiliated companies, effective May 1, was made known here today when 2,800 employes of the National Transit shops found that they pay envelopes contained from 5 to 10 per cent more wages than they expected.

CANADIAN PACIFIC HAS LET MONSTER CONTRACT.

Winnipeg, Man., May 19.—One of the largest irrigation contracts awarded in America in recent years has been given by the Canadian Pacific railway for the extension of its irrigation system in Alberta. The work covers the removal of 28,000,000 cubic yards in the construction of canals at a cost of $5,250,000. The contract calls for the completion of the work in five years.

Paper From Newfoundland.

New York, May 19.—The first shipment of wood pulp and print paper ever exported to the United States from Newfoundland has arrived at this port. The consignment, which came in under the new tariff act, consists of 940 bales of wood pulp and 1,607 rolls of paper.

SHIPPERS READY FOR ARBITRATION

Letters Are Sent to Railroad Chiefs By Committee of Seventeen.

Chicago, May 19.—The president of every railroad system in the official classification territory will receive today a letter from the committee of seventeen appointed at the shippers' convention of protest against increased freight rates held here Tuesday. The letters demand a suspension of the proposed advance and ask that the question be settled by federal arbitration.

Unless the carriers accept arbitration by the interstate commerce commission, an injunction will be asked for by the shippers, restraining the increase in the freight tariff.

A conciliatory clause was inserted in the letters sent the railroad presidents, which members of the committee say may result in a peaceful settlement without government intervention. This clause suggests that, if desired by the railroads, the shippers are willing to meet them half way by holding a conference and attempting to adjust the rate tangle without appealing to the interstate commerce commission.

Offer to Meet Railroads.

The shippers want it distinctly understood that they are not pleading for a conference, but simply offer to meet the railroads if the latter desire.

The committee has received a message from President James McCrea of the Pennsylvania road, which says in effect that increased transportation taxes are to be levied. The message leaves no doubt that the Eastern roads have fully made up their minds to increase rates.

David R. Forgan was elected treasurer of the shippers' committee.

BRYAN TALKS ABOUT LIQUOR

Says That Every Community Should Determine Question for Itself.

Chicago, May 19.—As the guest of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America here last night, W. J. Bryan, in his first appearance on the lecture platform since his return from South America, gave his initial lecture on the liquor question. Mr. Bryan is on his way to Edinburgh, Scotland, to attend an international meeting of temperance workers. Mr. Bryan discussed the liquor question from the standpoint of the individual and legislation. As to the individual, Mr. Bryan said that wherever opportunity offered he advised others to abstain from the use of liquor in any form.

"I would not favor legislation forbidding use of liquor at any time or under any circumstances. I would consider this an unnecessary limitation upon the liberty of the individual. But I am in favor of restriction as may seem necessary for the protection of society. The right to drink may be abused and it may be forfeited. The right to drink is not more sacred than the right to life, and yet the right to life can be forfeited if one so uses his life as to menace the lives of those about him. In a like manner, one can forfeit the right to drink if, instead of asking for the right to drink under reasonable restrictions, he attempts to enforce that right to such a degree as to make his use of liquor and the sale of it a menace to society.

Gives Basic Principle.

"The first proposition which I would lay down in legislation, is that the people should have the right to fix the terms and conditions under which intoxicating liquors shall be sold and used. That propostion is fundamental.

"The saloon differs from all other businesses in that no one regards it as a blessing. It is not defended as a good thing. It is not an economic or moral asset to community. It is a nuisance and only tolerated when it is believed to be necessary. It cannot be defended at all, if the community does not want it.

"What I want to emphasize is that there ought to be no objection to the exercise of authority by any unit. Whether liquor should be sold or not in a community is a question which the community can determine better than outsiders."

THOROUGH SEARCH FOR CASH FUTILE

Burglar Passes Up Many Valuables at Home of Joseph Pulaski.

The residence of Joseph Pulaski, 21 East Eleventh street, was ransacked by burglars yesterday afternoon in the absence of the family. The thief was evidently searching for cash as he passed up valuable silverware and jewelry. He took two rings and two watch chains. The house was topsy turvy when Mrs. Pulaski returned at the supper hour. She notified the police and Detectives Schulte and Irvine were detailed on the case. They were unable to find any clues to the identity of the prowler.

SOCIALISTS OPPOSE EXCLUSION OF ALIENS.

Chicago, May 19.—After argument lasting nearly three days in which nearly every delegate participated, the national congress of the Socialist party at the close of its session adopted a resolution opposing the exclusion of any immigrants, but favoring legislation designed to prevent the importation of strike-breakers and contract laborers. The principal speakers of the day were Mayor Seidel, Ernest Untermann of San Francisco and John Spargo of New York.

More Cadets at West Point.

Washington, May 19.—As the result of a decision announced by Secretary Dickinson there will be a substantial increase in the corps of cadets at the West Point military academy. This, in sustance, is that after March 2 next year cadets may be admitted to the academy as successors not only of the class graduating in 1911, but also of the 1912 class, making a total increase of eighty-eight original appointments over the usual number of admissions.

SHOOTS SLEEPER IN TRYING TO AWAKE HIM.

Pittsburg, Ky., May 19.—After having attempted in vain to awaken William Hubbard by calling him, beating upon his door and otherwise creating a disturbance in the vicinity, Roy Turner, 14 years old, hit upon the plan of firing his revolver through the door. After firing five shots, Turner says, he entered the door to find that all five of his bullets had taken effect in Hubbard's body, killing him instantly. Turner was arrested.

ONE PITTSBURG MAN ACQUITTED ON TRIAL.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—Frank P. Nicola, a capitalist, was acquitted by a jury in criminal court on charges of being accessory to the bribery of councilmen by officials of the Columbia National bank. The jury returned a verdict in five minutes and placed the costs on the county. Nicola's is the only acquittal thus far in the trials of those implicated in the recent bribery scandal.

BUTTE MAN STARVING TO CURE HIS STOMACH.

Butte, Mont., May 19.—Twenty-one days without food with the exception of water and lemon and orange juice is the record established by Henry H. Roberts of this city. Roberts is endeavoring to correct stomach trouble.

To Remove Dust From the Hair

(From the New York Examiner.)

"Don't drench your head with water every time your hair is dusty," says Claribel Montague, the beauty expert. "Too much moisture causes the hair to become dead and dull.

"When you want a perfect coiffure, just take a quick dry shampoo. Mix 4 ounces of therox with 4 ounces of orris root and you will have a supply of dry shampoo powder sufficient for all summer.

"Sift the powder lightly and evenly through the hair. Brush it out thoroughly—and it takes with it every particle of dust and dirt. Therox immediately gives the hair a rich and glossy lustre. This mixture vitalizes the follicles, and (if used regularly) long and abundant hair will be the result."

NEVER TOUCHED IT!

After a lot of people had shivered all day yesterday and most of last night and then breathed a huge sigh of relief this morning because the earth had passed through the tail of the comet, the experts appear before us somewhat shamefacedly today and declare that the earth and the comet's tail haven't yet approached each other.

If the earth had passed the comet's tail—or the tail had passed the earth—its gauzy light should have appeared in the west this morning. Astronomers rubbed their eyes and stared again when they saw the comet's tail still in the east, where it was yesterday morning.

Those bewildering and wonderful calculations that told the world that the earth would go through the comet's tail last night, then, appear to have been incorrect. Either that or the comet is misbehaving itself. The experts don't know, at this writing, whether the curvature of the tail increased so the earth missed it, whether the comet has cut off its tail and left it behind, or whether all calculations are wrong and the comet has not yet passed the earth. On the whole, they are quite confident that the head of the comet got through on schedule time. What happened to the tail is a puzzle; and if it is a puzzle for the astronomers, the rest of us may be forgiven for being bewildered.

No wonder, therefore, that the inquisitive astronomers of one college who put out a plate covered with glycerine in the hope of catching some atoms from the comet's tail, got no more results than you used to get when you tried to catch birds by putting salt on their tails.

SOME ENCOURAGEMENT.

The campaign for decent treatment of Duluth by the railroads is beginning to bear fruit. Last night a local article in The Herald stated that the efforts of the traffic commission to have the Great Northern railroad do away with the antiquated sleeping cars which run between Grand Forks and Duluth is to be successful. These cars are so old and dilapidated that people coming from the West to Duluth and boarding them at Grand Forks are likely to get the impression that Duluth is a watertank station on a half-abandoned spur.

These twin ruins have been taken off the run, it is announced, and replaced by two cars that are fairly modern, though not entirely up to date. Later new cars will go on the Duluth-Twin City line, and the cars now in use on that line will be put on the run between Grand Forks and Duluth.

This isn't much of a concession, since it is a change that the railroad should have made long ago for its own good, but as an indication that the railroads are taking notice of Duluth's demand to be accorded a place on the railroad map it is interesting and encouraging.

A "MEDDLER."

Louis D. Brandeis, who has been conspicuous in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigations and who has been active in bringing out some of the most significant testimony, is an interesting character; and his choice of the many ways in which a lawyer may use his talent is still more interesting.

Brandeis is a meddler, according to the special interests against which he has fought, purely for the love of a fight for the right and usually without pay. He is first a citizen, and second a lawyer. He is a good lawyer, and if his disposition had been different he might have sold his talents at a high price to the very corporations he has attacked. The trouble with Brandeis is, however, that his citizenship is so much stronger than his greed for gain that he has unfitted himself to be the high-priced tool of those who fatten on the people's necessities.

Hampton's Magazine for June contains a vigorous sketch of this unique personality.

"Mr. Brandeis," says this authority, "has never held a public office. He probably never will hold one, for he does not care to. He has a theory that he can do the community more good outside of office than in it. Keeping out of office, Mr. Brandeis had found that he never needs to trim his sails to the moment's direction of the breeze. He works for the public simply from the conviction that somebody ought to. He is instinct with the public conscience. He understands the public interest, and he fights for it from sheer love of fair play, of the fight, and of the opportunity to use his powers. Born in Kentucky a little over fifty-three years ago, Mr. Brandeis was educated in American and German universities, being a law graduate of Harvard. For thirty-one years he has practiced law in Boston. He attained success, even distinction, early in his career; and then an abnormal and interesting idea got possession of him. He explained it recently somewhat thus: 'I had done pretty well in my practice, and in getting together enough worldly goods to assure against want; and then it seemed to me that I ought to do something for the public. I have been trying to do it.'

"Mr. Brandeis's way of doing something for the public has been to arouse the public to do something for itself. His first great fight in Boston, some ten years ago, for cheaper and more honest gas is an illustration. Boston's gas business was outrageously over-capitalized, the gas was high-priced and inferior, and the situation was altogether bad. Mr. Brandeis hired a hall and announced that he would talk on the subject. The people came and were interested. He moved off to another part of town, hired another hall, and delivered another speech; and he kept at it until he made an issue of gas. The people were aroused, and then Brandeis was ready to carry the fight up to the legislature. He got the legislation he wanted, and today Boston, as a result of that fight, has cheaper gas than most Eastern cities. He next took up savings-bank insurance, and obtained efficient legal reforms. He got the Massachusetts legislature to pass an anti-merger act, under which the New Haven road is prohibited from actually merging the Boston & Maine into its own system.

"Then Brandeis, meddler in things which, being of concern to everybody, are widely accepted as of interest to nobody, got into a national struggle. He took up the question of limiting the working hours of women in factories to eight hours per day. His measure has been considered in a number of states, and wide interest has been aroused in it. Illinois passed the law, and it has been carried to the courts in the effort to establish its unconstitutionality. Brandeis, of course, is the counsel supporting the statute. He expects to win the case, and to see similar laws passed in other states in the near future. This has not kept him too busy to serve as counsel for Louis R. Glavis in the Ballinger-Pinchot fight of the people to save their public domain."

There is nothing this country needs more than more of such single-minded meddlers who find more pleasure in public service than they do in private gain.

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14.

The celebration of Flag Day, the anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national emblem, grows year by year. Under the auspices of the American Flag association, an association of individuals and flag committees from patriotic societies formed in 1897, the observance of the day has increased very encouragingly.

This year the schools in Duluth will be in session on Flag Day, though as a rule they have in the past closed prior to that day, so it will be possible to arrange simple exercises in observance of the occasion. By all means it should be done, though it is not necessary to prepare elaborate programs the preparation of which will wear out the teachers, bore the pupils and make both dislike the occasion. The usual custom in schools is to salute the flag, and to have the pupils repeat this pledge:

I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the Republic for which it stands. One nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

This is simple and sufficient. There are so many temptations away from patriotic impulses in the life outside of school that it seems an essential part of the life in school that it should inculcate these impulses.

Governors of states are asked to proclaim Flay Day, and to order the display of the flag on all state buldings. Most of them have gotten into the way of doing this. Mayors of cities, too, will order a display of flags, and many of them will issue proclamations asking the citizens to observe the day at least to the extent of putting out their flags.

The coming anniversary will be the one hundred and thirty-third. On June 14, 1777, congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." April 14, 1818, it was enacted: "That from and after the Fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission." Since 1818 twenty-six additional stars have blazed forth in the union, representing twenty-six states added to the Federal Union. Today there are forty-six stars in the flag, and if congress acts at the present session on the admission of Arizona and New Mexico, the number presently will be increased to forty-eight.

A PATHETIC ANXIETY.

The few Republican organs left in Minnesota are very fond of saying that the Democrats have interfered with Republican affairs and mussed them all up. What they mean by this is that when the Republicans haven't had sense enough to adopt progressive policies and nominate progressive and admirable candidates, and the Democrats have had sense enough to do these things, the people have shown the common sense that should have been expected of them in making their choice between the alternatives offered them by the two parties.

But talk about interfering! The painful interest shown by these Republican organs in the Democratic party's nomination for the governorship would be amusing if it were not so pathetic. Content to let Messrs. Reese, Smith et al arrange Republican policies and pick Republican candidates, yet fearful that they will not adopt policies and pick candidates that can win, they are hopeful that the Democratic party may be stupid and supine, too, since therein lies their only hope of victory.

Hence their tense and anxious interest in Messrs. Lind and Hammond, and the generous Republican offers of advice that Mr. Lind ought to keep out of politics and that Mr. Hammond ought not to abandon his pleasant congressional duties.

WORK FOR THE DEMOCRATS.

Ohio insurgency didn't come up to expectations. Only one reactionary congressman was defeated for renomination at Tuesday's primaries. Yet the vote for the insurgent candidates was large enough to carry alarm to Washington, and to give cheer to the Democrats who hope and expect to elect a majority of the house of representatives this fall.

Ohio has eight Democrats and eleven Republicans in congress. Practically all of the Republicans are standpatters on Cannonism and the tariff. Two or three, as a feeble concession to public opinion, declared in the primary campaign that they would not vote again for Cannon. Yet Ohio lacks real insurgents, the only ones it has in congress being among the Democrats.

At the primaries the Republicans had a chance to displace their unfaithful servants and to nominate progressive Republicans. Except in one district, they failed to do so. But the people, regardless of partisanship, will have another chance in November, and it will be strange indeed if a majority of the Ohio delegation in the next congress is not Democratic.

The natural inference from the comet's failing to carry out the promised line of action is that it is in some way related to the Republican party.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

STATE LANDS AND THE STATE AUDITOR.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Saturday's issue The Herald comments on the difference between the demand for government lands and for state lands. This difference is easily explained. When the government opens up a tract for settlement it is open the year around, to be examined and entered at any time until it is all settled. When the state opens up land, it is in scattered tracts, and is offered at command of certain interests that want possession or because, having stripped the timber, they have no further use for it. It is open for a part of one day under such conditions as to make it very difficult for an intending settler to comply with them. After the sale is over the land is closed to settlement for years, and any intending settler is left.

In fact, people seldom try to settle on state lands under the conditions, though on the face they seem so alluring.

The efforts of State Auditor Iverson seem largely directed toward keeping state lands out of competition with the speculator's lands. Go to any other state and write the auditor about certain lands, and you are sure to learn that such lands are not for sale, but that such and such land companies are offering lands in that vicinity, and you will soon begin to get advertisements from said land companies, and they keep coming as they try one plan after another to catch you. Thus we have the state paying the advertising bills and the official's salary and the official selling the lands of private companies. In drainage matters it is the same way. Here the state auditor comes in again as a member of the drainage board. Five years ago, or near that, the drainage board took on the Aitkin relief canal and made the pretense that it was working to that end—it kept pretending for three years and nothing done. Then the people took the matter to the district judge. The drainage board went before the court, volunteered money and service in aid of the project, and the court appointed the state drainage engineer to do the preliminary work. The board hung the matter up on the same old peg, where it is still hanging at the end of two years. In the meantime arrangements have been made for a couple of hundred thousand dollars' worth of ditches in this county. The county is already issuing its bonds to secure payment of same. The people secure the bonds, but the ditches are to drain speculators' lands. They are in remote sections where few people ever go. In the matter of roads it is much the same. The county is in debt for roads that were years ago cut through the woods leading to some speculator's tract. With no one there to maintain them, they have grown up to brush and been forgotten. In the meantime roads where people are obliged to travel have been neglected. Under such conditions Aitkin county will not settle rapidly; in fact conditions are such as to make it almost impossible for settlers to stay now.

There is a great cry for reapportionment, but what use is the increased representation if the new shall be as rotten as the old. There is a great cry for money to advertise the resources of Northern Minnesota; but what use to advertise, if governmental conditions make it impossible for the people to stay when they come to develop? The way to settle Northern Minnesota is to make possible conditions. When conditions are possible, the people will come without advertising, even as the birds find the places suited to their maintenance. The way to begin the development of Northern Minnesota is to start at the primary and continue on to the final ballot. Any man who has held office even for one year and remained quiet under present conditions is a legitimate candidate for "bed bug" inspector, and the people should see to it that they get the office.

E. P. JAQUES.

Aitkin, May 16.

THE PASSING OF THE AMERICAN HOME.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There has been a lot of talk going on for some time over the back to the land and back to the home idea. They say we live too fast. They say the home is neglected and that American home life is not what it was a few years ago when the whole family sat around the fireplace and enjoyed one another's company. Now I haven't time to go into all this. The conditions are different. Everybody will admit this. The home is, in these days, a place where children, if there be any, may be chastised, a place where one can go when there is no place else to go. It is a place to stay when it storms and a place where matters can be gone over privately that cannot come up in public.

There are but few people these days who are at home any more than is necessary. You can get a person over the telephone almost any place but his home. You look almost anywhere for a friend except at his home. If it be true that the nation is built on the home and the home is the foundation of a nation, don't you think, Mr. Editor, that our country has begun its decline?

If you walk along the main street at night don't you have to wonder if these people have homes? We eat downtown at night because we don't care to take the time to go home. We do lots of other things to get out of going home. Is it that the average American home is so distasteful? Why are things this way? I would like some one to answer just this plain question through the columns of the open court. It is but a suggestion that I have made. There is a deal more to say on the subject. Let us hear from some one else. Your truly.

JOHN ALDEN.

Duluth, May 19.

Maud Muller.

The judge was out in his new machine,
A nifty, imported limousine.

He honked his honker in the shade
Of the apple tree; to call the maid,

And asked for water from the spring
To cool his motor sputtering.

She stooped where the cool spring bubbled up,
And filled, twelve times, a big tin cup,

And blushed, as she gave it, looking down
At her shoes, all mud, and her spattered gown.

"Bilged!" said the Judge, "and all that rot.
Jove! but the beastly thing was hot."

He spoke of the clutch and power and gear,
Of motor and shaft, while Maud gave ear;

Then he talked of tires, and wondered whether
That patched hind-tube would hold together.

And Maud forgot her spattered gown
And spring-drenched ankles, muddy brown,

And listened, while a dazed surprise
Looked from her—don't know color—eyes.

At last, like one who for delay
Seeks vain excuse, he chugged away.

Maud Muller dodged and sighed: "O Gee!
That I the Judge's bride might be!"

With All the Brakes Set.

New York Worlds: The railroad bill in the senate is traveling on a freight schedule.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Not Sanguine About Teddy.

Red Wing Free-Press: The prediction is freely made that Col. Roosevelt, when he gets home, will line up with Taft, Aldrich, Cannon, et al. It will require no more effort for him to do so than it did to curb his free trade convictions upon becoming president—or in order to become president—and turn standpatter against his convictions on the spur of the moment.

Nobody Interested.

Walker Pilot: Eberhart will receive the Republican nomination for governor. Nobody appears to take sufficient interest in his candidacy to oppose him.

Very Fitting.

St. Peter Herald: If the new corporation party is formed why not give Jim Tawney the gubernatorial nomination, with the understanding that he appoint Dar Reese private secretary?

Very Soon, Too.

Wabasha Herald: "The coming battle is not so much between political parties, as such, as between the rights of the people and the power of pillage." There is something about this ringing phrase of Senator Beveridge that will make it stay. It is a stinging rebuke of those who have permitted the interests that prey to plunder a powerless public, and the party in power, whose regime teems with legalized loot, will some day have to pay the penalty.

Good Thing to Agree Upon.

Brainerd Tribune: For once the newspaper men of the state are practically unanimous. They agree that there is a great necessity for better roads.

The People Count, Not Leaders.

Little Falls Herald: When county after county shows up in the Democratic state convention instructed for Lind for governor, what the leaders think or do will be immaterial.

Equal to Any Occasion.

Warren Sheaf: Former President Roosevelt is now making the rounds of the capitals of Europe, putting in a very strenuous time hob-nobbing with royalty. And Teddy is always equal to the occasion, whether it be hunting lions in Africa, toasting a king or queen, or delivering learned lectures before gatherings of savants of the old world.

It'll Hit Him, Sure.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: If John Lind really doesn't care for that nomination he'll have the time of his life dodging it.

Condescending Cannon.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Hon. Joe Cannon has written a piece for the Yale Daily News. One wonders just why the Yale Daily News wished to hear from the Danville statesman.

"A college course is not necessarily fatal to success," says Mr. Cannon.

Also, "Some young men accomplish something in business and in politics notwithstanding the burden of bearing a collegiate course."

Such sentiment does Mr. Cannon credit. It shows that he is no hypocrite. Any one who knows anything whatever about Mr. Cannon knows that he is contemptuous of everything fine in life. Literature, art and science have no appeal for him. He becomes consciously and complacently humorous when such topics are mentioned. Yet there are some men who would conceal views of this kind when writing for the Yale Daily News. Mr. Cannon's frankness must be counted in his favor.

Of course, Mr. Cannon's opinion is of no weight whatever. He is not, at present, a shining success at his own chosen profession of boss. He has prospered, but the true estimate cannot be made till the final chapter is written. That chapter is now being written. In another year or two no one will care to listen to Mr. Cannon's views on "success."

But, anyway, Mr. Cannon is about as well qualified to write on the subject he has chosen as would be the average Yale sophomore to present a practical treatise on how to be a successful slave driver in the national house of representatives.

Finally Died Officially.

London Tit-Bits: After the battle of Custozza a soldier supposed to have been killed was entered on the books of his company: "Died on June 24, 1886," etc.

A few days afterward it turned out that he was still alive, and the honest sergeant made the following entry: "Died by mistake."

At length there came a letter from the ministry of war announcing the death of the man at the hospital, when our sergeant recorded the fact as follows: "Redied by order of the ministry."

Too Ambitious.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: According to a Chicago physician, who bases his discovery on local investigations, six glasses of whisky have the same effect on a man's system as a hard day's work.

Unhappily, too many of those industrious Chicago imbibers try to crowd a week's work into a single day.

May.

Thomas L. Masson in May Lippincott's: One of the things that naturally draw us toward the month of May is the fact that it is one of the first months in the year to get particular about the weather it associates with. January is frigid until it suddenly lets us down with its warm spell; February is proverbially uncertain; March irritates us beyond measure with its perennial bluster, and April cries on our shoulders. But May has a sense of dignity, lifts up its skirts, gets warm and hospitable, and really makes us believe that life after all is worth living.

May is an artist in her way. She does not put all the finishing touches on; but she makes splendid beginnings. She gives us a sense of warmth and color, caters to our imaginations, and supplies us with those longings which only a later season can justify.

May has so many things to commend it, that to enumerate them all would fill a volume. First, she is the month in which the last of our Christmas bills are paid—also the month as a rule that is farthest removed from the autumn tax one. Why is it, we wonder in passing, that taxes always fall due in the late autumn, just when we need all of our strength for New Year resolutions? May introduces once more to outdoors, and for this favor alone she is entitled to a blue ribbon among months.

Perhaps here one drawback is the fact that too often she makes us move. The duty of getting us moved indeed seems to have devolved exclusively upon her. It is as if she had so many other virtues, that she had voluntarily taken this displeasing duty upon herself, as if to show that perfection in this fleeting world is impossible.

The Case for the Newspapers.

William P. Hamilton in May Atlantic: Employment on a newspaper usually implies at least an elementary sense of humor. I do not believe it would be possible to find a real newspaper man who would be willing to accept the preposterous task of apologizing for the 22,000 daily newspapers of the United States. Like other established institutions, they have acquired habits which no sensible man would attempt to defend. They tend to acquire bad habits from various sources, and perhaps get the worst of them from their readers. It may be true in some cases, although it is certainly untrue as a general rule, that the newspaper is edited to suit the wishes of the advertisers. It is at least edited to suit the wishes of the reader. Without readers the paper has no advertising to sell; and if Prof. Ross and other non-professional critics had any broad knowledge or experience of newspaper practice, they would know that the reader is deadly quick to detect dishonesty. In other words, no newspaper can be permanently successful, even as an advertising medium, without a high percentage of honesty, both in its editorial columns and in the presentation of its news.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••David Condon has been appointed treasurer of the Temple opera house.

•••Robinson's circus is coming to Duluth and the bill boards are covered with its paper.

•••Articles of incorporation of the St. Louis Land Improvement company, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, have been filed with the register of deeds. The incorporators are Clinton Markell, A. C. Otis, Angus Gibson, L. W. Spear, N. J. Upham, C. H. Clague, F. W. Merritt, S. F. Leddell, Charles M. Gray and E. E. Barton. The company will establish a townsite on the St. Louis river near Wallbridge.

•••The contract for the erection of the Catholic church at West Duluth has been let to J. Noel, and work will be started at once.

•••The first session of the United States district court in Duluth will be held next December, and United States District Attorney Hay has written here urging all pending suits be rushed to trial, in order that the new court may start with new actions.

•••Another mystery which has caused considerable excitement among the students of Yale and has created much newspaper comment, has been cleared up. Austin Mendenhall, the Yale freshman, who mysteriously disappeared from New Haven several days ago, has arrived at his home in Duluth and shows no signs of foul play. He says he had become homesick and did not care to stay away from home until the close of the term. He will not return to college until next autumn.

•••Three young men, one of whom is W. J. Harris, formerly of Duluth, and all of whom are from the Northwest, have changed all their possessions into cash and have sailed for the Soudan for the purpose of converting the natives. They take with them implements for house building and gardening. They will not work under the auspices of any religious denomenation, but have asked the sympathy of the church at large.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Washington Star: "I have kings among my ancestors," said the boastful visitor.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "and also knaves and two-spots."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "How's your new maid?"

"Rather chilly. I fear she does not wholly approve of my methods of doing her work for her."

Judge: "It's impossible."

"You mean impossible, don't you?"

"I mean that it can't be did."

Boston Transcript: He—If you dislike me, why did you permit me to kiss you last night?

She—I felt that I really ought to make one Lenten sacrifice.

Chicago Tribune: Young Wife—Gregory, dear, what is the trouble?

Worried Husband—Nothing, Millie; nothing, except that I've lost the combination of the lock on the office safe.

Young Wife—Is that all, dear? Why, you can advertise for it, can't you?

Harper's Bazar: Bloodgood—How's your wife, old man?

Van Dorn—The society columns report that she's starting for Lenox.

Philadelphia Record: Mrs. Muggins—I wish I could get my husband to take some substitute for tobacco.

Mr. Muggins—Why don't you get him to smoke some of those cigars you gave him at Christmas?

Washington Star: "I suppose life in the suburbs requires attention to many details."

"Yes," replied Mr. Crosslots. "I have annoyed my wife terribly by forgetting to take down this 'For Sale' sign when we invited company."

Ally-Slopers: Employer—What we want is a night watchman that watches—somebody who can sleep with one eye open and both ears, and who is not afraid to tackle anything. See?

Applicant—I see, boss; I'll send my wife around.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Blanchard must lately have made a lot of money somehow."

"I haven't heard anything about it."

"I haven't either, but he addressed our Sunday school recently and said it was a blessing to have to struggle."

Cleveland Leader: "Public servants can be relied on more than private ones."

"How?"

"They never quit."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: No man ever told a woman all his secrets.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Very strong convictions about a thing are grounded upon little thought over it.

People seem to think the way to prove they are your friends is to act like your enemies.

You can tell by how you like flattery yourself that it is perfectly safe to do it to anybody.

Young Soldiers.

Oh, were you ne'er a schoolboy,
And did you never train,
And feel that swelling of the heart
You ne'er can feel again;
Didst never meet far down the street
With plumes and banners gay,
While the kettle for the kettle-drum
Played march and march away?

It seems to me but yesterday,
Nor scarce so long ago,
Since all our school our muskets took
And marched against the foe.
Our muskets were of cedar wood,
With ramrod bright and new,
With bayonets forever set,
And painted barrel, too.

We charged upon a flock of geese,
And put them all to flight,
Except one sturdy gander
That thought to show us fight.
But, ah! we knew a thing or two;
Our captain wheeled the van;
We routed him, we scouted him,
Nor lost a single man.

Our captain was as brave a lad
As e'er commission bore;
All brightly shone his new tin sword,
A paper cap he wore;
He led us up the steep hillside,
Against the western wind,
While the cockerel plumes that decked his head
Streamed bravely out behind.

We shoulder'd arms, we carried arms,
We charged the bayonet,
And woe unto the mullen stalk
That in our course we met.
At 2 o'clock the roll was called,
And till the close of day,
With fearless hearts, tho' tired limbs,
We fought the mimic fray;
Till the supper bell from out the dell,
Bade us march and march away.

Presence of Mind.

Ladies' Home Journal: "Hello," exclaimed the costermonger on meeting an acquaintance. 'Wot damages did you get for being in that motor bus accident?"

"'Eavy ones, my boy," was the reply, accompanied by a grin. "I got £20 for myself and £20 for the missus."

"The missus! Was she 'urt, too?"

"Yes, in course. I 'ad the presence of mind to fetch 'er one over the 'ead 'fore we was rescued."

A Wage Earner's Query.

Letter in St. Louis Post-Dispatch: I am a wage earner, 28 years old, and have a wife and three children, all girls, from 9 to 14 years old. My salary is $15 a week. After I pay my rent, fuel, light, meat and grocery bills, there is not enough money left to buy plain, decent clothing to go around.

We do not spend any money for pleasure; never go to any places of amusement and have got to a point were even a car ride, that is not absolutely necessary, is never taken.

My oldest daughter is at an age when she could be immensely benefited by continuing in school. Yet in order to make a living there seems no other way but that she must go to work.

Although I am a skilled laborer, wages in my trade remain the same, while all articles of living have continued to advance for the past five or ten years.

Now I am both temperate and industrious; I am possessed of ordinary intelligence and education and practice economy in every way possible, yet I am unable to make a living for my wife and three children, which is not a large family. I do not mean a luxurious living, but a decent one consisting of wholesome food and plain clothing. Consequently I am forced to put my half-grown children to work the instant the law will permit, although I know they can earn but a few dollars—about $3.50 or $4.50 a week in some factory.

I am told there are plenty of jobs of that kind open, and the factories are always advertising for young girls. But the question is just this: What consolation on earth is there for a man to raise a family when he knows their future is to be one of these sweat shops at a pittance of wages below actual existence? What satisfaction is all of Mr. Roosevelt's or Mr. Anybody Else's talk against race suicide with such prospects ahead?

How do you suppose Mr. Taft's and Mr. Sherman's higher tariff arguments will sound to me the day I take my daughter out of school and start her to work in a factory? Yet I am not nearly as badly off as thousands of others; I have a little more than half a loaf.

I am neither begging nor looking for sympathy, but there is something radically wrong. What is it? Is there such a scarcity in the land that there is not sufficient for everyone? If that is the case what is Mr. Roosevelt's idea of increasing the population? If there is an abundance and the tariff is to blame for the prohibitive cost of living, it looks to me as though the advocates of a still higher tariff are committing a sacrilege against the bounty of Almighty God, and the rights of the common people by trying to make it still the more prohibitive.

I ask the Post-Dispatch. I ask anybody. What is it?

The Courage-Giver.

All day her wistful face looks out
Above the sordid street,
Through all December's gusty snows,
Through all the August heat,
A little captive of the slums;
Unenvious and sweet.

The other children run below,
On play or errand bent;
She watches them from dark to dark
With great brown eyes intent,
Breaking all shackles of the flesh
In that high tenement.

Yet he who passes day by day,
And they who minister
Beside her to the few cheap wants,
Like some awed worshiper
Wonder, before that placid brow:
"What use is life to her?"

What use? The great and only use!
The chance to face her fate
With folded hands and cheerful heart
And stalwart soul elate;
To crush the world 'neath stricken heel;
To suffer and to wait.

O brave, sad smile that put to shame
My anguish of a day,
I owe you more than I can tell
And more than I can pay;
A lesson for the passing need,
And courage for away!

—Reginald Wright Kaufman, in Delineator.

Dr. Fordyce's Dinner.

London Chronicle: The problem whether eating or starving is best before work was solved to his own satisfaction by the eccentric Dr. Fordyce, a well-known professor of chemistry in the eighteenth century. He studied the habits of carnivorous animals and came to the conclusion that man requires but one meal a day, and so for more than twenty years his solitary daily repast was taken at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he would present himself at Dolly's Chop House in Paternoster row and take his seat at the table reserved for him.

On his arrival the cook would place a pound and a half of rump steak upon the gridiron and while it was cooking the doctor would amuse himself with some such trifle as half a boiled capon or a thick salmon cutlet and a glass or two of brandy. Then came the steak, with a generous accompaniment of bread and potatoes, the whole washed down with a quart of strong ale. This was followed by a bottle of old port, and when the dinner was finished the doctor walked to his rooms in Essex street, Strand, where he met his classes and gave his lectures in chemistry until late in the evening.

The Great Danger.

New York Evening Post: The great danger that threatens this republic, we are all agreed, comes from the concentration of interest upon the accumulation of wealth, from the love of luxury, ostentation and plutocratic power. That has been the prolific source of corruption in politics and business; that has been the prolific breeder of discontent, of class antagonism, of socialistic and anarchistic agitation. The dangers thus arising must be fought by a sturdy citizenship arrayed against it under the inspiration of strong and aggressive leaders.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A July out-of-door carnival of folk and gymnastic dances will be a special and very delightful feature of the Duluth Boat club season this year, and special arrangements have been made for the instruction in these pretty and interesting dances of the people. Miss Sara Craw, who is a member of the normal school fraternity and who trained the dancers in the vaudeville given during the holiday season at the Spalding by the King's Daughters, and who has also taught many of the children at the normal school the pretty dances, has been engaged as instructor, and several classes have been arranged.

The first meeting will be held Tuesday, June 7, at the main house of the club. From 3 to 4 o'clock children from 9 to 12 years of age will be taught; from 4 to 5 o'clock, the young girls from 12 to 16 years, and at 5 o'clock the class has been diplomatically arranged for those more than 16. Many can plead guilty to that without unduly making known personal statistics. The same hours will be observed Fridays at the Oatka branch, beginning June 10.

This new feature is one of the most interesting that the club has provided, and it will, of course, appeal, as it is meant to do, primarily to the girls and young women of the immediate families of the club members. The carnival in July will be a novel event that will have a wide appeal, and much interest has been shown in the proposed classes.

INNES ETCHING.

Valuable Art Work to Be Given as Prize.

The etching which has been presented to the Duluth Art Association as a prize to be awarded for the best article on one of two subjects "The Benefits to be derived by Duluth from an Art Association" or "Is it Best for Art Development that we study and Know the Art of Our Own Time and Country in Preference to That of Others,"? has been valued at $150 and is a rare and beautiful specimen of the etcher's art. It is hoped that many Duluthians will avail themselves of the opportunity offered to possess a valuable art work. The contest is for grown people and is quite distinct from the school children's contest.

The etching has been presented by J. W. Young of Chicago; J. Scott Hartley of Chicago has written to Mr. Young concerning the history of the etching as follows:

"You ask me to write a history of the George Inness Etching.

"There is not much to tell about it. Mr. Inness was applied to by a prominent dealer to have an etching made and he did not like to be bound by the firm, and finally concluded to have it made on his own account.

"Mr. Eichelbeyer, a well-known painter and etcher at that time—about twenty years ago—it was made to the satisfaction of Mr. Inness and under his superintendence, but unfortunately the printing and sale was put in the hands of a friend of Mr. Inness—an illustrator and painter—who thought he could do well in a business way. He printed forty-three—sold several and then failed.

"I took charge of the etchings and disposed of about fifteen, Messrs. Potter-Palmer and James R. Ellsworth, both of Chicago at that time, bought one each. Mr. Evans (Wm. T.) bought two and I don't remember who got the others—half a dozen were given away to relatives and friends of Mr. Inness—and since then they have been stored and nothing at all done with them, as I have not time to bother hunting up dealers.

"There are fourteen prints including the six that you have—all signed by Inness and Eichelbeyer. The etching has been much admired by all artists who have seen it. The picture from which the etching was made became the property of Thomas B. Clarke, and was sold at the auction of his collection some years ago. I do not know where it is now.

"An autumn Pastoral" was the title."

CHURCH MEETINGS.

Interest the Local Sunday School Workers.

Duluth Sunday school workers are much interested in the world Sunday school convention which is now in session at Washington, D. C. Minnesota is represented at the convention by forty delegates, and although Duluth is not represented, the workers are much interested in the session.

The second annual convention of the St. Louis County Sunday School association will be held at Hibbing, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. May 24 and 25, and there will be probably fifty delegates from the country in attendance of which probably thirty-five will be from Duluth. The Duluth delegation will be truly representative of the Sunday schools of the city as almost every school will send a delegate to the meeting.

Flaaten Sunday Concert

At the Lyceum, 3 p. m.

All school children will be admitted for 10 cents; adults 25 and 50 cents.

TRY THIS DINNER

Puree of Chestnuts.

Boil one pound of large chestnuts until tender. Peel them and press through a colander. Shred a small onion and fry in butter. Add to the chestnuts enough boiling milk to make the mixture creamy, then mix with the onion and bring to the boiling point. Season to taste and serve with croutons.

Meat—Masked Chops.

Have four nice mutton chops, Frenched, leaving the bones about one and one-half inches in length, dust with pepper and baste with melted butter. Broil carefully until done. Have ready a mixture made as follows: Put into a small saucepan one cupful of soft bread crumbs and half a cupful of milk; stir and cook to a smooth paste. Take from the fire, add a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley and a heaping tablespoonful of chopped, cooked ham, half a tenspoonful of salt and four shakes of white pepper. Sprinkle almonds, and when the cooked mixture is quite cold spread smoothly over the chops. Beat one egg and one tablespoonful of hot water to it; cover the chops with the egg and cover very carefully with fried bread crumbs. Place one or two at a time in a frying basket and fry in smoking hot fat; drain on soft paper. Cover the bones with paper frills, place on a hot platter, pour around them a tomato sauce, garnish with parsley and serve at once.

Vegetables—Fried Turnips.

Boil the turnips until they are nearly done. Drain, slice and fry in hot fat till they are a light brown and tender.

Dessert.

A delightful concoction comes to us from Paris. The secret of its piquancy is easy to obtain and nothing more delicate and refreshing could be imagined. Its foundation is a partly frozen plain lemon sherbet; to this are added equal quantities of finely chopped figs, dates, nut meats and raisins. Serve in thin glasses, having whipped cream on the top of each, decorated with pieces of conserved ginger.

R&G CORSETS

Model B67 is very popular.

THE DOCTOR

Inflammation of the Mouth.

Stomatitis, or inflammation of the mucous membrane lining of the mouth, takes many forms and arises from a variety of causes. It may be simple or catarrhal, aphthores, ulcerative, parasitic, gangrenous, follicular or mercurial, and the chief cause may be digestive disturbance, uncleanliness, unhealthy surroundings, unhygienic habits, wasting disease, such as consumption, or excessive use of mercury as a drug.

The most common form of the disease consists of inflamed red patches on the inside of the cheeks and at the corners of the mouth. These patches generally swell and break out in small sores or ulcers, which are extremely painful and interfere with eating and digestion. The tongue at the same time becomes as a rule thickly coated or furred and the breath offensive. Debility, irritability and sleeplessness occur in the more pronounced and tedious cases.

The treatment of the more ordinary form only is here described, because when any one is suffering from stomatitis in a serious degree proper medical advice should at once be sought. Fresh air, simple, nourishing food that can be readily digested and scrupulous cleanliness are the first things necessary.

A saline purgative may be taken—a seidlitz powder, for example—daily during the first few days of the illness. The mouth must be washed out frequently with diluted glycerine of borax and the teeth should be thoroughly cleaned at least three times a day with water in which a little carbonate of soda has been dissolved. When the inflammation has subsided these hygienic washings should be continued, and great care taken in cleansing the teeth.

Two Useful Tonics.

Following are two prescriptions which will be found especially suitable in cases of anaemia. When necessary they may be used in conjunction with an aperient pill taken at bedtime. The first is composed of four drams of spirit of chloroform, four drams of glycerine and infusion of quassia to make up eight ounces. A somewhat milder tonic is eighty grains of citrate of iron and quinine, two ounces of tincture of caluba, three drams of glycerine, and chloroform water to make eight ounces. One tablespoonful to be taken three times a day after meals in either instance.

THE EVENING STORY

THE DOCTOR'S EMERGENCY CALL

By Hobart Moore.

Dr. Boyd, fresh from his duties as assistant to a New York physician, had found the work of establishing a practice in a country town somewhat uphill work. This fact mitigated his annoyances at hearing the night bell ring just as he was preparing for bed.

"Is that the doctor, please?"

A youthful voice reached his ears through the tube. He assented briefly.

"Who's that? Where do you live?"

"I'm Archie Holden and we live at Duffield—up past Hood End and over the hill."

Dr. Boyd suppressed a groan. It was a four-mile drive.

"It's urgent, I suppose?"

"Yes. Yes, please."

"Very well. I'll be down in a minute."

Grumbling under his breath, he aroused a sleepy servant, and descended. The hall light shone on a round-faced boy, who fingered his hat and looked up doubtfully into the doctor's face.

"You'd better come inside and take a seat, my lad. We shan't be able to start for a few minutes."

"You'll go in—in your carriage, sir?"

"Yes, my man's getting it ready now. He'll be as quick as he can, though."

The boy's face brightened. "What's the trouble at home?"

"My father, sir. He's ill."

"Ah! And what's the matter with him?"

"It's—er—he feel's unwell, sir."

"Yes, yes. But try to be a little more precise."

"He can't go to sleep. He doesn't quite know what it is, but—"

"Insomnia, eh? Well, well! I could have given you a draught for him. Really, I hardly think there's any need for me to call tonight, unless—"

"He's got a headache, too, sir—a bad headache," he added quickly; "and pains."

"Where? I mean what kind of pains?"

The boy hesitated a moment.

"Er—all over him, sir. He can't move, hardly, without hurting himself. And he's a bit what you call delirious. And his throat—"

"Well?"

"Swollen, doctor. And he can't eat much, and—"

"H'm! A touch of influenza, very likely. Still, don't you worry, my lad. We'll soon put him right again. Here's a chair for you. I'll just get my overcoat and things."

When he re-entered the room the boy was leaning forward; but, after coughing and blowing his nose violently several times he put his handkerchief away and stood up, rather red in the face.

"That's right. Cheer up. There! do you hear the carriage coming round? We'll soon be there now."

A surprise awaited him on the outside. On the path lay a large trunk. The boy noticed him regarding it.

"Had to fetch it from the station, sir. Do—do you mind if we take it with us? A man was carrying it; but—but I believe he's gone off." He looked round. 'Can't see him anywhere."

"Of course. Of course. Jackson, lift this in. Is the mare pretty fresh? That's right. You know the way, I suppose."

Though drowsy, he tried to chat cheerfully to his young companion; but the boy seemed disinclined for conversation, and Dr. Boyd was glad enough to lean back and close his eyes. He awoke with a start as the carriage stopped. Finding himself alone, he got out. The house seemed in darkness. Somewhere in the direction of the garden he could hear the boy struggling forward with his trunk.

The door opened and shut again. Dr. Boyd, mystified, and more than a little annoyed, waited impatiently. Two or three minutes passed before a small figure ran down the steps.

"Doctor, please—please, how much do you charge?"

"Oh, never mind that now. That's of no consequence. Afterwards we can talk about—"

"Your fee. I mean, sir. Two dollars, isn't it?"

"Yes, yes, my lad. But first of all—"

"Here it is, sir. Two bills were pressed into his hand. That's right, eh?"

Dr. Boyd took them mechanically, nodding.

"But your father—I'll see him at once. I can come in now, I presume?"

"Well, it doesn't—that is, you needn't—he—he—"

The doctor stiffened.

"I'm very sorry, but I don't quite—"

"He's better. In fact, he's all right again; and—you needn't trouble to see him just now."

"Better?" Dr. Boyd choked.

"That's it, sir. I think seeing me back's had a good deal to do with it. I always cheer him up."

"Then do you mean to say—am I to understand that you've brought me all this way for nothing?"

The boy shook his head as he stepped back, warily.

"For two dollars, you mean. Yes; you see, sir, I—I'm just home from school, and—and I missed my right train, and I hadn't money enough to take a cab; and father—he'd have been wild, so I couldn't very well wake him up and ask him for more; and—well, don't you see—the least that one of the station cabbies would take was two and a half; so—"

Dr. Boyd's eyes nearly bolted from his head; his cheeks swelled; a choking noise from his coachman made him stamp and wave his arms wildly. But he could not speak. The noise he made resembled the snort of an angry bull.

"Good-night, sir," called the boy cheerfully, now some yards in the darkness. "Awfully sorry to have troubled you, but it was such a long way to come with my trunk."

POINTS FOR THE TROUSSEAU

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

The coronation of a woman's life comes on her wedding day. It has been her prerogative to name it, and her bridegroom has been urgent in pleading for an earlier date than the one she has finally set.

But the bride draws back a little from leaving her mother and her early home. Childhood is forever past, girlhood and its charming, and she steps into maturity when she stands before the altar at her loved one's side.

When the Princess Victoria of England was married to the crown prince of Germany, as the ceremony was finished she threw herself impulsively into her mother's arms. That touch of nature drew tears from eyes all around the globe. Most mothers weep when their daughters are wedded, and yet they are not weeping for sorrow. They are, as I heard a mother once say, "Tearfully proud, for no mother is regretful when her daughter is a bride.

The day being fixed, the prospective husband attends to the furnishing of the new home, and to the engaging of the clergyman.

Nobody alludes to his trousseau, yet it behooves him to have a new and nice wardrobe with clothing proper to his station and everything as it should be. A bride is not expected to begin her lifelong task of darning stockings and sewing on buttons until the honeymoon has become a thing of the past. The bridegroom's family, his mother and sisters, are supposed to see that he discards his old clothes of which the best of men are fond, and starts newly equipped on his new chapter of life.

If married in the day time a man wears a frock coat, white vest and gray trousers; if in the evening, he may wear dress clothes. His part in the expenses of the wedding day is limited to the clergyman's fee, the bride's flowers and the carriage which bears him and his bride away. Every other expense is assured by the family of the bride.

The bride's outfit when she leaves her father's house is very complete, because she will not any longer send her bills to her father or ask him for money to buy clothes. From the moment she becomes a wife her good man must pay her expenses, whatever they are.

The young wife naturally desires to defer the period when her husband must be asked to purchase things for her wearing apparel particularly. So she endeavors to have as varied and extensive a trousseau as possible.

Many beautiful garments may be bought outright in the shops today, and no girl is justified in wearing herself to shreds in the effort to get her new clothing made. I have seen brides so worn, so pale, so "tuckered out" by the sewing of weary weeks, that they went like swan ghosts to the altar; they had used up nervous tissue so shamefully that they were unfit to enter on marriage. But this was in an earlier day. With each succeeding year women and brides grow more careful of health, and less wasteful of strength, and they no longer prepare for a wedding as if they were about to emigrate to a wild region beyond the reach of shops.

In her actual manuel entitled, "Weddings," Mrs. Burton Kingsland enumerates the articles of dress which a bride may need and gives a list of desirable gowns and underclothing somewhat as follows: It may be a guide:

"A dark blue serge skirt and jacket for general wear and for traveling, a wash silk shirtwaist. For visiting and dress occasions, a light gray or soft tan cashmere, with tiny yoke of white, covered with heavy white lace; another bodice of light silk that harmonizes prettily with the visiting gown, to make a change for evening entertainments; a tan cloth or covert jacket with lawn waist, made over with tucks and a bit of fine embroidery; two gingham frocks as simple as may be; a pink dimity or organdie with ribbon belt (a foulard might replace the plque and organdie gowns), four cotton shirtwaists; a wrapper of pale blue albatross; hats shoes and gloves; belt and ribbons, and sun umbrella. Other needful things would be four to six sets of muslin underclothing, four lisle thread vests, a corset and covers, two white skirts, a serge skirt and stockings and handkerchiefs at discretion.

Many of these things could be made at home by the aid of a seamstress, or by the bride and her sister or friends. An autumn or winter bride might omit some of the thinner dresses and supply their place with heavier ones.

A bride provides the household linen for her new home. For every bed she must count on three pairs of fine muslin sheets, three pairs of pillow cases, three bolster cases, a pair of blankets, two counterpanes, and an extra quilt; for her bath room, three dozen towels and a half dozen bath towels; for her maid, if she is to have one, six towels and two bath towels; for her table, four table cloths and two dozen napkins; with two finer tablecloths and two dozen napkins for great occasions; for the kitchen, three dozen crash towels for dishes and four roller towels.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

Don't Be Too Sensitive.

The sensitive girl is constantly receiving pin pricks or deeper wounds that fill her days with gloom. The over-conscientious woman lets trifles lay her low. A bit of philosophy in their makeup would help each most wonderfully to keep life bright.

The girl who broods over some trifling slight, either fancied or real, would be happier and more normal if she would dismiss the whole affair with a shrug and the thought "In a year it will all be forgotten."

"The person who can take a disappointment stoically, who can get the right perspective and see that in a week, a month or a year it will be a little thing, though just now it seems big, has a help along life's highway that will considerably brighten dark places.

When a Man Goes Courting.

Some men make love by suggestion rather than any open lovemaking. This kind of suitor is not infrequently somewhat embarrassing, for, as he proposes much in the same vague fashion, his inamorata may be left in doubt whether he is suggesting matrimony or merely a walk.

Quite his opposite is the lover who takes the whole world into his confidence, assures the object of his affection every five minutes that she is the prettiest and sweetest and most charming girl in the whole habitable globe, and usually proposes before he has known her six months.

But the most inexplicable of suitors, to the ordinary feminine mind, is the one who, breaking every unwritten law of lovemaking, pays her absolutely no ordinary or lover-like attentions, and then, one day when she is inwardly raging that, in spite of herself, her heart has gone out to him, calmly informs her that he has already loved and knows he has won her.

THE NURSERY

Encouragement for Children.

To deny praise to children for anything especially clever done, or even for general behavior is as bad as the other extreme of expressing admiration for everything they do and regarding even their childish rudeness as being an evidence of smartness.

"I never praise the children for fear of making them conceited," mothers have been heard to say, but in many such instances it might be found that, lacking conceit, the children also are lacking in the confidence that makes for strength of character.

A good many mothers do not realize the value of a little judicious praise.

Many a sensitive child is starved for want of it. A gentle "Well done!" from mother will often give the little ones a great impetus on the road of endeavor, and the wise mother will always try to praise with discrimination.

Too Frequent Baths Harmful.

"Is it a fact that it is not good for a baby to have an entire bath twice a day?" is the inquiry made by "A Young Mother."

Certainly, it is a fact. Two baths a day are very enervating for a baby or young child; they remove too much of the natural oil of the skin, and this is decidedly weakening.

The entire bath should be taken once a day, preferably at night, because a baby always sleeps well after its bath, and sponging when needed is all that is necessary besides this.

Of course, the face and hands should be well washed in the morning, when the bath is given at night.

Athletic Exercises for Girls.

"Are athletic exercises as necessary for girls as for boys?" Mrs. V. D. inquires.

Exercise in the open air is naturally just as necessary for girls as for boys, but the same kind of exercise is not necessary for both, and undoubtedly boys need more exercise and of a more vigorous quality than girls.

Overexertion is even more disastrous for a girl than for a boy, because nature has made her of a more fragile physique, and if her strength is overtaxed she may be longer in recovering from the strain.

Best Advisers of Young Mothers.

A young mother frequently receives a great deal of advice from interested friends and relations as to the correct method of rearing baby. But she will be wise if she makes it a rule to take only that of her doctor and her own mother, in a multitude of counselors in such a case there is often danger.

TEAM MUST BE WINNER

Kuehnow Says He Will Strengthen Sox at Any Cost.

New Players Report at Rochester---Lines Out for More.

"I will make the White Sox the strongest team in the league, if money can secure baseball players," was the statement today of A. W. Kuehnow, secretary and treasurer of the Duluth Baseball association.

Mr. Kuehnow feels keenly the poor showing of the Sox so far on the trip, and aside from the hard luck that has pursued the team, states that some new players are badly needed to strengthen places that have not been acceptably filled.

"There is no getting away from the fact that we are badly in need of players for several positions," said Mr. Kuehnow. "We are going to get these players and just as soon as possible. The fans of Duluth may be sure that every effort will be made to get the best baseball players money can buy.

"Aside from the fact that we have encountered some hard luck, the boys have not been playing good baseball. If the men we have on the team can't deliver the goods, the baseball public may be assured that we will get men who can deliver them in large quantities. We are out to give Duluth a high class article and we will not rest until we have a streng and well balanced team in the field.

"Aside from the players who will report at Rochester for the game today, we have lines out for some more new players. I have had my attention called to a college player with the University of Minnesota, and if the services of this player can be secured, he will be with the team just as soon as he can leave college. I have already opened negotiations with this man.

"Dauss is the only one of the pitchers who so far has shown any real class. Marion has a bad arm and Kenney has failed to show any real ability Cummings will strengthen the pitching staff, and if Thorsen and Klingebiel fail to show the necessary ability, we will attempt to secure another pitcher. But when the pitchers round to, I think Duluth will have the best staff in the league."

Mr. Kuehnow has announced that Fryn. Buzinsky and Kenney have been let go and that the new men secured by the club will be tried out today. These men include Slattery, Woods and De Witt.

Lines are out for another catcher and also an outfielder. Mr. Kuehnow stated that he would not be satisfied until Duluth showed winning form, if the whole team had to be shifted.

ROCHESTER WINS OPENER

Duluth Defeated in a Hard Fought Game By Score of 6 to 5.

Rochester, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rochester defeated Duluth here yesterday by the score of 6 to 5. It was a hard-luck contest to lose, as Duluth outhit the Doctors all through the contest. Dauss struck out eleven men, but bunched hits in the fourth and sixth innings lost the game for him.

The Sox had a patched-up lineup and did not present the regular team in the game. In the seventh Duluth scored three runs through good hitting and Rochester's errors, but failed to secure the necessary run to tie the score.

Duluth will present a new lineup in the game today. Score:

|---|---|
| Rochester | 0 1 1 2 0 2 0 0 x—6 |
| Duluth | 1 1 0 0 0 0 3 0 0—5 |

Summary: Sacrific hits—Sweeney, Dauss, McNell. Two-base hits—Taylor, O'Brien, Altermott. Three-base hit—Marion. Bases on balls—Off Dauss, 2; off McNell, 2; off Jacobson, 3. Hit by pitched ball—Dauss. Struck out—By Dauss, 11; by McNell, 2; by Jacobson, 3. Double plays—O'Brien to Marion, 2. Time of game, 1:20. Attendance, 600.

EAU CLAIRE TAKES OPENER FROM RED WING.

Red Wing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eau Claire Angels won the opening game of the series from Red Wing yesterday by the score of 4 to 3. Eau Claire scored three runs in the first inning, two triples, a two-bagger and a single counting.

Red Wing filled the bases in the ninth, when three passes were issued, but one run only resulted and Red Wing was retired with one run needed to tie the score. Score:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Eau Claire | 3 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—4 | 8 | 2 |

Batteries—Nicholson, Morrow, Short and Benrud; Seewaska, Rice, Weidel and Thomas. Umpires—Agur and Brillson.

EIGHTH-INNING RALLY GIVES WINONA VICTORY.

Winona, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winona won the first game of the season from Wausau by the score of 5 to 4, the locals pounding out four runs in the eighth.

Lakoff pitched great ball up to the time of the bombardment, when a double, a sacrifice, two singles and two passes scored the quartet of runs. The game was exciting and well played throughout. Score:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wausau | 2 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0—4 | 5 | 1 |
| Winona | 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 4 x—5 | 5 | 2 |

Batteries—Lakoff and Johnson; Baillies and Stark.

LA CROSSE STILL WINNING; BEATS O'DEA'S GRUMBLERS.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior went to pieces in the eighth yesterday, La Crosse winning the game by the score of 7 to 4.

In the eighth three hits, three errors and four stolen bases counted five runs for the locals. Until that inning Superior played good ball and Currie had proved a puzzle.

Lizzette hit the ball over the left field fence for the longest home run of the season. Watson was hit hard, but was cool at critical stages. Score:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| La Crosse | 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 5 x—7 | 8 | 2 |
| Superior | 0 1 1 1 0 0 0 0 1—4 | 9 | 6 |

Batteries—Camnitz and Gibson; Curtis, Brown and Graham. Umpires—Rigler and Emslie.

CARDINALS TAKE SEVENTH IN A ROW.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—St. Louis won its seventh straight game yesterday by defeating Philadelphia in the second game of the series, 5 to 2. Moren was hit safely in the eighth for four singles and three runs, which broke the tie. Sallee pitched good ball after relieving Backman at the beginning of the fifth inning. Score:

ROLLER MAY APPEAR HERE

Contract Has Been Sent, Calling for June Engagement of Wrestler.

A contract was sent yesterday to Dr. B. F. Roller, the famous Seattle physician and all-around athlete, calling for an appearance in this city some time next month. The contract calls for a finish match between Dr. Roller and either Lundin, the champion Swedish wrestler of the world, or Jim Asbell of Kansas City.

If the terms of the contract are agreeable to Roller and his manager, Jack Curley, Duluth will see the most advertised wrestler in the world, next to Gotch, for through his various accomplishments, other than his ability as a great wrestler, Roller has become one of the best known athletes in the world.

There is a curiosity here to see Roller, as on two different occasions he has been scheduled for a Duluth appearance, when some unforseen incident prevented his coming.

Roller is a graduate from the University of Pennsylvania and was a famous football player and track athlete before he took up the wrestling game. He is a practicing physician and is also a well read and polished gentleman.

FAVORITE WINS LADIES' STAKE AT BELMONT.

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 19.—Ocean Bound, a grand-looking filly, and on a track which was far from fast, easily won the Ladies' stake at Belmont Park yesterday. She was the popular choice in the betting. The field went away heads apart, but Ocean Bound and Mexoana drew away and raced heads apart to the turn into the stretch, where Mexoana quit and Ocean Bound came on to win easily by two lengths. Indian Maid was six lengths behind Mexoana.

Fitzherbert made his first appearance of the year and scored an easy victory.

SAILOR JACK WON HIS MATCH.

Cloquet, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sailor Jack won his match with Ed Alho here Tuesday night after a hard tussle with the Finnish welterweight. Alho threw the Sailor for the first fall in nineteen minutes with a bar hold and half Nelson, and the Duluth man won the last two in twenty-four and fourteen minutes respectively. The local man put up a game fight but lacked speed and experience.

WHITE GETS DECISION OVER MIKE MALONE.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 19.—Frankie White of Chicago and Mike Malone of Denver fought fifteen rounds here last night. White was given the decision.

College Baseball.

At Princeton, N. J.—Lafayette, 3; Princeton, 0.

At Philadelphia—Pennsylvania, 15; Lehigh, 4.

At New Haven, Conn.—Brown, 5; Yale, 5. (Called at end of twelfth inning.)

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Solbraa, the gink signed to play the initial bag for Winona, is the same patient Solbraa who used to play in the old Northern-Copper league. As a fielder there are few who have anything on the Solbraa lad. His stick work used to be fairly good, but rumor hath it that in the past two seasons he has gone wrong with the bludgeon. That was the reason New Bedford let him go. If he should pick up in his hitting it is a cinch that Winona fans will forget about Joe Curtis.

Misery surely loves company, and while we are dropping games on the trip there is scant comfort in the knowledge that since leaving Red Wing the Superior Grumblers have failed to do anything startling.

They are already talking of changes in the team. A Superior paper states that Daggett will be recalled and tried on second base. But then as this same paper stated that Zbyszko threw Gotch instead of Roller, some grain of allowance must be made.

Kourick has failed to make much of an impression at second base and, as was freely predicted earlier in the season, O'Dea will have to have more pitchers. Superior only made six errors yesterday, which shows some improvement in the team.

The Superior Telegram states that one of the truly pathetic phases of the young race, is the frantic attempts of one Kid Speer to give rhyme or reason for the poor showing of the Eau Claire Angels. Growing supremely confident before the opening of the season because some of the papers around the circuit stated that Eau Claire looked awfully strong, Sonny Speer gurgled of an early start on the path of victory, but he has been kept busy explaining the accidents and incidents of the delay at the post.

A glance at the lineup of the Rochester team gives little light on the ability of the aggregation. Such names as Dunn, O'Leary, Kernan, Joneson and Agan appear in the lineup of the team. There are a lot of old-timers on the team and so far they have been getting away better than the early season dope gave them credit for. The securing of Indian Chase from Minneapolis has helped Corrigan. When Rochester starts on the first trip more will be learned of the team.

• • •

Kick, Callahan and Carter are playing the outfield for Eau Claire. Carter came to Eau Claire with a mighty sweet recommendation. As yet he has failed to live up to his name, but with the team Schoonhoven has at Eau Claire, it seems that soon the men will get together and Eau Claire will start to play a strong brand of baseball. Almost the entire 1909 aggregation is intact.

• • •

Graves in center for Winona is playing the game of his sweet young life. There are few, if any, gardeners in the league who cover more ground than Graves and, in addition to his finished fielding, he is sweetly swatting the ball. His playing so far the present season has featured most of the games of the Pirates. Visiting teams are calling the center fielder the robber.

• • •

Aside from the swell playing of Graves in center field, the other two gardeners of the Killilan outfit look only fair. Crangle can't throw and runners always take liberties with his poor old whip. McNutt has yet to show high class as an outfielder. Taking it as a whole, the outfielders of the Winona team do not look any stronger than the outfield that Joe had last year.

So far the attendance in the Minnesota-Wisconsin league has been up to expectations. In the southern end of the circuit the attendance has been ahead of what it was last season. At Red Wing and Rochester, the two new towns of the league, the attendance has been especially pleasing. The directors of the league are pleased with the interest that has been shown so far in the race.

• • •

Otis Gregory, cast adrift by La Crosse, like the lady in the melodrama, is playing second base for Red Wing. Malloy needs infielders and any deserving case will be looked into. It might be also stated that Mique is on the anxious lookout for the same.

• • •

Talk about hard luck hitting, Tom Taylor has been doing the original unfortunate clouting on the road. He has been robbed of hits by sensational fielding stunts with a regularity that would discourage any one with even more patience than Tom possesses. Graves robbed the Southerner at Winona of a triple by going back and making a circus catch of one tagged for deep center. At La Crosse Eddie Klein went far back, leaped in the air and pulled one of the romantic one's offerings down.

Taylor has been hitting the ball on the nose and when luck breaks more in his favor his batting average will increase.

Manager Safford of the La Crosse team has secured Pitcher Ed Steffen, a St. Louis product, who has been signed on the recommendation of Konetchy. The new pitcher is a big chap and slings from his port side. He is said to have a lot of deep stuff that he has never used. Please note: If Steffen has all the things they say he has, he will get away with quite a few things in the Minny league.

Haughty O'Dea! The Duke informed President John A. Elliott that in the event of his being compelled to pay the $25 fine plastered upon him by Umps Agur in the Rochester-Superior game, he would take his team home. The president of the league called the bluff of the Superior manager. Well, you can see for yourself—the Superior team is still on the road.

O'Dea will discover in the course of the season that the Minnesota-Wisconsin league is not run upon the same general plan as the old Northern league. Any such outbreaks as the one made by O'Dea will be promptly dealt with by the league officials.

So far there has been little trouble with the umpires and it looks as if the instructions of the league executive will be enforced. Clean baseball is one thing that the public wants, and the officials of the league are determined that the fans get what they are paying for.

President John A. Elliott will soon make a trip to the Head of the Lakes. He has not been in Duluth since the meeting of the league officials last winter. Magnate Kuehnow is making efforts to have the league executive visit the city during flag raising festivities.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Interest such as has seldom been aroused in a fight is being shown in the coming meeting between Packey McFarland and Freddy Welsh, scheduled for May 30 in England.

The two boys have met twice. There was a dispute over the decision in both contests. In the 10-round fight in Milwaukee, the first meeting, there were many at the ringside who thought the decision giving the fight to Packey was an unjust one. These people believed that the worst the little Englishman was entitled to, was a draw.

Then came the longer fight in Los Angeles. James J. Jeffries, the gink who is making such a fuss at training, was the referee. Jeff called the fight a draw. Packey has ever held that he was entitled to the fight. He stated that Jeff was so good-natured that he could not bear to give a decision against the Britisher.

McFarland has ever held that he could beat the Englishman. Welsh holds a directly opposite point of view. He has ever maintained that the decision at Milwaukee was an unjust one—one that he has a burning desire to wipe off the pugilistic slate.

Therefore the coming fight promises to be one that will carry more than the ordinary interest. The boys have not the most cordial feeling in the world for each other, and the squabbling over the matter of weight has aroused the entire sporting section of the British nation to an intense pitch of excitement.

There will also be interesting developments growing out of the contest. The winner of the fight will be in a position to demand that Ad Wolgast pay some attention to his challenge. The matter of weight may prevent McFarland from meeting Wolgast in the event that he is the winner of the fight. But should Welsh prove the winner he will certainly be in a position to demand a speedy meeting with the holder of the lightweight title.

Welsh is perhaps the cleverest boxer in the world, barring perhaps Jem Driscoll. In his fight with Abe Attell he accomplished the wonderful feat of making Attel look foolish. Any boy that can outbox the foxy Hebrew is going some.

The question remains whether Welsh can outfight McFarland. The Chicago boy is also one of the very cleverest boxers that the lightweight division has ever produced. He made Jimmy Britt look like a selling plater, at a time when the pride of the Pacific coast was accounted one of the greatest in the world.

No boy McFarland has ever met, with the possible exception of the man he is scheduled to meet the present month, has ever outboxed him. They have also believed, the followers of ring events, that Packey lacked the punch to make a champion. That was one argument held against him when he was hot on the trail of Battling Nelson.

The coming contest should be a great one and one that will show the Britishers a line of boxing that has not been seen in England in years. When two such clever boys as McFarland and Welsh meet, the spectators are bound to see some work that will prove a revelation to those used to watching the ordinary boxer.

McFarland has taken up his training at Jack Straw's castle, in the vicinity of London, and among his assistants will be James Edward Britt, the former lightweight champion, who has made a tour of the antipodes. Reports from England indicate that the American boxer is in fine condition at the present time and will be in the very best shape of his career, when the gong calls him to the center of the ring.

Your Uncle Connie.

A Detroit man was discussing baseball the other day. He looks upon the race in the American league as one wherein the Detroit Tigers have one of those sure thing walkaways. He said:

"Jennings believes there is nothing to the race. It is a cinch for Detroit the present season, and you can bet that if the Tigers win the Ban Johnson bunting the present season, they will also win the world's championship next fall."

There is loyalty for you. Those dwellers of the St. Clair flats never do seem to realize that there are any other team in the American league, or that there is hardly a chance for Detroit to win the highest honor in baseball.

Watch Connie Mack and his Athletics come. Last year the team Uncle Connie had came very fast. There was a time in the race when he had a most excellent chance of passing Jennings. Then hard luck crossed the trail of the tall manager. Some of his youngsters fell down under the strain of the gruelling race and Detroit was able to win out.

But how anybody, either from Detroit or Podunk, can see only one team in the American league race the present season is a mystery that will have to be solved by some one familiar with the occult.

If the Philadelphia pitchers continue their wonderful stride, it would seem that Jennings had little chance for the pennant. Donovan is not the pitcher he used to be, and there are others on the Detroit staff who the present season have failed to show their old time form.

Mack's infield is lightning fast. In young Collins and Baker the shrewd leader of the Athletics has two young players who can hardly be improved upon. His outfield is also playing great baseball.

The remark that there is nothing but Detroit to the American league pennant race looks mighty funny to those who have watched the play of the Athletics so far the present season.

As a matter of fact, there are many who are of the opinion that the Philadelphia team plays more inside baseball than the Jennings aggregation. It has been this failure to play inside baseball of the highest degree of efficiency that has lost three world's championships for the Detroit Tigers.

Oh, yes, it would look as if Philadelphia had at least a look in.

Cornering Publicity.

There is one fighter who gets far more than his share of the golden glare of publicity. This lad is none other than our old friend, Oscar Battling Nelson.

For a while but little was heard from the ex-champion. He was not engaged upon any novel and he had not been ordered out of any hotel. He was apparently leading the simple life, and the papers forgot to mention the Battler in the headlines. But the silence and obscurity could not last. It was too good to live long.

The Dane has broken out in two master strokes of publicity. He has offered to stage a fight between himself and Ad Wolgast, promoting the whole thing and taking his profits from the venture in addition to fighting for the purse.

Then he has shifted the light to his hay-rope head by telling congress what to do, one Smith in particular, who introduced a bill prohibiting the publication of fight pictures, and also giving Uncle Joe Cannon some sage advice on physical culture.

As a press agent the Dane is one of the very best the ring has ever produced. He is a fine little copy-provider. He gets as much space as James J. Corbett used to when he was champion of the world, and James has always had the reputation of being one of the best press agents in the business.

JOY AMONG FIGHT FANS

San Francisco Enthusiasts Pleased By Change in Plans of Promoters.

Tex Rickard Announces Decision to Abandon Emeryville Site.

San Francisco, Cal., May 19.—There is much rejoicing among fight fans over Tex Rickard's announcement last night that Jeffries and Johnson will meet here to battle for the world's heavyweight championship. It has been many years since a 45-round fight was pulled off in San Francisco, owing to the city ordinance which provides for boxing matches of "limited duration." Heretofore, "limited duration" has spelled twenty rounds. It is understood no barrier will be raised against an extension of the established fight period.

Governor Gillett's widely published view of the situation has been received with much satisfaction by all interested in the big battle and statements printed in today's papers as coming from District Attorney Fickert are likewise regarded as reassuring. The district attorney is quoted thus:

"I have not been apprised that the contest is to be held in this city and I have not considered the matter. The board of supervisors has not granted the promoters a permit yet, but there is a law allowing boxing matches and I cannot see the difference between Jeffries and Johnson fighting and other professional fighters who have been boxing here in the past. However, I will look up the law and abide strictly by the statutes."

Speculation is concerning itself principally today with the probable site to be selected for the big contest. Several excellent locations are avilable.

The present fight plans of the promoters has not caused an apparent worry on Johnson's part. The negro champion is proceeding with his training without interruption.

Jeff Back at Camp.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 19.—There was little or nothing doing at the Jeffries training camp yesterday. With the members of his training staff and a number of personal friends, Jeffries spent most of the day fishing in Monterey bay. They dined in Santa Cruz and returned to Ben Lomond late last evening.

Regarding the switching of the fight from Emeryville to San Francisco, Jeffries said: "I have not been notified by the promoters of any change, but I'd just as soon box in San Francisco as any place I know of. Most of my big championship battles were decided there and the town always has been a lucky one for me."

Jeffries was back on the job this morning and will put fishing away for a week at least. Eddie Graney left for San Francisco yesterday afternoon. His visit to the camp has created a great deal of mystery.

Next Sunday night Jeffries will spar six rounds with his partners in a Santa Cruz theater and also go through his gymnasium routine. The show is the first of a series of three arranged to pay the expenses of the training camp.

Johnson Boxes Again.

San Francisco, Cal., May 19.—Johnson went through his scheduled program of boxing yesterday afternoon, the second work-out of the kind since he opened quarters at the beach. In spite of the disagreeable weather 400 persons were out to see him work with his sparring partners. Ned Greenway, a local society leader, with a party of friends, and Eddie Smith, the Oakland referee, were present.

Smith declared himself as well pleased with the appearance of Johnson. "So far as physical condition is concerned," he said, "anyone who worries about Johnson is extremely foolish. He is in better shape than I expected at this stage of his training. I have heard some comment that he is not doing enough work, but if I were handling Johnson I would be well satisfied."

Johnson boxed nine three-minute rounds yesterday, but did not go at it with the same dash that characterized his showing Sunday.

Of the three men who donned the gloves, Marty Cutler gave Johnson decidedly the best exercise. Marty is no boxer and has a poor defense, but he slam-banged at Jack and caused the champion to exhibit his "golden smile" on more than one occasion. George Cotton exercised the negro during the first three rounds. He reached Johnson several times with a right, but the negro replied with hard upper-cuts and drew blood from Cotton's mouth. In the third round, a left to the throat almost choked Cotton and time was called to give him relief.

After the three rounds with Cutler, Dave Mills, a local heavyweight, put on the gloves for three tame rounds.

Two Children Suffocated.

Boise, Idaho, May 19.—Locked in a toolbox in the woodshed at their home in South Boise the bodies of Agnes and Willie Schler, children of Harry Schler, were discovered after a search that lasted all night. They had been suffocated. It is presumed the children were at play yesterday in the large toolbox and drew down the lid, which was self-locking.

Chinese Fight On Ship.

Seattle, Wash., May 19.—Twenty-three Chinese passengers on the Blue-Funnel liner Keemun, from Hong Kong, were wounded in a battle on the ship three days ago, a feud having broken out between the men from Wu Chow, on the Sikiang, and those from Sam Shui, near Canton.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway is running a Sunday train over their line for North Shore points. Spend a day on the Knife, Split Rock, Gooseberry, Baptism or Beaver rivers, the celebrated trout fishing streams of the North Shore. The train connects with the Duluth & Iron Range 7:30 a. m. train from Duluth, returning reaches Duluth 6:30 p. m.

WILL SETTLE IN THE WEST

Seventy English and Russian Immigrants Pass Through Duluth.

Small Farmers and Trades People From Crowded Europe.

Seventy English and Russian immigrants reached Duluth this morning over the Omaha, and this evening will leave for Winnipeg and Western Canadian points over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and Canadian Northern railroads.

The party came through from Quebec to Chicago over the Grand Trunk Pacific route, and were brought from East of Chicago to Duluth in charge of Traveling Passenger Agent O. C. Bryant of the Grand Trunk.

According to Mr. Bryant, most of the party are small farmers from the immediate vicinity of London. There are some small tradespeople in the party, who, discouraged over the inability of obtaining employment in London, have come to America in search of opportunity.

The Russian members of the party are, for the most part, small farmers, who will join a Russian colony in Regina. They have made the trip to a new country on the advice of friends, and for the most part will go into the farming industry.

Mr. Bryant stated today that Duluth was getting this through immigration business because of the competition of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific. Before the establishment of the Duluth traffic gateway, the immigration business from Eastern Canada to the Western parts of the dominion was routed west from Montreal and Quebec over the Canadian Pacific. This is the short line route from Eastern to Western Canada, and is also the route that formerly secured most of the immigration business.

However, the establishment of the through line from Duluth to Winnipeg has entirely changed the complexion of the immigration business.

Acting in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Pacific, Duluth lines have become active, aggressive bidders for the business, and at the present time are getting a very fair share of the immigration business.

Mr. Bryant stated today that the Duluth gateway had become permanent, as a competitor for business, and that Duluth would continue to get its share of the through passenger business.

The Grand Trunk agent also stated that there was a very heavy rush of immigration from England at the present time. This is due, according to his statement, to the fact that employment is very difficult to secure in England.

In the party that Mr. Bryant brought to Duluth last week, there were several doctors, some lawyers and two or three architects. These professional men told Mr. Bryant that they had been out of employment for about a year, and that there was no prospect of obtaining employment in London.

Today the Englishmen are seeing the sights of the city. They arrived here at 1 o'clock and will leave this evening for Winnipeg. The members of the party are young men for the most part, and they are very much interested in the things they have seen in this country. Few of the Russians speak a word of English. They remain together and have not wandered away far from the Union depot.

THOUGHT COMET HAD HIT HIM

That Was Sensation Given Veterinary By Horse's Hoofs.

"Was that the comet?" gasped L. G. McDevitt, a veterinary surgeon, last evening, and the men who had been exerting every effort to revive him, dreading that they would not be able to do so, burst into laughter.

Dr. McDevitt had gone into the stall where a horse was ailing in a First street livery barn to administer medicine and the horse lost no time in letting fly with both hind legs. One hoof whizzed by the man's head and the other struck him a terrific blow in the breast.

He fell unconscious and the attendants hurried to his assistance. At first they thought he was killed, but eventually he was brought to consciousness. After a time he returned to his impulsive patient and continued the operation successfully, although the man was suffering intense pain.

Dr. McDevitt was able to be about today but was still suffering from the effects of the comet's coming.

FIND BODY ON LAKE SHORE

Not Known Whether August Olson Killed Himself or Not.

The authorities are puzzled to decide whether August Olson, 70 years old, whose body was found today on the lake shore at Eighteenth avenue East, committed suicide or met death by drowning while intoxicated.

Olson, who recently sold a house he owned and then began spending the proceeds of the sale in dissipation, is known to have asked shortly before he disappeared on May 2 what was the easiest way to die. For this reason the police are inclined to the theory that he deliberately ended his own life, but say that he may have fallen into the lake while unable to control his actions.

The man had no relatives here. He was for many years a section laborer. The body was taken to the Flood & Horgan morgue.

POPE'S BLESSING ON NEW BISHOPS

Archbishop Ireland Receives Cable Message From Vatican.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Archbishop Ireland today received a cable message from Pope Piux X congratulating the archbishop on the consecration of the six new bishops. The message reads:

"The holy father, with fullness of heart, imparts his blessing to yourself and to suffragan prelates assisting you, as befitting them, and to the six newly consecrated bishops entering into the church's sacred princedom, to whom he earnestly wishes a prosperous and stainless career.

"MERRY DEL VAL,

DEAD MAN IS IDENTIFIED

Jarnet H. Stevens of Ishpeming, Mich., arrived in Duluth today and positively identified the body of the man who was killed by an Omaha train in the yards at Fifth avenue, Saturday, as that of his father. The man's face and head were badly battered and it was not certain that his identity was established until the son came today.

GRAND JURY EVIDENCE ADMITTED BY COURT.

Marinette, Wis., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The evidence of Attorney Franzke before the grand jury bearing upon the alleged forgery of a lease by Schwittay was admitted subject to privilege of objection by counsel, by Judge Stevens, today in the disbarment trial of Schwittway. Franzke is still in hiding.

STEAMER BURNED OFF THE COAST OF OREGON.

San Francisco, Cal., May 19.—The steamer J. Marhoffer, which left San Francisco for Portland, Or., on May 14, has been burned at sea twenty miles north of Newport, Or., Capt. Wellander of the United States life-saving station reports that nineteen persons from the burned steamer, including the captain and his wife, have landed safely in their own boats.

LIGHTNING CAUSES FEAR

Electrical Storm Sends Superstitious People to Refuge in Cellars.

Earth May Not Have Passed Through Comet's Tail at All.

An intense electrical storm, coming just at the time the earth was supposed to have been immersed in the tail of Halley's comet last night, heightened the fears of the Duluth people who looked with superstition on the visit of the celestial traveler.

The atmospheric disturbances were commonly attributed to the comet, but local people of scientific knowledge scouted the idea, with good reason apparently, for scientists all over the world are today engaged in a controversy as to whether the earth passed through the tail of the comet at all, with the preponderance of the scientific opinion evidently on the side of the contention that the appendage of the visitor did not sweep the face of this mundane orb.

No observations were possible in Duluth on account of the cloudy sky. For a time early in the evening a portion of the sky was clear but not that portion in which the glow of the comet's tail was expected to be visible. Then came the electrical storm, with the flashing lightning, the dark menacing clouds and the falling rain.

It was a condition that was well set to arouse superstitious fears. It is related that some people sought their cellars and others remained within doors alternately scoffing and being plunged in doubt and wonder. Park Point people who had laughed at those who spent the night up town for fear of the inundation of the narrow strip of land by a tidal wave began to think of taking the same refuge. The lightning flashes were vivid and frequent. The rain fell gently, but constantly. The clouds were lowering and held out an awful menace to some.

The storm passed quickly, but the clouds did not leave the sky. Now and then, a hazy moon peeped out from behind a cloud and brightened the edges of the clouds, but its appearance were brief and infrequent.

All night some Duluth people sat up and waited for some sign of the comet, either by appearance or demonstration. They saw nothing and felt nothing. After the storm, the old earth revolved serenely on its axis and the clouds moved back and forth in the heavens, content with threats.

This morning, those who had feared the comet arose relieved to find that everything was just as it had been. It was a cold, raw morning, but cold, raw mornings are not uncommon in Duluth.

Now the world is in doubt again. The experts have fallen out and the dear people, to whom comets are mysterious and the planetary system a closed book, must wait for the astronomers to agree before they draw conclusions of their own.

STATE GETS TAX ON BIG ESTATE

Over Three Hundred Thousand Dollars Received at St. Paul in Kennedy Case.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney General Simpson today sent a draft to County Treasurer Foote for $345,325.25, made payable to the attorney general and indorsed by him, which represents the amount due Minnesota from the estate of the late John S. Kennedy of New York City as inheritance tax on the property owned by the estate in Minnesota.

The property consists of 100,000 shares of stock in the Great Northern Railway company, worth at the time of Mr. Kennedy's death $140 per share, or $14,000,000. The amount paid to the state represents the taxable part of the estate not left to charity.

This is the first payment ever made in this state in the nature of an inheritance tax on property owned by a non-resident. It was collected without court intervention, thus establishing the validity of the inheritance tax law.

County Treasurer Foote will in turn pay the amount over to the state treasurer.

WOULD COMPEL MAYOR TO ISSUE A PERMIT.

Chicago, May 19.—Petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Busse to issue a permit for the holding of the Gotch-Zbyszko wrestling match here on Memorial day was filed in the superior court today.

SPIDER WEB AS A STYPTIC.

The Hospital: A spider's web, an old cure for bleeding, is an uncleanly application, as it is generally procured from the most neglected corner in a room, and is consequently laden with dust.

The earliest reference to this remedy in our language seems to be in a translation of that curious encyclopaedic work of the Middle Ages, "De proprietatibus Rerum," where we read: "Coppe webbe that is white and clene stauncheth blood." But as I have seen it applied to a cut finger it has been anything but white and clean. There is another reference in Shakespeare's "Mid-summer Night's Dream," when Bottom, the weaver, says to the fairy Cobweb, "I shall desire of you more acquaintance, good master Cobweb; if I cut my finger I shall make bold with you."

As a styptic, however, it must be acknowledge a spider's web is somewhat effective. In a case of excessive hemorrhage after the extraction of a tooth a dentist applied a cobweb with most satisfactory results.

A WHISTLER STORY.

Charles L. Freer of Detroit is America's leading collector of Whistler paintings, among Mr. Freer's treasures being the famous peacock-room decorations from the dining-room of the Leyland House in London.

Mr. Freer is also a collector of Whistler anecdotes, one of which he told at a recent dinner.

"Whistler," he said, "once undertook to get a fellow-painter's work into the autumn Salon. He succeded and the picture was hung. But, the painter, going to see his masterpiece with Whistler on varnishing day, uttered a terrible oath when he beheld it.

"'Good gracious,' he groaned, 'you're exhibiting my picture upside down!'

"'Hush,' said Whistler. 'The committee refused it the other way.'"

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

MISFORTUNE DOGS STEPS

Aged Man Returning From Norway Loses Money and Ticket.

Took Wrong Train From New York Going to Canada.

Chris Baladin, 73 years old, picked up by the police on First street early last evening in a fainting condition, has had a hard time trying to reach the home of his sons at Leeds, S. D. One stroke of hard luck has followed another, and the worst blow dealt him by misfortune was in Duluth, the loss of his money, some $370, together with his railroad ticket and some papers. The police, however, believe that the old man's separation from his wealth is only temporary. They have strong hopes of being able to find it for him. He turned over his store of wealth to a hotel keeper yesterday afternoon after leaving the train which brought him to the city as a precautionary measure, receiving a receipt. Then he started out to take in the city. He wandered about looking at the tall buildings for a couple of hours, but when he wanted to return he found that he didn't know where he was. Search as he would, he couldn't locate his hotel. He didn't ask for help but kept on searching. Rather feeble because of his age he was overcome by fatigue on East First street, and fainted away. A policeman found him lying on the stone walk. The wind had blown his hat away and it is thought that the same agency is responsible for the loss of his receipt and papers, which probably fell out of his pocket. Baladin had been in this country twenty-three years last summer, when he went to Norway, his native country, to visit a brother. He is now on his way back to his sons. Through some mistake which cannot be understood by the police, he boarded the wrong train at New York and was carried up into Canada. He doesn't remember the name of the town where he was put off by the conductor. He took another train back to the United States, and thought the biggest part of his troubles had ended when he reached this city. He didn't think that he would forget the name and location of the hotel at which he had deposted his money and left his baggage, and had no means of anticipating the loss of the receipt for his money, which would probably have been written on the hotel stationary. An officer is accompanying him about the city today in an effort to find the hostelry. Baladin states that he will remember it if he sees it again.

TRACKS OF WILD ANIMALS.

Difficult to Secure Good Record Impression of Them.

"It is a most fascinating amusement to learn some creature's way of life by following its fresh tracks for hours in good snow," writes Ernest Thompson Seton in Country Life in America. "I never miss a chance. If I cannot find a fresh one, I take a stale one.

"How often I have wished for a perfect means of transfering these wild life tales to paper or otherwise making a permanent collection. My earliest attempts were made in free hand drawing, which answers, but has this great disadvantage—the value of the result is likely to be limited by one's knowledge at the time.

"Casting in plaster was another means attempted, but not one track in 10,000 is fit to cast. Nearly all are blemished and imperfect in some way, and the most abundant—those in snow, cannot be cast at all.

"Then I tried spreading plastic wax where the beasts would walk on it, in pathways or before dens. How they did scoff! The simplest ground squirrel knew too much to venture on my waxen snare; around it, or if hemmed in, over it, with a mighty bound they went, but never a track did I secure.

"Photography naturally suggested itself, but the difficulties proved as great as unexpected; the essential details are almost always left out. You must have open sunlight, and even when the weather is perfect there are practically but two times each day when it is possible—in midmorning and mid-afternoon, when the sun is high enough for clear photographs and low enough to cast a shadow in the faint track.

"Then a new method was suggested in an unexpected way. A friend of mine had a pet coon, which he kept in a cage in his bachelor quarters uptown. One day during my friend's absence the coon got loose and set about a series of long-deferred exploring expeditions, beginning with the bachelor's bedroom. The first promising object was a writing desk.

"Mounting by a chair, the coon tipped over a bottle of ink, and after walking through it proceeded to make some excellent black impressions of his little paws on some writing paper. After a while he transferred his field of operations to the bed, where he added a series of track records upon the white counterpane. This gave me the hint I needed, and armed with printers' ink and white paper I set about gathering a collection of imprints.

"After many failures better methods were devised. We substituted black paint for printers' ink, as the latter dries too quickly. Another improvement was the padding of the paper, which should be light and soft for very light animals, and stronger and harder for the heavy. Printing from a mouse, for example, is much like printing a delicate etching; ink, paper, dampness, etc., must be exactly right, and furthermore you have this handicap—you cannot regulate the pressure.

"This is, of course, strictly a zoo method; all attempts to secure black prints from wild animals have been total failures. The paper, the smell of paint, etc., are enough to keep the wild things away. In the zoo we spread the black pad and the white paper in a narrow, temporary lane, and one by one drove, or tried to drive, the captives over them, securing a series of tracks that are life size, properly spaced, absolutely authentic and capable of yielding more facts as the observer learns more about the subject.

"All this sounds quite easy. But no one has any idea how crosscrooked and contrary a creature can be until he wishes it to repeat for him some ordinary thing that it has hitherto done hourly. Some of them balked at the paint, some at the paper, some made a leap to clear all, and thereby wrecked the entire apparatus. Some would begin very well, but rush back when half way over so as to destroy the print already made, and in most cases the calmest, steadiest, tamest of beasts became utterly wild, erratic and unmanageable when approached with trackological intent.

"Even domestic animals are difficult. A tame cat that was highly trained to do anything a cat could do was selected as promising for a black track study, and her owner's two boys volunteered to get all the cat tracks I needed. They put down a long roll of paper in a hall, painted pussy's feet black and proceeded to chase her up and down.

"Her docility vanished under the strain. She raced madly about, leaving long, useless splashes of black; then, leaping to a fanlight, she escaped upstairs to take refuge among the snowy draperies. After which the boys' trouble began.

"These, however, are mere by-incidents and illustrate the many practical difficulties. After these had been conquered with patience and ingenuity there could be no doubt of the value of the prints. They are the best of records for size, spacing and detail, but fail in giving incidents of wild life or the landscape surroundings. The drawings, as already seen, are best for a long series and for faint features; in fact, the drawing alone can give everything you can perceive; but it fails in authentic size and detail.

"Photography has this great advantage—it gives the surroundings, the essential landscape and setting, and therefore the local reason for many changes of action on the part of the animal; also the aesthetic beauties of its records are unique and will help to keep the method in a high place. Thus each of the three means may be successful in a different way, and the best, most nearly perfect, alphabet of the woods would include all three and consist of a drawing, a pedoscript and a photograph of each track, and a trail, i. e., a single footprint and the long series of each animal."

BUT SELDOM.

Prof. Brander Matthews, the brilliant essayist and scholar of Columbia, said at a dinner party, apropos of changes in the meaning of words:

"At the height of our mayoralty campaign a little boy, looking up from his adventure book, said to his father:

"'Father, what's a cormorant?'

"'A cormorant,' the father answered, as he turned the huge pages of his newspaper, 'Is a corrupt and hoggish politician.'

"'But' the lad objected 'I thought it was a bird'

"'Oh, yes, to be sure,' the other agreed. The word is used in that sense now and then.'"

LOST HIM A SALE.

"He is a cynic," said Senator Tillman of a political antagonist. "He mistrusts all things. He's as bad as the Chicago drummer.

"A Chicago drummer visited a prohibition State. A prohibitionist customer said to him proudly:

"'No, sir; the words beer and whisky are unknown in this town.'

"The drummer nodded and whispered:

"'I see. What does this one ask for?'

Competition for Business Grows Keener Every Year!

This makes it important to advertisers to be sure and use the right newspaper in going after business. It is certainly a time for concentration, a time when every dollar expended should go straight to the mark. The Herald is absolutely the one best newspaper in Duluth. It reaches all classes of people, rich and poor and at a time when they can consider the advertisements. Any advertiser who is not getting his share of business or who feels that he is losing ground, should not experiment by using every paper offered, but should strive hard by improved advertising and larger copy in the one best newspaper—The Duluth Herald.

DENOUNCES STEEL PLANT

Arthur Holder Says Some in Pennsylvania Are Slaughter Houses.

Also Declares Hospitals Kill Men to Avoid Expense of Cripples.

Washington, May 19.—Steel manufacturing concerns in Pennsylvania were characterized today as "human slaughterhouses" and it was charged that in the hospitals "wilful murder" was committed, on the theory that dead men were less expensive than cripples, at a hearing before the senate committee on public health and national quarantine in connection with the Owen bill, providing for the creation of a department of labor and health.

The sensational statements were made by Arthur F. Holder, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor.

"Wilful Murder."

"A few days ago," said Mr. Holder, "I was sitting in the office of a Pennsylvania member of congress and was informed that in the hospital of one of the Pennsylvania steel concerns wilful murder was committed when it was found that it would be better for the company to have a dead man than a cripple."

Senator Smoot demanded to know the name of the concern accused of the crimes and the name of his informant. Mr. Holder responded that the name of the concern was the Bethlehem Steel company, and he promised to supply the committee with all of the facts connected with the charge.

ALTER PLANS OF HOME-COMING

Committee Will Plan No Parade in Honor of Roosevelt.

New York, May 19.—"Simple and dignified" is to be Theodore Roosevelt's welcome in New York June 18. At least that is the desire of the reception committee. Contrary to expectations there will be no great land parade. The Rough Riders are the chosen few who will line up with Col. Roosevelt's carriage. Aside from them there will be only a squad of mounted police, a police band and the reception committee in carriages.

The committee thus explained the situation:

"It is believed that the proceedings should be simple and dignified, in order to permit the largest number of people to participate. In view of the great number of requests from various organizations and distinguished representatives throughout the country to join in a land procession of some kind, the committee has concluded it will be impracticable to accommodate them all, and has therefore decided to eliminate that portion of the original program which has provided for a general land parade, and instead to give such representatives positions along Fifth avenue from which they may have ample opportunity to see Mr. Roosevelt as he passes. The reception will be national in its character, and entirely free from questions relating to politics, creed or race."

Chinaman Has Hearing.
Chin Yip, charged with being in the United States in violation of the Chinese exclusion law, is having a hearing today before United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell. Yip claims that he was born in San Francisco in 1872 and has never been in China. The government claims that he has not established the fact. He was arrested last week in a Chinese laundry at 20 Twentieth avenue west.

E. C. Clow Improving.
E. C. Clow, a deputy in the office of Collector of Customs L. M. Willcuts, is reported to be improving after an operation performed at Rochester, Minn., last week.

Held to Grand Jury.
Louis W. Dietrich, arrested at Cloquet yesterday for stealing a watch and chain worth $110 from J. H. Dixon, clerk at the Spalding hotel, waived examination in police court this morning and was bound over to the next grand jury. His bail was fixed at $1,000. The watch was taken from Dixon's room at the Sixth Avenue hotel when he stepped outside for a few minutes. It was found on Dietrich when he was searched at Cloquet after being arrested for peddling cheap jewelry.

Will Speak in Finnish.
Rev. John Lindgren, until four years ago pastor of the Finnish Baptist church in this city, is here to attend the sessions of the conference of that church, which will begin this evening in West Duluth and and continue until and including Sunday. Rev Lindgren will preach in the Finnish language in the Lake avenue Bethel hall each evening from tonight till Sunday evening. The meetings will be open to all and will begin at 8 p. m. daily.

Forgery is Reported.
E. Abelson, a second-hand dealer on the Bowery, complained to the police that he had been defrauded out of $12.50 on a forged check yesterday afternoon. The paper was indorsed by J. C. Murray and purported to have been issued by F. C. Kelly. The police arrested one suspect this morning and are investigating the case.

Dr. James C. Anderson.
Notice. Dr. Anderson has removed his offices to suite 501, Alworth building.

ANIMALS' LOVE OF MUSIC.

Nashville Visitor: Many of the forest folk are very fond of music and seem to take as much pleasure in it as we do ourselves. A young bluejay at one time spent two months as a guest in my home. We all know what harsh voices the jays have. Did you ever hear a jay sing a sweet, tuneful little song. I wonder While the small jay lived with me it was my custom to practice singing for half an hour every morning. No sooner had I seated myself at the piano and struck a few chords than "J-J" hopped over the door sill and settled himself on the rung of a nearby chair.

He listened with rapt attention, and after a few days he tried a bit of song himself. At first I had to stop and laugh, his performance was so amusing, but after a few weeks' practice he could sing very sweetly—not exactly the tunes he heard, but little ones, that he made up as he went along. If any noises pleased him he began to sing. A heavy thunder shower or the whir of the sewing machine always moved him to express his delight in song.

More than 200 years ago a young violinist, Isidore Berthaume, was obliged to practice on his violin many hours daily. One day he saw a spider peeping at him from its crack in the wall. Soon it ventured forth, and every day it grew a little bolder, drawn irresistibly by the sweet sounds from Isidore's fiddle.

At last one day the boy had the great pleasure of seeing the spider take its place on his bow arm. Presently his stepmother, coming into the room and seeing the spider, killed it with a blow of her slipper. The death of his pet was such a blow to the boy that he fell fainting to the floor and was ill three months afterward.

When the great herds of cattle on the plains become restless the cowboys sing them to sleep, and often prevent a stampede in that way. They say that the steers are especially fond of "My Bonnie," "Lorena" and "The Cowboy's Lament."

Squirrels and mice are ardent music lovers, Dr. Chomet tells us that one day while strolling in the woods he sang an air from an Italian opera and chancing to look around he saw a number of squirrels all listening with deber light to his song. The next time you take a woodland ramble try singing a few songs, or if you play a flute or fiddle play a few tunes and see what effect it has upon your little forest friends.

DRINKING WITH MEALS.

Family Doctor: To drink with meals retards digestion, because it dilutes the digestive fluids and prevents quick chemical action on the foods. The secretions of the mouth, alkaline in nature, contain a ferment known as ptyalin, which has the power of converting starches into sugars. This power, however, depends upon two conditions: First, the thorough cooking, and of equal importance, thorough mastication, or mouth mixing.

As a rule a glass of cold water, not iced, may be taken slowly at the end of a meal. This seems to be the natural method of all animals; but if the gastric secretions are weak even this may retard digestion. Nothing will so quickly upset good digestion as the constant sipping of hot liquids with meals. Coffee or tea with a hearty dinner is deadly.

DAHLIAS AND POTATOES.

Dundee Advertiser: By a curious horticultural irony the dahlia, which is the popular idol of all our early autumn flower shows, has a dreadfully prosaic parentage. It has been developed from the Mexican tubers introduced about 120 years ago by the Swedish naturalist, Dr. Dahl, for the purely commercial purpose of supplementing the potato.

They did not "catch on," and the dahlia dish soon disappeared from British tables, but our gardeners at once perceived the great potentialities of the flower and proceeded to produce the double dahlia and other delightful floral fantasies. The tubers of the dahlia, too acrid for our insular taste, are still eaten in some parts of France.

SAYS COMET PASSED SUN

Western Astronomers Also Think Earth Is Near the Tail.

Washington Men Declare We Entered It This Morning.

Mount Wilson, Cal., May 19.—It was announced at the Carnegie observatory today that Halley's comet passed the sun on schedule time last evening, and the sun arose this morning ahead of the nucleus of the wanderer. The earth is close to the nearest wall of the tail, and likely to enter it any moment, according to an official statement.

Error in Calculations.

Washington, May 19.—The failure of the earth to pass through the tail of the comet, as was expected last night, is merely an error in theoretical calculations, say the astronomers at the United States naval observatory.

There is no doubt, however, they say, that the earth passed into a less dense portion of the tail at 7 o'clock this morning. The error in calculation was undoubtedly due, they think, to the variance of the degree of the curve of the tail from what they had estimated.

Makes Signed Statement.

Princeton, N. J., May 19.—Prof. Henry Norris Russell of the astronomical department of Princeton university, in a signed statement to the Associated Press, today declared that, basing his calculations on the width of the comet's tail early today as compared with previous mornings, the earth was not near enough to pass through the tail of the comet this morning, but very likely it will do so some time tonight.

Saw It in the East.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 19.—Halley's comet was visible in its usual eastern position this morning. Its enormous dimensions appeared fourfold greater than a week ago, the tail stretching over two-thirds of the firmament, although the head had not yet risen above the horizon. There were no unusual phenomena observed last night.

SHORT COVERING CAUSES STRENGTH

Coppers Advance Fractionally in Light Trading Market Here.

In a light trading market coppers were strong today, the market being oversold. There was very little buying from the public and the professional interest was light. Support after the opening was due to short covering and the pinnacle of the upturn jabbed a lot of stop-over orders that caused values to recede. The close was higher than the opening fractionally.

Isle Royale was the feature, selling to $24 and off to $23.25 after opening at $23.50. Important developments are being conducted at the property.

The part paid Scott was weak, being $2.50 bid. The loss was due to the forthcoming assessment of $1. Butte Balaklava sold at $12; Copper Queen at 31c; Giroux at $7.50 and $7.25; Greene at $8.37½; North Butte at $33.50; Red Warrior at $1.87½ to $1.93¾; Shattuck at $29.75 and $29.87½; Superior & Pittsburg at $12.12½; Butte & Superior at $1.81¼; Keating at $1.18¾; Amazon at $2.75. Trading here was broad and moderately heavy. Much of it was in the form of liquidation by tired holders.

Amalgamated sold at $70 to $70.87½ to $70.82½; Steel common at $82.75 to $83.25 to $83.12½; Butte Coalition sold at $20.50 to $21; Calumet & Arizona was traded in at $62 to $63; Giroux at $7.75 to $7.50; Greene at $8.50; North Butte at $33 to $33.50 to $33.37½.

BANKS OF FLOWERS FOR ROYAL FUNERAL.

Windsor, Eng., May 19.—The lawn adjoining St. George's chapel, a few yards from the tomb where the body of King Edward will be sepulchered tomorrow, presented today the appearance of a huge flower shop.

Tributes in every conceivable form, from a cross of orchids measuring 14 by 7 feet and sent by the sultan of Zanzibar to a tiny bunch of wild flowers from some workman's home, covered the place in a wonderful profusion of color.

The tribute of President Taft was a wreath of palm leafs and orchids entwined with an American flag of silk. Mr. Roosevelt sent a wreath of white orchids. There also were wreaths from the American embassy and Mrs. Reid, wife of the American ambassador.

TELLS ABOUT SUGAR FRAUDS

Tally Man From Customs Docks Identifies Secret Steel Spring.

New York, May 19.—Witnesses prepared to tell the detailed story of the alleged conspiracy in the American Sugar Refining company docks and offices were at the command of the government today when it continued its effort to connect Charles R. Heike, secretary of the company, with the scheme to defraud the government by under weighing.

Richard Parr, the government inspector who made the raid on the sugar docks in Williamsburg in 1907, when the fraudulent devices attached to the scales to induce underweighing were discovered, had not completed his testimony when court adjourned yesterday.

It is contended by the government that Heike and Ernest W. Gerbracht, superintendent of the Williamsburg refinery, although they were not physically present nor active participants in the cheating operations, were cognizant of them and abetted them by their acts. Four former employes of the company at the refinery are included in the charges and on trial with Heike and Gerbracht.

Sprung a Surprise.

Some of the testimony introduced today was sprung by Mr. Stimson as a surprise. Frederick Schwerdtfeger, a tally man employed by the American Sugar Refining company, was shown the secret steel spring in evidence.

"Did you ever see anything like this before?" asked Mr. Stimson.

"Yes," the witness replied, over the objection of the defense.

"Who had it?"

"We all had them," was the reply. Schwerdtfeger said he saw the steel wire with Kehoe, Boyle, Doyle and Coyle, Hennessey, Rudolph, Stein, Heffernan and Voelker.

Voelker is the only one connected with the present trial.

The witness testified that he had used the spring in 1907 and as far back as 1901. Before that a little bag with lead pellets in it was used, he said. He said Walker gave him a spring. Harry Walker was the assistant dock superintendent, now on trial.

OBITUARY

William Henry Harrison MacLean, 65 years old, a prominent business man, fell dead in Janesville, Wis., May 18, from hardening of the arteries.

Judge John S. Keyes of the Boston district court and a member of the Massachusetts delegation to the Chicago convention that nominated Lincoln in 1860, is dead in his 88th year.

Thomas William Silloway, an architect of much prominence is dead. He designed the Vermont capital and Buchtel college, Akron, Ohio. He was 81 years old.

MR. GRAYTOP'S WISH.

New York Sun: "Well, say! Do you know what strikes me this morning?" said Mr. Graytop. "It's the flight of time.

"Now there's a flying machine that never gets out of order, never anything the matter with it at all; never breaks a wing or drops a propellor or gets out of gasoline, just keeps a-plugging. It's the only real perpetual motion, and it never so much as heats a bearing, though it keeps all the time steadily speeding up.

"And do you know that that's a very curious thing about time — its apparent variations of speed? To different people it may seem to have different rates of speed, and to different people, according to their age or ent people, according to their age or to circumstances, it may have many different rates of speed all at the same time, or it may even seem to have different rates of speed to one person at the same time.

"To me it is galloping, fairly galloping, and the sound of its hoofbeats comes to me louder and louder this morning with thoughts of the declining year. Here I've hardly got used to writing 1909 yet, but before I know it I'll have to begin writing 1910. Humph! I wish I could do something to slow time down. It reminds me of a story.

"Years ago, a good many years, there was a man in New York who advertised a cure for something, I don't remember what, but it was some common affliction of mankind, and this cure he had discovered somewhere off in some faraway country, and now he wanted to communicate this to the world at large for the benefit of his fellowmen, and he advertised it and he used to start off his advertisement like this:

"'A retired physician whose sands of life have nearly run out ——' and then he used to go ahead and tell about his wonderful discovery and about how now he wanted to make it known to all; and a man out West who read this advertisement and whose sympathies had evidently been aroused by it for the old physician himself wrote to him to say that if he'd mix a little molasses with his sands they wouldn't run out so fast.

"I wish I knew just the right sort of molasses to mix with the sands of time."

IT TOOK THE OLD FELLOW ABACK.

There is a story about Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, that his friends and the Lambs' never tire of telling.

Mr. Dixey, while visiting Philadelphia one autumn, attended a very aristocratic Thanksgiving ball in Rittenhouse Square.

While supper was being served, Mr. Dixey ranged himself behind the supper table with the twelve or fifteen waiters busy there. Soon a mild-mannered old gentleman with white hair approached the actor, glass in hand.

"Would you mind filling my glass with champagne, please?" he said.

Mr. Dixey started, drew himself up, and said, with a look of horror:

"Certainly not, sir; certainly not. You have already had more than is good for you."

RUBBER TRADE GROWING.

Fur News: Importations of India rubber into the United States for the year 1909 exceed both in quantity and value those of any earlier year. During the ten months ended with October, 1909, the importations of india rubber (including "balate," gutta percha and "gutta joolatong") reached the record total of $62,000,000, exceeding by $6,000,000 the total for the entire calendar year 1906, the banner year in this feature of the import trade. For the single month of October the imports of india rubber were valued at over $8,000,000, and the total for 1909 was over $75,000,000, as against $16,500,000 in 1908, $54,000,000 in 1907 and $56,000,000 in 1906.

THE HUMBLE LIBRETTIST.

Forum: In the history of opera there are many curious anomalies; but perhaps the strangest is the role played by the librettist. For the most part obscure and unimportant and generally unremembered, his ranks having nevertheless been recruited from the ablest and most brilliant of men of letters. Among those who have undertaken the part are such unlikely names as: Voltaire, Goethe, Wieland, Addison and Fielding; while others of considerable poetic talent, as, for example: Metastasio, Calzabigi, Rinuccini, Bolto and Coppee, have tried their hand at libretto writing with assurance, giving it to the best efforts. And yet the successful librettists are few—the mere handful out of a harvest of three centuries.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

SURPRISE BOUQUETS.

Jewels Concealed Among Flowers—Expensive Holders.

Tit Bits: Bouquets, said a fashionable florist recently, "can be had at any price you like, and we have supplied them from 5s to £500. Of course, this last figure would not be in the cost of the flowers, but in the magnificent holders and the "concealed treasurers" which many a bouquet contains. A few days ago I received an order for a ten guinea bouquet and a note to the effect that the writer would call later with some little trinkets, which were to be "concealed" among the blossoms.

"We got up the bouquet all right, and just when it was finished a gentleman arrived, and, after admiring the beauty of the nosegay, "unburdened" himself of a number of small packets which, on being opened, revealed some magnificent specimens of jewelry. There were rings, bracelets, collars, etc., all very beautiful and costly. All these we "concealed" among the flowers, fastening them to the blossoms by invisible wire. When completed the bouquet showed no trace of the jewelry it contained, and certainly did not look worth the £600 which was the value the purchaser placed upon it. There was no particular romance attached to the present, as it was merely intended for the man's wife in celebration of the fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Most bouquets intended for popular actresses and singers now contain some "surprise" in the form of a piece of jewelry, and "professionals" have become "wise" to the fact and take the precaution of examining well any presentation bouquet before placing it in a vase. We make a very beautiful bouquet of orchids the other day for a prima donna who is well known at Covent Garden and one which, I have no doubt, gave considerable pleasure. There were no concealed jewels, but the holder was made of solid gold and encrusted with gems. This holder was fashioned in such a way that it could be utilized as a parasol or umbrella handle, and I believe it is now serving that purpose very successfully. Its intrinsic value was, I understand, £300.

Children love to get a bouquet with a "surprise" in it, and we make a large number for birthdays, confirmations etc., We can put up a very handsome child's bouquet containing a pretty ring bracelet or brooch for from £5 to £15, according to the value of the "surprise" This a charming way of presenting a birthday gift to a child, and is usually more appreciated than if the present were given enclosed in a box in the usual way. Of course, in some cases where the parents are very wealthy and see no harm in "spoiling" a child these "surprise" bouquets are as costly as those sometimes sent to adults. We have on several occasions made up a child's bouquet containing presents to the value of £400 to £500.

A couple of months ago we made up a curious bouquet, which, however, contained no blossoms, only foliage and bank notes. And when the nosegay was completed it looked for all the world like a bunch of arum lilies. The bank notes were twisted in form of paper bags and then wired, giving an effect which you can readily picture to yourself. There were twenty-five £20 notes and the bouquet was presented by a wealthy man to his favorite niece.

A pretty little bouquet was ordered the other day, and one that was by no means costly. It had the advantage however, of being unique. The flowers comprised orchids, roses, narcissi and maidenhair fern. In the center and concealed by the blossoms was a dainty little cage containing a singing canary. The little creature sang perpetually and when the bouquet was presented to a famous grand opera "star" it burst into a glorious "riot of sweet sounds" that charmed the recipient far more than a costly piece of jewelry would have done. We have made several such bouquets, and they have never failed to give a vast amount of pleasure.

BIRD PARADISE IN PACIFIC.

Los Angeles Times: To the northwest of the Hawaiian islands about an equal distance from the shores of Asia and America, there is a small group of islands and cliffs upon which hundreds of thousands of birds live. Every year they lay their eggs and raise their young. Among small strips of land and rock there is what might be called a veritable bird paradise. This is the island of Laysan.

Laysan measures about five and a half kilos by four kilos, and possesses no vegetation save a few thickets and occasional seaweed, and now and then a sickly little palm tree. Upon the banks are to be found large quantities of driftwood, brought from the shores of America by the currents.

But the number of birds that come there at the season of nesting exceeds the wildest imagination. There are places on the island where it would be impossible to put the foot without crushing a bird, a nest or an egg. Apparently, to the eye, there are hundreds of thousands of birds. There are albatross, white and brown, petrels and frigates in innumerable colonies, but distinct.

The albatross of Laysan are of two kinds, the white and the brown. The latter live chiefly in the southern part of the island. They are, moreover, fewer in number than their white cousins. The two kinds unite in colonies, which are always distinctly separate, however. Their nests are almost identical, simple little mounds of earth with a hole in the middle. The female here lays a solitary egg. The parents provide for the nourishment of the young until the latter is able to go to the sea and hunt for himself.

The albatross are good neighbors among themselves, but they show a decided repugnance to living in the vicinity of the frigates. These big birds, so remarkable for their swiftness in flight, are great gluttons. All those who travel in the South Seas know with what obstinacy they keep up with the speed of the vessel in hope of getting food.

The frigates are also to be found in prodigious numbers at Laysan and about the neighboring islets. The males, with their brilliantly colored plumage, are beautiful birds, and there is nothing more curious than to observe the haughty air which they assume on account of their beauty. The frigate is neither a born swimmer nor diver. This, however, is compensated for by his extraordinary power in flight.

The petrels are very numerous in Laysan. They show a preference for the crevices of the rocks during the day. They are in fact birds of night habits and avoid the bright lights. But when the tempest breaks forth and the wind rages they mingle their cries with the noise of the elements. The fish and other marine animals which at such times come to the surface, are chased by the petrels and seized from the crest of the waves. The frigates, who are watching the petrels in the chase, seize this moment for capturing their abandoned young. The cliton is among the remarkable kinds of sea gulls. Clions are noisy, sprawling, quarrelsome birds whose principal occupation is keeping up incessant cries to disturb the repose of the other occupants of the island.

EASTER IN JERUSALEM

Rev. M. S. Rice Writes of Strange Religious Ceremonies of Greek Church.

Wild Scene in Church of the Holy Sepulchre Described.

The second letter from Rev. M. S. Rice was received today by The Herald. It is dated at Jerusalem on May 1, and is as follows:

To the Editor of The Herald:

"We landed at Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem on a beautiful day, and after a stay over night and a short visit to the two most interesting places in the town, the the House of Simon the Towner, and the Tomb of Dorcas, left by the railway for Jerusalem. We were pulled through the Judaean mountains by an American locomotive. Several points of Old Testament interest were pointed out to us as we made the slow journey. The fertile plain of Sharon lying around Jaffa and west of the hills is beautifully cultivated and would be a rich country but for the appearance of the Turkish government, which exacts a tax of severe proportions. The country is very rich in oranges, olives and almonds. They also grow good crops of wheat and barley and all vegetables. Camels and oxen furnish the power for the plows, and with donkies bear the loads of the commerce. We passed through the district whereln is located the Old Testament story of Samson and at noon landed at the station outside the walls of the great old city of the Jews. We are fortunate in many ways at visiting the city now.

Have Bryan's Guide.

This is the season just after the departure of the great company of tourists, and guides and dragomen of the highest merit are easily procurable. We have Solem Mousa, the gentleman who was Mr. Bryan's guide during his famous tour, so you see we are well equipped.

This is the Easter season of the Greek church. It would be impossible to choose a more fortunate week to see Jerusalem at high flood of interest. The streets of the city are simply packed with the faithful pilgrims who have come up to their great shrine for their great festival. Many of them show the signs of severe travel and hardship on their journey. Many women have little children with them. They certainly must suffer very much from the attendant hardships of such a trip. They sit about in the streets and on walks utterly devoid of anything we would call comforts. Many of them choose favorable locations for the various services and stay right there regardless of the severe strain, sitting down on the flat rocks of the pavements. We went at once to the famous church of the Holy Sepulchre, the center of all interest during these holy services. This great old church is variously claimed by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox, Armenians and Copts, and in one place the clergy of the Anglican church are allowed to celebrate the Holy Eucharist. It is by no means certain that this is the correct site of the crucifixion and burial of Jesus, and it all depends upon the location of the second wall of the city, for Jesus was crucified outside the city walls and this place is inside the walls today with a clear dispute as to the location of the old walls. As for myself I very much prefer the location according to Jordan, north of the city as it now stands.

The thing most disappointing in the famous Church of the Sepulchre is the very close proximity of the many points of interest. They have numerous matters of interest all under the one roof. But be that as it may the devotion of these poor pilgrims is impressive because of the evident sincerity of their service. The door-posts of the great entrance are polished and kept white by the multitudes of devotees who kiss them as they enter. Immediately inside the door we stood before the Stone of Unction or Anointment, where the body of our Lord is supposed to have been laid for the anointment attendant upon burial. The people in a pouring stream were prostrating themselves before this stone and in deepest reverence kissing it and pressing their fired faces against it; they arose and, turning to the right crossed themselves before the supposed site of the crucifixion, just above them there. Here were burning a great number of lights and the people pressed anxiously about the sacred locations. Near by is a round decoration in the pavement marking the spot where Mary watched the Saviour and from which the women witnessed the anointing of the body. This seems to be a very sacred spot to the pilgrims, for the iron grating surrounding it has been stuck full of their small burning candles. The tomb of Jesus is very near, situated in the center of one of the main divisions of the church, the circular domed portion or western section.

Fought for Entrance.

The tomb was the center of interest the day we visited it, which was the Day of Crucifixion. The people literally fought for entrance into it. I have never witnessed anything like it. Women with little children, old men and women, in a scramble to get into the low mouth of the grave. I thought some of them would surely be crushed to death, as they pushed and pounded each other trying to force an entrance. Our dragoman was a powerful fellow and he made way for us through the crowd and literally held them back while we stooped down to enter the little door in the stone. The top of the sarcophagus is polished by the multitude of lips that for centuries have been pressed against. We looked on a moment in wonderment at the passionate devotion and then made our way through the fighting throng again. Near the tomb is a circular tiled spot marking the place where Mary first saw Jesus after the resurrection and thought Him to be the gardener. We entered the great rectangular chapel right before the tomb wher the Greek church was holding its special mass. The Patriarch of Jerusalem was in his high seat and the crowding people literally packed every available place in the building. There was no hush of service, but the constant mumble of the people and the clatter of the pilgrims without.

Center of the World.

In the main aisle stands a red stone post called the center of the world. It is supposed to mark the place where the dirt was taken from which Adam was made, and near by in another little chapel they have the tomb of Adam. Just why these things should be objects of worship I do not know, but the people were kissing the post and leaving on it offerings of candles, and before the tomb of Adam stood a Greek priest who anointed the pilgrims with holy water. Another point of interest in the church was down a broad flight of steps, the so-called Grotto of the Cross, where the cross of Jesus was said to have been formed. The great stone steps down into this chapel are worn almost through by the pressing feet of the multitude of centuries. Some steps have been patched by new blocks of stone. Beside this grotto are two altars, one for the beloved Empress Helena, who found the cross, and one for the penitent thief. They showed us also the Column of Derision, the Chapel of the Parting of the Raiment and the rock whereon Christ sat when they took His robe from Him, the Prison Place of Christ, where He was placed in stocks before the crucifixion. On the right of this altar are two round holes in the rock, said to be the stocks wherein the feet of Christ were placed. We saw also the graves of Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus, and the stone whereon John Baptist was beheaded.

One more modern object of interest I will mention is the Latin Sacristy, whereln we were shown by an attendant priest, who, with a great key, unlocked a huge drawer containing the sword, spurs and cross of Godfrey de Bauillon, things used in the ceremony of receiving knights into the Order of the Sepulchre. Although these relics are of doubtful genuineness, we took them in our hands and felt that they would have been good enough for the great old crusader to have used, anyhow, and for all we care they may be the genuine articles. They looked old enough. I need not mention more of the many objects of interest concentrated in this celebrated old church. They seem too choose together for me, and by being all under one great structure lose much of their anticipated attraction. The most interesting matter of the church by far to me was the sincere devotion of the poor pilgrims. They are doubtless very true in their worship, and their patient waiting at their sacred places seems never to weary.

Feast of Holy Fire.

On the morning of April 30 at 11 o'clock we went with the American consul as guests to the famous celebration of Holy Fire, the great feast of Saturday of holy week. The consul has a special gallery reserved for American visitors and we were fortunate thus to get a good view, a thing which many pilgrims had paid many, many hours of patient waiting on a hard stone pavement for. After crowding our way through the dense throng with the assistance of opened ways made by soldiers and guards we emerged from the dark stuffy passages into a place in a high hung gallery, which overlooked the holy sepulchre and commanded a splendid view of the vast throng in the rotunda of the sepulchre below. The tradition about this queerest of all feasts dates back long ago to a very holy and poor priest, who, having no candles and only crude earthen lamps burning with simple wicks in olive oil, and unable to light them was suddenly surprised as he stood beside the tomb to see them all lighted at once by holy fire from the grave. Ever since that day the custom has been observed. It has certainly degenerated, till now it has become a mad, brawling fight. The immediate circumstances attendant upon the coming of the fire consisted of a procession made about the tomb by the priests and patriarch of the Greek church. They marched three times around and on the third round were joined by the bishop of the Armenian church, who marching beside the patriarch approached the mouth of the tomb. The Armenian bishop remained in the outer enamber, only the Greek patriarch going within the inner chamber. The very wildest of confusion and expectation was upon the great packed throng. Ways of communication were kept open by strong, chosen men so the holy fire could be carried quickly to the people outside and in the back galleries. From windows on two sides of the tomb the fire was passed out in what looked like silver urns, and a regular fight ensued in an effort of the people to light their candles from it.

Soon the fire was flying everywhere from one to another and the vast throng became a mass of flaming torches. Many of the pilgrims carrying two and three bundles of fifteen or twenty candles each. These burned like huge torches. The people in the high galleries pulled up lights with long ropes and the smoke and heat in the place was well nugh unbearable. Soon the devout ones were seen bathing their faces in the flame, passing their faces actually hurriedly through the blaze, bathing their hands in it and rubbing them over the faces and necks, and then they would put out the light to carry their precious burdens home to their people as specially blessed candles.

Procession of Churches.

As this part of the ceremony quieted down and the lights went out, began the great procession of the churches, Greek, Copts, and Armenians. Around and around the spulchre they marched and in a perfect delirium the people tried to sing, I presume, but there was no tune discoverable and had there been, no two were at the same place in it at the same time. I could discover no plan or system to anything. Several times during the marches there were serious fights engaged in. In one of them the Turkish soldiers, a large company of them, had to enter. They literally pounded the mob into control using the butts of their rifles with freedom. I have never seen or heard of anything like this in all the religious customs I have been privileged to study or observe. I confess to a very great sense of shame when I remember that it is done under the name of Christian, while Mohammedan soldiers had to keep order. Verily the evangelization of the millions of Mohammedans will never be helped by such folly as was this, and I am very free to confess that while I could not but feel a sad respect for the ignorant, but devout pilgrim, who stood modestly through it all and went away cherishing his partially burned candle, I felt nothing but supreme disgust for the propagation of such a hideous custom under the name Christian.

Sleep on Pavement.

At night after the strenuous services of such a day I was not surprised in walking about in the great church to find the people utterly worn and weary. They were in large numbers prostrate on the hard stone pavements sound asleep. Many sat leaning against the walls. I saw many women with little children and some with tiny babies in their arms. Before the tomb stretching far back into the great chapel of the Greeks was a line of people four deep patiently taking their turn to enter the sacred little space and kiss the cracked slab that covers the grave. At 10 o'clock the patriarch was to again appear and after a service, begin another procession. It was to last for three or four hours and consisted of the people marching around and around the tomb. I did not care to wait for it, having seen enough procession for one day, I turned to my room about 10 o'clock to rest myself before the great processions of Easter Day.

Easter morning, May 1, dawned clear and bright. The city was early astir and it was only by the calendar that the fact of Sunday was discoverable here. Maybe a few more shops closed today than yesterday. But Saturday or Sunday neither have made any sacred impression on this mad city. We made our way again through and with great crowds of people to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre to witness the so-called great Easter procession. We attained a fortunate place for observation on the roof of a nearby house from which we could see into the great court before the doors of the church. The people were packed in there in a dense throng. Turkish soldiers in large numbers were among them, maintaining order and keeping a way open to the church for the parade to march along. We waited in the hot sun for more than an hour when amid a perfect din of all the bells in the great town the great procession arrived. I had really looked for something grand, but again as every other time there seemed to be little order. No one seemed to know for sure just what to do. They carried only a few symbolic standards, but the gorgeous robes of the priests made a fine contrast to the common clothes of the crowd. The Patriarch of Jerusalem came at the end of the line, and just before him marched a priest who was throwing from a large platter handfuls of torn flowers and leaves upon the people on either side of the way. The people scrambled eagerly for mere fragments of them and seemed to cherish them as they placed them in their bosoms for keeping. As the patriarch passed into the church was followed by a dense crowd trying to force its way into the already packed building, and we knew we had witnessed the entire celebration of Easter in Jerusalem by the Greek church."

PRESBYTERIANS OPEN SESSIONS

Exceptionally Large Attendance at Assembly in Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 19.—With an exceptionally large attendance of commissioners and visitors the 122nd general assembly of the Presbyterian church was formally opened today in Music hall on the Steel pier.

The convention was formally opened at 11 a. m., with the usual annual sermon by the retiring moderator, the Rev. James M. Barkley, D. D., of Detroit.

Southern Church Meeting.

Lewisburg, W. Va., May 19.—In an old stone church erected here in 1796 "By a Few Believers in God," so the cornerstone reads, the Presbyterian church in the United States convened today in its fiftieth general assembly.

More than 200 were present when Dr. W. E. Boggs of Atlanta, Ga., the moderator for the last assembly, called the organization to order. It was a historic gavel he wielded. It was made from a walnut tree that grew on the farm of Dr. John McElipenney, for sixty-two years pastor of the church in which the assembly was meeting.

The early hours of the service were consumed by addresses of welcome and responses, and the annual sermon by Dr. Boggs.

Cumberland Church in Session.

Dickson, Tenn., May 19.—The eighteenth general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church was convened here this morning in a tent. Delegates from eighteen states were present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS MEET

More Than Thirty-Five Hundred Delegates Attend Sessions at Washington.

Washington, May 19.—More than 3,000 delegates from the United States and Canada and 500 from other countries are in Washington to attend the world's sixth Sunday school convention, which will begin today.

At the opening session of the convention, planned to be the greatest gathering for the christianizing of humanity that the world ever has seen, Bishop Cranston of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Washington, will deliver the invocation and read from the scriptures.

The first sermon of the convention is to be delivered by Rev. F. B. Meyer of England, president of the World's Sunday School convention. Tonight President Taft will extend a welcome to the delegates.

LAYMEN'S QUESTION IS NOT SETTLED YET.

Asheville, N. C., May 19.—At the general conference of the Methodist-Episcopal churches of the South today the matter of increased representation of laymen in annual conference, which was acted upon yesterday, was reconsigned on the ground that the measure could not be changed without a two-thirds vote of this conference and a three-fourths vote of annual conferences. The old law pertaining to lay representation therefore still is in effect.

ECKMAN, N. D., ENGINE TENDER BADLY HURT.

Eckman, N. D., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—While attending to a gasoline engine in the Kolf feed mill Frank Holm fell in such a manner as to strike a shaft, cutting his forehead open. Seven stitches were required to close the wound. He was knocked unconscious and came near being tangled up in the revolving wheels.

President McVey's Inauguration.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—President Frank L. McVey of the North Dakota university will be formally inaugurated during the later part of September. A committee of the faculty has been named to care for the preliminary details. Several prominent men have been invited to attend.

Alderman Shartel stated that upon conference with the city comptroller he had been informed that the income for the fire department fund from the mortgage tax for the present year was in excess of $1,700, and stated that as no provision had been made for this receipt in figuring the expenses of the fire department at the time of making the tax levy, that the use of this money in addition to the money heretofore provided by the council would enable said department to give the men one day off in seven from July 1, 1910, during the balance of the year, and submitted the following resolution:
"Resolved, That in the opinion of this council the firemen should be granted one day off in seven commencing July 1, 1910, and that the sum of $2,000 appropriated to provide for the change of one day off in seven remain in the general fund until July 1, 1910.
Alderman Shartel moved the adoption of the resolution. After some discussion, with the consent of the mover of the resolution, action on the same was postponed for one week, and the committee on fire department was requested to confer with the Board of fire commissioners relative to the question under consideration.

By Alderman Hector:
Resolved, That in the opinion of this council the old Stewart livery barn located on the south side of Second street, between First and Second avenues west, is a public nuisance and a menace to the other property in said vicinity, and is unsightly and a drawback to the whole city, being located as it is in the vicinity of the public library, the high school, the Masonic temple, the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the St Louis county courthouse and numerous churches, on a street that is extensively used to show off the beauty and improvements in the city to visitors in the city, and we do hereby call upon the owner of said property to exercise his pride in the civic welfare of the city to the extent of removing this unsightly structure
Alderman Hector moved the adoption of the resolution.
Alderman Shartel moved to amend the resolution by adding thereto at the end thereof the following:
"Resolved further, That the owner of the old St. Luke's hospital building, located at Second avenue east and Fourth street, is also requested to cause the removal of said building."
The amendment was accepted by the mover of the resolution.
The question being upon the adoption of the resolution, it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

WHEAT FIRM AT THE CLOSE

Covering By Shorts Sends Price Up During the Last Hour.

Flax Is Erratic, Slumping at Opening, But Rallying Later.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—Wheat firmed slightly at the close on covering by shorts. May was strong, closing ⅞c up. July weakened after reaching ⅞c over yesterday, and closed on a parity with yesterday. September closed ¼c off. Sentiment in the different options was mixed, and the market was "sloppy."

May wheat opened late at $1.08½ and sold at $1.09, closing $1.09 bid. July opened at $1.08½ bid, sold at $1.08⅝, $1.08½-⅝, $1.08⅞, $1.08½, $1.09⅛, $1.08¾-⅞, and closed $1.08¾ bid. September opened $1.00⅛ asked, and sold at 99⅞c, $1.00⅜, $1.00⅛-¼, and closed $1.00 bid.

Flax was erratic, being sold down under heavy pressure early in the day but partially recovering under short covering. May opened with offers at $2.10, sold at $2.06, $2.04, $2.10 and off to $2.08 at the close. July sold at $1.98 and off 1c, then at $1.95, $1.98 and closed $1.98 bid. September sold at $1.69, $1.68, $1.69 and $1.70, closing $1.70 asked. October sold at $1.61 to $1.62.

Cash equalled July, oats closed ¼c off, barley and rye were unchanged, durum was ⅝c off.

Despite bearish conditions and the bearish attitude of the crowd wheat values failed to break today, although the market was soft and dull and values were inclined to sag. There was moderate hedging pressure. The market at present is guided chiefly by Chicago and that market is dominated by big holders in all of the principal deliveries. Strong arm work has kept the market from declining in the last few days and this element was at work today, although the pit crowd was disposed to sell. They feared, however, to take the bit without the sanction of a leader and the bears are leaderless. The bulls are well organized and have a large following. So long as the May option is closely tied up the market is a ticklish proposition and few people care to trifle with it. The bears are disposed to let the market take its natural course and they think it will arrive at an export basis.

Rains fell over the Northwest last night and a large portion of the central West, dissipating for some time the effect of the drought rumor as a market factor. The bulls brought out the Hessian fly report, but it failed to have much effect. The fly was reported in various portions of the west. The purpose has been to impress the trade with the statement that the fly is doing so much damage that the promise of the crop is now lower than when the government's report for May 1 was compiled.

A cable said that drought prevails in Australia, hindering the sowing of the wheat crop and diminishing the acreage. Other crop reports from foreign countries are favorable. Foreign markets closed lower and sentiment abroad is bearish. The decline abroad did not have any effect, as values were firmer immediately after the opening. The market seemed to be somewhat congested.

Primary receipts are running larger than last year. The demand for cash wheat is poor, although millers here are paying a slight premium for Minnesota No. 1 northern and ⅛@¼c over July for choice North Dakota wheat. No stuff was worked to Chicago today, so far as could be learned, and there was no export business. The market was dull and after the first hour there was little interest in it.

With the exception of the October option flax was weak. There was little of interest in the flax market. The crushers are willing for flax to come to Duluth and they apparently have sufficient supplies. Most traders think the old crop months must approach the distant options. Offerings today were well taken, mostly by shorts.

MARKET GOSSIP

Le Count to Barrell: "Crop improving every day. Soil is in perfect condition and all we need now is warm weather to bring out all there is in this crop. Just how much this crop will make is a matter of speculation by all the grain men. Of course what was winter killed and abandoned is gone, and the acreage has been greatly reduced—how much is also a matter of speculation. But I am satisfied the government report of 2,000,000 acres abandoned in Kansas is too high. I don't believe there is that great a loss. However, the balance of crop that is standing is coming good and we will see Kansas turn out more wheat this harvest than the people are looking for at present. I examined many fields today and saw much very fine wheat. Some fields, I think, will make thirty bu. The acreage has been cut down here to where the general results will be small. After I see the Southwest I will tell you how much wheat I think Kansas will raise."

Broomhall cabled: "Wheat opened weak under pressure of heavy offerings, a poor demand and induced by weakness in American cables yesterday, and decline in Buenos Ayres, and prices were ¾@⅞d lower. Following the opening there was further realizing and values lost an additional ⅛@¼d due to the cheap La Plata and Manitoba offerings and quiet demand for spot. During the morning the market recovered some from the extreme low point and the undertone showed steadiness. Support was induced by improved continental demand for cargoes about to arrive, and especially Australian, which were firmly held and the unfavorable weather in both Italy and Russia for growing crops. May was heavy all during the session. At midday the market was steady and ⅛d up from the bottom and ⅛@⅞d lower than yesterday.

"Corn neglected and unquoted.

"Russia: Latest advices from our agent reports that the weather in the southeast is dry and hot and this causes further apprehension of damage from drought. Weather Southwest continues favorable.

"Australia: Our agent reports that general usual rains have fallen throughout the province of Victoria, thus relieving the drought. In New South Wales there has been light general rains."

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "Chicago is to get a stock of wheat in the near future if shipments continue from Duluth and outside markets. Within a week 990,000 bu of Duluth wheat has arrived here, the steamship Admiral with 240,000 bu and the Wade with over 100,000 bu having arrived in the past twenty-four hours. Total charters for Duluth wheat so far have been 1,100,000 bu. Since last Thursday shipping orders have been given to load 150 cars of wheat for Eastern millers, of which 100 cars have already been loaded, leaving 50 to be loaded. Cash people say that the demand has fallen off, although the largest lot ever of wheat in the East has sold all his stock, disposing of 25,000 bu No. 1 northern to Eastern millers yesterday, and had bids for 50,000 bu more."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liberal Offerings Give Weak Tone to the Wheat Pit.

Chicago, May 19.—Liberal offerings gave a weak today tone to the wheat market. The fact that sales of flour were reported extremely small seemed to furnish renewed courage to the bears. So did news of rain northwest and west. Breaking of the drouth in Australia was also noted. Buying was of a scattered nature, and had no suggestion of aggressiveness. December wheat at 98⅛c was materially below any quotatio ntouched since trading began in the option this season. The market as a whole started unchanged to ⅛c down, with September at $1.00@⅛c down, with September at $1.00@1.00¾. That delivery sold at $1.00 even, a drop of ⅛c under last night's close, and reacted to $1.00¼@1.00⅜.

The market late in the day became firm on purchases by shorts. The close was steady with September at $1.00½, a net gain of ⅛c.

Good growing weather induced country selling of corn. The market opened unchanged to ¼c lower for September at 61⅞@62⅛c and continued within a narrow range.

Prices subsequently rallied a trifle in sympathy with wheat. The close was steady at 62c for September, a net decline of ⅛c.

Long oats came out quite freely today. September opened unchanged to ⅛c off at 38½@38⅝c and declined to 38⅜c.

Packers were sellers of provisions and especially lard. First quotations were 5@17½c down and further losses were scored.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Turns Firm After Moving in Narrow Range.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—During the late session wheat firmed up. The early market was in narrow range, July closed ¼@⅜c higher than yesterday. The elevator stocks decreased 575,000 bu for five days. Wheat and flour shipments, so far this week, are 378,003 bu in excess of the wheat receipts. Crop reports from both the winter and spring wheat states were favorable. The weather forecast is for rains and lower temperatures in the three Northwestern states. Minneapolis today received 157 cars of wheat against 159 a year ago; Duluth, 13 cars against 8 cars, and Winnipeg, 93 cars against 37 cars. May opened $1.07⅞; unchanged to ¼c lower for September at $1.08¼. July opened $1.07⅝; high, $1.08; low, $1.07⅛; closed, $1.07¾@1.07⅞. September opened 99⅛c; high, 99⅝@99½c; low, 98⅞c; closed, 99⅝@99¾c.

Cash wheat was strong and about steady. Demand continued in excess of the daily receipts, as was shown by the material decrease in elevator stocks. No. 1 northern today sold for 1@3½c above the July option. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.09@1.10¾; to arrive, $1.08¾@1.10¾; No. 2 northern, $1.07@1.08¾; to arrive, $1.06¾@1.08¾. No. 3 wheat, $1.04@1.06. No. 3 yellow corn, 58@58½c. No. 3 white oats, 39@40c. No. 2 rye, 70@73c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,495 tons. There was no quotable change in the market today. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $18.00@18.25.

Flour—Shipments so far this week 195,714 bbls, against 171,456 for the corresponding time last week and 168,696 a year ago. Demand continued fair to slow, and prices held firm. Shipments, 40,563 bbls. First patents in wood f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

Flax—Receipts, 9 cars, year ago 4; shipments, 2. Demand continued strong for spot at 3c under the Duluth May and to arrive at the even Duluth July price. Closing price, $2.05; to arrive, $1.95.

Barley — Receipts, 28 cars, year ago 29; shipments, 46. The barley market held about steady today. Demand continued strong for all grades. Prices held firm. Closing range, 53@61c.

Total balance in general fund, $81,524,265.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 19.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 and 7 points, a better response to the firm Liverpool cables, and reports of a better foreign trade demand being prevented by over-night selling orders and favorable weather reports. Trading was quite active early, and, after some hesitation, the market showed a tendency to do better on covering by recent sellers and some fresh buying for long account.

Spot closed quiet, 20 points decline; midland uplands, 15.20; middling gulf, 15.45. Sales, 11,600 bales.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: May, 14.93; June, 14.93; July, 14.98; August, 14.74; September, 13.59; October, 12.77; November, 12.67; December, 12.60; January, 12.55; March, 12.61.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Large Proportion of the Total Dealings Is in Reading.

Slight Reaction Occurs Near the Close, Which Is Heavy.

New York, May 19.—Execution of the sprinkling of buying orders when the stock market opened today moved prices upwards. The advance was partly in sympathy with the higher range of quotations in London. Canadian Pacific gained 2⅛ and Reading, Southern Pacific, Wabash preferred, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred, Amalgamated Copper and National Lead large fractions.

An extension of the opening advances carried a handful of the leading stocks up to a point or more above yesterday's closing, including Union Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. Buying then slackened, but the prices were well held.

A large proportion of the total dealings was in Reading, and that stock's advance was the principal influence in putting up prices elsewhere. The market was almost wholly in traders' hands. Reading's gain reached 2. St. Paul, New York Central, Rock Island, United States Steel, American Smelting, American Locomotive, Republic Steel and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred gained 1 to 1¼. Reading 2 and preferred, American Steel Foundries and Consolidated Gas 1½. Ontario & Western 2 and Federal Mining preferred 3. Bonds were irregular.

Although the undertone of the market continued strong, the demand was so scanty that the transactions during the noon hour barely reached 15,000 shares. Northern Pacific and Louisville & Nashville improved a point.

The market closed rather heavy. Postponement of the Chesapeake & Ohio dividend meeting made that stock heavy and caused a slight reaction. Baltimore & Ohio and American Cotton Oil rose 1 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1½.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper Johnson & Case.

THE GROCERYMAN.

Chicago News: "Where are you goin' Wednesday night, Evelina?" asked the grocery man when had aided the pretty cook to empty his basket on the kitchen table. "Anything special on your mind for then?"

The cook looked at him sharply to determine whether it was mere curiosity or a possible invitation that lay behind the question.

"What do you want to know for?" she demanded. "I should think it would keep you busy watching that big red-headed girl in the corner house, where you spend most of your mornings."

"Say, that ain't no way to talk," said the grocery man in pained tones. "I had a particular object in askin' you about Wednesday night. You know yourself that I always duck out of that corner house as quick as she'll let me. She's certainly the gabbiest girl on my route. No, I was just goin' to ask you to go to the movin' picture show with me Wednesday night."

The pretty cook tossed her head. "Moving picture show," she echoed. "Well, you've certainly got your nerve! In the first place where do you get your license to think I go anywhere with you? And in the second place what made you think I was waiting for somebody to take me to a moving picture show? When I go to the theater I generally manage to go with a gentleman who has the price of a regular theater downtown."

"They have a regular vaudeville show at this one around the corner," said the grocery man. "That's where I'm goin' to take you. It's just as good as down town, too. There was one fellow there this week that's immense—you ought to hear him. You'd die laughin'. He says his sister swallowed a spoon last week and now she can't stir."

The grocery man chuckled hopefully, but the pretty cook declined to participate in the joyous spirit of the occasion.

"Is that supposed to be a joke?" she demanded.

"Oh, yes, there was another good one there this week," went on the grocery man. "Lemme see, how did that one go? Oh, yes. This fellow was awfully skinny and his wife, doin' the act with him, was pretty fat, you know. So he says to her: 'How do you keep so fat?' She says: 'Well, I guess it's because I eat what's right.' Then she sizes him up and she says: 'What makes you so thin?' 'Well,' he says, 'I guess it's because I eat what's left.'"

The pretty cook tried to appear stoical, but the grocery man detected the traces of a smile on her face.

"I thought that one would land," he said. "Pretty good, ain't it? Well, how about it for Wednesday night? Pretty near the whole show is as good as them two I pulled on you. Suppose I drop around about 7. Will you be through your work then?"

The pretty cook paused to look him over. "Suppose you drop around to the rest of your customers that are waiting for that wagon load of groceries you've got out there in front," she suggested. "That might help some! I haven't heard anybody coaxing you to drop around here or bring your trunk when you come."

The grocery man looked pained and sighed heavily. "I suppose you're goin' to turn me down again," he observed. "Well, that's what I get for tryin' to be a good fellow. Here you are, slavin' your life away and when I try to cheer you up a little and offer to take you out for a good time you turn up your nose at me. That ain't fair, Evelina!"

"Ain't it?" repeated the pretty cook, brightly. "Well, it wouldn't be fair for me to let you spend a dime on me at the theater. You save up for a couple of months and when you get a few dimes ahead you can take that red-headed girl of yours to a regular show and make a big hit with her. Travel, now; I've got to get dinner."

THE BAD BILL.

"He reminds me"—Senator La Follette was condemning a corrupt politician who had come a cropper—"he reminds me of Harrison and his bad $5 note.

"Harrison hurried down to New York for the Hudson-Fulton celebration. He had in his vest pocket a bad $5 note, and one night after a banquet, getting out of a taxicab, he handed the driver this bad note by mistake. The driver gave him his change—a dolar bill—and drove off very hurriedly.

"Then Harrison became aware of what he had done, and he shouted to the man:

"'Hey, stop! That bill's bad!

KING'S BODY IS BORNE TO RESTING PLACE IN CHAPEL AT WINDSOR

Police and Soldiers Have to Fight Way Through London Crowd.

Theodore Roosevelt Is Center of Interest in the Funeral Train.

Service of Church of England Read Over Body of Monarch.

London, May 20.—The body of King Edward VII. was carried through the streets of the capital today in the presence of many hundred thousand subjects and with the kings of nine European nations, several future rulers, members of all the royal families of the world and a former president of the United States following the casket from Westminster hall to Paddington station.

The cortege moved through solid double lines of red-coated soldiers standing with rifles reversed and the regimental colors dipped to the ground.

Great Processional Spectacle.

At the railway station, the casket was placed in a funeral car and taken to Windsor, where, after the Church of England services had been conducted by the archbishop of Canterbury in St. George's chapel, it was entombed in the Albert memorial chapel adjoining.

No such processional spectacle had been witnessed in London since Queen Victoria's jubilee. The parade included many of the greatest men of the kingdom, with representatives of all arms

BARES MEANS OF CHEATING

Witness in Heike Trial Tells of Sugar Fraud Methods.

Steel Spring in Scales Preceded By Use of Bag of Lead.

New York, May 20.—Further important revelations by government witnesses were looked for today with the resumption of the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, on sugar underweighing conspiracy charges, following yesterday's sensational developments, which held a crowded court room spellbound and amazed everybody by the new features of the alleged widespread cheating conspiracy laid bare.

Counsel for the defendants, who include, besides Heike, five former employes of the company, were visibly taken aback by Schwerdtfeger's testimony as he related how each of several weighers he named had been supplied with a steel wire to be used as a spring for retarding the action of the scales and bringing the short weights through which the government was defrauded out of millions of dollars in duties.

Used Bag of Lead.

Schwerdtfeger, who was formerly a sugar company employe, testified that even before the wire spring was used to facilitate fraudulent weighing, a cloth bag with pieces of lead inside had been employed about the scales for a similar purpose.

The government contended that a written statement made by Schwerdtfeger in which he stated that he was not aware of the existence of any cheating devices was in part a forgery, the exoneration having been inserted in a space between his signature and the simple statement that he signed that he was formerly a sugar company employe.

The prosecution was believed to be ready today with more evidence to clinch that of Parr and Schwerdtfeger.

DR. BLESSING IS FOUND GUILTY

President of Pittsburg Council Convicted in Bribery Scandal.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 20.—After deliberating over eighteen hours, the jury in the case of Dr. F. C. Blessing, president of the common councils of Pittsburg, returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment today, shortly after court opened. The verdict asks the extreme leniency.

Dr. Blessing was tried on indictments charging conspiracy and bribery in connection with certain measures up for passage before the new municipal governors.

New Chippewa County Bank.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chippewa county's sixth banking institution has been organized for the business men of Rudyard. Officers have been elected as follows: President, N. L. Field; vice president, G. A. Potts; cashier, E. M. Batdorff. Mr. Field is Chippewa county's representative in the state legislature. The bank will open for business within a month.

PRESBYTERIANS GET TO WORK

Dr. Little Is Chosen Moderator of Assembly---Heresy Case to Come Up.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 20.—With all the opening formalities cleared away, the commissioners settled themselves to business today when Rev. Dr. Charles Little of Wabash, Ind., who was elected moderator late yesterday afternoon after a short, sharp contest, called the general assembly of the Presbyterian church to order in Music hall on the ocean end of the steel pier.

Following the opening devotional exercises, the annual reports of boards and papers from presbyteries were received, after which evangelistic services were held.

A matter of interest today was the committee selections which the moderator is to make. One of the most important of the committees to be named is the judicial committee, which has the handling of many important matters that come before the assembly.

Heresy Case to Come Up.

There is considerable speculation as to what will become of the New York heresy case. This case involves three students of Union Theological seminary who were licensed by the New York presbytery. A minority of the presbytery sent a protest to the New York synod, which took no action, and appeals were taken to the general assembly. The students involved, it is said, refused to accept among other things, the doctrine of the immaculate conception.

To Split-Log Drag Roads.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The roads into Fargo for ten miles in every direction are to be worked over with a split-log drag. This is a result of action taken by the Auto club. It is planned to do this after each rain all through the season.

MRS. LEDBETER WINS ON APPEAL

Mankato Woman Cannot Be Tried Again for Death of Husband.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an opinion filed by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court today, the court holds that Mrs. Emma Grace Ledbeter, once placed on trial for the murder of her husband, Holland J. Ledbeter of Mankato, and acquitted, cannot again be placed on trial for that alleged offense.

Holland J. Ledbeter was murdered May 4, 1909, and Mrs. Ledbeter was indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree. After she was acquitted it was sought to try her again on affidavits of prejudice on the part of the court in that he was remotely related to one of the attorneys for the defense.

Y. W. C. A. MEETING IN THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

EARTHQUAKE MAY BE IN COSTA RICA

Seismograph at Washington Records Disturbances Somewhere.

Washington, May 20.—An earthquake, estimated to be from 4,000 to 5,000 miles from Washington, was recorded by the seismograph at Georgetown university shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. Father Francis A. Tondorf, professor of astronomy, said he was inclined to believe that the disturbance was in the vicinity of Costa Rica, which only a few weeks ago was the scene of an appalling earthquake. The instruments, however, indicated that today's vibrations were only of moderate intensity. The movement lasted 14 minutes, and was mainly east and west.

FARMING BY ELECTRIC POWER IS LATEST.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass county is establishing an electric power plant at the county farm north of the city, and the owners of the Stern and the Yonkers' farms near there, are planning to purchase electric power to operate threshing machines and other farm machinery. It is estimated it can be secured more cheaply than gas, steam or horse power can be furnished. They are planning to use 40-horse power motors. If the plan is a success in the operation of the threshing machines it will be used for plowing.

Fargo United States Court.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Amidon will convene the petit jury term of the United States court here, May 24. There is a large civil and criminal calendar and the session will be prolonged if all cases are ready for trial. While Judge Amidon was engaged in preparing some decisions on cases in which he sat on the circuit court of appeals, Judge Page Morris of Duluth held the Bismarck petit jury term.

STATE LEADS IN THE FIRST ROUND OF ITS STANDARD OIL FIGHT

Law Against Discrimination in Prices Is Upheld at St. Paul.

Supreme Court Holds Statute Valid---Reverses Lower Court's Findings.

Order Ousting Standard Oil From Minnesota Will Be Sought.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state supreme court in an opinion by Justice O'Brien today declared valid the state law forbidding discrimination in charges for commodities sold throughout the state.

The decision came on an appeal by the state from the decision of the Ramsey county court in sustaining a demurrer of the Standard Oil company to the complaint of the State of Minnesota, in which it was charged that the Standard Oil company charged discriminatory prices for its product in places where it had no competition.

The state began an action to forfeit the charter of the company to do business in Minnesota, basing its action on alleged acts of discrimination.

Judge Bunn in the county district court held the law prohibiting discriminations unconstitutional. The supreme court today reversed this finding and upheld the law.

The case will now be tried on the facts and an injunction asked for.

COMET HIDES IN THE CLOUD

Yerkes Observatory Astronomers Are Left to Guess About Its Course.

Phenomenon of Spectrum on Sun's Face Raises New Puzzle.

Williams Bay, Wis., May 20.—Prof. F. B. Frost, in charge of the Yerkes observatory here, expects to make an observation of Halley's comet in the west some time shortly before night.

Although cloudy skies prevented the making of any positive observations early today, Prof. Frost and Prof. E. E. Barnard, the comet expert, agree that there will be no display of the comet's tail in the east tonight. The scientists say that the earth has either passed through the tail while clouds obscured the sky or that the tail curved to such an extent as to miss the earth entirely.

Tail Puzzle Unsolved.

The puzzle precipitated by the failure of the comet's tail to follow the head to the west, has not been cleared up by any data or observation secured here. Prof. Barnard is of the opinion that nothing definite on this point will be discovered for another twenty-four hours. Despite an apparent lack of any positive data or direct information bearing upon the action of the comet's tail, the scientists say they will be able to determine that point beyond any doubt within a comparatively short period of time.

NEGRO BEATS UP FOUR POLICEMEN

Then He Kicks Holes in Patrol Wagon and Tears Off the Roof.

Chicago, May 20.—A powerful negro, believed to be insane, "beat up" four policemen and wrecked a patrol wagon here today. The negro kicked Policeman O'Neill out of the door of the wagon, the door going with him, knocked the other three to the floor, broke all the windows, wrenched off the roof and kicked holes through the sides of the vehicle. Reinforcements were required to get the prisoner to jail.

BISHOP CORBETT TO BE GREETED

Crookston's Catholic Societies Will Royally Receive New Prelate.

Crookston, Minn., May 20.—(Special to the Herald.)—Bishop Timothy Corbett will arrive in Crookston from Duluth Thursday evening, either June 16 or 23, and will be met by all the Catholic societies, headed by the citizens' Band of Crookston. He will be escorted to St. Mary's church, where short services will be held.

A banquet will follow at the Auditorium at 8 o'clock, at which time a number of addresses of welcome will be made by prominent Catholics and non-Catholics. This function will be attended by all the priests in the diocese, as well as the prominent Catholics and non-Catholics.

On the Sunday following, at St. Mary's church, the formal installation services will be held under the direction of Archbishop Ireland and the bishops of Duluth and St. Cloud.

The reception on Thursday will be the greatest demonstration ever accorded any churchman who ever came to Crookston.

PETITIONS FOR EXTENSIONS

Water and Gas Department Will Do Much Work This Year.

At its meeting yesterday, the board of water and light commissioners received five petitions for extensions, making forty-six acted upon, by the board this spring. About forty more petitions are in circulation and they will be submitted so that the work can be done during the present season. The board has funds to care for its ordinary extensions, but none of the larger extensions planned will be made this year on account of the failure of the board to dispose of the 4 per cent bonds voted at the last city election.

The board will purchase from J. G. Berger a house and lot on Seventh street near the pumping station of the Middle system on Fifteenth avenue east or the engineer at the station. Bids were received yesterday for the erection of a home for the engineer on property owned by the board, but Mr. Berger's proposition was considered more satisfactory and was accepted.

COTTON KING WINS APPEAL

Theodore H. Price Cannot Be Tried in District of Columbia.

Washington, May 20.—Theodore H. Price of New York, the cotton king, indicted here for connection with the cotton leak scandal of 1908, cannot be prosecuted in the District of Columbia, according to a ruling of the supreme court of the District here today.

Price's plea that the grand jury which indicted him had a government employe upon it was sustained.

SCHOOL STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Frame Building at Alborn Is Destroyed By Flames.

Lightning struck the frame schoolhouse at Alborn on the Stonybrook road last night and the fire which followed completely destroyed the building. An effort was made to extinguish the flames, but they had gained headway in the frame structure before being discovered. Steps will immediately be taken to build a new school.

BALLINGER-PINCHOT CASE TO BE ARGUED NEXT WEEK

Submission of Evidence Is Completed in the Inquiry.

Approach of Hot Weather Is Factor in Hurrying the End.

Washington, May 20.—Submission of evidence in the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry before the congressional committee was completed at 12:10 today, and May 27 and 28 were set as the dates for oral argument of the two sides of the controversy. Each side will be given five hours, and within fifteen days will file a brief of its case.

The defense rested this morning.

Both sides agreed to conclude their cases as speedily as possible in furtherance of a general desire to end the investigation. Representative Madison, the "insurgent" member, may have accelerated their speed by his appeal during yesterday's session.

"It will soon be hot weather in Washington," said Mr. Madison, "and I weigh 250 pounds."

SIX DROWNED IN LAKE NIPIGON

Two Canadian Government Rangers Among Victims of Accident.

Winnipeg, Man., May 20.—The finding of an overturned canoe with a few personal effects in Lake Nipigon established the fact today that Roy McGillivray and George Grant of Port Arthur, government fire rangers, and four woodsmen whose names are not now known, were drowned.

The party started to cross the lake from Point Alexander, and it is believed that while out in the lake, which is twelve miles wide, McGillivray was overcome by an attack of epilepsy and overturned the canoe. McGillivray was subject to such attacks. Grant's family lives in Sault Ste. Marie.

Argue for Dr. Cleminson.

Chicago, May 20.—Arguments for a new trial for Dr. Haldane Cleminson, convicted of killing his wife, were begun here today before Judge McSurely.

TWO AERONAUTS FIGHTING DEATH IN LAKE MICHIGAN

TWO KILLED BY ELECTRIC WIRES

Current Cremates Bodies of Victims of Wreck in Illinois.

St. Louis, Mo., May 20.—Two men were killed, and their bodies cremated, by a current of electricity of 33,000 volts, when a northbound Peoria sleeper on the Illinois Traction system collided with a southbound electric freight train near Lovelace, Ill., at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

The dead:

J. E. BOBBETT, Staunton, Ill., motorman of the freight train.

CHARLES THOMPSON, East St. Louis, Ill., conductor of the freight train.

The overhead electric wires fell on the cars in the freight train, killing the trainmen and setting fire to the wreckage.

Balloon From St. Louis Is Sighted Passing Over Kenosha, Wis.

Life-Saving Crew Follows Across Water---Fog Prevents Rescue.

Racine, Wis., May 20.—Lost somewhere in a fog over Lake Michigan, the balloon Centennial and two men, one of them H. E. Honeywell, is the scene of a fight against death in the water.

Shortly after 7 o'clock this morning the balloon Centennial of St. Louis passed over Kenosha, Wis., containing the pilot, H. E. Honeywell, and one passenger. The balloon was about 100

CONVENTION OF SWEDISH SINGERS

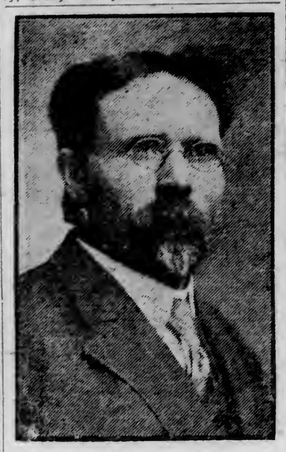
Duluth Man Is Delegate to National Gathering in New York.

Charles F. Forsell, president of the Western division of the American Union of Swedish Singers, will leave next Monday for New York to attend the convention of the American union. The union is divided into two divisions—Eastern and Western—and they meet alternately, separately and jointly, every two years. The meeting in



CHARLES F. FORSELL.

New York is to be a joint meeting of the two divisions.

At the last convention of the Western division, which was held in Moline, Ill., Mr. Forsell was elected president, and he was also instrumental in securing the next convention for Duluth in 1912.

Mr. Forsell is a member of the Svea Glee club of Duluth, and has taken an active part in its work since the organization about seventeen years ago. He has held various offices in the club, and has been its treasurer since 1903.

COURSE OF STUDY TO BE DISCUSSED

Committee on Schools to Formulate Report on Proposed Changes.

The members of the committee on schools of the board of education will meet at the high school tonight to discuss the proposed changes in the course of study for the Central high school. The committee will take up the draft of the proposed revised course submitted to the board at the last meeting, and will formulate a report to be submitted to the board at the next regular meeting.

At the last meeting of the board, the holding of a special meeting of the entire board to discuss the changes in the course of study was discussed, but the board members have since decided to leave the matter to the committee on schools, and the report of the committee will be taken up at the next meeting of the board.

The rewiring of the Central high school, in compliance with the request of the city electrical inspector submitted at the last meeting of the board, has not yet been definitely decided upon. It is certain that the building will be rewired, but the plan to be followed has not yet been adopted. Before the next meeting of the board, the members will look over some of the wiring contracts recently completed in the city, and will make up their minds as to what the high school should have.

Temporary changes have been made in the high school wiring, so as to correct some of the more glaring defects reported by the electrical inspector. There is believed to be no danger for the present on account of defective wiring, but the board will take the precaution of having the building rewired during the summer vacation.

MAROONED ON THE ROOF

Comet Gazers Spent an Unpleasant Hour in the Rain.

One of the oddities of Wednesday night, when pretty near all Duluth was comet gazing, was the experience of Jack Dalton, a Great Northern conductor, and a friend who were marooned in the rain on the roof of the St. Louis hotel. They stayed there in the pelting downpour for an hour.

In the evening a party of about a dozen persons went to the top of the building to see the comet. After a period of fruitless peering into the void, all of the party but Dalton and his friend left the roof. Without telling the two remaining sky gazers of the fact, they took with them the ladder which was the only means of ascent and descent.

Soon it began to rain. The rain was not a gentle patter, but a downpour. The two men on the roof hurried to the place where the ladder should have been but was not, and then, because they could not help it, they defied the rain. However, that did no good, so they made as much noise as they could and at last, after an hour of experience made themselves heard. Hotel employes rescued them.

Dalton's friends had failed to notify anyone of the presence on the roof and also had refrained from telling of the removal of the ladder.

At midnight Mr. Dalton went to his room to rest, bewailing the fact that he had no chance to see the comet. Some kind friend remembered his plaint and had him called at 2 a. m., the information being sent him that the comet was then visible.

Hastily jumping into his clothes, the Halley enthusiast rushed to the roof. But he couldn't see the comet.

WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

Next Sunday will be "world's Sunday school day," when in every civilized country identical opening exercises will be followed in the Sunday schools of Protestant churches affiliated with the World's Sunday School association.

The order of services for the opening exercises preceding the study of the regular lesson is issued by the executive committee of the association. Sixteen thousand copies of the program were printed for the Minnesota Sunday School association, which supplies them to the affiliated associations in the state. The supply has already been exhausted, a fact that indicates the scope of the movement.

The order of services follows:
Singing—"Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Responsive reading—Psalm 148.
Singing—"The Morning Light Is Breaking" .....
Leader and school in responsive reading of day's address.
Singing—"Jesus Shall Reign Wherever the Sun" .....

The World's Sixth Sunday School association convention will meet at Washington on that day.

BUSY DAY AT COURTHOUSE

Four Cases Going On With But Three Judges Present.

Closing Arguments Made Without the Presence of a Judge.

This morning was a busy one about the courtrooms on the fourth floor of the courthouse.

All four courtrooms were occupied and the three judges were extremely busy.

Of late the fourth floor has been very quiet and cases have been few and far between.

This morning it was different and there was an air of activity about the fourth floor.

Closing arguments were taking place in two rooms just opposite each other. In one there was a judge in the other there was not. There are but three judges while there were four cases.

Yesterday the case of a settler against the St. Louis Dam and Improvement company was postponed one day in order that one of the jurors might attend a funeral. Judge Dibell took up the case of Emelia Malburg against Christian Engle. The case was finished all but the closing arguments and the old case had to be taken up this morning. Attorneys Fryberger and Jaques adjourned with the jury to the room across the way where they had it out while the old case was continued before Judge Dibell.

Judge Cant was busy deciding whether Turkish rugs were antique or not, and Judge Ensign was listening to the case of G. H. Huseby against Shultz Brothers. It was a very interesting state of affairs and many people remarked on the sudden activity on the fourth floor.

The Malburg-Engle case has now gone to the jury. Emelia Malburg claims that Engle constructed a drain that was defective. The water flowed into her house and damaged it to the extent of $490 Engle says the house, which is located at Ninth street and Third avenue east, was in direct line with the water that usually flows down the hill in the spring of the year and disclaims any responsibility.

G. H. Huseby wants $1,214 from Shultz Brothers. He claims that they confiscated leather goods and tools belonging to him which were worth this amount.

MARINE NEWS

SIGNAL STATION AT GRAND MARAIS

Weather Flags to Be Hoisted for Benefit of Lake Captains.

So that the captains of vessels may know what sort of weather to expect, the United States government will erect a steel tower at Grand Marais, Minn., on which weather signals will be hoisted.

Each day or as many times a day as is necessary, the Duluth weather bureau will send messages concerning the weather to Grand Marais by wireless. The signals will then be raised and captains within distance will have only to cast their eyes in the direction of the north shore town.

The tower will be of sufficient height so that it can be seen for some distance and it is expected that the signals will prove of great benefit to those who sail the lakes.

JOURNEY HOME IS RESUMED

Old Man's Wealth Is Located and He Is Put on Train.

Christ Bataldin, the old man who was picked up in a fainting condition on First street Wednesday night by the police, was the happiest man in town last night when he was finally put on board the train for Lead, S. D., where his children are living. He had become exhausted searching for the hotel where he had registered and had fallen on the sidewalk.

He had $370 with him, which he had turned over to the hotelkeeper for safe keeping. Then he forgot completely the name and location of the hotel.

Jailer Louis Johnson left headquarters with him yesterday afternoon and they made a complete round of all hotels in the downtown district. They located Bataldin's wealth in the Palmer house, together with his grip and other belongings. Last night the police put him on the 8:55 Northern Pacific train for his home. He was returning from a visit to his brother in Norway.

INDIAN WIFE SHOWS HUSBAND NO MERCY.

"If I had my way I'd put you in jail, turn the key and then throw it in the lake," was all the sympathy Tom White got from his wife when he appeared to her in police court yesterday afternoon. She had him arrested for assaulting her and he tried to have her make it easy for him. White has been in police court before and he was informed that it would not do him any good to try to beg off. Mrs. White is a full-blooded Indian. White couldn't pay a fine of $15 and costs and went over the hill for ten days.

NEW MANAGER IS APPOINTED

S. E. Fisher Takes Charge of Zenith Telephone Company's Business.

S. E. Fisher of Detroit, Mich., has been appointed permanent manager of the Zenith Telephone company, succeeding D. M. Neill, who has been acting as temporary manager for the past two months. Mr. Fisher has already assumed his new duties.

At Detroit Mr. Fisher was also engaged in the telephone business and he comes well recommended for the position. Mr. Neill, who has been one of the directors of the local company since the Twin City independent interests secured control, left this afternoon for St. Paul.

Mr. Neill is the president of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs and resides at Red Wing.

STATE TO SELL FARMING LANDS

Sale of School Property Will Take Place at Courthouse Monday.

Monday, May 23, at the courthouse in Duluth, the annual state sale of school lands will be held. The sale will begin at 9 a. m.

There are 1,800 acres to be disposed of, and it is expected that State Auditor Iverson will be in the city to conduct the sale.

The acres to be sold are among the most fertile in St. Louis county. For the most part they are located in the very heart of the best agricultural region of the county.

The lands will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder. The terms are most liberal, so liberal in fact that almost anyone can make the first payment, which is only 15 per cent of the purchase price. The balance can run forty years at 4 per cent annual interest.

The title to all state land is perfect. By addressing Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor, St. Paul, Minn., an illustrated book on Minnesota lands will be mailed to any address.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

TEARS FAIL TO TOUCH COURT

Immigrant Gets Into Trouble and Trip to Canada Is Delayed.

George Westerburg, a six-foot immigrant from Holland, wept like a baby in police court this morning when he was fined $15 and costs or ten days in the county jail for assaulting S. B. Schaefer in the Union station yesterday afternoon.

Westerburg was one of a party of immigrants on their way to Winnipeg. He refused to pay 10 cents each for the checking of his grip and a heavy cane. Schaefer remonstrated with him and Westerburg struck him in the face, leaving a black optic, which was badly swollen this morning. Schaefer then grabbed a heavy club and hite the Hollander over the head, but scarcely raised a bump. Westerburg began to use his cane, putting several marks on Schaefer's body.

Westerburg offered to pay the dime when he got to the police station, but it was too late. His refusal cost him $17.50, which he couldn't pay. Whereupon he was given a ride to the county jail.

S. & B. Suit Stocks at HALF PRICE!

Custom made and Summer lines alone reserved.

The extraordinary interest manifested in the Half Price Suit Sale is, if any, intensified when women see the suits themselves.

SUITS AT $75.00—NOW.....$37.50
SUITS AT $60.00—NOW.....$30.00
SUITS AT $50.00—NOW.....$25.00
SUITS AT $42.50—NOW.....$21.25
SUITS AT $35.00—NOW.....$17.50
SUITS AT $29.50—NOW.....$14.75
SUITS AT $25.00—NOW.....$12.50

It is only when you realize the standing of this store with well-drest women in this community that the true economy of these halved prices is apparent.

The vast number of suits involved makes satisfactory choice a certainty. Not a suit but is worthy of the sign of Quality and Style, conferred by the S. & B. Co label.

Women are buying for future needs. The advantage of securing 2 suits from regular S. & B. Co. stocks for the price of one doesn't come every day.

A Host of Silk Dresses

That are smart, but simple withal for general and informal occasions. # NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Walter J. Smith of Eveleth was in St. Paul yesterday and visited the capitol. He is referred to in the Minneapolis Journal as "the late entry for state treasurer who has been setting such a runaway pace." The Journal continues: "He is sawing wood very industriously and thinks he has a good show. He modestly disclaims a place on the 'slate' which is attributed to him by the gossips during the last week or two. The opinion is very strong that he has been given the coveted place held for a while by Albert Kaiser of Bagley."

Smith and the Judgeships.

In this connection it is recalled that very recently a Ninth district paper called upon the Republicans of the state to be just to that district and let Kaiser have the nomination for treasurer without a fight, pleading that the Ninth has no state officer, while all the other congressional districts have one or more, including the justices of the supreme court in the tally. As a matter of fact, the justiceship held by Judge Lewis and generally charged against St. Louis county's political account is not generally admitted as a fair charge. Justice Lewis came to Duluth as a gubernatorial appointee to the district bench and then later elected to the supreme court.

Interesting developments are expected in the matter of nominations to the highest court. Judge James H. Quinn of Fairmont is likely to become a factor in the situation, and there is a probability that if he enters the field present expectations will fall of realization of several quarters. Judge Quinn is in the Second district and that district has no candidates for a place on the Republican ticket other than Governor Eberhart. His nomination is assured and the Second district Republicans are free to concentrate their attention on the business of landing the nomination for Judge Quinn. There is a definite movement reported to break the slate on the judgeship question, but Judge Quinn, while he has knowledge of this fact and is considering the proposition, has not said whether he will grasp the opportunity.

The Republicans of St. Louis county are back of Smith of Eveleth for treasurer, those of Ramsey county are working tooth and nail to put George F. Dix on the ticket for clerk of the supreme court, and Justice Jaggard of that county also will be a strong candidate for renomination to the bench. Judge D. F. Simpson of Hennepin county also is in the field. With all the conflicting influences at work, it seems quite within the range of reason that things will happen to the supreme court slate.

D. A. Stuart of Windom, who as representative from the Fourteenth district was one of the able members of the last legislature, had about decided not to run again this year, it is said, when suddenly the county optionists turned their guns on him and shelled his citadel a few times just to indicate that they wouldn't let him go back. Now Mr. Stuart is on the fence. He doesn't care particularly to return to the big white building in St. Paul, but if the optionists say much more about what they will let him do, he'll be in the fight, he says.

Alvah Eastman has surveyed the field of candidates for state offices, noting that no candidates for the Republican nominations for governor and United States senator have appeared. The list is given by congressional districts, as follows:

Republicans Who Ask Offices.

First district—George T. Simpson, attorney general; Peter J. Schwarg, Dodge Center, treasurer; O. K. Dahle, Houston county, clerk of supreme court; A. W. Thompson and S. G. Iverson, candidate for auditor; W. A. Nolan, Grand Meadow, lieutenant governor.

Second district—A. O. Eberhart, candidate for governor.

Third district—S. F. Staples, Dakota county, railroad commissioner; Dr. J. A. Gates, Kenyon, lieutenant governor; D. M. Neill, Red Wing, lieutenant governor; John Sheedy, Montgomery, state treasurer.

Fourth district—Moses E. Clapp of St. Paul, United States senator; E. A. Jaggard of St. Paul, justice of supreme court; George F. Dix of St. Paul, clerk of supreme court.

Fifth district—David F. Simpson of Minneapolis, justice of supreme court; James Ege of Minneapolis, secretary of state.

Sixth district—Cassius M. Sprague of Sauk Center, lieutenant governor; George E. Hanscom of Foley, state treasurer.

Seventh district—Calvin S. Brown of Morris, justice of supreme court; M. S. Carl, Clara City, state treasurer; Julius Schmal, Redwood Falls, secretary of state; S. Y. Gordon, Browns Valley, lieutenant governor.

Eighth district—I. A. Caswell, Anoka, clerk of supreme court; W. J. Smith, Eveleth, state treasurer; Judge C. L. Lewis, Duluth, justice of supreme court.

Ninth district—Albert Kaiser, Bagley, state treasurer; R. J. Wells, Breckenridge, state auditor; A. B. Cole, Fergus Falls, lieutenant governor; E. J. Herringer, Ada, state auditor.

Herringer of Ada for state auditor and Dahl of Houston county are new candidates, so far as any information of their aspirations may have reached this region.

Concerning the St. Cloud editor and his paper, the Hibbing Tribune says it would be a good thing if both of them would get out of the Republican party. The Tribune says it will support any good man the Republicans may nominate for governor, and asks: "Will Alvah and his Journal-Press do the same? Not on your life. Alvah and his paper will support no one but Rip Brower and the Democrats. He doesn't seem to to be able to nominate Ripley, and we refuse to stand for the Democrats."

Mankato's first primary election under the commission charter was characterised by a complete absence of excitement or flurry, the voters going quietly about the task of indicating their choice among the candidates. A. G. Meyer, the present executive, and Charles T. Taylor, a former Mankota mayor, were nominated for that office, and eight commissioner candidates, of whom four will be elected next Tuesday, when also it will be decided whether Meyer or Taylor shall preside over the commission. The former received 695 votes, Taylor 607 and the third candidate for nomination, F. M. Currier, also a former mayor, 385.

Mankato's Quiet Election.

But one of the present aldermen was renominated. There were twenty-five candidates in the field for places on the commission, and party politics was completely lost sight of in the campaign and election.

Some of the features of election day were the absence of candidates' carriages such as usually are impressed into service on such an occasion, the comparative scarcity of "election workers," and the lack of activity on the part of candidates, who simply turned pending questions over to the voters for decision when election day dawned.

The vote was light, and the quality of the vote is described as being high. There seems to be complete satisfaction in Mankato with the personnel of the dual ticket that will be submitted to the people next Tuesday.

Nothing that Judge Jaques has filed for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Eighth, the Anoka County Union predicts that "this move means a merry contest in the district."

* * *

There is danger that the judicial election in the Seventh district will not be the clean-cut, non-partisan contest that has been hoped for, and, to a considerable degree expected. Judge L. L. Baxter of Fergus Falls, a distinguished and venerable member of the Minnesota judiciary, will retire upon the expiration of his term Jan. 1 next. He is a Democrat. The other Seventh district judge is Myron D. Taylor of St. Cloud, a Republican. His term will expire two years hence.

"Non-Partisan" Hope Is Blasted.

For more than a score of years this division has obtained in the Seventh district, both parties being represented on the bench. When Judge Baxter made his not unexpected announcement that he would retire, the hope was generally expressed that there would be no disposition to bring on a partisan struggle for the place, but rather that it would be conceded to the Democrats.

It now seems, however, that it was a vain hope; three Republicans have come out as candidates for the place. They are George W. Peterson, Long Prairie; John W. Mason, Fergus Falls, and C. M. Johnson, Detroit. The Democratic candidate is C. A. Nye of Moorhead, of which city he is an old resident. He has served the people as city and county attorney and is qualified in every way to take a place on the bench.

Heretofore the Seventh district judges have come from St. Cloud and Fergus Falls, and Moorhead contends that it is time that city got some representation.

Some time ago it was said that M. C. Tifft, at present an official of the state insurance department and a Democrat, whose home has been at Long Prairie, where he practiced law, would be a candidate for the place Judge Baxter is to give up. Recently nothing has been heard of his proposed candidacy, but it is possible that he will get into the field.

FLICKERTAIL POLITICS

Charles B. Cheney, the well-known political writer on the staff of the Minneapolis Journal, recently invaded North Dakota and sent to his paper a series of news articles on the political situation in the state as he sized it up.

Some of the assertions he made in his articles apparently got under the skin of a Fargo paper, with the result the Fargo editor wrote some red-hot editorial roasts on Mr. Cheney. It is not pleasant to be accused of having been "fixed," as Mr. Cheney was, but there is some compensation for the sting when a writer is defended so gallantly as the Minneapolis man is by the Minot Optic, which says:

"The articles in the News have been the unfairest attacks upon a man who is known by hundreds of people throughout the Northwest to be honorable and trustworthy to a high degree. No man in the profession has a higher standing for integrity and fairness than Mr. Cheney. He has been a top-notcher in the field of political literature for many years and his very reputation has been built on honesty and square dealing. He has never been content with hearing one side of the question, but has always made it a set point to interview Democrats, insurgents and stalwarts alike before writing a line. Those who have ever met and talked with Mr. Cheney cannot be but impressed with his honesty, and the assertions made by the News that he is otherwise is certainly unfair to say the least."

The progressives scored a decisive victory at Bismarck Wednesday when the state supreme court handed down its decision in the senatorial filings case, completely discrediting the contention of Edward Engerud, stalwart candidate for senator, that he was privileged to file simply as a candidate for a seat in the senate without specifying whether he was a candidate for the long or the short term.

The litigation was begun by Thomas F. Marshall of Oakes, progressive candidate for the long term, who instituted mandamus proceedings to compel Secretary of State Blaisdell to refuse to accept Engerud's petition.

Secretary of State Blaisdell is a candidate for congress and is decidely in sympathy with the stalwart wing of the party.

"Get Burke's scalp!"

That's the slogan of North Dakota Republicans this year. The argument is made by Republican leaders that those members of the party who have voted for Burke in the past—and they are legion—have not gained by so doing, because they haven't got away with the bulk of the jobs. It seems to be the old cry of the party solidarity element—get the spoils; never mind governmental reforms.

Burke's prestige among the people is such that it is certain the old time machine leaders will exert every effort to discredit him, but it seems to be a hopeless task, from all accounts. Even the solidarity squad admits this by its very attitude of hopelessness while girding on the habiliments of warfare.

Elias H. Stenvick of Minot, chairman of the Ward county Democratic committee, is looming up as one of the most forceful and able leaders of his party in the state. His activities are not confined to Ward county, but all Northwest North Dakota feels his influences. He scares Republicans.

MAY EMPLOY A "DOG POLICEMAN"

Dog licenses have not been taken out in great numbers this year, with the result that a dog catcher may be started out any time.

Up to date Axel Zimmerman, deputy city clerk, has handed out tags for 534 dogs, whereas the total should be at least four times as many. Those who have particularly valuable dogs have been the first to take precautions to keep them. The owner of a dog which has not been licensed is liable to arrest, and the dog catcher can impound any dog that is not legally protected. If the animal is not claimed with the necessary fee he will kill it without much delay. The clerk suggests that as tomorrow is Saturday it would be a fine time for the "kids" to get busy if they do not want to take chances of losing their pets. All licenses are issued by the city clerk at the city hall.

DOCTOR ANSWERS HOLDER CHARGES

Tells About Hospital Where Labor Man Said Men Were Murdered.

Bethlehem, Pa., May 20.—It is an awful accusation and makes Mr. Holder liable to prosecution at my hands," said Dr. R. A. Dinan, a practicing physician of this place, who was formerly superintendent of the Bethlehem Steel company hospital, in answer to the charge of A. E. Holder, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor, before the senate committee at Washinton that the steel manufacturing concerns in Pennsylvania "are veritible slaughter houses."

Hospital Now Abandoned.

The hospital referred to by Mr. Holder has been abandoned nearly a year. It was in operation about one year and a half and Mr. Dinan was in charge of it nearly all of that time. The hospital was started shortly after Mr. Schwab began to spend millions in the erection of his Aucon plant.

The numerous injuries occuring to workmen employed in the construction operations and the fact that St. Luke's hospital was several miles away made it advisable to establish an emergency hospital. Mr. Dinan was placed in charge and he had several thousand cases ranging from minor injuries to those more serious. The mortality rate was about 1.7 per cent.

The steel company officials refuse to discuss Mr. Holder's charges.

LAW COURSE FOR "COPS"

Series of Lectures May Be Arranged for Police Officers.

A Simple Course of Instruction in the City Ordinances.

Duluth policemen will probably have the opportunity in the near future to listen to some law lectures which are expected to prove very beneficial, as the pedagogue would say.

Mayor M B. Cullum believes that it would be an excellent idea to have the city attorney or one of his assistants deliver a series of talks upon the city ordinances as they pertain to the duties of the "cops" and their superior officers.

It sometimes happens that the roundsman is put up a stump, by the unexpected dilemmas which encounter every roundsman in the course of his work. If he had some knowledge of the more common ordinances he would be able to smooth matters to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. As it is he sometimes makes arrests which are not warranted, putting the department in the wrong light and also calling upon his own head the displeasure of the heads of the department. In other cases he would know which charge to properly prefer. He naturally becomes acquainted with the more common of these, but when a case with which he is not familiar comes up he hardly knows where he is at. He feels that the man ought to be arrested but does not know whether he has sufficient authority or not under the statutes These cases are rare exceptions but they occasionally arise.

At other times there are technical violations of the ordinances which should be overlooked after the attention of the violator has been called to it so that he will not break it again. Some ordinances are very broad and cover numerous cases for which they were not intended. In some of these it would be better for all concerned if no arrests were made. Further respect for the police department would be engendered and the policemen and the public would get along with the least possible friction.

Mayor Cullum states that although Duluth has one of the best police forces of its size in the country, it can be improved in some respects. He thinks that such a series of lectures would bring its standard of efficiency up to the highest degree. He stated yesterday that he will go into the matter soon with a view to arranging such a series of "talks." They are not intended as "lectures" in the strict sense of the word, but merely as "getting together meetings" for the interests of all concerned.

It is suggested that a good time for the "talks" would be on the afternoons when the officers come uptown for the regular drill. They would require but little extra time and put the men to little or no additional trouble.

KING'S BODY IS BORNE TO RESTING PLACE IN CHAPEL AT WINDSOR

of the service and delegations from the most famous regiments of the empire, and representing groups of foreign armies and navies.

Behind the casket, upon which rested the imperial symbols, followed the late king's charger, while his favorite terrier was led by a Highland soldier just before the imperial ensign.

King George, Emperor William and several other members of royalty wore the uniforms of British generals.

Much Interest in Roosevelt.

No personage in the parade attracted greater interest than did Theodore Roosevelt, the special American ambassador, whose civilian clothes contrasted curiously with the gilded state coach in which he rode, with the white-wigged and silk-stockinged flunkies.

The representatives of the two great republics, the United States and France, were given a position at the rear of all the royalties and the prince of the pettiest of European states. Their carriage followed those carrying the royal ladies, and they were the last in the line of the representatives of foreign governments. The duke of Orleans was given precedence as the envoys of the French people.

The booming of minute guns and the tolling of bells accompanied the movement of the procession, while the bands in turn played "The Dead March" from "Saul" and "Chopin's Funeral March."

The morning was clear and a hot sun beat upon the great mass of humanity that lined the route of the procession. It is doubtful if so many people were ever before seen in London. At the Mall, in St. James street and at Hyde Park the throng almost overwhelmed the procession.

Had to Fight Way Through Crowd.

The police and soldiers had to fight to prevent the lines being swept away by the crush. There were many broken legs, and other injuries were received. Hundreds of persons fainted, among them many women who had been standing on the pavement for hours before the procession left Westminster hall.

King George, Queen Mother Alexandra and Princess Victoria entered Westminster hall before the procession started and spent some minutes before the casket. Emperor William, who was at the entrance as they appeared, dismounted, and, waiving the jackeys aside, opened the door of the queen mother's carriage, helped her out, and then kissed her upon the cheek.

The procession started from the hall at 9:50 o'clock just as the first minute gun boomed.

Followed Precedent of Victoria's Funeral

The precedent afforded by the funeral of Queen Victoria nine years ago was closely followed. The Oaken casket with the crown and cushion, regalia and insignia of the order of the Garter thereon, was borne on a gun carriage the same as was used at the funeral of the late queen.

The procession proceeded through Parliament street and White Hall. The public buildings were heavily draped with black and purple throughout the route.

Leaving the district of officialdom, the cortege passed through the Horse Guards' parade and thence along the Mall. The embassies and private residences, including those of several Americans on Carlton House terrace, overlooking the Mall, were heavily draped with mourning. The terrace was crowded with onlookers.

From the Mall the procession passed Marlborough house, emerging in St. James street, proceeded to Piccadilly and along that thoroughfare to Hyde Park corner, where it entered the park and passed along the popular drive to Marble Arch.

Stands Erected for Crowd.

Emerging form the park, the procession followed Edgeware road to Oxford and Cambridge terraces and turned up these wide thoroughfares, on either side of which, throughout the length of half a mile, were unbroken stretches of temporarily erected stands filled to their capacity with black-garbed humanity.

By arrangement between the Westminster city council and the Paddington borough council, the official signs of mourning along the route were uniform. Venetian masts with laurel wreaths at their tops had been erected at intervals. The public showed less unanimity in their selection of signs of grief.

The route was lined with thousands of troops, behind whom were massed countless thousands of people in deep black, on the pavements below, and the house fronts above, with the balconies, windows and roofs crowded.

Defensive Forces Represented.

Every branch of the defensive forces of the empire was represented in the long column which preceded the gun carriage. An officer of the headquarters staff, mounted, headed the procession with the bands of the household cavalry. The territorials and colonials came just behind the bands; then other voluntary corps, the Honorable Artillery company, officers of the Indian regiments in their picturesque uniforms and turbans, followed by detachments of infantry. Foot guards, royal engineers, garrison, field and horse artillery, cavalry of the line and regiments of household cavalry followed.

The royal marine infantry and artillery and naval representatives came next, with the military attaches of the foreign embassies; the officers of the headquarters staff of the army; the field marshalls, and massed bands playing solemn funeral marches. The great officers of the royal house of England were headed by the earl marshal, the duke of Norfolk, and followed by a non-commissioned officer of the household cavalry bearing the royal standard.

King George's Place.

The king rode between the German emperor and the duke of Connaught, all in brilliant uniforms and next in line was the group of rulers, heirs to the throne, princes of great states and special ambassadors.

The members of the royal houses on horseback followed in this order:

First file: The Duke of Connaught, King George, Emperor William.

Second file: King Haakon of Norway, King George of Greece, King Alfonso of Spain.

Third file: King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, King Frederick of Denmark, King Manuel of Portugal.

Fourth file: Prince Yussuf Zyyedin, the heir apparent of Turkey; King Albert of Belgium; Arch Duke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary.

Fifth file: Prince Sandanaru Fushimi of Japan; Grand Duke Michael of Russia; the Duke of Aosta, representing Italy; the Duke of Sparta, who is crown prince of Greece, and Crown Prince Ferdinand of Roumania.

Princes and Heirs.

Sixth file: Prince Henry of Prussia, representing the German navy; Prince Charles of Sweden, Prince Henry of Holland, the Duke of Saxé-Coburg-Gotha, crown prince of Montenegro, Crown Prince Alexander of Servia.

Seventh file: Prince Mohammed Ali, Said Pasha Zulfikar, Wasen Pasha of Egypt; the sultan of Zanzibar.

Then followed the princely and ducal representatives of a dozen German states, the members of the English royal family, the Duke d'Alencon and Prince Bovaradet of Siam.

The mounted group was followed by twelve state carriages. The first was occupied by the Queen Mother Alexandra, the Russian Dowager Empress Marie, the princess royal and the Princess Victoria.

The second carriage contained Queen Mary of England, Queen Maud of Norway, the duke of Cornwall, heir to the British throne, and Princess Mary.

The next four carriages carried royal ladies and ladies-in-waiting.

The seventh carriage carried Prince Tsai Tao of China and his suite.

Roosevelt in Eighth Carriage.

The eighth carriage was shared by Special American Ambassador Theodore Roosevelt, M. Pichon, French foreign minister, and Sanad Khan Montaz Es Sultaneh of Persia.

The ninth carriage was occupied by Lord Strathcona, lord high commissioner for Canada, Sir George Reid and William Paul Jones. The two carriages following carried persons in waiting.

Arriving at Paddington station, the casket was placed in the funeral car which carried the funeral party to Windsor. The royal salon was upholstered in purple and white silk, and a catafalque erected in the center supported the casket. The car was occupied by King George, Queen Mary, the Queen Mother Alexandra, eight other sovereigns and near relatives. Special trains followed with the high officials, foreign representatives and special envoys.

Body Received at Windsor.

Windsor, May 20.—It was a bitter winter day when the body of Queen Victoria was borne up the hill to the mediaeval chapel of St. George. Today the castle gates at Windsor opened to receive the casket of the seventh Edward with the green of an English spring on the trees and grass within the massive walls. The gray towers and battlements, over which the Union Jack was flying at half mast, never appeared more impressive.

In the street below was a seething mass of people in black with a lane kept open by two solid lines of soldiers for the cortege to pass through.

When the royal train arrived at the station the body of the monarch was again placed on a gun carriage and the procession was reformed with the addition of the ambassadors, ministers and other representatives of foreign states. Thus it passed through the purple-draped streets to the castle and into St. George's chapel.

Drawn by Bluejackets.

From the railway station to th chapel the gun carriage was drawn by a squad of bluejackets. Immediately behind walked the king, wearing the uniform of a general and the sash of the Garter, with the German emperor on his right and the late king's brother, the duke of Connaught, on his left.

The clergy who were to conduct the service were in the chapel when the cortege arrived. They were the archbishop of Canterbury, the archbishop of York, the bishops of Winchester and Oxford and the dean of Windsor, the three latter respectively the prelate, chancellor and the registrar of the Garter.

The casket was placed on a purple catafalque before the altar, which was fairly buried in floral pieces.

King George Chief Mourner.

As the minute guns boomed and bells tolled, the casket, borne on the shoulders of grenadier guards, was placed on the catafalque. The lord chamberlain and the lord steward took positions at the right of the catafalque.

King George as the chief mourner stood at the head of the casket. His majesty's bodyguard of gentlemen at arms stood at the left of the bier, with axes reversed. The funeral party filled the edifice and overflowed into the prince consort's chapel to the south.

There was a moment of profound silence when positions had been taken and then the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of Winchester advanced to the casket. The choir chanted "Man That Is Born of Woman" and the congregation recited the Lord's Prayer, the low rumble of many voices being accompanied with Gounod's music.

Church of England Service.

The service of the Church of England was followed throughout. Following the Lord's prayer the anthem, "How Blest Are They," was sung, after which the garter king-at-arms advanced to the altar and spoke:

"For as much as it hath pleased Almighty God to take out of this life unto His divine mercy the late most high, most mighty and most excellent monarch, Edward, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India and sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter, let us humbly beseech Almighty God to bless with long life, health and honor and all worldly happiness the most high, most mighty and most excellent monarch our sovereign lord, George, now by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India and sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter. God save the king!"

"God Save the King."

An answering murmur of "God save the king!" arose from the assemblage.

The archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the solemn benediction, after which, with the bishop of Winchester, he knelt before the altar in a moment of silent prayer.

As the clergy rose to their feet the hush was broken and the procession withdrew from the chapel in the order of its entrance. The body of Edward VII remained before the altar, later to find a permanent resting place in the royal tomb house, in Albert Memorial chapel.

SENATE O. K. ON JENKINS.

Washington, May 20.—The senate has confirmed the nomination of Former Congressman John J. Jenkins of Wisconsin to be United States district judge for the district of Porto Rico.

AFTER EIGHT-HOUR BILL.

Washington, May 20.—Insurgent Republicans in the house have inaugurated a movement designed to force the eight-hour labor bill out of the committee on labor, where it has been reposing since the beginning of the session. Representatives Kendall, Republican of Iowa introduced a resolution recalling the bill from committee. The resolution was referred to the committee on rules, of which representative Dalzell is chairman.

The bill provides that every government contract shall contain a provision that no person shall be permitted to work more than eight hours a day on such work. The measure has had a sorry time of it in congress, having been before it for nearly fifteen years.

Remaining Suits From the Great $14.98 Sale Close at $10.98

SATURDAY will witness new activities in Duluth shit circles. The sale of 396 Sample Suits from New York manufacturers, which we inaugurated a few days ago, struck terror to the hearts of the "high pricers," and within a week the town was full of suit sales.

The Glass Block has won a reputation for doing big things, and Duluth women did not hesitate long in taking advantage of the unparalleled bargains this sale afforded. In the days of tremendous selling which followed, the best values (many of which were up to $59) were selected. With the additions made from our regular stocks the style range is still quite varied, and there's not a garment in the lot worth less than $25. Saturday, as a further evidence of Glass Block bargain ability, we offer the remaining numbers at instead of $14.98—the greatly lowered price of

Greatest Medicine of the Age

MR. WALTER CLARK.

Mr. Walter Clark of Bluefield, W. Va., was laid up with lung trouble, unable to work for two months. He tried numerous medicines without results until he took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It completely cured him and now he is in perfect health.

"Having been afflicted with a serious case of lung trouble and used many remedies without result—in fact, I was unable to do any work whatever for two months—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended, and I commenced taking the same. I desire to state that I am entirely cured, having been pronounced so by my physician.

"This testimonial is conscientiously given and without any solicitation whatsoever. I consider this the greatest medicine of the present age."—Walter Clark, Bluefield, W. V. Mr. Clark is a member of the firm of Clark & Co., prominent grocers of Bluefield.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is a wonderful remedy in the treatment and cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and stomach and for all weakening and wasting conditions. It is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic. When taken at mealtime it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, hereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. This action upon the digestive process is of great importance, as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

If in need of advice write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet, containing rare common sense rules for health, which you cannot afford to be without, and some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of this medicine and who continue to enjoy good health. Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers or direct $1.00 a large bottle.

COL. CODY IS REMINISCENT

Saw "The Black Crook" First Time He Visited New York.

Going Back Soon to the West, His Ranches and Mines.

New York, May 20.—Col. Buffalo Bill Cody was still making speeches of farewell at the comet time Sunday morning, says the Sun. Sometimes down around the very smallest of the hours the colonel, in the vortex of a party he was then giving for a hundred or more friends in the Garden, acknowledged that the first thing he did on his first visit to New York was to hurry down Broadway to see "The Black Crook."

Maj. Burke, companion of Bill on the plains and his right hand man ever since the early days, nervously shifted a ham sandwich from hand to hand as his chief told of "The Black Crook" visit. Then as Bill started in to sketch some more of his early career in New York the major tugged at the colonel's coat sleeve and reminded the long-haired orator that scrubladies were present out in the lobby.

But Bill went on bravely until finally the major's sandwich had been twisted into a mere rag and was next to worthless. Doubtless you've heard of the major's first instruction to all new recruits of the organization.

"If at any time," the major begins as he lines up before his trembling bands of Indians, cowboys and veteran cavalrymen, "I hear you call this educational exhibition 'a show,' damme, I'll throw you out of the exhibition. If any of you call it the 'Bill show' I'll tear you limb from limb as I would a diamondback rattlesnake.

"This is the Buffalo Bill Educational Exhibition, remember. Personally, I should prefer to have it called the Bison William Educational Exposition. Buffalo as applied to the animal in question is a misnomer. The bison (from the Latin Bos or Bison Americanus) is a bovine ruminant, nearly related to the true ox but much fiercer—oh, much—having the withers higher than the hind quarters, consequently causing the hind quarters to sag much nearer the ground than any other portion of the ruminant. Bill is an overfamiliar abbreviation of William, and the animal is not related to either the yak or the digdig. Fall out."

Admiring Small Boys.

When Col. Cody finished up a lot of leavetaking "back stage" after the performance, friends surrounded him and led him toward the eats and drinks piled high just off the lobby. Late as it was there were a sufficient number of admiring small boys still waiting outside to form an overflow audience to the spread. Their noses were flattened against the window panes as they looked in round-eyed at the tall man in the tan raincoat who was emphasizing his speech by waving his sombrero.

"Before I say good by," began Col. Cody after he had been presented to everybody, "I want to thank sincerely the press not only of New York, but of the whole country for their years of kindness to me. Before I was 12 years old I accidentally killed an Indian—oh, quite accidentally. The newspapers seemed to think I had done something wonderful and I was a proud boy when I read about myself.

"They've talked about me several times since then, you know (laughter) and always pleasantly — except when they had me dead. The papers have been trying to kill me off for years. I have a scrap book filled with excellent obituary notices of myself. (laughter.)

"One day out on the plains Gen. Sheridan asked me whether I had ever been East. "I told him proudly that I had; that I'd spent more than a week in Omaha. (laughter.)

"But why don't you make a visit to New York?" urged the general. I told him that if the rest of the East were like Omaha I had had enough of it. But finally the elder August Belmont, Larry and Leonard Jerome, James Gordon Bennett and others I had met in the West invited me here and I came; making sure I had a return ticket.

"I went to see 'The Black Crook' as soon as I landed, and believe me it was some show. They had things to drink on sale in the theater also, and—well, in those days I took a drink occasionally. It was a big night, a large one," remarked the colonel with a reminiscent smile and almost as if speaking to himself.

Too Early for Breakfast.

"That night," the Colonel continued, "I ran into some friends and they invited me to have breakfast with them the next morning. Their clothes impressed me, so I fixed myself up in the best I had in those days and started out to attend the breakfast. I started out for it at 7 o'clock in the morning. The breakfast never even started until 1 o'clock p. m.

"August Belmont invited me that day to come to his house the next day to dine. This time I made sure and didn't dress for the dinner until about 11 o'clock in the morning. I reported to Mr. Belmont's house for dinner about 12:30 o'clock—and dinner didn't come off until 7 o'clock in the evening."

The colonel here told of drifting back to the West again to become a scout for Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Miles, of his buffalo hunting to supply the army and the settlers with fresh meat and of his Indian fighting. Just the remark that he "took part in Indian fights" was all he had to say about that part of his career.

"I've lived," cried the colonel, enthusiastically, "And now what money I may have—all that I haven't given away or spent over the bar—I'm going to spend on the West. I've been a showman for twenty-seven years, and in that time I've missed only nine performances. In the West I have mining property and ranches, but I've stuck to the show business so steadily that I never yet have had a chance to see my ranches in bloom. So do you blame me if I want to get back there for two or three weeks anyway?

"The West fifty years ago was supposed to be a barren plain, fit only for Indians and coyotes. The towns there may be comparatively small, but they're growing like mushrooms; and, anyway, as somebody has said before me, I'd rather be a big man in a small town than a small man in a metropolis. Come on out and see me—the latchstring will always be out at the mouth of the canon. (Applause.) And you won't find me sitting in a rocking chair. I'll be in the saddle for a long time to come yet."

The colonel concluded with his thanks for the way New York has received the exhibition. The engagement just closed, he said, has been the most successful he ever has played at the Garden.

Maj. Burke Talks.

Maj. Burke was introduced by Mr. Allen, and the major told what he thinks of Col. Cody and the colonel's partner, Maj. Gordon W. Lillie, better known as Pawnee Bill. The major told his audience of Gen. Sheridan's opinion of Buffalo Bill as a scout.

"I sleep better when Bill is in command,' said the general. 'Only the other night,' he continued, 'I heard them talking around here of what great scouts Jim this and Jack that were and how bravely they had all gone to their deaths. That was the main trouble with all the scouts they were praising,' the general said. 'They got scalped and lost their commands. Bill's got his command yet. A dead scout isn't worth a damn.'"

Maj. Lillie made a brief speech, and there were talks between sandwiches and salads by Whiting Allen and Louis L. Cooke, who has been associated with Buffalo Bill almost as long as Maj. Burke.

"Let's go out and see the comet," some one suggested, by way of making a movement to adjourn. "It's Sunday morning—and the rent of this Garden, you know, is $1,000 a day.

TOOK 20,000 MILE JOURNEY

Advance Agent of Duluth Production Had Nine Months' Tour.

Lee Parvin who has just returned to Duluth from a 20,000-mile trip, covering a period of nine months, as advance agent for "In Wyoming" a Duluth product.

"I should imagine that the residents of this city might feel just a little proud to know that a play owned by two well known Duluth men, Harry Pierce and James Morrissey of the Lyceum Theater, and written by Willard Mack the well-known Duluth stock actor, and with a complete scenic studios of this city, has just completed a transcontinental trip covering some 20,000 odd miles, having appeared in every important city and one night stand in the United States and Canada," said Mr. Parvin at the St. Louis.

Among the members of the company were two loyal Duluthians, Frank Patton and William Longstreet, who whether they were in Medicine Hat, New Orleans or Boston, were strenuously boosting Duluth first, last and all the time. It may also be interesting to know that in the course of my many wanderings I have met hundreds of managers, advance men and actors who have played this city in the past, one and all of whom express an especial fondness for Duluth, first because they seem to feel sure of a hearty welcome from the management of the Lyceum Theater, second because of the exceptional courtesy extended by the local press; third because of the excellent hotel accomodations to be had here, and last because local theater-goers while supposed to be critical are quick to show their appreciation by patronizing an attraction of true merit.

I suppose it is but natural for each one of us to consider the other fellows' job the easiest. For instance I have always thought the man seven days in advance had the whole responsibility and worry of the attraction on his shoulders, but alas I found out differently. True when an agent after an all-night ride in an overheated car—two or three hours late—no breakfast—trouble with the baggage man—your mail opened by mistake—billing gone astray etc., it is sometimes hard to smile. But when during the last two weeks of our season I acted as manager back with the show, I found out that the manager has his troubles as well. The leading man doesn't want anyone to whisper or even breathe while he is on the stage; the leading woman insists on a real tiger skin for her dressing room, the property man will curse you behind your back because you balk at a beautiful upholstered lounge when the scene is laid in a cabin on a Wyoming prairie. The electrician says you are a poor manager because you want red lamps in the first border (electricians think blue will do for a fire light effect just as well) and so on until I have arrived at the conclusion that the way of the company manager as well as the advance representatives are both equally hard. I am not at all sorry that it is all over for one season at least and that I am once more back in the good old city of Duluth."

LOANS PROVIDED FRENCH FARMERS

Co-Operative Bank Scheme Planned to Check Exodus From Country.

Paris, May 20.—During the last few days of the legislature a law was voted which, though it attracted little attention, is of very great importance, marking, as it does, the final stage in the development of French agricultural credit.

The principal co-operation has, perhaps, been more perfectly understood by French agriculturists than by any other class of society, and from the middle ages they have realized the importance of forming co-operative associations. The work, however, of organizing that credit, which is particularly important to those who live on the produce of the soil, may be said to begin with the law of 1894, relative to societies of agricultural credit, authorizing the formation of such association with the purpose "of facilitating and guaranteeing the operations connected with agricultural production."

In 1899 these societies were provided with definite resources. On the occasion of the renewal of the privilege of the Bank of France it was stipulated that the bank should make to the state an advance of $8,000,000, free of interest, and that this sum, together with a yearly royalty due to the treasury, should be advanced, free of interest, to the societies of agricultural credit instituted for that purpose. These banks were authorized to give short-term loans to individual members of agricultural associations, and several years later to grant long-term loans to the agricultural co-operative societies for not more than twenty-five years. The present law completes the organization by authorizing long-term loans to individuals to facilitate the acquisition, filling up and improvement of small agricultural holdings.

Under the new law the local agricultural banks may advance loans not exceeding $1,600 for various agricultural requirements, such as the reconstruction of a farm building or the purchase of a field for a period not exceeding fifteen years. The local organization has shown itself in the past so elastic and so effective that it has been considered unnecessary to introduce into the law very strict regulations or detailed arrangements, which would necessarily ignore varying local conditions. Thus, no hard and fast rate of interest is laid down, and the local banks will be left with a very free hand as to the exact extension of the provisions of the law. A credit account will be opened in the name of the borrower on the security of a mortgage, and in every case special care will be taken to advance the money in installments in proportion to the requirements of the moment as the work for which the loan is granted proceeds. Special precautions are taken to insure that good security is given.

COMMUNE HAS ONE VOTER.

Causes Amusement When the Election Returns Reach Paris.

Paris, May 20.—Some amusement was felt in Paris when the lists of the provincial elections came in, for the fact was discovered that in the neighborhood of Mont Bellard there is a commune in which there was only one elector.

The commune is called Blanchefontaine. It consists of twenty inhabitants but only one of them has the suffrage. He did his duty like a man, and the list for Blanchefontaine read: "Electors on the books, one, voters, one; Admiral Rennier (the elected deputy), one."

S. S. S. DRIVES OUT BLOOD HUMORS

When we see persons with soft, smooth skins we know at once that their blood is pure and healthy, that the cuticle is being sufficiently and properly nourished by the circulation. But when the blood becomes infected with any unhealthy humor the effect is shown by eruptions, boils, pimples, or some more definitely marked skin disease such as Eczema, Acne, Tetter, etc. Humors get into the blood usually, because of a sluggish condition of those members whose duty it is to collect and carry off the waste and refuse matter of the system. This unhealthy matter, left in the system, sours and ferments and is soon absorbed into the circulation, filling the blood with an irritating humor. Remove these humors and the skin disease can not exist, because its very cause is then destroyed. S. S. S. cures all humors of the blood because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It cleanses the blood of every particle of unhealthy matter, enriches the circulation and causes it to supply healthful nourishment to all skin tissues. Then the skin becomes soft and clear. Local applications can not cure, they can only soothe by temporarily reducing the inammation, but the cause remains in the circulation and the eruption will be no nearer well when the external treatment is left off. The humors must be removed and nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. Pure blood makes healthy skins and S. S. S. makes pure blood. Book on Skin Diseases free to all who write and request it.

GREAT SALE OF FINE TAILORING

JUST TO KEEP MY TAILORS BUSY, BEGINS SATURDAY!

Most Remarkable Sale of Fine Tailoring Ever Held in the Northwest Opens Here Saturday Morning, May 21st.

TWO REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND THIS BIG SALE

1st. Keep my tailors busy and assure them of wages thro the summer months.

2nd. Save money at my expense on fine tailoring.

Suit Made to Order $14.00

Just to Keep My Tailors Busy.....

Pick out the goods you want from among thousands of pieces of fancy spring and staple medium weight woolens. No matter what you can buy a suit for elsewhere, I will give you a better bargain. Satisfaction and perfect fit guaranteed or no pay.

123 West Superior St. HARRY MITCHELL 123 West Superior St.

I always do as I say I will do. I told my tailors when I hired them, that I would give them work all summer. Now, I intend to keep my word with them. No man likes to discharge good men if he can help it. Good tailors are hard to find.

Here is the evidence that I have cut my prices so low that no matter what a man can buy clothes for elsewhere, not even counting out hand-me-down store prices, I don't have to tell you that I can give you a better bargain.

I expect a tremendous business during this sale. I have a big force of tailors, and I know I can do the best work and give perfect satisfaction to any man. You will save a lot of money at this price. If I didn't feel obliged to keep my tailors busy, and if I didn't have to unload, I would never make such a low price.

At $14 I will make a suit to order that I regularly charge from $20 to $35 for—equal to any other tailor's suit at $35 to $50.

Be on hand early Saturday morning and get your order in so as to avoid the Saturday afternoon and evening crowds.

Yours truly,

EQUAL TO FOUR CENT DYNAMITE

New Brand of Powder Should Help in Clearing Land.

"Give the farmers cheap explosives and the clearing of land and consequent development of the agricultural resourses of this northern country will come about so rapidly that it will be astonishing," said Frank L. Scott of Portland, Or., at the McKay.

Mr. Scott has been traveling through Northern Minnesota for some time past and is now at the McKay arranging to work from this city as his headquarters. He is agent for a newly invented oxygen powder. According to him, the new explosive will revolutionize the clearing of land, put mine accidents at a minimum, and make dynamite a back number.

The oxygen powder is innocent looking enough. Mr. Scott says it can be spread all over the floor or anywhere else without danger of explosion, but confined and properly packed, it has great power, greater than gun cotton.

"The cost of clearing away stumps has always been a handicap to agricultural development in districts which were heavily wooded and I believe we have removed that obstacle," said Mr. Scott. "Oxygen powder equivalent to 4-cent dynamite, and you know what the settlers in this district could do with 4-cent dynamite. They would clear just four times as much land, for to the struggling settler, the amount of land he can clear is measured by the amount of money he can spend for explosives. Once the merit of the new method is demonstrated, the farmers and settlers will turn to it and results will soon be noticeable.

BIG SCARE RESULTED.

Farmer Told Wife There Was Leprosy in "Rats."

Princeton, Ind., May 20.—Because a farmer told his wife there was leprosy in hair "rats," when she asked him to buy one for her in Princeton, this city is threatened with ostracism by the people of the rural districts. The whole country was flooded with the story that there were a number of leprosy cases here. Last Saturday only the bolder farmers came to town from some of the districts to do their weekly trading, and many of these ventured in only over the tearful protests of wives.

There is, of course, absolutely no ground for the report.

LOVE NOTE OPENED

And Now the Pittsburg Husband Has Sued for Divorce.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 20.—What promises to be one of the most sensational divorce suits in years at Pittsburg has just been started. It developed that Charles M. Williams, a rich oil producer and member of the firm of Williams & Birch, has entered suit for divorce from Delphine Williams, naming Dr. William Sheppard, a Philadelphia osteopath, as co-respondent.

Williams sets forth that his wife, whom he married six years ago, and who drove one of the smartest autos in the Pittsburg district, insisted on going to a ball game in Pittsburg May 2 and taking an auto load of her friends. Williams says he was ill and remained at home.

A mail man delivered letters at the Williams home, near Carnegie, while Mrs. Williams was at the game, and there were in the mail letters for Mrs. Williams, it is charged, from the Philadelphia physician.

Williams says he opened one of the letters, thinking it was a bill from the family physician, but found inside some endearing terms which caused him to phone for an attorney and the suit was filed a few days later.

When confronted with the contents of the loving letter the wife is said to have blamed her husband for introducing her to the physician. Mrs. Williams is not now at home. Her husband says she is in Philadelphia with Dr. Sheppard.

He is president of the Bank of Saginaw and heads many commercial and industrial enterprises.

SUIT FOR BODY

Of "Lord Douglas" Brought By Mrs. Watson of Hot Springs.

Asheville, N. C., May 20.—Because local undertakers refused to deliver to her the body of her alleged brother-in-law, "Lord Percival Cholto Douglas," Mrs. Watson of Hot Springs, Ark., has employed attorneys to press a suit for possession.

"Lord" Douglas, claiming descent from the historical family of Scotland, died here five years ago, and, although all parts of the globe have been searched for relatives, no one has produced sufficient claim to the body.

It is a perfect mummy, and occupies a special corner at the undertaking shop. It is one of Asheville's curios and visited by thousands of people yearly. Lord Douglas, appeared very wealthy until his death, when no money could be found. Many attractive offers for it as a curio for circuses have been refused on account of a North Carolina statute.

KIPLING PAYS TRIBUTE.

Verse That Deals With the Greatness of King Edward.

London, May 20.—Rudyard Kipling has written a tribute of verse to King Edward. After detailing the greatness of his inheritance, and how all looked to him for advice and encouragement, the poet says:

And God poured him an exquisite wine that was daily renewed to him
In the clear, welling love of his peoples that daily accrued to him,
Honor and service we gave him rejoicingly, fearless,
Faith absolute, trust beyond speech,
and a friendship as peerless;
And since he was master and servant
of all that we asked him
We leaned hard on his wisdom in all things, knowing not how we tasked him;
For on him each day laid command
every tyrannous hour,
To confront or confirm, or make smooth some dread issue of power;
To deliver true judgment aright at the instant unaided
In the strict level ultimate phrase that allowed or dissuaded;
To foresee, to allay, to avert from us
perils unnumbered;
To stand guard on our gates when he guessed that our watchmen has slumbered;
To win time, to turn hate, to woo folly to service, and mightily schooling
His strength to the use of his nations, to rule as not ruling—
These were the works of our king, earth's peace is the proof of them.
God gave him great works to fulfill and to us the behoof of them.
We accepted his toil as our right, none spared, none excused him.
When he was bowed by his burden his rest was refused him;
We troubled his age with our weakness, the blacker the shame to us.
He heard that his people had need of him, straightway he came to us.
As he received, so he gave, nothing
grudged, naught denying;
Not even the last gasp of his breath,
when he strove for us, dying.
For our sakes, without question, he put from him all that he cherished;
Simply as any that serve him he served,
and he perished.
All that kings covet was his, and he flung it aside for us;
For simply as any that died in his service, he died for us.

ACQUIT ATTORNEY TODD OF CHARGE OF FORGERY.

Minot, N. D., May 20.—Walter W. Todd of Portland, Or., but until recently an attorney at Ambrose, N. D., was found not guilty by a jury of forgery in the first degree. The jury was out three hours. This was one of the most bitterly contested cases tried in this section for some time. It was charged that Todd forged and uttered an instrument purporting to be a relinquishment on a valuable homestead three miles from Ambrose.

CARUSO'S COUSIN

Spurns Songbird's Cash and Weds Her Beloved Pasquale.

New York, May 20.—Her love for Pasquale Biargardi has proved stronger for Mrs. Maria Michaele Aquilla than a desire for an estate yielding $70 a month which was offered to her by her cousin, Enrico Caruso.

Facing the probability that she would not receive the money if she married again, the tenor's relative a few days ago became the wife of Biargardi, and now she fears that she is no longer in the good graces of her cousin.

Mrs. Biargardi resides at 47 Cross street, Paterson, N. J., and is one of the many relatives of Mr. Caruso who reside in that city. She became acquainted with her present husband, who was a boarder in her home, at about the same time her cousin offered her the estate. It was a case of love at first sight.

SATURDAY IS CLEAN-UP DAY

Every Good Citizen Is Expected to Do His Share.

Ash Heaps and Rubbish Piles Must Be Cleared Away.

Whether the comet brushed the earth or not, that part of the globe within the corporate limits of Duluth will get a thorough scrubbing tomorrow.

Saturday is cleaning day in Duluth, and all good citizens are going to get even with the comet which has played them falsely.

Many of them were hopeful that the much-touted sky wanderer would save them a job, while the superstitious were certain that the next cleaning day would be only on the other side of the silent river.

Much cleaning has been done in the city the last six or seven weeks, but more remains. The bulk of the rubbish has been removed from the yards, but they can be greatly improved with some finishing touches tomorrow. Everybody is expected to get busy with rakes and spades and clear away the last chip or piece of stray paper disfiguring the landscape.

The mayor and the health commissioner are confident that the people of Duluth are imbued with sufficient civic pride to do all in their power to better the appearance of the city. They state that all can help, and are certain that at sundown Duluth will be the cleanest it has been since it attained the dignity of a city.

"Do it for Duluth."

The opening of the new store means another successful institution on East Superior St. ***

RAILROADS

NEW TRAIN MAY GO IN SERVICE

Northern Pacific May Have Sunday Morning Train to Twin Cities.

Northern Pacific officials are considering the matter of placing a Sunday morning train from Duluth to the Twin Cities. The matter has been taken up with the tariff officials of the general office at St. Paul, and upon their decision will rest the decision in the matter.

If the St. Paul officials decide to put the Sunday train in service, it will leave here at 9 o'clock, the same time as the daily morning train over the Northern Pacific.

In behalf of the argument for a Sunday morning train from Duluth, it is stated there are a large number of Duluth people who would spend Sunday at various points down the line, at intermediate points, if they could leave here in the morning.

The decision as to whether the train will be placed in service, will be known in a few days.

IMPROVING ROADBED.

Crookston, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern railroad has practically concluded the big improvements on the roadbed of the Minnesota & Southeastern, between Barnesville and Breckinridge, and the steam shovels and work trains will be transferred from there to the Bagley pit, which is being stripped and placed ready for operations. The Great Northern roadbed from Crookston to Cass Lake will be heavily balasted and broadened, and several months will be required to finish the work outlined along that line.

Takes 999-Year Lease.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 20.—At a stockholders' meeting here, the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday took a lease for 999 years of the Pittsburg, Youngstown & Ashtabula railroad. This is to take effect July 1 of this year, when the old lease expires.

Railroad Notes.

L. A. De Cou, traveling freight agent for the Traders Dispatch line of Chicago, is in the city today.

W. H. Stephenson, traveling freight agent for the Lehigh Valley line, is in the city today.

William Hathaway, district passenger agent for the Rock Island, is in the city today.

SOCIALISTS HAVE HEATED DEBATE

Finally Change Constitution to Avoid Excluding Farmers.

Chicago, May 20.—An important change was made in the constitution of the Socialist party. The change was made to read from "a political party distinct and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied class," to read "by the capital class." There was a heated debate before the vote on the proposed change was taken, but the word "capitalist" won by 58 to 48.

According to delegates who voted in favor of the change it was felt that the words "propertied classes" would be considered to include farmers. The sentiment of the party at present is said to favor the admission of farmers. A committee of nine was appointed today to consider the "farmer question" and make a report at the convention in 1912.

The great party of the day was devoted to the consideration of a number of amendments to the constitution which were proposed by the constitutional committee headed by State Senator W. S. Gaylor of Wisconsin.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

SCHOOLS TO HOLD MEET

Annual Field and Track Events of City Grade Schools.

Eleven Schools Will Compete for Possession of The Herald Cup.

Tomorrow afternoon at Athletic park the annual field meet of the public schools of this city will be held. Eleven schools are entered in the meet, and about 150 youthful athletes of the graded schools will participate in the various events.

A handsome loving cup offered by The Duluth Evening Herald will go to the school team making the largest number of points. The keenest rivalry is shown in the contest for this cup. For the past two years the cup has been won by the Washington school, and should the team representing this school roll up the largest number of points tomorrow afternoon, the cup will become the property of that school.

The Jefferson school team won the cup one year, and the boys of that school will strive tomorrow to tie the Washington athletes.

The young athletes have been training hard for the various events and some keen contests are expected.

Four classes will compete. The smaller boys will be placed in the bantam class, while the featherweight, lightweight and middleweight classes will contain boys according to their weights.

The automobile ride for the members of the boys' department will be held this evening, weather permitting. A large number of auto owners have promised to donate the services of their cars for the occasion. The machines will leave the boys' department building at 7:30 this evening.

America Is Getting Well.

America is getting well. It is throwing off the bed clothes and flinging the patent medicines out of the window. It is about to take up its bed and walk, and work. For centuries we, like other peoples, have been sickly, valetudinarian. Build up your system with Golden Grain Belt beer. A glass taken before each meal or just before retiring will aid your digestion, steady your nerves and build you up physically. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

SUCCESSFUL TREATING OF TIES. Arboriculture: The tie-treating plant of the Mexican Central railroad has reached an output of 3,500 ties a day, making it one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. It is expected that the treatment will prolong the life of each tie from eight to twelve years.

We Have Dropped Many More Suits Down to $16.50 and $22.50

Thank the week's rains and winds for such fine picking as you'll have here tomorrow. The weather kept many people from buying suits who would otherwise have bought here.

We know—for many women have telephoned us wanting to know if they could still be fitted if they came today or Saturday. Our answer is "yes,"—you can come tomorrow and be fitted in a classy style you'll like in either black or any wanted color!

It is only the woman who doesn't know, who will miss this sale—for if you are familiar with the facts, you'll know that we are giving some of the best values Duluth women ever saw.

Some broken lines have been dropped from $28.50 and more down to $16.50 and some more of our finer suits have been dropped into the $22.50 lot for this sale.

$16.50

Our regular prices would be up to $30.00—elsewhere they'd be more.

$22.50

Our regular prices would be up to $42.50—but some stores would ask up to $50.00 or more.

$2.48 and $2.98 for Women's Pumps and Shoes

Another shoe sale that will crowd the shoe section tomorrow—patent leather—dull calf and fine kid shoes and oxfords—various styles in heavy or light soles—straps, lace or button models—good styles and wonderfully good values at $2.48 and $2.98 a pair.

EFFICIENCY OF SCHOOLS

State Superintendent Cary Tells How It Can Be Increased.

The Doing as Well as the Knowing Should Be Taught.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Supt. Cary has addressed the following letter to the superintendents, principals and teachers of the public schools:

What is school education for?

"I want my children to get an education so that they may get a living by the use of their wits, and not have to work as I have done." Such a remark as this I have often heard, and I have no doubt the speaker usually has in mind a life of ease and dignity in a profession, an office, or some other lucrative position in which he thinks there is nothing to do but read newspapers, smoke cigars and wear a fresh starched shirt every day. Sometimes the speaker is pessimistic or bitter, and feels that his own life of hard, unremunerative labor is necessitated by lack of schooling.

The man of independent wealth sometimes says, 'I want my children to get an education for the sake of social distinction; I abominate these new-rich people with their boorish ways, their crude speech, their ignorance of the ancient classics. My children have both time and money, and they must get the polish, the culture, which they can get only in the best schools."

Often the speaker is himself too cultured to state the facts so badly, but this is what he has in mind.

Another says, "I want my boy to go to school and study something that will help him earn a living when he gets out of school. Much of your school education takes from a boy all notion of work with his hands and leaves him unfit to do anything useful. He must then go to a special school for a long period in order to learn how to earn a living. Give me the kind of education that leads somewhere, without going around Robin Hood's barn or bankrupting a man in moderate circumstances in putting his children through school."

Says another, "I want my child to get an education for the sake of the mental discipline and the moral qualities that develop under good teachers and good instruction; it is the making of a man. I do not care much what he studies, but I do care much who his teacher is and how he studies. I want his intelligence developed, his habits correctly formed and his ideals placed high."

Four Aims.

But what shall you and I say of the purpose of education? The high school has at least four aims—three real and one fictitious. These aims are culture, discipline, utility and preparation for college. I shall omit the last as extraneous to the discussion.

Culture is a term that is vague in meaning, for the reason that every one who uses it puts his own meaning into it. To the dude it means an artificial mode of speech, together with flowers, a little French, and often a slavish imitation of his British brother. To the man of academic training it generally means knowledge of the "humanities," especially Latin and Greek. In the best sense of the word, it is often taken to mean about all that is best in personal worth—sympathy, refinement, intelligence, knowledge, efficiency.

Discipline is more definite in meaning and is used to designate the outcome of close mental application for a considerable period upon various studies that present serious problems for mastery. One element in discipline is the habit of continued mental concentration, regardless of the pull of the environment.

Utility is equivalent to usefulness, especially the immediate usefulness; as agriculture for the farmer, typewriting for the typewriter, a trade for the artisan.

To sum it up, the high school is called upon to develop general intelligence, store the mind with knowledge of the world and its ways of dealing with people, give firmness of texture to the mind and train it to use its own stores of knowledge to the best advantage. To this may well be added the training necessary to get the student into some useful employment without too much delay if circumstances require it. Intelligence, affability, power of concentration and the possession of much usable knowledge make a combination that spells success. Too often, however, the student's knowledge is not usable, even if it is of the right sort. The schools largely act upon the old adage that knowledge is power. They measure the student by his ability to absorb learning. If he is docile, has a good memory and can give back accurately what his instructor and his books say to him, he is a "good student" and on the high road to success.

Memory Cramming.

The world at large little dreams to what absurd lengths the best schools go in the direction of memory cramming, even in this day and age. Recently, in one of our best universities, a class of students was kept for eight months out of nine learning by heart the most absurd rubbish, under the name of "theory of elocution," as a preparation for practice in learning to read effectively. The ninth and last month of the year was spent in desultory efforts to learn a little play for the sake of practice, but there was never even in this any drill in reading. This for most of the students ended their college training in reading.

In a great university a short time since a professor of mathematics gave a course in trigonometry. He openly told his students that all he wanted them to do was to understand the "theory" he gave them in lectures three times a week for a semester. The students who "passed" in this course could not today solve a simple problem to save their souls, unless they have studied the problem since. A professor of English gives a course in grammar for students who want to teach English in high schools. The semester is taken up in explaining that English is an uninflected language, and has no grammar. Drill in the analysis of difficult English sentences would be a most excellent training for these young people. It would develop their analytic power and would add to their efficiency as teachers. But that would be useful, and the useful is with many college professors taboo. In many of the best institutions in this country today teachers are taught the art of teaching, not by practice and criticism, but by lectures on pedagogy. One of these lecturers recently said to his students in the "teachers' course" in an academic subject, "Remember that in the high school you are to teach the subject. The professor of pedagogy will tell you that you must teach boys and girls, but this is nothing but cant." Which, being interpreted, means that the teacher must have her interests centered in biology, physics, and the like, and not in her pupils. They may be interested or not, they may learn or not, that is their affair and not the business of the teacher.

You can find scores of young men and women now about to get diplomas from leading institutions of the country who are saying to one another that teaching is going to be a soft snap. "You assign the lessons and you have the book, so you can see whether the pupils recite correctly or not." School board officers might as well make use of phonographs in their schoolrooms as to employ teachers who act upon such instruction as is given by some university professors, who are so absorbed in their subjects as not to care a rap about students as young people to be transformed into worthy, efficient citizens. To be sure, there are many young people, especially among those who have had experience in teaching, who have a higher conception of the teacher's function.

The Solution.

The school says, I will test you by what you know; the world says, I will test you by what you can do. The solution is for the school to teach both knowing and doing. The school should transform knowledge into power as rapidly as knowledge is acquired. There is only one safe and sure way to do this and that is to put knowledge into practice as promptly as possible. One reason why our schools are so sadly divorced from the practice side in that so many of our teachers are not properly trained in making knowledge useful. Students often get more knowledge as to the formation of words in the English language from three months of word analysis than they do from eight years of the study of Latin for the reason that in general teachers of Latin seem to think their students will learn this without having their attention called to it. Most of the subjects in the curriculum are largely bookish and they are taught in a bookish way. We must instruct our training schools to give us high school teachers who know how to develop the initiative, the active nature, the thinking power, the doing power. We must also introduce extensively into our schools such subjects as manual training, domestic science, commercial branches, agriculture and the like, in all of which the doing side is still prominent. A judicious amount of such work combined with the more bookish subjects taught in a less bookish way than now will tend powerfully to increase the actual efficiency of high school graduates. In many of our best schools there is now this judicious mixture of subjects that require a preponderance of the doing element, but in very few schools are the studies that I have called bookish taught in a way to secure the maximum of practical efficiency.

There are some schoolmen who think that agriculture is only for rural communities. I am confident that agriculture well taught, even if some of the practical phases of the work have to be omitted, will prove valuable in the extreme for city high schools. Yours very truly,

C. P. CARY,
State Superintendent.

MULATTO WOMAN IS WHITE SLAVER

Is Convicted of Selling Girls Into Lives of Shame.

New York, May 20.—Belle Moore, a mulatto, was found guilty last night of selling girls into lives of shame. The maximum penalty is five years and $1,000 fine. Sentence will be pronounced on May 26. Her council asked a week's delay that he might review the minutes to prepare a motion for a new trial.

The case, which took only two days to present, was the first brought to trial under the indictments recently handed down by the Rockefeller grand jury which has been investigating the traffic in woman.

CLAPP ANXIOUS FOR BIG CROWD

Wants Minnesota Well Represented at Reception to Roosevelt.

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota is anxious that his state should be well represented at the reception of Col. Theodore Roosevelt in New York June 18.

"Col. Roosevelt enjoys the affection and esteem of a greater proportion of the American people than any ex-president ever did," he said today, "and it is therefore only right that the people should turn out and give him a hearty welcome and congratulate him upon his safe return from the wilds of Africa and his triumphant tour through Europe. He exerts as big a force for good as any man in the world today, and yet he holds no office. Every achievement of his abroad has added lustre to our country's name, and I for one wish to see due acknowledgment of the fact made in the form of the biggest gathering of patriots at New York on June 18 ever seen in this or any other country.

"We should come from every quarter and extend him the right hand of good fellowship. This is no political affair. It must be absolutely non-partisan, else it will fail of its purpose. If it were gotten up by a lot of Republican politicians for the purpose of booming or currying favor with a former or prospective boss, I would advise my constituents to have nothing to do with it. Moreover, Theodore Roosevelt would not countenance such a scheme. It is simply to be a good, old-fashioned welcome to our foremost private citizen and only living ex-president.

"I am particularly anxious that the delegation from my state shall be well taken care of, and sincerely hope that the proper committees in the several cities will communicate with the Roosevelt reception committee, 146 Broadway, New York, at once."

LONGWORTH LAUDS THE NEW TARIFF LAW.

Washington, May 20.—Taking the proposed appropriation of $250,000 for a tariff board as his subject, Representative Longworth of Ohio yesterday advocated prompt action upon this matter and incidentally defended the Payne bill as having no influence in increasing the prices in the United States. The opposition to the proposed tariff board by Mr. Underwood of Alabama, Mr. Longworth declared, was an indication of the course that would be taken by the house should the minority become a majority in the next congress.

"I am bound to take issue with him," said the Ohio congressman, "on his proposition that congress has now in its possession information sufficient to write a perfect tariff law, either upon the basis of revenue only, as he advocates, or upon the basis of both protection and revenue as we upon this side of the house advocate."

FINE TRIBUTE TO HIS PREDECESSOR

Is Paid By Governor Eberhart at Banquet Given His Staff.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.) — Governor Eberhart touched a sympathetic and responsive chord at a banquet given in his honor by the members of his staff last night at the Minnesota club, when he paid feeling tribute to his predecessor and expressed deep, personal sorrow over the sad event which had called him to the executive office. His tribute to Governor Johnson was followed with a whole-souled expression of the pleasure it gave him to be honored by the men who stood so close to the late executive.

The staff as a body was appointed by the late governor. It was their first gathering since in solemn silence they followed his casket to St. Peter. Co-receiver with the governor in the felicitations of the occasion were Rev. J. J. Lawler, auxiliary bishop of St. Paul, chaplain of the staff.

Governor Eberhart said at the close of the evening that nothing in his official career has touched him so deeply as the feeling of personal good will and esteem which met him on all sides.

Present for New Bishop.

As a token of the regard in which he is held by the members of the staff of which he has been a member, Bishop Lawler was presented with a diamond and amethyst ring, beautifully set and engraved with a mitre and crozier, typifying his new office. The amethyst was buried in an oval setting of twenty-six diamonds—one for each member of the staff—the larger stone for the governor. The presentation speech was made by Paul Doty, the toast master.

In his reply, Bishop Lawler spoke of the relation of the church and the state. He conveyed the thanks of Archbishop Ireland for the presence yesterday of the governor and staff at the consecration ceremonies, and of the stimulating effect it would have upon the young men present, especially the young cadets of St. Thomas, to whom he said it would be an inspiration for years.

The topic upon which all the addresses of the evening touched, more or less, was the National Guard. Gen. Fred B. Wood, chief of staff, spoke for a closer union between the National Guard and the staff, and Col. William A. Gerlach talked on the relationship of the regular army to the state militia.

Several speakers made a plea that the young men employed be given a leave of absence to attend the annual encampment that the National Guard may be strengthened and become a more potent influence in the making of soldierly young men. The plea met with a hearty response from several large employers present.

Gen. Gasser Was Present.

Among those present were: Commander-in-chief, Governor Adolph O. Eberhart; Chief of Staff Brig.-Gen. Fred B. Wood; United States officers detailed, Lieut.-Col. William A. Gerlach, U. S. A., retired, St. Paul; Inspector General Brig.-Gen. Ernest L. Welch, Minneapolis; Judge-Advocate-General, Brig. John Dwan, Two Harbors; Quartermaster-General, Brig.-Gen. Fred W. Johnson, New Ulm; Commissary-General, Brig.-Gen. M. M. Gasser, Duluth; Assistant, Maj. Harry S. Hobson, Worthington; Assistant Surgeon-General, Maj. F. H. Whitcomb, St. Paul; Chaplain, Col. J. J. Lawler, St. Paul; and the following aides-de-camp: Colonels Alvin H. Kohler, Swan Turnblad, Edward W. Murphy, David P. Jones, George S. Coffend, William R. Wylie, William F. Reau, Minneapolis; John C. Hardy, David Wallblom, R. J. Schiffman, Paul Doty, Daniel Aberle, St. Paul; Charles L. West, Austin; John R. Conway, Detroit; Thomas F. McGillvray, Duluth; Maj. Gustaf Carlson, Hibbing; Capt. Charles J. Hannason, St. Paul; Military Storekeeper Capt. William H. Hatcher, St. Paul.

Cannon to Give to Cities.

Washington, May 20.—The war department has issued a statement to the effect that municipalities desiring obsolete field pieces for ornamental purposes may obtain them upon formal application to the department through a senator or representative.

DRYGOODS MEN JOIN SHIPPERS' MOVEMENT.

Chicago, May 20.—Strength of shippers banded together to combat the proposed advance in freight rates has been augmented. The National Wholesale Dry Goods association, representing an aggregate capitalization of $400,000,000, has joined the movement. This action was taken by the executive committee of the association at a meeting here. John V. Farwell of Chicago, George H. Partridge of Minneapolis, P. C. Byrne of Omaha, James Simpson of Chicago and Hugh McKittrick of St. Louis were named as a committee to act for the association.

DON'T BE BALD

One of Our Readers Tells How She Abtained a Marvelous Growth of New Hair By the Use of a Simple Home Remedy After Hair Specialists and Tonics Had All Failed.

I had what most people would call a beautiful head of golden hair. I prized it most highly, as I considered it my chief attraction. Suddenly it began to come out very rapidly, and at times I had intense itching of the scalp. Physicians and hair specialists said my case was one of dandruff germs, hair microbes, &c., but nothing that they gave me did the slightest good. On the contrary, my hair seemed to come out even faster, and I was now fearful lest I should become entirely bald. In my despair a friend told me of an Ecuador herb which he said would positively grow hair on my head where the hair roots were not entirely gone, and he said the natives of the country where it grew were famous for their beautiful long hair. Upon medical advice I combined this herb with Bay Rum and Menthol Crystals and immediately began its use. In three applications it entirely stopped the intense itching of my scalp and in a very short time it not only stopped my falling hair but I noticed an abundance of new hair coming in. In less than one month my hair was longer, thicker and more beautiful than ever. All due to this marvelous hair growing herb. A lady to whom I gave the formula used it on her daughter, and she says it made her hair grow five inches in less than a month. Doctors to whom I have shown it say it is the only thing which will actually grow new hair, therefore I think the public ought to have it. At first I thought I would keep it a secret and sell the secret, but when I think how I suffered and how badly I needed it and how hundreds of others must need it the same as I did, I feel I ought to give it to the world.

Therefore, I authorize this paper to publish the formula, which is as follows:—Bay Rum 6 oz. Lavona de Composee 2 oz. Menthol Crystals 1 dr. Tokalon Perfume one to two teaspoonfuls.

Ask your druggist for an 8 oz. bottle containing 6 oz. of Bay Rum, then put in the Menthol Crystals and the Perfume. Next add one-half of the bottle of Lavona de Composee, let it stand six to eight hours and add the remainder of the Lavona de Composee. Always buy the Lavona de Composee in a two oz. sealed bottle, as this preparations contains the juice of the Ecuador herb mentioned above, and it loses its strength if unsealed.

Apply the preparation night and morning and rub well into the scalp. If properly used it will soon produce most astonishing results. Be careful not to get it on the face or any part of the body where you do not want to produce hair.

SORORITIES ATTACKED

In Book By Expelled Member—Volume Adopted By University.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—The work of her brain spurned by Eastern publishers, Mrs. Isabel McReynolds Gray, whose expulsion from a sorority at the University of California in 1907 was a ten days' sensation, sent the manuscript of her book, "Florizel," to her English professors at the university, and has been notified that they have adopted the book for freshmen English courses.

Mrs. Gray was surprised, and is arranging for its private publication. The book it is announced, was an attack on sororities and the life girls lead in colleges where sororities are allowed.

The real reason for the then Miss McReynolds' expulsion from her sorority never became public, the girls saying that they dared not speak for fear of a libel suit and Miss McReynolds saying she did not know.

BABY'S SCALP ALL CRUSTED OVER

With Eczema That Broke Out when but Three Months Old—Burned and Itched So She Could Not Sleep —Chance of Cure Seemed Slight.

CURE BY CUTICURA EASY AND COMPLETE

"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her eyes became crossed from the disease and her scalp was a solid scale all over. The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night. We had about given up all hopes when we read an advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and followed directions carefully. After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvent, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment. Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. Her eyes were perfectly straight when she recovered and have been so ever since. She is now sixteen years of age and is a picture of health. We know the Cuticura Remedies cured her and have used them in our family ever since.

"We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected with any disease. She suffered with burning and itching and hard, scaly, dandruff-looking scabs all over her head and in places on her body. We used no other treatments after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her. J Fish and Ella M. Fish, Mt. Vernon, Ky., Oct 12, 1909."

For preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for eczemas, rashes, itchings and chafings and for the prevention of the same; as well as for the sanative, antiseptic cleansing of ulcerated, inflamed mucous surfaces and other uses which readily suggest themselves to women, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are indispensable.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin. Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood, are sold throughout the world. # MARCH WITH THE GYPSIES

Too Much for "Princess," Who Is a Hargis of Kentucky.

Life Amused Her at First, But Got on Her Nerves.

New York, May 20.—She loves her gypsy prince, Millen Johnson, but the 16-year-old Princess Catherine Filbatis Johnson is back home in Elizabeth, N. J.

The march of the Romany tribe in Rhode Island was a bit too strenuous for the granddaughter of the Hargises of old Kentucky. The long drives through the country, where farmers looked on with suspicion, the halt at night in lonely woods, the arduous pitching of tents and the hasty breaking of camp in the morning for another day's march wore on her, and so she is home.

Millen, the 18-year-old husband, is still with his people. He is paying her $10 a week.

There is a mystery in Catherine's life that she has tried hard to unravel. So have newspapers and the police of Elizabeth, but without avail. The whereabouts of her mother, who was Mamie Hargis of Breathitt county, Ky., is the mystery.

Haunted by Mother's Face.

She ran away from Kentucky and married Lightfoot Tayor Filbatis of Richmond, Va. After five children had been born the father died. The family came to New York.

After struggling in vain here to keep her brood together, the mother placed them in the Five Points Mission of Industry. Then she went to Philadelphia and was married to Carl Marison. The children soon were sent to homes in the country.

After Catherine grew up in a family at Kanona, Steuben county, N. J., she started out to find the mother whose tear-stained face, just as she looked when she kissed her goodby in the mission has haunted her.

She drifted to Elizabeth, a friendless little girl, working as a servant. There she visited the gypsy camp of the Johnsons. Young Millen watched her as she stood before Grandma Johnson to have her palm read and heard that "a handsome dark man" would cross her path. He resolved to be that dark man—and was.

Married Under Dispensation.

The story has been told of the marriage in the Catholic church at Elizabeth on Feb. 20, Father O'Neill tying the knot under a special dispensation from the bishop, for the girl was only 15 and alone in the world.

"You needn't think that I am going back on the gypsy life just because I am home," she said yesterday in the parlor of a woman friend on Maple street. "I am not. But the long rides and the dripping rain on the leaves outside the tent when I woke in the night tired me.

"I talked it over with Millen and Grandma Johnson, the queen, and grandma patted me on the cheek, and said: "Poor little girl; it's new to you." I asked Millen to let me come home for a little while, and here I am.

"While we lived here in camp at Elizabeth it was all right. I liked the jingle of gold coins around my neck, and it was lovely to be called 'The Princess.' People came and looked at me and asked questions. I told fortunes, and made much money.

Women Did All Work.

"But then came the breaking up of the camp and the march to New England, and though Millen had a $500 house-wagon made for me, everything got on my nerves. The women had to do all the hard work. They would help to pitch the tents, then they would get wood, build the fires and cook. At bedtime the women would tie the horses and put more wood on the fire.

"Outside Fall River, in a woods, we pitched for a month. Every day we women went into Boston on the train to tell fortunes alone. Washington street. Sometimes two women went at a time into a saloon to tell fortunes, and often got as much as $15 in one place.

"But somehow I didn't like it. I haven't anything to say against the gypsies. They're as honest as any other people, but I got tired of it, and one day Millen found me in the tent, crying.

Brother Is Now Doctor.

"At first he was mad, but then he said he knew the rough life was too much for me and he'd let me go home. Every one gave me something, and Millen and grandma gave me money and a ticket home. Millen swore dreadfully about what he'd do to any one who was ever rude to me.

"I'm going to find my mother and sisters now. I've just heard one of my brothers has grown up into a fine doctor in Pennsylvania."

HALL IS GIVEN TWELVE YEARS

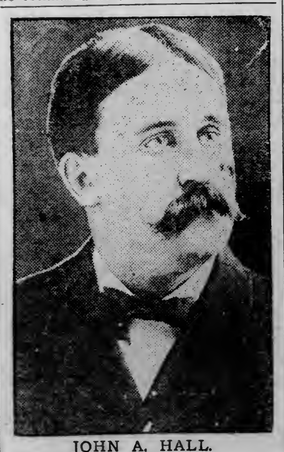
Massachusetts Bank Treasurer Says He Gave Loot to Charity.

Worcester, Mass., May 20.—After a plea of guilty to an indictment charging the larceny of $104,000 from the South Bridge Savings bank and a subsequent recital of his disposal, by gifts to charity and to relatives and by bad investments, of a sum of money which he estimated at $370,000, John A. Hall, the defaulting treasurer of the bank, was sentenced yesterday to serve not less than twelve nor more than fifteen years in the state prison.

Although he kept no record, Hall said he estimated the total amount of his stealings at about $370,000.

When asked by the court what he did with the money, Hall produced a memorandum from which he read extracts showing among other things a gift of $50,000 to the South Bridge Y. M. C. A., to build a new building; $30,000 to his brother, Clare Hall to help establish a sheep farm in Montana; $6,500 for the education of his brother, Frederick Hall, and to start him in business; $50,000 in a stock deal; various sums to the Good Will home and the home for orphans and little wanderers in Boston, to the Worcester Y. M. C. A., and State Y. M. C. A.; about $10,000 to poor people at different times, and $30,000 in unfortunate real estate deals.



JOHN A. HALL.

Butte Man's Long Appendix.

Butte, Mont., May 20.—An autopsy on the body of W. G. Moffat, who dropped dead Wednesday, revealed a vermiform appendix nine and a half inches long, with the end wrapped around a portion of the liver. No similar case is known in medical annals. Death was due to apoplexy.

Archie Glass and Ralph Johnson of the class of 1909 will enter the state university.

ENGLISH PEER'S SON

Married to Beautiful and Young Opera Company Star.

London, May 20.—Theatrical circles are much interested in a report, which has been kept rather quiet, of the recent marriage of Miss Ethel Lewis and Francis Geoffrey Pearson, youngest son of Sir Weetman Pearson.

Miss Lewis, who is a young woman of extraordinary beauty, has been singing leading roles in the D'Oyley Carte Opera company on tour. She left the company at Ramsgate and was privately married. She is very young. Mr. Pearson is only 19 years old. Consequently it has been arranged that the bride will pass the next two years with a companion on the continent finishing her education.

At the expiration of that time, if all goes well, it is proposed that the marriage be made public.

NATIONALITY QUARREL IS NEAR FATAL ENDING.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 20.—A quarrel over nationality came near ending fatally here. Ben Ochs and Frank Wold got into a quarrel which evolved into a fistic encounter. Ochs ran and got a revolver and was on the point of shooting Wold when Anton Bech attempted to knock the gun from Ochs' grasp, and received a bullet in his hand. The police were summoned at once and Ochs was put in the county jail to await the charge of attempted murder.

RIGHTS OF SQUATTERS.

Preference to Legal Settlers on the Minnesota Reservations.

Senator Clapp and Congressman Miller have been advised of a supplemental order from the general land office regarding prior rights of squtters on lands which were included in former forest reservations in Minnesota. The order follows:

"It appearing that a large unmber of persons made settlement on lands in the Winnibigoshish, Chippewa of Mississippi and Leech Lake reservations described in circular of May 10, 1910. On April 23 last, pursuant to telegrams received by your office from members of the Minnesota delegation in congress the second paragraph of Rule 4 of rules adopted May 10, 1910, is hereby amended so that it shall read as follows:

"Settlement on the 'cut over' lands described in the circular in the above mentioned reservations since May 12, 1909, when they were withdrawn prior to April 23, 1910, will not be recognized but preference will be given the prior legal settler on and after said date."

MORE LAND FOR PARKS

Board Asks Opinion of Citizens on Proposed Bond Issue.

Would Extend the Boulevard and Improve the Snively Road.

The board of park commissioners wishes to secure expressions of sentiment from the public as to the advisability of issuing another $50,000 worth of bonds, as authorized by the state legislature, to extend the boulevard system and acquire additional property.

The board believes that the Snively road should be improved and the boulevard extended into Fairmont park, forming an opportunity for an uninterrupted drive from Lester Park to Fond du Lac, unequalled for scenic beauty.

Certain property should be secured at Chester park, the entrance to Fairmont park, and all the property between the two forks of the Lester river and south of Graves avenue, as well as for a considerable distance north of Lester park, including the entire length of the Snively road.

The board has a balance of $26,231.87 from the sale of the last bond issue of $50,000, but the members state this is insufficient to make the betterments which are considered essential to the more beautiful park system.

The board issues the following statement, which was prepared by Commissioner Patrick, relative to the proposed bond issue:

To the Citizens of Duluth:

"Believing that you will be glad to be informed as to the work of your park commissioners and as to their plans for the future, we report as follows:

Income.

"The regular annual receipts are about $16,000.00 and this amount is fully required for the upkeep of the parks and roadways already improved.

"The cloudburst of last July did an immense amount of damage to park property. The extra expense caused by it will amount to at least $10,000. About $6,000 has already been expended in restorations; the largest single item being the building of heavy retaining walls at the head of Chester park. The dam at the Twin lakes on the boulevard is still to be re-constructed, and extensive repairs are still necessary on the western extension of the boulevard. Had it not been for the sale of bonds last summer we should have been unable to make these repairs.

Bond Issue.

"From the sale of bonds the sum of $50,000 was realized, from which expenditures have been made as follows:

'Commission on sale of bonds, $1,500; purchase of Harrison playgrounds (near Bryant school, West end), $10,250; purchase of Irving playgrounds (opposite Irving school, West Duluth), $3,200; purchase of lot, hill top, $150; improvements at Congdon Park, $2,369.13; landscape architect's plans for Lake Shore park, $800; extraordinary repairs because of cloudburst, $6,000; total amount expended, $23,769.13; balance remaining from sale of bonds, $26,231.87.

Plans for the Future.

"We thoroughly believe that the time has come when Duluth should take a long step forward in relation to its park and parkway improvements. The advent of the automobile makes it possible for visitors to our city to cover a large amount of distance in a few hours, and their impressions of Duluth can be made much more favorable than at present.

"In our opinion, the beautiful 'Snively road' should be improved and the 'boulevard drive' extended clear into Fairmont park. This would enable visitors and our own people to drive out to Lester Park on London road and then up through the hills to the boulevard, thence westerly connecting with the Fond du Lac road upon emerging from Fairmont Park.

"It is our intention to this season improve and make available for use, the playgrounds recently acquired and to also improve the new parks (Lake Shore and Congdon). Moderate improvements on two of the five squares at Lakeside have already been ordered. In this connection we are pleased to say that the management of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad has volunteered to park its right-of-way where it parallels Superior street through Lakeside and Lester Park, provided the park commission will furnish the plans. Such plans have already been ordered by the park board, and are in course of preparation by landscape architects.

Restoration and Preservation.

"Considerable work has already been done this spring towards the reforestation and preservation of parks already improved. Many more trees have been planted than ever before, and much work is to be done during the coming summer.

"Six sanitary drinking fountains have been ordered and will be installed in suitable locations.

Additional Lands.

"In our opinion the following properties should be acquired as rapidly as possible:

"Other playground sites; certain lots lying in Chester park, needed for its protection; certain lots at the entrance of Fairmont park; all of the property between the two forks of Lester river and south of Graves avenue, and both banks of each stream for a considerable distance north from Lester park, including the entire length of Snively road.

"There are of course many other pieces of property that it would be very desirable for the city to acquire, but we regard those above mentioned as being first in importance.

"It will readily be seen that the funds now available will not be nearly sufficient to make the improvements and purchase the properties above mentioned. The issue of $50,000 of bonds per year for six years has been authorized by the state legislature, and only one lot has as yet been issued and sold. We should be very glad to have expressions from our citizens as to the advisability of selling another issue of $50,000 of bonds during the coming year for the purposes above indicated. Such expressions may be made either by letter or personally to members of the board, or in the public press, as opportunity may offer. This is a matter which should be of interest to all citizens, and a free statement of their opinions is invited. Respectfully,

"BOARD OF PARK COMMISSIONERS."

CROOKSTON WILL PAVE.

Expected That Council Will Order Twenty Blocks in Asphalt.

Crookston, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council next Tuesday will, without doubt, pass an ordinance ordering twenty blocks of new paving and there is little question that asphalt will be the character of the paving selected. The first petition, signed by 90 per cent of the owners of the frontage property affected, asked for creosote block paving, but many of them, a majority in fact, signed it with the belief that creosote block could be laid on the ten-year payment plan while asphalt would have to be paid for in one assessment. A second petition asking for asphalt was signed by a majority of property owners with the exception of two blocks, and as the council has always favored asphalt that will be the paving selected and the work will be started just as soon as the bids can be received and the work ordered in.

SAY LORIMER WILL ARRAIGN HIS ACCUSERS.

Chicago, May 20.—The Chicago Daily News and the Chicago Daily Journal print stories to the effect that Senator Lorimer will make a speech in the senate at Washington next week, arraigning htose who allege that his election was procured by means of bribery. The senator refused either to affirm or deny the statement.

MUNICIPAL HALL PAYS.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Benefited By Construction of Own Building.

Iron Mountain, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city is finding the erection of its municipal hall a wise investment. The building originally cost $8,000. Now a portion of the structure has been leased to Uncle Sam for postoffice purposes, and for this portion he will pay an annual rental of $950. The lease runs for ten years. The government thus will pay a total of $9,500, or $1,500 in excess of the cost of the entire building. This is not all, however. There are other remunerative rentals, past, present and future, and the city has ample room in the building for all its needs.

MAY REVEAL TRAGEDY.

Discovery of Skeleton Under Building in Marinette Suspicious.

Marinette, Wis., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The partly disintegrated skeleton, was unearthed by workmen tearing down the old Gravel homestead here. The Gravel family was a notorious one for forty years. Two of them, Alec and Dick, were fatally shot in a brawl in Ford River. Billy was shot in a saloon fight but recovered and is thought to be living in Minnesota. It is suspected that the skeleton is the remains of one of the victims of the desperate gun fighters of the early days.

Hopeful About Institution.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Maggie Walz of Calumet talks enthusiastically of her women's college home and sanitarium, to be established in the old Hotel Superior building here, and she says she is very well satisfied with the progress she is making. Over $27,000 has already been subscribed, and but little more is needed to start the institution.

THE PARK BOARD.

Attention is called to the report of the park board, published elsewhere in The Herald tonight, in which it informs the public of the work now pending and of its plans for the coming season. This report is lucid, succinct and complete, and it should be read with interest by every citizen.

While nothing connected with the city government comes closer to the lives of the people than the work of providing public parks, hardly anything is less familiar than the mechanics and details of that work. The public sees the results, or criticises the lack of results, usually with little conception of the magnitude of the task before the park board and the paucity of equipment that is granted it. The tax levy for park purposes brings $16,000 a year, and every dollar of this is needed for the upkeep of parks and roadways already improved. Last summer storms did damage to park property estimated at $10,000, nearly two-thirds the amount of the annual receipts of the board; and if the recent sale of park bonds had not provided funds, repairs would have been indefinitely delayed. On the whole, it probably will be agreed that the park board administers its duties wisely and well, and that it is to be commended highly for the admirable relationship between expenses and results which it manages to secure.

The proceeds of the $50,000 bond issue now being used are not quite half expended; but the board has plans, sketched in its report, which would consume many times the full amount. The law authorized the issuance of $50,000 in bonds annually for six years, and but one year's allowance has been used. The board wishes to know whether the public favors further bond issues for park purposes, and it is to be hoped that there will be a prompt expression of the public will in the matter. If Duluth is to grow as every citizen expects it to do, now is the time to buy lands for a complete park system. This can be done only by issuing bonds. What do the citizens think about it?

GENTLE UNCLE JOE.

In the refined and delicate manner that has so endeared him to the American people whom he loves so well and serves so faithfully, dear old Uncle Joe Cannon erupted again the other evening at a banquet of manufacturers in New York.

In the course of his very modest and moderate remarks he mildly hinted that the handful of "insurgents" in the house who have interfered with the plans of the organization are a pack of contemptible cowards, for whom shooting is too honorable a death. Proceeding with great calm and gentleness, he likened them to soldiers who desert and betray their cause in the face of battle. Smiling sweetly, he remarked merrily that they were demagogues, and that among them were men comparable to Judas, who betrayed his master.

Continuing in this delightful vein with the delicacy and patriotism and consummate tact for which he is so justly famed, he treated his hearers, and those beyond that circle who read his speech, to a bit of self-revelation that should go far to account for the popular love of the man and for the widespread appreciation of what a wretched outrage it would be if one scintilla of his power were to be taken from him and what a crime against democracy and the people's rights it would be if his tough, thick and sin-scarred hide were flayed from his flesh and hung upon the political fence.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN CANADA.

That the spring opening of industry passed with so few strikes in this country is a great relief to everybody concerned, and especially to the public.

In all strikes there are three parties; the employes, the employer and the public. Almost invariably the third party, the public, is ignored, though often it is the chief sufferer. Some time its interests will be safeguarded by law. In the meantime there is great interest in the working of attempts made elsewhere to regulate industrial disputes by law. New Zealand, where the law takes cognizance of the public interests because the government is conducted in the interests of the people, makes arbitration compulsory if two of the three parties desire it. It is wisely assumed that the public always desires it, so arbitration is compulsory if either the employer or the employes request it, this request, joined with the public, making two out of three in favor of arbitration.

Canada has been experimenting for three years with its "industrial disputes act," which applies to all public utilities including municipal service corporations, transportation companies of all kinds and also to coal and metal mines. It is unlawful for employers to lock out their employes or for workmen to strike until an investigation has been made by a government board appointed for this purpose and the board's report has been published. After the report is published, either party may refuse to accept the findings; but public opinion, influenced by the findings of the board, is expected to enforce compliance with the award. The purpose of the law is to provide disinterested investigation, in the hope that the result will settle the dispute. Always it should be possible to find a common ground in industrial disputes, but where no disinterested attempt is made to find such common ground, strikes and lockouts are prolonged to the injury of the employer, the workmen and the public.

A bulletin of the Federal bureau of labor gives the results of the act from March 22, 1907, up to last August. During that time fifty-nine boards have been appointed under the act to investigate industrial disputes affecting 65,500 workmen. There have been eight illegal strikes, or strikes occurring before or pending investigation; five in coal mines and three connected with shipping. In only five cases were the reports of the arbitration boards followed by strikes; two of these in the coal mines, two in the metal mines and one on a railroad.

In forty-five cases out of fifty-nine, or in more than 76 per cent of the disputes, settlements without strikes have been arranged under the law.

On its face, this is a showing that justifies the law. The object of the law requires no justification whatever; it stands proved without evidence. Public opinion on the law is hard to get at, but it is clear that some of the labor unions, particularly those involving the mines, are strongly opposed to it. The report from which these figures are quoted states that Socialism is strong in the unions which are openly attacking the law.

It is perhaps too early to tell whether this Canadian law meets the public need. At least it is an attempt at a very necessary result, that of providing machinery whereby arbitration may take the place of strikes and lockouts, and conserve alike the interests of employers, workmen and the public.

POST SAVINGS BANK PROSPECTS.

In view of the bristling cheval-de-frise of the reactionary organization in both branches of congress, which presents its barbed defenses against any measure intended to help the people, anything that comes out of the present session of congress is likely to be a child of compromise, and therefore more or less unsatisfactory to both sides.

The postal savings bank plan, which has met with bitter hostility among those upon whom the president relies for support, now seems likely to go through, though it is a dose so bitter to those who surround the president that celebration of its passage would best be postponed until it is a law. And then the date for the exercises should be put off until a careful examination of the measure has been made, to see whether it will do the cause of the people more good than harm.

A compromise plan, said to be acceptable to the president, has been worked out by the house committee on postoffices and post roads. The compromise deals largely with the disposition of postal bank funds. The reactionaries, and the interests which they represent, don't want postal savings banks at all; but if they must have them, they want the law fixed so that the funds deposited by the people in the postal banks will be drained off to Wall street to help the schemes of high finance. If that can be arranged, they appear willing to submit to the plan. On the other hand, it is vital to the success of the plan that the money deposited by the people, the greater part of which will be drawn out of hiding and find a place for the first time in the mass of circulating funds, shall be left in the communities in which it is owned, to be available there for local business purposes.

The proposed compromise seeks to placate both sides of this controversy, and to get around the slender peril of illegality. It provides that 5 per cent of the funds shall be kept on hand by the government as a gold reserve. This is to provide justification for the law by showing government interest in it, and it is believed that it will eliminate the likelihood of a supreme court decision holding the measure unconstitutional.

The remaining 95 per cent of the funds is to be divided between the two principal plans heretofore proposed. Half of the money will be placed in local banks, which must deposit high grade securities with the government. The other half will be invested in United States bonds, or, if these are not available, in state, county and city bonds. The provision that part of the money shall be invested in government bonds if they are to be had will, it is believed, furnish sufficient warrant for the postal banks and complete the assurance against the law being held unconstitutional.

It is evident that those who wanted the postal bank deposits left in the communities in which they are owned get very much the worse of this compromise. Only 47½ per cent of the deposits goes to local banks, and to secure these deposits the banks must buy high grade securities, which most of them will have to purchase in the New York market. On the whole, New York seems likely to get practically all of the deposits. But then, the postal savings banks will be provided, and maybe when the people get stronger in congress the law can be amended more to their satisfaction.

A PRECEDENT.

Judge Windom in municipal court yesterday, according to a lively local story in The Herald last night, handed down a decision that may form an interesting precedent. It appears that a local individual owned a "fiddle," on which he played to his own delight but to the irritated disgust of his wife, who finally smashed the offending instrument in the hope of delivering herself from the horror of its music. The owner painstakingly repaired his fiddle, and started in playing it again; whereupon, according to his story, his wife smashed it again. Then he slapped his wife, and the judge, saying that the wife should come before the fiddle, and that she was justified in what she did, sentenced the musician to twenty days in the county jail.

The fact that the instrument is called a "fiddle" and not a violin is illuminating. The violin is the king of musical instruments, but the fiddle is a roustabout. Lacking information about the quality of the man's playing, except such revelation as is afforded by its effect upon his wife, it must be presumed that he played the "fiddle," not the violin, and if that is true nobody whose ears have been assaulted by fiddle music will fail to sustain the decision and applaud the wife who had the moral courage to attack the problem in the only way it can be effectively attacked.

Of course it is possible that gentler methods might have been used. She might have hidden the bow, and if that device failed, she might have sold the fiddle to the first old-clothes man who came along. Violence should be a last resort; though massacre of music by a clumsy hand wielding a bow upon protesting fiddle strings is a devastation of the amenities of life so excruciating that all rules of conduct are likely to break down before it.

Self-protection is the first law, and even the most respectable rules for safeguarding the proprieties of human conduct give way before it.

There's no denying that it was pretty shrewd of Halley's sky-jigger to come-it on the astronomers the way it did.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

A FEDERAL BUILDING LODGER HEARD FROM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your issue of May 19, you have an article headed, "Federal Building Like a Bowery Lodging House."

I am a reader of The Herald and I am surprised that your paper that is always boosting the land in St. Louis county, should take such a stand in this matter. I should think that you would be rather elated over the fact that twenty-four men had dropped their different occupations to take a piece of land that you have been hollering about so much for the past ten years. You talk of advertising the lands of Northern Minnesota to get them settled up. What is the use? When twenty-four men are willing to bear all the harships that you raention in the issue of the 19th, you come right out and tell them that it will avail them nothing in the end.

If some of them government employes that are making such a kick about us poor devils staying there had as well a ventilated place to sleep in they would not be so sour-minded and if they had as much courage and as much ambition as some of those men that are roughing it here in line, we would not have so many fat government jobs to dole out to them, and not so much graft and corruption in the different branches of the government.

I guess if we can stand it six weeks to stay here day and night these gentlemen that pass through before the corridor is afred out in the morning can stand it to walk through. Yours truly,

FRANK BANTA.

Duluth, May 19.

Joseph H. Praetz.—Answering "F. K. M." in your issue of April 23, permit me to state that the poem called for is by the Jesuit father Robert Southwell, who was born A. D., 1560 and hung, drawn, and quartered at Tyburn on Feb. 21, 1595. His poetry is characterized by "a solid energy of diction as well as a noble spiritual elevation." The lines quoted by "F. K. M." are the last of the poem, entitled:

Times Go By Turns.

The lopped tree in time may grow again,
Most naked plants renew both fruit and flower;
The sorriest wight may find release of pain,
The driest soil suck in some moistening shower:
Time goes by turns, and chances change by course,
From foul to fair, from better hap to worse.

The sea of Fortune doth not ever flow;
She draws her favors to the lowest ebb;
Her tides have equal times to come and go;
Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web;
No joy so great but runneth to an end,
No hap so hard but may in fine amend.

Not always fall of leaf, nor ever Spring;
Not endless night, yet not eternal day:
The saddest birds a season find to sing;
The roughest storm a calm may soon allay.
Thus, with succeeding turns God tempereth all,
That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

A chance may win that by mischance was lost;
That net that holds no great takes little fish;
In some things all, in all things none are crossed;
Few all they need, but none have all they wish.
Unmingled joys here to no man befall;
Who least, hath some; who most, hath never all.

—Father Robert Southwell (1560-95.)

A Question That Duluth Is Asking, Too.

Chicago Evening Post: It may be too early to think of it. The weather may be too cold, the season too young. It may be too cruel to mention it. The feelings of those involved may be too tender, their inspiration too fragile.

Yet we have to begin some time. We may postpone the day for a while, but we cannot postpone it forever.

And now seems a good time. For by asking the historic question in years gone by men have accomplished good results that have amazed even prophets like the Hon. Hugh Fullerton. Therefore, solemnly, seriously, sonorously, we would ask:

"What is the matter with the Sox?"

The Men Don't Deserve It.

May Lippincott's: "I defy any one to name a field of endeavor to which men do not receive more consideration than women!" exclaimed the orator at a suffragette meeting.

"The chorus," murmered some irresponsible person.

FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

A Business Gathering.

Fertile Journal: An official call for the summer meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Crookston June 1, 2 and 3 has been issued by the executive committee of the association. Politics is to be kept entirely free from this convention. No man who is known at this time to be a candidate for any office will be asked to address the congress at Crookston. Demands will be made for pledges of reapportionment and good legislation in the interest of the northern half of the state from legislative candidates, but the convention will not be used to further the political ambitions of any one man or group of men.

It Will Be Audible, All Right.

Park Rapids Clipper: The southern part of the state has always been deaf to any request of the north for fair treatment, but the Bemidji convention has had a good effect on the hearing, and about the time of the Crookston convention in June a noise like a demand will be audible to all.

The Best Ever.

Brainerd Tribune: Real estate is a good investment—and Northern Minnesota dirt is the best ever.

Reapportionment First.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Northern Minnesota is coming into its own, but it will not get there until the state has been reapportioned.

Pine County Lagging?

Sandstone Courier: Pine county should organize a county club to assist the Northern Development association in boosting the northern part of the state. This organization is having wonderful success, and will undoubtedly be able to secure much legislation for the benefit of this part of the state. If this state can be influenced to pay their just share toward roads, schools, etc., their labors will be much more than repaid. Let's get together and help this good movement along.

Lighten the Settler's Burden.

Long Prairie Argus: Judge Stanton recently denounced the state land policy which compels settlers in new territory to build roads, schoolhouses and make other improvements and thus enhance the value of state lands, without expense to the state. There is much force in what the judge says, but the same principle applies to large tracts of land held out of use by the land speculator. While the latter pays some taxes, the bulk of the expense incurred for public improvement falls on the actual settler.

Itasca Needs Poking Up.

Deer River News: All counties embraced in the Northern Minnesota Development association are making preparation to be in at the Crookston convention June 1-3—except Itasca county. The hook worm is worst in fishing season.

And So Does Aitkin.

Aitkin Republican: The meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Crookston June 1, 2 and 3 is expected to be an important affair. Justice to Northern Minnesota in the way of reapportionment is the chief demand of the people, and all candidates for the legislature will be asked to take a stand on the question. Aitkin county has not yet formed a county association, and in this respect is far behind her sister counties.

Handicapped.

Young Cupid crouched beside a stone
And rubbed his arrows to a point,
And grumbled in a monotone;
"The times, the times are out of joint.

"I would I knew some kind of dope,
Some stuff so filled with potent charms,
'Twould make a youth start on a lope
To clasp his loved one in his arms.

"I wish I knew a kind of brew
To smear upon my arrow tips
That would make selfishness skiddoo
And everything but love eclipse.

"I met a goodly youth yestreen,
Out walking with a lovely maid;
They sought a tussock soft and green
And sat them on it in the shade.

"Quick I unslung my quiver then,
And my stout bow I swiftly strung.
I said, 'Here goes to try again!'
The string twanged and the arrow sung.

"He felt the sting and gave a jerk,
And all his thoughts were plain to me;
He loved—but thought of all the work
'Twould take to earn her lingerie.

"I pulled the bowstring to my ear
And sent another arrow, 'Raus!'
He thought: 'I love her, but how dear—
How more than dear is porterhouse!'

"I shot again! Again he leapt!
Again the look of loving crossed
His face, his hand near her hand crept—
Then he thought of her bonnet's cost.

"I thought: 'Gadzooks! I lose! Here goes
To swat an arrow into her!
Sometimes a maiden does propose.'
I hit her, and I saw her stir.

"I saw her eyes light in their turn
With love—then saw the light renege!
She thought: 'I won't! He does not earn Enough—and I can't fry an egg!'

"I shot again. Again she stirred;
Some more love light, another jar—
She thought: 'I can't wed him! My word!
I'd never get a motor car!'

"I wish I had an arrow keen
Would bring the cost of living low.
My luck's the worst I've ever seen;
I might as well unstring my bow!"

—Chicago News.

Counting the Cost.

St. Louis Star: "So you want to marry my daughter, do you, young man?"

"Y-e-s, s-s-i-r."

"Well, can you support a family?"

"H-how many are there of you, s-sir?"

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

There is quite a boomlet down in St. Paul for E. G. Swanstrom of Duluth as secretary of state.

M. B. Harrison of Duluth has been appointed by Governor Merriam to be one of Minnesota's commissioners for the World's fair at Chicago.

Hon. Chris O'Brien, ex-mayor of St. Paul and champion fisherman of the South Shore Brule club, arrived in town yesterday from a month's stay at the club house on the banks of famous trout stream.

J. F. Howard returned this morning from Montana, where he had been superintending the improvements in the Howard gold mine near Helena. A shaft 200 feet deep has been sunk, and indications point to a paying mine.

Thomas J. Gray, for the past eighteen years principal of the state normal school at St. Cloud, has resigned, and will engage in educational work in another field.

Work has begun, under a contract with J. H. Nordby, for about $2,000 worth of improvements to St. Paul's church building on Lake avenue and Second street. It is expected that about 50 per cent will be added to the seating capacity of the church. The church society does not want to make other than temporary changes, as it is the intention to move to a larger and more costly house of worship in two or three years.

Capt. Murch states that the first of the two new ferry steamers of the Duluth-Superior line will be here about July 1.

Telegrams from St. Paul announce the signing of the contracts for the extension of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad to the Manitoba boundary.

Diverting Traffic from the Lakes.

Chicago News: Under the policy of the railroads by which they control the package freight boat lines the tendency is to divert traffic from the Great Lakes.

Some years ago the lake and rail rate on goods of the first class from New York to Chicago was 54 cents for 100 pounds. This rate has been raised until at the present time it is 62 cents. The rates for other classes of freight have been advanced in about the same proportion. Shortly after the last advance was made, a little over a year ago, the Kanawha Despatch lowered its ocean and rail rate to 62 cents, making it the same as the lake and rail rate.

The Kanawha Despatch consists of an ocean boat service from New York to Newport News, the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad from Newport News to Cincinnati and the Big Four railroad from Cincinnati to Chicago. If the lake and rail rate from New York to Chicago were as low as natural conditions would make it an ocean and rail line would not be expected to compete. But when the railroads arbitrarily advanced the lake and rail rate the Kanawha Despatch, in order to get the business, met it.

During the past year many Chicago shippers heretofore using the rail and lake lines between New York and Chicago have been bringing in their goods by the Kanawha Despatch. The diminution in lake traffic on this account is expected to continue so long as the rates for the two routes remain the same. The ocean and rail service is a more desirable service than is furnished by the lake rail lines, but the latter, under natural conditions, should give considerably lower rates.

Two of the three links of the Kanawha Despatch are railroad lines. The railroads most deeply interested in the traffic between New York and Chicago, by acquiring control of either one of these links, can put a stop to the maintenance by the Kanawha Despatch of the schedule of rates that is now diverting traffic from the great lakes. But in the meantime the habit of using the lake will have declined and the facilities perhaps will have become poorer.

The shippers of Chicago and of the area tributary to the great lakes should not sit idly by and see the railroads gradually stifling traffic on the great waterway between this city and the East, which has played so important a part in the Middle West's commercial development.

Railroad Coach With Fireplace.

A magnificent private car, said to be the most sumptuous railroad coach ever constructed, has been sent from England to South America for the use of the president of the Argentine Republic. The June number of Popular Mechanics contains a description and illustrations of the car. It says:

"The coach is 75 feet long, and 10½ feet wide, and is constructed of steel. The exterior is painted in cream with gold and blue lining, the national Argentine colors. At one end is the president's day saloon, a compartment 17 feet, 3 inches long, decorated in the Louis XVI style, with green silk panels and carpet. At one end of this is a real fireplace with mirror above, and means for ventilation. The roof is tastefully carved. Adjoining this compartment is a bedroom, also fitted with green carpet and upholstery, and furnished with a bedstead finished in arms at the foot. The bedrooms has old gold, with the Argentine coat of three doors, one leading to the day saloon, one to the corridor which runs along the side, and one to the bathroom. By locking any one of these doors, all become locked. The bathroom is provided with a "needle bath," and is finished in marble with silver-plated fittings. The upper panels are of enameled metal, and the floor is covered with india rubber and cork mats.

"The next compartment is a study or library, finished in mahogany, with red leather chairs and a red carpet. Next to the study are two more bedrooms, upholstered with French gray silk panels, the general scheme being white with green leather chairs and carpets. These two rooms have one bathroom. A kitchen and attendants' compartment take up the remaining space in this traveling palace."

But, pressing on in haste,
At last we reach to clasp
The prizes of success
Which wither in our grasp,
Or fall to nothingness.

Life, life!
We see the wicked thrive,
We hear the plundered wail,
We see the worthy fail,
No matter how they strive;
Calamities befall

The hopes they've kept alive—
Yet they are cowards who
When dark disasters come
Sit down, afraid to do,
To glad ambition dumb—
And only fools demand
The right to understand.

Mr. Flatter confessed himself stumped and inquired mildly what the women of the Reform club had been talking about this afternoon.

"Oh, it's nothing to do with the club," Mrs. Flatter answered. "But this afternoon as I was getting off the subway I heard one woman say to another, 'what do you think I found in my breakfast rolls this morning?' The door shut just then and I've been dying to know what it must have been."

JUSTICE MOODY WILL RECOVER

But He Will Not Sit in the Standard Oil Cases.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—Following the positive assurance that there is no question concerning the ultimate recovery of William H. Moody, associate justice of the United States supreme court, came the announcement that he will not under any circumstances take part with his colleagues in the final settlement of the government's case against the Standard Oil company.

Briefly, Mr. Moody, although confined to his bed with a severe attack of rheumatism in his right leg, is, aside from that troublesome malady, enjoying perfect health. The jurist says:

"I was never better in my life. I eat four meals a day, and follow every move made by the supreme court and the other branches of the Federal government. Yes, I am very anxious to get back in Washington."

The comment concerning his connection with the Standard Oil case, and the stories which have been circulated to the effect that the famous case would be reopened on account of his failure to take part, has caused him to speak about the affair to his friends. To them he has said that he would not sit on the Standard Oil case. Common decency, he believes, prevents him from taking any part in a case which he started while attorney general, by instituting the first suits against the company.

His physicians predict that when the supreme court opens next fall Mr. Moody will take part in the proceedings.

FILE MOTION FOR RETRIAL OF HYDE

Attorneys Allege Prejudice on Part of Judge and Errors as to Evidence.

Kansas City, Mo., May 20.—Attorneys for Dr. B. C. Hyde yesterday filed a motion for a new trial for their client. Arguments on the motion will be heard by Judge Latshaw, June 4. Alleging error, the attorneys set forth the following to prove their assertion:

"That Judge Latshaw showed prejudice against the defendant and that he acted improperly toward Dr. Hyde's counsel.

"That evidence other than that touching directly upon the death of Col. Thomas Swope should not have been admitted into the record.

"That the jurors were moved to convict the physician more by passion and prejudice than by reflection on testimony.

"That the court should have forced the state to give the defense the letters passing between the prosecution and its scientists.

"That evidence that was incompetent was admitted and that competent evidence was barred."

Look up Juror's Story.

Dr. Hyde's attorneys are investigating rumors that one of the jurors said before he was selected that he would do certain things if he were allowed to serve. This alleged incident is not mentioned in the motion.

A mysterious "woman in black," who says she is Mrs. D. H. Adkins of New York, called at the jail yesterday with a large box of roses and desired to be permitted to take the flowers to the physician. Dr. Hyde said he did not know her. She was refused admission to the jail. When she left she took the roses with her.

Miss Laura Hyde, a sister of Dr. Hyde, has decided to live here with Mrs. Hyde until the physician's case is fully disposed of. Miss Hyde's home is in Lexington, Mo.

BRUSSELS' WELCOME TO ROOSEVELT

FEATURE OF THE DECORATIONS AT THE BELGIAN CAPITAL.

(Special Correspondence of The Duluth Herald by George Grantham Bain.)

Christiania, May 5.—Interest in Roosevelt's European trip seems to have reached a climax here. No busy nation can give a more enthusiastic welcome to the ex-president than he has received in Christiania.

The journey from Copenhagen to this city was made directly in sleeping cars of the Duluth-Swedish railways. They are models for all Europe. Following the general lines of European sleeping cars the "sofvogn" of Scandinavia is remarkable, first for its cleanliness. This is in striking contrast with the international sleeping cars in Germany. The one in which I rode from Holland to Denmark was the dirtiest car I was ever in. The woodwork was dirty, the blankets were dirty, the whole was on a level with our emigrant cars in point of neatness.

As in Germany the Scandinavian cars have first and second class sleeping compartments and the distinction in both cases is that if you travel "second," paying $1.50, you must share a compartment with some one, while if you travel "first," paying $2.50, you have a small compartment alone. The second class costs about two-fifths less than the first. But if you wish you may have third class sleeping accommodation at half the cost of the second. The third class compartments have three wooden benches. On each of these is spread at night a mattress with clean sheets and blankets. A "chambermaid" makes up the beds in all the compartments and puts them in order in the morning.

Had Government Car.

Mr. Roosevelt and his family traveled in a special car. When this car reached the frontier it was run as part of a special train to Christiania. The car was one which belongs to the government. To the train was attached a dining car in which Mr. Roosevelt had breakfast. It was an elaborate breakfast, including rare fruits and fresh trout. The usual Norwegian breakfast is coffee and "smorbrod"—buttered bread with slices of raw salmon, cheese, etc.

The official welcome which was extended to our ex-president was like that given to royalty. At all railroad stations in foreign capitals are "royal waiting rooms." The royal room at the Christiania station had been decorated. The platform without was covered with a crimson carpet. A small stand for distinguished guests had been erected on the platform.

When Mr. Roosevelt left the car he was met on the platform by King Haakon and Queen Maude. The king is a tall, fine-looking young man with a long, black moustache. He is rather English in his style. It will be recalled that he was Prince Charles of Denmark only a few years ago, and that after his marriage to Queen Maude he elected to live in London like an English gentleman. In fact it was against his will that he was made king of Norway. His wife is a typical Englishwoman—thin and rather sharp-featured.

Greeted by King Haakon.

The king's greeting to Mr. Roosevelt was that of one gentleman to another. Without ceremony he extended his hand with a "How do you do, Mr. Roosevelt." Mr. Roosevelt responded with "How do you do, your majesty," and shook the proffered hand warmly.

The other members of the party were introduced. Then Mr. Roosevelt left the station with the king, facing a big crowd outside, which took off hats and waved them with short sharp cries of "rah!" The Norwegian cheer is not like ours. It consists of a staccato "rah!" nine times repeated in quick succession.

The railroad station of Christiania is at the foot of the Carl Johans Gade, which is the main street of the city. It is a narrow street lined with shops, and from the station there is a rather sharp rise for several blocks. Driving up this hill, Mr. Roosevelt and the king passed between tall, wreath-wound standards, set close together, from which hung alternately the Norwegian flag and the American.

As one looked up the street it seemed canopied with these banners. Along the street on both sides was a big crowd—quite like the crowd which gathers on our own streets when the president visits an American city on some formal occasion. This crowd waved hats and cried "rah!" as had the crowd at the station.

Drove to the Palace.

The Carl Johans Gade broadens beyond the top of the hill and ends a quarter of a mile beyond at the grounds of the king's palace. At the entrance to the grounds two flag poles draped in American colors had great American flags flying from the. Between these standards Mr. Roosevelt saw, surmounting the hill, the royal palace, with a single Norwegian flag flying above it. The carriage with the king and Mr. Roosevelt was followed by the carriage of Queen Maude and Mrs. Roosevelt, up this hill, through a lane of orderly Norwegians, all showing in their faces and by their manner their enthusiastic interest in the country's guest. Almost all of them wore little American flags of silk pinned to their coats or blouses. It was a very touching sight and one whose memory should live long with the Americans who witnessed it.

But it was not alone America which the Norwegian people were honoring by their welcome to its former president. They have a very warm affection for Mr. Roosevelt himself in Norway. In Paris and Rome his visit was of interest only in official circles. Here he is the guest not alone of the Norwegian government and of the Norwegian king, but of the people as well. One must take into account, of course, the fact that in Rome and Paris are very busy populations, much absorbed in their own affairs. The people of Norway catch fish and produce hay and wood. But they have no important industrial interests, and it is easy for them to turn out for a feast day without danger to their business. They buried Bjornson only two days ago—and that was an occasion for suspending business—for he was one of the best loved of Norway's great men. Yesterday they welcomed Theodore Roosevelt and again business was suspended. Today they are keeping Ascension day and all the shops are closed.

We learned about Ascension day yesterday afternoon. Even a Norwegian cocktail might be better than none at all, thought some members of the entourage, when they had settled down in the comfortable Grand hotel. But the waiter said no. The next day was a holiday, and according to Norwegian law no spirituous liquors could be sold on a holiday or after 1 o'clock on the day preceding it.

Honored at Hotel.

At the Grand hotel they have honored us with a display of American flags—with an American ice (they spell it "is" here) for luncheon, adorned with American flags. And the band in the cafe has played Sousa's marches at brief intervals. By the way, Sousa seems to be almost the only American composer known to Scandinavia. In Copenhagen the band at the luncheon played not less than five of those fantastic marches—aptly characterized by a German as "glorified circus music." In Christiania a shop keeper wanting to do something timely in decorating filled his window with American sheet music. All he could find to display were Sousa's marches, three cakewalks and an "Indian Rhapsody," which was never heard of in New York. With these he mixed copies of the "Roosevelt March" of a Scandinavian composer.

All the shopkeepers are making the Roosevelt visit an occasion for appropriate window display. One has a window full of "Roosevelt cigars" at six for a quarter. (Why do they always name 5-cent cigars after great men—never 10 or 15-cent ones?) All the bookshops displayed Jacob Riis' study of Roosevelt, a book on the trip through Africa by a Scandinavian writer, and very good postcard portraits of the nation's guest—and tomorrow they will be selling postcard pictures of Roosevelt's arrival for 4 cents each. In shops of all kinds are displayed signs, offering the American flag in honor of Roosevelt's visit at 10 ore (or 2½ cents.) Sandwich men walk the streets advertising "the latest American novelties" at the variety theaters. Altogether there is a decided American tinge to Christiania today.

Greeted by Crowds.

When Mr. Roosevelt left the palace to drive to the American embassy for luncheon, there was a big crowd in front of the palace, kept in order by foot and mounted policemen. When he returned there was an equally large crowd to greet him. He dined with the king last evening, and they became quite chummy.

This was the day of the great Nobel peace speech. It seems hard to believe that Mr. Roosevelt at first declined to come to Christiania to deliver this oration. Nothing more significant has happened on his trip than this.

It was a comparatively small audience which gathered to hear him, because the National theater, where it met, is not large. But every seat was filled with men in black and women in their best gowns. The king occupied a box with the queen and Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt.

The stage had been hung with four American flags. No other colors were displayed. The stage was filled with guests up to the last line, where seats were placed for Mr. Roosevelt and the Nobel committee.

It was an attentive audience and discriminating. It applauded not from mere politeness, but from approval. I could hear the murmur of comment all about me at every pause.

But the king, I am afraid, was perfunctory in his applause. Occasionally he struck the palm of one hand with the back of the other, but for the most part he looked decidedly bored by the whole proceeding, while the queen sat stiffly at the other side of the box, regarding Mr. Roosevelt through a pair of those lorgnettes which the Spanish have happily termed "impertinentes."

The audience within the theater was no more significant than the crowd without. From the palace entrance to the entrance of the National theater, people were packed as closely as they could stand on each side of a clear driveway, and they waited all through the ceremonies in the theater to cheer Mr. Roosevelt a second time when he returned to the palace.

This is the ninth of a series of illustrated letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald while accompanying Col. Roosevelt on his European tour. The next will appear at an early date.

BLINDNESS THREATENED.

Clara Morris, Famous Emotional Actress, Is Losing Her Sight.

New York, May 20.—Clara Morris, veteran actress, who has been seriously ill at her home in Yonkers for some time, is now threatened with blindness. The best-known oculists in New York have, after a careful examination, been forced to inform the aged actress that there is nothing they can do to restore her fading sight.

"It is quite true that my wife's sight is gradually failing," said F. C. Herriott, aged husband of the actress. "A month ago her eyes began to go back on her, and we called in the best of the specialists, but they can hold out no hope. We must just wait for the light to fade away."

The failure of her sight is the result of long-continued illness, and coincident with threatened blindness has come a general breakdown. Her condition is now serious. Mr. Herriott, who has insisted on nursing his wife night and day, is also on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Clara Morris, the greatest emotional actress of her day, was born in Toronto, Can., in 1849, and made her debut in Cleveland in 1861. She made her first success in emotional roles in this city in 1870, while a member of Daly's Fifth avenue company. She made her greatest successes in "Camille," "Miss Multon," "The New Magdalen," and as Cora in "Article 47."

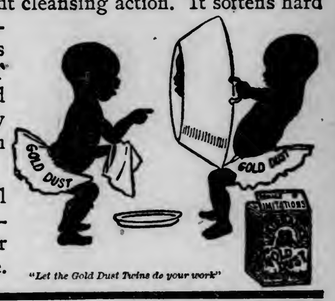
Since her retirement from the stage she devoted herself to literary work, writing numerous books and articles for the leading magazines.

There are two kinds of washing powder— GOLD DUST and others

Several so-called cleansing powders are only sal soda. You can buy sal soda at your grocer's under its real name for much less than you can these powders.

Others contain naphtha, ammonia or some other liquid cleanser which evaporates the moment the powder is exposed to the air, or touches hot water. Their much-vaunted virtues vanish like dew before the morning sun.

Gold Dust is the only true washing powder. It is a mixture of vegetable oil soap and purifying ingredients which insure prompt and efficient cleansing action. It softens hard water, does its work quickly and well, and injures nothing. GOLD DUST will do more work and better work than any other washing powder on the market.



"Let the Gold Dust Twins do your work"

There is but one all 'round washing powder—GOLD DUST. Ask for it, and take no substitute.

TO WELCOME NEW BISHOP

Friends Leave for Carlton to Accompany Bishop Corbett to Duluth.

Former Cathedral Pastor Returning to City With New Honers.

Rt. Rev. Timothy Corbett, the new bishop of Crookston, who was consecrated yesterday at St. Paul, will arrive in Duluth over the Northern Pacific at 7 o'clock this evening.

From seventy-five to a hundred friends and former parishioners of the new bishop left this afternoon for Carlton, and they will board the train there to accompany him to Duluth.

Bishop Corbett will be met at the Union station by a large crowd of his former parishioners and Duluth friends, and they will welcome him to Duluth. Bishop Corbett and Bishop McGolrick will be driven to Bishop McGolrick's residence, where Bishop Corbett will remain until the time of his installation at Crookston.

Sunday morning at Sacred Heart cathedral, Bishop Corbett will celebrate his first pontifical high mass. Monday evening at the cathedral auditorium, he will be tendered a reception by his former parishioners and Duluth friends.

WEST END

"DRY" PARADE ON JULY 4

Good Templar Lodges Will Unite in Temperance Demonstration.

The joint committee from the three Good Templar lodges of the West end and West Duluth, which has charge of the arrangements for a "dry parade" on the Fourth of July will hold its first meeting June 1, at the office of L. A. Simonson, Columbia building, Third avenue west and Superior street.

At this time the details of the affair will be worked out, and a chairman selected. It has been decided to invite other temperance organizations to join the march, and, if the plans of the committee do not fail, the "cold water" demonstration will be the largest that Duluth has seen for some time.

The joint committee represents the North Star lodge of the West end and the Morning Star and Lysglimt lodges of West Duluth.

Mrs. Reppe Entertains.

Mrs. E. O. Reppe entertained about thirty of her friends last evening at her home, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Second street. The occasion was the birthday anniversary of Mr. Reppe. During the evening games were played and an informal musical program rendered. Refreshments were served.

Sells Clothing Store.

Alfred Johnson, who has for years run a clothing store at 1606 West Superior street, this week sold his stock of clothing and fixtures to the Eastern Salvage company. Mr. Johnson is one of the oldest business men at the West end. He intends to take a vacation before entering into business again at some other location.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Katharine Johnson of 329 North Nineteenth avenue west returned yesterday from St. Paul, where she has been on a visit.

Mrs. J. H. Lent of Hibbing is in the West end as the guest of her mother, Mrs. Samuel Stevens of 2231 West Third street.

S. G. McTaggert has purchased the confectionery store and ice cream parlor at 2502 West Third street, formerly conducted by Joseph Peer.

C. R. Magney, a local attorney, delivered an address on "County Option" last evening at Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street. He spoke before a meeting of the Men's club.

The Adams Athletic association last evening gave a well attended dancing party, at Lincoln park. A feature of the party was the "red fire dance."

Mrs. Samuel Stevens of 2231 West Third street, who has been ill for the past two weeks, is reported to be slowly recovering.

Evan Evanson has gone to St. Paul on a visit with relatives.

Miss Daisy Gardiner of Fargo, N. D., is the guest of friends at the West end and at Superior.

George Bissett, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stone of 424 Twentieth avenue west for the past few days, has left for St. Paul.

THE EASTERN SALVAGE CO.

MUST DISPOSE OF ENTIRE STOCK WITHIN TEN DAYS!

WE HAVE BOUGHT the stock of Alfred Johnson at a very low price and now it is up to the public of Duluth to take advantage of this great opportunity. Remember that this sale can last but ten days only, positively no longer time as we must vacate the store within this limited time, and therefore we must slaughter the goods at almost any price. NEVER AGAIN WILL YOU GET SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY.

A GOLDEN MONEY-SAVING EVENT THAT COMES BUT ONCE IN A LIFETIME. Right here before you now you will do yourself a great injustice if you don't take advantage of this great event. Think of it! This is not a shoddy stock brought in here to be disposed of, but one of the cleanest stocks in the city, bought from a reliable merchant right in your own town. It is a well-known fact to all that Mr. Johnson carried but the very finest goods in the city and we can verify this statement. If you call at the store and examine the stock you will admit that there is not a merchant in this city that can show you a finer stock than Mr. Johnson carries. The only cheap thing about this stock is the prices, and they are certainly ridiculously low. As we must get rid of every stitch of these goods, no matter what price it brings—cost or value is no consideration with us now.

This is a bona fide closing out sale. # MEMORIAL FOR MONARCH

Sunday School Convention Delegates Honor Memory of Edward VII.

Taft Talks and Introduces Mrs. Taft--Race Question Raised at Meeting.

Washington, May 20.—Memorial services to King Edward VII were held simultaneously at 11 a. m. today in three of the city's largest churches by the 3,000 or more delegates to the world's sixth Sunday school convention. At the close of the prayers and the reading of the memorial service, the delegates sang the first stanza of "America" and then the first stanza of "God Save the King."

Rev. F. B. Meyer of London presided at one service, Rev. Carey Bonner, general secretary of the Sunday School Union of Great Britain, presided at another, and the third was conducted by Edward K. Warren, a past president of the world's convention.

President Taft was the central figure at last night's session. At a mass meeting in Convention hall, which was surrounded by a crowd fully as large as the 6,000 within the structure, he acknowledged the Bible school as a powerful force in the moral and educational uplift of the world. Again and again his utterances on this subject were cheered to the echo.

Mrs. Taft Present.

Mrs. Taft made her first appearance since she was taken ill, about a year ago, at this meeting. Mr. Taft introduced her to the immense audience, as the real "President of the United States." After the president had finished his speech, Rev. Dr. F. B. Meyer, who occupied the chair, mentioned Mrs. Taft's presence, whereupon the nation's chief executive took her by the hand and led her up into the speaker's stand. Loud applause greeted her appearance. Except for an occasional visit to the theaters and one or two gatherings at which only her intimate friends were present, Mrs. Taft has not been seen in public for twelve months.

The race question has invaded the convention. Local negro Sunday school leaders are protesting because members of their race are to be barred from the monster Bible class parade.

Members of the local committee say the negro Sunday schools of the District of Columbia have had plenty of opportunities to join the Sunday school association of the District without taking advantage thereof, and that therefore they have "no more right in the parade," as the chairman of the committee expressed it, "than if they were members of a labor union or any other unaffiliated organization."

THE IDLE SOPH.

The psychology students of Harvard are repeating a new witticism of their brilliant teacher, Prof. William James.

Prof. James, it appears, made this comment upon a very exquisite and very idle millionaire sophomore from New York:

"What time he can spare from the adornment of his person he devotes to the neglect of his duties."

THOROUGHBRED CATTLE ONLY

Farmers Near Barnum Will Raise No More "Scrub" Cattle.

Nothing but blooded Guernsey cattle will be raised by farmers in the vicinity of Barnum in future, as the result of the action of the Farmers' Stockbreeding association of that place.

The farmers figure that it costs no more to raise a thoroughbred cow worth from $75 to $150 than it does to raise a "scrub" cow worth $30 or $40. They therefore got together and with the assistance of H. C. Hanson, a banker at Barnum, purchased six thoroughbred Guernsey bulls. Mr. Hanson loaned the association $1,000 without interest for two years, to buy the bulls. They have been received at Barnum and will be used for breeding purposes.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

An engagement of much interest in Duluth has been announced at Calumet by Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Whisler, who have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lucille Whisler, to Dr. Varier of Calumet, who is of the staff of physicians of the Calumet & Hecla mines. Miss Whisler is well known in Duluth society, being the niece of Mrs. John Panton of this city, and having spent a year with her aunt here. She is well known among the younger society people. The engagement was announced at a luncheon of thirty covers last Saturday at which Mrs. Whisler was hostess. The wedding will not take place until next spring.

NO LECTURES.

Mrs. Potter Unable to Come to Duluth.

Word has been received by the lecture committee of the Twentieth Century club that the series of three lectures which were to have been given by Frances Squire Potter before the club, will of necessity be cancelled and Mrs. Potter will not visit Duluth this year. The message was received from Mrs. Potter from her former home at Elmira, N. Y., where she is resting after an arduous year. The lectures were to have been early in the club year last autumn, but were postponed from time to time owing to other duties which came to the speaker after assuming the secretaryship of the National Suffrage association. Mrs. Potter has, however, resigned from the suffrage work, and next year will study to take the degree of doctor of philosophy. There is much regret by Mrs. Potter and the local club women at the unfortunate outcome of the year's plans.

WORLD TRIP.

Miss Monroe of Chicago to Encircle Globe.

Miss Harriet Monroe, an art critic of Chicago, who was considered by the Art association as one of the lecturers during the exhibit, was not available at this time, as she left Chicago last Tuesday for New York to sail for Europe on the 24th of the month. Miss Monroe is leaving for a trip around the world, the noticeable feature, in this day when globe circling journeys are no longer unique, being in the fact that she is traveling alone and will not become a member of a party at any time. Miss Monroe will go from Europe to India, then to China, where her sister, Mrs. W. J. Calhoun, resides in the American legation with her husband, Amissador Calhoun, and from there Miss Monroe will visit Japan, returning in January.

ART LECTURE.

J. W. Young to Talk on American Art.

In connection with the art exhibit which will be held on the top floor of the courthouse, for two weeks beginning next Monday, there will be a lecture by J. W. Young of Chicago on "American Art for Americans," which will be illustrated with sciopticon slides made by color photography. The lecture has been given by Mr. Young in many American cities, and it promises to be of unusual interest. The slides that illustrate Mr. Young's talk are beautiful and selected with great care. The lecture will be given in the high school auditorium Thursday evening of next week.

It is Mr. Young who has presented the etching of Innes' "Midsummer Pastoral" to the art society as a prize for the best article on either one of two subjects, "What an Art Association Can Mean to Duluth" or "Is It Best for Art Development that We Study and Know the Art of Our Own Time and Country in Preference to that of Others?"

Sunday Service.

The speaker at the Sunday afternoon devotional service at the Young Women's Christian association will be Miss Bertha Ridge. The soloist will be Miss Ruth B. Patrick.

Church Social.

Mrs. W. M. Hillis entertained the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Union church, Disciples, last evening at her home, 426 Fourth avenue west.

Evening Party.

George H. Rowe entertained a stag party last evening at his home, 222 West Third street. Cards were the amusement of the evening and a Dutch lunch was served.

Papot Lecture.

The third lecture in the series on French civilization being presented at high school auditorium by M. Benedict Papot will be presented tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The lectures are of much interest and a large number of Duluthians are in attendance.

Missionary Society.

The regular meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church was held this afternoon at the church parlors. The outline for study was as follows:

Devotional .....
Mrs. McGaughey.
Roll call—"From Our Stations".....
Slam and Laos .....
Mrs. Whipple.
Porto Rico and Cuba.....
Mrs. Hanson.

WILL PRESENT "ANTIGONE" AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

MARGARET ANGLIN.

Margaret Anglin, whose few years of active work at the head of her own company have resulted in achievements of the most commendable type, seems built upon lines that will not admit of a moment's idleness. Instead of spending the summer in rest and recreation, as do most playerfolks, Miss Anglin is to make a tour to the coast to last all summer, a tour made necessary by her decision to meet all her obligations as an independent manageress before joining forces with Messrs. Liebler & Co. in the production of a new comedy next fall. Not only will Miss Anglin allow herself no vacation this year, but she has mapped out extra work for herself. On or about the Fourth of July at the Greek theater of the University of California, at Berkeley, Miss Anglin and a specially selected company of players will present the Edward Hayes Plumptre version of Sophocles' "Antigone" for a single performance. This performance will be given under the auspices of the university itself, and great pains are to be taken to have the mounting and staging archaeologically and otherwise correct. Needless to say, the plan involves a lot of hard work on Miss Anglin's part, but she will have the consolation of knowing that the West, at least, regards the forthcoming production as the most noteworthy event of the season.

TRY THIS DINNER

Boston Oyster Stew.

Bring a quart of oysters with their own liquor and a cup of water to the boil. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Split and butter six Boston crackers, pour the boiling soup over them, add two cups of boiling cream (or milk) and serve at once.

Meat—Mock Breaded Lamb Chops.

Place in a bowl two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one cupful of hickorynut meats chopped fine, but not ground; one teaspoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of grated onion. Pour one cupful of milk into a sauce pan and thicken with a little butter and flour. Bring it to a boil, then pour in the crumbs and nuts and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Stir well, remove from the stove, and when slightly cool, stir in a well-beaten egg carefully, also one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Spread out about an inch thick on a flat dish to cool, and when cold cut into triangular pieces and round the tops with a knife, to resemble lamb chops. Dip in egg and bread crumbs, and insert in the pointed end a short piece of macaroni or a broad noodle, to simulate the bone on the chop. Fry in boiling olive oil or nut butter. This makes a delicious dish, akin to chicken or young lamb in flavor, and is pretty served on a plate garnished with parsley, green peas or with a tomato dressing.

Vegetables—Peas in Cups.

Select very light colored beets, cut off the tops and slightly gash the skin that they may bleed while cooking. When cold scoop out the center of each to form a cup. Open a can of peas, rinse thoroughly and let stand in cold water for an hour. Drain, put in a saucepan with buttered bread; season to taste, using a sprinkling of sugar. Put over the fire just long enough to become very hot, fill the cups and serve.

Dessert—Macaroon Bisque.

Place two cups of fine macaroon crumbs in a bowl with one-quarter cup of sherry, one-half cup of orange juice and one cup of candied cherries cut fine, and let them stand over night. Dissolve one teaspoon of granulated gelatine in as little water as possible and add to this mixture six heaping tablespoons of powdered sugar. Whip a pint of cream very stiff and mix all together. Pack in ice and salt and let stand for several hours.

THE KITCHEN

German Mock Duck.

To prepare German mock duck take one pound of raw top-size of beef, one pound of raw lean veal, four ounces of cooked fat bacon, four ounces of fresh bread crumbs, three teaspoonfuls of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful each of grated lemon rind, powdered sage and chopped onion, three raw eggs, salt, pepper, mustard and about a teacupful of dried bread crumbs.

Chop the two meats and bacon very finely, mix them with the fresh crumbs, parsley, onion, sage, lemon rind and a little seasoning.

Put a teaspoonful of made mustard into a basin, add the raw eggs, beat them well together, then pour them on to the meat, etc., and mix and knead them well together. Taste and see if the seasoning is correct.

From the mixture into the shape of a roly-poly pudding, and roll it under well-coated in the dried crumbs.

Next wrap it up in a stout piece of well-greased paper, tying it on so that it will not open.

Bake it in a moderately hot oven for two hours. Leave until slightly cool, then reroll it in browned crumbs, such as are used for coating hams, if the other crumbs have not browned nicely. When quite cold serve, whole, or cut in thin slices, with some good salad.

Empress Pudding.

To make an empress pudding boil half a pound of rice in enough milk to cover. As soon as soft stir in two ounces of butter. When a little cool add three well-beaten eggs, stir well. Place a layer of bread crumbs in the bottom of a baking dish, a layer of rice and jam, then alternate layers of rice and jam until the dish is full. Bake forty minutes, and serve hot or cold with sweetned cream.

Browning Bottom Pie Crust.

To prevent the lower pie crust becoming soggy, sprinkle granulated sugar on the lower crust before the filling is put in, and it will be as brown and crisp as the top.

WHEN SILENCE ISN'T GOLDEN.

By MRS. GEORGE BRANDT WINTHROP.

"Silence is golden," says the proverb. But I think silence is a virtue that is very much overpraised. The proverb is far too sweeping. Silence may be golden at times. But in the ordinary run of things, instead of being a quality to be lauded and cultivated, silence ought to be forbidden, like smoking in cars and driving on the wrong side of the road.

It is true that we all talk too much at times. It is true that we are sometimes indiscreet, and tell things we promised not to tell. It is true that now and then we say things that would have been much better left unsaid.

But, nevertheless, I really think it is better to talk too much than too little.

Is the silent woman sought after in society? You know she isn't. It is the cheerful chatterer who is overwhelmed with invitations.

Men rail at women's gossip, but when the average man comes home at night he likes his wife to talk to him.

As for men—well, it really is something of a trial to live with a man who has nothing to say.

Of course, there is a tradition to the effect that the ponderous, serious individual, who only makes a remark once in a blue moon, is "deep" and "profound" and "wise."

But nobody who knows really believes all that. We know that when a man doesn't talk it is much more likely to be because he is dull and stupid, and has really nothing to say, or because he won't take the trouble to be agreeable, than because he is so chock full of wisdom that he dare not let fall a stray pearl of speech.

And there are times when the most reckless, the most malicious talker alive could not wound as cruelly as the individual who just says nothing. Speechlessness is a whip which many a tyrant holds over the unfortunates who are doomed to live with them.

Perhaps he comes home to dinner, or down to breakfast, with a black brow that makes everybody in the household quake with fear. Something is wrong. Nobody knows what. He eats and drinks in grim silence. He reads the paper with a portentous dumbness which makes his wife shake in her chair.

The servants speak in bated breath. The children hush their prattle, move about on tiptoes and speak in awed whispers. The baby is whisked out to the kitchen, and the cat retires to the cellar until the Great One deigns to speak again.

A man like that sometimes takes credit to himself for being too much of a gentleman to say anything harsh to his wife. But if he smashed up the furniture and swore like a trooper and knocked his womenfolk about he would be no more brutal, really.

And then sometimes, too, we keep silence about the wrong things. We are ready enough to talk about people's faults. But we seem to make it a point of honor to keep silence about their good qualities.

Justice is justice. If we are going to indulge in large, eloquent bursts of silence about people's good qualities, let us refrain from mentioning their bad ones, too.

Most people can forgive harsh and impatient words. They know how often they themselves say things without really meaning them.

But few find it easy to forgive a silence that perhaps has gone on for years.

Don't—don't let that fatal proverb tempt you into trying to be a sphinx.

THE EVENING STORY

OUT OF THE DEAD PAST.

By Mortimer Bates.

"Help, help, help!"

The frightened cry rang out in the deep, strong tones of a man.

Frank Heath sprang to his feet. Proposals rarely meet with so dramatic an interruption. He had just told Minnie Joyce of his love for her, and was anxiously awaiting her reply, when this startling appeal came from the adjoining room.

All Heath could see, on rushing in was a workman standing before a great safe, struggling frantically with the locks.

"What on earth is the matter, man?" he exclaimed, as nothing alarming met his gaze.

"The lock's jammed, and my son's inside!" sobbed the man, never ceasing his desperate efforts.

Heath remembered that the locksmiths had been called in by his sweetheart's father to repair the safe, the fastenings having got out of order. The rest needed no explanation—the son had gone inside to observe the lock's workings, and the door had by some means slammed to.

Never was time more precious if life were to be saved. Heath eyed the safe critically, and gave the prisoner thirty—perhaps forty—minutes to live. He glanced hurriedly through the locksmith's tools, thinking hard the while. "Are these all the things you've got?" he asked.

"Yes!" replied the man, never pausing to look up.

Sweat stood on his forehead and tears on his cheeks as the muffled sounds reached him from within.

"Send to the works for more tools—quick!" he continued. He'll be dead before I can open it with these things."

"Where are your works?" asked Heath.

"Yonkers, five miles away. But don't don't waste time, for heaven's sake! Go!"

The agonized tones touched the listener's heart. He ran from the room, almost colliding with his sweetheart outside.

"Quick, Minnie, get your car round! There's no time to hunt up your chauffeur, I can't drive, you must. Come!"

Minnie, seeing her lover's earnestness, did his bidding without asking a single question. In an incredibly short time they were speeding down the drive. Once in the road the girl put the car at its top speed, and took a firmer grip on the steering wheel.

"What has happened?" she asked, now making her first inquiry.

"A boy has been accidentally locked in the safe," he replied tersely.

"Oh!" she cried, at once realizing the terrible urgency of the situation. "Are you going to Yonkers for help?"

Heath did not answer for a moment; strange thoughts were passing through his brain.

"Supposing a life were trembling in the balance, could a man be expected to save it, if doing so threatened to wreck all his fondest hopes just when they appeared to be on the verge of realization?" he said at last.

"How can I decide such a difficult point?" He dare not throw a life away. And yet—yet the other would be very hard."

"I'm glad you recognize that, Minnie. Here's my place. Stop the car."

The girl drew up with a sudden jolt and the man sprang out. "Turn!" he cried, as he disappeared into the rambling, old-fashioned house which he inhabited.

He reappeared, racing down the path with a bag which emitted a metallic clink as he threw it into the car. The next instant they were flying side by side over the country road.

Heath's place was little more than a mile from Squire Joyce's place, so a valuable saving of time had been effected.

No time was lost in reaching the Joyce mansion again, and Heath went to work upon the safe with a strange skill that effected the release of the imprisoned boy in time to save his life.

Mr. Joyce was there and regarded the operation with a puzzled air. So did the locksmith, who remarked: "You have some odd tools there, sir."

"Yes," Heath replied. "I have a queer fancy for collecting them."

'And the way you used them, sir. Why, an expert cracksman—"

"Hadn't you better take your son out a drop more brandy?" broke in Mr. Joyce.

The locksmith promptly acted upon the suggestion, and when he returned the room was empty. It's late occupants stood facing each other in the library.

"I suppose you think an explanation necessary?" said Heath presently, turning to the old gentleman.

"Well, it all depends. I have no desire to pry into any man's business so long as he is nothing to me."

Heath caught the drift of the remark, and saw in it an intimation that his recent attentions to Minnie had not gone unnoticed by her father.

Had it not been for this awkward occurrence she would, in all probability, have been by now his promised wife.

He resolved to make a clean breast of it and stand or fall as the man he was.

"I see that my possession of this bag and its contents have aroused your suspicions of me, and justly, too. It holds a complete set of safe-breaking tools. They are mine, and years ago I gained my living by using them.

"In my anxiety to work my way back into the ranks of respectability, I have, I fear, been guilty of deceit. Though I belong to a good family, a series of misfortunes, with which I will not trouble you, threw me on my own resources without a penny, and ignorant of any trade by which I could earn one. When almost starving, I turned dishonest, and found many ready to help me on the downward course.

"The end was inevitable. I was caught and sent to prison. There I had ample time for reflection, and grew to loathing myself for obtaining a livelihood by such degrading methods.

"I stepped out into the world, when liberated, determined that not even starvation itself should drive me into my old paths. That phase of my life I lived under a false name; with my new resolves I took my own again. You know the success I have had in winning a new and honorable place in the world.

"When the accident happened I knew the boy's chance was slight, and my thoughts flew to those things. There was a moment when I felt disposed to stake his life and ride to the town for help. I had just asked your daughter to become my wife, and was fearful that an exposure of the past would put me forever beyond the pale of her affections.

"Then I thought of this man working frantically at the safe inside which his son was surely dying. And I—well, what could I do?"

"Of course, I see that all this must end our friendship, and, to save you any awkwardness, I will leave the neighborhood without delay. Our intimacy, though it has grown up under a misapprehension on your part as to my character, has been very dear to me, and I shall always look back to it with pleasure.

"I think you, Minnie, will understand that I regret now, more than ever before, my—my lapse into dishonesty."

Heath could not trust himself to say another word, so picking up the fateful bag, he made his way to the door.

"My boy," said Mr. Joyce, stepping in front of him. "I've known you three years, and in that time I've never found you guilty of an action unworthy of a gentleman. Can I, then, allow you to cut yourself adrift from us? No. We'll still be friends, past or no past.

"As for Minnie, you must look to her for her decision."

And, with a hearty handshake, he left the room.

"Its your decision that matters most," said Heath, approaching the silet girl diffidently.

"I believe with dad," she replied quietly, looking shyly up at him, "that it's the present that counts and not the past."

WHAT IS YOUR IDEAL MAN?

BY POLLY PAGET.

What is your ideal man, for, of course, you have one—every girl has?
Must he be handsome, or will you be satisfied to have him ruggedly plain?
Is he tall and dark, with flashing eyes, or fair, with lazy blue eyes?
Must he command, or must he yield to your slightest whim?
If you were suddenly brought face to face with your ideal man, I wonder would you love him or would you be disappointed in the demi-god your fancy has created?

A girl frequently changes her ideal, and sets him up in new qualities. She even has the temerity to change his personal appearance, but some of the chief characteristics remain. Though hardly recognizable to others, to her he is still her dream man.

These dream men seem very real sometimes, and every man you meet is measured by the dream man standard.

Sometimes the dream man interferes seriously with a girl's prospects in life. She takes right hold of her heart strings and her imagination, and won't let her appreciate the good qualities of some real flesh and blood man who comes a-wooing her.

How can she find room in her heart for the real man when heart and mind are already tenanted by the dream man?

When I was at school I had an ideal hero, and he filled my foolish little head to such an extent that when I first left school I was disappointed in every man I met.

Had he really existed, I am sure that he would have been a terribly conceited prig, and would have bored me unutterably.

But there is one thought that is reassuring, my dear little sisters, and that is, that even though the ideal man may fail you, there are still thousands of splendid real men waiting to step into the place in your hearts left vacant by the dream man.

NEW SECRETS OF HEAVENS

May Be Revealed By Lens For Mount Wilson Observatory.

Great Reflector Cast in France Will Soon Be Tested.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—Recently there appeared in a British periodical an article written by an Englishman seriously discussing the theory that Andrew Carnegie and Dr. George E. Hale had built the observatory on Mount Wilson in an endeavor to get a corner on solar energy. The article has caused amusement in scientific circles, where the Mount Wilson observatory is looked upon as the greatest contribution that has yet been made to the science of astronomy.

In spite of the fact that the big "snow telescope" is visible from Los Angeles, there is probably little conception here of the importance the observatory promises to play in the development of astronomical science. The coming of the famous astronomers of the world this summer for a convention here will do more to call attention to the progress of Los Angeles as a scientific center than anything that has yet occurred.

Within a month or six weeks there will be an item of news at the observatory which will interest the entire world. It will be known at that time whether the 100-inch lens recently cast in France is to be a success or not. If so, new secrets of the heavens will be revealed as soon as it can be set up on Mount Wilson.

The attempt to cast the big reflector was once before made and the result was a failure. It takes several months for the big casting to cool, and the second one is in that process now. The first reports are that it will probably come out all right.

Mr. Carnegie's recent visit to Mount Wilson means that the dome for this new instrument will be provided without question. The success of the 60-inch reflector now in use assures the support of the Carnegie Institute and its founder. The new building will be expensive, and will complete the construction so far as Dr. Hale's plans go. The original plans for the observatory are already fulfilled in the equipment in daily use.

Difficulties to Be Overcome.

Some idea of the difficulties to be overcome in mounting the big lens that is coming, will be gained from the fact that it weighs five tons. This piece of glass must be hung so that it will move with perfect ease in order to be kept in a fixed position by the clock-work attachment which overcomes the motion of the earth. Dr. Hale's invention is a steel bearing floating in mercury, a principal in use on the 60-inch lens which weighs one ton.

Astronomers originally doubted the efficiency of the larger lenses. It has been demonstrated that the spectra of the stars are increased in ratio corresponding to the size of the lens, and with the 100-inch disk there are remarkable possibilities of developing new facts in regard to the universe.

This lens, weighing five tons, will have to be transported to the top of a mountain a mile high, where tons of the original material for construction had to be packed over a narow trail on the backs of burros. The wagon trail built for the purpose of getting the 60-inch lens to the top will again prove indispensable.

Vertical Solar Telescope.

An interesting operation is going on at present in the construction of a vertical solar telescope. It was found that for longer observations of certain phenomena of the sun the snow telescope did not offer the best conditions, although it fulfilled the purpose for which it was built.

In order to test his idea of a vertical tower Dr. Hale had a water tower erected and made steady by guy ropes. With this he obtained such good results that he decided upon a vertical tower. This is to be 165 feet in height in order to give a focal length of 150 feet from the reflector to the point where the image is recorded. With the equipment he will be able to get an image of the sun 16 inches in diameter.

In order to use a tower 165 feet in height for photographic purposes and long exposures, where the object is simply a ray of light, it was necessary to resort to novel means for avoiding vibration. It took months of wrestling with the problem to work out the comparatively simple idea of erecting a double tower no parts of which should touch each other. The outer tower, which takes all the vibration of the wind, is built of hollow shafts. Tht base rests upon concrete blocks floating loosely in the sand. The inner wind, is built of hollow shafts. The but touches them at no point, and the foundations of this are carried down to solid rock. The inner tower supports the instruments which will probably be in the most absolute state of repose that has been established against the influence of the elements.

Enlarged Spectroscope.

With this instrument the spectroscope of the sun's rays will be increased from a length of eighteen feet to seventy-five feet, giving a broader opportunity for analysis. This tower will be completed in time for use at the astronomical congress this summer.

There are difficulties even on the top of Mount Wilson in obtaining an uninterrupted view of the sun. Any one who has visited a mountain peak on a bright warm day has noticed the heat waves rising from the exposed earth, which heats up very rapidly. These waves interfere with the steadiness of the image, but in raising the reflected mirror to a height of 165 feet and taking the sun's image vertically it is hoped to avoid this difficulty.

Alice in Wonderland found no more remarkable state of affairs than the layman who has a sufficient smattering of scientific training to appreciate what he sees on Mount Wilson. Sun spots are discovered, quarried out, bottled, preserved, taken into the laboratory on a tray, vivisected, analyzed—in fact, are treated like a specimen of ore or any other inorganic substance. In the course of time, when sufficient evidence has been accumulated, the world may look for further interesting announcements from Mount Wilson.

TO PAY OFFICERS' DEBTS.

Fund Established for Officers of Austro-Hungarian Army.

London, May 20.—The question of freeing the officers of the Austro-Hungarian army from the weight of their personal debts, a matter which has long engaged the attention of high military circles, has at last been solved. A fund consisting of some millions of kronen will be established and the first draft upon it for the purpose indicated will be made on Aug. 18 next, the 80th birthday of the Emperor Francis Joseph.

The capital sum, it is understood, will be 50,000,000 kronen and the interest on this amount will be advanced to the officers for the purpose of discharging their obligations. The capital has been drawn from the Maria Theresa fund from the funds left by the late Archduke Albrecht for the support of charitable institutions and support of charitable institutions and from a bank loan. The Maria Theresa fund is particularly wealthy and from it the Knights of Maria Theresa draw their considerable pensions. As, however, there remains only one home knight of the Maria Theresa order, Baron Fejervary, and two foreign knights, the Count of Caserta and the Duke of Cumberland, the fund has gone on increasing year by year.

The assistance to the officers will be dispensed with the utmost prudence. The highest sums granted will be 3,000 kronen to a lieutenant, 5,000 kronen to a first lieutenant and 8,000 kronen to a captain.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovvery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Cougas, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

GREAT JUBILEE TO TAKE PLACE

Garibaldi's Victory Over the Bourbon Troops to Be Celebrated.

Rome, May 20.—Great preparations are being made both at Genoa and Palermo to celebrate the jubilee of Garibaldi's famous expedition which freed Sicily from the Bourbons in 1860. The "Thousand of Marsala," whose exact number was 1,089, sailed from "the fatal rock of Quarto," recently declared a national monument, on the night of May 5, 1860, landed at Marsala on May 13, and attacked Palermo exactly a fortnight from the day of the landing. But the Palermitan commemoration will begin somewhat earlier with a grand procession, which will be followed by an aviation week, horse races and a national and patriotic excursion, organized by the Italian Touring club, from Quarto to Marsala, and thence to Salemi and Calatafimi, the scene of Garibaldi's victory over the Bourbon troops on May 15.

All the surviving members of the "Thousand," decimated by war and the lapse of a half century, will endeavor to take part in this expedition and fight their battles over again upon the spot; and on May 27, the fiftieth anniversary of Garibaldi's attack upon the Sicilian capital, the monument to them will be unveiled in the Piazza della Liberta of that city.

A regatta and a motor race for the Florio shield will conclude the celebrations in Sicily, while the Genoese will march in procession to the rock of Quarto and will organize a pious pilgrimage to the tomb of Garibaldi at Caprera.

MARY IDA CALLED UP

By Telephone and Found There Was Another Mrs. Hamilton.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 20.—Franklin S. Hamilton, president of the Washington Life and Annuity society, treasurer of the Lincoln Trust company, and connected with many other interests here, has been placed under arrest on two charges preferred by Mrs. Mary Ida Hamilton of Philadelphia, who claims to be his wife. One charge is non-support, the other more serious. The Philadelphia woman recently reached Pittsburg and got Hamilton's residence from the telephone book and called up in order to prepare him for a most pleasant surprise. Instead it was the Philadelphia woman who was not only surprised but shocked, for another woman answered the 'phone and said she was Mrs. Hamilton.

ERRORS LOSE CLOSE GAME

Rochester Takes Last Game of Series on Duluth's Misplays.

De Witt Makes Three Fumbles and Other Players Follow Suit.

Rochester, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rochester defeated Duluth here yesterday by the score of 3 to 2. Thorsen was wild and erratic and gave way to Klingebeil, who pitched a good game. Errors on the part of Shortstop De Witt, who contributed three bloomers to the afternoon's entertainment, and by Klingebeil. Alterman and Sweeney assisted in the run getting of the locals.

Rochester's three runs came in the last three innings, after Duluth had a lead. They were the result of errors and stupid playing. Dominick started the game for the Doctors, but was wild and was also hit freely. He gave way to "Rube" Johnson, who held the Sox safe during the remainder of the game.

From statements made here yesterday O'Brien is not satisfied with his team and other changes may be expected. The showing of De Witt has been very poor and the Duluth manager is looking for another player for the shortfield.

SUPERIOR BREAKS OUTCASTS' LONG WINNING STREAK.

La Crosse, Wis., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior is the first team to defeat La Crosse the present season, the Grumblers taking yesterday's game by the score of 5 to 5. Wolford was unsteady and the Dukes bunched hits off his delivery in three innings. In addition to the unsteady slinging of Wolford, the Outcasts made four errors. Lizzette had his right hand injured, the middle finger being broken, and he will be out of the game for some time. Schaeffer took his place behind the bat. Score:

| | R. | H. | E. |

RED WING STILL LOSING; EAU CLAIRE TAKES TWO.

Red Wing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Red Wing continued its mad career as the champion losing team of the league, dropping both games of a double header to Eau Claire yesterday. The first game was won by the score of 8 to 6 and the second by the score of 8 to 2. It required eleven innings to win the first game and some of the fans really believed that the Indians were due to win a game. In the second game the Indians failed to hit Malofie, while the Red Wing flingers proved easy. Scores:

First game— R. H. E.

PIRATES TAKE LAST GAME FROM LUMBERJACKS.

Winona, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winona took yesterday's game from Wausau by the score of 6 to 5. In the fifth the locals accumulated two singles, a double and a triple, in addition to a base on balls, resulting in three runs.

The Lumberjacks seriously threatened in the ninth, when three men on bases and two out, Rowland attempted to score on a single and was nipped at the plate. Score: R. H. E.
Wausau .....1 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 0—5 13 1

Outfielder Is Sold.

Kansas City, Mo., May 20.—William Halligan, an outfielder, whom the local American Association baseball club bought from Pittsburg two years ago, was sold last night to Toledo.

BALDWIN OUTPOINTS SMITH AT NEW YORK.

New York, May 20.—Matty Baldwin of Boston outpointed, outfought and outgeneraled Frankie Smith, the San Francisco lightweight, in their 10-round bout before the Madison Athletic club in Harlem last night. In only one round, the seventh, did Smith make any showing. In that round he floored Baldwin with a left swing to the jaw. Smith proved game and was fighting strongly at the finish.

TOLEDO WINS OUT IN SLUGGING MATCH.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20.—In a heavy hitting game Toledo won the last of the series from Milwaukee, 10 to 9. Abbott was sent in to bat for Kirsch in the eighth inning with the bases full and hit the ball over the fence for a home run, tying the score. Two hits and an error by Robinson won in the ninth. Score: R. H. E.
Milwaukee ....2 1 0 6 1 0 4 0 1—15 10 2
Toledo .....1 2 0 0 0 0 0 5 2—10 10 2

Batteries—Manske and Marshall; Robinson, Boyce, Owens and Land. Umpires—Kusack and Owens.

Games Today.

Detroit at Philadelphia.
Cleveland at New York.
Chicago at Boston.
St. Louis at Washington.

CLOSE GAME GOES TO HIGHLANDERS.

New York, May 20.—New York defeated Cleveland in an exciting ten-inning game yesterday, 4 to 3. The winning run was due to the successive hits by Hemphill, Wolter, Chase and La Porte. The batting of La Jole and Chase yesterday was both hard and timely. Score: R. H. E.
Cleveland .....0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0 0—3 9 2
New York .....0 0 0 0 2 0 1 0 1—4 10 2

Batteries—Joss and Clarke; Quinn, Kleinow and Sweeney. Umpires—Evans and Egan.

LONG WINNING STREAK OF ATHLETICS BROKEN.

Philadelphia, May 20.—Philadelphia's long winning streak was broken when Detroit won by 14 to 2. The latter knocked Krause off the rubber in the fourth inning and also hit Dygert hard. Mullin completely fooled the home players. Score: R. H. E.
Detroit .....0 0 2 7 1 2 1 0 1—14 19 0
Philadelphia ....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—2 5 6

Batteries—Mullin, Browning and Schmidt and Stanage; Krause, Dygert and Thomas. Umpires—Sheridan and Kerin.

BROWNS ARE BLANKED BY WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 20. — Washington bunched hits in two innings yesterday, defeating St. Louis easily, 5 to 0. Johnson was a big puzzle with men on the bases, St. Louis being retired in the ninth after two had hit safe and one walked, a double play winding up the game. Score: R. H. E.
Washington ....3 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—5 8 1
St. Louis .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 7 0

Batteries—Johnson and Street; Graham and Stephens. Umpires—Dineen and Connolly.

BOSTON WINS SLOW GAME FROM CHICAGO.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—Boston won a slow game from Chicago yesterday, 3 to 0. Cicotte kept the visitors' hits well scattered, while in the second inning the locals bunched four hits with an error and scored all their runs. Score: R. H. E.
Chicago .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 6 2
Boston .....0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 x—3 8 1

Batteries—White and Block; Cicotte and Carrigan. Umpires—Perrine and O'Loughlin.

TENNIS TOURNEY WILL BEGIN JUNE 25.

The first tennis tournament of the boat club will begin June 25. The events will be governed by the rules of the National Tennis association. Doubles and singles will be played and suitable trophies offered. The tournament will be open to the members of the club only.

ST. LOUIS REFUSES TO WAIVE ON BECKENDORF.

Detroit, Mich., May 20.—Because St. Louis refused to waive on Catcher Beckendorf, the latter will be retained by the Detroit American league club. It had been planned to let him go to Montreal on terms under which he could be recalled to Detroit when needed.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Some people in Red Wing are disposed to believe that Wilbur Schardt is going to join the Malloy Indians. How the rumor originated it is very hard to understand. There is scarcely any chance that the player will come back to the Minny league, and in that event Safford of La Crosse would have the first chance. McCloskey thinks too much of the youngster to permit him to get away.

• • •

Eau Claire has a horseshoe team, as that wild maverick of the prairie, Kiddie Speer, admits with pathos and tears. So far the team has fallen short of reaching the pinacle of fame mentioned in the Eau Claire papers. If the team is no better than its playing so far has indicated, it will fail to shine in the role of the dark horse.

• • •

"Biddy" Dolan, at first for Wausau, has been banging the horsehide in great style the present season, and if the old boy continues his rude and boisterous treatment of the spheroid he will be one of the sweet little hitters of the Minny. When he does swipe them fairly on the cover the ball generally travels.

• • •

Today the Sox go to Red Wing, where they make motor boats and other interesting things of manufacture, and begin a life and death struggle with Malloy's hired men for the cellar position in the race. It has not been decided to date whether O'Brien will have a new short stop in the game this afternoon. The experimenting at shortstop has not been highly successful as yet. There are few teams that can win games when its members make errors.

• • •

Davey is playing shortstop on the Winona team, and to date has been playing a very good game. Solbraa has for the time being replaced Joe Curtis at first. Whether the former Northern leaguer will get the place from Curtis will probably depend altogether upon his hitting. Weckler has been playing some on the third base corner. There is little danger that the bag will be stolen from Goodman.

Lakoff has been pitching good baseball for the Wausau team the present season. If the Lakoff party had been with a team that won a majority of its games last season, he would have made a most excellent record. If the Lumberjacks play good baseball behind this fellow, he will probably deliver the goods, as he has a lot of stuff.

• • •

How times change. Such a short time ago Mique Malloy was crowing over the glittering prospects that faced his team. In the exuberance of his roguish glee, he made the offer that he would lose $100 should his team fail to beat out Rochester. Those impulsive thoughts that we would fain recall! And it is perfectly fair to remark, "Oh, you fleeting time!"

• • •

It would be really interesting to know the right name of the gink soldering in right field for Wausau. Some of the papers in the sultry end of the circuit have called him Du Chien, others Duchien, still others Du Chine, and one publication called him Duchain. He may be called other names before the season is over.

• • •

Koepping continues his great work at the Winona second sack. In last Wednesday's game against Wausau the little Dutchman had thirteen chances at second. He accepted twelve out of a possible thirteen, one error marring his large day at the half way station. So far the playing of the little fellow has been a feature of the efforts of the Pirates, which fact has had the effect of causing heartburn in Superior.

Alterman, playing rightfield for the Sox, has not risen above the level of his companions—he has failed to do anything of note. It might be pointed out to Darby O'Brien that before the season opens is a very good time to do experimenting. This advise is from the heart out.

• • •

Neelon in centerfield for the Sox has failed to do any hitting as yet. As a fielder there are few that have any thing on this gardener, but there are lots of us on the home ranch that would like to see some hitting in the outfield. That is what an outfielder is supposed to do.

• • •

Jack Corrigan, manager of the Rochester team, has been playing in the outfield in the last few games. In one or two of the earlier games he was seen behind the bat. By the method of progression Jack may be seen on the hill one of these days.

• • •

Dominick, one of the Rochester pitchers, was given a tryout with the St. Paul American Association team. They say the youngster has a lot of stuff but lacks experience. He will get lots of it with Rochester.

• • •

In yesterday's game DeWitt the new shortstop secured one hit. Rather fine of him, but think of those misplays. Alterman promptly missed the only chance he had in the outfield. The disease seemed contagious yesterday.

• • •

Have courage—It will soon be Dauss' turn to go into the box again.

THOMAS GOES DOWN AND OUT

Attempt of Former Champion to Come Back Checked By Papke.

Illinois Thunderbolt Knocks Californian Out in Sixteenth Round.

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—Joe Thomas' attempt to re-establish himself a middleweight champion received a rude setback in his fight last night at Dreamland rink with Billy Papke, the Illinois Thunderbolt. It took Papke sixteen rounds to relegate the Californian to the list of has-beens.

A right swing high on the body sent Thomas to the mat. This was followed by several rights delivered with crushing force which floored Thomas for the count.

A match with Ketchel for the championship next month is assured the victor.

Although defeated, Thomas gave a very good account of himself.

After two rounds, Papke, in the third, drove in several uppercuts to the jaw, and forcing the fighting, rushed Thomas about the ring. There was much clinching and the crowd hissed the fighters repeatedly.

In the fifth round Papke staggered the Californian, landing a vicious right on the jaw that sent his man reeling against the ropes.

In the sixth round the men fought at close quarters, Papke doing the greater execution. Thomas drove in several good body punches but was bleeding from the nose at the end of the round.

Crowd Yells "Fake."

In the seventh Papke swung a powerful right to the jaw and the fighters clinched and wrestled the round out. This sort of milling incurred the displeasure of the spectators, who yelled "fake," "fake." In a mild rally in the eighth round, Thomas whipped in several good body punches.

Thomas improved considerably as the battle progressed and appeared to gain confidence. He landed several wicked body and head punches in the tenth round, Papke countering with a terrific right jolt to the jaw.

After Papke had swung two rights to the stomach in the eleventh, the Californian jolted his right hard to the jaw, forcing Papke to break ground. This was followed up with a wicked left hook to the jaw, that gave him the advantage of the round.

In the twelfth Papke forced his opponent against the ropes, and landed four times with right on the head without a return. Papke continually used his head, which he rammed against the Californian's face and chest.

Thomas Gets Stronger.

A mid-ring rally in the thirteenth found Thomas landing repeatedly on the face with short-arm jolts, and Papke bled steadily from the mouth as they separated from a clinch. Then followed a heavy exchange of rights to the body, and Thomas sent Papke reeling against the ropes with rights and lefts to the jaw as the gong sounded. Thomas had a big lead in this round.

The fourteenth round was featured by Papke's wildness and Thomas' clever footwork. The Californian swung a hard right to the jaw just before the end of the round.

In the fifteenth Thomas drove his man against the ropes with a wicked rush, and then nearly dropped him with a strong right to the jaw. It was a vicious round, with Thomas having the honors.

Papke sent his man to the floor in the sixteenth with a right hook to the stomach. Thomas came up, and was again floored with a right cross to the jaw. Papke went after his victim like a tiger, planting right and left to the jaw. Thomas went crashing to the floor for the third time, and lay until counted out.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Joe Gans is reported to be dying with consumption.

Shortly after the third and last Nelson-Gans fight there was a rumor that the former champion lightweight fighter of the world was a victim of the white plague. Gans and his Baltimore black friends laughed at the rumor. Now the former fighter is reported to be near the end.

Gans has left for Phoenix, Ariz., to make a fight against the dreaded disease. Some time ago he was in Denver, and reports from that city lead to the belief that Joseph was really more ill than his friends were willing to admit. The news that the black is on his way to Arizona, coupled with the description of his appearance, lead to the belief that the rumors regarding the seriousness of the disease were not in the least exaggerated.

If Joe passes away in the desert country, his death will mark the going of possibly the greatest fighter at his weight that the last two decades of pugilism have developed. Gans combined the ability of the fighter with the science of the boxer, a combination seldom seen in the ring.

Learn to Ride.

Danny Maher, a freckle-faced Irish youth, has, perhaps, never gone to school more than a few years and, perhaps, lacks even an initiation into the dark and devious ways of hight finance; yet the little Irish-American possesses the ability to amass small fortunes in a single afternoon.

Maher is a jockey. He has spent the last few years in England. No wonder! The other day he received $25,000 for riding Nell Gow, Lord Rosebery's colt, in the English derby.

Think of it, sons of toil! The little fellow made over $100,000 last season. He expects to make more the present one. If your little Arthur or Willie can't be a successful baseball player, why not teach him to ride?

How About Christy?

Some one might be impolite, or venturesome, or curious, and ask if Christy Mathewson is going back. The way the unfeeling batters of the National league have been slamming the revered benders of the large blonde of late would lead to at least a suspicion.

Even poor St. Louis drove "Big Six" from the box. He started well the present season. Of late he has been doing poorly. Maybe it is only a temporary slump; maybe he is going back. If the great pitcher should begin to lose his grip, the New York Giants would sink to the lower percentage levels of the league.

Matty has been the only factor that has kept the team in the race the last two seasons.

Guess Once More.

An Eastern sport writer calls Tom Needham the master of the big league catchers. Which same is to laugh. Needham is only catching through the indisposition of Kling and Archer. There are at least a dozen receivers in the National league better than poor old Tom.

Pictures Don't Lie.

A Detroit newspaper publishes a picture of Jeffries, sitting quietly by the little brook, in a suit that resembles muchly the altogether. Jeff is ready for a plunge. The picture shows the man training for Johnson in anything but a favorable light.

He looks old and haggard. In fact, he looks anything but an athlete. His face looks listless and tired. In explaining the poor showing of Jeff before the camera man, the paper states that undoubtedly it was the shadows that caused the haggard appearance. Let us hope so.

Oh, Mercy, Mother!

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who is considered a champion still by some members of Philadelphia society, who have seen him work Anthony J. Biddle, is matched to box the Philadelphia "sassity" man. This affair is advertised to be for sweet charity. Anthony is the only one who enjoys these ruffle affairs. He buys the tickets and gives them to his friends. Then the papers are instructed, or asked, to say that the society man and cotillion flirt made a good showing with the fighter in a fight that was savage and scientific.

Look for a Club.

Read the following, from the seat of war, and learn how hard James J. Jeffries is training for the fight with Johnson, and what worry and almost anguish he is causing that gentle spirit, Farmer Burns, he of the sensitive nerves:

"Ben Lomond, Cal.—Jim Jeffries and his fellow fishermen returned from Santa Cruz last night, tired out from their all-day fishing excursion on Monterey bay.

"Motoring home, the party kept a sharp lookout aloft for the comet.

"It was noticed that Farmer Burns was unusually silent and that his commonly serene brow was puckered and corrugated as if by intense cogitation."

What's in a Name?

Porky Flynn is the name of a Boston fighter. Ot least fighting is his profession, and it is not always polite to question unduly. Wonder where he got the name of Porky? After the exhibition he put up with Ketchel, it might be suggested that the name comes from the fact that he is led to slaughter with such unbroken regularity.

Work for Life-Savers.

Now that the high school boys have decided to get together a crew, there may be work for the life saving crew. The boys at the Park Point station lack work at times and life sometimes grows monotonous. But with the high schools practicing in a shell, there promises to be much call on the brave and reckless services of the bell boys.

How Johnson Looks.

Those competent to pass opinion upon a pugilist's condition, and who have had the opportunity of seeing the big cinder, Jack Johnson, at work, as they separated from a clinch. Then state that the black fighter is at the present time in the prime of his athletic career, and that never before has he displayed such power and speed. This, too, at the very beginning of his training for the fight that is almost two months away.

There has been an attempt made to show that Johnson is taking things very carelessly, with the view of making people believe he is not training with the right kind of spirit. Betting has much to do with this attempt, as the fight looks like a huge gambling proposition.

Johnson will probably be in the best shape of his career when he faces Jeffries. It is too bad that the same cannot be said of Jeffries. Interest in the fight has shown a slight decline, simply because the public is beginning to suspect.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

LAST YEAR'S "FIND" IS MAKING GOOD

ZACK WHEAT
Of Brooklyn.

Zack Wheat, the star fielder of the Brooklyn National League team is duplicating his good work of last season. Wheat was one of the finds of last year and his work this year is even better than last.

FAST BOATS ARE COMING

New Speed Craft Is Ordered By Duluth Enthusiast.

According to Capt. R. W. Marshall of the motor boat department of the boat club, several fast motor boats will be seen here the present season, and the chances are very bright that Dick Schell's Dingle Capitol will have plenty of chances of showing its speed.

Mr. Schell is having a new hull built for the Capitol, and into this hull he will have his Capitol engine placed. He believes that the boat will be faster than the old boat, capable of making about thirty miles an hour.

There is a curiosity upon the part of several members of the boat club to ascertain, once for all, just how fast the Schell boat can travel. With this idea in view, it is very probable that several fast boats will be brought here the present summer.

It was stated yesterday that a Duluth man was having a new motor boat built, which would be here very soon. Motor boat department officials stated that they were not at liberty at the present time to give out the name of the man.

The uniform boats of the club have been completed, and will be given their official test at Lake Geneva in a few days. The boats will be shipped here in the course of the next two weeks.

PETTIJOHN HEARD FROM

College Baseball and Football Star May Join Sox in June.

A. W. Kuehnow today received word from Lyle Pettijohn, the crack first baseman of the University of Minnesota baseball team, and also the star end on the football team for the last two seasons.

The heavy-hitting youngster stated that he would probably play professional ball after his graduation from the university, and that there is no team that he would rather be given a trial with than the Duluth team.

Intercollegiate rules would forbid the signing of the promising player before the college term is over, but it is very probable that Pettijohn will come to the Head of the Lakes for a trial with the Sox.

In the games he has played with the varsity team, Pettijohn has shown that he is a hard and timely hitter. He has been banging the spheroid in great shape for the "U" team, and Walter Wilmot, the coach, thinks highly of his playing.

Just what O'Brien intends doing with his team is not known here. He has lost most of the games on the trip simply through errors. Errors lost two games at Winona, one at La Crosse and two at Rochester. Had the infield played decent baseball the team would have won the majority of games played thus far. The "if" is heartbreaking.

None of the men signed thus far by the Irish Orator have shown anything startling. The road is a very bad place to do experimenting. Mr. Kuehnow is willing to spend the money for the players, and it would seem that the delivery of the goods is up to one Patrick Henry O'Brien.

Hard luck and misfortune have played a large part in the losing of games. Poor condition of pitchers, through causes over which they have no control, has figured in the losing of games. But, after all, O'Brien should have had some real players lined up before the season opened.

Once the pitching staff gets in shape, Duluth should start a winning streak. If Cummings is as good the present season as he is expected to be, he will add great strength to the hill squad.

This afternoon a series is started with Red Wing.

FIGHT FANS WORRYING

District Attorney May Bar Big Fight From San Francisco.

Jeffries Resting While Awaiting Arrival of Jim Corbett.

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—The Papke-Thomas mill last night and the general disappointment it brought the fight fans is the main topic of pugilistic discussion here distracting for the moment attention from the Jeffries-Johnson battle status.

Today was expected to bring developments in the big fight situation. District Attorney Fickert having told a committee representing the local church federation that he would be prepared to give a decisive opinion on the city law covering prize fighting.

The belief of the fans that Fickert considered the law favorable to the holding of the fight here was given a rude shock by the rumor in circulation last night. According to that report the district attorney was quoted as saying he did not think there was much chance of Jeffries and Johnson getting together on the San Francisco grounds. Attempts to confirm the rumor proved futile.

Aside from his usual road work Jack Johnson's training operations are not expected to develop any interesting features until Saturday and Sunday, when he is scheduled to box.

Jeffries Is Resting.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 20.—The fact that James Jeffries took another day off from training yesterday leads the camp to believe that he intends to rest on his oars until Jim Corbett arrives here from the East. At least nothing but perfunctory exercise and sparring work is looked for from the former champion until "Pompadour Jim" comes to round off Jeffries' preparations for the July fight with fast, scientific boxing.

Jeffries has accomplished the hardest part of his conditioning process already, he is considered by himself and his trainers to be in splendid form and his letup on gruelling work is generally regarded as a wise move.

No boxing has been done by Jeffries since last Sunday, but from time to time on boxing probably will constitute his main daily work. Speed and cleverness will be his aim henceforth, and so the gloves must come in for constant usage.

"All O. K.," is the camp's summary of the Jeffries situation.

Rickard Will Referee.

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—Tex Rickard yesterday set at rest all rumors that his selection as referee of the big fight was temporary.

"I am going to referee that fight," said Rickard. "Both Jeffries and Johnson have said they want me, my selection seems to have met with public approval and I have big money at stake. The referee business is settled and I am the man."

BLOW OF BASEBALL

On Man's Head Changed Model Citizen Into a Criminal.

Somersville, N. J., May 20.—That the blow of a baseball on the head can change a man of the highest moral rectitude into a daring and expert criminal is the view expressed by the police in their explanation to the court of charges brought against William Miller of Raritan, N. J.

The police state that before his baseball accident several weeks ago Miller was a model in the community. But after that accident, his friends say, he frequently had periods of apparent aberration, when he would become morose and disappear from their view for several hours. When he returned he seemed to be again happy and was unable to recall anything that had happened in the meantime.

During one of these periods of aberration, the police say, they caught Miller robbing a railroad ticket office and that at another time they caught him looting cash registers in a local department store.

Miller declares that he has no recollection of these acts and the police are convinced he is not shamming.

FOUND SOMETHING TO CURE ECZEMA

Trial Results in Complete Cure of Fifteen-Year Case in Two Weeks.

In a letter published in his lodge paper, Mr. F. O. Thompson, of Elizabeth, N. J., states that he was a sufferer from eczema for fifteen years, and one day spoke about his trouble to Dr. L. E. Todd. "Dr. Todd replied that he had something that would relieve if not permanently cure me," says Mr. Thompson, "but after treatment for so many years I had grave doubts. The doctor produced a box of poslam, and I promised to give it a faithful trial. I followed directions, and in two weeks' time find myself entirely cured. The fifty cents I paid for the box was the best investment I ever made."

Not alone eczema, but every surface skin disease is permanently eradicated by poslam, itching being stopped at once.

Write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city, for a free trial package of poslam. With this sample alone complexions may be cleared and pimples banished from the face. The Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett in Duluth, and the A. E. Holmberg Drug company in Superior, as well as all good druggists everywhere, always carry poslam in the regular sizes at 50 cents and $2.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WOUNDED BY HIS BROTHER

Near Tragedy Is Enacted in Town of Angus, in Polk County.

Playing With "Unloaded" Rifle, Lad Shoots 11-Year-Old Brother.

Crookston, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While turning a barrel churn at the farm of his parents near Angus yesterday, Oliver Goodwin, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Goodwin, was shot in the side, a rifle bullet inflicting an ugly wound which will not prove fatal. Oliver's younger brother was playing near him with a rifle which was not supposed to be loaded, but was suddenly discharged. The bullet struck his side and was turned from its course by a rib. Had it entered a couple of inches lower, or between two of his ribs the bullet would have pierced his stomach or intestines and would probably have resulted fatally.

An amusing incident in connection with the serious affair was the remark of Oliver's little brother, who when chided for having played with a rifle remarked: "Oliver is too little to be churning anyway," an argument that probably will appeal to many little Olivers now that the fishing season is on in full swing.

LARGE GROWTH OF UPPER MICHIGAN

Expected to Be Shown By Census That Has Just Been Taken.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is the expectation that all of the cities and most of the villages of Upper Michigan will be shown by the recent federal census to have materially increased in population since the state enumeration in 1904. It will not be at all surprising if the peninsula as a whole is shown to contain 400,000 people.

The iron and copper mines are employing more men than ever before, there has been a notable growth in manufacturing, operations in the woods are fully as extensive as they have ever been, new railroads have been built and there are a great many more settlers in the agricultural districts than six years ago. It is the belief at Marquette that the census will give the city 12,500 people. Ishpeming expects a population of 14,000, and so does Ironwood. The Soo counts upon 12,000 to 13,000. Negaunee and Iron Mountain upon 10,000 and Manistique 5,000. Menominee and Escanaba, too, have had a very considerable growth the past few years, and so has Gladstone and Bessemer.

The greatest gain in population, however, has been in the Copper country, of which Houghton county is the hub and of which Keweenaw, Ontonagon and Baraga counties form a part. The copper district has only one city, that being Hancock, but it has the biggest villages in the state. The red metal region was never as prosperous as it is at the present time.

FIRST HARMON, THEN GAYNOR

Is Michigan Democrats' Choice for Presidential Candidate.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Ryan of Calumet has returned from attending a conference of Michigan candidates. The meeting decided that if Governor Judson Harmon is re-elected governor of Ohio this fall the Democracy of Michigan will support him for the Democratic nomination for president in 1912, but if he is defeated, Mayor Gaynor of New York will be the choice of Michigan.

Those present at the meeting were E. O. Woo, Flint, national committeeman, John T. Winship of Saginaw; E. Shields of Howell, state chairman; J. Earl Brown of St. Johns; Ed Ryan of Calumet; William Preston of Mackinac; John E. Kinnane, Bay City, and John C. Nagel of Detroit.

So far as the state is concerned, Hemans is regarded as the logical candidate for governor. He has not consented to run as yet, but the Democrats are confident that he will allow his name to be presented in the primary and that he will be unopposed.

NEWSPAPER FOREMAN DEAD.

Auley Matheson, Well-Known in Copper Country, Is Called.

Calumet, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Auley Matheson, for several years in the composing room of the News here and well known in printing circles, died Tuesday evening at the home of his parents in Lucknow, Ont., aged 30. He was married five years ago in this city to Miss Annie MacRae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex MacRae. His wife died three years ago. One child, Bert, who is 4 years of age, survives.

Besides his father and mother, who reside at Lucknow, Ont., four brothers survive. Mr. and Mrs. Alex MacRae, Miss Mamie and Robert MacRae of Calumet are other relatives. Alex MacRae left Wednesday evening for Lucknow to attend the funeral, which will probably be held on Saturday.

WILD GEESE NUMEROUS.

Drying Up of Canadian Lakes, Bringing Water Fowl South.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 20.—The number of wild geese seen throughout the county at this time is a source of considerable comment. About the big lakes they are more numerous than ever before, thousands and thousands feeding in the fields near the lakes through the day and flying to water at night. The reason advanced is that the small lakes and ponds of the Canadian country have dried up and the geese are turning back from the North on this account. Growing crops are being damaged a great deal from the immense flocks, and late sown wheat is being eaten by the geese. They follow a drill row, cleaning the field as they go. In some places the farmers are compelled to herd them off their land in order to protect their crop.

LOGGING WORK ENDED.

By Northern Lumber Company in the Vicinity of Brookston.

Brookston, Minn., May 20.—The logging operations of the Northern Lumber company in this vicinity were finished Tuesday. The company has cut and hauled about 625,000 feet of pine at camp 1 since the winter logging season ended. A couple of weeks will be spent burning the brush and slashings, and at the end of that time the company's entire work on the west side of Stony Brook will have been completed. There are some good stands of spruce and tamarack timber on the lands from which the pine has been removed, and these lands will be subject to homestead entry at some later date.

PICKFORD TOWNSHIP DRY.

Upper Michigan Community to Continue on Water Wagon.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pickford township, in Chippewa county, which has had no saloons for a number of years, will remain "dry." By unanimous vote the township board has adopted a resolution providing for the rejection of any surety bond that may be offered by an applicant for a liquor license. This means that a personal bond, signed by two sureties, must be offered, and that each of the sureties must reside in the township and be possessed of $6,000 worth of real estate, above all incumbrances. As the majority of the people are opposed to the establishment of saloons, it is believed that procuring the bonds has been made practically impossible. Then, too, the township board has the power to fix the license fee at practically prohibitive figures.

ENCAMPMENT SPEAKERS.

Noted Ones Who Will Address the G. A. R. of Wisconsin.

Fond du Lac, Wis., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The speakers engaged for the state G. A. R. encampment, to be held here June 6, 7 and 8, are as follows: Judge W. H. Seaman of Sheboygan; Judge J. V. Quarles of Milwaukee; Capt. Pliny Norcross of Janesville; George W. Spratt of Sheboygan; A. G. Weissert of Milwaukee, former national commander of the national G. A. R.; R. B. Lang of Racine, past department commander; and Judge C. D. Cleveland of Oshkosh, and M. P. Walsh of Milwaukee.

FISH FRY DISTRIBUTED.

State Game and Fish Commission Has Stocked Many Streams.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Distribution of pike fry for 1910 has been nearly completed by the state game and fish commission, under the supervision of E. W. Cobb, who is in charge of the state fish hatcheries. Pike fry is planted during April and the first half of May, this being the period when the pike are spawning.

Pike and trout fry are distributed during the spring, but bass fry go into the waters of the state during July. A couple of hundred million pike fry have been planted this spring, says Mr. Cobb. All of the eggs from which these miniature fish were hatched were collected from the waters of Minnesota.

Early in spring spawn gatherers visited Vermilion lake, near Tower, the lakes near Pequot and Rainy River lake. At these three points the seine was put into use, and adult fish, ready to deposit eggs, were captured. The eggs were removed from the fish and the fish were then put back in the water. At times, according to Mr. Cobb, as many as 120,000 eggs were taken from one pike.

CRUSHED BY SHOVEL.

Soo Laborer Is Killed in Wisconsin, Near Howard Station.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 20.—The arm of a steam shovel on the work of the Soo road near Howard station, which was being set up, broke yesterday, falling upon Joseph Givedealo, an Italian laborer, aged 30, single, killing him instantly. His skull was crushed and every bone in his body broken. Another Italian had an arm broken in two places.

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 1468 Clybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

UNREQUITED LOVE

Caused Bachelor Farmer to Murder Woman and Hang Himself.

Appleton, Wis., May 20.—Unrequited love was the reason John McGuire, aged 50, bachelor farmer living in the township of Hegbert, Swift county, shot and killed Miss Goldie Cale, aged 23, school teachel in the township, who lived with McGuire's mother, then committed suicide. McGuire had brooded over the refusal of the woman to entertain his suit. Wednesday evening he arose from the supper table and securing a shot gun proceeded to the room of the woman, who evidently with a presentiment of danger had barricaded the door. McGuire battered the door down and the woman jumped to the ground and hurried toward a neighbors. The frenzied man continued her pursuit and fired one load from the gun which struck her in the back and must have caused almost instant death. To make absolutely certain of her death, McGuire approached closer and fired a scond time, the shot mangling and tearing her body in a horrible manner.

The murderer then retured to the house, took a sum of money from a bureau drawer, then went to the barn and saddled a horse. He rode furiously to a bridge over the Pomme de Terre river, three or four miles distant where he tied his horse and made a noose from a halter rope which he had carried with him for that purpose and hanged himself.

The murderer and suicide was a brother of A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the Northern Minnesota experiment station at Grand Rapids, Minn., one of the foremost agricultural and dairy authorities of this state. Miss Cale was to have been married to a young man of Willmar, at the close of her present term.

To Enlarge Iron River School.

Iron River, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Additions, costing $36,000, are to be made to the high school building here. The contract has been awarded to the Foster Construction company of Milwaukee. The same concern will build new schoolhouses in the nearby towns of Stambaugh and Palatka. The district has been growing rapidly the last few years, a large number of new iron mines having been developed, and increased school facilities have become imperatively necessary.

Big Truman, Minn., Fire.

Truman, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. G. Catlin's general store was partially destroyed by fire early Monday morning, and the stock was a complete loss. The damage to building and stock is estimated at about $14,000, and the insurance carried was $2,500 on the building and $8,000 on the stock. The cause of the fire is a mystery. Several persons were slightly injured fighting the flames.

North Dakota Boy Mangled.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Frey, 12 years old, son of Hugo Frey of Leonard, was caught beneath a drag, while harrowing, and his left arm was terribly mangled. The team got beyond his control, while he had a section of the drag uplifted to clear out the weeds, one of the teeth penetrating clear through the flesh of his forearm. He has been brought to a Fargo hospital, and will recover.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Negaunee—The ore movement from the mines on this range is somewhat heavier now than it was a week ago. Nearly all of the shovels are being operated, but neither the shovel men nor the railroad crews have yet been obliged to work overtime.

Houghton—A letter by a Houghton business man reveals that whisky salesmen and representatives of liquor houses in general are scarce in the Copper country. The recent enforcement of the state law relative to foreign liquor houses by Sheriff Byers has made the houses wary and they are not sending their salesmen here until they find out where they are at.

Sault Ste. Marie—This year's tournament of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association will be held here Aug. 10, 11 and 12. The usual track contests between teams of firemen representing the different departments will be conducted, and, in addition, a street fair will be held under auspices of the Elks.

Calumet—A large attendance is expected at the business men's meeting, called for next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the Red Jacket town hall, for the purpose of making arrangements to entertain the Detroit business men who will be in the Copper country May 29-31.

Houghton—At a quiet wedding, solemnized by Rev. Father Zimmermann, at the St. Cecilia church of Hubbell, at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, Miss Almena Bourdeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Bourdeau of Osceola hill, became the bride of Paul H. Ellsworth.

Hancock—Mayor W. Frank James of Hancock is one of the many Michigan mayors who have accepted invitations to attend the reception in Detroit July 11 to Grand Exalted Ruler Sammis of the Elks.

Laurium—Game Warden Gipp this week confiscated eleven small pike which had been caught a short distance from the Allouez dam in the Allouez creek. A net had been stretched across the creek at this place, and the fish had been caught illegally. No complaint was made, but the fish were given to poor widows in Laurium.

Houghton—Houghton Lodge, No. 219, F. & A. M., has accepted an invitation to attend services at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church Sunday.

Calumet—The funeral of Capt. John Cameron, who died Saturday evening, was held Thursday afternoon at the residence on Tamarack street, Laurium, Rev. L. K. Long officiating. Rev. D. D. Stalker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Calumet officiated at the grave.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Rochester—Miss Myrtle M. McCorriston, formerly of Rochester, is the winner of the Thrush-Fassett memorial medal for English literature in the South Bend high school this year.

New York Mills—The home of Elias Kukkonen burned to the ground early Sunday morning. The alarm was given and responded to, but the fire had gained such a good headway that help was of no avail. Only a few pieces of furniture were saved. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Crookston—Game Warden Munch has added to the shooting prospects of this section by turning ten more pheasants loose for breeding, all yearlings which he raised in Sampson's addition, and also sent 125 eggs to Ed Mossefin of Fertile, who will give them to farmers who will set them under hens for hatching.

Ada—Supt. G. R. Ingalls of Madison, who was sent to Norman county by the state department, gave many addresses to school children and parents last week. Miss Lovsnes and Mr. Ingalls spent the entire week in the county holding from three to six meetings each day.

Moorhead—Paul Butterfield, the driver for Johnson of the Midway, who was arrested on Saturday night after closing hours with a quantity of liquor which he was about to deliver, came before Judge Wade Wednesday afternoon and entered a plea of guilty and was assessed a fine of $62, which he paid.

Fergus Falls—Since the saloons were voted out at the recent election, keepers have nearly all opened soft drinks establishments. The majority had leases on buildings, and there was nothing for them to do but pay rent or keep open until the leases expired. The principal drink sold is malt.

Brainerd—The water and light board held a meeting on Monday night, and among other business transacted, engaged Engineer A. C. Clausen of St. Paul to submit estimates to the board for the installation of a complete electric plant to furnish current for the city system.

St. Cloud—Word has been received in the city of the death of Miss Nellie Stephens, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Stephens, formerly of this city, now of Fairfax, Minn. Mr. Stephens was formerly engineer of the city water works plant in this city. The remains will be shipped here for burial.

Isanti—John Mullen, representing the state highway commission, came to Isanti on Monday to inspect the road where it is proposed to use the twenty carloads of crushed rock to be furnished by the St. Cloud reformatory. The town of Bradford will use the rock on the road west of Isanti, commencing at the west end of the Rum river dump, thence over the hill and west for possibly a distance of one-half mile.

Stillwater—Frank Swenson of the town of Grant died Wednesday morning at his home, aged 51 years. He had been confined to the house for two months, but had not had good health for the past seven years. He is survived by his widow, two sons and a daughter. Mr. Swenson formerly lived in this city, conducting the St. Paul house, and was well known.

Faribault—Kingslay & Payant of this city were awarded the contract for the remodeling of the school buildings in the city of Northfield, contract price being about $20,000. P. J. Gallager received the contract for the plumbing for the high school and other school building, contract price being $5,000.

St. Cloud—The fifteenth annual meeting of the Old Settlers' association of Stearns and adjoining counties, as decided last year, will be held in St. Cloud on Tuesday, June 7. The sessions will be held in the auditorium of the Presbyterian church, and the banquet will be served by the ladies of that church in the adjoining parlors.

Little Falls—Charles S. Ricker, who died on May 11, in New Jersey, was well known in this city. Besides his wife he leaves a mother, Mrs. Charles Bowle of Little Falls, two brothers and a sister, one brother living in Washington and the other at Fort Snelling. The sister, Miss Nellie Ricker, is a resident of this city. The funeral was held at Parlin, N. J., May 14.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Dickinson, N. D.—John S. White, ex-county auditor, pleaded guilty in district court Wednesday morning to forgery in the second degree as charged in the state's information. He reports twice each day to Judge Goss until sentence is passed.

Fargo, N. D.—At the United States land office Wednesday morning Receiver J. J. Gordon sold at public auction an isolated tract of land in Dickey county described as southeast quarter of northwest quarter and lot 1, section 31-130-65. The highest bidder was Charles Halstad of Ellendale who paid $5 per acre.

Jamestown, N. D.—Charles Clark, a lineman, employed near Fried, this county, suffered the fracturing of both legs when he fell from a telegraph pole. The man was clear at the top of the pole, working with the wires, when he in some manner lost his balance and fell to the ground. He is at present in the Jamestown hospital.

"Making Good"

Whether applied to man or merchandise, both must "make good" or make way.

Dewey, for instance, "made good" at Manilla, and the country paid him homage.

With merchandise, the "KAYSER" Patent Finger Tipped Silk Gloves, have "made good" for over a quarter of a century. To-day they are the standard in the glove world, and the enormous demand for gloves bearing the name "KAYSER" attests the fact that the women of the world have set their stamp of approval upon them. Verily, they have "made good."

"KAYSER'S" gloves must "make good" or make way for a new pair free, the guarantee ticket insures this.

If any pair falls short of the "KAYSER" standard, or your expectations we want the dealer to replace that pair at our expense. The guarantee ticket does this.

Any "KAYSER" glove that does not "make good" must make way.

"KAYSER" Gloves "cost no more" than the ordinary kind.

ON THE IRON RANGES

VILLAGE ATTORNEY WILL INVESTIGATE

Chisholm Council's Law Adviser to Look Into Saloon License Request.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A communication was received by the village council from the Range Power company, offering an apology for poor service given, and stating that an oil converter had been ordered for immediate delivery, which, when installed, will add to the reliability of the light supply. The oil converter will be used when a poor grade of coal is received. Gas will be then produced from the oil converter when it is practically impossible to produce gas of a sufficient quantity and quality where poor coal is used. The communication also stated that 700-horse power would be developed from the gas plant, and that the company was also making further investigations for water power, which would give the village a plant of 3,000-horse power, to be used for all available purposes. The communication also stated that A. McMillan of Chicago, president of the Range Power company, and other parties interested, would be in the city Monday, to talk over the proposed purchase by the village of the Range Power company's plant.

Messrs. Pearce and Jewett of Hibbing, owners of the Pearce addition, asked that the addition be taken into the village. Their petition was refused.

A petition was received from residents of Maple street, between First and Second avenues, for sewers. The petition was laid on the table.

The petition of R. S. O'Neil for a liquor license was granted. The following renewals were granted: Allegrezza Bros., Charles Neally, John Anselmo and Povsha & Medvid. A renewal of license was granted to James Garland. A transfer of license from Ed Riley to Matt Keyfes was refused. Frank Klinz appeared before the council, on behalf of Charles Zgnoc, and sell intoxicating liquors. Zgonc was refused a license several weeks ago, and has been closed since that time. The matter was referred to Village Attorney Knapp for further consideration, with instruction to report at the next meeting.

A petition from the Christoforo Columbo society, praying that they be allowed to sell beer at a picnic to be held Sunday, May 29, between Chisholm and Hibbing, was granted.

The numbering of houses in the village was referred to Village Engineer Lang, with instructions to figure out the best system, and report at the next meeting. The license fee for traveling shows was fixed at $25 per day, and the license for shows whose admission fee did not exceed 20 cents was fixed at $3 per day. The Doric theater license was fixed at $50 per annum.

An ordinance prohibiting the use of dumb waiters in saloons was passed. A motion was passed ordering the creation of a revolving fund of $200, so that all freight and express bills could be paid immediately. The salary of the clerk of the municipal court was raised $15 per month.

TO START PAVING ON GRANT AVENUE

Long Looked for Eveleth Improvement Will Soon Be Realized.

Eveleth, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council this evening will let the contract for installing a sewer system on Hayes street; one on Douglas avenue and Pierce street and also pipe lines on Carrie avenue and Kimberly streets. Bids will be opened for supplying the city with 500 sanitary garbage cans and 2,000 feet of fire hose and other apparatus. The Pastoret-Lawrence company has completed their catch basin system for Grant avenue, and the thoroughfare is now open for paving, and commencing next week the Rudolph Biome company, Chicago the successful paving bidders will start the paving of Grant avenue, with granatoid.

DROWNS IN A DITCH.

Body of John Klopcic Is Found Near Chisholm.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of a man identified from papers as being John Klopcic, a native of Canada, was discovered by a party of Monroe workmen Wednesday afternoon lying face downwards in a small ditch which contained about six inches of water, about twenty feet from the Monroe boarding house and only a short distance from the engine house.

An examination revealed that the man had been dead for some time. The supposition is that he was intoxicated and fell into the ditch and was unable to free himself from his precarious position. The body was brought to the Phillips undertaking parlors, and yesterday Dr. B. F. Adams of Hibbing and Dr. Schmidt of this city conducted a post-mortem examination. The physicians found on examination that the deceased was suffering from an attack of pneumonia, and coupled with the fact that he was intoxicated led them to believe that he was not strong enough to free himself from the danger when he fell into the ditch. The verdict following the examination was accidental drowning.

Money order receipt issued to Klopcic by a Canadian office was also found on his person. The receipt showed that he had sent money to Joseph Tuber of Hibbing, postoffice box, No. 523. Other papers were letters from New York city to Klopcic addressed to Canmore, Alta. Another letter was addressed to Michael, B. C., and was postmarked April 4, 1910, showing that he has not been in this part of the country but a short time.

The deceased was about 32 years of age, six feet in height, light complected with beard and mustache. He had no known friends in this vicinity, and as far as can be learned had not been working around here. The body will be held for a short time awaiting further developments.

WAS FIRST AUDITOR OF ITASCA COUNTY

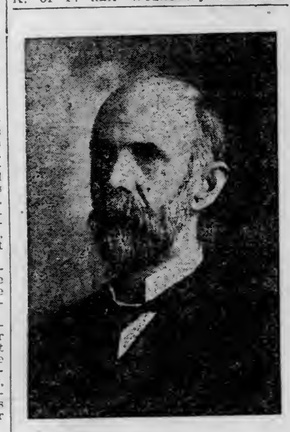
Henry R. King, One of Pioneers of Grand Rapids, Borne to Grave.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of the late Henry R. King, one of the pioneers of Grand Rapids and first auditor of Itasca county, who died at St. Benedict's hospital Sunday, was conducted by the Masonic lodge from K. of P. hall Wednesday afternoon.



HENRY R. KING.

Grand Master W. B. Patton conducted the services. Rev. E. S. Murphy and Mr. Patton made a few appropriate remarks. Interment was made in Itasca cemetery.

Mr. King was a unique and prominent figure in the development of Itasca county and of much influence in the town and county in which he made his home for so many years.

Mr. King was appointed in 1890 as assessor of the district which was later organized as Itasca county. Nineteen years ago, when the county of Itasca was organized, he was appointed as the first county auditor, a position which he held for three terms, with an interval of two years between the first term and the last two terms, during which time he established and conducted a drug store.

After his last term as county auditor Mr. King entered the logging and cedar business, in which he was engaged up to the time of his death. In 1904 he was a candidate for the legislature, being defeated by a small margin.

Mr. King leaves his wife, who has resided in Minneapolis for several years past, and two daughters, Mrs. Schroeder of Medina, S. D., and Miss Genevieve King, who, in company with James A. King, a brother, and A. W. Schroeder, were present at the funeral.

The new uniforms recently purchased by the local team will be worn. The suits are of grey with gold stripes and the monogram C. H. S. on the breast.

An exploration company, to be known as the Ferrows' Exploration company, has been organized here to explore mineral lands near Hibbing, Chisholm and Mountain Iron owned by the company. Several diamond drills and churn drills have been purchased by the company and will be put to work as soon as they arrive. The company is composed of local people entirely.

TWO HARBORS WILL HONOR WAR HEROES

Memorial Day Will Witness Splendid Tribute to Heroic Dead.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sunday morning, May 29, Rev J. F. McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church will address the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, and Spanish war veterans. The G. A. R. men will meet at the Budd hospital and will be escorted by the other soldiers.

Memorial day exercises will be held in the opera house Monday, May 30, at 2 p. m., after which everybody will join the procession to the cemeteries, where the closing exercises will be held. The committee has engaged a firing squad from Duluth.

The procession will form on First avenue and march to Cedar street, up Cedar street to county road, then to the cemeteries. Autos and carriages will keep abreast of the rear of the procession. Old soldiers will remain in the rear. At cemeteries, the head of the procession will stop at the gates and allow the detail and G. A. R. to pass through. The drum corps will lead, then the Commercial club and the citizens, firing squad committee, Spanish war veterans, Sons of Veterans, and G. A. R. veterans.

The following program has been arranged for: Assembly call and retreat, bugles; selection, drum corps; "America," audience and high school chorus; invocation, Rev. R. Dodds; "Memorial Day," high school chorus; adjutant's call, bugler; vocal solo, Mrs. D. A. Burke; Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Leroy Pegelow; address, Rev. T. S. Oadams; "Just Before the Battle, Mother," high school chorus; benediction, Rev. Carlson; "taps," bugler.

HIBBING READY FOR WORST FIRE

New Pumps Installed By Mining Company Give Fine Fire Protection.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the two new pumps which are being installed by the Oliver company, each having a capacity of 600 gallons per minute, at the Penobscott location, and the 800-gallon pumps of the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine with its own water supplies the village is now well protected in case of a big fire. Hibbing now has the finest equipment for fighting fire of any of the range towns.

Village Attorney S. C. Scott and President Andrew Nelson of the village of Alice will go to Duluth to see what can be done in the way of floating the $75,000 bonds which the young village recently voted. It has been decided by the village trustees to spend 10 per cent of the liquor license money on improvements on First avenue.

The Lady Maccabees, with the assistance of La Brosse orchestra of Duluth, gave one of the most enjoyable dancing parties ever held in Closc's hall last night. The hall was beautifully decorated, the music beyond compare and the ladies who had charge did all in their power to make every one feel at home.

Two men, both under the influence of liquor, were going merrily down Third avenue when they ran full force into one of the night policemen, who invited them to accompany him to the village bastile. The men at first remonstrated, but were soon shown the error of their way. In the municipal court they gave the names of Sam Peeterson and Mike Donahue. They were both fined $13.75 or twenty days in the county jail. They were taken to Duluth this morning.

BURNS IS HELD ON PERJURY CHARGE

Bovey Man in Shanty When Walsh Perished, Must Explain Testimony.

Bovey, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the coroner's inquest Tuesday, to inquire into the burning of the switch shanty on the high line, and the death of John Walsh, it was decided that the origin of the fire was unknown. Edward Burns, who was with Walsh, was taken to Grand Rapids by Attorney Pierce and held for perjury. The jurymen were: B. E. Larson, Hugh Shannon, Fred Benty, Charles King.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. McLennen of Coleraine, a son, Wednesday, May 18.

Mrs. Holley started for her home in Canada today. Mr. Holley will accompany her as far as Duluth.

Mrs. J. Hurley is visiting in Duluth a few days.

Dennis Russell had a runaway Wednesday. When about two miles out of Bovey, the horse became frightened and threw Mr. Russel out. Mr. Russel had to walk home and found the horse in Coleraine. No damage was done.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weston and little son have returned home from Cayuna, where they were called by the illness of the latter's father, Mr. James.

Edith Rule was a Grand Rapids visitor Wednesday.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lathem, a daughter, Thursday, May 19.

F. E. La Vallee of La Prairie River visited his daughters, the Misses Marie and Agnes La Vallee Wednesday.

Mrs. H. Shannon entertained a number of her lady friends at lunch Tuesday afternoon.

The Catholic Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Carl Cusciatto on Thursday, June 2.

Mrs. M. Metzer of Grand Rapids visited relatives here Thursday.

Rains have been very frequent for the past week, with a thunderstorm Wednesday night and Thursday, and the rain comes to a good advantage on time to check the forest fires.

The Norwegian anniversary occurred May 17, was celebrated by a dance in the opera house hall.

EVELETH MILITARY BALL.

Annual Event to Be Given This Evening By Soldier Boys.

Eveleth, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The military ball by the local militia, will be given this evening in Vail hall, which is decorated and furnished with novel lighting effects. Music will be furnished by the Kraft orchestra of Virginia, and the militia members will all appear in dress uniform.

Monitor lodge tomorrow evening will give its annual grand ball of the season, in Monitor hall.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow evening will give a New England supper in the Elks hall for the benefit of the church.

MILITIA ELECTION.

Hibbing National Guardsmen Select Captain and Lieutenants.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to the Herald.)—Company M. held an election last night under the direction of Capt. Knowlton of Duluth assisted by Lieutenant Wood, a captain and two lieutenants being elected.

George D. Healy was unanimously chosen captain. The election of first lieutenant developed some opposition and a close contest.

When the ballots were counted, Jason L. Lewis was found to have received eighteen votes to fifteen cast for E. R. Roble The latter then became a candidate for second lieutenant but was opposed by Walter Crandall. Roble again lost, getting but eight votes while Crandall was given twenty.

PATRONIZE THE LIBRARY.

Hibbing People Liberally Take Books From Carnegie Institution.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the local Carnegie library is liberally patronized is shown by the report made to the council by Miss Margaret Palmer, the librarian, for 1909.

The report shows that the total number of books in the library is 3,983, of which 2,481 are for adults and 502 for children. During the year, 847 adult cards were issued and 481 children's cards, and 12,764 books were loaned out to adults and 7,985 to children. The library has forty periodicals and fifteen newspapers. Three people are employed—the librarian, an assistant and a janitor. The librarian is paid $960 a year, and the janitor $720.

The library is maintained by the village, which devotes $2,500 a year to this purpose. The township of Stuntz also donates $500 a year to the support of the library.

HELD FOR STABBING.

Alfred Aho, Minor, Figures in Two Harbors Saloon Affray.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alfred Aho, a minor who came to town a few evenings ago and is said to have attacked and cut Alfred Nessile in Mike & Hill's saloon, has been held to the grand jury and an investigation is on as to the sale of liquor to minors. Aho came from one of the range towns and was plentifully supplied with cash. He drank freely and attacked Nessile because, it is alleged, the latter did not promptly settle for a drink in Mike & Hill's saloon. Aho cut Nessile once in the neck, giving him a glancing blow that might have been fatal if the victim did not jump to one side.

There is considerable indignation over the report that minors are getting drinks in local saloons and the city authorities will probe the matter to the bottom.

Coleraine Birthday Party.

Coleraine, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Fahey of Coleraine was surprised Tuesday afternoon at her home on the boulevard by a number of Coleraine and Taconte women in honor of her birthday. Cards and music added to the enjoyment of the afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served. The hostess was assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss May Cronin, and Mrs. O'Connor. Mrs. Fahey was presented with a handsome cut glass sugar bowl and creamer.

Eveleth Ball Team to Play.

Eveleth, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school baseball team will tomorrow play one of the deciding games of the range championship race with the fast Biwabik high school nine on the local grounds. The Gilbert team will play Hibbing tomorrow.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

FORSSI GRANTED A NEW TRIAL

Verdict of $150 Is Deemed Too Small By Judge Ensign.

Unless P. McDonnell and Thomas Kelly defendants in an action brought some time ago by Matt Forssi in which he sought to recover to the amount of $5,000, agree to raise the amount of the verdict from $150 to $275, the plaintiff will be granted a new trial by Judge Ensign of the district court.

The arguments for a new trial were heard some time ago. The first trial of the case took place some six weeks ago.

Forssi claimed in the original complaint that he was hit on the arm by Thomas Kelly who is a foreman for Mr. McDonnell. The weapon used was a steel shovel, it is alleged, and it is also claimed that the arm was broken as a result.

The trouble arose over the matter of pay. Forssi claims that he quit the employ of the contracting firm and demanded his time. The trouble followed.

The jury gave him a verdict for $150, but he claims that the amount is not sufficient.

AN OPEN LETTER OF THANKS

Gratitude Still Lives—What a Grateful Woman Says.

"My home is like a heaven on earth since that awful curse—strong drink—has been removed. My husband says the appetite for strong drink is all gone. When I think of the years I have lived with a drunkard when so little would have stopped it, I cannot thank you for what you have done for me."

White Ribbon Remedy causes no drug habit, does not weaken the will, is odorless, tasteless, and may be given secretly, if desired.

$1.00 per box; 6 boxes for $5.00. At the E. M. Tredway store, 108 West Superior street, or direct from the White Ribbon Remedy Co., Boston, Mass.

OPEN DOOR MOVEMENT

Theater Owners and Producing Managers Take United Action.

Complete Working Basis Covering All Matters of Common Interest.

New York, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The open-door movement wins. Harmony and enthusiasm prevailed at the meeting yesterday afternoon between the directors of the National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers and the officers and managers of the National Theater Owners' association, at the offices of the former, in the Times building.

The committee appointed by the directors of the Theater Owners' association, comprising Messrs. Cort, Marshall, Coleman, Weis, Walker and Wells, stated the objects and plans of their association, and pledged that association to join with the producing managers in the elimination of graft and other prevailing evils of the theatrical business.

They further pledged their organization to fair dealing in every respect and no discrimination against the producing manager, regardless of his affiliations. The main object of the two associations is to eliminate booking grafts, the middleman, and to open the door in its widest sense. It was carried, by a unanimous vote, that the producing managers join with the National Theater Owners' association to accomplish this object, both associations pledging themselves to maintain the theater owner as a free agent in the theatrical world.

To Settle Disputes.

It also provided that committees from each association should be appointed and should have full power to settle disputes. If any should arise, between the two associations and the managers, pertaining to any matters as to the fairness of both associations, terms demanded by either parties and all or any complaints against either side. This committee will not only mean the elimination of all lawsuits, but the immediate and equitable adjustment of all disputes. In order that a complete working basis, covering all matters of common interest be reached, a committee from each association was provided for to prepare and report a full plan of operation between these two organizations. While they will be separate in every respect, the committee will report plans for cooperation and joint action, as the interests of the two organizations are identical.

Independence Assured.

This arrangement means that the independence sought by the theater owners and the producers from the dominating influences of the so-called theater trust is now an assured fact, and also means that no one-man's power will ever dominate again the atrical interests of America, but the producer, as well as the theater owner, will have a choice in the conducting of his own business and affairs, of which the public will reap the benefit, as all the theaters in America will be thrown open to all meritorious attractions which have heretofore been denied to theater owners.

The committees from both associations have been called to meet tonight in the offices of the Producing Managers' association, to further perfect their plans.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

Notice to Fat Women

Presumably you know, ladies, that the proper caper nowadays is lines. Curves are passe. You have got to take off your fat. This must be done in one of three ways. By dieting, by exercises, or by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. The two former will keep you busy for months and punish you pretty severely, the latter will cost you 75 cents at the druggist's. The tablets will not make any alteration in your diet necessary, and yet in all probability, before you have used up one case, you will be losing from 12 to 16 ounces of fat a day. Which method do you like the best?

If you fancy this pleasant method of getting off the fat, see your druggist instantly, or else write the Marmola Co., 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., to send you a case by mail. These cases contain so generous a quantity of tablets that the treatment is very economical. It is, also, quite harmless, for the tablets are made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription.

All priests of the diocese and prominent Catholics from all over the state will be in attendance.

RAILROADS IN LEGAL FIGHT

The Northern Pacific Wants $8,000 Yearly From Soo Road.

Soo Claims That Damages for Grade Crossing Are Nominal.

The legal forces of the Northern Pacific railroad and the Soo line are again engaged in conflict in United States court today. The commission appointed by Judge Page Morris to determine whether the Northern Pacific should have damages for the crossing of its tracks by the Soo road, and if so to what extent, is holding a hearing on the matter.

The petition of the Soo road for the right to cross the Northern Pacific tracks at grade pending the completion of an overhead approach to the city, was determined in favor of the Soo road by Judge Page Morris in July after a series of long-drawn out hearings At that time the commission was appointed to determine damages, Henry F. Greene, William H. Hoyt and George R. Laybourn being the members.

In the hearing today, the Northern Pacific is represented by Emerson Hadley of St. Paul, general counsel, and Olsen, Mitchell of Duluth and the Soo road is represented by Alfred H. Bright of Minneapolis, general counsel, and H. E. Fryberger of Duluth.

The Soo road claims before the commission that the entry of the Soo road at grade over the Northern Pacific tracks for two years, in accordance with the decision of the court, is in the interests of the public, and that the material damage to the Northern Pacific on account of the arrangement is nothing. The Northern Pacific claims that the loss of time caused by the necessity of stopping at crossings will amount to about $8,000 a year for the two years, and that a certain percentage should be allowed on the value of terminal property, which will depreciate in value on account of the Soo tracks and traffic.

E. C. Blanchard, division superintendent of the Northern Pacific, was on the stand this morning, and D. M. Philbin, general superintendent of the Lake division of the Great Northern, is giving testimony this afternoon. Both sides will offer an array of railroad experts to support their contentions.

ST. PAUL WOMEN BADLY BEATEN

Three Men Are Arrested on Charge of Assault at Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police today arrested Ed Keener, Chris Engle and a man called "Frenchy" in connection with a murderous assault on Mrs. George T. Harris and Mrs. Mary Brose in the Fort Snelling hotel last night.

Mrs. Harris today gave the police the names of two men who had formerly been employed about the hotel owned by her husband, and whom she discharged recently. Tuesday night the men returned to the hotel and threatened to injure Mrs. Harris.

Both women were badly pounded about the head and body with a heavy iron, but the hospital physicians say they will recover.

Mrs. Harris' husband, who was in a Pine City sanitarium, returned home on hearing of the affair and lent his aid to the police. He is wealthy.

STEAMER HITS GATES OF LOCK

Serious Damage to Weitzel Lock at Soo Is Narrowly Averted.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 20.—Special to The Herald.)—A disaster in the Weitzel lock, similar to that which occurred in the Canadian canal last fall, when the steamer Walker crashed into the lower gates, putting the canal out of commission for over a month, was narrowly avoided last night.

The steamer Cullingan was upbound, the upper gates having been opened and she was about to leave the lock. The captain, according to canal men's statement, signalled to go ahead, but instead the boat was backed, and in a few seconds the vessel was bumping into the lower gates and was threatened with going to the lower level with a crash. Insistent signalling, however, got the engineer to reverse and the Cullingan went ahead.

A severe jar was given the gate, the railing being smashed and a bad bruise being inflicted. The Cullingan damaged her rudder slightly, but was able to proceed.

AMES ATTACKS PAYNE IN HOUSE

Starts Row Over Measure for Closer Trade Relations With Canada.

Washington, May 20—Representative Butler Ames of Massachusetts today precipitated a sensational scene in the house by charging Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee with discourtesy in the refusal to hear him on a resolution calling for immediate negotiations with Canada for the establishment of closer commercial ties and freer trade relations.

CALL THEIR AGED MOTHER A FLIRT

Chicago Women Have Her Arrested for Fear She Will Spend Too Much.

Chicago, May 20.—Mrs. Catherine C. Harley, said to be 64 years of age and charged by her daugters with being a flirt, spending large sums for dresses and lavishing money on her young husband, was temporarily restrained by a court order today from continuing the alleged dissipation of the fortune of $65,000 left by her late husband, Capt. James C. Calbeck, father of the plaintiffs.

The daughters, Mrs. Tatty Clara Wood and Mrs. Patricia Siebel, alleged in their petition that their mother considered herself a "heartbreaker" despite her age, and in her attempts at rejuvenation bade fair to deprive the daughters of their inheritance.

MILL CITY MAN VICE MODERATOR

Charles H. Thompson Is Selected for Office By Presbyterians.

Atlantic City, N. J. May 20.—Elder Charles H. Thompson of Minneapolis, treasurer of the National Presbyterian brotherhood, was named vice moderator at the opening of the second day's session of the general assembly here today.

The question of the attitude of the Presbyterian church on marriage and divorce was formally turned over to the federal council of churches. Discussion of the question halted by officials of the assembly, who said the entire matter of divorce should be taken out of the assembly discussion.

In his report on the finances of the American Bible society, Dr. John Fox stated that bequests made to the society had now reached $2,500,000.

ASSAULTED ON LONELY ROAD

The Proctor police are beating over the country between West Duluth and Midway for Gust Leino, who is accused by Mrs. Peter Nordeen of attacking and brutally assaulting her this morning on a lonely stretch of road.

Mrs. Nordeen was returning to her home at Midway from West Duluth on foot, she says, when Leino accosted and attacked her. Leino is alleged to have choked the woman and then dragged her to the side of the road and attempted to assault her.

Mrs. Nordeen reported the alleged crime to the Proctor police and gave them a complete description of the man she accuses. The search was begun immediately and is being prosecuted vigorously.

SAYS COMPASSES WERE THROWN OUT

Sea Captain Lays the Trouble to Action of the Comet.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—The first electrical manifestation in connection with the presence of Halley's comet was reported today by Capt. Jones of the steamer Idaho, from Hull, who states that at 8 a. m. on May 16, while in mid-ocean his compasses were thrown out three-quarters of a point, or 8 deg.

The compasses worked slowly back to the normal in the next two days.

NATIONAL HEALTH BILL IS HELD UP

Wisconsin Men Appear Before Congressmen to Oppose Owen Measure.

Washington, May 20.—There seems to be little likelihood that congress will take any action at the present session on the Owen bill to create an additional executive department to be known as the department of health. The hearing on the bill last night was occupied entirely by the opposition to the measure by representatives of the National League of Medical Freedom and by voters and taxpayers' associations of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, all of which were formed recently for the purpose of fighting the measure. They contended that the purpose of the bill was to form a "doctors' trust."

Chairman Martin of the senate committee rebuked W. R. McCaul of Tomah, Wis., one of the speakers opposed to the bill, for what he termed a reflection upon Senator Owen contained in a charge that questions asked by the Oklahoma senator were intended to convey the idea that Mr. McCaul represented patent medicines. Mr. McCaul's statement was ordered expunged from the record, which action was followed by an apology from him.

WHIPS GIRLS; IS ARRESTED

Ohio Teacher Is Held to Grand Jury on Assault Charge.

Sandusky, Ohio., May 20.—Superintendent C. V. Snyder of Berlin Heights public school was held to the grand jury last evening by George Willinger, justice of the peace, on a charge of assault and battery. Prof. Snyder whipped two of his pupils, Mabel Ferber, 14, and Marie Elson, 16 years old, with a piece of half-inch hose about two feet long.

SERVICE FOR KING AT WASHINGTON

President and Other Officers Attend Ceremony at the Capital.

Washington, May 20.—President Taft, the members of his cabinet, justices of the United States supreme court, the diplomatic corps and practically all official Washington attended here today a service in memory of King Edward VII at St. John's Episcopal church. The bishop of Washington and the rector of the church, Rev. Roland C. Smith, officiated. The formal services laid down in the Episcopal prayer book was closely followed. President Taft's military and naval aides served as ushers. The members of the diplomatic corps all were in full uniform.

AMERICAN AS SHE IS SPOKE.

Miss Eleanor Patterson of Philadelphia, returning to America on the Vaterland, was easily, by reason of her beauty and wit, the belle of the boat.

Miss Patterson, one evening at dinner, amused a group of Englishwomen with specimens of the broadest American dialect.

"And once," she said, "a party of Philadelphians on a fishing trip visited a district school in the wilds of Pake county.

"The teacher, after welcoming them politely, turned and said to one of his pupils:

"'Come, come, young uns, can't ye set up a little more erecter?'

"A moment later, a boy entered and left the door ajar. The teacher said to him very sharply:

"'You go back and shev that there door shet!'

"Then he added to his visitors in an apologetic tone:

"'I try to larn 'em maaners, but it's derned uphill work.'"

BRIGHT BABES.

New York Sun: "Well, how's that kid of yours getting along?" asked the young man with the new pink tie as to the young man with sealskin cap sat down. "My kid's growing very—"

"Grow!" interjected the proud father with the sealskin cap. "That's going to be a fine boy one of these days, old man! Why, he's getting so he knows everybody by sight. We changed maids the other day and he wouldn't let the new girl come near him. Had a fit when she tried—"

"That's nothing," interrupted the young man with the pink tie. "Our kid orders the maid around! What do you know about that? Only two and a half years old—well, 2 years and 7 months it is, now. Why, this morning she—"

"It's funny what notions that boy of ours gets into his little noddle," interjected the man with the sealskin cap, while the other man coughed nervously over the list to find something cheap and at the same time respectable. For instance there is that old sherry from St. Jame's palace, London, which bears the date of 1810, and that Victoria port which is labeled Buckingham Palace Cellars, 1860; the 1840 Steinberger Cabinet, a liquid which those who know say goes down the aesophagus like a stream of liquid gold.

Then there is the Waterloo 1815 sherry, La Marquise brandy, whose cost has gone up since 1815 to $25 a bottle and for which if you order a thimbleful they bring you a bill for $2. Along with it is the Napoleon, 1902, whose $1 a pony seems a modest price by comparison. Besides are almost forgotten vintages of champagne.

The mere enumeration engenders a thirst too terrible, and what have been the feelings of the six trusty workmen who have done nothing all the week but move the bottles one at a time in baskets lined with cotton can only be imagined. The secret has been well kept so far, but it is a fact that during the transfer one of those bottles of La Marquise actually slipped out from its cotton lined cradle and before the carrier could catch it had fallen and broken its neck.

The contents were saved but not preserved and proved a wonderful stimulus to the work during the remainder of the day, though the superintendent of the cellar had to keep jumping to see that no other similar "casualty" occurred.

CATHOLICISM IN AMERICA.

New York Sun: In less than a century the land of William Penn has become the fourth Catholic power in the world from the point of view of numbers, being surpassed only by France, Austria and Italy, while it surpasses even these countries if we take into consideration the loyalty of the faithful, their generosity and their progressiveness.

The Catholic church in the United States, although remaining Roman, has a thoroughly American character of enterprise, of expansion and of grandeur, owing to the vastness of its institutions and the splendor of its buildings, which will soon rival in size and artistic beauty the historical cathedrals of the Old World, so that before long to the later will only remain the superiority coming from centuries of tradition. Thus the balance will be maintained; the history in Europe, the vigor of modern genius in America.

If there were no figures to substantiate these affirmations they might seem exaggerations, but facts are undeniable. Let us take, for instance, New York, a diocese founded a century ago by the rescript of Pius VII appointing Father Luke Concannon, an Irish Dominican, as the first bishop, who, however, never reached his post, as he died suddenly after his consecration in Rome.

Is is possible in our time to imagine New York's having as its only Catholic church St. Peter's on Barclay street? It was only in 1809 that the cornerstone was laid of St. Patrick's cathedral on Mott street, which cost $100,000, a sum the enormous, though it is a mere mite compared with the millions spent on the new cathedral of St. Patrick on Fifth avenue and on over 300 churches which have since been erected in the archdiocese, besides about 200 chapels.

New York is today the strongest Catholic city in the world, though Paris may have more people baptized into the church or there may be numerically more in Vienna, but neither Paris nor Vienna, nor Rome itself, can boast such a truly devout Catholic population at once so prosperous, intelligent and active.

Besides being the metropolis of the Western world, second only to London in population, New York, with its Catholics numbering about a million, almost as many as in the whole of England and certainly more than in the whole of Australia, constitutes the most powerful center the papacy possesses in the christian world. Statistics demonstrate that more than a million souls are added every year to the United States through immigration, three-fourths of whom are Catholics.

DECLINE IN MEAT PRICES

Pork and Lamb Lower With Beef and Mutton Firm.

Eggs Are Firm and Fancy Creamery Butter Has Slight Decline.

Egg prices held firm this week, while values in fancy creamery butter declined slightly. All descriptions of cheese were steady, except some of the Swiss makes. Block Swiss was slightly easier. Old crop potatoes are firmer, while the new crop is selling at reduced prices. Green vegetables and fruits were easy. Pork and lard are easier, and lamb values are greatly reduced.

Receipts of butter were liberal, and larger arrivals are expected in the near future. The demand is broad, and the surplus is well taken care of, so that prices are maintained at a steady level. Extras in creameries are slightly weaker, owing to the large output and a disposition on the part of the consumptive demand to favor high-class dairy butter, which, at this time of the year, is excellent in quality. The concession in high-grade creamery butter was small, values easing off from 29@30c to 29c. Dairy butter is steady at 24c, and packing butter is firmer at 21c, being 1c higher than last week.

The speculative element is beginning to play a part in the butter trade. A considerable portion of supplies is going into storage, although many storage people are not prepared to begin accumulating reserves for the winter's supplies. Business of this nature is expected to expand from now on, and the outlet for fancy stock will be sufficiently broad to take care of all the butter that is produced.

It is rather early for speculators to begin accumulating butter stores on a large scale. The season is so far advanced, however, that it is the general opinion that much lower prices cannot be expected, and speculators are backing their judgment by purchasing supplies for the winter's trade at prevailing figures. In April of last year butter values were as low as 28@29c in this part of the country, and from 2 to 3 cents lower in the Central states. The cheapest prices in May of last year were 25@26c, while the lowest price this month is 29c here and 27c in the Central states. It is not expected that values will recede below these levels.

The quality of arrivals has displayed irregularity, some of the offerings being exceptionally good while others have been lacking in flavor or in color. Toward the end of the week the quality has improved and values in the cheaper grades held firm with no indication of weakness. Packing stock was especially strong.

The demand for fresh eggs continues excellent and the price holds firm at 21 cents. The market has a buoyant undertone as receipts are not so heavy as several weeks ago. This market gets a high grade of receipts as most of the shipments come from northern sources. These have been running superior in quality to Southern eggs. The market is bare of accumulations. Local consumption has been heavy and the outside trade has been fairly brisk. The speculative demand for eggs is moderate. Lower prices are not expected and there is a strong undercurrent to the trade. Many receivers believe this firm tone will work into higher prices.

• • •

The consumptive demand for cheese is broad and the market has a healthy undertone although supplies of block Swiss pressed upon the market and receivers were forced to make a slight concession to keep the market clear of accumulations. Receipts of all descriptions have been good.

Old potatoes are selling at wholesale at 35 cents. While the market is somewhat depressed on account of the popularity of new potatoes receivers did not lower prices. On the contrary values were firmer, only the best grades being received and traded in. The receiver has not made any money lately trading in the poorer descriptions and so long as the high-class grades are cheap and the consumptive demand will take no other grade than the best, the receiver is not in the market for the secondary classes. The demand showed a slight improvement toward the close of the week.

New crop potatoes are bringing $1.50 a bushel. This high price is due chiefly to railroad rates. In the markets in the Central states, nearer to the productive areas, new potatoes are selling at from 50 to 75 cents a bushel. Stock comes mainly from Texas and Louisiana and is of unusually good quality. New potatoes are cheaper, owing to the heavy receipts. Dealers look for business to expand if the temperature continues to climb. The recent concession in values is expected to stimulate the consumptive demand

Green vegetables are plentiful, although the weather lately has not been satisfactory as goods could not be displayed in the open to the best advantage. Asparagus, beets, carrots, radishes and turnips have been obtainable in large quantities at easy prices. Offerings have been well taken by consumers and there has been little stuff carried over unsold. Cabbage, string beans, old onions and peas have met with a fair demand at firm prices. Other greens have attracted their share of attention on a steady basis. The market is in a healthy condition at the close of the week.

Strawberry values are easy. Receipts are increasing and the quality is not of the best. Fancy, ripe, large sized berries have met with a brisk call but the inferior stock has been cleared slowly at weak figures. Supplies come principally from Louisiana and Tennessee. A few cases have been received from Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. The latter were not sufficiently ripe nor of such size as to attract the best buyers.

• • •

Oranges and apples have met with a good demand at steady prices. Receipts are fairly liberal for this time of the year. Lemons have sold slowly but at steady levels. Pineapples have been offered more freely but the demand has been correspondingly broader.

• • •

The market is bare of poultry of all description. New stocks of dressed poultry are coming in and values are comparatively high. There is no live poultry on the market and quotations are nominal as there is no trade.

• • •

Beef and mutton values are unchanged and pork loins are slightly weaker at 14½@15½c. Veal is selling at 10½c, slightly easier. Lamb has met with a severe reduction to 15½c and lard is slightly easier at 14½c.

TWO AERONAUTS FIGHTING DEATH IN LAKE MICHIGAN

feet in the air, and was going at the rate of about 25 miles an hour. It left St. Louis at 5:20 p. m. yesterday, and is trying for a long-distance flight.

The pilot dropped a note as the balloon was about to cross the lake, reading as follows:

"City Editor of Kenosha News: We are the balloon Centennial, H. E. Honeywell, pilot, bound for New England from St. Louis. We are trying for the Lahm cup for long-distance flights. Conditions are favorable."

Out Over the Lake.

The captain of the Kenosha life-saving crew received a telephone message ordering the crew out to give the aeronauts any assistance they might need, but as the ballon was at that time fifteen miles out over the lake and sailing at the rate of about twenty miles an hour, the venture was abandoned.

Later Capt. Lofberg of the Racine life-saving crew, in response to a call for assistance from Kenosha, went out fifteen miles into the lake in pursuit of the Centennial. He was informed that the aeronauts needed assistance and that the Racine crew could reach them quickest, as the ballon was going in a northeasterly direction. The crew immediately went out and reached a position near the balloon, but a thick fog cut off all view of the speeding gas bag.

Yacht Beaten In Race.

Kenosha, Wis., May 20.—When the balloon Centennial passed over here at about 6:30 o'clock this morning it was headed northeast over Lake Michigan. The big gas bag was not flying high and the voice of one of the passengers could be heard as he shouted "good morning" to watchers below.

As the balloon passed out over the lake a local yacht set out after it, but soon returned, unable to keep up the pace.

COMET HIDES IN THE CLOUD

tory here were bewildered by a startling apparition across the face of the sun at noon time yesterday. A broad spectrum of light, extending across and a considerable distance to each side of the sun, challenged their attention.

Never Saw the Like.

For the second time in a dozen hours the little band of scientists here was aroused to a point of much excitement. Prof. E. B. Frost, who first sighted the phenomenon declared he never had witnessed its like. Prof. E. F. Barnard said the same.

Enormous sun spots seen Wednesday afternoon, followed by brilliant displays of aurora at night, and these in turn succeeded by various reports of fiery streamers shooting across the horizon to the southwest, had been passed by the astronomers as having absolutely no connection with the comet. But the spectrum became another story.

Might Be the Tail.

Cambridge, Mass., May 20.—When told about the spectrum observed by astronomers at the Yerkes observatory, Prof. E. C. Pickering of the Harvard observatory said that the only possible explanation of the phenomenon that he could offer was that the spectrum might have been caused by the presence of the comet's tail between the sun and the earth.

"The comet presumably having passed the sun, its tail, lagging far behind, may still have been between us and the sun, and this might possibly account for the spectrum," he said.

OPTIMIST GIVES TRAVEL LECTURE

Prof. Monaghan Speaks at Open Meeting of Knights of Columbus.

Taking his hearers off of the beaten paths of tourist travel and into the intimate home lives of the people of European countries, Prof. James F. Monaghan of Marquette college, Milwaukee, last night gave his lecture, "How the Other Half Lives," at an opening meeting of Duluth council, Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Monaghan is a national lecturer of the Knight of Columbus and was at different times professor or lecturer at the University of Wisconsin, University of Notre Dame and the Catholic university at Washington. He spent twelve years in Germany and other European countries as consul and in other official capacities and has an intimate knowledge of the people as they really are, not as the casual observer sees them.

Mr. Monaghan is a sociologist and an economist, but he looked at the European countries and their people last night with the eye of the admirer of the beautiful and the optimist. He told his hearers that one does not get the right impressions of strange people by following beaten paths of travel. "Do not ride on trains, but take a bicycle, a coach or some other conveyance that will bring you in close touch with the people," he said.

Mr. Monaghan visited Scotland, England, Italy, France, Germany, Holland and Ireland on his talk and gave his hearers lightning like word pictures of each country, its people and their characteristics. He paid tribute to the hardiness and business ability of the Scot, the neatness and hospitality of the English, the culture of the Italian, the politeness of the Frenchman, the sturdiness of the German, the patriotism of the Hollander, the optimism, hospitality and patriotism of the Irishman.

Mr. Monaghan is an optimist, himself. "To get the proper impression of a country, read the works of its optimistic writers," he said. He decried the tendency of Americans to measure everything by money. "Mammon is a false god and America should realize the fact," he said.

The discouragement of talent for literature, art or music in the child is unfair to the child and unfair to the country, he said. He pointed to the literature of England, the art of Italy, the music of Germany and said that each country is better for the development along those lines. He paid a beautiful tribute to Augustus St. Gaudens, terming him one of the six great sculptors of the world.

Mr. Monaghan opened his lecture with a brief explanation of the work of the Knights of Columbus, especially along educational lines. He referred to the donations made by the order to the Catholic university at Washington and by the state councils to other Catholic universities and colleges. The great aim of the order, he said, is education, "for no individual, society or nation has a right to existence unless it has some great aim for which to live and strive."

P. H. Martin presided over the meeting and the musical numbers included a piano solo by Mr. Salter, a duet by Miss Clare Folz and Miss Ruth Brown, a vocal solo by Mr. Oulette and a violin solo by Mr. La Vaque.

The meeting was held at the new Knights of Columbus hall, 210 West First street.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

COLDER

The rain came last night and it was welcome. Duluth usually has more than enough rain in the spring, but this year J. Pluvius has been sleeping more than usual and when he does tip his sprinkling can, he gets applause from earth beings instead of the customary maledictions. The clouds precent astronomers from observing the comet, but so long as the comet doesn't knock the earth off its balance the common people are not greatly interested.

A chilly wind blew off the lake a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:26 and it will set at 7:42, giving fifteen hours and sixteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The western disturbance has moved its center from South Dakota to Eastern Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Utah. During the past twenty-four hours this depression caused showers or thunderstorms over portions of all districts except in Atlantic and Pacific states. Somewhat warmer weather prevails in the lake region and Central valley states. A rise in pressure throughout the Northwest is attended by cooler weather over the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. Freezing temperatures occurred this morning in Montana, Alberta and Saskatchewan. The barometer is high over Atlantic and Pacific states."

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes — Moderate variable winds, becoming northwest; partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, with showers tonight on Lake Huron and eastern Superior; cooler tonight on Superior; cooler Saturday.

Chicago, May 20. — Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan — Cloudy and cooler tonight with showers in east portion; Saturday partly cloudy with cooler in east portion.

Wisconsin—Showers tonight or Saturday; cooler Saturday and in west portion tonight.

Minnesota—Partly cloudy with probably showers in southeast portion tonight or Saturday; coler tonight with probably frost.

Iowa — Showers tonight or Saturday; colder tonight and in east portion Saturday.

North Dakota — Fair tonight and Saturday; rising temperatures Saturday and in northeast portion tonight.

South Dakota — Partly cloudy tonight with probably showers in southeast portion; frost tonight; Saturday fair and warmer.

Montana — Fair tonight and Saturday; rising temperature.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME IN BEAUTIFUL LAKESIDE!

$75.00 BUYS A 50x140 FOOT LOT IN

LOEB'S ADDITION

5 Minutes' Walk From Car Line

Sale Starts Tomorrow at 2 P. M. and Continues All Afternoon and All Day Sunday.

LOTS RANGE IN PRICE FROM $75.00 TO $325.00

And you pay down only $1 or $2 and $1 or $2 a week until paid for. An opportunity to own your own home never given you before.

These lots are high, level and perfectly drained, and are all full size and face 66-foot streets, with 16-foot alleys in rear. You pay NO TAXES UNTIL 1913 AND NO INTEREST WHATEVER. THERE IS NO MORTGAGE HANGING OVER YOU. You pay NOTHING WHEN SICK OR HURT. This is a sure money-making opportunity for the small investor, and we want you to at least see the property.

HOW TO BUY Each lot is marked with number and price. Tear off the price card and present to any of our salesmen on the ground, or if you should fail to see a salesman, bring the card into our office with one or two dollars.

What and Where is Loeb's Addition to Lakeside?

These lots in Loeb's addition lay between Forty-third avenue east and Forty-ninth avenue east, fronting Colorado, Tioga, Otsega, Oneida and Glenwood streets. No lot more than eight very short blocks from the Lakeside car line. Free mail delivery, police and fire protection. Many beautiful homes adjoining this addition. Lakeside school within three blocks and churches close by. Lots in the immediate neighborhood are held at a greater price than that asked for these lots and are probably worth it, but we made our money in the purchase of Loeb's addition. This beautiful tract of land has been owned by an estate for years, and the heirs decided to turn it into money, therefore we had an opportunity of securing it at a price that enables us to quote the above unheard of prices on the lots and still make money. The title to all these lots is perfect and we furnish a Torrens Certificate of Title to Each Buyer.

Our idea in selling these lots without a down payment at $1.00 OR $2.00 WEEKLY is simply to give the small investor a chance. We know that on these terms we'll sell them all in a few weeks, whereas if we wanted $50 down it would take us much longer and the expense of selling would be much greater.

ARE LOOKING FOR HIS HEIRS

August Hoffman Owned Considerable Property in West Duluth.

M. J. Filiatrault was today appointed special administrator for the estate of August Hoffman, 48 years old, who was found dead in bed at his home, 5715 Tacony street. Coroner McCuen made the appointment. Mr. Filiatrault will act until a permanent administrator is appointed.

Hoffman leaves no known relatives although it is supposed that a brother survives him somewhere in Europe. He was the owner of two houses and lots at West Duluth. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Filiatrault undertaking rooms with interment at Oneota cemetery.

OLD-FASHIONED FOURTH OF JULY

West Duluthians Planning Parade, Speeches and a Dance.

West Duluth will celebrate the Fourth of July in old fashioned style this year, and as no plans have been made for any big demonstration in any other part of the city on Independence day, it is probable that people of Duluth proper will join with the suburbanites in the "blowout."

Yesterday afternoon at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms, a mass meeting of business men was held. On account of the weather the attendance was limited to fifteen, but every man was enthusiastic and pledged his support to its success. L. A. Barnes, Eighth ward alderman, was named temporary chairman and Rev. E. F. Stidd is the temporary secretary.

Besides having all the usual fireworks and decorations, the West Duluthians are making plans for a big parade, which will be one of the big features of the day. Bands will play in the afternoon, public speeches will be made and the affair will probably wind up with a dance at one of the parks in the evening. Special attention will also be paid to the fireworks.

Ten years ago West Duluth celebrated the Fourth. The sum of $136 was left over from this celebration. The next meeting will be held Tuesday.

ONE ALLEGED THIEF CAUGHT

Police Arrest West Duluthian for Stealing Launch Fixtures.

That the boathouse thefts at West Duluth may be charged to people who own boats or who are at least familiar with the boathouses on the bay front at West Duluth, is the opinion of some of the launch owners who have been losers in the recent depradations.

This was partly confirmed yesterday when the police arrested Fred Willmott, residing at 303 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, charging him with petit larceny. Articles stolen from the launch of William Kilby were found in the possession of Willmott when he was arrested, it is claimed. Willmott owns a boat.

In the West Duluth justice court last evening, he was fined $33.50. The stolen articles were returned to Kilby. Among them were a spark plug, a timer, and a shaft with gear and hanger. The entire outfit taken was valued at about $10. The boathouse from which they were taken is at the foot of Fifty-seventh avenue west.

The police are investigating other thefts among the boathouses and more arrests may follow.

SIX COWS DRIVEN TO THE POUND BY POLICE.

Missed your cow?

If any one at West Duluth is minus a bovine today, the animal might be found at the pound at Sixty-first avenue west and Grand. The animal may be recovered, providing the customary fee is forthcoming.

A herd of six cows, was run into the pound last evening by Sergeant Bradley and Officer Ek. The animals were at large in the vicinity of Sixty-third avenue west and Raleigh street and were grazing on the Northern Pacific right-of-way.

The police say that the cow nuisance is growing at West Duluth and arrests may follow.

STIEE-CHESTOCK.

Joseph Chestock Takes West Duluth Girl for His Bride.

Miss Martha Stiee and Joseph Chestock, a well-known cigar manufacturer at West Duluth, were married Wednesday evening at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Father Lynch, pastor of St. James' Catholic church.

The bride is a well-known West Duluth girl and has lived in this end of the city for a number of years. Mr. Chestock is the proprietor of a cigar factory on Central avenue and has lived in West Duluth for the past ten years.

The couple will make their home at 318 Central avenue.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF IRVING ALUMNI.

The Irving School Alumni association held a meeting last evening, at which plans were made for the annual banquet to be given in honor of the graduating class of the grade school June 17. A committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. Its first meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the home of Leon Ilts, Cody street. The following are members of the committee: Misses Eva Ketchum, Olive Clark, Kathryn Dunleavy, Jennie Baubin; Messrs. Leon Ilts, Joseph Rothwell, Clayton Holmes, George Deathridge and Ray Abbott.

WEST DULUTH SCHOOL GIRL PASSES AWAY.

Mabel H. Willette, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Willette of 608 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, died last evening at the Duluth hospital, following an operation for appendicitis this week.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the St. James' Catholic church with burial at Calvary cemetery. The girl was very popular among her associates and was to have graduated in June from the Sacred Heart institute.

She is survived by four brothers besides her parents.

Appear in Recital.

Madame Hilda Hellstrom Gagnee of Stockholm, Sweden, a well-known Swedish folk lore interpreter, assisted by J. S. Osterberg of Providence, R. I., a tenor of note, and Miss Eva Ashworth, pianist, will appear in a concert this evening at Great Eastern hall. During the evening a scene from the popular Swedish play, "Varmlandingarne," will be given.

Commercial Club Meeting.

Little new business is scheduled to come up for consideration this evening at the regular meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club. Several matters which have been pending for some time may be discussed.

A committee which has been agitating for a waiting room for women at the West Duluth depot of the Northern Pacific, will report. But little progress, however, has been made by the committee, it is said.

Funeral Saturday.

The funeral of Mrs. Zilda Zeck, 25 years old, who died yesterday morning at the Duluth hospital, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Oneota cemetery. The services will probably be held from the Filiatrault undertaking rooms. Mrs. Zeck was divorced from her husband less than a month ago. She leaves a daughter 4 years of age and a child a week old.

Overcoat Recovered.

Officer Ek of the West Duluth department found an overcoat last evening at Fifty-sixth avenue west and Cody street. It was taken to the station, where later in the evening it was recovered by John Fox, a teamster, who resides at West Duluth.

Woodruffs vs. Columbias.

The Woodruffs will line up against the Columbias Sunday at the Fifty-second avenue west grounds. The following is their lineup: Brosius, c; Bethune, p; O'Brien, 1b; Arlackson, 2b; Bergren, ss; Branscomb, 3b. Outfielders: Baker, Deno, Johnson, Carlson, and Thorson. Game called at 3 o'clock.

West Duluth Briefs.

The Boys' club of the Merrit Memorial M. E. church will have a marshmallow roast at the church study this evening.

George Barnaby has left for Virginia.

Miss Alice Gordon has returned from Ely.

Alex Lindstrom is back from St. Paul.

Willard George has gone to Bayfield, Wis.

Miss Gertrude Hanson has left for St. Paul.

Elling Diesen returned last evening to his home at Baraboo.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ziegel are visiting at Proctor.

Hurst Watch repairing. W. Duluth.

SHOULD HAVE GOOD CROP SAYS BLANCHARD.

E. C. Blanchard, general superintendent of the Northern Pacific here, stated that reports of the progress of the crops along the route of the Northern Pacific were most encouraging, and that if they continued doing as well as they have started, the Northwest was assured of a big crop this year.

According to Mr. Blanchard the recent cold weather has not injured the crops to any great extent.

Mr. Blanchard also stated that the business of the road was very good at the present time.

ROOSEVELT TO BE THE COMMANDER

Will Be Elected Head of Organization of the Spanish War.

New York, May 20.—Theodore Roosevelt will be elected national commander of the National Commandery of the Army and Navy Order of the Spanish war, it was reported at the annaul convention in progress here this afternoon. Delegates from all over the country were present.

NAVAL BILL IS ORDER IN SENATE

Carries an Appropriation of $130,737,934—Two Battleships Provided For.

Washington, May 20.—The railroad bill was displaced in the senate today by the naval appropriation bill. The naval bill carries an appropriation of $130,737,934 and it was anticipated that it would occupy the attention throughout the day. Especial interest was felt in the provision for two new dreadnought battleships.

OBITUARY

Gerhard Messman, one of the oldest residents of the town of St. Augusta, in Stearns county, Minn., is dead at his home after a prolonged illness. Death resulted from paralysis. Deceased was 81 years of age, and had lived in Stearns county for the last forty-five years.

Francis Delelmorande, aged 78, a pioneer resident of the Copper country, is dead at Calumet, Mich. He was a nephew of the late Lord Lemorande of Canada and claimed to be a descendant of Napoleon Bonaparte. His father owned the present site of the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie.

William S. C. Leaves, founder and president of the Portage Lake Foundry & Machinery company, the biggest concern of the kind in the Copper country, supervisor of Franklin township for many years and founder of the town of Ripley, is dead at Houghton, Mich., aged 60 years.

John Wright Johnson, personal friend and coworker with Harriet Beecher Stowe in the campaign against slavery, is dead at his home in Fountain City, Ind. Johnson, who was 91 years old, is accredited with having assisted Eliza Harris of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame to escape by means of the underground railroad and to have given Mrs. Stowe the facts for her story.

NEW YORK PAPER REPORTED GRAND MARAIS WIPED OUT.

Manager F. G. Mee of the United Wireless Telegraph company, is today in receipt of a letter from the New York office of the company, asking him why he did not inform the officials of the company of the complete destruction by fire of the village of Grand Marais, and also of the destruction of the wireless station on the north shore.

It all hapened because a New York newspapr wrote a large and thrilling story of the destruction of the little village up the north shore of Lake Superior, of the brave but futile attempts of the wireless operator to save the station at that point, and of how he was forced to flee for his life.

The officials of the company naturally felt as if they at least ought to be let in on such a good story, especially as their property was also destroyed. Hence the letter, asking for the post mortem of the whole affair.

Mr. Mee will reply, telling the wireless officials that the village is still as beautiful as ever and that the wireless man is also at his post.

NEWSPAPERS IN THE TROPICS.

New York Sun: "Down in the tropics we don't get the newspapers from home every day," said the man with the tanned face, "and when we do get them it isn't a matter of skimming through them in a hurry, as a man would do up here. A newspaper with real news from the United States is something to treasure up.

"When the steamer comes in that brings the papers from home I just skim across the first pages to see what has happened of importance. Just a case of looking at the headlines for me. Then I take the papers and put them in order of their dates.

"Each morning when I sid down to breakfast I take one paper. I read that carefully through from the first page to the last. If I can't get through with it before noon I don't hurry, but make it do for the late evening too. The next day I take up the next date, and so on. We get about one mail a week, so I just about get through with one batch when the next is due."

His hearer, who had been in the tropics himself, was able to testify to the thoroughness with which the exiles read the newspapers.

"You fellows beat me," he said. "I know whenever I get down to one of the stations I always find folks who can ask me more questions about the details of articles in the newspapers that I hardly read at home than you would think possible.

"It gives a man a pretty strong sense of how quiet the life must be in some of those places. I should think some of the newspapers would be worn out the way the men go over every bit of news which is almost forgotten matter by the time it gets to them."

"It isn't the men alone," said the exconsul, "who want to see the papers. It would amuse some folks to see the women studying up the autumn and winter styles and discussing the pictures of some fur piece or heavy coat, with a thermometer up in the nineties and not showing any particular signs of falling. Of course when it comes to the summer things they naturally want to know, because they have a chance to make use of those fashion hints; but the idea of a fur coat a few degrees north of the equator is a good joke."

A BRAKE WELL SHOD.

New York Sun: In course of time wear came to the grocer's delivery wagon, the leather wore away from the brakes and the wood took no firm bite on the tire. Much squeaking followed in consequence on down grades, and where the hill was at all steep there was danger of an accident.

Either by the exercise of his own powers of reasoning or on the prompting of some one more expert interpreting the troubles which come in time to vehicles of every degree the grocer discovered that the brake shoes had worn out. To identify the trouble was in the same process to discover how to apply the remedy, the brakes needed new shoes.

From his own supply of shoes that had outlasted their usefulness upon the grocer's feet he selected a pair for the barefoot brakes. With a hammer and a few nails he was able to do the cobbling for himself.

With brakes properly shod once more the wagon was put in shape for the delivery of wares both uphill and down. The shoes were shoes to begin with; nailed to the brakes they certainly became brake shoes. A fine touch of accuracy was added in the precision with which the right foot shoe braked the right wheel and the left shoe the left wheel.

EXPENSIVE SALMON.

Illustrated London News: The most imaginative of all pleasures is salmon fishing, for nobody, perhaps, has observed that a rich man will pay £200 for a month's rent of a river or of a beat on a river, and compared that sum with the salmon captured.

As a rule, in the month fifty fish taken is a very high average. Thus every fish costs £4. Much more frequently a fish a day is reckoned as a favorable result. The angler, in fact, is not paying for the fish—who would pay £10 for a fish weighing eight pounds? He is paying solely for the pleasures of the imagination, for hopes—which experience should teach him to abandon—of catching fish.

Duluth Life Insurance Company

This Should Interest You

During the past ten years, according to Bradstreet's, there have been over one hundred thousand commercial failures with liabilities of over a billion and a half.

During the past ten years, six hundred Banks and Trust Companies have closed their doors, with liabilities of over three hundred and eighty millions.

During the past ten years there have been ninety-three Railroad Receiverships, with over six hundred million dollars of stock and bond issues involved.

While for Life Insurance, it can be said that for more than thirty years there has not been one single failure of an Old-Line Life Insurance Company which has been continuously on the legal reserve basis.

The "DULUTH LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY" is on the old-line plan, and on the legal reserve basis.

SUPERIOR

MAYOR CONFERS WITH OFFICIALS

Soo Line Officers Told That City Objects to Its Plans.

In a conference yesterday with President Pennington and General Manager Huntington of the Soo road, Mayor Crumpton declared that the city proposes to call a halt on the railroads splitting up the residence district.

"We have come to the conclusion," he said, "that it is time to call a halt on this matter of gridironing the city with railroads further than can be avoided, if we are to have a city fit to live in. The district through which you propose to run an elevated structure with its resultant noise, smoke and dirt, is one of the few of any considerable size left without tracks and in the future will undoubtedly be turned into a fine residence district if left untouched by the railroads. At South Superior the line as surveyed leaves a long line of houses between it and the Great Northern, which will be made worthless. And there is no apparent reason why the Great Northern cannot be paralleled at a reasonable distance away. The grades are easier and the curves no greater on the lines we propose and we hope to see it adopted."

President Pennington's visit to Superior was unexpected. He left last evening on a special train for Ashland.

CONSUL GENERAL VISITS SUPERIOR

John P. Bray, Stationed in Australia, Renewing Acquaintances Here.

John P. Bray, American consul general to Australia, with headquarters at Melbourne, is visiting with his sister, Mrs. J. J. Flynn of 1324 Hammond avenue. He arrived in the city last evening from St. Paul, en route to Washington and other Eastern points.

Mr. Bray left Melbourne Jan. 25, sailed to San Francisco, and after visiting in a few of the Western cities, he came to Superior. He will leave in a few days for the East. His leave of absence expires in August.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT.

James Stewart, Forgery Suspect, Is Held to Higher Court.

James Stewart, arrested on May 2 for forgery, was bound over to the circuit court yesterday when arraigned for an examination in municipal court. He was released from custody on $200 bail.

John Hill, who stabbed Belle Cline, a resort keeper, in a drunken row yesterday morning, was arraigned in municipal court, and his examination was set for next Friday.

The case against C. Hoi, a Chinaman, who was recently arrested for selling poisons without a label, was adjourned for a week. Hoi is said to have sold opium and morphine to various parties in the lower end of town.

SCHOMMER CASE IS AGAIN POSTPONED.

The case against Nicholas J. Schommer, who shot his 19-year-old sweetheart, Miss Effie Johnson, at Billings' park a few weeks ago, was up in municipal court today, but was postponed again for a week, when, it is thought, the girl will be able to appear against him. Schommer is charged with attempted murder.

GREAT NORTHERN FILES PETITION

Wants Injunction Against Enforcing of Order for Lower Sleeper Rates.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A petition was filed in the United States circuit court today by the Great Northern Railway company, in which it is seeking an injunction to prevent the interstate commerce commission from enforcing an order reducing the charge for upper berths in the company's sleeping cars operated between St. Paul and Seattle.

The date for the hearing of the arguments had not been fixed.

Masons to Meet at Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the first time in the history of the upper peninsula, the grand chapter of the Masonic order will hold its annual meeting next year north of the Straits of Mackinac. Marquette has been awarded the convention and the gathering will assemble here the third Tuesday in May. This was decided at the annual meeting of the grand chapter at Lansing this week.

JAPANESE BOYS' DANCE.

Universalist Leader: One of our Japanese friends had told us that on this particular day a wonderful dance would be performed, and that if we would see it we must go early, for there would doubtless be a great crowd. So shortly after 1 o'clock we entered the big gate of the park and wandered along past the old men and women squatted on the ground selling cakes, toys and dried up oranges, on to the wider space between the larger shrines and the tea houses to a sort of avenue leading from directly in front of the bear's cage to the foot of the mountain.

We had trouble to find a good place, for if we get out of the sun's glare we must stand in the mud, as already the small boys had filled all the spaces on the shrine steps and the porches. The large platform between the main shrine and the great gate is draped with white cloth, but the great canopy is nature's own, for the court is full of cherry trees loaded with a glory of pink, whi surrounds the platform and makes an attractive stage.

Priests in red silk robes with gold trimmings glide mysteriously from the shrine across the platform to a secret little room adjoining it; small boys emerge from the little room and look at the expectant crowd; muffled drums beat, and occasionally a flutelike note is heard.

Two boys about 10 years old come out from the little room at the side of the platform. They are richly robed in black, embroidered with gold. They have curious high helmets on their well poised heads, and while the dance they perform is but a series of slow, graceful, half-gliding steps to the time of the faint tones of the flute, they are turning and twisting light wands which we watch with fascinated eyes. Soon two more boys come out to dance while the first two rest, and then the first two reappear.

The delicate faces have a determined drawn look, and no wonder, for here come the jesters, and woe unto Shidzuoka if the jesters make the boys laugh. The boys are dressed this time in rich gold-colored kimonos of some ancient style. Their headdress is most elaborate. Indifference to aught but their dancing makes them seem like dream children. The jesters are great fat negro clowns. They never say a word, but make faces and perform all sorts of amusing antics keeping the onlooking crowd of small boys in an uproar of laughter.

Yet the other spectators do not laugh, for it is a serious matter if one of the boys in the dance should laugh. But no, the dance goes on with the rhythmic movements of the graceful children, strange contrast to the grotesque jesters of the black tempters, over an hour, with no sound but the warning flute and no sign of encouragement except the beautiful cherry blossoms fluttering on the soft spring air, seeming to say: "Look at us, be brave, be gentle, be pure and true, yield not to the demons." The hour is up The boys have not even smiled at the jesters' antics. The priests are happy; the boys' parents are deservedly proud.

And what does it all mean? To the ignorant common people it means that health and prosperity may smile upon the province during the succeeding year. The boys have brought it all about by their wonderful self-control in resisting the demons of disease and pestilence. This dance dates back for 200 and more years. It is celebrated nowhere else in the world; disease visits their homes and their harvests failed, the evil spirits were to blame for it, and so they must overcome these spirits. The desire to express that idea in a religious form resulted in this curious dance. The boys, about 10 or 12 years old, are chosen from high class families by the high priest of the shrine.

NOT LITERARY.

"The late Frederick Burton was the world's foremost authority on the American Indian," said a Yale ethnologist. "Burton was almost alone in his field. There are you know, so few students of Indian lore.

"He said to me once, with a vexed laugh, that he found it quite as impossible to discuss the Indian with people as a Boston critic found it to discuss poetry with the girl he took down to dinner.

"The girl was very pretty. Leaning her dimpled elbows on the table, she said to the critic:

"'And what is your lecture to be about, Professor?

"'I shall lecture on Keats,' he replied.

"'Oh, Professor,' she gushed. 'what are keats?'"

FOR A PERMANENT CURE.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Dr. David Starr Jordan, discussing at a dinner in Washington certain rulings of the international fisheries commission, said:

"The fish there get no chance. They have as hard a time of it as the whites in the interior of China.

"A Chinese druggist said to his clerk:

"'Didn't I see a foreign devil come out of here as I came down the street?'

"'Yes, sir,' the clerk answered. 'He wanted a permanent cure for headache and I sold him a bottle of rat poison.'"

THE FIRST TASTE OF PRIMUS BUTTER

Wins you forever from all other kinds. Just taste this clean, pure, fragrantly fresh butter and judge it by that first taste. We know you'll never go back to that "tub" kind again. You who are fond of good things to eat, who demand immaculate cleanliness and purity in your food, ask for PRIMUS BUTTER and taste it. We know you'll like it. Churned from selected cream that is first pasteurized to make purity a certainty, in a spotlessly clean creamery that we know you would like to visit—that is Primus Butter.

You'll surely want VELVET ICE CREAM for the Sunday dinner.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That the undersigned do hereby associate themselves together for the purpose of forming a corporation pursuant to the provisions of Chapter Fifty-eight (58) of the Revised Laws of Minnesota, 1905, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto and do hereby sign and adopt the following certificate of incorporation.

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be RICE RIVER COMPANY. The general nature of its business shall be to buy, sell, lease, improve, mortgage and deal in all kinds of property, real, personal and mixed, and to do any and all things necessary, convenient or incidental to such business. The principal place of transacting said business shall be Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of said corporation shall be April 1, 1910, and the period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are Gustav A. Bush, Charles E. Lovett and Alfred Jaques, all residing at Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The management of the affairs of said corporation shall be vested in a board of seven directors, and the general officers hereinafter specified, all of whom shall be stockholders of said corporation; the names and addresses of those composing the first board of directors are Jesse Norton, Charles E. Lovett, Gustav A. Bush, Alfred Jaques, Charles S. Prosser and Sanford F. McLeod, all of Duluth, Minnesota, and C. H. Warner of Aitkin, Minnesota, and they shall hold their offices as such directors until their successors are elected and qualified. The date of the annual meeting of the stockholders, which shall be held at the principal office of the corporation, is the first Monday in April of each year. The Board of Directors shall elect the first President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, and their successors shall be elected at an annual meeting of the Board of Directors held immediately after the adjournment of the annual stockholders' meeting.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be Fifty Thousand Dollars, which shall be paid in in money or in other property at such times, in such amounts and in such manner as the Board of Directors may determine. The capital stock shall be divided into five thousand shares of the par value of Ten Dollars ($10.00) each.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which said corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We have hereunto set our hands and seals this 11th day of April, 1910.

COPPERS STRONG; TRADING LIGHT

Values Advance Steadily From Opening in East--- Weak Here.

The copper market was strong today and values were buoyant. The good feeling that came from buying in Steel and some of the railroads caused a favorable upturn in coppers. The reports of increased steel orders and favorable crop messages from the West gave traders courage and they purchased moderately. There was no pressure, however, and little selling. Stocks were scarce on the upturn.

There was no London market today. Trading was confined to the professional element and the public was not in the market. Trading here was light and there was a weak undertone. There appeared to be slight forced liquidation and values were inclined to droop.

Amalgamated sold at $71 to $71.25 to $70.75, $71.87½ and off. ¼ point at the close. Steel common sold at $83.62½ to $83.75 to $84.50. North Butte sold at $33.25 to $34. Superior & Pittsburg sold at $12.12½. Giroux sold at $7.50 to $7.62½ and Greene was $8.37½ bid.

Butte-Alex Scott, part paid, sold at $2.50, Butte-Ballaklava at $12 to $12.25, Copper Queen at 30c, Red Warrior at $1.87½ to $1.81¼ and $1.75. At the last named price 1,000 shares changed hands in one block. Shattuck sold at $29.87½ to $29.62½, Warrior at $9.25, Butte & Superior at $1.81¼ to $1.87½, Calumet & Corbin at 63c, Carman at 80c, Elenita at $6.50 to $6.62½, Keating at $1.25 to $1.18¾, North American at $2.75.

SAYS WE SPENT DAY IN COMET'S TAIL

Des Moines, Iowa, May 20.—Prof. D. W. Morehouse of the Drake university astronomical department, declares from observations of the comet's tail in the east shortly after 3 o'clock this morning that the earth is passing longitudinally through the tail of Halley's comet.

The tail was blunt in the east today, indicating that the earth is near the farthest extremity, Prof. Morehouse said. The backward curve is responsible for the longitudinal passage. Prof. Morehouse expects to see the tail in the west this evening.

ARRESTED AT DOOR OF JAIL

After Serving Sixty Days, Joseph Delude's Liberty Is Short-Lived.

Having just completed a term of sixty days in the county jail for running a "blind pig" at Chisholm, Joseph W. Delude left the jail this morning only to walk into the arms of United States Deputy Marshall J. G. Mallory, who arrested him on a warrant issued on an indictment charging Delude with selling liquor to Indians at Ashland, Wis., April 19, 1909.

Delude was arraigned before United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell. He admitted his identity, but denied the charge against him. He was placed in the county jail to await arrangements for his being sent to the Wisconsin jurisdiction.

Delude is charged with having sold a half pint of whisky and a quart of beer to two Chippewa Indians.

FARMERS WANT R. F. D. ROUTE

Farmers residing at Fredenberg, a settlement comprising thirty families north of Duluth about two and a half miles off the Rice Lake road, are clamoring for a rural free delivery route.

Charles Lindberg, a farmer of Fredenberg, is in Duluth today to confer with the local postal authorities in regard to the matter. He says that the people there are anxious for the new route.

Many of the families are old residents and the community is a well-established one. At the present time most of them are at least two miles from Route No. 4.

CITY BRIEFS

Orders Chinaman Deported.

After a hearing yesterday, United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell for the second time ordered the deportation of Chin Yip, accused of being in the United States in violation of the Chinese exclusion act. Chin Yip was ordered deported last week, but the case was reopened for the introduction of more evidence by the defense. Yip claimed that he was born in San Francisco and had never been in China, but the commissioner held that he failed to establish the fact.

Articles of Incorporation.

The Minnesota Land & Dairy company filed articles of incorporation this morning with the register of deeds. The business of the company will be to conduct and maintain dairies and creameries. The principal place of business will be in Duluth. A. L. Agatin, A. W. Taussig and Fred L. Farmer are the incorporators, and the capital stock is placed at $25,000.

Prisoners From the Range.

Deputy Sheriff Owen Gatley brought to the county jail from the range yesterday eight men, one of whom was recently convicted of third degree murder.

Given Physical Tests.

Nine applicants for the police force took the physical test at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday, as required by the civil service rules. Two were ruled out, one being too fat and the other too light. The exercises were chiefly to ascertain the men's strength.

Merchant Bankrupt.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed in United States court this afternoon against Frank Peterson, a merchant at Pine City.

Chinaman Out on Bonds.

Neon Hin Han, one of the Chinamen arrested at Hibbing by the immigration authorities, was released from the county jail on $800 bonds this afternoon. Neon Hin Han was ordered deported by United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell and he will file an appeal to the United States district court for a reversal of the order.

Desertion Is Charged.

Claudia Finckler, 35 years old, filed suit for divorce in district court today from her husband, Charles Finckler, 40 years old. Desertion is alleged. They were married at Hastings, Mich., in 1892. In her bill of complaint she claims that he left her in January, 1909.

Arrested for Speeding.

J. G. Harrison was arrested this afternoon for violating the speed ordinance. An officer stopped his car at Third avenue West and had him drive to the police station.

Funeral Saturday.

The funeral of Andrew Johnson, who died at St. Luke's hospital a few days ago from pneumonia, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from Crawford's undertaking rooms. Services will be conducted by Rev. J. H. Stenberg. Interment will be in Park Hill cemetery. Frank Johnson of Angora, Minn., a brother, arrived in Duluth this morning and made the arrangements for the funeral.

Looking for Grover Mosher.

The police have been asked by Mrs. Kate Mosher of Solon Springs, Wis., for aid in locating her son, Grover Mosher, 19 years of age. She has not heard from him for two months and is worried. The last letter she wrote was returned. He is about 6 feet tall, broad shouldered and has a light complexion. He formerly worked at the F. A. Patrick company and the McKay hotel. Mrs. Mosher thinks that he is now running an automobile in the city, but does not think that he has a license.

Dr. James C. Anderson.

Notice, Dr. Anderson has removed his offices to suite 501, Alworth building.

JOHNNIE'S EYE.

Chicago News: "Come here a minute, Johnnie," said the little boy's father, as Johnnie made an effort to slip through the room while keeping the left side of his face away from his observant parent. "I want to have a look at that bump over your eye."

Johnnie halted reluctantly and slowly turned around.

"Oh, it ain't nothin'," he declared. "It'll be gone in a day or two and it don't hurt."

"That's good," commented his father, who had received advance information from Johnnie's mother as soon as he reached home that evening. "I'm glad it doesn't hurt. When I was your size and got a bump like that it used to hurt. I remember. How did you get it?"

Johnnie developed a tremendous interest in the red and blue cabbage roses that ornamented the rug. He looked up once to see whether storm signals were flying in his father's countenance, but the barometer was not working.

"We—we was kind of wrastlin'," he finaly admitted.

"Wrestling?" repeated his father, elevating his eyebrows in pleased surprise. "Well, that's a good, healthful sport, especially in winter. And who was your adversary?"

"Huh?" asked Johnnie, looking up quickly.

"Who was the other fellow in the match?" asked his father.

"Harry Masters," said Johnnie, returning to the cabbage roses.

"Harry, eh?" said his father. "I thought you and Harry weren't good friends any more. Well, I'm glad to hear you and he have made it up and are playing together again, after my warning to you about fighting with your little playmates. Did Harry win the match?"

"Ah, he's too fresh!" declared Johnnie. "He's always looking for a scrap!"

"Well, that isn't pleasant, is it?" said the inquiring parent. "I'm glad you're not that sort. How did you and he come to get up this wrestling match?"

Johnnie paused to consider the situation and rubed a furtive hand over the swollen spot above the eye while he watched his father's inscrutable face.

"Well, he had no right to push me," he ventured, at length. "I wasn't even near him when he done it."

"Oh, Harry pushed you when you weren't near him?" queried his father. "What a long reach Harry must have. And then what? Did you challenge him to wrestle you, two falls out of three?"

"He—he said I stepped on his foot," explained Johnnie. "Then he pushed me and then I said I didn't want to fight and then he gave me the cardy blow."

"The what?" asked his mystified father, mildly.

Johnnie looked up in surprise. "The cardy blow," he repeated. "You know what that is, don't you, pa? Didn't the kids have that when you went to school?"

"I'm afraid I missed that one," admitted his father. "What is it like?"

"Well, it's when some kid pushes you or somethin'," explained Johnnie, "and dares you to fight and if you won't and he double-dares you, then he gives you the cardy blow—just a litte slap like that—and then you've got to fight him."

"Oh, I see," said his father, nodding his head. "It's a sort of a public insult, eh? And so Harry pushed you and then he gave you the cardy blow?"

"Yes, sir," said Johnnie, looking up hopefully.

"And then you began to wrestle?" pursued his father.

Johnnie looked at him in blank dismay. "No, we didn't begin to wrastle," he said eagerly. "I gave him a paste in the nose and then he hit me one over the eye here and then I smashed him a couple and then the janitor took me off him and he went home."

Johnnie's father looked at him attentively for a few moments, while Johnnie returned to the study of floriculture as practiced by imaginative rug weavers.

"Well, that's different," said his father at length. "I was afraid that you had been disobeying me and had gone around trying to pick a fight with Harry. But, of course, if he gave you the—er—cardy blow first you couldn't do anything but defend yourself. That's all right, Johnnie. Don't you take that cardy business from any of 'em. Now, you'd better go and ask your mother to bathe that eye of yours in cold water."

BLACKFEET GO TO WORK.

Uncle Sam found the Indian such a good workman in the year 1909 that he has formed an entirely new opinion of that erstwhile troublesome person.

Of course there are still many red men on reservations living off the bounty of this government and showing no disposition to get out and earn a living, but their number is becoming smaller every year.

Last year the Blackfeet tribe put their shoulders to the wheel and made the reclamation service's Blackfeet project in Montana a big success. Other kinds of labor, says the Van Norden Magazine, simply could not be had. So the red man was the sole reliance of Director Newell.

As in the case of the Apaches of Arizona, the Blackfeet proved to be men of their word. They wanted to know just how many hours they were to work and the character of work they were to do. Then they went at it with a will and never did they shirk or make excuses.

Once the time for quitting came, however, they knocked off with all the eagerness and promptness of union men. They displayed remarkable intelligence and eagerness to learn. Moreover, they gave evidence of a desire to take up the ways of the civilized to live in houses and observe the laws of health.

THE SHORTS HUNT COVER

Buying Movement at the Close Sends Prices Up.

Few Offerings in the Market---Flax Moderately Active.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—With the market almost bare of offerings some shorts tried to cover toward the close today and values quickly advanced, the upturn carrying May ⅝c over yesterday and July ½c over. September closed unchanged. It was reported that the weather was growing rapidly colder in the Northwest and that snow was falling in some parts of North and South Dakota. These messages with a scattered few telling of rust in the Southwest made some of the shorts nervous and sent them running to cover. Bearish facts were ignored and extremely optimistic messages from Kansas had little effect. That snow can hurt the growing plant in the Northwest is doubtful as the temperatures are warm enough to melt the snow as fast as it falls. With the heavy concentrated holdings dictating to the market and in the face of continued buying in the near month the bears run at their own shadows although nearly all factors except pit conditions and theories are in their favor.

May wheat opened at $1.08¾ bid, sold up to $1.09⅝, and closed with bids at $1.09⅝. July opened at $1.08⅜ asked, and sold at $1.08½, $1.09½, and closed with bids at $1.09¾. September opened with offers at $1.00, and sold off to 99⅜c, and closed at $1.00.

Flax was moderately traded in, and the activity was without feature. May was $2.07 bid at the opening, and sold at $2.10, $2.09, and closed $2.10. July opened at $1.97½, and was bid at $1.99, the close. September was $1.70 asked at the opening, and sold at $1.69 and $1.69¾, the close. October opened with offers at $1.62, sold at $1.62, $1.61¾, and closed with sales at $1.62.

Cash wheat closed ½c over July. The mills offered 1c for choice stuff. Oats closed ¼c off, rye and barley closed unchanged, and durum at the close was ½c off.

Wheat opened weak, there being some liquidation due to favorable weather in the Northwest where rains were general with prospects for an additional fall. Reports from Kansas said that the rains had wrought great improvement to the growing plant and some people believed that the wheat production of the Sunflower state will reach 70,000,000 bu. Values held firm at the weaker levels until noon when the market advanced.

Around this period shorts were covering and the market responded to light buying in the near months by a few longs. Trading was small and after the opening hour there was little pressure on the market. The market advanced over yesterday's close, pit conditions and theories holding sway. So long as the leading bull interest is aggressive and the tight situation in May continues the market will be a nervous proposition. This tense situation is keeping the public out of the market, although some commission men say that in the last few days public interest has shown indications of revival and that the public is inclined to favor the short side.

With bearish news coming from nearly every point of the compass the market today needed support and got it. The bulls are making capital out of the mental attitude of the American farmer and a few reports from Indiana and scattered localities elsewhere telling of the ravages of the Hessian fly. In the Northwest the temperatures are cool and it is cloudy over most of that territory. In the extreme Southwest harvesting is near at hand, and the bulls will face an early movement of new wheat. They claim, however, that the producing area from which this wheat will come has never grown enough stuff to supply local mills, and they think the early harvest will not be a factor in the situation.

There were no foreign markets today. This country is far out of line and no export business is being done. Sales abroad of Manitobas are relatively small. Russian and Argentine wheat has been offered in the last day or two at 4½c under Manitoba.

The mills are paying 1c over July for choice North Dakota stuff. Public stores here are expected to decrease 75,000 bu this week. The decrease in the last five days has been 504,000 bu to 4,216,000 bu. About 1,300,000 bu has been sold to Chicago, most of which has been sent from this port. Waterman, the leading holder of cash wheat has disposed of his Eastern stocks and is taking everything offered on May delivery and will continue to do so.

The professional element appears to be short and the crowd thinks the market will work lower unless new buying support appears. The natural tone to the market, it is claimed, is heavy and constant support will be needed to sustain it.

Messages to Barrell, said: Fergus Falls, Minn.—Grain is taking on a new lease of life since the rains of Sunday and Monday. The weather since the rain has been perfect, cool at first and then warmer. Crops did not suffer much in the dry weather, but they did not make progress. Winona, Minn.—The present warm weather following the rain earlier this week is bringing along grain faster than for nearly a month past, scarcely any progress in growth having been made during the dry, cool weather. Most of the corn planting has been completed. Willmar, Minn.—A good soaking rain has fallen all through Kandiyohi county, and reports show that all kinds of small grain were never in better shape. Recent reports of frost damage were found to have been greatly exaggerated. The outlook was never brighter for a bumper crop. The farmers are planting corn.

A Russian cable says: Latest advices state that general rains have fallen in South Russia.

Primaries: Wheat receipts 277,000 bu, last year 228,000 bu; shipments 325,000 bu, last year 177,000. Corn, receipts 298,000 bu, last year 362,000 bu; shipments 333,000 bu, last year 231,000 bu.

Kansas City wired that interior millers were trying to resell wheat there.

Bradstreet's clearnaces: Wheat, 2,918,000 bu; corn, 862,000 bu.

Car inspection: Wheat—No. 1 northern 4; No. 2 northern, 2; No. 3 northern, 2. Durum: No. 1, 7; No. 2, 11; No. 3, 3. Total durum, 20. Total wheat, 28; last year, 5; flax, 2; last year, 1; oats, 7; barley, 13; last year, 2. Total 50; on track, 60.

Broomhall cabled: Argentine shipments—Wheat, 992,000 bu, last week, 1,312,000 bu; last year, 1,360,000; corn, 476,000 bu; last week, 365,000 bu; last year, 3,215,000. Visible supply in chief ports now: Wheat, 1,248,000 bu; last week,1,840,000 bu; last year, 80,000 bu. The wheat market is weak with a small demand. Arrivals from interior continue small and the quality unsatisfactory. Corn market is active at the decline. Arrivals from the interior are increasing and the quality shows an improvement. Weather favorable for corn, it being cold and wet.

Foreign Market closed: Paris—Wheat 2d higher to ¼d lower; flour, ¼d lower to ¼d higher.

Antwerp—Wheat unchanged.

Berlin—¼c higher.

Budapest—Wheat, 1⅝c lower.

"The Minneapolis flour output continues weak, increased 42,190 bbl. This made the output for the week 282,560 bbl, against 280,025 bbl in 1909," says the Northwestern Miller. "This week one and one-half more mills are in operation and the output should exceed 500,000 bbl. Sales of flour are extremely small, some mills reporting them to be less than half the quantity they are making. With wheat shifting about, buyers appear not to care to take flour except in smallest way. Domestic shipping directions have improved in the last ten days, and this has resulted in the operative capacity at Minneapolis being considerably added to. Export business is hardly thought of. Millers scarcely know what prices to quote when asked about them. Europe appears to be drawing sufficient supplies from Canada and other countries outside of the United States."

Shipments not reported: W. C. Rhodes, 50,000 bu durum; Bulgaria, 91,000 bu spring wheat; R. Wallace, 38,083 bu bonded wheat; cars, 6,000 spring. Loading: Delware, 40,000 bu spring and 25,000 bu durum; R. Wallace, 37,000 bu bonded wheat.

Flax stores increased 4,000 bu in the last five days, to 71,000 bu. The estimated increase for the week is 8,000 bu.

The Royal statistical bureau of Prussia estimates the conditions in that monarchy as under the winter wheat, May 15, 1910, at 84 per cent; April 15, 1910, 84 per cent.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Weak on Rain and News From Duluth.

Chicago, May 20.—Out of respect to the memory of the late King Edward VII, the Chicago board of trade postponed its opening hour until 11 o'clock this morning.

With general rains and higher temperatures all through the winter wheat belt, and with showers predicted for tonight in the spring crop territory, prices here showed weakness today. There were reports that two more cargoes had been engaged at Duluth yesterday to come to Chicago. It was conceded by the most persistent bulls that the temper of the majority of the professional traders was bearish. Tales of crop damage in Illinois had an effect to some extent in the reports of the Burlington road to the effect that wheat is in fair condition, 75 to 100 per cent. Quotations at the start were unchanged to ⅛c off, the latter for the May option. September opened steady to ¼c lower at $1.00⅜@1.00½, and declined to $1.00⅛.

Pit traders oversold. The market turned upward on reports that the Texas crop would fall short of expectations. The tone at the close was steady with September at $1.00½@1.00⅝, a shade above last night's figures.

Talk of a big acreage and favorable conditions for growth made corn easy. September opened unchanged to ⅛c down at .61@62c. A decline to 61½c followed.

Buying improved after a late show of strength in wheat. The market closed steady with September at 61⅜@61⅝c, a net loss of ⅛@⅜c.

The crop outlook was too fine for the bulls in oats and there was much unloading. September began with a loss of ⅛@¼c to ½c, at 38⅜@38½c to 38½c and touched 38¼@38⅜c.

It was a slow steady market in provisions. First prices were precisely at last night's figures. September pork, $22.92½, September lard at $12.80, and September ribs $12.47½. Variations either way were inconsequential.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Late Session Strong in Wheat Pit On Oversold Condition.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—A slightly oversold condition made the late session strong and July advanced 1¼c above the early low point. July closed ½@⅝c above yesterday. Low temperatures were reported in the Northwest and the Canadian Northwest. Local elevator stocks decreased 675,000 bu for the week. Wheat and flour shipments so far this week are 504,647 bu in excess of the wheat receipts. Trading was of a nervous, uncertain character. Minneapolis today received 143 cars of wheat against 179 cars a year ago, and Duluth 26 cars against 5 cars. There was no session in Winnipeg today. May opened $1.09; high, $1.09; low, $1.09; closed, $1.09. July opened $1.07⅞; high, $1.08⅝; low, $1.07½; closed, $1.08⅜. September opened 99¼c; high, 99⅝@99½c; low, 98⅝@98¾c; closed, 99⅜@99¼c.

Cash wheat was strong and steady. Demand continued in excess of the daily receipts, and elevator stocks were drawn upon heavily. No. 1 northern sold today for 1½@3½c above the May option. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.09⅝@1.11⅝; to arrive, $1.09⅜@1.11⅜. No. 2 northern, $1.07⅝@$1.09⅜; to arrive, $1.07⅝@1.09⅜. No. 3 wheat, $1.05⅜@1.07⅜. No. 3 yellow corn, 57½@58½c. No. 3 white oats, 38⅜@39¾c. No. 2 rye, 70@73c.

Flax—Receipts, 8; year ago, 9, shipments, 9. Demand for spot was strong at 2½c below the Duluth May, and to arrive at the even July price. Offerings were light. Closing prices, $2.07½ To arrive, $1.99.

Barley—Receipts, 29 cars; year ago, 25; shipments, 48. The market held about steady today. Demand continued good for malting and feeding grades. Prices held firm. Closing range, 53@61.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,724 tons. There was no quotable change in the market today. Brand in 100-pound sacks, $18.00@18.25.

Millers reported a slight improvement in the demand for flour. Shipments continued heavier than last year and prices firm. Shipments, 45,241 bbl. First patents in wood, f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

New York Grain.

New York, May 20.—Wheat—May, $1.15; July, $1.09⅞; September, $1.06. Corn—May, 69c; July, 69¼c; September, 69⅝c.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@7 points on a continuation of yesterday's liquidation, promoted by reports that notices from about 12,000 bales had been issued against May contracts. Old crop months broke to a net loss of about 8@12 points and with weather conditions favorable, new crop positions sold about 5 points lower but at this decline there was aggressive buying of July and rally to nearly the closing prices of last night. New York was the only one of three big markets open today.

Spot closed quiet, 5 points advance; middling uplands, 15.25; middling gulf, 15.50; sales, 5,700 bales.

Futures closed barly steady; closing bids: May, 14.94; June, 14.95; July, 15.01; August, 14.80; September, 13.65; October, 12.81; November, 12.70; December, 12.65; January, 12.61; March, 12.66.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATOR—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.
In Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Estate of Bertha Filiatrault, Decedent:
THE PETITION OF James W. Falk of Eveleth, Minnesota, having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that Bertha Filiatrault, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of February, 1909, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is a creditor of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to James W. Falk.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Tuesday, the 31st day of May, 1910, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County out less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 5th, 1910.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minnesota.)
Duluth Evening Herald, May 6, 13 and 20, 1910.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—
DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Stephen Zgonc, mortgagor, to A. L. Rogers, mortgagee, bearing date March 25th, 1909, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on March 25th, 1909, in Book 261 of Mortgages on page 300.
Said default consists in the non-payment of a certain note of $800.00, dated March 25th, 1909, due May 1, 1910, executed and delivered by said Stephen Zgonc to said A. L. Rogers, which note is secured by said mortgage.
Said mortgage was assigned by said A. L. Rogers to Philip C. Schmidt by written assignment dated January 18th, 1910, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on May 10th, 1910, in Book 188 of Mortgages on page 456. Said mortgage was assigned by said Philip C. Schmidt to Sattler Brothers Company, a corporation, by written assignment dated May 9th, 1910, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on May 10th, 1910, in Book 188 of Mortgages on page 457.
By reason of such default, the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has ever been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.
The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged, is Lot seven (7) in Block sixteen (16), Chisholm, and Lot twelve (12) in Block three (3), Second Addition to Chisholm, according to the respective plats thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota subject to mineral reservations made by former owners thereof.
There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of $842.66.
Now, therefore, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder for cash by the Sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the Front Door of the Sheriff's Office in the County Court House at Duluth, Minnesota, upon Monday, the 27th day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage and $50.00 attorneys' fees as provided by said mortgage, together with the costs and disbursements allowed by law.
Dated this 13th day of May, 1910.

ENGLISH CHANNEL IS CROSSED BY FRENCH AVIATOR IN FLYER

Count de Lesseps Lands at Deal and May Start Back.

Duplicates Feat Performed Before By None But Bleriot.

Perfect Weather Conditions Are Afforded for the Daring Feat.

Calais, France, May 21.—Count Jacques de Lesseps, the French aviator, started at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon on a double flight across the English channel. He reached the English side successfully and was expected to make the return trip at once.

The weather was magnificent when the aeroplane rose from the ground for its daring trip, heretofore accomplished only by Louis Blerolt.

Rising, the count took his machine in a wide circle over the cliffs and then headed straight for Dover. In fifteen minutes he had disappeared from view. A torpedo boat destroyer followed the course of the aeroplane.

Landed at Deal.

Deal, England, May 21.—Count de Lesseps has landed in his aeroplane, having crossed the channel from France.

Nearly 3,000 Carloads of Product Kept Off the Market.

Seattle, Wash., May 21.—Shingle mills thoughout Western Washington that have been idle since April 22, to prevent a decline in prices, will resume operations Monday. About 2,500 men are affected.

As a result of the thirty day suspension, shingle men estimate between 2,500 and 3,000 carloads of shingles have been kept off the market.

SENATOR SCOTT THE WINNER IN PRIMARIES.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 21.—Returns from yesterday's primary election in Ohio county, indicate today that United States Senator N. B. Scott is victorious over Representative William P. Hubbard, who contested Senator Scott's renomination, by a majority of nearly 1,400 votes.

PREPARE FOR 'WORLD'S DAY'

Sunday School Workers Reassemble in One Session at Washington.

Big Parade of 10,000 Is Delayed By Downpour of Rain.

Washington, May 21.—The world's sixth Sunday school convention reunited to meet in one great session again today in Convention hall with President F. B. Meyer of London in the chair.

Tomorrow, May 22, will be World's Sunday School day. In every Sunday school in the world in the Sunday School union it will be observed. The little children in the missions in China will be reciting the same order of service as the Sunday school children in Washington.

An army of more than 10,000 members from all parts of the world marched down Pennsylvania avenue late yesterday and around the capitol on their way to a monster mass meeting in Convention hall. This was the feature of the day's session of the convention. The broad steps on the east side of the capitol were filled with thousands of visitors. Heavy downpours of rain delayed the parade for almost an hour, and the watchers took shelter in doors, but a strong wind came up

"DELIBERATE BUNCO GAME," SAYS FOSS OF REVISION OF TARIFF

Newly Elected Democratic Representative Makes a Speech in House.

Denounces Taft's Winona Speech as "Weak and Lame Palliation."

Declares Also That Free Raw Materials Would Not Hurt Business.

Washington, May 21.—Representative Eugene N. Foss, the newly-elected Democratic representative from Massachusetts, a former Republican and a leading manufacturer, today signalized the beginning of his active participation in the house with a sensationally radica attack upon the Payne-Aldrich tariff. He declared the recent revision of the tariff to be a "deliberate bunco game from start to finish."

"The people are demanding protection," said Mr. Foss, "but the protection they are demanding is protection from the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

"Naturally it looks a little strange to some of us—after all this long delay—and after the people have themselves discovered the worst evils of our tariff system, which such a commission could have exposed years ago—that it is now brought forward at this eleventh hour. Clever editors of leading journals have stigmatized this proposition since its introduction as 'a sop to Cerberus,' or 'a tub to the whale.'

Deliberate Bunco Game.

"It cannot be denied that the people have, rightly or wrongly, come to regard this whole 'revision' scheme of the Republican party leaders as planned in the last national campaign and as promulgated in their platform and as finally butchered in the special tariff session of congress, as an international and deliberate bunco game from start to finish."

He denounced President Taft's Winona speech, which he said had a disastrous effect upon his administration, and characterized part of it as "the only weak and lame palliation President Taft could advance for the iniquities of the woolen schedule."

He declared for lower duties on sugar

"MAGAZZINI ROOSEVELT," Shopkeeper in Florence, Italy, Who Makes Capital Out of His Face and Teeth.

New York, May 21.—There is a shopkeeper in Florence, Italy, not far from the Ponte Vecchio, who gets a great deal of advertising out of a supposed resemblance to Mr. Roosevelt. The chief point of resemblance is the mouth for when the Italian shopkeeper displays his teeth it is not unlike the dental exposition of our peripatetic ex-president. Some one noted this resemblance and the Italian shopkeeper, whenever he sees an American approaching, shows his teeth—by way of welcome. He has had his hair cut a la Roosevelt and over his shop is now a conspicuous sign, "Magazzini Roosevelt." The Americans in Florence always speak of him as "Roosevelt" and the tourist is continually snap-shotting him. For photographic purposes he holds an old-time photograph of Roosevelt against his chest and an American flag in his hand. He is not so voluble, as his prototype, for he speaks no English except 'thank you.'

Engineers Go to Niagara.

Detroit, Mich., May 21.—Three special trains bearing delegates to the biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in session here, left early today for Niagara Falls. The women's auxiliary yesterday voted to increase the salaries of officers and created four new vice-presidencies.

CLAIMS 150,000 BABIES DIE ANNUALLY FROM NEGLECT

Dr. Knox Talks at the Conference Being Held in St. Louis.

Says Half of Infant Mortality Could Be Prevented By Care.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—Nearly 300,000 babies under 1 year of age die every year in the United States, according to a statement made by Dr. J. H. Mason Knox, Jr., associate professor of pediatrics in the Johns Hopkins Medical school of Baltimore, in a paper read before the national conference of Charities and Correction here this morning. But what was more startling than these figures was his further statement that, with proper care, probably one-half of these deaths could be prevented. Dr. Knox said in part:

"A most significant feature of the civic life of our generation is the development of the idea of neighborliness. The two fundamental elements in this relationship are real need and adequate help. No class in our community needs the ministration of a true neighbor more than the baby.

Half Could Be Avoided.

"There are about 1,400,000 infants in the country under 12 months of age and about one-fifth of this number are expected to die within a year. Probably one-half of these infant deaths could be avoided.

"About 200,000 babies die each year from one of three causes—prematurity, gastro-intestinal disorder and pulmonary disease. The effort to save the baby must be made through its natural protector, its mother. Her interest can be easily aroused. She often needs instruction. She must have placed within her means a good milk when her own fails. Milk dispensaries are invaluable."

Boston was chosen for the 1911 convention.

COMATOSE EFFECTS OF THE COMET.

Pike Lake, May 20—(Special.)—Mr Herbert Camille Bughous came running into the city this morning, in a very nervous and hysterical state, claiming he had seen the comet. He first saw it while returning from Jake Bennels. At first he saw two comets, but by the time he reached home, he counted thirteen, all heading toward him. Fortunately Mr Bughous dodged them and made his way to the city safely, but terribly frightened.
Lester Park, May 20.—(Special.)—At an early hour this morning, Mr. O. U. Armstrong saw the comet swiftly pass this section of the city. Mr Armstrong claims he was sitting on Mr McKick's front porch, when some one called his attention to the illumination in the heavens. He says it was preceded by a heavy explosion, was of a bright color and that the air seemed quite frosty. Mr. Armstrong is afraid to return to Lester
East Fourth St. May 20.—(Special.)—Col. B. S. MacGuffity and Mr. Halter Bunkem, two distinguished and prominent citizens of this place, report having sighted the comet last night. Both citizens are men of considerable veracity, the former being a habitual officeholder and the later, secretary of Rye Elevators. Mr. Bunkem says they saw the comet from the cellar, where they went to fix the furnace. Mrs. Bunkem is prominent in W. C. T. U. work.
Sucker River, May 20.—(Special.)—Mr. Henry Fishback, while fishing for brook trout at this place, claims to have seen the comet. Mr. Fishback says that he attributes the forest fires to hot coal falling from the comet's tail. He could barely see the comet at first, but toward the end of the day it was plainly visible. He says he could not drink the water on account of the recent rains making it muddy. Mr. Fishback is a newspaper man and thoroughly reliable, having written a number of fish stories.
WAGON GREASE
YES, JAME BRAND-
Grand Lake, May 20.—(Special.)—Mr. Jack Cross reports having seen the comet while out looking over a piece of timber land yesterday afternoon. Mr. Cross was accompanied by an unknown man. After the comet appeared, Mr. Cross says the air became so hot it was necessary to walk in the river and put their coats over their heads. Mr. Cross came in for supplies.
Spirit Lake, May 20.—(Special.)—Mr. Gus O. Leen saw the comet last night from his new boat. He says he was going up to visit friends at Fond du Lac, when all of a sudden his engine stopped, and he was unable to start it. He claims the gas from the comet's tail got in his corroborator. He spent the night on the river, returning to the city this morning for a supply of gasoline, having left his launch at the Branch Boat club.

COURTHOUSE IS SOLD FOR 30 CENTS TAXES

La Crosse, Wis., May 21.—The Monroe county court house was sold at tax sale yesterday for an unpaid weed tax of 30 cents levied by the City of Sparta.

The county refused to pay the tax on the ground that it was not liable. The building and grounds were bid in by the city attorney for 30 cents, the amount of the tax, and the certificate will be held until the county makes provision for redeeming it.

PAYNE AND HIS TARIFF BILL AND PRESIDENT TAFT ARE SCORED BY CHAMP CLARK IN SPEECH IN HOUSE

HOT TEMPERED MAN IS SUICIDE

Neighbors Refuse Peace Bond and Hoosier Farmer Drinks Strychnine.

Bloomington, Ind., May 21.—Because they knew his ungovernable temper and believed he should be punished, the friends of Tilghman Lentz, a farmer, refused to give him a peace bond sued for by his wife, and he put an end to his turbulence by committing suicide with strychnine early today.

Lentz was known as a dangerous man. He was wounded and his brother killed several years ago when they made a "white cap" expedition to whip a neighbor, who was waiting for them with a gun. Charged with mistreating his family he was put in jail on the plea of his wife a few years ago.

"I believe I will kill myself and end it all," he told his wife and children today, and drank the poison before them.

ROYAL PARTIES LEAVE LONDON

Special Deputations to Late King's Funeral Say Farewell to Alexandra.

London, May 21.—Most of the members of royalty, special ambassadors and deputations who came to attend the funeral of King Edward have left or are leaving today for their homes. King Alfonzo is hurrying his departure as a consequence of the disappointing news from Madrid, of Queen Victoria's premature accouchment.

Emperor William will remain two days at Buckingham palace.

This morning Queen Mother Alexandra received in farewell audience in the throne room of Buckingham palace the deputations to the funeral, the officers of the German and other visiting regiments and foreign civic bodies, thanking them for their presence on yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied American Ambassador Rled and Mrs. Rled to Wrest Park today for the week end.

SOUNDS NOTE OF CAMPAIGN

Democratic Leader Denounces the Revision and the Republicans.

Quotes President's Winona and Boston Speeches and Others.

Invites Republicans to Bring in New Bill With Real Revision.

Washington, May 21.—Denouncing the Payne-Aldrich tariff law as a "transparent humbug," attacking the tariff views of its author, Representative Sereno Payne Republican, New York, and vigorously assailing President Taft for his support of that law, Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, leader of the Democratic Minority, today delivered in the house what is regarded as the Democratic keynote speech of the coming congressional campaign.

Mr. Clark had prepared his address with great care and spoke at length, giving facts and figures in support of his contention that the tariff had not been honestly revised and that the Republican majority in congress had endeavored to trick the people.

Tariff Board Appropriation.

Mr. Clark also paid his respects incidentally to the $250,000 item in the sundry civil appropriation bill for the creation of a tariff board.

He said in part:

"During this debate we have witnessed a spectacle without parallel in the annals of congress. First, we heard the gentlemen from New York (Mr. Payne), chairman of the ways and means committee and the Republican floor leader, make a vitriolic attack on the speech of the Hon. Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver, a Republican senator from Iowa, recently delivered in the city of Des Moines, both speeches being upon the subject of the tariff, a subject which will not down at any man's bidding, and which, like the poor, we have with us always.

As to Senator Dolliver.

"Nobody appointed me to defend Senator Dolliver. This much, however, I will say for him: I have for years regarded him as the greatest orator in the Republican party. I would travel far to hear a debate on the stump between him and the gentleman from New York. When it was over, I am certain that the country, for a considerable distance around, would be so

BRYAN TALKS ABOUT NEXT PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS

Says Folk Is Good Man and Mayor Gaynor an Able One.

He Believes Congress Will Determine Politics of the Executive.

New York, May 21.—It will be up to the next congress to determine whether or not the next president shall be a Democrat, William J. Bryan believes. Mr. Bryan sailed today on the steamer Celtic as a delegate-at-large from the United States to the international missionary conference in Scotland. Judge George Gray of Delaware was a fellow-passenger with Mr. Bryan.

"If the next congress, which I believe will be Democratic, with the members of the majority hailing largely from the West, makes a favorable record, in view of the Democratic gains at the last presidential election, when 6,500,000 Democratic votes were polled, I believe that an additional million votes will be won, ensuring the election of a Democratic president," said Mr. Bryan just before he sailed.

Dodges Personal Issue.

Mr. Bryan was non-committal as to personalities likely to figure in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Governor Folk is a good man and well qualified," was his comment on the former governor of Missouri. As to Mayor Gaynor, he said:

"Mayor Gaynor has made a brilliant record and is an able man.

"But as a matter of fact," concluded the former candidate, "a year must elapse before there can be any discussion of presidential possibilities."

"All I know about Mayor Gaynor," said Judge Gray, "is what I read in your newspapers. From these he seems to be rapidly accumulating a record."

RECORD RUSH TO OLD WORLD

Millions of American Dollars Will Be Spent There This Year.

More Than Twenty-Five Hundred People Sail on the Same Day.

New York, May 21.—The tide of wealth and fashion toward Europe reached its spring flood today when a fleet of seven out-going liners carried 2,695 persons bound for pleasure cities and resorts of Great Britain and the continent.

The rush Europe-wards has never seemed more general among people of means and leisure than this year. Not only did the number of passengers sailing constitute the record for a single day, but on other recent sailing days the passenger lists of the liners have been of unusual length, and the outward tide of travel promises to continue until unusually late. This summer's season Europe holds out unusual attractions in aviation meets and other big amusements.

Will Spend Millions.

The aggregate of wealth represented on the steamers leaving port today was tremendous. Many millions of dol-

CUT-CUT-CUT! S-S-S! BANG! TAP-TAP! PEE-P!

Long Beach, Cal., May 21.—Three little chicks belonging to W. B. McCracken yesterday pecked their way into this big world after having an unusual experience. For thirteen days the mother hen had been busily attending to her setting duties, when a hungry snake drove her from the nest and gorged itself with three eggs. The reptile lingered about the premises and McCracken shot it. Wondering at its odd proportions, he performed an operation and found the eggs. They were placed back under the hen and at the end of the regulation time were hatched.

BOAT SINKS IN CHANNEL

West Neebish Rock Cut at the Soo Is Completely Blocked.

Steamer John B. Ketchum Strikes Curb and Goes Down.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The West Neebish rock cut channel, opened two seasons ago, is in complete blockade, the steamer John B. Ketchum, No. 2, loaded with pulp wood, being sunk in fifty feet of water below the old upper dam.

Supt. L. C. Sabin is this morning on his way to the wreck, and after looking the situation over will consider sending all boats through Encampment channel.

The Ketchum loaded with pulpwood, bound down, struck the curb on the east side above the dam at the upper end with the starboard bow. Her stern swung around down stream and the bow swung to the westward. She then sank lying west and west, directly across the channel. Her forecastle deck is three feet above water, the top of her cabin about three feet above water, and her main deck about seven feet under. According to reports her stern lies about fifty feet from the west channel bank and her stem about thirty feet from the east channel bank, thus practically completely blockading the entire channel. The steamers Louisiana and Elva, following behind the Ketchum, were just about to swing hard over the bow but they struck hard on passing. It is believed that with the deck load of pulpwood off it might be possible to swing the boat down stream and open a passage.

It is estimated that with ordinary wrecking operations, it will take about two weeks to raise the Ketchum. Dredging about the boat, it is said, might open the channel somewhat.

The steamer Congo, which was just preceding the Ketchum, struck at the same place, but succeeded in releasing herself.

It is presumed here that the Ketchum was following the lights of the Congo and in that manner met with a similar accident. Had the Congo failed to release herself it would have been impossible to have avoided a general piling up of the three vessels following. All downbound boats are now being held up in Hay lake.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR OPERATING BRIDGES.

Lieut Col. Graham D. Fitch of the United States engineer's office in Duluth, has made public an order of the war department amending the re-rules and regulations for the canals and channels in the harbor here. It is believed that the new order will do away with many delays at the bridge. Paragraphs 7, 12 and 14 are the ones altered, as follows:

"7. Following is the number and kind of blasts of the steam whistle, or horn when a vessel is not navigated by team power, which shall be given as a signal for opening the respective bridges:

Interstate (or Duluth-Superior) bridge, 1 long, 1 short, 1 long.

Minnesota draw, Northern Pacific bridge, 1 long, 2 short.

Wisconsin draw, of Northern Pacific bridge, 2 long, 2 short.

Grassy Point bridge, 2 short, 1 long.

Lamborn avenue bridge, 3 short blasts.

Transfer bridge, New Duluth, 3 long blasts.

"The duration of a long whistle should not exceed 3 seconds, and a short whistle should not exceed 1 second.

"12. Upon receiving a signal for opening the draw the tender shall at once answer with a return signal, which shall be the same as the signal for the opening, to indicate that the vessel signal has been heard. The tender shall take note of the vessel's position, speed, etc., and open the bridge in time to allow the vessel to pass through.

14. Vessels must be given precedence over highway and railway traffic. When a signal is given by a vessel to open the bridge, a railroad train, a street car, or wagon that may be approaching to cross the bridge must be required to wait for the vessel to pass. Provided, however, that vessels of 100 net registered tons or under may be held for a short period in case a first-class passenger train carrying United States mails is ready to cross the bridge, or in case four street cars coming in one direction are ready to cross the bridge."

FAIR MOVEMENT OF ORE REPORTED

Average of 60,000 Tons a Day Sent From Missabe Docks.

Including the tonnage that is expected to go down the lakes today, over 300,000 tons of ore have been shipped from the Missabe docks the present week. The record for the present week has averaged 60,000 tons a day.

Reports from the dock of the Duluth & Iron Range road at Two Harbors indicate that a fair amount of ore has been shipped from there the present week.

The Great Northern dock at Allouez has shipped over 200,000 tons the present week. During the week ending today there has been no indication of a let-up in the shipment of ore, though there have been erports which stated that there was a lessened demand for ore at the Erie docks.

OBSTRUCTION REPORTED IN THUNDER BAY.

The following report, received from the Canadian department of marine and fisheries, has been received at the local hydrographic office:

"J. W. Wolvin reports that the tug Bowman of the Canadian Towing & Wrecking company has on three different occasions located an uncharted obstruction in a depth of fourteen or fifteen feet of water, three-fourths of a mile north, 42 deg. west of Hare Island, Thunder bay. This spot will be examined whenever opportunity offers.

"Information has reached this department of the wreck of Dredge No. 8 in Thunder bay, lying about seven-eighths mile due east of Mutton island and close to the steamboat channel. No particulars have been received of the depth of water over the dredge, but she is evidently an obstruction to navigation. The spot has been marked by the Great Lakes Dredging company with a red spar buoy."

DIFFICULTY IN GETTING CARGOES FOR LINE BOATS.

Despite the fact that a certain vessel agent here yesterday gave out a statement in which he intimated that the east bound business was heavier than it has been reported in the newspapers, inquiry today brings out the opinion from several local package freight line agents that there is as yet no heavy business in sight for Eastern destination.

The Mutual line is running nine boats at the present time and none of these boats are going down the lake with loads nearly as large as they bring to Duluth.

Agent Mead of the Anchor line agency stated also today that while the Anchor boats were leaving here loaded, it was with difficulty that they were loaded anywhere near their capacity.

LIGHTER IS CAPSIZED IN PRESQUE ISLE HARBOR.

Marquette, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A lighter Powell & Mitchell had been using in pile driving work at the Presque Isle harbor was capsized by the heavy seas off the end of the breakwater Thursday afternoon while being towed into the lower harbor. Two large boilers and other equipment was dumped into about forty feet of water. Two men on the lighter were rescued.

DOG DIES IN FIRE AFTER SAVING MEN.

Washington, May 21.—Giving his life as a sacrifice for others was the fate of Spot, a pet fox terrier, who by his barking probably saved from death by fire his master, Lieut. Robert Henderson, and four others. When the fire started, the dog ran through the upper halls of the house barking vigorously. But while the family escaped, the dog was forgotten and his incinerated body was found later.

Northome Has Baseball Team.

Northome, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northome baseball team of 1908-1909 has been reorganized, with Matt Jones as manager and John B. Wilm as secretary-manager. For an amateur baseball club Northome has kept in the front row for the last three years, notwithstanding the fact that the locals have gone up against the best of 'em, and always managed to come out winners.

AN ADEQUATE MAIL SERVICE

Hunter's Park and West End Will Benefit From Changes.

Two New Sub-Stations Will Be Established in Duluth.

The West end and Hunter's Park will have enlarged and adequate postal facilities within the near future as the result of a visit to this city of Assistant Superintendent W. R. Hinman of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department, who has been piloted about town for a number of days by Postmaster Guy Eaton.

It has been definitely decided that Hunter's Park will have a regular contract station, to be established July 1. Three years ago, Postmaster Eaton began working with the authorities at Washington to bring about this result, and two years ago he secured a definite promise that favorable action would be taken, but delays at Washington prevented an actual move in behalf of the district by the department.

A new building will house the completo new equipment of the station, which will be in charge of Martin Hoff. One city carrier and two rural carriers will start from there and two dispatches and two mails received will be handled each day by street railway to and from the Duluth postoffice in the federal building. Under present conditions, an hour a day is lost by the carriers, in traveling to and from the postoffice, and this time will be saved.

While it has not been officially and finally decided that the West end station is to be established, there is no doubt that it will be, and in the near future. There is now at Twentieth avenue and Superior street, a money order and registry station, but the one planned to displace will be a regular postal station, where mail will be pouched and all lines of postal business carried on.

The location of the new station has not been definitely settled upon. Inspectors who have gone over the ground are not satisfied with the available quarters, and it will probably be necessary to build a strucure especially for the purpose of housing the station. This site will be selected by departmental inspectors. The date when the station will be established is not known, it depending largely upon how soon the new building can be prepared for the installation of the equipment. It will probably be built in the neighborhood of Twenty-first avenue.

At the West end station there will be three clerks, including the clerk in charge. Ten carriers will start out from it, and for that reason the service will be greatly improved, as much time has been lost in street car travel, entailed by present conditions.

BIG CITIES UNDER CARIBBEAN SEA

Geologist Says Thousands Lost Their Lives in Awful Cataclysm.

New Orleans, May 21.—There are buried cities of magnificent proportions beneath the waters of the Caribbean seat at no very great depth, according to Dr. Emil Monsonyi of Budapest, Hungary, a well-known geologist.

Dr. Monsonyi has spent some time in Central America, principally Gautemala, in archeological research. He arrived here yesterday. By a terrible cataclysm, he declared last night, the land which was once a solid mass along the twentieth parallel became submerged, causing the destruction of thousands of people. Those on the outer edge escaped to North America, he said.

CHURCHMEN WANT ALL LIQUOR TRADE OUSTED.

Dickson, Tenn., May 21.—Denouncing the legalized saloon, as the most gigantic evil of the nation, the temperance committee in their report to the Cumberland Presbyterian general assembly today set as a goal for the church the entire elimination of the liquor traffic in the United States.

Socialists Talk on Labor.

Chicago, May 21.—The congress of the Socialist party devoted several hours today to the general attitude it should take toward organized labor. The debate was hot at times, and it was apparent that it will be some time before a vote could be taken on the two reports before the body. The congress was expected to adjourn today.

JUDGE CANT NOT IN RACE

Generally Believed That Bar Association Will Indorse Judge Dibell.

Either of Two Men Would Have Support of Local Bar.

For several months past there has been considerable talk among the lawyers residing in the Eleventh judicial district as to the candidate that would be put forward as justice of the supreme court from this part of the state.

Two names have been prominently considered, Judge William A. Cant and Judge Homer B. Dibell.

Both of them are known as able judges and the bar is practically unanimous in the opinion that they are equally acceptable for the position. They have been closely associated in their judicial work for many years and are intimate personal friends.

Everyone who knows the two men has understood from the beginning that there would never be any spirited political contest between the two, and it has been known by those who were in touch with the situation that if one or the other should be a candidate, they would between themselves, determine which one that should be.

Those who are in a position to know say that for some time past it has been well understood between them, that, under existing conditions and for reasons largely personal to himself, Judge Cant was inclined not to consider such a candidacy at this time, and his friends have been definitely discouraged from making any effort in his behalf.

By his own expressed wish he is not to be considered in this connection, and Judge Dibell will be the only candidate from the local bench.

The question will come up at the meeting of the bar association next Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock and it is likely that Judge Dibell will be indorsed.

TO ENTERTAIN GRAND REGENT

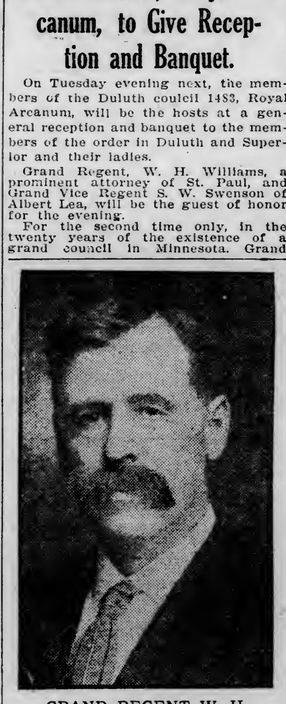
Duluth Council, Royal Arcanum, to Give Reception and Banquet.

On Tuesday evening next, the members of the Duluth coulcil 1483, Royal Arcanum, will be the hosts at a general reception and banquet to the members of the order in Duluth and Superior and their ladies.

Grand Regent, W. H. Williams, a prominent attorney of St. Paul, and Grand Vice Regent S. W. Swenson of Albert Lea, will be the guest of honor for the evening.

For the second time only, in the twenty years of the existence of a grand council in Minnesota, Grand



GRAND REGENT W. H. WILLIAMS.

Regent Williams has been given the honor of a re-election to his important position.

In recognition of this fact and as an opening to their new location the members of Duluth council arranged this reception and from all indications it will be the largest affair ever pulled off by this order in Duluth.

The grand officers will arrive from St. Paul by the evening train and will be met by a reception committee and taken to the hall. The invitation is a general one to any member of the order at Head of Lakes or may be in the city on that night.

The musical program arranged for is an especially good one and includes some of the best tolent in the city.

WILL SPEAK AT SALVATION ARMY

Leader of Movement in the West Coming to Duluth.

Commissioner Thomas Estill of Chicago will speak on "The Salvation Army and the Great Need of Its Work" Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. He has been a member of the Army since 1880, starting at the bottom and rising until now he has jurisdiction from the lakes to the gulf and from Chicago to the Pacific, including the Hawaiian islands. He has a direct but pleasant address and believes in "calling a spade a spade." Col. Stephen Marshall and Maj. Percy Morton will accompany him. The Silver band and the Salvation Army of Superior will attend.

RAINS HINDER WORK ON CANAL

Soil Is Loosened and Water From Old Cut Causes Difficulty.

Washington, May 21.—The canal diggers on the Isthmus are having trouble, principally owing to the unprecedented rainfall which has loosened the soil and interfered with engineering operations. It became necessary to construct a giant flume of timber to divert the water of the old canal before operations could be resumed.

In another case what are known as the "toes" of the west section of the Gatun dam have been sliding in, and washed away the trestles. However, pile drivers were set to work at once and the gap was closed within a week, so that there has been no serious interruption in the work there.

SAYS SUNDAY IS OBSERVED MORE

Committee Report Is Considered By the Presbyterian Assembly.

Atlantis City, N. J., May 21.—the Presbyterian general assembly settled down to work today after the opening devotional exercises. Among the reports to be considered by the assembly is that of the committee on Sabbath observance. The report says the progress made during the last year in creating the uniform demand for a weekly rest day has been more marked than ever before. The report cites the fact that the big steel companies and paper manufacturing concerns are reducing all Sunday work to a minimum.

The committee recommends that the assembly indorse the Saturday half-holiday as tending to the better observance of the Sabbath; condemns the Sunday newspapers; requests educational institutions to omit recitations on Monday mornings so as to leave the Sabbath free from the necessity of some of the students to prepare their lessons on that day; and recommends that the first week in April, embracing the first and second Sundays, be observed as a week of prayer for the preservation of the Lord's day.

MRS. HYDE SUES TO GET SHARE OF SWOPE MONEY.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—Mrs. B. Clark Hyde, wife of the convicted physician, has filed two partition suits against the estate of her uncle, Col. Thomas H. Swope. One suit asks for a division of the residuary portion of the estate. The other action requests a division of the property that would have gone to her brother, Chrisman Swope, had he lived.

John M. Atchison, assistant attorney general of Missouri, arrived here yesterday to investigate the Hyde case. His office will have charge of the appeal when it reaches the supreme court.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

The meeting is the final one relative to the convention recently held here, and accounts will be checked up at tomorrow's meeting and the total sum pledged to missions by Duluthians will be announced.

BUILDING WING AT STATE SANITARIUM.

Walker, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the $50,000 wing at the state sanitarium will soon be commenced, Nelson & Schulind having the contract. Contractor L. Johnson will do the brick work.

QUEEN OF SPAIN HAS BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT.

Madrid, May 21.—Queen Victoria was delivered of an infant still born at 4 o'clock this morning. The sex was male. The unhappy outcome is attributed to a premature accouchement, which, however, was otherwise natural. The body will be buried without ceremony in the royal pantheon of the Escurial monastery.

When told of her loss the mother wept bitterly. King Alfonso is still in London, where he attended yesterday the funeral of the queen's uncle, the late King Edward.

Queen Victoria is the mother of two boys and a girl, all surviving.

COPPERS ACTIVE; TRADING BRISK

Good Undertone to the Market Here and in the East.

Trading in coppers was active today and the market was strong although erratic. In the face of a holiday there was a surprising absence of liquidation and the undertone was excellent.

The market opened strong and advanced sharply, then receded when scalpers took profits, advanced again to high levels of the day and at the close declined slightly on account of profit taking from people who thought the advance had exhausted the market's strength and who were not disposed to carry stocks over the holiday. Locally, trading was brisk and in the one hour session 9,575 shares changed hands. The trading was broad and of a good character. There were more bids than offers and nearly all issues acted well. The full paid Scott, Butte-Ballaklava, Red Warrior, Calumet & Montana and Elenita displayed the greatest strength.

The part paid Scott sold at $2.50 and the full paid at $6. In the full paid Scott 1,185 shares changed hands, 1,000 shares being bought in one block. Butte-Ballaklava sold at $12.62½ and $12.75; Cactus at $3.25; Red Warrior at $1.75, $1.81¼ and $1.87½, 3,750 shares changing hands. Arrangements have nearly been completed for the hoisting of the Shattuck-Arizona on the Boston stock exchange. Some of the officers of the company are now in Boston attending to the final details. It is said that all of the requirements of the exchange have been complied with and it is expected that the listing committee of the exchange will act favorably in the near future.

The Shattuck is now on a dividend basis of $4 a year, having recently declared its first "quarterly" dividend of $1.

STATE FISH CAR DISTRIBUTES FRY

Goes Over Minnesota & International Road, Stocking Various Streams.

Brainerd, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. A. Rider, executive agent of the state game and fish commission and in charge of the fish hatchery car Glenwood, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon. Thirty cans of pike fry were delievered here for J. C. Barber, of Nokay lake. The car was taken up the Minnesota & International railway and cans of fry will be delivered to parties at Merrifield, Nisswa, Pequot, Backus, Hackensack, Laport and Bemidji.

Conrad Isle and Miss Helen Nelson were married by Judge Sanborn on Wednesday morning. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nelson of Long Lake south. Mr. Isle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Isle of Brainerd, and is an employe of the Northern Pacific foundry. The couple left for Superior, Wis., where they will visit a short time.

Charles T. Gunderson, who died under such tragic circumstances last Wednesday near Cambridge, was buried here Saturday afternoon in Evergreen cemetery.

The water and light board has engaged Engineer A. C. Clausen of St. Paul to submit estimates to the board for the installation of a complete electric plant to furnish current for the city system at a salary of $15 per day.

J. N. Harrison of Borden Lake, was recently driving a heavy wagon loaded with two tons of rock across a plowed field. His little girl, Fern, aged 8 years, slipped under the wagon and both wheels passed over her legs. The soft dirt saved the child and she escaped uninjured.

The water and light board has received its new pump, a Fairbanks-Morse pump of 3,000,000 gallons per day capacity, and weighing over four-teen tons. The Slipp-Gruenhagen company, which has the contract for the installation of the pump at the plant, has undertaken the work of removing the pump from the cars to the water works plant.

A. M. Craig of Tacoma, a brother of David R. Craig, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company at Brainerd, is one of the four delegates sent by Tacoma to attend the Presbyterian general assembly in Atlantic City, N. J. A. M. Craig was employed by the Northern Pacific railway in a clerical position twenty-six years ago. He left Brainerd and engaged at Tacoma in the business of electrical engineer.

The shortage of Former Auditor C. P. Zimmerman of East Grand Forks continues to grow until it is over $7,375.70. Mr. Zimmerman was formerly a resident of Brainerd.

The question of leasing the mineral right on the county poor farm was taken up at the last session of the county commissioners. The proposal of the Northwestern Improvement company having been withdrawn, the bid of Daniel Waite was considered. He offered to take out a lease covering the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter and pay $3,700 per year. The board took the matter under advisement.

The ceremonies attendant upon the institution of a Knights of Columbus council in Brainerd tomorrow will draw to the city the largest gathering of delegates it has ever entertained. Over 800 delegates are expected. The charter now embraces almost 100 names. Degree teams from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth will be present.

ORIENTAL RUG MERCHANT FAILS TO MAKE CASE STICK

Claimed That Duluthians Owed Him $6,050 for Rugs Purchased.

Jury Returns Verdict for $151 at Night Session of Court.

Last night a jury in the district court brought in a verdict of $151.93 in favor of M. G. Alexanian, the plaintiff in an action brought some time ago against Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Jones for $6,050 for Turkish rugs that he alleged were purchased from him. The verdict was a complete victory for the defendants, who throughout the trial admitted an indebtedness of $150.

It was an unusual scene in the court house. The case had been going on for several days and the attorneys were anxious to finish. With hardly a stop the case went on from early in the morning until nearly 10 o'clock last night. The jury then retired and in a very short time brought in their verdict.

The court room for a week past has had the appearance of a Turkish apartment. It wouldn't have taken much of an imagination to picture the real Turks in their native costume sitting with crossed legs on the floor. There were rugs on the tables, over the jury box, on the floor, and spread all about the room.

Last night when the jury retired they were so full of statistics on the weaves, colorings, designs, symbols, prices, material, that they were almost ready to qualify as experts.

Rugs Not Purchased.

The defendants claim that the goods were sent out to the house on approval only and not a promise to buy, provided the goods were as represented. They also claim that, with the exception of one rug which they agreed to buy at a cost of $150, no others were purchased.

It seems, from the testimony offered, that, during March, Alexanian opened a store on East Superior street.

He interested a number of prominent Duluth women in his rugs, and was invited to several homes for dinner. He was also invited to speak before one of the prominent women's clubs.

He succeeded in getting Mrs. Jones greatly interested in the rugs. She had purchased rugs in many other cities, had studied them to some extent, and the ones exhibited by Alexanian were unusual in design and pattern.

Sent on Approval.

She says that she told Mr. Alexanian that she could not buy them with her own money, but that her wedding anniversary was approaching and that she hoped to interest Mr. Jones to such an extent that he would purchase them for her. The collection numbered nearly a dozen and the price was $6,050. Alexanian was willing to send the rugs out to the house on approval, the defendants claim, and this was done.

Alexanian claims that they were purchased and the defendants claim that they found the rugs were not as represented and refused to have them.

The court action was started some time ago, although no complaint was filed. It was brought to the court-room when the case was begun.

Experts on Stand.

It developed that the rugs are worth only a small part of the original price asked, according to the experts who testified as to their real value. All the persons testified did not testify to exactly the same amount, but they agreed within a few dollars on the price.

A comparison of the price of each rug as to what was originally asked by Alexanian and the price put upon them by the experts follows. An $1,800 rug was said to be worth $375; a rug for which Alexanian asked $250 was said to be worth $40; Alexanian wanted $500 for a rug the experts said was worth in the neighborhood of $45; $20 was the experts' price on a rug for which Alexanian asked $125; the experts' price on a $1,200 rug was $65; on a $1,250 rug experts placed a price of $45; one $1,200 rug was said to be worth $30; another $1,200 rug went for $35.

That was the difference in the prices as testified to by Bedros Keljik, a Twin City expert on Turkish and Persian rugs. This man claimed he had bought and sold rugs for years and he picked them to pieces telling of the difference in the fine and coarse weave, the figures, emblems and other features.

G. A. Pushman of Chicago, who is probably the largest importer of Turkish rugs in the country, said that the prices asked by Alexanian were by far more than the rugs were worth, as did A. N. Mattheis of the Mannheimer Minneapolis store.

T. W. Griffith, manager of the rug department at Freimuth's store, testified that the rugs were not worth half what was asked for them.

Chicago Man Testifies.

H. A. Swayne, manager of the rug department of Marshall Field's big Chicago store, was on the stand. He testified that the prices asked by Alexanian were exorbitant. Mr Swayne went into detail and explained why and how after making an examination of the rugs.

From the testimony offered at the trial many Duluth people must have been "stung" in the matter of Turkish rugs. The older the rug, the more expensive it is, if it be of good quality and design. Then it makes a difference whether or not the rug be washed, doctored, or chemically treated. No one but an expert can tell and sometimes they are fooled, it is said.

Alexanian is said to be a doctor of divinity. He got badly tangled up on the stand nevertheless. He claimed to have attended Yale, but on being asked where Yale was located, did not at first appear to know. Then he said Hartford, Conn. He said that on a certain date he left for Turkey. He also said that he was across the water buying rugs at a certain time in one year and later when asked about it admitted that he was married in Detroit at the time he was supposed to be in the Orient purchasing rugs.

The case has been the principal attraction at the courthouse for the week past. The defendants went to heavy expense in bringing expert witnesses to the city, and evidently did not propose to be forced into buying rugs they did not want. If it cost more than the price of the rugs.

A LADIES' LUNCHEON

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

One of the prettiest forms of hospitality is a ladies' luncheon. Mrs. Caroline Benedict Burrell says: "To give a luncheon is to indulge one's self in the most charming and satisfying form of entertainment."

This is true, for a luncheon may be very elaborate or very simple as one chooses. It is never stately or formal.

A few months ago the young women, married and single, of a suburban village near New York, formed themselves into two luncheon clubs, meeting fortnightly at each other's homes.

One frugal set gave what they styled "poverty luncheons." They were strictly limited as to the amount they might spend, each vying with the other to give the most delightful luncheon to six or eight persons at a minimum cost. Three dollars was the outside sum allowed for the entire function. Very nice luncheons, indeed, were served by the enterprising hostesses, who claimed that their parties were just as nice as those of their neighbors who proudly gave "millionaire luncheons," costing whatever the givers chose to spend for them.

Invited to luncheon a lady does not remove her bonnet, nor her gloves until she is seated at the table. Flowers decorate the middle of the table. If this is a handsome table of polished mahogany or oak it is left bare, except for the dainty centerpiece. Lace or embroidered doilies are at each place and the silver and china aro as elegant as the house affords.

Among menus which are appropriate at a ladies' luncheon are: Strawberries (served whole with powdered sugar), cream of asparagus soup, lamp chops with green peas and potatoes, French fried; hot rolls, lettuce salad, ice cream, coffee, or bouillon, creamed salmon, broiled chicken, creamed potatoes, thin bread and butter, cup custards, pound cake, coffee or tea.

One of the most charming ladies' luncheons that I recall was one where the principal dish was rice waffles, sent in piping hot by a Southern cook. There were other things but the waffles made the luncheon.

In cities' houses a ladies' luncheon is often spread on little tables out of doors, or it may be progressive, certain guests changing tables at each course. A menu served at such a luncheon began with curried chicken, rice and bananas, ending with an omelette souffle.

One may have whatever she pleases that is delicious and in season, at a luncheon where her women friends assemble.

TREATMENT FOR SHOCK.

Youth's Companion: Shock is the term employed in surgery to designate the state of physical and mental depression which follows a severe injury or some disturbing emotion of the mind.

The condition consists essentially in a want of equilibrium in the circulation, the arteries losing their tone, as a consequence of which the great mass of the blood accumulates in the veins, especially the large blood vessels of the abdomen. The brain and other vital organs are deprived of the necessary blood supply and are thereby rendered incapable of performing their important functions properly.

Shock may exist in any degree, and the symptoms will vary accordingly, from the pallor and slight faintness which may be felt momentarily in making a misstep, or when startled, as by a loud clap of thunder or the receipt of bad news, all the way up to sudden stoppage of the heart.

In shock of average intensity, such as follows a severe injury, the face is pallid, the pulse is weak and rapid, the skin is cool and often covered with a clammy perspiration, the muscular system is relaxed, the sufferer is nauseated and sometimes vomits and the mental faculties and sensibilities are benumbed so that no pain is felt, even though bones may be broken and flesh torn. Not only is the surface cool or cold, but the actual temperature of the body as measured by the thermometer is lowered, sometimes to the extent of two or three degrees.

When shock depends upon a violent mental emotion, such as fear or the receipt of sudden bad news, or upon a severe injury, as that received in a railroad accident or when shot, the symptoms appear suddenly; but when it follows a surgical operation its appearance may be delayed several hours, its degree depends not only upon the severity of the injury, but likewise upon the seat of it. A blow on the abdomen will cause more severe shock than a much worse injury to an extremity, even the head.

Treatment of shock calls for the services of a physician, for it consists in the administration of powerful remedies to restore the tone in the relaxed blood vessels, and often the injection of salt solution; but something can be done while awaiting the physician.

The sufferer should not be moved, he should lie flat; he should have air, and the usual crowd of the curious should be dispersed. Hot cloths should be applied to the extremities and over the heart, and if he can swallow he should be allowed to sip a little hot water. Stimulants should be given, if at all, in very moderate quantities.

PRECIOUS STONES OF INDIA.

Chicago Tribune: Diamonds, rubies, sapphires, spinels, tourmalines, garnets, rock crystals and various sorts of amber and jadeite are the precious stones found on India's coral strand. The ruby and jadeite are the only stones of considerable value produced. Large quantities of turquoise come from Sikkim and Tibet, that from the latter country being harder, darker blue, and therefore more valuable. The importation of precious stones into India amounts annually to about $4,900,000.

The diamond industry is limited and is carried on in southern India, the northern part of the Indian peninsula and in the central provinces. Ruby mining is carried on in Upped Burma and, next to petroleum, is the most profitable of the mineral resources of the state, the value of the product being about $500,000 annually. One ruby of seventy-seven carats was taken out a few years ago and valued at $133,330.

Sapphires used to be mined in Kashmir, but the mines are now said to be exhausted. The yellow, white, blue and green varieties of sapphires are found in the ruby bearing gravels in Burma. The spinel is found in considerable quantities in Burma.

Tourmaline stones of blue, green and black coloring are found in Upper Burma. Garnets are mined in Jaipur. Rock crystal cut for cheap jewery, known as valcam diamonds, is found in Kalabagh, is cheaper and is used for necklaces. Chalcedonic silica is called happik and embraces many forms of agate, mined in the Deccan. Agates and carnelians are cut and prepared for market in Bombay. They come mostly from Rajpipea. Large quantities are shipped to Europe and China. Jadeite of beautiful green veins is found in Upper Burma and an inferior jade is found in other parts of India. The stone sells for $50 to $100 a hundredweight.

LAWYER IN MANY ROLES.

London Chronicle: A Martinique barrister has established a singular record by figuring as prisoner, magistrate and advocate within the space of five hours.

He opened this eventful session by taking his place in the dock of the Fort de France police court to meet a charge of assault, and having succeeded in proving considerable provocation esaped with a slight fine. While the next case was being heard one of the magistrates was seized with indisposition.

The only available substitute was the belligerent barrister, who thereupon took his seat on the bench and helped to try several cases. In the course of the afternoon the victim of indisposition recovered and the temperary magistrate resigned his functions in time to plead for a client who had engaged his services some days previously.

BISHOP TIMOTHY CORBETT OF CROOKSTON.

NEW BISHOP WELCOMED

Bishop Corbett Greeted By Large Crowd on Return to Duluth.

First Pontifical Mass Sunday Morning---Reception Monday Evening.

Rt. Rev. Timothy Corbett, formerly pastor of the Cathedral parish here and now bishop of the new diocese of Crookston, was given a hearty welcome on his return o Duluth last night from St. Paul, where he was consecrated Thursday.

A large delegation of former parishioners of the new bishop boarded the train at Carlton and accompanied him to Duluth. Several hundred people gathered at the union station and greeted the new bishop as he left the train. He shook hands with many of his old friends, received their congratulations and entered an automobile, in which he was driven to Bishop McGolrick's residence.

At the residence, another large crowd was awaiting Bishop Corbett. School children to the number of about 500 had gathered and they waived flags and handkerchiefs as he passed through the crowd.

After services last evening, Bishop Corbett gave his blessing to the congregation, his first act as a bishop in Duluth.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, Bishop Corbett will celebrate his first pontifical high mass. Arrangements are being made for accommodating an immense crowd at the Cathedral and it is expected the commodious edifice will be crowded. The ceremonies will be impressive. Bishop Corbett will be assisted by the priests of the parish and it is expected several visiting priests will be in the sanctuary. The choir will be augmented by an orchestra.

Monday evening at the Cathedral auditorium, Bishop Corbett's former parishioners and friends will tender him a reception that will be the only public demonstration in honor of the new prelate. The program will begin at 8 o'clock. A presentation will be made to the bishop and the congratulations and well wishes of his Duluth friends will be offered.

The installation of the new bishop at Crookston is expected to take place June 23. A large delegation of Duluth people will go to the new see to attend the ceremonies.

SUPERIOR

SECOND ARREST ON BLIND PIG CHARGE.

For the second time within the past few weeks, Bernard Anderson, a resident of Lake Nebagamon, has been convicted in the Superior police court on a charge of running a "blind pig." This morning he paid a fine of $50 and costs after pleading guilty.

Anderson was recently arrested and forfieted $100 bond when he failed to appear in court and answer to the "blind pig" charge which was brought Lake Nebagamon, who also swore out the last warrant.

The prosecution of it is said to have resulted from a factional quarrel.

Appoints City Chemist.

Health Commissioner P. G. McGill yesterday appointed Dr. W. E. Hatch to the position of city chemist. He will take up his new duties at once supplanting Dr. Buckley, who has held the position for a number of years.

Taxes Show Increase.

The tax against insurance firms in Superior, which has to be paid into the treasury show an increase of $1,784.14 over that received in 1909 by the city. The tax is on premiums for policies issued during the past twelve months.

Date for Completion.

The paving of Belknap street between Oakes and Clough avenues must be completed by Sept. 15, according to specifications made in the contract yesterday by the board of public works. Last week the council awarded the contract for paving the avenue with brick to Ed Johnson.

Return From St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sommer, who attended the consecration services for the newly appointed bishops held at St. Paul, Thursday, have returned to Superior. Mr. Sommer is president of the Superior Baseball club and while away took a trip to La Crosse to see Superior play the Outcasts.

New Cement Sidewalks.

Bergman & Anderson, a Superior firm, was yesterday awarded the contract for a large number of blocks and portions of blocks of cement sidewalks at the West end. The contracts were let by the board of public works at its regular meeting.

Clerks vs. Freighters.

In a baseball game last evening, the clerks of the superintendent's office of the Great Northern railway trimmed the men of the freight department to the tune of 18 to 3. The final game between the two teams will be played next Friday evening.

Fish Fry Received.

Members of the Douglas County Fish and Game Protective league yesterday received the third shipment of fish fry for distribution in the waters of the county, making approximately 200,000 of the various kinds that have been disposed of this year.

DANGER IN DRY SHAMPOOS.

American Medicine: The dangers of the dry shampoos that have recently come into vogue are unquestionably not sufficently recognized. The growing use of some of the light hydrocarbon or other volatile compounds is probably fraught with the most serious innocuous shampoo powders have their drawbacks.

Carbon tetrachlorid seems to be used most extensively, and the number of fatal accidents which are being recorded makes it incomprehensible that a drug so dangerous should be employed at all. Its formula, CC14, shows its near relation of chloroform and its anaesthetic properties are almost as marked. The vapor given off is considerably heavier than air and rapidly accumulates around the face when the liquid is applied to the scalp.

Innumerable cases of semi-consciousness are reported, it is claimed, by the English hairdressers, but the patrons, women chiefly and exclusively, do not object, and so the "playing with death" goes on. It is a frightful commentary on the fatuity of the day.

The vapor of carbon tetrachlorid aside from its anaesthetic or stupefying effect is a heart poison and in the presence of the slightest cardiac weakness is extremely likely to produce a fatal result.

The shampoo powders may not present toxic dangers, but their use is certainly founded on anything but a rational basis. A few perfectly normals scalps might have a very fine impalpable powder applied a few times with little or no harm to the hair, but in a short time the glandular orifices would be occluded and the hair would suffer accordingly.

CHURCH AND SCHOOL.

"When the late Phillip Auld Harrison Brown, rector of St. John's Chapel, was a young man, he used to go to Maine for the summer," said a Trinity trustee in New York. "Dr. Brown often told of an unforgettable incident connected with one of his first Maine 'Sermons.'

"Two children had come to church alone, and the minister noticed them from the start of his discourse. They sat in a great, high-backed pew, side by side, very solemn.

"After a while they got tired. Evidently they thought that church etiquette was the same as the etiquette of the village school. They climbed down from their pew, and the boy took his tiny sister by the hand, and led her up the aisle, stopping in front of the preacher.

"'Please, sir,' he said, 'may we go home?'

"'Yes,' said Mr. Brown.

"And they turned and soberly departed, hand in hand."

A BRAVE MAN.

Former Governor William Sprague of Rhode Island celebrated last month his seventy-ninth birthday. He is the only surviving war governor.

A reporter questioned Governor Sprague one day at Narragansett about bravery.

"There is a finer bravery shown in civil than in military life," the veteran statesman said. "I remember one of our Providence fire chiefs.

"A green fireman resigned from the Providence service because his chief, he said, was cruel and inhuman.

"'How cruel and inhuman?' they asked him.

"'Why,' the fireman whined, 'at last week's tenement fire he ordered me to carry a section of hose right in between two walls that were just on the point of tumbling.'

"'And what did you do?'

"'I refused, of course. I told the chief it was as much as a man's life was worth to go in there, and I wouldn't do it.'

"'Well, what did the chief do then?'

"'Ha, ha, ha! The crazy fool carried the hose in himself.'"

BIG POLICY IS WRITTEN

Ames-Brooks Company Considers J. H. Barnes' Life Worth $250,000.

What probably was the largest life insurance policy ever written in Duluth or in the Northwest with an impersonal beneficiary was a $250,000 life policy which was taken this week by Julius H. Barnes of the Ames-Brooks company, which will be the beneficiary.

The policy uas written by M. F. Jamar and was apportioned among three companies, the Provident Life, Mutual Life and the Equitable.

Life insurance for the benefit of commercial organizations is of comparatively recent date and is regarded by many corporations as not only sound business policy, but as an absolute necessity.

Fifteen years ago Mr. Barnes was employed by the Ames-Brooks company in an obscure position. Today the company thinks his life is worth a quarter of a million dollars to it. Mr. Barnes has built up one of the leading, if not the chief export grain house in the Northwest. He was president of the Duluth board of trade in 1907 and 1908 and has for many years been recognized as one of its leading members.

Until the Ames-Brooks company took out the policy for a quarter of a million dollars, the largest business policy believed to have been written in Duluth was on the lives of John Panton and William White of the firm of Panton & White. It is said that each member was insured for $100,000, the firm being the beneficiary.

WEST END

FORMER PASTOR WILL SPEAK.

Rev. F. O. Kling of Minneapolis, former pastor of the Swedish Mission church, will be the principal speaker at a Memorial day service of his former congregation Monday evening, May 30.

An entertainment is being arranged by the Parthenol society of the church and it has been decided to have Mr. Kling as the chief speaker.

A number of other features will comprise the program which will be given in addition to the address by Rev. Mr. Kling. Refreshments will be served.

The affair will be held at the church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

FINGERS CRUSHED IN BREAD MIXER.

Ephriam Bjorlin, 16 years old, had two fingers and a thumb crushed in a bread mixer yesterday afternoon at the Scandinavian bakery, 2205 West First street.

The boy was taken to a local physician's office where the wounds were given attention. The ends of the fingers had to be amputated.

The boy was standing around in the bakery watching the bakers at their work. He accidentally got his hand in the bread mixer and before he could pull it away, some of the fingers were badly pinched.

MASS MEETING OF TEMPERANCE WORKERS.

Under the auspices of the Scandinavian Temperance society of the West end, a mass meeting of the Scandinavian churches of the West end will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, in the interest of the temperance cause.

Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, and Rev. Carl G. Olson, pastor of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, will be the speakers for the occasion.

There will be special music. The choirs of the various churches represented will unite in a monster song service.

TWO CLUBS TO PREPARE FOR CAR LINE OPENING.

The Sixth Ward Business club will join with the West End Hillside Improvement club in making preparations for holding an open air banquet in celebration of the opening of the Piedmont avenue extension of the street railway system. Cars will be run up the avenue about June 1 and the banquet will be held at that time.

During the past week the street car company has made considerable progress.

West End Shortrails.

Dr. A. J. Braden returned last evening from a business trip to Two Harbors.

William L. Anderson will leave for Hibbing Monday to attend the convention of the St. Louis County Sunday School association at a delegate from the Second Presbyterian church.

John B. Carlson of the West hotel has gone to Sweden for the summer.

August Gustafson of Rush City, Minn., is the guest of West end friends.

J. S. Osterberg of Providence, R. I., is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lofgren of 2305 West Second street.

Mrs. O. A. Oredson of 2310 West Third street has gone to Le Roy, Minn., on a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leonard of 313 North Nineteenth avenue west are the guests of Proctor friends this week.

Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, returned this afternoon from a business trip to Minneapolis.

NO ROOM FOR HIS IMAGINATION.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, at a luncheon in New York, complained that the Christmas toys of 1909 had been too elaborate, too perfect—they left nothing to the child's imagination.

"Anatole France," said Mrs. Belmont, "pays a fine tribute to the imagination of children in 'L'Isle des Pingouins,' when he tells of a little boy playing by himself, who imagines that he is at once a runaway horse, the crowd pursuing it, and the people scattering in terror before its wild flight.

"The costly toys of 1910 pay no such tribute to the child's imagination. On the contrary, they ignore it altogether.

"I know a woman who gave her little son a railroad. There were forty or fifty yards of track, there were tiny engineers and brakemen, conductors and passengers, tunnels, signal men, station masters and ticket sellers—in a word, the toy railroad was quite complete.

"The little boy studied it very gravely on Christmas morning. Then he turned to his mother and said in a disconsolate voice:

"'But, mamma, what is there for me to be?'"

SHERWOOD BUILDING

Located on First Street, Between Third and Fourth Avenues West.

THE SHERWOOD building, 318-320 West First street, which has just been completed by William C. Sherwood, is strictly a home-made product—built by Duluth men and from material purchased from Duluth men.

The building is a splendid addition to the business structures that are rapidly filling the choice locations on First street, and Mr. Sherwood, who has been a resident of the city since 1882, and one of its most prominent real estate and insurance dealers, may be pardoned for the justifiable pride that he has in his new building.

The Sherwood building represents the latest type of reinforced construction and is of architectural designs far above the commonplace.

The building was designed by Bray & Nystrom, the local firm of architects who planned the Christie building, the Holland hotel and many other reinforced concrete and steel business structures that have been erected within the last few years in Duluth. It is of interest to note that the artistic element is not lacking in the new building, and the designers of so many of Duluth's beautiful homes have demonstrated that even a business structure may have a harmony of lines and color that lend attractiveness as well as dignity to the business section of the city.

That the Sherwood building may be regarded as one of the most "fireproof" of its sort in the city, is evidenced by the fact that it has the lowest insurance rate of any other block in Duluth. Modern ingenuity was taxed in providing absolute safeguards against fire damage and that Mr. Sherwood has succeeded is shown by the insurance rates.

MacLeod & Smith, the well known Duluth contractors, who erected the Sherwood building, had their work so planned that the coldest month of a Minnesota winter could not interfere with the progress or harm the quality of the work. This was done by making the forms for the story above form a roof, over the floor being concreted. Canvas curtains enclosed the front, sides and rear, and steam heat underneath aided by "salamanders" kept the temperature well above freezing. These arrangements enabled the men to put up the walls, columns and floors at the rate of a story every eight days, which is considered rapid progress in warm weather. The contractors started the building on Jan. 1, and at no time during the pouring of the concrete was the thermometer higher than zero. When the roof was poured, the thermometer was 22 deg. below zero.

The floors, beams and columns of the building are of reinforced concrete, with brick outside walls; all windows except on the First street front, where the exposure is not great, have metal frames and sash and are glazed with plate wire glass. This makes the building absolutely fireproof from the outside, and the only combustible materials inside are the hardwood floors, the trim around the doors and windows, and the furniture.

The reinforced concrete frame is designed to carry four more stories and contains the heaviest concrete girders ever built here. These girders are 4½ feet deep and 22 inches thick and will carry a load of 250 tons each. The steel reinforcement is the latest development in that line; it was made up and put together in the shop, each piece having its place and mark. The reinforced concrete was selected because it is the most fireproof type of construction and buildings of this type have withstood fires that have destroyed steel and tile constructed buildings.

The foundations were laid last fall and on Jan. 10 last, work began on the superstructure, the building being completed in exactly three months and twenty days.

The erection of this building, the first of its kind to be put up in the middle of winter, shows that such work can be done safely and rapidly in Duluth during the coldest weather.

The erection of the building was supervised by Mr. Stewart Collins, who is engineer for the contractors.

The basement is arranged high in the clear and is suitable for almost any kind of business purpose. Prism lights in the front and rear make it as light and airy as most stores.

The first story is divided into two stores and the stores are provided with the maximum amount of glass so that they are brilliantly lighted at all times. The second story is divided into modern offices. Each office has hot and cold water and all of the latest modern conveniences. The third story is arranged for bachelor apartments and will be in charge of a janitor, who has apartments in a roof extension so that he will be at the building whenever required by the occupants and this insures prompt service. The rooms in the bachelor's apartment are all large and most of them are provided with baths. All have hot and cold running water. All of the bathrooms have tile floors and wainscoting and the most modern plumbing fixtures. The partitions are constructed of gypsum tile, which has been found to be absolutely sound proof, and this style of partition together with solid concrete floors will prevent any sound from penetrating from below or from either side.

Invitations will be sent out so that the ladies of Duluth, as well as the men, may have the opportunity of seeing the comforts that have been arranged for the bachelors of Duluth who may be fortunate enough to secure apartments in the new building.

TENANTS.

The store at 318 West First street, in the east side of the Sherwood building is occupied by Robinson, Cary & Sands company, formerly located one door east of the new building. The company deals in machine tools, supplies for railways, contractors, mines, also engines, boilers, pumps, heaters and complete steam plants. The firm has been in business since 1875, with headquarters at Fourth and Wacouta streets, St. Paul. The increasing demand for railway, mine and contractors' supplies in the territory contiguous to Duluth caused Robinson, Cary & Sands company to establish a branch house here two years ago. The business of the local house has had a very satisfactory growth, particularly on the copper and iron ranges.

The Gibson Barber Supply company, which now occupies the storeroom at 320 West First street, in the west half of the Sherwood building, was incorporated in 1907. The firm handles barber supplies of every sort, including high-grade cutlery, and does expert grinding. It is the Western agency for the celebrated Koken's barber fixtures. The Gibson Barber Supply company invites its customers to make their headquarters at its store especially those from outside the city. The firm reports an encouraging growth in its business this spring. The Gibson Barber Supply company's territory embraces Northern Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, and—the world.

The entire second floor is occupied by the Minnesota Steel company, the American Bridge company using a suite of their rooms.

THE BACHELOR APARTMENTS.

The whole scheme of furnishings for the new bachelor apartments is being carried out by French & Bassett of this city, with the view of bringing the interior arrangement in line with the prominent places of this kind in larger cities of the United States.

The lobby is furnished with a beautiful Hartford Saxony rug, and Berkey & Gay's Flander furniture in old oak finish, and leather upholstering. Some of the rooms are carried out in beautiful Circassian walnut, while others are Toona mahogany and quartered oak.

BRAY & NYSTROM, Architects. —Photo By McKenzie.

No small attention has been made to secure the comfort of its occupants. Each room is furnished with a beautiful brass bed, box springs and mattress of excellent quality, also a large upholstered reading chair, Cadillac desk table and portable desk, and reading lamps with, of course, the other necessary pieces. The rugs that were selected for the rooms are beautiful specimens of American looms, in Oriental patterns and colorings.

The result is very pleasing, and must be seen to be properly appreciated.

PLUMBING AND HEATING.

The plumbing and heating in this building was installed by the D. R. Black company. The heating consisting of the Warren Webster Vacuum heating system, which enables the building to be heated to a temperature of 72 deg. in the coldest winter weather at atmospheric pressure, thus making the consumption of fuel very economical and the saving of 10 to 25 per cent over the ordinary heating system. Every precaution has been taken to make this heating apparatus second to none.

The plumbing is of the latest and most modern type. Bathrooms being equipped off of each apartment with porcelain bath tubs of the latest type, and each individual room being supplied with a porcelain lavatory, supplied with hot and cold water throughout. The main bathroom off the hall is equipped with modern needle overhead showers and porcelain bath tubs. Each floor is also equipped with public toilet rooms, with tile floors, for ladies and gentlemen. The entire work was done under the personal supervision of Mr. Black, who is president of the company. From a sanitary point of view, nothing has been left undone to make it first-class in every respect.

PAINTING AND DECORATING.

The painting and decorating, and floor finish of the new building was done by J. O. Porlier & Co., 1402 West Superior street. The firm is a pioneer at the business in Duluth, having been here for the past nineteen years. The high-class work performed by the firm in the Sherwood building is only additional evidence of the same class of work that it has been doing throughout the city during these many years. It has caused many admiring comments.

ROOFING AND METAL WORK.

Another important contract that was successfully carried out in connection with the new building was that of Deetz & Company, Inc., for the roofing, sheet metal work, including the fire proof doors, metal fireproof windows, galvanized iron cornice, skylights, ventilators, prism lights and wire plate glass. All these materials are necessary adjuncts in the construction of one of the modern fireproof buildings of today, and this Duluth firm has been especially fortunate in securing a number of contracts for some of the largest buildings, to say nothing of the many smaller contracts for business structures and houses.

PRESSED BRICK, MARBLE AND TILING.

The beautiful pressed brick, marble and tiling work is a special feature of the Sherwood building. Here it has been carried to an extent almost unheard of in a downtown structure outside of one used purely for public purposes. To Thomson & Stewart of Duluth is due the credit for the following items:

Pressed brick and mortar color, English and veined Italian marble wainscoting on the vestibule, corridor and stairway leading to the second floor; also the white Italian marble in the entrance to the basement, marble treads and risers leading to the second floor on the main stairway, the white Ceramic Mosaic tile in all bath and toilet rooms on the second and third floors; and also the marble treads and risers going into these different bathrooms and the Ceramic Mosaic tile floors in the three entrances, vestibule and lobby.

HARDWARE.

Corbin locks and hardware were furnished for the building throughout by the Kelley Hardware company, and embodied were the latest feature used on the best buildings throughout the country. The keys to each entrance to bachelors' suites, differ one from the other, and yet all pass the main entrance to this part of the building, and as well other doors, such as toilet rooms used in common. A simple Greek design is used on the main portion of the building, and one in keeping with the detail is used in other parts, all being finished in a light shade of old brass.

All corridor doors throughout are equipped with the Corbin unit lock, and the same high standard is maintained on the entire building.

The Kelley Hardware company is an important factor in the furnishing of builders' supplies not only in the local field but all over the Northwest and no matter how elaborate the design or pattern wanted, Kelley Hardware company has always been found ready to meet the bill of particulars in every respect.

MILL WORK.

The Ouelette & Baxter company, corner Garfield avenue and Michigan street, furnished all the millwork for the Sherwood building, and the contract was most satisfactorily performed. As manufacturers of sash, doors and interior finish this Duluth firm has become widely known throughout this section of the country and its output, which has been steadily increased year by year, is in great demand. No other industry in Duluth, probably, has witnessed any more substantial growth than the Ouelette & Baxter company's factory. The firm also deals in lumber, lath and shingles.

WINDOW DRAPES.

Considerable thought has been given to the draping of the windows—imported filet laces being used on all windows in the bachelor apartments. The window shades are of the best quality and mounted on Hartshorn rollers. All drapery and shade work done by the F. S. Kelly Furniture company.

ELECTRICAL FIXTURES.

The electrical fixtures for this entire building were designed, manufactured and installed by the Richardson Electric company, and are considered the most unique and up-to-date fixtures ever installed in any business block in this city. The fixtures have been constructed so as to furnish the desired illumination and at the same time the beautiful design has been carried out throughout the entire building.

THE ELECTRICAL WORK.

The electrical work, which was installed by the Duluth Electrical company, is one of the most up-to-date jobs in the city. All the wires for the installation are installed in iron conduits laid in the cement slab.

In the bachelors' quarters on the third floor, Mr. Sherwood has taken particular pains in the lighting, it being arranged so that a person can lay in bed and have a light to read by. Each room is also equipped with a receptacle outlet for the portable lamps which will be installed. A private telephone system connects the bachelors' quarters with the housekeeper's apartment and the convenience of this can be appreciated when such things as towels, etc., are forgotten by the housekeeper through the day.

TRYING SELF-GOVERNMENT

Pupils of Madison School Are Preserving Order Themselves.

Interesting Experiment With a "Civics Club" Is Being Made.

At the Madison school, on Garfield avenue, the self-governing plan is on trial. The pupils of the intermediate and grammar grades have organized a Civics club, with officers and committees, and have taken charge of the order in the building. At dismissal time they march out without espionage from teachers or principal and the order thus far is perfect.

The club meets twice a month for reports and programs. Bird day exercises were held, the meeting being in the kindergarten room, which was put in readiness by Roy Wallin, chairman of the hall committee, and his assistants. The different grades marched in, the teachers being assigned seats of honor at one side as guests of the occasion. George McNab, a member of the eighth grade, called the meeting to order with the self-possession of an experienced president; the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved according to "Roberts' Rules." Then the standing committees made their reports, the committee on order stating that a few members had been trespassing mildly, but that they would be allowed one more chance to reform before strenuous measures were taken. A special committee was appointed to take up the matter of the organization of a Band of Mercy in the building.

The program committee then took charge of the meeting. The numbers had been arranged wholly by the committee and consisted of recitations, songs, one of which was a duet in French, and an illustrated bird talk by the first grade teacher. This talk lasted an hour, yet to the end the audience remained attentive and well behaved.

The club's example of self-reliance is contagious, too. The pupils of the first grade, for instance, being forgotten for a time after the program was over, went to their own room, donned their wraps and marched out into the hall in their wonted order. The principal spied them lined up there waiting for the upstairs grade to come down and learned that they were dismissing themselves "without watching, like the big ones do." And since then they have been following up the plan.

At one of these meetings the subject of marking buildings and sidewalks was discussed and several members gave impromptu speeches of the most reformatory trend, proving that the club's name is no misnomer, that it is wide-awake and is taking an interest in municipal affairs. The next program will be a Memorial day one, at which time the club will entertain members of the G. A. R., the teachers of the Madison school and other friends.

This principal's experiment is being watched with interest for she is now securing encouraging results by this introduction of the republican form of government into the building and allowing the citizens thereof the right of suffrage.

THINKS COMET IS MAKING A TAIL

De Pauw Astronomer Advances Theory About Appendages.

Chicago, May 21.—The theory that Halley's comet has lost its old tail, which is still floating in space in the eastern sky, and is now generating a new one, was advanced by Rev. Daniel J. McHugh, professor of astronomy at De Pauw university today. The old tail was forced away from the comet by the forces of unusual electrical repulsion caused by the sun spots which were so prominent Wednesday, he thinks.

"It is my opinion," said Prof. McHugh, "that the comet lost its tail some time Wednesday night. There are records of its having done the same thing in 1835 and it is also believed that a tail was lost in March of this year. I also believe that there is not the slightest chance of the earth's coming in contact with the tail on this visit.

Tail Broke Away.

"Combined with the solar repulsion caused by the sun spots, forcing the old tail away, was the attraction of the earth. When the old tail broke away it continued in the same plane. It was seen in the east Thursday morning and on Friday morning it appeared dimmer and more dissipated. I did not see it by morning, probably because of the haze. As the old tail no longer receives fresh gas and energy from the head of the comet it will disappear in time.

"I saw the comet in the west last night and it had no tail. This strengthens my theory that it is now generating a new tail, which will become visible in a short time."

BRITAIN'S YOUNGEST PERRS.

Where Wealth and Rank Have Been Inherited by Minors.

Tit-Bits: The recent tragic death of Lord de Clifford has resulted in the adding of one more to the list of boys of tender years who have inherited ancient titles and many acres. The late Lord de Clifford—who married that popular actress, Miss Eva Carrington three years ago—is succeeded by his son, who was born in 1907, and who is thus at two years of age becomes the proud possessor of about 13,000 acres and is the youngest living peer.

Perhaps the most interesting boy peer in the kingdom, however, is Lord Donegall, whose mother enjoys the distinction of being the only Canadian marchioness in the peerage. Her marriage to the marquis was one of the sensations of 1902, for she was only 23, while her husband was 81. The latter lived for only seven months to enjoy the society of his heir, who was born in 1903, and thus before he was twelve months old the young marquis not only inherited his father's title but became hereditary lord high admiral of Lough Neagh—the largest lake in the United Kingdom—a naval command dating back to the reign of Elizabeth.

The little admiral derives no pay or emoluments from his office, but he has several notable perquisites, including the right to wear the uniform of an admiral of the fleet and to receive an admiral's salute. In addition he is hereditary governor of Carrick-Fergus castle, and is at all times entitled to free quarters in that fortress.

The tragic circumstances connected with the succession of the very youthful lord de Clifford remind one of the tragic death two years ago of Lord Chesham, one of the most popular men in England, who was killed in the hunting field. He was succeeded by his son, who at that time was only 13 years old.

The present Lord Bolingbroke attained his thirteenth birthday last March, and a romantic story is attached to his inheritance. Everybody thought that the late Lord Bolingbroke, the fifth viscount, who died ten years ago at the age of 79, was a bachelor. As a matter of fact, he had been married six years previously, and the present peer is his son.

Lord Airlie, whose mother is one of the ladies in waiting to the princess of Wales, inherited his earldom when he was 7 years old, his gallant father being one of the many for whose untimely death the Boer war was responsible. Another boy peer who inherited the title and lands at 7 years of age is Lord Lisburne, who succeeded his father ten years ago.

Lord Congleton, who recently celebrated his nineteenth birthday, succeeded his father some three years ago. Lord St. Leonards likewise sees his nineteenth birthday this year, and succeeded his uncle, the second baron, in 1908. Lord Vernon, who achieved his majority at the end of September, has held his barony since he was 10. He is the head of the family of which Louis Harcourt is a member, and can trace his descent from Plantagenet kings, although the barony is less than a century and a half old.

Other peers whose majorities are still well ahead are: Lord Carberry, Lord Shannon, who is 12 years old, and Lord Exmouth, who is 19.

HIS BIRTHDAY.

Chicago News: "Yes," said the man with the row of stogies in his pocket, "I'm going to have a birthday next week, but I'm not taking much interest in it. I was up against the Christmas game only a little while ago and it worked out just about as usual. The birthday carousl will be like it—only worse."

"I wouldn't have your disposition for a farm," said the man with his hat on one side of his head.

"You wrong me," said the man with the row of stogies in his pocket. "This isn't a case of disordered liver; it's a case of sad experience. I've had birthdays before."

"I suspected that," said the man with—his hat on one side of his head. "I can see the crows' feet from here. Your hair's getting thin, too."

"Oh, yes. I'm wise to the birthday game," said the gloomy man. "Still, every year I get worked up for a day or two over the possibility that things will be different, but they never are."

"What's the principal difficulty?"

"It's the birthday presents. Then at Christmas it's the Christmas presents. It's always the same thing. Next week I'll get the regular bunch of old favorites that are passed out to me on every glad occasion. There'll be a lounging robe so impossible in design that I'll never dare put it on of an evening for fear some close friend y'ill come in suddenly and catch me wearing it—just such a lounging robe as I've got either at Christmas or on my birthday every year for the last eight years. I missed it last Christmas so, of course, I'll get it on my birthday."

"Well, don't let it drive you to drink."

"Then some distant relative will send me a watch fob of rah-rah design, which I won't have the nerve to perpetrate in public. I can count, too, on my wife's handing me the conventionally impossible smoking utensils, which look as if they were taken from a page of the Homely Ladies' Journal. And so things will go."

"What's the difference so long as your're used to it?" asked the man with his hat on one side of his head.

"Oh, I'll live through it, all right," said the man with the row of stogies in his pocket. "As soon as my birthday is over I'll chase downtown and buy the things I need, just as I've always done."

"Then why worry?"

"I'm not worrying. It does seem funny, though, the way a woman just naturally won't pay any attention to a man's wants. For the last week I've been sitting in the evening getting off such talks as this: 'It beats all how these shoes have worn out. Little too snug to wear well, I believe. The next pair I get I'll have the man give me an 8½ instead of an 8 shoe. It seems as though everything wears out at once. These gloves look so fierce that I had a notion to throw 'em away. If Santa Claus had been on to his job he would have bought me a new pair at Christmas. I hate to buy the things myself. The clerk always says a 9 size such as I take is an odd size or something and he hasn't got just what I want. Huh! Is this the only clean handkerchief I've got? Good thing I havn't caught a cold while the supply's so low. Mebbe I'll slip in somewhere and buy some tomorrow. I've got to stop and get three or four shirts and some socks, anyhow.'

"That's the kind of talk I've been keeping up, hoping that it might take root and do some good, but it won't do any good. How do I know? Because I've tried it before—tried it not longer ago than in the merry Christmas season. About as near as I'll come to getting what I really want on my birthday will be when I unwrap a pink candlestick for the parlor mantel."

"Well, cheer up," said the man with his hat on one side of his head. "You can get even with your wife on her birthday by giving her something you know she doesn't want."

"Say, that's a great iden," declared the man with the row of stogies in his pocket, displaying considerable enthusiasm.

ONLY A BROKEN NOSE.

Capt. Logan of the Yale football team was praising the open play of the last two years.

"Besides being so much more beautiful and interesting to watch," said he, "it is so much less dangerous.

"We don't get bunged up and broken and deformed as we used to do. Why, in the past, a football man's injuries weren't regarded seriously, like another man's. They were regarded as a joke.

"I remember escorting a sub with a broken nose to the surgeon's once.

"'It's only a broken nose,' the surgeon said, and he laughed heartily. 'Only a broken nose. What's that to a footballer? And now how shall we set it—Greek or Roman?'"

THE FOOTBALL SPIRIT.

Ambassador David J. Hill, crossing from Germany on the George Washington, said in the smokeroom of the steamer that he would be glad to spend his Thanksgiving at home. Then, apropos of Thanksgiving day, Dr. Hill told a story on the subject of football.

"At a Thanksgiving day game at Bucknell," he said—"you know I'm a Bucknell man—a beautiful girl in sables and black velvet uttered a low cry of horror.

"'My brother! My poor brother!' she moaned, as a half-back was carried unconscious from the field.

"'Ah, but how thankful we should be!' her escort, an old player, cried gaily.

"'Thankful? Thankful for what?' exclaimed the girl.

"'Thankful that it wasn't the full-back,' said he. 'We haven't a decent full-back sub, you know.'"

AN ANECDOTE OF SUCCESS.

Of Melville E. Stone, manager of the Associated Press, a Chicago editor said the other day:

"Stone, like all successful journalists, loves his work. He would sacrifice anything to it. Talking about love of work in the Associated Press office in New York, he said, with a smile, that he could almost sympathise with the notorious Australian boy.

"This boy, a resident of Perth, saw his father kill his mother and then commit suicide. The boy suppressed the news for several hours while he tried to sell an 'awful-tragedy' story in 1,500 words to the Perth papers. But his enterprise missed cash; the papers feared a fake and wouldn't deal.

"'But fancy,' said Mr. Stone, 'fancy such a boy wasted on a community of sand gropers. What a loss to Park row!'"

A NATURAL DEATH.

Senator Burton had been discussing in Abilene his inspection of foreign waterways, a trip from which he had just returned.

"The conditions of European waterways," said this distinguished lawyer and legislator, "can teach us much; but our social conditions generally are as superior to Europe's as home cooking is superior to the hotel brand.

"A gentleman, at the Thanksgiving season, was passing a poultry seller's stall in the market. The color of a turkey attracted his attention. Its breast was a bluish purple; its scraggy legs were of a light hue; yet it seemed fat—in fact, it seemed swollen to the bursting point.

"'How much is that turkey?' the gentleman demanded, poking his forefinger into the bird's queer-looking flesh.

"But the dealer frowned and shook his head.

"'You don't want that bird, boss,' he said. 'That's for the hotel.'

"Then he winked, put his hand to the side of his mouth, and whispered hoarsely:

"'It died.'"

MUSHROOM POISONING.

Youth's Companion: Considering the frightful consequences of gathering and eating poisonous mushrooms in mistake for the edible variety it is little short of marvelous that a person without knowledge should dare go into the fields and woods and pick and eat any of the fungi growing there.

If you are thoroughly familiar with some particular variety of edible mushrooms and can distinguish it at sight from all others, however similar in color and form, it is safe to eat that particular variety; but you must beware of other kinds that resemble it, for however slight the difference in appearance one may be edible and the other poisonous.

There is no absolute rule for distinguishing the edible from the poisonous kinds, and it is therefore to give no general rules, but to follow only one: Suspect every mushroom which you do not know positively to be edible. To this rule perhaps may be added a second: Learn to distinguish the white spored agaries and avoid them all, for although there is an edible species it requires an expert to tell it, and the poison of another species is deadly and there is no known antidote for it.

The chief poisons in mushrooms are two in number—muscarin and phallin. The first of these produces symptoms resembling those of alcoholic intoxication, followed by convulsions or paralysis, collapse and death from heart failure. These symptoms come on soon after the mushrooms have been eaten.

In poisoning by phallin the symptoms do not appear until several hours after the meal. They resemble cholera, beginning with severe abdominal pain, soon followed by vomiting, purging and collapse.

In all cases of mushroom poisoning vomiting should be induced as soon as possible, and a large dose of castor oil may be given to hasten the elimination of any as yet unabsorbed portions of the mushroom.

Stimulants are needed to support the heart, and milk containing an abundance of magnesia or bicarbonate of sodium my be given.

Injections of a salt solution into the veins and—in case of muscarin poisoning—hypodermic injections of atropin are often employed by physicians with benefit.

THE PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR.

Reginald De Koven, the composer, motored recently to his native Middletown. There, as he strolled in a sun-blistered street, he met one of the friends of his boyhood. The friend threw down his pick, climbed out of the hole he was digging and shook hands warmly.

"By the way," he said, "are you any relation to Reginald De Koven, the composer?"

Mr. De Koven smiled.

"I am he," he answered.

"No, no," said the other, impatiently. "I mean De Koven, the great composer from New York. The one that's writing a grand opera on 'Trilby,' you know."

"Yes," said De Koven, laughing, "yes, that's me."

With an exclamation of disgust the boyhood friend turned and leaped back into his hole.

"De Koven," he sneered, "you always were a liar."

AGED WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Eliza Booker Saw Halley's Comet on Former Appearance.

Lived in West Duluth Fifteen of Her Ninety-Four Years.

Mrs. Eliza Booker, widow of Richmond L. Booker, died this morning at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Minnie Leary, 429 North Sixtieth avenue west, as a result of a general breakdown incident to old age. Had she lived until November she would have been 94 years old.

Mrs. Booker had been a resident of West Duluth for the past fifteen years and was familiarly known as "Grandma" Booker. George Booker, who was tried for the murder of his stepfather, Charles Clark, and acquitted of the charge, is a grandson. Mrs. Charles Clark, wife of the dead man, is a daughter. She lives at Twenty-third avenue west.

Mrs. Booker was born Nov. 16, 1826, at Palmero, Me., and spent most of her early life in the backwoods of Maine on a farm. Her maiden name was

MRS. ELIZA BOOKER.

Eliza Marden and her family was one of the pioneer families of Maine. In 1867, at the close of the Civil war, she married for the second time.

Richmond L. Booker, her second husband, died at West Duluth in April, 1909. He had a brilliant war record and was a prominent member of the local post of the G. A. R. Mrs. Booker has been in poor health for the past twenty years, although she possessed a strong constitution.

She was a quaint old lady and much thought of by her friends and relatives. Not unlike many of the hardy pioneer women of her type, she was an incessant user of tobacco. Even up to her last illness, she was fond of her evening smoke, her pipe being a constant companion. Recently she made her home with Mrs. Leary. She lived for some time last winter with her grandson, George Booker, of Forty-fifth avenue west.

Saw Halley's Comet.

Mrs. Booker was one of the few women in Duluth that has ever seen Halley's comet. When the sky wanderer made its appearance in the heavens, in 1835, seventy-five years ago, she was a girl of 15 years. She had often spoken of it to her grandchildren, with whom she lived.

Surviving her are two daughters and one son. They are Mrs. Charles Clark, Twenty-third avenue west; Mrs. Abbie Ellsworth of Le Mars, Iowa and Rufus L. Turner of Brookings, S. D., where the aged woman lived prior to her coming to Duluth. Fourteen grandchildren also survive her and forty great-grandchildren.

Among her grandchildren are: George Booker of Forty-fifth avenue west; Mrs. F. D. Roscoe of 4508 Grand avenue; Mrs. Minnie Leary, 429 North Sixtieth avenue west; Bert Clark; Twenty-third avenue west; Mrs. Lida McDonald of Vancouver, B. C. Five grand-children live in Iowa, and four reside at Seattle, Wash.

Asa Dalley of Duluth was the appointed guardian of Mrs. Booker. He also has looked after the affairs of her husband prior to his death last year.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Leary, 429 North Sixtieth avenue west. Rev. J. T. Moody of the Bethel will conduct the services and interment will be made at Forest Hill cemetery.

CANDY STAND WAS BROKEN INTO.

The West Duluth police yesterday afternoon learned that the candy store at Fairmont park, run by H. J. Paapl, who also conducts a store at 119 Central avenue, had been broken into during the last few days.

When Paapl visited the place yesterday he found that thieves had entered and that about $20 worth of merchandise had been taken. Two boxes and some confectionery were missing.

The mater was reported to the police. Although the police are inclined to the theory that the burglary was the work of boys, Lieut. Wilcox strenuously denies the published report in the morning paper that there is an "organized gang of boys who are conducting burglaries" at West Duluth.

"This is the first one that has been reported in some weeks," said the officer, "and such statements reflect badly on the boys at West Duluth."

ACCEPTS CALL TO THE WEST DULUTH BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. HUGO P. J. SELINGER.

Rev. Hugo P. J. Selinger, lecturer for the past three years in the University of Chicago, has been called as pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue. Rev. Mr. Selinger has accepted the call and will preach his first sermon to his new congregation tomorrow.

Rev. Mr. Selinger comes to the congregation at West Duluth with a splendid record. He was born in 1875 and was brought up in a German-American family. He received his education at the University of Chicago, the Crozier Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., and also studied at the universities of Munich, Berlin and Heidelberg in Germany.

He was ordained as a pastor of the Baptist faith at Boston in 1904 and during the following year was engaged in missionary work in Nebraska and Wyoming. He then returned to Massachusetts, where he was pastor of a church for a year. During the following year he preached in Vermont.

After leaving his charge in Vermont, Rev. Mr. Selinger took up work with the Chicago university as a special lecturer on theological topics. He has selected for his topic tomorrow "The Message from Mount Hermon" at the morning service at 10:30 o'clock, and "The River of Love" at the evening service at 7:45 o'clock. There will be special singing at both services. The Sunday school will meet at noon and the Baptist Young People's union will gather at 6:45 o'clock in the evening.

Rev. Mr. Selinger fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, who is now associate pastor of the First Baptist church of St. Paul.

Rev. Mr. Magnuson will speak in English to a mass meeting and will also deliver an address in Swedish in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

FUGITIVE IS A WEST DULUTHIAN.

Peter Duello, wanted at Mountain Iron on a charge of grand larceny, is supposed to be a former West Duluth man.

The police in the western end of the city were asked by the range authorities to look up his record while here. He is supposed to have friends residing in the vicinity of Fifty-seventh avenue and Raleigh street who may know something of his whereabouts.

West Duluth Briefs.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Fiilatrault undertaking rooms, for Mrs. Zilda Zeck, 25 years old, who died Thursday. Burial was at Oneota cemetery.

A daughter was born Tuesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Julian Dahl of 408 North Sixty-fifth avenue west.

I. G. Wallin will leave for Hibbing Monday to attend the annual convention of the St. Louis County Sunday school association. He is a delegate from Asbury M. E. church.

Miss Mabel Johnson has gone to St. Paul

Richard Schell is back from a business jaunt to Chicago.

John Scheff returned this afternoon to Cloquet after attending the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Zilda Zeck, who died Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Swan Johnson of 432 North Sixty-first avenue west are the parents of a son, born yesterday.

While at Smithville, Wednesday, Leon Hamlin, had a bicycle stolen from him. Yesterday he asked the West Duluth police to help locate it.

Louis Besson is ill at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rose Gosselin, 216 North Sixty-fourth avenue west.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Asbury M. E. church will serve a chicken pie supper and hold a sale of fancy articles this evening at Gilley's hall.

Miss Ethel Jamieson will leave Monday for Hibbing, where she will attend the annual convention of the St. Louis County Sunday School association as a delegate from the Westminster Presbyterian Sunday school.

At a meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening it was learned that the Northern Pacific officials had taken some steps toward improving the depot at West Duluth. It has not yet been given out whether the old structure will be remdeled or a new depot built.

Rev. Giddeon Nylander will preach at both services tomorrow at the Third Swedish Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Green street. One of the delegates to the Finnish conference at West Duluth will also speak in the evening.

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gillen of 528 North Sixtieth avenue west.

Hurst Watch repairing, W. Duluth.

CHILDREN HURT IN RUNAWAY

Four West Duluth Little Ones Sustain Slight Injuries.

In a runaway accident late yesterday on Sixty-fourth avenue west, four children were injured. Agnes Schulte, 9-year-old daughter of A. C. Schulte of 516 South Sixty-fourth avenue west sustained bad bruises about the arms and legs, and Grace, her 13-year-old sister, Sadie Dash, 11-year-old daughter of Joseph Dash of South Sixty-fifth avenue west, and Lenora Ban, 11-year-old daughter of Joseph Ban of 502 South Sixty-fourth avenue west, were slightly injured.

A spirited team of bronchoes owned by Thomas Foubister had been left standing without a weight in front of a residence on South Sixty-fourth avenue west and Sherburne street. While the driver, Emil Peterson, was in the house taking an order the little girls, who were in the rig, started the horses. In trying to get out of the rig, they were hurt.

The horses stopped when they reached the barn at Fifty-ninth avenue west and Redruth street.

EFFELSTROM IS CHOSEN MODERATOR.

At the national conference of the Finnish Baptist Missionary Union of America, which has been in session three days at Wasa hall, 5117 Ramsey street, West Duluth, Rev. Matt Effelstrom of Worcester, Mass., was this afternoon elected moderator.

In addition, the Ebenezer Finnish Baptist congregation of West Duluth, which meets at the same place, extended him a call as pastor, which he accepted. He will take charge of his new duties in September.

An effort is being made to have the national organ of the society published in Duluth.

REVIVAL SERVICES WILL BE CONTINUED.

Revival services at the Swedish Mission church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Green street, will be continued another week with Rev. Malcolm O. Magnuson, a young evangelist from Chicago, occupying the pulpit.

The meetings during the week past have been well attended. Last evening he was greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience, the services being conducted in the English language. Mrs. J. J. Daniels, wife of the pastor of the West end church sang and the choir gave several selections.

Tomorrow, Rev. C. V. S. Engstrom, the pastor, will preach in the morning. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Magnuson will speak in English to a mass meeting and will also deliver an address in Swedish in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

DEER WANDERS INTO THE CITY.

A small fawn was seen today within the city limits, at Twenty-sixth avenue east and Fifth street. The pretty little animal probably did not enjoy the fun very much, but a group of children had great sport chasing it about. It disappeared in the woods near Twenty-sixth avenue east.

INTEREST BEING TAKEN IN COMPETITIVE DRILL.

Great interest is being taken in the competitive drill between Company A, M. N. G., and the degree team of Duluth camp, No. 2341, Modern Woodmen of America, to be held at the Armory next Tuesday evening. Capt. K. A. Franklin will put the militia boys through their paces and Julius Quade is captain of the degree team.

The drill will begin at 8:30 in the evening and it is expected that the gallery of the Armory will be well filled with people interested in the competition. Flaaten's band will furnish the music and the drill will be followed by dancing.

BIG COAL DEAL HAS BEEN FLOATED

Col. A. D. Davidson Gets $22,000,000 in the London Market.

The London Times of May 8 contains the prospectus of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., inviting subscriptions to an issue of $10,000,000, 5 per cent first mortgage gold bonds. This is a large coal deal that Mackenzie & Mann and Davidson & McRae have consummated in British Columbia, and which it took $14,000,000 to handle. A. D. McRae, formerly of Duluth, will be in active charge of the company. Col. A. D. Davidson is now in London in connection with the placing of the bonds, and it is understood that the issue was full subscribed. The company, which is capitalized at $15,000,000, has purchased all the properties in British Columbia, in anywise relating to coal, coal mines and fire clay. These include 1,850,000 acres of land owned by the Wellington Colliery company and estimated to contain not less than 600,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, together with operating mines, railroads, docks, etc.

Davidson and the Mackenzie-Mann interests recently formed a big lumber company to operate in British Columbia, and the coal deal means $22,000,000 cash secured by them in the London market during the past month for British Columbia interests.

FIVE YEARS FOR PASSING CONFEDERATE GREENBACKS.

Winona, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Dukes, giving his residence as Chicago, arrested here about a month ago on the charge of passing Confederate money, was today found guilty by the United States circuit court in session here and sentenced to five years imprisonment at the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

NEW PUBLIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Many New Faces Will Appear on Commercial Club Committee.

A Special Advisory Board Is Named By President Luster.

PRESIDENT C. A. LUSTER.

The public affairs committee of the Commercial club will meet Monday evening for organizing for the year and take a fresh start upon its increasing activities. As Chairman Hugo of the retiring committee sets forth in his annual review of the committee's work, the field is constantly enlarging and the undertakings for the future are more important than ever.

The new board is composed of the following gentlemen, and a reading of the names gives ample assurance of good results:

W. A. McGonagle, J. H. Barnes, C. R. Rust, W. A. Cant, Bert Fesler, Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison, W. E. Richardson, Oscar Mitchell, J. F. Walsh, Alex McDougall, David Williams, M. B. Cullum, Seth Marshall, C. S. Wilson, B. M. Peyton, A. D. Goodman, John G. Williams, J. R. McGiffert, W. I. Prince, A. H. Crassweller, H. J. Mullin, George W. Welles, Elmer N. Whyte, A. H. Krieger, C. P. Craik, Watson S. Moore, C. T. Fitzsimmons, E. P. Towne, John Uno Sebenius, L. M. Willcuts, A. C. Jones, E. M. Morgan, D. T. Helm, William Harrison, George A. French, W. N. Ryerson, L. B. Arnold, J. W. Bayly, John Heimick, C. F. MacDonald, Carroll F. Graff, E. A. Schulze, S. L. Reichert, Watson, Mendenhall, C. P. Tweed, Henry Nolte, B. P. Neff, L. D. Stickles, C. P. Rowe, E. A. Risden, L. L. Culbertson, F. O. Davison, W. A. Earnshaw, C. L. Rakowsky, Harry C. Strong, W. S. Telford, C. S. Mitchell, S. H. Bingham, E. C. Bowman, H. G. Mooney, H. R. Armstrong, C. L. Brown, Phil F. Blackmarr, Alfred Hanchett, John J. E. Wertin, Guy E. Warren, W. H. Rattenbury and F. D. Merritt.

A new departure has been taken by President Luster in naming an advisory board to fill a place where the need of some such body has apeared heretofore. The names of the men chosen for this board will in themselves indicate pretty well what is expected of them. The same men have often been called in to advise on board questions of policy or program, where their special knowledge or their extensive acquaintance made their judgment peculiarly valuable. And because they are wanted in this advisory capacity, they are not to be members of the public affairs committee, but a board that may be called upon by either the public affairs committee or the board of directors. The following comprise the committee:

C. A. Congdon, A. M. Marshall, J. L. Washburn, W. J. Olcott, C. A. Duncan, T. W. Hugo, A. L. Ordean, G. G. Hartley, A. B. Wolvin.

It is not the intention, says C. A. Luster, president of the club, that this committee shall in any way displace or supersede the public affairs committee. The public affairs committee will continue to decide on its own projects and carry them out in its own way.

It is expected the meetings of the advisory committee will be infrequent and that their advice will be available when occasion demands. Meanwhile the public affairs committee continues to be the working arm of the club and of the commercial and civic interests it aims to represent.

As soon as they have organized by the election of a chairman, they will be formed into the usual subcommittees, among which the work of the year will be apportioned, with the addition from time to time of special committees for particular occasions.

The special committee on government by commission consisting of R. B. Knox, A. C. Volk and L. E. Lum acting with three members of the council, has been reappointed by President Luster.

Besides the public affairs committee and the advisory board, two committees of the club have been appointed as follows:

Membership—F. C. Berry, chairman; I. S. Moore, M. F. Jamar, jr., Phil F. Heimick, H. M. Blackmarr, Alfred Hanchett, John J. E. Wertin, Guy E. Warren, W. H. Rattenbury and F. D. Merritt.

Finance and auditing—Colin Thomson, chairman; A. H. Brown and J. B. Becher.

The following committees still hold over:

Terminal committee—F. A. Patrick, B. W. How, and C. S. Wilson.

Committee on street obstruction—W. S. Telford and C. D. Brewer.

"One thing," says President Luster, "we ought carefully to guard against which I do not think will be done. That is the idea that the whole burden is to rest on the shoulders of these men who have been named on committees. They are asked to do certain things and to put the problems in shape for all of us to act upon. It would be very unfortunate to suppose that the whole thing was delegated to them. The support of the whole club should be back of them, and so long as they fairly represent the ideas of the community, the support of the whole community should be back of the club. There is work enough for every one to do his part."

GUST LEINO SUSPECTED OF HEINOUS CRIME, ARRESTED

Gust Leino, believed to be the man who criminally assaulted Mrs. Peter Norden on the Thomson road Thursday evening, was arrested on the Bowery this afternoon by Patrolman Connors. He was taken to the police station and then taken by Chief Troyer and Detective Schulte in the police automobile to the home of the woman in the town of Midway to secure her identification.

The police believe that there is no doubt but that Leino is the man. He tallies exactly with the description given by Mrs. Norden of her assailant, and also the description given by others of a man they saw in the vicinity of the scene of the assault Thursday evening.

Leino had been working at Proctor on a section gang. He was in Duluth Thursday afternoon and returned to Proctor Thursday night. Friday morning at 11 o'clock, he drew his time check and left immediately. The police arrived in Proctor about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but Leino had gone.

Yesterday afternoon Peter Norden, husband of the victim of the assault, saw a man at a neighboring farm house, whom he thought was his wife's assailant, but the police found that his suspicions were unfounded.

ENGLISHMEN GO OVER THE RANGE

Local Steel Corporation Officials Accompany Visitors on Inspection Trip.

Vivian and Oliver Smith of London, under escort of Mr. Stevens of New York, a Pere Marquette official, came to Duluth yesterday in a private car and, accompanied by officials of the Oliver Iron Mining company and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, made a trip of inspection over the range. They visited Hibbing, Chisholm and Virgina and then returned to Duluth, leaving here at 10 o'clock in the evening for Winnipeg.

President W. J. Olcott and Vice President Penteoost Mitchell of the Oliver Mining company, President W. A. McGonagle of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and President F. E. House of the Duluth & Iron Range road were members of the party.

When at Hibbing the visitors inspected the Hull-Rust mine in particular, but other properties were visited also.

In Duluth the rumor became circulated that one of the English visitors was J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., manager of the Morgan bank at London, but it was denied that either of them was Morgan.

TENSTRIKE SAFE BLOWN.

Brainerd, Minn., May 21:—(Special to The Herald.)—Yeggmen blew open the safe in E. S. Thompson's store at Tenstrike Friday night and stole $50 in checks and some cash and escaped.

Leaves for French Lick Springs.

C. C. Smith, the gentleman who supplied the people of Duluth and vicinity with the most modern and strictly up-to-date line of custom-made shirts and underwear, left this afternoon over the Omaha for French Lick Springs, Ind., will also visit the Eastern markets in search of a line of shirtings that are the best the country affords.

Memorials in the Senate.

Washington, May 21.—The session of the senate today was devoted entirely to memorial services in honor of the late Representatives Francis W. Cushman of Washington and David A. De Armond of Missouri.

RAKE AND HOE FREELY USED

Duluth Puts Finishing Touches on Its Annual Spring Cleaning.

Health Department Well Satisfied With Sanitary Conditions in City.

Duluth washed its face today, and officially, is clean from toe to crown.

Today was cleaning day, as per the decision of the mayor and the health commissioner, and the good citizens did a good job.

The city didn't need an entire bath, for it has been busy washing up the last six weeks under the direction of half a dozen sanitary inspectors, who have been hustling from morning till night.

All that was required was some finishing touches. Hence the facial features were given a last touch of the brush. They're the ones that show plainest, anyhow. The back yards and alleys have been swabbed out in excellent shape, according to the authorities, but the front yards were still a bit behind the times. So the women and children and some of the men went to work with a will early this morning.

Health department officials state that the results speak for themselves. They declare that Duluth's physical appearance is better now than it has ever been. They call to memory the eye-sores that have been carted away; to the heaps of tin cans, old barrels, rags and filth that have disappeared, and to the alleys that have been improved.

Tons upon tons of garbage and refuse have been carted to the city dump, and the incinerator the last month and a half. From seventy to eighty loads have been carted there on the average each day during that time. The residents generally have shown every willingness to help the cleaning campaign along. The inspectors report that they have had little difficulty in inducing the householders to follow their suggestions. Districts which have been a standing disgrace to the community are now presentable and the department states that it will be made a point to see that they remain so.

Mrs. Baldwin, the woman sanitary inspector, calls attention to the fact that the city garbage wagon is working in the district between Sixth avenue west and Sixth avenue east. Those desiring municipal service can get it by notifying the health department by mail or telephone. The municipal collection has proven satisfactory and the charges are nominal.

SCHOOLBOYS' FIELD MEET

Grade School Athletes Are Competing for the Herald Trophy.

Keen interest is being shown this afternoon in the interscholastic field meet of the grade schools, which is being held at Athletic park.

Eleven of the city schools are entered in the meet, which will be for the loving cup offered by the Duluth Evening Herald. Over 150 athletes are taking part in the various events.

Shortly after 1 o'clock boys with the colors of their various schools were to be seen on the streets, waiting for street cars to take them to the park.

Automobiles took many of the school children to the park.

More interest is being displayed in the meet this afternoon than in any of the previous athletic contests of the grade schools.

WILL TALK ON THE REVALUATION

M. Benedict Papot to Cover Interesting Period in Lecture.

M. Benedict Papot of Chicago, the lecturer who is delivering a series of talks on French civilization, in speaking today of the talk he will make tonight, said the period with which his lecture will deal is an extremely interesting one—that of Napoleon and the revolution. For fifteen years the nation was in a turmoil and the story of that time is among the most thrilling that may be found in history.

M. Papot referred to the classes which he is conducting in the city supplemental to his work as a lecturer. He said that about twenty attended the session of the class this morning and showed the most enthusiastic interest in the work.

"I am glad I came here," said M. Papot.

HEAVY STORMS IN SOUTHWEST

Houses Are Blown Down and One Man Killed in Texas.

Houston, Tex., May 21.—Heavy rains, accompanied by severe wind, hail and electrical displays, again visited Southwest and Central Texas last night. moro thn twenty towns report houses blown down and in many instances people were slightly injured. At Gonzales, Beto Hernandez, a well known Mexican, was killed by lightning.

Streams all over the Southwest are rising rapidly and many levees in rice fields have been washed away. Crops in many sections have been greatly benefitted by the downpour, especially the cotton crops.

Tornado in Kansas.

Bluff City, Kan., May 21.—A tornado with a fall of hailstones as large as eggs, destroyed farm houses, barns, orchards and crops in the eastern part of Harper county last night. No lives were lost. Telephone and telegraph wires were knocked down.

HELD UP TWICE BY SAME GANG

Hotel Guest Tells Wierd Tale of a Double Robbery.

George Young, an insurance man well known in Duluth, who makes his headquarters while in the city at the Lenox hotel, entertained a group of friends in the lobby last evening with a yarn about a double-barreled hold-up of which he was the trembling hero.

It seems that some years ago Mr. Young wandered late at night in a city where strong experts were giving nightly demonstrations. Three of these experts decided to convince Mr. Young of their expertness, so they strong-armed him.

"Stand and deliver, by heck," said he who bore the role of Robin Hood.

Mr. Young comprehended the statement without loss of time and delivered money, a watch and a chain from which there hung a charm.

"Prithee, fair sir," quoth Sir Young, "won't you please let loose of that bauble? 'Tis but a mean thing, of no value to you, and to me it is beyond price. 'Twas given to me, but I'll not tell her name."

And they gave it to him, and he hurried on.

About three blocks down the street, Young bumped into a bunch of three big fellows, who without prelude told him to shell out. He shelled his charm and the Worshipful Grand Supreme RobinH odo f the lodge shouted.

"Same guy. Here youse, we don't want yer old charm. Get out-o' here."

DISCUSS BANK LAW DECISION

Southwestern Men Much Interested in Judge Hook's Ruling.

St. Paul, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ruling of Judge Hook of the United States circuit of appeals, in which the order of the federal circuit court restraining the officers of the state of Kansas from carrying into effect the Kansas bank depositors' guaranty law was vacated, has created much interest in banking circles, particularly in the Southwest. In that section of the country, Kansas, Nebraska, Texas and Oklahoma have bank guaranty laws affected by the decision.

The injunction to prevent the law from becoming effective was obtained by the Abilene, Kan., National bank, acting for all of the national banks of Kansas.

These organizations claimed that as the law did not allow these institutions equal rights with the state banks it was legislation which discriminated against them as depositors would naturally prefer banks where deposits were guaranteed, and also that they were not given equal protection.

Judge Hook's ruling was that there was no merit in either contention.

The suit was contested by J. N. Dolley, bank commissioner for aKnsas.

The bank guaranty law was an issue during the last presidential campaign and President Taft in his Minneapolis speech spoke against it and advocated in its place the postal savings bank.

DULUTH MAN KILLED IN WEST

Arthur Elkens, formerly of Duluth, was killed this morning in a mill, of which he had charge at Kalispel, Mont., according to a message received here this afternoon. He was well known in Duluth and Superior, having lived at the Head of the Lakes for some time. He was married a short time ago to Miss Elizabeth Barber of Superior. His parents live in Canada.

PUT UNDER BONDS TO KEEP PEACE

Walter Garbusky was put under $200 bonds to keep the peace in police court this morning, on complaint of Joseph Sanko, who alleged that Garbusky had threatened to shoot and stab him. It appears that Garbusky finished a 60-day sentence in the county jail yesterday, and believing that Sanko was to blame, determined to "get him." Instead of getting into action he told Sanko about his intentions. Sanko took fright and lost no time in getting a warrant for his arrest.

THREE CASES A DAY FOR SUPREME COURT.

Hon. Charles L. Lewis, associate justice of the supreme court of the state, was in Duluth today, coming up from St. Paul last night and returning tonight. Justice Lewis said his visit to Duluth has no special significance, being merely a week-end trip to the Head of the Lakes such as he makes regularly.

Speaking of the work of the court, Justice Lewis said that there are cases enough set for hearing from this time to July 11, making an average of three cases a day. The justices are engaged in hearing discussion and argument of the issues usually until 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Regarding the decision of the court in the Standard Oil case this week, Justice Lewis said the question of the constitutionality of the act turned on the question of class legislation, because the act embraced petroleum and all its products. The majority of the court held that because kerosene might be subject to a monopoly, from the manner in which it is handled in tank cars, the act so far as it related to kerosene is constitutional, and questioned whether it is unconstitutional in so far as the products of petroleum are embraced.

SPECIAL RIGHT OF WAY.

Brainerd, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pierpont Morgan, Jr.'s special Northern Pacific train with New York financiers on board passed through Brainerd at 11:15 a. m. for the coast.

Makes Car Report.

Chicago, May 21.—The fortnightly statement of the American Railroad association on car surplus and surplusage shows an increase in surplus of 25,603 cars, bringing the total up to 217,148, the highest figure since August a year ago. The box car surplus increased 15,630. The increases are largely in the East.

The total shortage is 4,555, a decrease of 1,211 since the issue of the last previous bulletin.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A SPRING PICNIC OF THE HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS.

Next Friday night the class of 1910 will give its last banquet and dance. The committee in charge is desirous that every member of the class attend. The committee is urging every senior boy to ask a senior girl to this last dance of the high school course. Many of the boys at the senior hop before Christmas attended alone, and there were a number of the girls in the class who could not go because they had no escort.

The committee is also urging the members of all the classes, who attend the dance after the spread, not to fill programs before the night of the dance.

The seniors and freshmen will meet each other in debating for the championship of the school in about two weeks. The seniors defeated the juniors last Monday morning and the freshmen were victorious over the sophomores in the afternoon. In the championship debate for the cup offered by the Forum, the class of 1910 will be represented by Alfred Ott, Gilbert Bates, and Lloyd Greene. The freshmen will be represented by Jessie Cohen, Norman Cook and William McDonough.

The Wallace cup won by Central in the inter-city declamatory and oratorical contest is now on exhibition in the most conspicuous place in the building; on the piano in the auditorium.

Stanley Lamb and Roger Lerch, who represented the school did wonderfully well for the first year the school entered any such contest. Besides the cup a gold medal was presented to Stanley Lamb for first place in the declamation and a silver medal to Roger Lerch for second in oratory.

Out of respect to the late King Edward, the chapel exercises Friday morning were very impressive. The king was buried yesterday and Mr. Custance played a funeral march during the chapel exercises.

• • •

Beginning Monday, May 23, at the courthouse, there will be an art exhibit given by the Duluth Art association and last two weeks.

Mr. Buck urged the high school pupils to visit the exhibit and assured them that they would gain much from it.

There are two prizes offered to the pupils of the school for the best essay of 150 words on, "The Picture I Like Best, and Why." The first prize is $10 and the second $5.

• • •

The senior class held a meting yesterday afternoon and Mr. Custance spoke to them about the class night exercises. He said he is working on the program and next Monday in the music room the first rehearsal will take place.

The seniors wishing invitations for class night and commencement exercises are asked to hand their names, with the number of invitations desired, to Miss Taylor.

All the seniors who intend going to school next fall have given their names to Miss Taylor, who will send for blanks to be filled out as entrance certificates. Miss Taylor has not a complete list yet, but will before commencement night.

The last meeting of the Forum will be held Monday. The following program has been prepared:

Piano solo .....
Stance Neuman.
Oration .....
Ludwig Melander.
Mock debate: "Resolved, That the pedestrians of Duluth should observe all navigation laws." .....

For the affirmative will be Fred Weinberg, Joe Almams and Charles Evans; the negative, Roger Lerch, Alvern Stolz and Harry Zlatkovsky.

Mr. Brackett will give his last talk to the society and all the members are urged to be present.

• • •

All the proofs of the Zenith have been read and the book will be ready for binding in a few days.

• • •

Ted Jones, Albert Codding, Arthur Traphagen and Jack Hurdon visited school yesterday.

• • •

Mr. Wheeler, instructor in chemistry, will return Monday. Mr. Wheeler has just recovered from a long illness which called him away before the spring vacation. The pupils are glad to have him back but they also regret to see Mr. Graves, who has been at the school temporarily, leave.

• • •

Many of the pupils went to the junior-senior at Nelson Dewey of Superior last night. Others attended the sophomore-senior at Blaine.

• • •

Miss Mary Emily Merritt will read the class prophecy at the senior farewell banquet, instead of Miss Beulah Magner, as originally announced.

• • •

The senior essays were handed in last Monday. The hardest part of the senior English course is now over.

No Fear of Free Trade

"Now at this point," he said, "it seems to develop upon me, as a representative here in congress of this reform, and as a representative manufacturer in the iron and steel industry of New England, engaged in the production of important lines of machinery, employing large numbers of skilled workmen, and using large quantities of the finished product of the steel trust, to state purely here that, in my judgment, my industry and the people employed in it would not suffer under free trade conditions, that is, if the 45 per cent duty was entirely removed and provided those conditions apply to the whole iron and steel industry from the coal and iron ore up.

"This statement is equally true of other staple industries."

Mr. Foss advocated the placing of all raw materials upon the free list, and declared that burdens of protection were felt as keenly by the employer as by the employed.

and blew most of the clouds away.

An Enthusiastic Array.

Pennsylvania avenue has seen hundreds of thousands of soldiers march along its broad way, but never a more enthusiastic array than the "soldiers of the cross," who yesterday trampled along its rain-washed path. To the tune of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and other hymns, they marched bearing banners inscribed with numerous Christian mottoes.

Practically every country in the world and every state of the Union was represented in the parade.

A trade union controversy resulted in five union bands leaving the parade after it had formed, caused by the presence of the Naval Gun Factory band, a non-union organization.

J. Milton Waldron, chairman of the committee of colored people, which protested against the action of the committee in preventing the colored Sunday schools from marching, said that the colored Sunday schools of the District of Columbia have an association which is affiliated with the World's Sunday School association and that thirteen colored delegates are accredited to the convention, but denied seats by the local committee on arrangements.

CLOUDY

The weather man sent along a little of his best brand of May weather last night, with a moon that was big and bright. This morning opened bright and clear, but the sky clouded later and the cold wind is decidedly uncomfortable. Partly cloudy and cold weather is predicted for tonight with rising temperature tomorrow.

Fair cool weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:25 and it will set at 7:43, giving fifteen hours and eighteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"A low pressure area that has moved its center from Kansas to Texas caused rains from the Rocky mountains eastward to the Atlantic coast during Friday and last night. Another depression overlying Saskatchewan is attended by higher temperature in Western Canada, the Dakotas and Montana. The barometer is high over the Dakotas and South Atlantic coast states. Somewhat cooler weather prevails in Southern Utah, Nevada, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Western Iowa as a result of higher pressures in those districts. Light to heavy frosts occurred this morning in Northern Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes: Moderate variable winds, mostly northerly over north portions. Unsettled tonight and Sunday, with occasional showers, except on Western Superior.

Chicago, May 21.—Following are the forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday; probably light frost tonight.

Wisconsin — Partly cloudy with showers in southern portion tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight with light frost in north and west portions.

Minnesota—Fair tonight with frost; Sunday fair with rising temperature.

Iowa—Unsettled weather tonight and Sunday, with showers in south and east portions; cooler tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight, with probably frost in east portion and warmer in west portion; Sunday fair and warmer.

Montana—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer in east portion tonight.

GOOD ROADS LIVE TOPIC

Increase in Number of Automobile Owners Means Renewed Agitation.

Few Trips Open to Autoists in Vicinity of Duluth.

After receiving a bright new shining automobile direct from the factory and learning to drive the same Duluth people to realize that which they never before had forcibly brought to their notice, namely, the lack of good roads and places to go.

During this last week there has been more complaint over the condition of the roads than ever before. This is accounted for by the fact that the automobile owners are becoming more and more numerous and they will in the near future be able to make themselves heard.

Up to this year the owners of machines have been very few and their plaints were paid little attention to for this very reason. Now they threaten to rise up and wage a real war for good roads.

Only a few days ago J. A. Todd did some $300 worth of damage to his car and the only reason for the accident was that about $100 had not been expended to clear the larger boulders out of the Rice lake road. The accident—Mr. Todd says it was not an accident but the natural result of negligence—took place on the big hill on the city end of the road. It was after dark and the car was moving at a slow rate of speed. The rock rose abruptly out of the center of the road and as a result the bottom of the car was broken to pieces including the crank case, the support of the engine.

Mr. Todd says that $100 would take all these rocks out of the road. Many others are said to have had experiences of this kind on the roads about Duluth.

Road Very Rough.

The Pike lake road is in bad shape. It is high and dry and there are no soft spots, but rough is hardly the adjective to be used.

Local owners say that if after a rain the roads around Duluth could be gone over with a King split-log drag, their condition could then hardly be compared to that of the present.

The Pike lake road in particular seems to be getting in worse shape with the years. It could be made very good in the opinion of local autoists, if the drag were worked on it. This is an inexpensive, as well as a Twentieth Century way of repairing roads and it is being used with great success all over the country.

On the range a man took a contract for fourteen miles of repairs for something over $700. By the aid of the King drag he averaged a mile a day and E. J. Filatrault of the Mutual Automobile company says that the work is done in first-class shape and that the road has been made over from one of the roughest in the state to a beautiful highway on which it is a pleasure to drive.

There is no question but that in the country about Duluth the roads are not what they should be. Some of them are so narrow that it is almost impossible to allow another party to pass. The sink holes are numerous; there are miles of corduroy that have never been properly filled and the bridges shake as though they were going to go under every time they are crossed.

One Good Drive.

One of the most beautiful drives about the Head of the Lakes is said by those who have made the trip, to be out of Superior on the road which leads to Black River Falls.

The road has been recently improved. The falls are fourteen miles beyond South Superior and they are said to be well worth the trip.

About thirteen forties about the falls are owned by William Burgess of Duluth. The spot is one of great natural beauty and recently Mr. Burgess was offered $50,000 for his holdings by the state of Wisconsin. The state wanted to make a park out of the land. The offer was refused by the Duluth man.

There is a fall of 170 feet and the country surrounding is wild and rugged. For an afternoon jaunt those who have made the trip are loud in their praises of both the road and the falls.

First 1911 Flyer.

Howard T. Abbott has the first 1911 Thomas Flyer in Duluth. The car arrived during the week and was on display for some days at the garage of the Mutual Automobile company. The 1911 model is of the six-cylinder variety and seats seven. The new car is a model for beauty and comfort.

During the week W. J. Olcott received his new Winton car.

The Mutual Automobile company will soon receive four Chalmers-Detroit cars.

• • •

The Interstate Automobile company is now located in its new garage on East First street. They have two floors, one entrance being from First street and the other from the alley behind First street. The new building is a splendid brick structure and there is room for many cars. The company is agent for the Kissel car, which is very well known in Duluth. Theodore Furland is manager of the Interstate company. They were formerly located on lower Lake avenue.

PAYNE AND HIS TARIFF BILL AND PRESIDENT TAFT ARE SCORED

fairly saturated with oil that it would be dangerous to strike a match in the neighborhood, and it would not be oil out of Mr. Dolliver's corporosity.

"The next day we heard the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Fordney), who is a Republican of high degree, deliver a most bitter and vicious assault upon Senator Beveridge, the Republican boss of Indiana, on account of a speech delivered recently at Indianapolis. A stump debate between these two eminent Republicans would double discount in interest any vaudeville show ever pulled off in America.

What Is a Republican?

"Listening to the attack of the Republican gentleman from New York upon the Republican senator from Iowa and the attack of the Republican gentleman from Michigan upon the Republican senator from Indiana, I recall the words of the psalmist, 'Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell in unity,' and then comes to my mind the question now ringing through the land, 'What is a Republican?'

"In making a speech in defense of his tariff bill, Mr. Chairman Payne appeared to be performing a disagreeable stunt. He did not exhibit his usual enthusiasm or his old-time felicity of expression. He appeared to be in and as cheerful a frame of mind as a lawyer appointed by the court, defending without fee a man that he feels certain will be convicted and hanged. Clearly, it was to him a repulsive job, but it had to be gone through with some way. He appeared to be in the frame of mind of Macbeth when about to murder Duncan: 'If t'were done, when 'tis done, then 't'were well it were done quickly.'

Thinks Payne Afflicted.

"Mr. Chairman Payne was evidently in a very fretful state. He also seems to be afflicted with a new disease 'intermittent forgetfulness.' He remembered with great vividness the soup houses of 1893 and 1894, but when it came to the soup houses of 1907, a very recent occurrence, and the soup houses of 1873, his memory failed him utterly. It does not need a psychologist or phrenologist to account for this state of mind on his part, the reason being that the soup houses of 1873 and 1907 were under Republican administration, and under tariff laws passed by a Republican party, while the soup houses of 1893, through the outgrowth of a panic caused by a Republican tariff bill, sprang up when a Democratic president was in office.

"The gentleman declared they put up the tariff on hosiery and as a consequence the price of hosiery has gone down. He declared they put up the tariff on wines and as a consequence the price of wines has gone up.

Ends Against the Middle.

He seems to be playing both ends against the middle, for it must be apparent to any sane man that, if putting up the tariff on hosiery made the price of hosiery go down, then, by the same logic, putting up the tariff on wine would have made the price of wine go down. 'Consistency, thou art a jewel!'

Mr. Clark then attacked the sugar schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law and ridiculed Republican claims of benefitting the people by lowering the tariff on refined sugar. The reduction, he said, was so small, "that every man with common sense knows that the consumer will never be benefitted by it in any way whatsoever."

"The gentleman from New York," continued Mr. Clark, "seems to argue that to lower the tariff on an article, the higher will be the price to the consumer, and vice versa. That, of course, is utterly preposterous and fully answered by asking the simple question: 'If the tariff does not put up the price of an article, what do the proponents of the tariff want with it?'

An Absurd Theory.

"To prove his absurd theory he cites the fact that, though the tariff on lumber was reduced from $2 a thousand to $1.25 a thousand, the price of lumber has gone up. It is true that before the last of us got out of Washingfton in August, 1909, the lumber trust marked up the price of lumber a dollar a thousand, and if the department of justice had done its duty it would by this time have filed the jails so full of lumber trust magnates that their arms and legs would stick out of the windows and doors.

"It seems to be a pleasant occupation to convict farmers and members of labor unions for violating the anti-trust law, but that law appears to be absolutely a dead letter when it is violated by big criminals.

"In one breath, the gentleman from New York glorifies his bill, because it shuts out importations. In the next he glorifies it because it has increased importations. The gentleman from New York must take one horn or the other."

The speaker declared that while the American citizens would prefer to use American-made goods and articles rather than foreign productions, they were willing to pay exorbitant prices to American manufacturers.

The Woolen Schedule.

Taking up the woolen schedule of the tariff law, Mr. Clark ridiculed the idea that the present tariff law was responsible for the increased importation of wool, in that, he said, the tariff on No. 1 and No. 2 wool was the same in the Payne law as in the Dingley law.

"The Dingley and Payne tariff bills," said Mr. Clark, "have forced another sort of exportation which grieves every lover of our country, and that is the exportation of good American citizens to the British Northwest.

"Last year 86,000 Americans, chiefly from the Mississippi valley, expatriated themselves, largely because they could purchase all products, including American farm implements and other articles manufactured in America, more cheaply in the British possessions than they can purchase them at home. These emigrants from the United States are among our best citizens, and this departure is a great and serious loss to the republic, for they are going at the rate of nearly 100,000 per annum."

Tariff on Stockings.

Mr. Clark next took up the matter of the tariff on stockings, and said that the raise in tariff rates on that article was not for the purpose of aiding unemployed women, as Mr. Payne had put it, but for the purpose of giving the American monufacturers a monopoly on the stocking trade.

"The gentleman from New York," declared Mr. Clark, "further says that he only raised these cheaper grades 1.8 cents per pair and that 'he would be ashamed to look an honest working woman in the face if he had not stood for that increase.' This sounds well as an excuse, but is very misleading.

"The book of imports gave the unit value for the 29,000,000,000 pairs of the cheapest hose or stockings at 96 cents per dozen pairs or 8 cents a pair. The Dingley tariff on these 29,000,000 pairs was 4.78 cents per pair, or 67.11 per cent ad valorem. The raise of 1.8 cents of the Payne-Aldrich-Smoot bill will make these same stockings cost 8 cents plus 4.78 cents, plus 1.8 cents, or 14.58 cents per pair, or 89.75 per cent.

"The gentleman from New York boasts that while raising the tariff on hosiery he also raised the tariff on whisky and wines. Oh yes! You raised whisky and other spirits from 70.69 per cent to 89.15 per cent, while you raised the cheapest stockings from 67.11 per cent to 89.75 per cent, and the next two grades of cheaper stockings to a still higher per cent."

Mr. Clark declared that the Payne tariff had not reduced the price of clothing but had increased it and resulted in a shoddier class of goods.

To President Taft.

"I will now drop the gentleman from New York," exclaimed Mr. Clark, "and go after bigger game, to-wit, the president of the United States. He is not only the chief traveler, but is the chief spokesman for his party. He deserves to be treated with candor and respect, but I have a perfect right to discuss his utterances as I would those of any other public man.

"I wish to call attention of all concerned to the fact that the president said on Aug. 5, 1919, that 'the bill is not a perfect bill or a complete compliances with the promises made,' strictly interpreted. I submit that that declaration of the president is a flat contradiction of the assertion of the gentleman from New York that the bill is a perfect compliance with the promises made prior to the election of 1908.

"In September, 1909, the president went on an extensive speech-making tour, beginning with a speech in Boston, in which he eulogized Senator Aldrich to the skies. That was the first serious wound which the president inflicted upon his own popularity, for right or wrong—and I think right—the American people held Senator Aldrich largely responsible for the enormity or the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

Quotes Winona Speech.

"On the 17th of September, 1909, the president said in Winona, Minn.:

"'On the whole, however, I am bound to say that I think the Payne tariff bill is the best tariff bill that the Republican party ever passed.'

"When the American people read that declaration the next morning and remembered the utterance which I have quoted from the president's statement of Aug. 5, they wondered what change had come over the spirit of his dream. They could not reconcile the two statements. They knew that the tariff bill had not changed since Aug. 5, 1909, and they marvelled as to how a bill, which the president declared on that day to be neither a perfect bill nor a complete compliance with the promises made, could on the 7th day of September be the best tariff bill that the Republican party ever passed.

"All the perfumes of 'Araby the Blest' cannot sweeten the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill to please the dainty nostrils of the people. They believe it to be the worst tariff bill ever passed by the American congress.

Was Serious Wound.

"That speech was the serious wound No. 2, which the president inflicted on his own popularity."

Mr. Clark then devoted himself to the steel schedule of the tariff law and President Taft's indorsement of it. He declared that what the people wanted in a revision of the tariff was a reduction of prices to a just basis, which is "precisely what they did not get."

Turning to the woolen schedule, which he said the president admitted was too high, and facing the Republican side of the house, Mr. Clark exclaimed:

"I have a fair proposition to make to the president and to my Republican friends which will promote harmony and which will bring untold blessings to the consumers in the land:

"That the president send a message to congress, short and vigorous, which shows that he means business, proposing substantial reductions in the woolen goods schedule; let Mr. Chairman Payne report that bill from his committee and put it on its passage, and, without consulting a single Democrat in the house, I will give bond for the proposition that every Democrat will line up and vote for it. If he would recommend it, it will go through the house and senate with a whoop, and the people would rise up and call him blessed.

Reasons for No Change.

"It is contended that the reasons that no change in the tariff in any manner whatsoever, however meritorious, can be offered is the fear that, if the tariff question be opened up at all, we wicked Democrats will let slip the dogs of war and open up the whole tariff question—to the disarrangement of all business in the land.

"I am so much interested in seeing the American people have cheaper woolen clothes that, without having consulted a single Democrat, I am certain that every one of them agrees that, if the president will send in a message recommending the bill which I have indicated, and Mr. Chairman Payne will report it and put it on its passage, we will not offer an amendment of any sort to it.

"The whole transaction could be consummated in less than a week, and a shout of rejoicing would ascend from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the seething waters of the sunlit gulf. It matters not that the president would receive the lion's share of the glory."

In closing, Mr. Clark commented upon Democratic unity and Republican discordance, and prophesied a victory for his party in November. He said that he never looked forward to any day with such joy as he "did to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November except to my wedding day and the days on which my children were born."

SPORTING WRITER KILLED BY AUTO

George A. McDonald of Chicago Dies As Result of An Accident.

Chicago, May 21.—George A. McDonald, a local baseball writer, died today as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident last night. Mr. McDonald was riding in the car owned by "Johnny" Evers, the second baseman of the Chicago Nationals, when it was struck by a street car.

Mr. McDonald was the only one injured. His skull was fractured and he sustained a concussion of the brain and internal injuries. An operation was performed on him last night, but from the first the physicians entertained little hope of his recovery.

Jumped to Avoid Crash.

In the car, besides Mr. McDonald and Mrs. Evers, were Joseph Evers, a brother of the ball player, and a negro mechanic. Mr. McDonald attempted to jump as he saw the collision coming. He fell under the car and was wedged in so tightly under the fender that it required the efforts of three men to extricate him. The party was returning from the West side baseball park.

Mr. McDonald was 31 years old, married and had a son 5 years old. He was graduated from Northwestern university in 1903, and was a sprinter while in college. Before coming into the newspaper work here, he had written for Milwaukee papers.

ACCUSED OF BLOWING UP RAILROAD BRIDGE.

Clinton, Ind., May 21.—Charged with having dynamited the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad bridge at Clinton, April 10, Joe Sugus and Peter Altberto were arrested late last night at Atherton, five miles south of Clinton. The men are foreigners. They deny having taken any part in the crime. Rewards amounting to $4,500 have been offered for the arrest of the dynamiters.

Bigamist Gets One Year.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 21.—(Special to the Herald.)—Samuel H. Buschmann, bigamist, pleaded guilty in municipal court yesterday, and was sentenced to one year at Waupun state prison. Buschmann was arrested in St. Louis, where he was again living with his first wife, to whom he was married Nov. 30, 1892. He was married to Bertha Liersch in Milwaukee Aug. 23, 1902, and later deserted her.

THE TEST OF TIME

Must finally measure every business enterprise. If in stability, efficiency, character and service a bank has stood this test it deserves more than usual consideration from you.

The American Exchange National Bank has long stood before the public tested by every measure of time. Its large business has been built up on the confidence of business men and individuals, many of whom have made it their banking home for five, ten and even thirty years.

VICTORY FOR INDIAN MISS

Beaver Bay Girl Who Filed on Homestead Given Title to Land.

Wins Contest Over Tract Which She Filed on Five Years Ago.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 21.—After years of litigation, Mary Beargrease, an Indian girl residing in this neighborhood, has been awarded the homestead in 57-9, in which she filed at the opening of the town in November, 1906. Miss Beargrease secured her patent at the local land office, and went away happy. The girl was against a stubborn contest soon after she had filed upon the land.

Martin, Steinmen of Minneapolis brought the contest, alleging, among other things, that the girl was a ward of the government and did not have necessary qualifications to file on the land, but lived with her father at Beaver Bay. The local officials of the land office decided that the girl was never a ward of the government, having never lived on the reservation, and that she had shown sufficient claims to the land. The local officials were sustained in their decision by the commissioner; and the case was carried to the secretary of the interior, who also sustained the decision.

Mary Beargrease is a daughter of John Beargrease of Beaver Bay, one of the best-known Indians in this section of the country. She is well-educated, energetic and progressive, and she believes she can make a success as a farmer.

MINING VICTIMS BURIED ON FRIDAY

Albert Kelly and Three Montenegrins Who Perished in Mine Interred.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bodies of the four victims of the cavein at the Leetonia mine, in the Carson lake country, Wednesday afternoon, an account of which was exclusively printed in The Herald, took place yesterday afternoon.

Albert Kelly, one of the victims, lived at the Leetonia mine location with his brother, Albert Kelly. His funeral was held here yesterday afternoon.

The other three victims, Mike Stimich, Steve Jurich and Louis Romavidch, were Montenegrins and they were buried by members of their race, with the usual church ceremonies.

HIBBING BENEFIT IS GREAT SUCCESS

Theater Is Packed at Entertainment Given for Catholic Church.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The benefit given by the Fisher Stock company for St. Joseph Catholic church last evening at the Healy theater drew a packed house which was very gratifying to both Father Joseph and Mr. Fisher. The play produced was "Tennessee," and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience.

B. O'Rourke will erect a three-story brick building on the site now occupied by James Butchard as a livery stable. Mr. Butchard is now preparing to move to the cement barn on Pine street, now occupied by Dr. Plapper, a veterinarian.

A committee has been appointed to arrange a plan for the celebration of the Fourth of July, and Chairman Blair has called a meeting for Saturday evening to be held at the Carnegie library.

Clarence Dwyer, the court stenographer, spent Friday in Hibbing.

B. J. Burrough has returned from a short business visit at Wadena, Minn.

D. D. McEachin left Friday noon for a few days on business in Duluth.

A. L. Egge returned home Friday from Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryin O'Rourke returned nome Friday evening from the Twin Cities after spending the past ten days with relatives.

Miss Ellyn Anderson arrived from Duluth Friday evening and will spend a few days visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Munson.

Miss Mabel Trennery returned home from Minneapolis Thursday evening and will visit a few days with her parents.

Mrs. D. Williams left Friday noon for Duluth for a short visit with friends.

Miss Lettie Broad arrived in this city from Negaunee, Mich., for a short visit with relatives.

INJURED IN BIG BLAST.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anton Perovitch was seriously injured by an explosion in the Maderia mine yesterday afternoon, his clothing being torn from his body, and he was so injured about the face it is feared he may lose his eyesight. Despite his injuries he was able to walk unattended to the ambulance which took him to the hospital, where it is announced he will recover.

SERVICES IN TOWN HALL.

Eveleth Presbyterians Are Temporarily Without a Church.

Eveleth, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Missabe Mountain township hall will be converted into a church to morrow and will be utilized by the mebers of the First Presbyterian church, who are without quarters at present, as their church is being remodeled. Rev. H. A. McGaughey of Duluth will fill the pulpit in the absence of Rev. Phillip A. Schwarz, Jr., who is in the East on his annual vacation trip. Mrs. J. A. McGaughey, secretary of the Christian Endeavor societies of this district will also be present and address the local lodge.

WELL-KNOWN CANDIDATE IS SOMETHING OF A NIMROD

W. J. SMITH AND HIS GAME.

Eveleth, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Besides being a hunter just now, in the political game, Mayor Walter J. Smith of this city, who is canvassing the state in the interests of his candidacy for state treasurer on the Republican ticket, is something of a nimrod and bags other kinds of game as the picture shows. This picture is from a flashlight taken of Mayor Smith and a large deer he had slaughtered during the last deer season.

GET IMPATIENT OVER THE DELAY

Residents of First Addition to Gilbert Anxious to Have Water Supply.

Gilbert, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a mass meeting of citizens, called for the purpose of making arrangements for the annual firemen's tournament to be held in Eagles' hall, Mayor Peter Cosgrove presided, and D. M. Mouser was temporary secretary. It was decided that the tournament should be held Aug. 23, 24 and 25. The following were appointed on the finance committee:

Judge C. O. Welch, P. R. Cosgrove, N. J. Colvin, D. M. Mouser, O. R. Olson and Anton Urchel.

A committee on arrangements was appointed as follows: S. B. Kellar, Harry Silver, Herman Bodas, Bruce Nimmo and John Prancel. The race tracks were fixed upon and will be laid out on Broadway, between Ohio and Wisconsin avenues. This portion of the street will be put in shape at once.

The meeting also took up the matter of water supply for the First addition. Mayor Cosgrove explained that he had nothing to do with the delay in getting water for people in the First addition, and expressed himself quite freely, and was followed by D. M. Mouser, who put in a word for the light and water commission, saying that the commission was created by unanimous action of the council of which the mayor was then a member, and that the matter of water mains for the First addition was a question that was up to the council and the people of the First addition, as the Oliver Mining company has promised the Sparta people that they would give them water facilities which they enjoyed before parting with their improvements in the former town of Sparta. He explained that the water and light commission stood ready to give the First addition water facilities if the mining company does not live up to its agreement with the people of that section of the village. Residents of this section of the village are becoming very impatient over the delay in putting in the mains by the Oliver Iron Mining company. It is understood that there is some $12,000 yet to be expended in that part of the village by the mining company. Work is progressing rapidly in the original townsite by the contractors, Pastoret & Lawrence, and it is irritating to the residents of the western part of the village that they cannot get the same conveniences established. The water and light commission, however, has this section of the city has the same water facilities and light service as is afforded by any part of the village.

Settlers Mad Over River Dams.

The St. Louis River Log & Dam company, a Weyerhaeuser concern, is having quite a little trouble with the St. Louis river settlers here on account of the company's damming the river and flooding the farming lands that have been opened up in that section. Many suits are now pending in court. The settlers have been given small verdicts by the court heretofore.

The people of the Genoa location are being supplied with facilities this week from the Genoa mine. The houses will have fire protection, as well as a fine supply of drinking water. The state board of health has analyzed the water, and pronounces it as fine as can be had in the country.

TWO EVELETH FUNERALS.

Eveleth, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of John Wure, aged 28, who died Wednesday of tuberculosis, was held yesterday morning from the Finnish Lutheran church, Rev. R. C. Kerrannon officiating, with burial following at Virginia. Wure came to this country three months ago from Finland, and is survived by a wife and three small children, who reside in the od country.

Richard, the 15-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koveriste of Gilbert, who died Wednesday, after an illness of two weeks with pneumonia, was buried yesterday morning from the Finish Lutheran Concordia church. Rev. R. C. Kerrannon officiating, with burial following at Virginia.

AURORA PLANS FOR A LIVELY FOURTH

Executive Committee of Commercial Club to See That Something Is Doing.

Aurora, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Preparations are being made here for the celebration of the Fourth of July in a maner that will be creditable to the community. At the meeting of the Commercial club Thursday night, the matter was placed in the hands of the executive committee, with full power to make all arrangements.

This committee is now actively engaged in arranging an interesting program for the occasion. It being the intention to have something doing at all times from daylight until long after dark. There will be the customary oratoon, parade, races, ball games and display of fireworks in the evening. It is the intention to have the celebration a sane one, but at the same time there will be noise enough provided to satisfy the most patriotic youngster on the range.

Aurora High School Plans.

The school board of District No. 13 has so far progressed with the preliminary, relative to the erection of the new high school building for the district that it has been deemed advisable to secure an architect to prepare plans. Architect Anthony Puck has been commissioned by the board for this purpose.

The board has decided to have plans drawn for a $150,000 building, which will consist of three units, each unit to be erected at a cost of $50,000. The first unit will be erected as soon as may consistently be done, the remaining units being added as required to meet the needs of the district.

RANGE FIREMEN TO GATHER AT GILBERT

On motion the office of assistant city clerk was created at a salary of $60 per month and Miss Bertha Dupont of Clouquet appointed to the position.

BIWABIK LIMITS SPEED.

Eight Miles an Hour Will Be the Maximum Hereafter.

Biwabik, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the last council meeting ordinances were passed regulating the use of automobiles and bicycles in the village of Biwabik.

Ordinance No. 31 provides that no horse shall be driven or vehicle run more than eight miles an hour within the village limits, and provides a fine of from $3 to $50 for each violation.

Bicycle riding on the sidewalks is prohibited, and all wheels must be provided with a bell, which must be sounded within fifty feet of any crosswalk. At night all wheels must be provided with a specified light, and the penalty for violations is placed at from $3 to to $25.

The council voted to give the usual donation for the Fourth of July, recognizing the firemen as in control.

Evelethian to Run.

Eveleth, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Marvin Van Buskrick, the fast local sprinter, will make his initial appearance of the season tomorrow afternoon at Virginia, in a 100-yard foot race with Stanley Watt of Virginia, for a side bet of $50.

FARMER RUNS AUTO.

Agriculturalist Living Near Biwabik Has Mastered Machine.

Biwabik, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Johnson, the farmer to the south of here, who was the first farmer to buy an automobile, was able this week to come to town. He went out with a good load of produce such as he deals in at Palo. Mr. Johnson was for some time unable to run the machine after its receipt from the factory, not being able to find anyone who was able to make the motor do its duty.

FRESHMEN GIRLS COOKS.

Twenty-Nine in Hibbing High Able to Cook Well.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The girls of the cooking class of the high school, under the direction of Miss Engle, the domestic science teacher, are giving a series of meals to their friends as a test of what they have learned in the art of cooking. There are about twenty girls in the class, all freshmen in the high school. Each girl has to give a dinner to whomsoever she may care to invite, but the cost of the dinner must not exceed 10 cents per plate for ten people. The series of dinners or lunches began this week. They are given at noon or at 4:30 as teas.

AUTOMOBILE CONCERN EMPLOYES ON AN OUTING.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Clark was here from Deer lake this week and stated that the cottages which have been under construction at Deer lake for the employes of a Detroit automobile firm, who will spend a part of their summers there, are about completed and ready for occupancy. Quite a number of summer people beside these people are contemplating on spending the summer at Deer Lake.

Freeman Hane went to Duluth Thursday to consult specialists regarding a stomach ailment with which he is afflicted. He was accompanied by his sister-in-law, Miss Rena Bergh.

The pupils of Miss Carmen Miller's room of the Central school were given a picnic Friday afternoon at the ball park.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. McGrath returned Tuesday from a few days' visit with friends at Duluth.

Frank Olin and Anton Liefermann have gone to Buhl, where they will be employed on steam shovels.

Miss Burlingame entertained the teachers of the city schools at her farm south of town Saturday at a picnic dinner.

Miss Lulu Strader of Columbus, Ohio, is a guest of her brother, County Treasurer Glen Strader.

LAUD BRYAN AT SPEAKERS' CLUB

John Temple Graves Is the One Who Rouses Nebraskan to Retort.

New York, May 21.—"Uncontaminated soul," "illustrious leader," "peerless philosopher" and "pure-minded advocate of the people" were a few of the descriptive terms applied to William Jennings Bryan last night by the speakers who preceded him at a dinner given in his honor by the Speakers' club. Mr. Bryan eschewed politics and confined himself to his subject of "What Constitutes a Good Speaker?"

"Oratory, in truth, is not dead," he said. "Not only has the newspaper not removed the necessity for public speaking, but it has made it imperative that there should be public speaking to expose the misrepresentations of some newspapers."

One of the compliments paid to Mr. Bryan did not please him. John Temple Graves had said, "From the tip of his eloquent tongue he has plucked three presidential nominations."

In the course of his speech Mr. Bryan replied:

"It was not fair to say that I have won three presidential nominations with my tongue, or to intimate that whatever prominence I have attained has been by speech. Whatever strength I have is not individual, but is reflexive, and has come to me because of the things I have advocated. The things I have stood for have not died, and there are a great many people who believe that I believe what I say."

COMET SEEN IN DULUTH

Was Visible Only From the Hilltop and Park Point.

Many School Children Remain at Home From Fear of Wanderer.

It was seen.

The coy, the mysterious, the shy—in brief, Halley's own, was sighted last night by several Duluthians whose word there is no reason to doubt. It appeared as a blur of light, much larger than a star, but went down so soon after the sun that few saw it. If one was stationed at the top of the hill, one saw, as did some picnickers on Park Point. It was not to be seen from the center of the city because of the hills getting in the way.

The comet did not have its tail with it.

The comet was about 15 degs. below the star Aldebaran in the constellation Taurus. Tonight it should be seen, so it is said, near Aldebaran, which is a little north of due west.

But next Monday night will be the best time to see it. There will be an eclipse of the moon at that time, which ought to bring the tail of the comet into vision and then besides the thing that has made Mr. Halley famous will only be 19,000,000 miles away.

During the last few days the city's school attendance has decreased greatly and the teachers say that a great part of it was caused by the comet.

The children, particularly, girls, it is said, after reading of the wanderer, have become greatly frightened and refused to attend school.

The effect on the pupils was different. Some could think of nothing else and were allowed to remain at home by their parents, who in some instances were as much in fear of the comet as were the children.

Some of the children after thinking of the comet became very nervous and several young girls were forced to take to their beds.

The teachers say, too, that a great many of the children have appeared nervous and ill at ease in school and that at every opportunity they asked questions about the comet.

CANADA GETS THE NORTHERN RACES

United States Immigrants Come From Southern Parts of Old World.

Washington, May 21.—Canada gets the larger proportion of her European immigrants from the northern and western parts of that continent, but most of the Europeans coming to the United States to live are from the Slavic and Iberic races of Southern and Eastern Europe and Southwestern Asia.

These facts are shown in compilations made at the bureau of immigration.

During the eight years ended March 31 last, 73 per cent of European immigrant arrivals in Canada belonged to the Teutonic and Celtic races, and 27 per cent to the Slavic and Iberic races. For the same period but 23 per cent of European immigrant arrivals in the United States were of Teutonic and Celtic nationality, while 77 per cent were of Slavic and Iberic origin.

Many Leaving States.

In 1908 and 1909 there came to the United States from Canada 6,158 agriculturalists and 31,664 laborers, while in the same period 90,726 agriculturalists and 12,688 laborers left this country for the dominion.

Last month 235 East Indians applied for admission at the port of San Francisco, of whom 167 were admitted, the remainder being barred because they had trachoma or were likely to become public charges.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD

Saves Friend of Rockefeller, But May Kill the Giver.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 21.—Though he had met only once the man for whom he risked his life, J. J. Wittenbauch, aged 47 years, submitted to an operation for transfusion of blood in Lake Side hospital, saving the life of B. T. Quilling, aged 54 years, prominent real estate operator and close friend of John D. Rockefeller.

Quilling, heading a Sunday school class in the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, had Fred Wittenbauch, now 16 as a pupil. Mrs. Wittenbach attended the church. The father was a Presbyterian and only once before Tuesday had seen Quilling.

The latter had sent young Wittenbauch through high school and given him employment, however, and when surgeons refused to take the boy's blood, fearing his youth, the father volunteered.

"It may be some slight return of what he has done for me and mine," said Wittenbauch.

Wittenbauch is in a serious condition now.

ONLY CATHOLIC PRIEST

Who Is Bank President, 'Tis Said, Is Rev. August Young.

Wabash, Ind., May 21.—So far as is known the only Catholic priest in America who is president of a bank is Rev. August Young, who has been elected president of the Garrett Banking company to succeed C. W. Camp, named national bank examiner. He has accepted the duties accompanying his office.

PAYS UNDERTAKER AND THEN COMMITS SUICIDE.

San Francisco, May 21.—In view of thousands Nicholas Lachankis yesterday leaped from the eighteenth floor of the Claus Spreckles building at Third and Market streets. His body was crushed into an almost shapeless mass on the paving stones 300 feet below. On his person was found a card bearing his name and an undertaker's receipt for $75 in payment for his funeral expenses.

SUPERSTITION SPEAKER'S THEME

Rabbi Lefkovitz Discusses Place It Occupies in Modern Life.

"Superstition" in its various phases in modern life was the subject of the discourse last evening by Rabbi Lefkovitz at the weekly services at Temple Emanuel. The place that superstition occupies in the life of people today was dwelt upon the detail, and the relative tendency of women and men to succumb to the influence of the intangible but potent factor was discussed.

"Religion and superstition are in no way connected," said the speaker, "They are materially contradictory. Superstition is based upon the belief in the existence of numerous spirits, both good and evil. Religion, contrarily, maintains the existence of only one Great Power. Moreover, religion strongly set its face against superstition and to make the allegation that superstition was allied in any way with religion was erroneous in both theory and fact.

"It is a well known fact, that woman is more religious than man. There are no more faithful supporters of the church than the women. Take away the women from any of the church services and the buildings might forever remain closed. Religion in the life of a woman is a reality, while in a man's it is but an incident. It being a reality to a woman, makes it easy for her to bury her children; religion makes it easy for her to send her grown children out into the world. All the joys and pleasure of her life are beautified and sanctified by religion.

"Gamblers are the most superstitious class of people on earth," he said, "and that contradicts the theory that superstition is allied with religion, for usually gamblers are not known as religious men.

"Superstition is the product of ignorance, and being such it is not confined to either sex.

"It is especially prevalent among the ignorant, he said, although the most intellectual of persons have been known to be more or less believers in signs. This is but the remnant of bygone ages, which has been handed down by heredity."

WILL NOT OPEN UNTIL TUESDAY

Arranging Pictures for Art Exhibit Bigger Task Than Expected.

The art exhibit arranged by the Duluth Art association will open Tuesday night instead of Monday, as had been announced.

Owing to the large number of pictures to be shown, and the amount of work required to be prepared for the exhibit, it has been impossible to be prepared by Monday. A special program is being arranged for Tuesday evening, and there is great interest throughout the city in the show. The showing of pictures, which will be held on the top floor of the new courthouse, is free to the public. The exhibit will be held for two weeks.

MOLTEN METAL BURNS SCORE OF STEEL WORKERS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 21.—A score of steel makers were burned last night at the Jones & Laughlin mills, when a fifteen-ton converter was dumped too soon. The molten metal splashed into a casting pit, where it exploded and threw the metal in every direction. Ten men are in hospitals, while as many more were sent to their homes after their burns were dressed at the company emergency hospital. All will recover.

A NEW BIRTH OF NATIONAL UNITY.

Out of chaos was born cosmos. Out of anarchy arises social order. Out of the present disintegration of confusing party lines is about to come a new birth of national homogeneity, disorder giving place to order, confusion to clear vision, government by and for the few to government by and for the many.

Party ties have rested lightly of late on the necks of American citizens, and they rest more lightly every day. In the struggle for party advantage, the people's interests were ignored. In that struggle, a few sharp-visioned and sharp-witted men of cunning greed have made confusion work to their advantage. As the dust of party battle settles to earth, the American people are discovered seeking results, rather than party supremacy, and the spectacle is the most promising thing in American history.

The revolt against bosses and political machines, though it has its most vivid manifestations in the West, is not a sectional phenomenon. It is on in the East as well as in the West, in the South as well as in the North. As Aldrich and Cannon are nothing but symbols of the system that gives them power and for which they work, so the outbreaks of nonpartisan insurgency in congress are but symbols of the new vision of a people which has cleared its eyes of party hoodwinks, and seeks results for itself. Out of that search will come a new birth of liberty, a new statement of democracy, a new realization of what is meant by government of the people, by the people and for the people.

From the Atlantic Constitution, a staunch Democratic journal published in a staunchly Democratic state, as party staunchness goes nowadays, comes this clear statement of today's conditions, and of what is to come out of the brew with the old parties cast in the melting pot:

"The sentiment that views with admiration and approval the attitudes of Dolliver, Cummins, La Follette, Beveridge, Clay and others is the same sentiment that has decreed the banishment from power of such types as Aldrich, Hale and Cannon.

"The first wing represents harmony between government and the popular will; the other wing represents government by an oligarchy of politicians, irrespective of whether or not the contingent meet the sanction of the people.

"And the overwhelming manner in which the people of the United States are inclining toward the first wing is a lasting affirmation of their determination to smash the potency of oligarchies and insist upon rule by bona fide democratic principles.

"Most significant of all is the clearly nongeographical and nonpartisan nature of the movement.

"A year ago it was an axiom with the complaisant politicians that the Middle West furnished the dead line for the 'insurgent heresy.'

"Today the beacon fires of that same 'heresy' burn brightly in the once rock-ribbed Massachusetts. In New York the same note is sounding, in principle if not in name. In Maine and Rhode Island, long dominated by the trusts through the Republican party, the spirit of insurgency is manifest. In virtually every Eastern state, with the possible exception of Pennsylvania, the yeast is working, sometimes silently, sometimes in an audible ferment.

"In the South, the sentiment that gives vitality to insurgency is equally active, but it travels under other designations. Too plain for contradiction, it is seen in the sectional demand, irrevocably handed down, for tolerance in speech and action. Ten years ago plain speech, based upon conviction that led beyond the lash of the party whip, was impossible.

"Behind the steadfast drift toward revolution everywhere is the upbuilding of a homogeneous American citizenship—a new type, fighting under non-sectional flags for democratic principles, in contradiction to rule-by-cliques, that fungus growth that has surreptitiously attached itself to the body politic."

WHY NOT BOTH?

Mr. Carnegie doesn't believe in the income tax, nor in any other remedy for social inequality except his own pet plan of an inheritance tax that will take back for society's use a great part of the rich man's accumulations made possible by society's politeness to the rich and powerful.

"The income tax," he says, "would make a nation of liars. Let men make all the money they can in their lifetime, but when they die let the state take half of it."

Maybe the income tax would make a nation of liars. But if it finds any work of that kind left to do after a century or so of the personal property tax, it will be wonderful indeed.

It is natural to expect that many men will lie about their incomes when it comes to imposing an income tax. Men who are boasting one day of their financial prowess and the fat incomes their cunning has provided for them, will be wearing their fishing suits and pulling a poor mouth the next day when they go to make their returns to the income tax collector.

But then it may be that the income tax law, when it comes, will be framed so wisely that the fixing of incomes for purposes of taxation will not be left altogether to the persons taxed. There are ways of tracing such things. For instance, if there is full publicity of corporation affairs, as there should be, it will be possible to find out all about who owns stock in corporations and what dividends they get on them. There is no particular need of leaving the fixing of incomes for purposes of taxation to the persons taxed. To be sure, other methods will be called "inquisitory," but then if society is going to see that the burden of taxation is adjusted so that each person will pay according to his ability to pay, society will have to be more or less inquisitory about it.

The income tax will make each individual pay according to his ability to pay, and that is the way taxes ought to be divided. Therefore this country needs an income tax, and some time it is going to have it.

But that is not said in any spirit of hostility to Mr. Carnegie's inheritance tax plan. There isn't the slightest reason why there shouldn't be both an income tax and an inheritance tax, and there are many very good reasons why both should be adopted.

Each man should pay, out of his receipts from the bounties and benefits of society, a share of the expenses of government proportionate to his benefits from that government. Therefore, the income tax.

As to what is to happen to an accumulated fortune when its accumulator dies, that is wholly in the hands of society. The right to bequeath it or any of it is not a natural right, but a right conferred by society through its laws. That right, though generally conferred without limit, can be restricted or withdrawn altogether. Probably it will never be withdrawn, but it will be restricted; and restriction of the right to bequeath is what Mr. Carnegie's inheritance tax comes to.

If society makes up its mind that it isn't good for itself or for the inheritor that any man should get more than, say, $100,000 without earning it, it can impose an inheritance tax taking all above that. If it decides that it ought to take 1 per cent of all bequests above $5,000, 25 per cent of all above $25,000, and 50 per cent of all above $100,000 or $1,000,000, it can do that, too. But doing that will provide no reason why a man accumulating a fortune should not pay his share of the burden of public expense during his lifetime through an income tax.

AN EFFECT OF THE COMET.

The comet is evidently a lightminded trifler, with no regard whatever for the feelings of grave and serious astronomers. It pretended it was going to swish the earth with its tail, leaving a lot of people in doubt whether they might not be brushed off the globe by it, and then either passed the earth altogether or gave it so gentle a caress that nobody knows whether it touched us or not.

But the worst of it is the effect the comet seems to have had on some minds. For instance, we have been offered a large collection of "comic" reflections which we are assured would make great hits as paragraphs. We have refused absolutely to publish any of them, but just to show what this consideration for the public means, here is a specimen of what has been missed:

The reports of the astronomers, to say the least, were non-comet-tail.

WHAT ABOUT PINCHOT?

It should not be forgotton, now that the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation is drawing to a close, that while the committee was proposed for the purpose of investigating Ballinger, at Ballinger's request its duties were enlarged to include an investigation of Pinchot as well.

It is pertinent to inquire what the committee has found out about Ballinger; but it also is pertinent to inquire what it has discovered about Pinchot. Since Pinchot is one of Ballinger's chief accusers, the finding of the committee on Pinchot is pertinent to the whole discussion.

The committee has found out some things about Ballinger. It hasn't found that he has made himself criminally liable, or that he has committed any offense against the law. But he was charged with no such offense. He was charged with being unfaithful to the policy of conserving the people's heritage of natural wealth, and that has been proved time and time again, not only by this investigation but by Ballinger's own words and acts during the investigation. He was charged with favoring the old system under which the interior department was the complacent tool of private greed, and he has taken no great pains to conceal the fact that he does favor that old system. The policy of conservation owes nothing to him; but the enemies of conservation owe it to him that Pinchot, Glavis, Shaw, Price and other real friends of conservation have been driven from the government service. Had there been less publicity Newell, director of the reclamation service, also would have been driven out of office, for Ballinger went into office with that intention.

The committee, too, has found out something about the administration. It has found that the president accepted the version of the dispute, which was handed to him ready made, that it was merely a case of jealousy between bureaus. It has found that the president, in passing upon the Glavis charge that Ballinger was seeking to let powerful private interests seize rich Alaska coal lands, based his whitewash of Ballinger upon a report by the attorney general which wasn't written until some time after the president had acted, and that his letter of exoneration was prepared in Ballinger's office by a man who has admitted that he held a personal grudge against Glavis.

But what about Pinchot?

What was charged against him? Nothing, so far as the records show, but zeal for the people that made him forget the importance of "party solidarity" and the right of the administration to be supported no matter how mistaken it chose to be.

What has been proved against Pinchot? Not a thing, since nothing was charged.

Yet Pinchot is out of office and Ballinger is in office.

Pinchot is out of office but strong in the confidence of the people.

Ballinger is in office, but lacks the confidence of the people even though the president should say that he is "the best secretary of the interio ever appointed;" which would be as true as it is that the new tariff law is "the best tariff law ever passed."

Ballinger is smirched, and Pinchot and Glavis are shown to be true friends of the people and faithful public servants. Yet Ballinger is in the cabinet, and Pinchot and Glavis have been lashed out of office by the administration, which clings to Ballinger as it clings to Aldrich, Cannon and the morganized organization of congress.

THE GROWING CROPS.

What need the Golden Northwest care how Wall street's chills and fever may be getting along?

The Northwest, from Minnesota and the Dakotas up to the broad fertile prairies of Canada, makes its living and its prosperity from the soil. Good crops at good prices mean good business and abundant prosperity, whether Wall street is shivering in affected terror or doing a dismal ghost dance of pretended alarm.

And good crops at good prices are in sight for the Northwest. Unless something happens—and every day without anything happening is that much nearer the harvest goal—the crops of the Northwest will break all records when they are garnered this fall. Early dampness gave the crops a good start, the drouth didn't last long enough to harm them, the late rains came just in time to give them the strongest kind of an impetus. Much may happen, of course, but there's no use worrying about that. The thing to think about is that right at this moment the prospects for an enormous yield of grain products never was better in the history of the Northwest.

And that means more to the prosperity of the people of the Northwest, whether they live in city or village or on the farm, than all the abstruse speculations, all the fine-spun theories of alarm, all the mock consternations and imitation panics that Wall street can produce.

DEPARTMENT "SECRETS."

The case of young Mr. Kerby, the stenographer in Ballinger's office who let out the secret that Taft's exoneration of Ballinger was prepared in that office by a faithful Ballinger retainer, opens an interesting discussion.

How far can public business be considered as the private property and official secrets of public servants?

There may be times when it is better that the public should not know what is going on in its own business. But is it such a time when a cabinet officer, charged with being unfaithful to his trust, is exonerated by a letter prepared in the office of the accused official and signed by the president? Is the fact that the president's letter of exoneration was produced in the office of the official exonerated a matter that properly should be kept secret?

If it had not been for Kerby, the country might never have known but that the president, after careful and conscientious investigation, wrote his own official report.

Yet in making it known that such was not the case, and that the president trusted so fully in his appointees that he was practically willing to turn over to them the duty of investigating themselves and reporting upon their own cases, Kerby betrayed a secret of the office in which he was a confidential employe.

When Kerby, who is high in church and Sunday school circles in Washington, went to the Sunday school of which he is superintendent on the Sunday following his exposure of these circumstances, it is related that the pastor met him at the door and shook his hand, and that the children applauded him. Discussing this incident, the Springfield Republican says: "But was his act one which Sunday schools can afford to indorse? It has been stated that he acted from conscientious motives; that he had been persuaded by a certain older and much abler man that it was his duty to tell voluntarily all he knew about the Lawler memorandum. Yet whatever the stenographer's moral justification may be in his own mind, he betrayed his employers with a wanton disregard of their rights and interests."

That is one side of the story. But who were Kerby's employers. William Howard Taft and Richard Achilles Ballinger? Or were the sovereign people of the United States of America his employers? To whom was his chief duty; to the public servants who were appointed to supervise him or to the country and its people, by whom all public officials, high or low, are appointed and for whom all public officials are presumed to work?

The Republican charges Kerby with betrayal of department secrets. He did betray department secrets, but he did it, apparently, in a conscientious effort to perform a public duty which he deemed to be higher than his duty to those appointed to serve the people over him. Was his view wrong? Is the duty of a public servant first to those appointed over him, or first to the people? Is he a citizen first and an employe second, or an employe first and a citizen second or not at all?

To be sure, the practice of exposing department secrets which it is highly important the people should know will tend to demoralization of discipline, if not to a sort of anarchy. But if it is necessary to have departmental demoralization, or even departmental anarchy, to make it unsafe for high public officials to be unfaithful to the people and to make it possible to clean the prebendiaries of Special Privilege out of office, then by all means bring on your demoralization and your anarchy. Then let the country clean house and start anew with a government responsible and responsive to the people's will and faithful to the people's interests.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

SPEEDING ON LONDON ROAD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will the speeding on London road never come to an end? Are the authorities and the ordinances so impotent that they can be disregarded at will?

Last evening car after car raced down the boulevard at rates unequalled by locomotives, raising clouds of dust worse than the worst wind storm. The dirt filled the atmosphere like a fog, settling like a pall over the residences for a block on both sides of the street.

That the dust was disagreeable is putting it mildly. It was almost unbearable. Coupled with the dust and the roaring of the big engines, life in what should be an ideal suburb in which to make one's home becomes miserable.

Accidents are to be regretted, and none of us like to either learn of them or witness them. But the nuisance has reached such an acute stage that it seems the practice will not cease until one or two people have been killed. The wonder is that fatalities have not already occurred. Twice last evening high-powered touring cars passed my home abreast, racing. Allowing for a reasonable space between them, they practically occupied the whole road. The mere thought of what might happen should a car turn a corner coming from the opposite direction sends shivers up and down the spinal column. The first two machines were crowded with young men and the second pair contained women.

Did they know that they were reckless or that they were violating the ordinances enacted to protect them against themselves? I stood on the curb trying to get a glimpse of their numbers, but they were going too fast to read the numbers. In addition to that, it was after sunset, the dusk making it doubly difficult to identify the machines.

Too often has it happened that the barn door is locked after the cattle are stolen. Let the authorities make this an exception to the rule. If necessary, they should station policemen there every day of the season. Make arrest after arrest. Provide the policemen with motor cycles, which would make it pretty hard for the speeders to escape. Give them to understand that the ordinances are not jokes, and that others besides people who own automobiles are entitled to some recognition.

LESTER.

"Today and Thirty Years Ago."

St. Louis Times: Some one has sent to the Times a poem bearing the title which heads this editorial; and with it has come a brief, unsigned letter, written with great simplicity, and with that peculiar quality by which you may know if an utterance be sincere and genuine.

Runs the letter: "From a heart-broken old man and a constant reader of your paper; won't you be kind enough to publish this and let the world know how time changes things and people?"

Indeed, we will publish the poem—its little lapses and all—because we hold that the sentiment which alone could have prompted its writing is one of the things which make nations and a people righteous.

This is the poem:

As I looked at Mary's picture
Of thirty years ago,
It had no marks or wrinkles,
Nor nothing like them, no.

Her hair was thick and wavy,
Her face was all a smile,
Her hands were long and slender,
And soft as if a child's.

It was then that I won her,
And a prize I surely had,
When I won her from all others
And many a heart made sad.

Now I look at another picture
Of a year or so ago,
In this face it has its wrinkles,
The mark of age also.

The hair is thin and gray, too;
The hands are thin and brown,
But still there is the smile there
Of thirty years ago.

It is now that I sadly miss her,
As I sit all alone and think,
How the Lord send down an angel
With a message for her to come to Him.

Now I am waiting for the angel
That God may send for me,
So I may join my Mary
And once again be happy.

We had thought to go over some of these lines with a cheap and facile skill and make them accord more with the rules of verse; but we found we had not the heart to change a word.

If you are oversensitive to rhyme and meter, just read the lines as you would any prose—and see if you are not greatly moved by the simplicity and pity of them!

After all, what is a mere poet compared to a loyal heart? And what are the fandangoes of the rhymster when compared with heartfulness, and the qualities of protection, and gallantry, and rugged love of beauty—and pity for the wreckage of years?

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Life: A little bigamy is a dangerous thing.

Catholic Standard: "Pshaw!" exclaimed Miss Yerner, impatiently. "I'm sure we'll miss the opening number. We've waited a good many minutes for that mother of mine."

"Hours, I should say," Mr. Sloman retorted, crossly.

"Ours? O, George!" she cried, and laid her blushing cheek upon his shirt front.

London Tit-Bits: "I'm going to marry your sister, Johnny, and take her far away. What do you think of that?"

"I guess I can stand it if you can."

Red Hen: "Mother, when the fire goes out, where does it go?" asked a child of her parent.

"I don't know, dear," replied the mother. You might just as well ask me where your father goes when he goes out."

Houston Post: "Can he play poker?"

"I guess so; nobody seems to want to play with him."

Buffalo Express: "John," she said after dinner.

"Yes, my dear."

"Is the drinking water at your offices flavored with cloves?"

Pittsburg Post: "It was a neat idea."

"What did she do?"

Railroads Kill an Employe Every Two Hours.

John M. Gitterman in McClure's: It is difficult to realize that in the fiscal year 1908 the railroads of the United States killed, in addition to passengers, 3,470 of their own employes. When 300 or 400 persons perish in some steamboat disaster or theater fire the world stands aghast at the calamity Yet our railroads have brought about an average of 228 deaths each month since 1903. Many a tidy little city has fewer adult male inhabitants than the 4,534 employes whom our railroads killed in 1907.

Injuries are twenty times more numerous than deaths. Whereas once in two hours, month in and month out, a conductor, brakeman, switchman or railway laborer perishes by accident; one is maimed every six minutes. Last year 6 and 4-10ths per cent of all the railway employes in the United States were injured; thus the chances are that no man can escape accident for nine years. No wonder that most life insurance companies refuse to insure a railroad man on any terms, while in any sort of company a switchman can be insured only at a rating twenty years in advance of his actual age.

Worst of all, matters are not improving. As appears from the statistics the proportion of employes killed outright remains nearly constant at about a quarter of one per cent each year. Not so the proportion of injured. The absolute number of accidents should have just about doubled with the expansion of the industry. As a matter of fact it has quadrupled.

Too Much.

Success Magazine: Late one afternoon Michael Flannigan and Dennis O'Rourke met upon the avenue. Mike was considerably under the weather.

"Moike," said O'Rourke, "why don't yez brace up, and lave the dhrink alone?"

"Oive thried, Dinnie, but the job's too big for me."

"Thry this once more, Moike. Here's a church forninst us. Go in there, old man, and confiss and take a frish start. I'll wait outside."

He waited until he was tired, then, peering into the darkened building, said in a hoarse whisper:

"Moike!"

"Phwat?"

"Have yez confissed?"

"Oi have that!"

"Where's the praste?"

"'Egorrah, Dinnie, and Oi think he's gone out to call a cop."

Comrades.

Come out! oh, little comrade of the tresses flying free;
Rejoice in air and sunlight that were made for you and me.
To tarry is a folly and to worry is a sin,
Our boat is on the river and the tide comes in.

What roads were ever fairer than the gipsy trails we love,
The mossy rock beneath us and the flying cloud above?
We mock the squirrel's chatter and the calling of the crows,
Our feet are on the mountains and the west wind blows.

The snow-encumbered forest rims a frost-enchanted mere,
The hills are sharp in shadow and the moon is bold and clear;
Your cheek is rich in roses that the touch of winter brings,
The lake is frozen midnight and the bright skate rings.

But when we're done with roving under heaven's mighty dome
A deeper joy is waiting in our bonded realm of home;
The lamplight throws a halo round a sunny little head,
It's cozy by the hearthside when the flame glows red.

—Arthur Guiterman in Woman's Home Companion.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Vocations and Avocations.

Cousin Goodfellow and I had a lively discussion at luncheon the other noon over the old question as to whether the shoemaker should stick to his last. He was in a rather sarcastic mood for him and waxed eloquent over the disposition many people have to undertake the other fellow's job to do which they are illy qualified. "There's my friend Exploiter," he went on. "He's a mighty good advertising man and has established a large and paying agency, but why should he think he has any ability as an inventor passes my comprehension. He puts lots of time and money into silly little devices that he thinks are going to have a great run, but which never come to much. Another crony of mine, a fine civil engineer imagines he has some literary talent and has actually turned out about 150 typewritten pages of something he calls a story. When I last saw him he was still calling on the publishers in the hope that some one of them would put his goods on the market."

"That's the way it goes in this world of ours. The bookkeeper gets a cobbler's kit and thinks he can save money by mending his children's shoes. The minister undertakes to do his own carpentering and pounds his thumb so badly that he has to go to the surgeon, while almost every mother's son of us in spring and early summer has a hankering for the soft and we spend our spare moments in amateur and rather ineffectual farming or horticulture. Everywhere the same spectacle, folks yearning to do things nature never intended them for, shirking their regular duties perhaps in order to test their abilities along lines on which they can never compete with men who give all their time to them and have become experts."

By this time Cousin Goodfellow was short for breath and I, who had been listening meekly had a chance to get in a rejoinder to this purport: "All that you have said is to me a gratifying token of the richness and variety of modern life. Good men are not satisfied to live in a groove. The monotony of many manual tasks compels them to seek some let-up and change; it's a good thing to have more than one string to your bow. If Charles Lamb had stuck forever to his ledger and other bookkeeping duties we should never have had the charming essays of Elia. If Hopkinson Smith had confined himself to his painting we should have missed some of the most piquant short stories in all the range of modern literature. An avocation is a mighty good thing provided it is not carried too far."

"But that's just the peril," continued my companion. "I know a fine young fellow just out of college who went last fall to the principalship of a high school. He has a good singing voice and quite a gift for acting and he has allowed himself to be drawn into most of the local concerts and dramatics to the real neglect of his school duties. He ought first of all to have made good with his school work."

On that last point I should be as insistent as anyone. It does not pay to spread ourselves too thin. Blessed is the man that puts his vocation first, but when he has conscientiously done that, blessed too, say I, is the man who has a side interest that may refresh him after the monotonous toil of the day, and help to make him a broader and, it is to be hoped, a better man. One may keep hens or collect stamps or old furniture or play at forestry or study Shakespeare, or paint old china or cultivate a class of bright boys in Sunday school, or correspond with a foreign missionary, and he may do any of these things in such a way as to enrich his own life and at the same time store up power wherewith he shall better discharge his vocation. The summer season, on which we are so soon to enter, is a good time to consider the relation of vocation to avocation and how the one may be tributary to the other.

THE PARSON.

The Joke's on Bede.

Sioux City Tribune: J. Adam Bede, the Minnesota joker, who joked himself into the confidence of the people and into congress and then joked himself out again, is in Washington on a visit with a new line of new stories and new jokes.

In an interview, Mr. Bede denounces the primary election and charges his defeat to that very practical and popular method of selecting candidates for office. He compares the voters at a primary election to the rabble before Pilot that chose Barrabas, the robber, and condemned Christ.

The trouble in Mr. Bede's case was not with the primary election, nor with the level-headed voters of Minnesota, but with Mr. Bede himself. He refused to take a serious view of politics and public affairs. He had expended so much mental energy in thinking out jokes and so much time in telling them that he had become incapacitated for serious things.

The people of Minnesota are in earnest about their public affairs and they want earnest men to represent them at Washington. When they found that Mr. Bede was not an earnest and sincere man, but only a jollier, a story teller, a handshaker and professional joker who spent his time at Washington advertising himself before the country is a wag, they turned him down at the primaries for a more serious man.

The time has gone by when men can jolly and joke and handshake themselves into office and stay in. They may get it, but they don't stay. As soon as the people get tired of their jokes and learn that the joke is a trick to get votes they turn away from the joker who does not mean anything for some man who means business.

Style at the Appletons.

Atchison Globe: It takes a long time to get a response when one rings the bell at the Lysander John Appleton home and this is the reason: The cook is taking off her kitchen apron and dress and changing them for a neat suit of black with white apron and cap; so that by the time she reaches the front door she is no longer the cook, but the maid. The Appletons are very insistent about this, No Matter Who Is Ringing The Bell.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

When Told in the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

The first shipment of copper metal this year, sent from Montana to Wales for reduction, arrived in Duluth yesterday. Every year large quantities of this low grade stamped ore are sent through this city on the long journey a third of the way around the globe. The building of smelters for the reduction of copper, silver and lead ore at Duluth has long been agitated, and a movement is now on foot to establish a smelter here.

"Cap." Flynn of the Barker has a dog whose sense of humor is highly developed. On one of the Barker's Port Arthur trips a passenger listened to the captain's telling about the dog's ability to swallow coins. The stranger was incredulous and dropped a $20 gold piece. There was a howl from the man, a howl from the dog, a gulp—and the $20 was gone. The man, minus the $20, turned pale. "Cap." fiendishly chuckled. The dog wagged his tail in delight. The stranger was to take a boat in five minutes—but he had no money. The boat whistled, and the stranger turned giddy. Then Flynn said: "I ought to let the dog keep your money, but here's $20. Catch your boat." In a minute after the happy man disappeared, the $20 piece was out of the dog's mouth and in Capt. Flynn's pocket.

The Democratic state committee has no notion toward holding a meeting, but Chairman Laurence says the last of August is early enough. The candidates now mentioned for governor are Dr. A. A. Ames of Minneapolis, Thomas Wilson of Winona, and E. W. Durant of Stillwater, with the prospects largely in favor of the last.

Franklin Paine, chief marshal appointed for the exercises of Memorial day announces that the following societies have notified him they will take part in the ceremonies: Company K of Minnesota National Guard, Polish societies, Turnverein, Hibernians, Clan Stewart, Society of St. Jean Baptiste, Duluth division of Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias. Ignatius Donnelly has accepted an invitation to deliver the memorial address, which will be given in Temple opera house.

KING EDWARD VII.

By SAVOYARD.

He was not England's greatest king, but he was England's best king, and we may say of his royal mother, that, though she was not England's greatest queen, she was England's best queen. He was not a man of genius, but he was bountifully endowed with the quality of talent and more lavishly gifted with the quality of tact than any other public man of the nineteenth century. He was as popular as the Black Prince, who was a savage, and it is likely that he would have been as heroic as the Black Prince had his lines been cast in that remote century when the cutting of throats was the only calling fitting a gentleman, and especially a gentleman who was also a prince.

There were many abler statesmen than Edward VII, but none more capable. There were greater diplomats, but none more successful than he who made the triple alliance between England, France and Russia that commanded the peace of Europe.

The next big war will come when Germany seeks to absorb Belgium and Holland. That is what that German navy is for. That was the grand thing that Napoleon the Great almost accomplished. If Germany shall succeed in the attempt, England must yield first place to her; but as long as the British navy is possessed of its present superiority, Germany dare not attempt the thing.

Edward, by his tact, his urbanity, his good-fellowship, his boundless good temper, his keen insight into human nature, his clear vision of the political situation, made it impossible for Germany to wage war during his reign. For Edward was, what no other English monarch has been for centuries, the real secretary of state for foreign affairs of all his cabinets. And of all English monarchs since Henry V, he was the best fitted for it, king or subject.

Balzac, in one of his most horrible, and at the same time fascinating, novels, says that there are two ways for a man to get along in this world—one to propel himself through it like a cannon ball, and the other to glide through it like a pestilence. Bismarck was the cannon ball, and he challenged and overcame opposition; Edward glided, and he, too, surmounted opposition. Bismarck intimidated; Edward conciliated. The German loved war; the Englishman was devoted to peace. The iron chancellor was a great man; the king of England was a good man.

And yet Edward, more than Bismarck, had in his veins that blood of that race of which it is writ: "They are capable of all crimes save cowardice; and capable of all virtues save humility." And that is the blood that has made the Anglo-Saxon race the first in war, first in letters, first in eloquence, both written and spoken, and first in this lame and imperfect condition we are pleased to call Christian civilization.

Edward was the first gentleman of the world. One of his not very remote predecessors was called the "first gentleman of Europe." Indeed, he was the first ruffian of his age. He was false to every obligation. He got idulation from the cradle to the grave. He was the chief egoist of an age when "Divine Right" was a far better recognized principle than it is now.

And George IV never had a friend, man or woman, whom he did not betray. He was guilty even of that unspeakable meanness of "welching" a bet. He made a hundred women curse the hour they ever saw him. He cheated at cards and repudiated debts. He hated his father and mother and conspired against the crown. He repudiated his wife, who was a far better queen, bad as she was, than he was a king. He was vain, weak, despicable. He would lie, and had it been necessary he would not have hesitated to steal. Such was George IV.

Yet he was the courtliest and handsomest man of his day, with a ready tongue for the instant falsehood of any occasion. And this unmitigated scoundrel was the "first gentleman of Europe!"

George visited Scotland when he was prince of Wales, and possibly at the time he was prince regent, during one of the periodic lunacies of his virtuous but lunatic old daddy. The Edinburgh of that day was the Athens of Europe, and the most intellectual crowd that any local community of all Europe of twice the population could produce banqueted the "first gentleman of Europe." Never was there a more splendid figure than he presented, and it was a ready and a happy tongue that had engaged many a better man and lured many an innocent woman. He was exceptionally brilliant that night, even for him, and all the best and noblest of Scotland were at his feet. Napoleon was conquering the continent. A bumper was drank, and this royal prince, now half seas over, drained his glass to the last drop, when Walter Scott, the real first gentleman of Europe and of the age, took the goblet, now empty, from the hands of his royal highness, and shivering it on the floor, declared in an ecstasy of loyalty that no meaner lips should ever touch it.

I congratulate the glass. It had just been touched by the meanest lips in Europe, and it was meet that it should be consigned to fragments by the then first man of Scotland.

So egotistic was George IV that he actually imagined that he was at the battle of Waterloo and led a charge decisive of the result. He even had the effrontery to tell the story in the presence of the duke of Wellington, who was a man of infinite tact, and turned the thing off with the remark that it was common history that his highness had contributed materially to the victory that saved Europe from the clutch of the Corsican.

And speaking of Waterloo and Wellington, it is related that at the critical period of the battle a young staff officer of Pigott carried a message to headquarters for the commander in chief. He saw a little old man there on horseback, surrounded by half a dozen officers, all looking on the conflict; but he was utterly unconscious that the little old fellow was the iron duke.

Looking over the scene, the young fellow exclaimed, "Now, if the damned old fool will send the guards there," pointing with his hand, "the day is ours." Wellington, the "little old man," straightened up and answered, "And that is precisely what the damned old fool is going to do, and you take the order!" And so the day was gained.

Sir Robert Walpole said of the Hanoverian dynasty: "This family has always quarreled and always will quarrel." George I positively hated George II, his son and successor, but that was possibly due to the episode of the insolent scoundrel Konigsmark and Sophia Doretha. George II hated his son Frederick, and that hatred was returned with interest, and no doubt the king was glad when the prince died before him, making way for his son, later George III, who hated his son George IV, the scamp I have been talking so much about. But William IV, the sailor king, was of better stuff, and kind to Mrs. Jordon, the actress, who was his morganatic wife. The family life of Victoria was ideal, and so was that of her son, the king just dead.

There is some rot in the papers in the way of idiotic speculation as to whether the hand of the new king, George V, is "strong enough to grasp the scepter." There is no scepter in England except that in the hand of the prime minister, who is the king's master. Has Mr. Asquith the hand strong enough to grasp the scepter? That is the issue in England, where the house of commons is the scepter. Would it were so with the house of representatives. In fact, our republic would be immortal if the president of the United States were as impotent for actual authority as is the king of England. When our republic dies it will be when some president assumes all authority.

There was a time when England was ruled by the crown. William the Conqueror was absolute. Some of the Plantagenets were absolute, and I include the House of Lancaster among them. The same is true of the Tudors; but these monarchs amused themselves cutting off the heads of the nobles. When they touched the people, as did Elizabeth, they heard a growl that even she respected and cringed to.

Charles I did not heed the people, and hence Cromwell. James II did not either, and hence William of Orange, and now the crown of England is shorn of every prerogative consistent with public order, and political power is in the hands of the people, and there it has safely lain for centuries.

THE ILLUSTRIOUS PRINCE. By E. Phillips Oppenheim, author of "The Malefactor," "The Governors," and many other thrillers. Pictures by Will Foster. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

Mr. Oppenheim is like a dealer with whom you have traded so long that you know just what quality of goods to expect from him, and from whom you can order by mail with perfect security, knowing that he will send just what is expected. Romance, intrigue and thrills comprise his stock in trade, and in this latest story he has combined them, perhaps, to more effective advantage than in any previous novel.

Hamilton Fynes, equipped with letters which gave him every facility for travel he demanded, came from the United States to Liverpool, got off the vessel hours before anybody else could, got a special train to London, and landed there dead, murdered by a knife wound. Another interesting young man was handed duplicates of the papers Fynes had carried, and which had been stolen from him, and set out in a cab for the American embassy. Before he got there he was murdered, choked to death with a bowstring, and his papers stolen. From this beginning the story waxes more mysteriously interesting, page by page, and the interest is skillfully sustained to the close. It is a story of the secret and world-startling methods used by the emperor of Japan through his cousin, Prince Maiyo, to find out the real reasons for the cruise of the American fleet around the world. The American ambassador in London and the Duke of Devenham, an influential Englishman, work hand in hand to circumvent the Oriental plot, while Inspector Jacks of Scotland Yard works slowly but surely toward the solution of the two murders that startle the reader at the beginning of the story. There are several very likely characters which are well done, and the story is a skillfully wrought mystery tale, with a bold treatment of the relations between Japan and the United States that gives it startling interest.

SWEDISH FOLK DANCES. By Nils W Bergquist. New York: The A. S. Barnes company. $1.50.

Many of the sessions of the fourth annual congress of the American Playground association are to open next month with a folk dance by children trained in the graceful art at the public schools or at the public playgrounds and this tendency shows the value that educators are placing on the pretty dances of the country people of Europe. Of special interest to a large number of the citizens of the Northwest will be this book of Swedish Folk Dances published with the native music and with careful instructions for the dancers. Many of the fathers and mothers who have not been delighted with a dance on the green since they left their native land many years ago, could with this music and instruction teach their children the dances typical of their mother country.

Swedish folk dances that would have a particular appeal to so many of the young inhabitants of Duluth might well be a part of the playground movement in the city. The author of the "Swedish Folk Dances" has presented the music of more than twenty dances and the detailed instructions, from simple steps to the more intricate and involved dances that are indulged in by the men and women.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN HANDBOOK OF TRAVEL. With notes for European traveler and a complete guide to London and Paris. Compiled and edited by Albert A. Hopkins. New York: Munn & Co. $2 net.

We don't recall having seen a completer handbook of travel, packed into closer compass, than is this volume of 490 pages with many illustrations. It is the result of twenty years' work by its compiler, and it is hard to imagine any needful information that has been omitted from it. It tells what to carry on your trip, where to go, when to go there and how to get there, what to do for seasickness, how much to tip the stewards, how much a trip should cost, how to go about arranging it, how to get your sea legs, how many germs there are at sea, which diseases a sea voyage is good for, how to send a cable message, why it is better to rent steamer rugs than to buy one, the difference between first and second-class passage, how to route an automobile trip; in short, a vast amount of information, not only that which is absolutely necessary but much that natural curiosity will call for, and all duly indexed for purposes of reference It would seem to be an indispensable preliminary to a European tour.

AN AMERICAN BABY ABROAD. How he played Cupid to a Kentucky baby By Mrs. Charles N. Crewdson. Pictures by R. F. Outcalt and Modest Stein. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

An American baby, born in London, is left behind there, while its mother hurries off to Egypt, where its father is ill of a fever. The baby, in company with its colored nurse and a Kentucy beauty, who is a friend of its mother, follows more leisurely. The trio has an eventful trip, stopping at Oberammagau to see the Passion Play and in Rome to witness a special mass conducted by Pope Leo, and so on to Cairo, where much more exciting events befall. Mary Marshall, the Kentucky belle, is beset by admirers along the way, and a romance, in which the baby takes a part, develops. Roxie, the colored nurse, is an amusing character. The story moves briskly, and is lightened by light and vivacious dialogue, lively incident and diverting situations. A pleasant book for summer reading.

WAYWARD ANNE. By Curtis Yorke, author of "Mollie Deverill," "The Other Sara," etc. Boston: Dana Estes & Co. $1.50.

Anne Stafford, an ambitious writer, and Brian Carroll, a successful one, occupy flats across the hall from each other, and they strike up a chance acquaintance through the medium of Carroll's dog. It develops into friendship, then into romance. This man is under a cloud, but the girl believes in him. That is about all there is to this simple plot; but surrounding it are a series of events leading up to a pretty climax, and accompanied by pleasantly humorous descriptions of people and happenings. It is light, lively and interesting; suitable for summer's reading, when deeper, subtler and more complex fiction is left behind with the cares of everyday life

OBIL, KEEPER OF CAMELS. Being the parable of the man whom the disciples saw casting out devils. By Lucia Chase Bell. San Francisco: Paul Elder & Co. 50 cents net.

This is the story of the man whom John reported to the Master in Luke ix, 49-50, as "casting out devils in Thy name," and of whom Jesus said" Forbid him not; for he that is not against us is with us." The story is told with simple power and beauty, and it is richly printed, with rubricated passages, on hand-made paper with flexible Arconna binding.

THE CITY LOVED AROUND THE WORLD. A toast to San Francisco. By James Henry MacLafferty. San Francisco: Paul Elder & Co. 10 cents net.

Included in this slight pamphlet is a toast which has delighted lovers of the city by the Golden Gate, together with a lively story of how it happened to be written, and of how the author, seized with it in a bank, dashed to a window and grasped a piece of paper to write it down, discovering that he had taken a draft which two strangers were having cashed.

Of Books and Writers.

Mollie Elliot Seawell, whose new novel, "The Marriage of Theodore," (Dodd, Mead & Co.) appeared last month, has a unique record among writers as a prize winner. She has entered three big competitions, and in each one has won a prize. The remarkable part of it is that in every case she was the only woman who won anything, although thousands of women competed. The first was in a contest instituted by the Youth's Companion in 1890 for the best juvenile short story. This was the beginning of Miss Seawell's literary career. She offered her story, "Little Jarvis," which was awarded the first prize in merit, although as it was based on an historic incident, she was given the second prize in money, $500. In this competition there were over 2,000 competitors. All of the other prize winners were men. Again, in 1895, when she was beginning to be known in literature, she entered into a competition for a prize of $3,000 offered by the New York Herald. In this competition there were over 1,000 contestants. Again, Miss Seawell won the first prize with her story, "The Sprightly Romance of Marsac." The other winners were all men. In the autumn of 1908, in response to an invitation extended by the New York Herald to forty selected writers to compete for a prize, Miss Seawell entered and won a prize of $1,000 with a short story, "John Mainwaring, Financier." Three other prizes were won by well-known short-story writers. Once more, Miss Seawell was the only woman to receive recognition.

Winston Churchill is at present in London, having returned from his travels in Egypt. He reports that he greatly enjoyed Egypt, but that he does not intend to write anything about it as the result of his visit, certainly not a novel. Mr. Churchill's presence in London at the publishing time of "A Modern Chronicle," has given it an added interest to English readers. A testimony of the cordiality with which the English novelists regard American was revealed at a dinner of the Tilmarch club the other evening. Mr. Churchill was present as the guest of his English publisher, Sir Frederick Macmillan, who is a keen Thackeray lover. Prof. Saintsbury, perhaps the most noted authority on Thackeray now living, was in the chair, with Mr. "Anthony Hope" near by. "We have with us tonight," said Mr. Hope, "the leader of that young group of American novelists who are showing America the wonder and drama of her own history, and showing these to us also."

When the editor of The Bookman was asked the other day to name the leading American novelists, he replied that there were only two.—William D. Howells and Jack London. This coupling of the younger man's name with that of the author who has often been called the Dean of American Letters should be particularly gratifying to Mr. London.

In view of the recent publication of Alexander Irvine's book, "From the Bottom Up," by Doubleday, Page & Co., James Creelman's pen picture of him is of interest:

"It is only a short time since I saw Alexander Irvine—a former clergyman—in the pulpit of the Church of Ascension, clad in a black college gown, his lean, shaven face and dark eyes shining with enthusiasm, as with a surpliced choir in the chancel behind him, he preached a sermon and then invited his hearers to go at once into the parish house and take part in a socialist debate. Mr. Irvine is an extraordinary character. He is tall, thin, has a face that reminds one of Thomas Jefferson, and is a proletarian of great power. He looked very stalwart, earnest and impressive as he towered up to the pulpit under La Farge's famous and mural painting of the Ascension. He had the gravity and dignity of a monk, the pleading eloquence and imagination of a poet, with just a touch of the thunderous street orator. It was all very beautiful, very elevating and full of sweet humility, that sermon of his."

"How Taft Views His Own Administration—An Interview With the President," by George Kibbe Turner, is only one of a number of features of unusual importance in the June number of McClure's Magaine. Senator Platt begins his autobiography by telling the inside story of the two nominations of Roosevelt; Asher C. Hinds, parliamentary clerk of the house, explains the tremendous power of the speaker and when and why it was given him; John M. Gitterman writes about "The Cruelty of Our Courts;" M. Paoli gives his reminiscenses of the king and queen of Italy; and Theodoro Schiemann, professor of history in the University of Berlin and a friend of the kaiser, has a paper on the strained relations between Germany and England. The fiction includes "The Blue Sequin," another of the John Thorndyke detective stories; "Neighbors," by Octavia Roberts; "A Text-Book Soldier," by Donal Hamilton Haines; "The Griswold Divorce Case," by Frederic Taber Cooper, and "Justice While You Wait," by Owen Oliver.

The boys and girls who read the June St. Nicholas should have special pleasure in watching for Halley's comet and enjoying this unusual sight, for the number is rich in comet lore, put in a simple, entertaining way. Clement B. Davis in "Nature and Science" tells a good deal about comets in general—how many grown-ups know that "comets are believed to be tiny bits of the raw material from which the planets were made, and to have wandered through space since the beginning of the solar system." And A. Russell Bond tells the story of "Halley's Comet" with reproductions of a number of photographs taken by Prof. Barnard. Excellent and entertaining always are the St. Nicholas departments; and, seemingly, of constantly increasing interest. Of unfailing charm for grown-ups as well as youthful readers is proving St. Nicholas' latest departure, Miss Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Books and Reading," always rich in suggestion and inspiration. This month she writes delightfully of "The Story Without an End," "Undine," and "Peter Schlemihl," books "full of tenderness and charm."

The lions encountered by Theodore Roosevelt "failed to do their duty." But their failures were not due to disinclination for the job, as one may learn from a story told in the May 19th issue of The Youth's Companion by J. Alden Loring, who was field naturalist and photographer with the Roosevelt safari. His tale records a fight with five lions, which did their duty as far as they were able, and earned more glorious rewards than fell to them. This May 19th issue of The Companion might as well be called an African number, for it also contains a vivid account by Sir Harry Johnston of "Caravan Life in Africa" twenty years ago. It is a fascinating picture which this veteran traveller and administrator draws, and one almost regrets that civilization is so rapidly changing the last foothold of savagery into a region of white men's government and customs.

Hampton's Magazine for June is a tremendously interesting bundle of big things. The first installment of Edmond Rostand's great drama, "Chantecler," is the opening feature, and a few pages removed from it is the continuation of Commander Peary's own story of "The Discovery of the North Pole." In the magazine field there have been only two big "stories" this year—Peary's and "Chantecler"—and Hampton's got both of them. There is Hampton's article by Dr. Thomas E. Green, the noted missionary, on "Revivals and Revivalists," in which he describes such men as Billy Sunday and "Gypsy" Smith "in action." Widespread comment among clergymen and laymen is sure to follow a reading of this story, showing the real "inside" of the revival business and the results revivalists obtain. Rheta Childe Dorr begins the first of a series of articles on "Making Over the Backward Child." Within the limits of the first article are presented all of the successful methods employed in the public schools of New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and elsewhere for bringing the defective child up to the standard of its more fortunate companions. Charles Edward Russell continues his sensational exposure of the Southern Pacific railroad's political control of California and adjoining states. Then there are a capital aviation story by Frederick Palmer with Danbury Rodd as the central figure, a humorous story on the "Gyroscope Hats" by Ellis Parker Butler, and a corking racetrack story, "Once to Every Man," by Charles Belmont Davis.

It is full of action, and moves rapidly on to a thrilling climax. Charles Battell Loomis contributes a little sermon, "On Americanism," in which he cautions in his pleasant way the average traveler. In "A Sacrifice to Diana," Elizabeth Newport Hepburn tells the story of a self-sacrificing older sister, who gives up her life, her social aspirations, and, finally, her lover to a younger, and what happens then. "Morality," by Marion Hill, is an amusing account of a coastwise voyage of two young girls, who, in the course of the trip, fall in with a strange fellow passenger. Anne O'Hagan continues her reminiscences of Katie, a Servant Girl." In this installment, Katie tells the amusing experiment in "community livin'" attempted by a fashionable suburb.

An automobile which breaks down at midnight thirty miles from nowhere with an inconsequent lady and an innocent, but undeniably masculine friend aboard; a jealous husband—then the fun is on in "Mrs. Skeffington," opening novelette of Young's Magazine for June. Funnier and funnier grow the situations, wilder and wilder become the complications until it seems absolutely impossible that any one could escape from the awful tangle in which the lady's harmless fabrications in the interest of domestic peace. It all comes out all right in the end, though—but in a manner too diverting to be spoiled by retelling. Another highly amusing story is "Mr. Maitland's Overcoat," by Ruth and Reginald Kauffmann, one of a merry series, under the general title of "Mr. Desmond's Divorces," dealing with the experiences of a famous divorce lawyer.

Building for posterity, taking thought not so much for our own tomorrow as for the era of the succeeding generation, this is the touchstone that has proved the greatest usefulness and the exalted purpose that has lifted mankind up even as it has led him on. This is the trend of civilization, with notable examples of unusual generosity occurring not infrequently. The patience of our inventors, the devotion and zeal of scientists and medical men, the untiring activity of progressive governments, all exemplify the same truth. In the June number of Popular Mechanics Magazine the plans and details for constructing M. Santos-Dumont's successful monoplane, the "Demoiselle," are given to the world. Santos-Dumont is one of the pioneers in aerial experimentation, and successful aviators everywhere acknowledge their indebtedness to him. In the interests of the development of aeronautics, he decided to give amateurs and experts alike the benefit of his work. Another feature of the June number is a description by Francis Buzzell of the world's largest gymnasium at Northwestern university. The indoor field in this building provides sufficient space for a baseball diamond, and left and center fields.

The 192 pages of fiction that compose Gunter's Magazine for June show even more than the usual variety in plots and settings. Stories of adventure in all parts of the world are mingled with tales full of human interest, touching the humorous, the pathetic, the ironic happenings in life. It contains the conclusion of "The Green Beetle," by Frederick M. Smith, a lively South American story, which is to be succeeded by a tale of the Great Northwest; "The House of the Red Death," by James Oliver Curwood. The short story, "Old Dogs and New Tricks," appearing in this issue, is also by this well known author.

The June issue of 10 Story Book just out contains a number of unusually interesting and clever stories beside Editorial Thinklets, the short story masterpiece, this month "False Alarm" by Guy de Maupassant, the old Favorite poem "Famine Song" by Laurence Hope, and the Reading and Rot department by John Stapleton Cowley-Brown. "A Masterpiece painted With a Broom" by W. Stockard leads the magazine and has to do with artists and artists models and their consequent entanglements. Nellie Cravey Gilmore whose stories are always piquant and catchy, contributes a regular 10 Story Book story entitled "Baby Doll and Her Judge."

• • •

The June number of the Popular magazine contains a long novel by B. M. Bower; a dramatic story, called "The Marksman," by Edwin Bliss, describing the exploits of a moving picture man; the first installment of the newest Arsene Lupin novel, bristling with adventure; two baseball stories by Charles E. Van Loan and Zane Grey; "Going Some" the funniest story Rex Beach has written; "The Lake of Pearl," a story of the Kipling type by Ross Beeckman; an intimate study of politics by Max Marcin.

The June Ainslee's contains an unusual number of breezy up-to-date stories. Besides the two serials, "A Splendid Hazard," by Harold MacGrath, and "The Eagle's Feather," by Emily Post, which are finished in this number, there are twelve short stories by popular authors, all sparkling with interest and action and warranted to hold the attention of the most exacting readers. A complete novel by Leonard Merrick is the leading feature. It is called "The Whole Question," and under that mysterious title dissects openly the character of the snake woman, whom many of us know to our sorrow. The snake woman here is something of a vampire as well, and after she has nearly taken the life out of one man in taking his hope, tries to snatch the heart interest out of life for a woman by "carrying tales" about the man. She is hardly successful, as she deserves not to be.

In the issue of Harper's Weekly for May 14, the character and achievements of Edward VII., and the capacity of his son, George V., for government, are discussed in an authoritive manner. Two rival astronomers argue upon the danger to be apprehended from Halley's comet. Prof. McAdam takes the view that some peril exists and Prof. Jacoby opposes him. Writing under the title "In the Ring for a Million," Edward B. Moss tells of the enormous sums involved in the approaching fight for the world's championship. Thaddeus S. Dayton describes the plan for setting up markers along the old Oregon trail and the other pioneer roads of empire. This issue contains an amusing story by George Weston, Lawrence Gilman's weekly musical review, and the usual dramatic, editorial, and humor features.

In People's Ideal Fiction Magazine for June, two stirring complete novels are "The Gray Mole's Game," by J. Aubrey Tyson, and "They Took Him In," by Jules Verne Des Volgnes. The first is an admirable mystery story, concerning a man with a dead past; the second is straight humor—the troubles of an Italian tenor who happened to get stranded in New York. Both mighty good reading. Mary Asquith has written a fascinating detective story in "The Third Floor Front." Incidentally, she has achieved the apparently impossible; for the criminal escapes from a room which has only one locked window while the key is turned in the door from the outside.

WHAT HIGH PRICES COST THE POOR

Mothers Must Go to Work, Children Leave School Earlier Than Before, Food Be Cut Down—Such Prices a Menace to the American Standard of Living.

By MARY BROWN SUMNER.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

Overwork for underpay is not the only form of human exploitation and Gifford Pinchot has justly called the increased cost of living one of the problems of human conservation. A German mother of six children, an unusually careful New York housewife, was good enough to go over her accounts for last winter and this with the writer. Her weekly expenditures last winter were as follows:

|---|---|
| Food | $ 7.35 |
| Fuel | 1.00 |
| Rent | 3.00 |
| Insurance | .65 |
| Clothing | 2.00 |
| Sundries | 1.50 |
| Total | $15.50 |

Her available weekly income is fixed at this amount, and she has used every means possible to a skilful marketer who is on confidential terms with her tradesmen, to avoid drawing on her reserve fund for the slack summer months. Nevertheless, the increase in thirteen necessary commodities that her accounts show has raised her food expenditure, at the usual standard, by 90 cents a week, or 13 per cent above last year's schedule. Part of this comes out of the summer fund, as much as can be spared out of clothing and sundries—the latter covering carfares, health and recreation expenses—and the balance, about one-third, is made up by stinting. She has increased her consumption of potatoes—is our standard of living approaching that of Ireland?—has cut out pork entirely, has decreased her consumption of beef one-sixth, of butter one-fourth, and now mixes one quart of skimmed milk with one of bottled.

This is but one of many examples of how individual families have felt the pressure of high prices in New York this winter. Averages made from fifty sources of information scattered throughout the lower parts of the city show the following increase in the thirteen food commodities referred to above, placed for comparison beside the increases shown by the tables of Winnifred Gibb, the visiting housekeeper of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, which are based on a wide canvass of retail shops in all parts of the city and have been used in the federal investigation of cost of living.

| | Cents Increase. | W. Gibb's Tables. |
|---|---|---|
| Lamb (lb.) | .02½ | .... |
| Mutton (lb.) | .04 | .04 |
| Beef (lb.) | .03 | .04 to .05 |
| Pork (lb.) | .04½ | .05 |
| Lard (lb.) | .03½ | .03 |
| Chicken (lb.) | .05 | .... |
| Fish lb.) | .02 | .02 |
| Butter (lb.) | .04 | .06 |
| Cheese (lb.) | .03 | .02 |
| Eggs (doz.) | .06 | .06 |
| Milk (qt. or can condensed) | .01 | .01 |
| Flour (3½ lbs.) | .01 | .... |
| Sugar (3½ lbs.) | .00½ | .... |
| Totals | .40 | .34 |

Though Miss Gibb's tables do not cover all the commodities they show a total increase almost as large. What forty cents in one unit of each of these commodities means practically in a household can be judged from the following tables of weekly amounts used by a family of five:

| | Weekly Amount. | Increased Cost. |
|---|---|---|
| Lamb | 4½ lbs. | $0.11¼ |
| Mutton | 2 lbs. | .08 |
| Beef | 9 lbs. | .27 |
| Pork | 2½ lbs. | .27 |
| Lard | 1 lb. | .03½ |
| Chicken | 4 lbs. | .20 |
| Fish | 2½ lbs. | .05 |
| Butter | 2½ lbs. | .10 |
| Cheese | ½ lb. | .01½ |
| Eggs | 2 doz. | .12 |
| Milk | 14 qts. | .14 |
| Flour | 1 (3½ lbs.) | .01 |
| Sugar | 1 (3½ lbs.) | .00½ |
| Total | | $1.25 |

When to this $1.25 is added what is recognized as a large factor in high prices by the New York state superintendent of weights and measures, that is, the shrinkage of loaves and of food bought in packages, the average increase of 15 per cent in food cost this winter, made from the estimates of fifteen heads of households, is probably not an overst

BEST PRODUCTS OF AMERICAN ART WILL BE SHOWN DULUTHIANS NEXT WEEK

A LANDSCAPE BY J. E. BUNDY.

Some rarely beautiful pictures, the product of American art, will be on exhibit to the Duluth public during the next two weeks while the exhibit of the Duluth Art association is being held in the auditorium on the top floor of the new courthouse building. More than a hundred paintings owned by Duluthians will be exhibited and many from out of the city will be hung for the study and admiration of the people visiting the exhibit.

A landscape by J. E. Bundy, an Indiana artist, which will be on exhibition will attract much attention. A photographic reproduction of this work is shown. Mr Bundy is a landscape painter of note and his work is always among the much admired paintings in many exhibits.

"Cattle on the Beach," by William H. Howe, is owned by a Duluthian and will be at the exhibit. In this picture the connoisseur will be able to find as fine draftsmanship as has ever been employed in the painting of cattle, and all the work, at the same time, has been beautifully kept together in color, in such a manner as to make a lovely picture without losing any of the suggestion of the out-of-door feeling that must characterize landscapes with cattle. Howe's work will show none of that finicky, slavish attention to detail which so many painters employ to show every hair on the cattle and every thread of wool on a sheep, even though the animal is one-half mile distant. But as animals are in the landscape, and part of it, those who live with his work long enough to know it come to realize that he has not sought to astonish them with the cleverness of his brush work but that he has felt the beauty of the place he has painted and that he has understood well the animals that he painted outdoors and never had time to stop to play tricks to attract the attention of those who know but little about art. The same sterling honesty prevails in his work that has characterized his life always.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

College of Forestry Is Created By the Board of Regents.

President Northrop to Deliver Commencement Address This Year.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A college of forestry was created by the board of regents at their May meeting. It was separated from the agricultural college under which it has formerly been run. The meeting also approved the fraternity council and ordered it to proceed with its rulings. The regents are prepared to help them and compel all the fraternities to fall into line. Several changes were made in the faculty list. Daniel Ford, Milton Percival and H. A. Bellows were added to the department of rhetoric. Dr. Swift was granted a leave of absence on half pay. Miss Ruth Phelps was made assistant professor in Spanish, Italian, and French. Dr. David Kiehle, former professor and regent of the university, was made professor emeritus. The report of the medical committee was approved.

President Northrop will deliver the commencement address to the senior class this year. It is the first time for several years that the President has given the address at the commencement exercises and the senior class feel that this will be the big feature of the week. The exercises will be held in the university armory, on Thursday of commencement week. The senior Cap and Gown parade will form at the library, march across the campus, through the gateway and up University avenue to the armory. Tuesday, June 1, is senior class day. The morning will be given over to the exercises on the campus, and in the afternoon the remainder of the class day exercises will be held in the chapel. The class picnic this year will take the form of an excursion down the Mississippi river. This is somewhat of a departure from the former custom of holding the picnic at Minnetonka. Cap and Gown will give their farewell spread Monday, June 6, at 5 p. m., after which they will attend the reception to the class at the home of President and Mrs. Northrop.

Members of the Scandinavian society gave the play "Brolloppet pa Ulfasa," by Frans Hedberg, in chapel, Friday, May 20. The play deals with some great historic Swedish characters of the thirteenth century and is one of the most popular in the Swedish language. With Gertrude Swanson and Henry Johnson in the leading parts and an able cast of minor characters,, the play was a great success.

During commencement week the class of 1885 will hold a reunion. This will be especially notable as the class is the first one which was graduated from the university under President Northrop. There are fifteen surviving members.

Among the famous clubs in the west end of London, the recently organized American Universities club is situated. Arrangements which have been made with the new Oxford-Cambridge club, now two doors away, are designed to bring the American and English university men into close alliance. The American Universities club is the first American club in London. Heretofore, the American travelers have had to be content with passing their time in the business houses of the city. Mr. George C. Knowles, Yale '92, chairman of the committee, says that he has received hundreds of applications from all over the continent since last December, when the project was started. He is surprised to find that there are so many college men resident permanently in England and France. The club fills the desires of these men as well as of traveling college men of finding social comforts in the metropolis.

The Albert Howard scholarship has been awarded to Camelia Waite, '09. Miss Waite has assisted in the history department during the last year, and will take up her post-graduate work next year. The scholarship was established about fifteen years ago, when, by the will of Albert Howard of Vermont, a sum of over $4,000 was left to each of four universities. Here the interest on this money, amounting to about $240, comprises the present scholarship, which is awarded for excellence in any line of work. The prize is awarded by the faculty upon the recommendation of a special committee. Dr. Wilde is the present chairman. Mr. Davis held the scholarship the past year and pursued work in astronomy.

SENATE TALKS ABOUT WARSHIPS

Hale Says the Nation Faces Deficit This Year, as It Is.

Washington, May 21.—Whether there shall be authorized by the present congress two or only one great battleship of the dreadnought type was the subject of a long discussion in the senate yesterday, while the naval appropriation bill was under consideration. The principal speakers were Senators Clay, Hale, Gallinger and Burton.

It was brought out during the debate that the revenues of the present fiscal year probably would not equal the expenditures, and that there would be an increased deficit. This statement was made by Mr. Hale, and he used it as an argument in favor of reduced armament. Former President Roosevelt was quoted as now being in favor of a diminution of armament.

Lively Time in House.

The tariff, ship subsidy, a lively disputation between Messrs. Ames of Massachusetts and Payne of New York, both Republicans, over Canadian tariff relations, and an arraignment of some of his Republican colleagues by Mr. Fish of New York occupied the session of the house.

Messrs. McKinley of California and Diekema of Michigan, Republicans, advocated the proposed $250,000 appropriation for enlarging the scope of the tariff board's ascertainment of tariff information. Mr. Havens of New York, Democrat, also favored this appropriation and indicated he would not be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Thomas of Kentucky made a humorous attack on Republicanism and the tariff. Mr. Humphrey of Washington pleaded for support from both parties in behalf of the ship subsidy bill.

Payne Defends Himself.

Mr. Ames attacked Mr. Payne for refusing courteous consideration of his efforts for adjusting the tariff between the United States and Canada. Mr. Payne replied that he merely adhered to his conviction that the tariff question should not be reopened at the present session.

The Natural Life.

Life is an investment. You get out of it what you put into it in increased measure. The investment does not have to be in dollars, but is made daily in efforts, in sacrifices, in love. ## BIG CASUALTY LIST AMONG ENGINEMEN.

Chicago, May 21.—Death required a larger toll of victims from railroad firemen and engineers than from any other single craft, according to casualty statistics introduced in the arbitration hearing between enginemen and Western railroads.

Seventy-four per cent of the men who shovel coal into the fireboxes of locomotives die either of accidents connected with their occupation or from disease contracted from exposure or overwork.

These figures were introduced by Albert H. Hawley of Peoria, Ill., secretary of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen. His statistics were gathered during the years 1904-1909 inclusive. Deaths and their causes were listed by Mr. Hawley as follows: Boiler explosions, 91; collisions, 418; derailment of engines, 350; falling off engines, 91; run over by engines, 64; struck by cars, 34; other similar causes, 396.

The figures quoted apply only to union members.

BATONYI IS HEIR

To $3,000,000; Also Has Married Countess Hinsky, Says Rumor.

New York, May 21.—In the wake of the recent arrival of Aurel Batonyi from Europe come two stories that are bound to excite the particular society set in Newport and New York in which the handsome whip has moved.

One reports that Batonyi, divorced husband of Mrs. Burke-Roche, was married secretly to Countess Palmai Ilka Kinsky in Paris Easter week last.

Report No. 2 is that Batonyi's father recently died in Hungary, leaving an estate of $3,000,000, which is to become his after the death of his mother if he gives up the countess and relinquishes claims to American wives.

Batonyi refuses to discuss the reports.

New York knows that latest alleged wife of the popular society whip as the Countess Kinsky, who appeared in New York in comic opera in 1905. She made no attempt for social recognition, and is even said to have snubbed certain well known New York women who thought to trade on her title and interesting personality.

TRADE SEEMS IN WAITING STAGE

New York, May 21.—Bradstreet's today says:

"Trade reports, except in the Northwest and on the North Pacific coast, are of little gain in activity, and, indeed, in some lines, such as textile manufacturing, further curtailment is still the subject of discussion. It is probably true, however, that the evidences of crop and weather improvement came too late in the week to be adequately reflected in the present week's reports. At the larger industrial centers, particularly of the East, improvement is not as yet manifest, whereas the quieter tone of many lines, or the evidences of further curtailment of operations, point to other causes than backward weather having been operative in holding back demand.

"Some lines of industry, it is true, still active, prominent in these being the building trades, with the hardware and other kindred lines. There is still evidence, however, that anticipations as to spring trade were keyed too high; for retail merchants have not disposed of spring stocks to the extent hoped for; that filling-in orders have been smaller than expected, and that the commodity price situation generally is and has been a bar to fullest activity in distributive trade.

"Collections are little, if any, better than fair."

Summed up, the trade as well as speculation seems to be in a waiting stage. Pending a clearer view of the ultimate crop situation, the disposition is to postpone future commitments.

Sentiment as regards iron and steel trade conditions has improved. This refers more particularly to finished lines, which feel the impulse of better buying of railway cars and motive power as well as the further heavy contracts for steel bars from Western agricultural implement makers.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with May 19 were 225 against 216 last week, 219 in the like week of 1909, 284 in 1908, 165 in 1907 and 170 in 1906.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 19, which compares with 24 for last week and 25 in the corresponding week of last year.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending May 19 aggregate 2,918,065 bushels against 2,823,558 last week and 2,238,894 this week last year. For the forty-six weeks ending May 19 exports are 129,937,240 bushels, against 155,602,003 in the corresponding period last year. Corn exports for the week are 562,609 bushels, against 312,566 last week and 114,696 in 1909. For the forty-six weeks ending May 19, corn exports are 26,673,679 bushels, against 28,830,926 last year.

GREAT MEN AND BEER BREWING

WHENEVER this great nation needed the assistance and personal services of strong, patriotic men to further the cause of liberty and humanity or to repulse invasions and oppressions, the brewers and their friends were among the first to respond.

History tells us that many of the best men of their time were connected with the business, such as Wm. Penn, who caused the erection of the first brewery in Pennsylvania, or Samuel Adams, the acknowledged father of the Revolution, who managed his father's brewery at Boston, or Patrick Henry, the jovial host of Williamsburg, Va., who made the famous speech: "Give me liberty or give me death." And the immortal Lincoln, when accused by his rival, the great Douglas, in one of their famous debates, of being engaged in the traffic, turned the tables by saying: "The difference between Douglas and me was that I was doing the selling and he was doing the drinking."

Surely the brewers and their friends have always been foremost in promoting public welfare, and according to Andrew D. White, the great statesman, they have done more for real temperance than their fanatic opponents can ever do.

Courses Will Be Broader, With More Elective Subjects.

The committee on schools of the board of school directors met last evening in Supt. Denfeld's office and decided on changes in several of the high school courses.

New elective studies will be placed in the Latin-English course for the convenience of prospective college students who may desire certain studies to fit them for college examinations or for studies which they may elect at college. The committee outlined a review and conclusion of algebra with other third year work and favored special work in the manual training department to permit students to extend the time and scope of their mechanical studies if they desire. The commercial course will be changed so that certificates can be granted students at the end of two years. The course will be made as complete as possible, although it will not be as effective as the four years' course.

The committee recommended that English and American history should be studied in the first two years in the high school and ancient and mediaeval history in the last two. The new plan reverses the present arrangement. American history has been a hard knot for many freshmen to solve and the committee believed that the new arrangement will be more interesting to the student and that it will result in a higher level of scholarship in all of the history classes. It will also give students who drop out before completing the course a knowledge of American history.

There was a discussion as to the comparative ability of spellers now and a generation ago. Comparisons of examination papers generally show that the precocious youths of today have the mast when it comes to childhood spelling. Some members of the committee placed special stress on spelling and Principal Buck of the high school agreed. He added, however, that he believed the children of today could have outspelled the children of the little red school house of a generation ago.

Present at the meeting were W. G. Crosby, chairman; L. A. Barnes, L. C. Harris, Principals Buck and Foster and Supt. Denfeld.

NORMAL NOTES

The program for commencement week has been arranged.

Friday, May 27, J. L. Washburn, the resident director of the normal, will entertain the members of the senior class at a reception given at his home at Hunter's park.

Saturday, May 28, the alumni banquet will be given to the seniors and faculty at Washburn hall.

Sunday, May 29, the baccalaureate sermon will be given in the assembly room of the school by Rev. G. R. Gebauer.

Monday and Tuesday, May 30 and 31, the senior play, "Pygmalion and Galatea," will be presented in the normal assembly hall.

Thursday, June 2, the seniors and juniors will hold their class day exercises.

Friday, June 3, will be commencement day, at which time an address will be given by President L. D. Harvey of Stout Institute, Menomonie, Wis. The diplomas will be presented by Hon. S. H. Somsen, the resident director of the Winona state normal.

Music will be supplied by the school chorus and glee club.

The class in school management completed the course during the week and wrote the examination on Wednesday.

• • •

The spelling class and the domestic science class finished their courses the past week.

• • •

The senior and junior classes have decided to have a picnic on class day instead of the usual class day exercises given on that day. The picnic will be held at Lester Park and the faculty will be the guests.

• • •

Miss Craw, the fifth and sixth grade critic teacher, entertained the practice teachers of her room at a launch ride up the river to the Spirit Lake Boat club. Those present were Mary O'Brien, Mary Fitzpatrick, Alice Bergher, Pearl Elevitch, Rhue Young, Marie Angemeir and Laura Hamblin.

• • •

E. T. Shima, an importer of Japanese work, of New York gave an exhibit of Japanese color prints and school art specialities in the drawing rooms of the school on Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings. Some very interesting and beautiful prints were shown and the exhibit was largely attended by the students and others interested in Japanese art. During chapel exercises Mr. Shima gave a talk to the students on "The Making of Japanese Prints by Wood Blocks." His talk was illustrated with prints.

At the chapel exercises Friday morning the glee club rendered a selection, "Massa Dear."

The children of the first and second grades of the model school under the direction of the critic teacher, Mrs. Lyons, entertained their parents Friday afternoon.

A delightful program was given in the assembly room, the two stories, "Street Musicians" and "Three Billy Goats," being dramatized by the children. A minuet, consisting of eight children, was danced by the children.

After the program the children brought their parents to the primary where they were served with refreshments made by the girls of the domestic science classes. The room was artistically decorated with boughs of cherry blossoms. The following practice teachers assisted about the rooms: Hattie Nelson, Audle Foot, St. Clair Nesbit, Hattie Martin, Fannie Lumm, Mabel Fix, Margaret Raleigh, Minnie Campaign, Viola Slavic, Bessie Sheaffer and Mildred Chisholm.

During the week the new catalogues were given out. The summer term will begin June 14 and it is expected at that time that the new hall will be completed and open for the students of the summer term.

• • •

The third year class held a meeting Tuesday, at which it was decided that the members of the class will have a picnic on class day at the boat club.

• • •

Capitola Cater had as her guest at Washburn hall the past week Miss Bessie Cater and Mrs. McCrahens of Two Harbors.

• • •

SECOND DRILL AT LIVE OAK

Another Churn Drill Set to Work to Hasten the Prospecting—Indications Point to Northern Trend of Great Ore Deposit.

Globe, Ariz., May 21.—The Live Oak Development company is now devoting most of its attention to prospecting its property which churn drills in advance of the underground work. To hasten the prospecting, a second churn drill has just been secured and set at work. Drill hole No. 2, located about 700 feet west of the vertical shaft has just passed into chalcocite at a depth of 230 feet. As was published some time ago, the first churn drill hole put down on the property passed through 175 feet of chalcocite ore of commercial grade as high or higher than the average estimated by the management. The third churn drill location, where the second drill has just been set at work, is 300 feet west of the second hole, or about 1,000 feet west of the vertical shaft, where chalcocite ore was first encountered.

From all indications, the greater part of the ore zone lies to the north and west of the present underground workings, and so far as can be determined at the present time, the ore body has a vertical extent of between 150 and 200 feet.

While the churn drilling is proving greater extent of the ore west of the shaft, the underground work is steadily extending the underground boundaries of the proven ore body to the eastward. Drift No. 208 is being constantly driven east on the 200-foot level, where rapid advances are being made with the aid of machine drills. This drift is now 69 feet long and from its starting point has passed through sulphide ore of good commercial grade. A noteworthy feature of the development in this part of the mine is that, as the work advances eastward, the vertical extent of the ore is apparently increasing. The east line of the Live Oak property is about 900 feet from the present face of drift No. 208.

The Shannon Copper company's Belle mine at Gleason produced 283,597 pounds of copper, $36,816; 596 ounces gold, $12,332; 47,485 ounces silver, $24,468. Total, $73,605.

The Tombstone Consolidated Mines company produced 1,862 ounces gold, $38,487; 137,593 ounces silverr, $70,864; 1,453,747 pounds of lead, $62,118; 891,305 pounds of zinc, $49,053. Total, $220,524.

The Hershal mine at Tombstone produced 329 ounces gold, $6,801; 47,508 ounces silver, $24,468. Total, $31,269.

The Commonwealth Mining company, Pearce, produced 2,716 ounces of gold, $56,148; 228,470 ounces of silver, $177,669. Total $173,817.

The Shattuck-Arizona Copper Mining company, Bisbee, is now producing copper at a lower cost than any other mine in the United States. From the 600-foot level it is shipping 150 tons daily to the Copper Queen smelter, the ore averaging over 17 per cent, and owing to its iron contents it has secured such a favorable rate of treatment that copper is produced at 5 2-10 cents a pound.

The cost of mining is also very light, as the ore body is fifty-five feet wide and needs but little timbering. This is both a carbonate and oxide ore, but sulphides have ben developed on the 900-foot level. The property is now being examined by Walter Harvey Weed and Frank H. Probert, whose report will be presented to the Boston stock exchange with the company's application for the listing of its stock.

MINING IN COEUR D'ALENES

Former Mayor of Wallace Reviews Conditions of District---Snowstorm Is Making Good and Reindeer Is Preparing to Ship Ore.

Spokane, Wash., May 21.—"There has been a most marked improvement in the Coeur d'Alene mining district the last sixty days," said Herman J. Rossi, for several terms mayor of Wallace and representative for Shoshone county in the Idaho legislature, adding:

"Snowstorm mine continues to make good, despite adverse stock quotations, and the Federal. Hercules, and Hecla are also maintaining their records.

"The Caledonia is now recognized as a big and regular dividend payer. The Stewart is shipping 200 tons of ore a day to the Mammoth mill at Wallace. The Alice is forcing its way into the ranks of the big producers. The Success is shipping steadily. The Lead-Silver company, operating the Rex mine, is in shape to begin production any day it wants to, as its ore bins are overflowing.

"Surprise mine on Pine creek, near Wardner, has opened up a fine body of ore adjoining the Highland Chief and forming a part of the same ore shoot. There is talk of consolidating the two properties and also of immediate production by both properties separately. The Douglas has a good ore body, but is hampered by a lawsuit which should be out of the way shortly. The Nabob is getting into shape to operate on a large scale and several less well-known properties in that vicinity are doing important development work.

"The Horst-Powell copper mine on the Little North Fork, near Kingston, promises to be one of the big shippers of the district. The Alhambra, the eastern extension of the Bunker Hill, and which is controlled by Fitch & Campbell of Spokane, is working a large force of men and likely to make a big strike almost any day.

"The Monarch and Bear Top are firmly established in the Murray district as big and regular shippers, which will soon be joined by the Jack Waite, Blackhorse, Paragon, Terrible-Edith, Oro Fino and several others. The most successful operations on Sunset peak are those of the leasers on the Callahan, who have developed a splendid ore body, while I am informed that both the Idora and Parrot are working in good bodies of galena and carbonates. In the same vicinity the C. & R. is crosscutting for an ore shoot opened by a shaft and

AT THE ARIZONA-MICHIGAN

Blackbird Shaft Passes Through Ground Containing Much Iron and Some Copper—Good Chances for Soon Striking Vein at National.

Globe, Ariz., May 21.—The Arizona Michigan Mining company is getting comparatively good results from the development work under way at the Telfair and Blackbird shafts on the property located about four and one-half miles east of Globe.

The Blackbird shaft has been sunk to a depth of 240 feet and for several days during the past week passed through ground containing much iron and some copper. The copper occurrence there was in the form of carbonate. On the 200-foot level of this shaft, recently established, thirty-five feet of crosscutting has been done. The footwall of the vein is limestone and the hanging-wall is quartz shale. At that depth, the vein is about four feet wide, but below the 200-foot mark its width increases.

On the 100-foot level also about twenty-four feet of crosscutting has been done up to date and the ledge at that depth presents a highly mineralized appearance.

At the Telfair shaft, the crosscut being driven south from the shaft on the 500-foot level is 846 feet long and is being continued in shale showing a little iron stain occasionally. This crosscut is expected to open the Old Dominion fault. As this fault, from all indications, is almost verticle, from 200 to 250 feet of driving will probably be necessary to break into the vein.

National.

At the Williams shaft of the National Mining Exploration company, whose property is located about four miles east of Globe, the crosscut being driven southeast from the shaft on the 660-foot level measures 85 feet and at that length is in quartzite such as forms the hanging-wall of the Black Hawk lode on the Arizona Commercial property adjoining. The chances, therefore, for striking a vein in the near future seem very favorable.

Another development now under way at the Williams shaft is the driving of drifts east and west on the stringer of high grade ore which was encountered at a distance of fifty feet from the shaft a few weeks ago. Assays made of this ore at the time of the strike showed a copper content ranging from thirty-two to thirty-nine per cent. This ore occurs in the form of copper carbonate. So far as the drifting has been continued, the filling of the stringer has proven of about the same grade as was first encountered. It is not improbable that a small test shipment of this ore will be made to the smelter.

STRIKE BY THE ISLE ROYALE

Northerly Extension of Baltic Lode Discovered in Surface Trench—Twin Lakes Removes Its Drill Outfit to New Site—Keweenaw Company Meets With Encouraging Results.

Houghton, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Isle Royale has opened and exposed in a surface trench what apparently is the northerly extension of the Baltic lode. The new discovery was made at a point about 300 feet to the eastward of shaft "A," which the company is sinking in what was at first thought the True Baltic formtion. The new lode lying parallel to and about 300 feet eastward of the shaft "A" lode has been exposed for a total distance of about thirty feet across its width indicating that it will be a lode of unusual thickness. Considerable heavy copper is noted in that portion of the lode next to the footwall contact and a blast made in this ground a few days ago disclosed copper ranging from the finer stamp copper to the larger pieces of barrel work. The position of the lode and its strike across the Isle Royale territory will give the company around 2,000 feet of outcropping and an underlay extending from end to end of the property and which can be mined to practically unlimited depth.

As a result of this discovery further operations in shaft "A" will likely be suspended as it strongly appears as if this work is in ground entirely too far west of the Baltic horizon. Diamond drilling to test the new lode for values at depth is the next step planned and to this end it is probable that a diamond drill will be rigged up in shaft "A." There seems little reason to doubt the value of Isle Royale's new discovery and the work there will henceforth be watched with a good deal of interest by local mining men, many of whom, including Capt. William A. Dunn, the discoverer of the Baltic lode, have always held to the opinion that the true Baltic lode on the Isle Royale property would be found to the eastward of the several points at which the company has prosecuted a search for this famous bed.

Twin Lakes.

The Twin Lakes Development company has been compelled to abandon its No. 1 drill hole owing to difficulty in penetrating an unusually heavy overburden at that point, and has removed its drill outfit to a new site not far distant from the original point of attack where a vertical hole will be drilled. The overburden at this point and on the several adjoining properties is the heaviest in this district and often reaches a thickness of anywhere from 500 to 800 feet. The company has received a second drill outfit and will begin No. 3 hole as soon as the location for it can be decided upon. The property is expected to carry the extensions of the several Lake-Adventure-Indiana lodes and the Winona lode and it is the location of the former that operations are directed toward.

New Baltic.

The drill operations of the New Baltic Mining company have resulted in a further discovery of copper ground in the so-called New Baltic lode at a point about 1,000 feet to the northward of the No. 2, or discovery hole. Concurrently with this disclosure, what may be termed a new strike, was made in the No. 4 hole, which is sinking to the westward of the New Baltic lode and in the horizon of the Torch Lake-Tomahawk-Oneco lode. The drill core yielded by the No. 4 hole discloses an unidentified lode about twenty feet thick of which ten feet is found to carry copper in commercial quantities. Including a two-foot streak of exceptional richness the No. 3 drill hole which had entered the New Baltic for a distance of about ten feet yields a badly broken core, but well charged with copper, and tends to strengthen the belief that the New Baltic will be found commercially valuable on this property.

Keweenaw.

The Keweenaw Copper company has met with very encouraging results in development of the Kearsarge lode and plans to enlarge its present shaft with a view to permanent production. Rich diamond drill cores have been extracted from both beds of this formation at an average depth of 1,400 feet on the dip of the lode. The beds are shown to have a thickness of twenty and twenty-six feet, the thicker bed, which is the underlying bed of this lode yielding a core that has probably not been exceeded in copper content by any other taken from the Kearsarge lode. The shaft which is being sunk in this formation has attained a depth of about 180 feet and a short crosscut as yet uncompleted shows this bed to a width of at least twenty-five feet at this depth. Copper is in evidence here as it was at surface. The situation in general and particularly in the Kearsarge horizon has never been so encouraging as it is at the present time.

Oneco.

Oneco has stoped one of the two deep holes that were driven to intersect the Oneco lode at depth, and the drift outfit has been removed to the eastern limits of the property where an effort will be made to cut the so-called New Baltic lode, the underlay of which is carried by the Oneco tract. The second of these deeper drill holes, and designated as No. 7 is expected to encounter the Oneco lode with the next few feet of drilling. The hole just abondoned revealed nothing of importance. The net results of the diamond drill operations in the Oneco lode have been rather discouraging though at points some very rich ground was encountered, and it is becoming more and more apparent that the only rich and valuable copper bearing bed in the Oneco property is that designated as the New Baltic lode, and which the company is now seeking to locate.

Superior.

There have been no developments of particular importance in the situation at the Superior mine, where shaft sinking continues at two points. The No. 1 shaft has reached a depth where the fourteenth level will be established and the preparations are being made to run a crosscut to the lode at that point. Drifting, in progress at several levels from the eighth downward continues to open ground of about the same copper content as that being mined in this district. The No. 2 shaft has thus far been without especial features and commercial ground at that point is yet to be located.

Franklin.

The Franklin Mining company is securing a very good showing of copper ground at depth of the No. 1 Powabic shaft. This shaft has reached the thirtieth level, where a plat is now being cut preparatory to crosscutting. Drifting is in progress at several points from the twentieth level downward, and is revealing first-class copper ground in either direction from the shaft. At the twentieth level, the north lateral has been extended about 500 or 600 feet into Rhode Island territory and to the greater part has been in commercial ground.

CLARK'S SALE OF HIS MINES

Includes Original and Stewart Group of Small Copper Mines and Butte Reduction Works—Will Devote His Attention to Zinc Properties—Butte & Superior's New Concentrator.

Butte, Mont., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sale of the Clark copper properties in the Butte district to the Amalgamated Copper company, which was announced in these letters a month ago as being under negotiation, has been consummated and officially confirmed. The sale, as stated in the press dispatches, includes the Original and Stewart group of small mines, including fifteen or twenty claims, and the Clark smelter at Butte, known as the Butte Reduction works. The transaction is only incidentally connected with the Butte merger of mines, and resulted directly from the ore controversies that have for some time existed between the Amalgamated and Senator Clark. It became known more than a year ago that Clark's company was mining on Amalgamated ore bodies through the West Stewart shaft, and as a settlement of the controversy the Amalgamated offered to purchase the Clark mines. Senator Clark ceased operations in the Stewart and was willing to turn that property over to the Amalgamated, but the latter insisted on prchasing also the Original, which was surrounded on all sides by Amalgamated mines and it was certain that only a question of time would bring up more serious controversies. Senator Clark then offered to sell all of his interests to the Amalgamated, including his Butte street railway system, his pleasure resort, all mines, etc., including his daily newspaper, but the Amalgamated declined to purchase, as it has for some time been disposing of its own interests outside of mines and allied enterprises, and did not want to acquire any more. Mr. Clark hung out long for a complete sale, but finally gave in and disposed of the two groups of mines mentioned. These properties have been producing from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 pounds of copper monthly. An official statement issued from Senator Clark's Butte office says:

What the Sale Includes.

"The sale is of the original Consolidated Mining company's property, which includes the Original and Stewart shafts, with all the copper interests immediately adjacent to them. The only other mining property involved are two small fractions lying between the Alice and Magna Charta mines, which latter already belong to the Amalgamated company. The Amalgamated company acquired the Butte Reduction works, but Senator Clark retains the use of the concentrator for a term of years, and all the shops, such as machine shop, blacksmith shop, carpenter shop, assay office, etc. The concentrator plant will be operated on zinc ores, and it is anticipated that the zinc business will develop immensely and become a very important element in the future of Butte. The senator will soon commence work on mining properties that have been lying idle for years, and it is anticipated that the change of ownership in the copper mines will in the long run tend to promote the welfare of Butte. In western Montana Senator Clark is enlarging his business. He is acquiring the light and water system at Hamilton, and is constructing the lighting and power system between Missoula and Hamilton, which doubtless will help to develop the Bitter Root valley rapidly. The sawmill now at Lathrop will be moved to Bonner and considerably enlarged. The standing timber on Nine Mile, near Lathrop, when logged, will be brought by railroad to Bonner. This arrangement will give employment to a large number of men at Bonner and should be of great advantage to Missoula, as the railway system between Bonner and Missoula will bring the two places very close together. Senator Clark will always have a very large mining interest in Butte and is constantly enlarging his interests in the state."

Important to Amalgamated.

It is surmised that Senator Clarks' acquisition of the light and water system in Hamilton, which are necessary to the development of his electric roads in that part of the state, had some connection with the deal for the sale of his copper mines, as the Hamilton plants were owned by the Amalgamated company. By owning the Clark copper mines the Amalgamated secures very large and important additional facilities for operating its other adjacent properties. Through the West Stewart, which is 2,100 feet deep the Little Mina, Clear Grit and other mines, now of comparative shallow depth, can be opened and mined. The Original shaft is 2,300 feet deep and the Original workings connect with those of the Gagno.. mine, but the Original is several hundred feet deeper, so that connections can be made easily and to good advantage. The Amalgamated will take possession of the Clark mines on May. 31.

About the only independent copper producers now in the Butte district are the Butte- Ballaklava, East Butte, Tuckumne and Butte & Superior. Manager A. H. Wethey of the Clark interests, who has just made an examination of the Butte & Superior, says that property has between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 tons of zinc ore in sight, and is one of the biggest mines in the district. The Butte-Ballaklava has just begun regular daily shipments of ore, at the rate of 300 tons, to the East Butte smelter, which latter has started up an additional furnace to handle it. The Butte-Ballaklava can make its copper at a cost around 7 cents per pound, and has an enormous quantity of high grade ore blocked out, averaging better than 8 per cent copper

Butte & Superior.

The Butte & Superior company will in the next few weeks be treating 500 tons of ore daily at the Basin concentrator as a result of an agreement entered into last week in New York with F. Augustus Heinze, who controls the Basin concentrator, and A. B. Wolvin, president of the Butte & Superior company, and R. M. Atwater, Jr., the manager. All along the Butte & Superior management has been claiming that they have not been getting a fair deal. It was for this reason that the company asked for and secured a lease on one-half of the concentrator with absolute control over the working of the plant. Some new machinery has been ordered and it will be installed at once. The Butte & Superior half of the plant will be operated by three shifts of men. At last a large amount of the structural steel for the company's concentrator has arrived and the work of preparing the foundation is being rushed forward with all speed. The machinery for the new mill has been ordered. It is stated that the ore at present being shipped to the Basin concentrator averages 26 per cent silver and good zinc values.

Alex Scott.

It is estimated that at the present rate of progress the shaft in the Alex Scott will be down 1,600 feet by June 1, at which depth a station will be cut and an electric pump installed. A crosscut will be run to intersect all of the veins and the work of sinking ready for shipping ore will be vigorously pushed. From the 500-foot level to the 1,400-foot level a number of veins carrying copper and silver in commercial quantities have been opened. On the 1,400-foot level the main vein has been drifted upon to a considerable extent and an ore body more than twenty feet in width has been developed. The ore carries considerable bornite and copper glance, but in a conglomerate form. It is believed that on the 1,600-foot level ore will be found in a more compact form.

Raven.

Development work at the Raven mine is progressing very satisfactorily to those in charge, and the company expects to start shipping very soon. It is stated that a large quantity of commercial ore has been blocked out. A short time ago the company retired bonds to the amount of $35,000. This

ARE UNDER A HEAVY OPTION

Protection and Carlile Claims in the Butte District Bonded to Pittsburg Parties for $400,000---Adjoins the North Butte Group.

Butte, Mont., May 21.—It is stated upon good authority that the Carille and Protection mining claims, situated between the North Butte group and that of the Butte & Superior Mining company, in the northwestern section of the Butte district, have been bonded to some Pittsburg parties for a price of $400,000. These claims are owned by George Casey, P. J. Brophy, Charles Mattison, Mrs. Martha Fish, Judge W. O. Speer and others, and have been eagerly sought by the companies owning adjoining claims. Prices offered in this section are very good; a number of claims with little work done have been sold for from $150,000 to $250,000 each.

Butte-Ballaklava.

P. P. Nelson, president of the Butte-Ballaklava Copper company, has returned from Duluth. Mr. Nelson has fully recovered from his recent illness. He spent some time in the East since he was last in Butte. When asked how conditions were there, and what were the prospects for the future of copper and business generally, he said:

"It all depends on the man you talk with. One man is extremely optimistic, and another talks about a panic. For myself, I cannot see why any changes should be made. The country is exceptionally prosperous, and the rains o fthe last few days have added $50,000,000 to the wealth of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and the Northwest.

Mr. Nelson says the Butte-Ballaklava mine is in fine condition, and Supt. Newton says the richest copper ore mined in Butte is being shipped to the Pittsmont smelter, the ore averaging 9½ per cent copper and 16 ounces of silver to the ton. The company is shipping 100 tons of ore per day. The new electric hoist is working well.

NEW BODY OF SULPHIDE ORE

Opened Up on 1,450 Level of Oliver Shaft of Calumet & Arizona—Denn Shaft to Be Sunk to 1,500-Foot Level.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 21.—On the 1,450 level of the Oliver shaft of the Calumet & Arizona they have opened up a body of sulphide ore running from 4 to 4.05 per cent. As this ore body is directly under the big ore bodies of the 1,300 it practically shows a continuance of the ore on the 1,400.

On the 1,300 at the Hoatson they have struck a very fine streak of oxides. At this shaft they are getting ready to put in the foundations for a steel gallows, or head frame.

The Superior & Pittsburg is now making plans to install a big compressor at the Junction for a central air power plant for the company.

At the Junction development is still going on in the big ore strike on the 1,500. So far the ore body shows 65 feet in width, and they are in 100 feet of its length, and are faced in ore.

Sinking continues at the Briggs They are now within 25 feet of the 1,300 level, and are still in the pyrites, which they encountered just below the 1,200 level.

At the Shattuck the station on the 400 level has not been completed, being temporarily discontinued, and drifting is in progress at this level. Another strike was made last week on the 500. This is oxide, and of as good a grade as is usually found there. Up to the present time they are in 10 on this strike, and are still going ahead on it Sinking is to be resumed at the Denn, and the shaft will be sunk 150 feet deeper, putting it down to the 1,500 level. It has been the opinion of most all mining engineers that the Denn would get the ore if they went down. The 1,350 level from the shaft back toward the Johnson addition is in a soft red altered lime, considerably stained with carbonates and oxides.

The Bisbee extension is drifting with three shafts both on the 400 and 700 levels. Water is now bothering them considerably, but it is being handled with the one pump and the hoist, which is putting in the spare time bailing water. Another feature which looks good for this property is the flow of copper water which is coming in on the 700 level. Another boiler and pump are now at Lewis Springs, seven miles distant from the mines, with a good wagon road between.

MAY CONSTRUCT MORE MILLS

Homestake Company Finds That Present Plants Are Unable to Handle Output of the Mines---Activity in the Yellow Creek District.

Lead, S. D., May 21.—Officials of the Homestake Mining company are considering plans for enlarging capacity by additional plants. The present plants are unable to handle the output of the mines. The company has 1,000 stamps, which handle 4,000 tons a day, but for several weeks, since the new set of miners have been working, it has been necessary to lay off the men over Sunday in order to give the mills a chance to catch up on the ore. The company has been considering a mill of 400 stamps, which would give a capacity of 1,600 tons a day. The site considered is on Gold Run creek on the south side between some of the present mills. The building of a new mill would necessitate an increase in the slime plant at Deadwood. The Homestake is continuing to ship in miners.

The Yellow Creek district is to be one of the busiest camps in the Black Hills this summer. Two mining companies are to build mills. General Manager Gray and Director W. L. McLaughlin of the Wasp No. 2 company, located on Yellow creek, are now in Cripple Creek looking over mills for points for the 300-ton plant they will erect here. Preliminary work is well under way and it is hoped to have the new plant up by fall. It takes the place of the 200-ton cyanide mill that was destroyed by fire last January.

Below the Wasp the Alder Creek Mining company, headed by John A. Sandholm of Des Moines, Iowa, did considerable development and showed up some excellent ore bodies years ago of much the same character and grade as the Wasp ore. The company holds a large acreage and is in a position to go ahead. Mr. Sandholm is here now to figure on a 200-ton plant, probably similar to the Wasp mill.

Deadwood, S. D., May 21.—Pittsburg men have organized the Pactola Dredging company, which will operate

OUTPUT AT CRIPPLE CREEK

Gold Production in April Totaled $1,290,335 and Dividends Reached $142,000---Production for First Four Months Exceeds $5,320,000.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 21.—The April Cripple Creek gold production was 55,540 tons of ore, worth gross $1,290,335, or $21.41 per ton. The average value of the smelter ore, 4,340 tons, was $65 a ton, or $282,100 total. The Golden Cycle mill treated 24,500 tons, worth each $20.15, or $493,675. The United States Reduction & Refining company treated 14,050 tons, worth each $22, and the Portland company, 9,650, worth each $20, Blue Slag, Gaylord and Wild Horse cyanide mills handled 3,000 tons, averaging about $4.10.

The production for the first four months of 1910 will exceed $5,320,000.

April dividends reached $142,000.

The Roosevelt deep drainage tunnel, Cripple Creek, was driven 380 feet during April. The distance now in is 13,220 feet, leaving only 1,380 feet to be done.

The Union Leasing company, operating the Prince Albert and Black Belles estates and leasing blocks on the Gold Dollar and El Paso territory on Beacon hill, Cripple Creek, is shipping 1,500 to 1,700 tons of $21.75 ore monthly.

The Western Investment company, operating the Empire State and other properties of the Isabella Mines company, Cripple Creek, is shipping steadily high-grade ore. A thirty-ton shipment returned $3,484.80, of which the Isabella received $1,568.16 in royalty.

The Granite Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, a close corporation, shipped 19,191 tons of ore during the year just ended. The average gross value was $22.15 a ton. Royalties from leases were $97,406.77. Net profit was $38,513.38. C. M. MacNeill of Colorado Springs was re-

IS DEVELOPING SIX FACES

All Faces at Cactus in Ore of Average Grade or Better—Drift Toward Pinto Property Showing Indications of Sulphide.

Globe, Ariz., May 21.—At present six faces of the Cactus mine are being worked, and all of them are in ore of average grade or better. Among the drifts in which a good grade of ore is being encountered is the one mentioned as being driven toward the Pinto shaft on the 400-foot level, thus indicating an extension of sulphide of copper ore into the Pinto property.

It is a well known fact, of course, that the Pinto shaft, at a depth of 530 feet, encountered copper carbonate ore assaying 15 per cent copper, and that the bottom of the shaft, at its present depth of 541 feet, is in ore of the same character. The connection to be made on the fourth level of the Hamilton shaft will intersect the Pinto shaft at the bottom, and it seems evident, from the dip of the chalcocite ore body, that a few feet below the carbonate zone struck in the Pinto, sulphide ore will be encountered.

On the sub-level, fifty feet above the third, where a drift has been driven north from the raise put up from the third level 200 feet north from the Hamilton shaft and a little west from it, the vein in which the rich malachite ore was found some time ago is being explored with gratifying results. The drifts driven eastward from the Hamilton shaft on the third and fourth levels are continuing to develop ore, much of which assays 4 per cent copper, that on the fourth level being of especially high grade. The management of the mine is still awaiting the arrival of tools required for the churn drill which is to be used in prospecting to determine the boundaries of the mineralized schist area of the Cactus property.

Superior & Globe.

Exploratory work is being steadily prosecuted at the property of the Superior & Globe Copper company, located about five miles northeast of Globe. From the bottom of the eighty-foot winze, sunk from one of the drifts on the 650-foot level, crosscutting has been done to explore both the footwall and hanging wall of the fault. The foot-wall was reached with about ten feet of crosscutting and with about eight feet of driving the hanging-wall was encountered. The cross-cutting was attended with some difficulty due to the amount of water prevailing at that depth. So far as explored, the fault contains only vein matter, carrying a high percentage of iron, but no copper.

The crosscut driven north from the working shaft on the 650-foot level is now being extended. A few weeks ago, the driving of this crosscut was discontinued temporarily at a distance of 350 feet from the shaft. The crosscut has now been driven about fifty feet further, thus making its total length approximately 400 feet. As has been the case previously, the formation in the face is diabase containing little mineral.

The management is still contemplating the use of diamond drills in prospecting downward from the bottom of the eighty-foot winze mentioned above and in exploring the ground horizontally in advance of the north crosscut on the 650-foot level. Arrangements for this drill work have not yet been perfected, however, but doubtless will be made soon.

TALC ON THE GRAND ARIZONA

Will Be Tested for Commercial Quantities---Shaft of the Property Working in Body of Low Grade Black Sulphide Ore.

Douglas, Ariz., May 21.—One of the largest talc deposits in Arizona is believed to be located in the immediate vicinity of Douglas, and in case it is found to possess the qualities attributed to it by the hopes of the directors of the Grand Arizona Copper company, a great new industry, which would benefit this city, will be opened. This was the statement of O. E. Petterson of Duluth, a director of the Grand Arizona company, who, with P. M. Rigstad of Duluth, is here for the purpose of visiting the property.

The talc, which is used most extensively for the manufacture of talcum powder, is to be tested for commercial quantities immediately upon the return of Messrs. Petterson and Rigstad of Duluth, they having secured samples on a visit to the Grand Arizona made last week.

"In case the talc is found not to possess the commercial values we hope for, it is still a very encouraging indication of copper," said Mr. Petterson yesterday. "In Bisbee a deposit of this kind was found to overlie a great deposit of copper ore averaging 60 per cent."

The shaft of the property, which was down 272 feet last week when the two directors visited the property, is working in a body of low-grade black sulphide ore which has been pronounced to be of excellent concentrating quality. None but concentrating ore has been found to this time, but as water level is being approached at this time, judging from the greatly increased flow in the shaft, it is believed that ore values will take on a decided change for the better. The water is heavily impregnated with lime, always a good copper indication.

The property is now working one shift of men, but with the arrival of the pumping plant and a compressor for drills, the force will be largely augmented. This change is expected to take place shortly. The property is located nine miles east of Douglas, which is the nearest shipping plnt. Communication is had at present between the city and the mine by means of a wagon road. The nearest railroad point is on the El Paso & Southwestern, sixteen miles east of this city.

COMPLETES ALL EQUIPMENT

Superior & Boston Finishes All Construction Work on Company's Plant—Completion of Railroad is Impatiently Awaited by the Management.

Globe, Ariz., May 21.—The building of an addition to a boiler house just completed at the Superior & Boston mine marks the end of all the construction work on the company's plant, which is one of the most modern and efficient mining equipments in Globe district.

The sinking of the McGaw shaft has reached a point 1150 feet below the sixth level, a depth of 112 feet below the sixth, station sets have been put in, preparatory to cutting a station and establishing the seventh level at a later date. Meanwhile the sinking of the McGaw will be continued indefinitely.

At the Gardner shaft, on the end of the property opposite the McGaw, greater vertical extent of the ore body is being proven by work in the two winzes put down from the 400-foot level. The west winze from the fourth level drift has been sunk continuously through ore for seventy-five feet. At this winze a small hoist is in operation. The bottom of the east winze is forty-six feet below the level, and here also an excellent grade of ore has been developed.

The average copper content of the material taken from both winzes is 8 per cent. The distance between the two winzes is 125 feet and the drifting has shown that the ore between them is continuous. The high iron content of the ore makes it a better fluxing material than that now being mined in the stopes on the Great Eastern vein in the northern part of the property.

About ninety tons of ore from the Great Eastern hole is being shipped every day to the Old Dominion smelter and the smelter returns show an average of 9 per cent copper. Some ore for shipment is also being obtained from the tunnel being driven on the Black Oxide vein directly over the fourth level drift of the Gardner workings, where leasers are now at work extracting ore carrying 7 per cent copper.

As the rails of the Arizona Eastern railway have been laid to within 1,500 feet of the McGaw shaft, the Superior & Boston mine will soon have greatly increased transportation facilities, which will, of course, prove a valuable asset. The grading for this railroad has been completed as far as the Arizona Commercial property, west of the Superior & Boston mine.

ACTIVITY NEAR PARADISE

Important Strikes Recently Made—Whitetail Mining and Milling Company Encounters Good Copper Ore on Both East and West Drifts.

Douglas, Ariz., May 21.—Important strikes have recently been made in the California district at Paradise, Cochise county, and these are now followed by increased activity. The Whitetail Mining & Milling company has encountered good copper ore on both the east and west drifts. In driving to the east a fissure was encountered, and on this fissure vein the drift is running to the north and south. Ore was encountered a few days ago on the west ledge. This pitches to the west, and was encountered first at the top of the drift, gradually widening till now there is a full face of ore running from 2 to 4 per cent copper. This is cut on the 120-foot level. In the east drift a flow of water averaging from 700 to 800 gallons per day was encountered. Machinery for the hoist is to be installed.

The Solwice property, formerly the Eagles Nest, is now active. The new company is controlled by M. R. Lacue of Paradise, Solomon and Wickersham of Bowie, William Speed of Wilcox and Paul Mitchell of Tucson. The ground adjoins the Whitetail. A vertical shaft is to be sunk. The group comprises eleven claims. A well of water is at hand. Ore can be transported to the railroad at a cost of $4 a ton. Solwico No. 1 has a fifty-three-foot shaft, tapped by a tunnel. This is in ore thirty-five feet, the vein eighteen inches on the face. There are other cuts and tunnels on the various claims. In the bottom of a winze is ore assaying 54 per cent lead, 8 per cent copper, sixteen ounces of silver and $3.50 gold. Solwico No. 4 has a twenty-foot shaft; No. 2 a sixty-foot shaft, No. 10 a seventy-foot shaft in quartzite with assays about as those quoted, and No. 11 has an eighty-foot shaft, with the same showings.

The Leadville company has a good lead proposition near Paradise. Bisbee men have bonded this property from George Walker, and are developing the ground. Shipments of lead ore have been made. Machinery has been installed for hoist and pumping.

The Virtue Mining company is driving a 1,000-foot tunnel into the mountain to tap a ledge which crops out on top. This is extended 700 feet. If the ore is struck in this tunnel the company will have a showing of 700 feet of ore from the apex.

Oklahoma and Texas capital especially seems to be interested in the Paradise district, and considerable capital has been enlisted in those mines to carry on development.

MAY CONSTRUCT MORE MILLS

this summer on Rapid creek, south of here. The company has secured deeds in escrow from J. C. Sherman and his sons Frank and Charles and L. A. Richards to 180 acres of placer ground extending one mile along the creek from a point a mile below Pactola. This deal has been in progress for some months, Frank Sherman having spent much time in the East working it up. The new company will employ a system of placer mining used successfully in Oreville, Cal., by removing the earth and rock from the creek bed and washing the banks along the creek. The men behind the deal are connected with the Carnegie Steel company in Pittsburg. They had experts out here all winter boring the ground and the deal is the result of the reports from the experts. The machinery has been shipped and work will begin as soon as it arrives.

In the Tinton district, the Tinton Tin Mining company is employing thirty men and will have the mill in operation this month. On the Ohlo Beaver Creek company's ground, Supt. Watson has a force prospecting. On Deer creek, the Ruby Gold Mining company is working two shifts sinking its shaft, which it now has down over a hundred feet. On Iron creek, Connors and Wheeler are taking out good pay dirt on their placer ground.

Near Hill City the management of the Continental Smelting & Mining company, operating the Dakota-Calumet mine, is daily expecting orders to resume work, which was suspended in January on account of labor troubles. The company will rosume under the open-shop policy, having been union heretofore. The pumps are kept going and everything is in readiness for a start.

In the Golden Summit mine the water has been pumped from the shaft and work is now directed toward unwatering the winze.

OUTPUT AT CRIPPLE CREEK

elected president and Spencer Penrose, secretary. This company has contributed $20,000 toward the completion of the Roosevelt deep drainage tunnel.

A valuable strike of nickel ore is reported twenty-three miles southeast of Salida. The vein is ninety feet wide and values are $150 a ton in cobalt and nickel and $30 in gold, silver and copper. Specimens will be sent to the Colorado School of Mines for testing and a carload to the nickel smelter in New Jersey. Nickel does not appear in Colorado metal statistics.

A Colorado Springs company is arranging to treat the dump of the famous Bassick mine in Custer county with an improved cyanide process. The ore is characterized by boulders coated with gold.

The reorganized North American smelter at Golden is about ready to start up. A number of small mines in Boulder, Gilpin and Clear Creek districts are expected to supply ores.

The Tomboy group of mines at Telluride is yielding heavily. The mill according to official reports from the London office, crushed during March 10,500 tons of ore, yielding $42,000 in bullion and $32,500 in concentrates. Expenses, including mine development were $47,500, leaving $27,000 or over 36 per cent of total production as profits. The company aims to pay 20 per cent annually on its issued capital of $1,500,000. The Tomboy was sold to its British owners in 1896 and has since paid $2,417,000 in dividends. The company has purchased claims on the extension of the vein system.

CLARK'S SALE OF HIS MINES

leaves a balance of $30,000 to be paid off at different times during the year.

The Old Emma Mine.

The work of exploring the old Emma mine for zinc ore in paying quantities has been abandoned, much to the surprise of many mining people in this district who were given to understand by those back of the work that the zinc would be encountered in the vicinity of the 200-foot level. The Emma had been abandoned for several years and it required some two months or more to unwater the mine down to the 200-foot level. There some exploration work was done and a carload of the ore hoisted to the surface and sent East to be assayed. While no admission can be secured as to the result of this assay it is said that while zinc ore was found it was not in sufficient quantity to warrant the continued working of the mine. The hoist is being dismantled. Those who were at the back of the enterprise kept well in the background, but it seems to be generally understood here that the New Jersey Zinc company attended to the financial end of the work.

Calumet-Corbin.

Capt. James Wilcox, formerly superintendent of the Massachusetts Consolidated and now holding the position of president of the Calumet-Corbin company, is in the city. He has just returned from an inspection of the company's property, which consists of seven claims in the Wickes district and seven in the Radersburg district, the latter property being known as the Mammoth mine. Mr. Wilcox is very enhusiastic over the Radersburg property. He says that he considers the district the most important gold camp Montana has ever had on aecount of he values in sulphides increasing the ore bodies filling and getting longer and wider as they go deeper. He says the Keating is down 600 feet and showing well in gold and copper. The ore at the 500-foot level of the Black Friday runs about $300 per ton in gold. The Ohio-Keating is down 300 feet and has encountered a good body of ore. The Ohio-Keating is installing an electric hoist. The Mammoth is installing a gasoline hoist and will be soon hoisting ore. At the 50-foot level an ore assay shows $8 in gold, 50.4 ounces in silver and 63.2 per cent lead to the ton. The men associated with Capt. Wilcox in the Calumet-Corbin are residents of Minneapolis and Boston.

Davis-Daly.

The work in the Davis-Daly mine is going along as usual, except that the force of miners employed is reduced to twenty-five owing to the fact that no arrangements have yet been made for the shipment of ore. Crosscutting is now proceeding on the 1,700-foot level to the ledge. Miners who are at work say that large bodies of ore have been blocked out and that there are lots in sight. Friends of Heinze declare that just as soon as he can leave New York he will come to this city and arrange for the treatment of his ore, either by building a spur from the Colorado to the Great Northern railway or by arrangement with the Pittsmont smelter people.

East Butte.

H. E. Gross, president of the East Butte Copper Mining company, has returned to Boston after making an examination of the mines and smelter of the company. While here he arranged with the Butte-Ballakiava company for the treatment of the company's ore. In order to do this another furnace will have to be started in the Pittsmont smelter and arrangements are progressing towards this end now. A certin amount of custom ore will be treated in addition to the 400 tons daily it is expected that the Butte-Ballaklava will ship. The later mine is now working a large force of men and regular shipments will be commenced within a few days as lots of ore has been waiting shipment for some time.

Butte Central.

It is expected that active mining will be commenced at the Ophir mine of the Butte Central Copper company about July 1. Three boilers with a combined capacity of 330 horse power are now being set in concrete foundations and over them a new building will be erected. It is believed that between five and six weeks will be required to unwater the mine with its crosscuts and drifts. A new compressor is to be installed and will be in readiness for operation just as soon as the water has all been taken out which as before stated will be about july 1. The shaft will be sunk to a depth of 1,000 feet before any exploration work of consequence is commenced. While the work of crosscutting and drifting on the 1,000-foot level is going on, shaft sinking will be continued to the 1,500-foot level.

The Elm Orlu.

The Elm Orlu, a Clark property, which so far turned out to be very rich in zinc ore, is said to be developing considerable copper on the 800-foot level and there is a fear that at depth the zinc may materially disappear and place taken by the red metal. While little can be ascertained as to the exact conditions at the Elm Orlu, it is a fact quite generally known that the mine up to the present time has shown rich bodies of zinc.

MINING IN COEUR D'ALENES

is likely to have shipping ore in a short time. The Sunrise, an adjoining property is also looking well and working a good crew.

"Almost every property of any consequence in and near Burke has a force of men engaged in development. Among those I know to be so engaged are the Marsh group, Stanley, Neversweat, Little Butte, Great Western, and over toward Mullan, the Imperial, on which a good strike was reported a day or two ago.

"The Black Bear Fraction company, now under new management, has an excellent showing of concentrating ore and will get busy with a mill one of these days. It adjoins the old Frisco mine and promises to be an important producers at an early date.

"The Reindeer mine near Mullan is getting ready to ship as soon as the sidetrack now being put in for its convenience by the Northern Pacific Railway company is completed. It has a fine body of copper ore in sight and its neighbors, the Carney, Idaho Copper, Copper Queen and Tombstone, are all looking well.

"Two other mines near Mullan working large forces are the Butte and Coeur d'Alene, which has a good body of high-grade ore, and the Lucky Calumet, which is driving a long lower crosscut tunnel."

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of illness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is, therefore, all-important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to purchase and note that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

It is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and assists in overcoming habitual constipation permanently, also biliousness and the many ills resulting therefrom. The great trouble with all other purgatives and aperients is not that they fail to act when a single dose is taken, but that they act too violently and invariably tend to produce a habit of body requiring constantly augmented doses. Children enjoy the pleasant taste and gentle action of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the ladies find it delightful and beneficial whenever a laxative remedy is needed, and business men pronounce it invaluable, as it may be taken without interfering with business and does not gripe nor nauseate. When buying note the name, California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents a bottle.

DULUTH WINS SECOND GAME

Malloy's Indians Defeated By Score of 6 to 5 in Exciting Contest.

Dauss Driven From Hill and McKee Has Bad Ascension.

Red Wing, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duluth won the second game of the season here yesterday, defeating the Indians by the score of 6 to 5.

McKee, the new twirler recently secured by the management, pitched great ball until the sixth inning, when he went up into the clouds, allowing the champions six runs and the game.

Fautsch replaced McKee on the mound, holding the Sox runless for the rest of the game.

Dauss was not in his usual form and was chased from the hill in the second inning, the Indians scoring three runs off his delivery. Klingebiel replaced Dauss and was strong in every round but the fifth, when the locals bunched hits and secured two runs.

Harvey, a new shortstop, made his initial appearance with the champions, making two errors. More players are expected to arrive here today.

President John A. Elliott was an interested spectator of the game.

CHASE WINS MOUND BATTLE

Redskin Defeats Eau Claire in Fast Game By Close Score.

Rochester, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rochester defeated the Eau Claire Angels here yesterday by the score of 1 to 0. The game was a battle between Morrow and Indian Chase, in which the latter had the better of the argument, holding Eau Claire to two scattered hits, while the Doctors gathered twice that number from the hurling of Morrow.

The game was one of the best played and fastest ever seen here. Eau Claire played errorless ball behind Morrow, while but two misplays marked the work of the locals.

SUPERIOR DEFEATS WINONA BY SCORE OF 5 TO 0.

Winona, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior defeated the Pirates 5 to 0 yesterday through the great flinging of Baertschi, who held Winona to four scattered hits.

The Pirates could do nothing with the slants of the visiting hill worker, which explains the runless local column.

Byers started the game for Winona, but was treated with undue familiarity. He was derricked in favor of Wagner. Score: R. H. E.

LUMBERJACKS TAKE EASY GAME FROM OUTCASTS.

La Crosse, Wis., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wausau won from the Outcasts yesterday by the score of 7 to 1, Schieffer keeping the hits of the locals scattered. Steffen and Young were wild and the Lumberjacks bunched their hits in three innings.

Catcher Tregesser was injured and his removal from the game allowed the Wausau players the freedom of the paths. In addition to this, the Outcast infielders indulged in some bonehead playing.

Ward was removed from the game for disputing a decision. Score:

LEW POWELL IS THE FAVORITE

Ten to Eight Are the Odds Offered on the Memsic Fight.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—With decisions in his favor in two previous ten and fifteen-round contests Lew Powell of San Francisco rules a 10 to 8 favorite over George Memsic, whom he meets again this afternoon in the Vernon arena. This, their third engagement, is for twenty-five rounds, and it is believed that this distance should be sufficient for the men to settle finally their dispute as to supremacy. The victor probably will be sent against Champion Wolgast in June.

The contest this afternoon was originally scheduled for May 14 but, owing to the illness of Memsic early in the morning was postponed one week.

HAVING THEIR ANNUAL MEET

Wisconsin and Chicago in Dual Track and Field Event.

Chicago, May 21.—The University of Wisconsin and the University of Chicago met in their annual dual track and field meet at Marshall field today. Besides the meet there was a baseball game between Purdue and Chicago.

Each track team has participated in one meet so far this season—Wisconsin defeating Minnesota and Chicago losing to Illinois.

The Wisconsin men were confident of victory, while Coach Stagg of Chicago refused to make any predictions.

Ball Team Off for East.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 21.—The University of Michigan baseball squad left this morning for its annual Eastern tour. The team finishes the trip May 28, with a game with Cornell at Ithaca.

From Across the Water.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 21.—According to present arrangements Bob Fitzsimmons, Tommy Burns, Bill Lang, the Australian champion, and Hugh McIntosh, the fight promoter, will arrive in San Francisco June 28.

BATTLESHIP ON CALM SEA

Shoals of Trouble Passed and Plans for Big Fight Progressing.

Arena to Be Built Near the Heart of Great Western City.

San Francisco, Cal., May 21.—Safely over the shoals of trouble caused by the enforced change of scene for the big fight from Emeryville to San Francisco, the Jeffries-Johnson battleship once more is cruising on a calm sea. If there are any other breakers ahead, promoters Rickard and Gleason, who constitute the lookout, can't see them and the cry is "all's well."

Definitely reassured by the district attorney who says the law rears no apparent obstacle against the staging of the great contest in this city, the promoters are busying themselves today with the multitudinous details which arrangements for the combat require. As stated in last night's dispatches the fight will take place in an arena to be built especially for the purpose at Eighth and Market streets, close to the heart of San Francisco. A year's lease of the property has been secured and the building to be erected will be constructed along the identical lines proposed for the Emeryville structure. Thus, no change in the seating of spectators will be entailed—a fact that is giving much satisfaction to the early purchasers of tickets.

It is estimated that a million feet of lumber will be used in the construction of the gigantic structure. The structure is 525 by 325 feet. Rickard says that if necessary a seating capacity of 35,000 can be provided.

Because of the dissatisfaction engendered among the fans by the Papke-Thomas mill Thursday night, Chief of Police Martin has announced that hereafter he will personally supervise all fights held in this city.

Jack Johnson has not done much work since Wednesday afternoon. He was on the road as usual yesterday and played a little baseball late in the afternoon but otherwise he did not exert himself. He has six weeks still ahead of him and he figures that it is not necessary for him to exert himself. His plans call for boxing bouts Sunday afternoon.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

What Ty Says.

Why don't we have as many stolen bases as in the golden days of baseball.

Some one kindly speak up and answer the question.

Tyrus Cobb, the fleet base pilferer of the American league, believes he can give some explanation of the scarcity of dots in the S. B. column. Ty says he, that players are hampered by the intricate system of signals. What do you think of that? Here many of the wiseacres of baseball have been saying that the one great and glaring fault of the Tigers is that they have not enough signals.

But Mister Cobb thinks differently He says a player in these days of highly developed inside baseball has to remember 'steen signals, and that when he gets on the paths he cannot steal until the manager gives the cheerful nod from the coaching lines or from the bench.

Tyrus believes, or at least he says he does, that Billy Hamilton, a sweet swiper of the base, and Billy Sunday, the present evangelist, would have never purloined so many bases, had they had to wait until the manager gave the hurry-up-now signal.

Maybe Cobb is right. Maybe he isn't. Inside baseball has revolutionized the game and it is supposed to be productive of more runs than the old go-as-you-please methods of the grand old days.

It has been generally believed that the art of pegging to second had cut down the daring runners. Cobb gives an interesting explanation at least. He is an authority upon the art of stealing bases, too.

It is a well known fact that runners generally await the manager's signal. Mabe if some of the fliers were let loose on the paths they would swipe more bases.

Rolly Getting Timid.

Here's our own Rolly Zeider—for he graduated from the old Northern league—failing to swipe bases with that daring abandon that characterized his work in the Pacific coast baseball circles.

Out in California Rolly was credited with something like ninety-six stolen bases. To date in the swell baseball society of the American league, Zeider has only pilfered one forlorn base.

The kid is hitting over .300, and is fielding in a manner that makes him sure of his job just as long as he maintains his present gait. But one naturally wonders why a boy with such an outstanding and generous base-stealing record as the Rolly chap made in the Pacific coast circles should fail to become more of a yegg in the A. L.

Make Your Own Book.

Down in Noo York they are betting that the Jeffries-Johnson fight does not come off. In San Francisco and Los Angeles the alfalfa farmer is the favorite. In other portions of the country they are just naturally waiting for developments.

Why not make your own book? The way things are going you could toss a coin in the air to decide the way you were going to cast your kale. If you play form to win, you will back the black; if you listen to some suspicions, you will take a big royal chance on Jeff; if you are one of the cautious kind, you will keep your money.

Never before in the history of a world's championship prize fight have there been so many suspicions in the atmosphere. Imagine wagering that the fight will never take place! And, George, there are a lot who fervently hope Jeff will never enter the ring.

Cabbages and Kings.

Larry Hodgson, who has been in the sporting editor's chair for these many years, and through his writings on the St. Paul Dispatch, familiar to many readers of the live part of the newspaper, has turned over the duties of the desk to Mister McInerney, and is writing of poetical and kindred subjects.

There are few niftier poets in the great bread basket region than Larro Ho. He also knows baseball as few men in this part of the country know it. But his Cabbages and Kings column is being read by practically every one who reads the Dispatch.

An English Puzzle.

In England they are asking, really, now, who is the champion heavyweight of England. Blawst my soul, old fellow, what a stunner. 'Pon my word, now.

We naturally thought Samuel Adams Langford annexed the title when he sent Ian Hague down for the fatal drift. But the bloomin' Benglish sportsmen seemed to have overlooked the claim of the dusky pugilist. They are scratching their British heads and wondering if Petty Officer Curran or Gunner Moir is the champion.

Don't you remember—no, not Sweet Alice—that Gunner was the same bloomin' chap that Tommy Burns played tag with for a while before he sent him to the doom that has awaited most of the alleged heavyweight champions?

Sure enough. Now he is again figuring in the championship tournament. His tenaciousness is sure to be admired. The oaf doesn't know when he is licked, bloime 'im.

Let is be said that neither of them is champion. Sam Langford could wade through the whole list of English heavies, like a ravenous darkey through the luscious heart of a watermelon.

The puzzle is a typically English one, for it is no puzzle at all.

Long Live the King.

Tris Speaker, the sterling centerfielder of the Boston Red Stockings, is making a lot of smoke in the A. L. If he continues the present gait, there may be a new batting king in the American at the end of the season.

This Speaker person is one grand and sweet youth, when it comes to lying against the leather. He can give an outfielder or pitcher disease of the heart. Cobb and faithful-until-old-age Wagner had best watch out, or a sort of bogey man batsman will get them.

How About Rowing?

Since you ask, you must know. Well last night, Peter, there were exactly thirty-four men on the water. That is pretty good, is it not? This, too, when the weather is such that good Dr. Cook might have been excused for making mistakes in his notes, thinking that he was really further north than he was.

The enthusiasm is great this spring, and the boys are working very hard. There are two eights, and at the present time the second one is just about as fast as the first. The high school boys have two fours on the water, in addition to two fours that the boat club boys had out last night.

It was a very "oskaposa" showing and one that is very gratifying to the coaches. The spirit is willing and the flesh—strong, Percy; so there are very strong hopes that Duluth boys may return the present season with cute medals hanging from their watches.

Congenial Company, Eh?

Jack Johnson has a trained pig in his training quarters. The pig is said to be about the same color as the champion, and there is also a strange sympathy between the porker and the big negro. Wonder why.

There may be something in the nature of the big burr that calls out to the pig; and again, there may be something in the piggie that calls forth fervent admiration from the champion. A four-footed affinity.

Goodbye, "Tubby" Spencer.

It looks like goodnight for Large Spencer, the boy who has been doing the catching on Mike Kelley's St. Paul team. Mike has found it necessary to suspend the player indefinitely. Spencer is perhaps the best catcher in the American association, and he is also his own worst enemy. Mike has had trouble with the player before this season, and the violation of the rules, probably means the end of "Tubby."

EASY FOR THE ILLINOIS MEN

Purdue Track Team Defeated By Score of 96 to 30.

Champaign, Ill., May 21.—Illinois defeated Purdue 96 to 30 in a dual meet on Illinois field yesterday. A feature was East's two-mile race in 9:45 4-5, the fastest of the year in the West.

Murphy's pole vault of twelve feet was another feature.

Purdue was weak and the Illinois easily piled up a big majority. Herrick's half mile win was a spectacular event.

The summary:

Discus throw won by McCord, Illinois Stockton, Purdue, second, McFarland, Purdue, third. Distance, 121 feet, 8inches.

Two hundred and twenty-yard low hurdles, won by W. Drake, Illinois; second, E. Drake, Illinois; third Lashmet, Purdue. Time, 26 2-5.

Hammer throw — Won by Reeves, Illinois; second, Burns, third, Dallenbeck. Distance, 117 feet, 8 inches.

Pole vault—Won by Murphy, Illinois; Jones, Illinois, second; Gannon, Purdue, third. Height, 12 feet.

Two-mile run—Won by East, Illinois; Wassoon, Purdue, second; Redhed, Illinois, third. Time, 9:54 4-5.

Eight hundred and eighty-yard run—Won by Herrick, Illinois; Rohrer, second; Damaree, Purdue, third. Time, 1:58 ⅝-5.

Will They Wrestle?

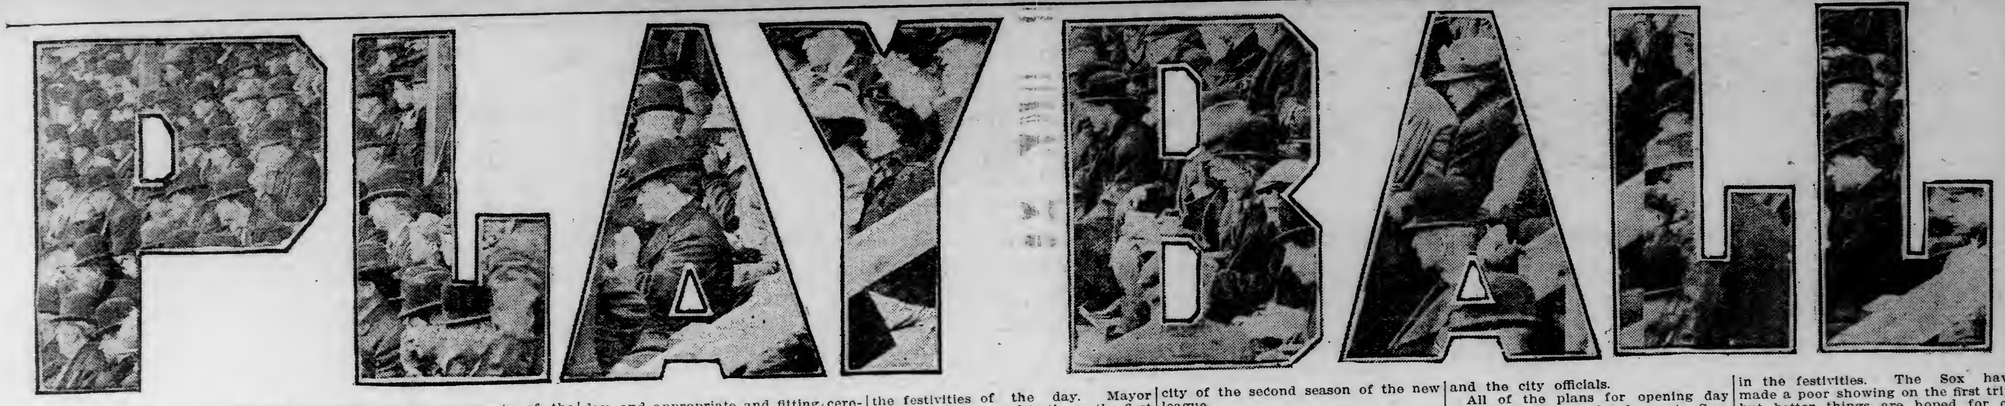
Chicago, May 21—Mayor Busse seems determined to prevent the Gotch-Zybszko wrestling match on Decoration day, May 30, as scheduled. Having lost the demurrer to the mandamus suit brought against him to compel the issuance of a permit, the mayor last night said he will carry the case to the appellate court. In the event of such an appeal, the case, it is said, cannot possibly be heard until after Decoration day.



May 26 will be the opening day for the Minnesota-Wisconsin league in this city. Upon that day the Rochester team will be the opponents of the White Sox. The Doctors will open a series of three games here upon that day, and appropriate and fitting ceremonies will usher in local league season.

Plans are already being made for the festivities of the day. Mayor Cullum will be asked to throw the first ball over the plate, and other exercises will mark the opening in this city of the second season of the new league.

It is planned to have a large parade of automobiles, headed by the players and the city officials.

All of the plans for opening day have not been completed as yet. Several unusual features will be included in the festivities. The Sox have made a poor showing on the first trip, but better things are hoped for on the home grounds.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

The official league knocker from across the bay has already begun to kick about the umpires. He suggests that Darby O'Brien write home, complaining about the indicator holders. So far this calamity crab from Grumbleville is the only one who has done any knocking along the line of umpire complaint.

If this chap wasn't knocking he wouldn't be even as happy as a sour and peeved person can be. Around the circuit there are a lot of serioes boosting for the success of the league. This person from Superior has all spring been a shining example of the person with a hammer. At first it was annoying, then it became humorous, and now it is getting tiresome and nauseating.

He has wailed dismally against the success of the league, and has persistently looked for chances to unduly criticize. There are knockers like the clamity one in almost every community, but every community is not so unfortunate as to have them on newspapers.

Mack Cook has returned from the road, where he had been with the Superior club. The Duluth boy will be farmed out for a while and may join the Grumblers later. His arm is not in the best of shape, according to his own story, and until his salary wing becomes stronger he will work in the brushes.

• • •

Frank Schaeter is with the Grumblers at the present time, the injury to Old Man Lizzettee giving the Duluth boy a chance to make good behind the bat. He will have to go some to even approach the record made by the vet behind the bat, for in addition to his good work in the fielding end of the game, Lizzette has been hitting like Nap Lajoie. He has been hitting the ball hard and often and has more home runs to his credit than any other player on the team.

Duluth won a game yesterday, and the fans are in paroxysms of delight. There is the hunch, now that the ice is broken, that the Sox may be able to go on and win a few more games before hitting the rattler for home. Al Cummings will join the team Monday at Eau Claire, and, if he is in anything like the condition he is reported to be in, he will prove of great service to the Sox.

Just now the pitching staff is not in the best of shape. A hill worker, who could go in and work with good effect, would sure be a blessing to the team. Cummings is reported to be good shape and looking forward to the best season of his career.

Rowland, playing the second bag for Wausau, is hitting the spheroid right merrily. That is what they need at Wausau. In the games played so far handsome Carl Bond, manager of the team, has not been seen in the lineup. It was generally thought before the season that the manager would hold down an infield posish.

• • •

Joe Safford, the silent manager of the La Crosse Outcasts, is getting to be the prize thief of the association. Silent Joe got three pilfered sacks against Superior in the game of last Wednesday and in each of the games played so far by his team the base running of the manager has been one of the features of the game.

• • •

It is reported around the circuit that Red Wing has a most wretched team, and that if the management of that aggregation wants the lunch to make any kind of a showing new men will have to be secured. Mique Malloy probably underestimated the speed of the other teams. He is in grave danger of losing that $100.

• • •

Mike Malloy is after Old Lefty Sporer, who used to pitch for Winnipeg in the old Northern league, and who later performed in the Western Canada league. Malloy is hot on the trail of players, recently returning from Minneapolis, where he beseeched Cantillion for aid. Cantillion had nothing that he could turn over to Mique, and it was here that the Malloy manager hit the trail of Lefty Sporer. It is hard to see what help Sporer could be to the team. He is hardly the sporer of old, and, unless he has visited the fountain of youth, would hardly do in the Minnesota-Wisconsin.

La Crosse papers state that Superior has one of the best teams in the league. In the games played with La Crosse so far, the Grumblers have shown strong. The work of Red McCulloch at first is especially commended by the German scribes.

Although "Slats" Morrow of the Eau Claire club has shown wildness and unsteadiness in the games he has worked in so far the present season, the present year should be a good one for the tall and poetic youth. The youngster has a world of speed, and if he improves any the present season he will be one of the hardest pitchers in the league to beat. The Sox had trouble in beating him last season, and he pitched a wonderful game yesterday.

There may be a lot of things the Sox need, but the worst need of the team, apparently, is fielders. When the Sox stop making errors they will begin to win games. The man tried at shortstop yesterday made only two errors, which is an improvement over the record made by his predecessor. By the process of elimination the man who follows the present shortfielder will probably only make one error.

But when all is said and done, the Sox have lost a number of games by one run and have really played in hard luck. Magnate Kuehnow is after the players and will get them whenever the chance presents itself. Ball players are not the easiest things in the world to get, and when a team needs them most they are the hardest to secure.

Slattery is scheduled to arrive at Red Wing today. This player would have been with the team before this but for a tangle in the transportation. A Duluth railroad was ordered to forward transportation four days ago, but for some reason neglected to do it. As a result the reporting of the player has been delayed. If the Slattery boy plays up to the form reported of him before the call to the post, he will prove a Red Cross nurse in desperate need to the injured Sox.

• • •

Though his team lost yesterday, there was some consolation in the breast of Mique Malloy, for he gathered two two-base hits during the course of the afternoon. What a shining example Mique is setting to the members of his tribe.

• • •

Why doesn't Darby try to get Jake Beckley? Jake has played baseball only thirty-four years and loves the game with such a rapturous love that he would be tickled to the point of happy expiration were he given an opportunity of breaking into the game again. There would be the delightful reminiscences that Darby and the Jake person could have.

• • •

Tom Taylor has failed to do much with the bludgeon as yet. A hard hitting outfielder would not do the team a bit of harm.

WITH THE AMATEURS

The strong Fitwells of this city will journey to Allouez tomorrow and line up against the team of that town. The Fitwells have been practicing steadily the present week and will present the strongest front of the season in the game of tomorrow.

The Fitwells are confident of winning the semi-professional championship of the northern part of the state, as the team includes some of the fastest players in this part of the Northwest.

Tomorrow the Adams team will meet the Two Harbors team at Two Harbors. The Two Harbors team includes some of the very strongest players of the professional class. Chaffee, tried out with Superior, is with the team, as well as several other professional players of Minny league experience. If the Adams team wins the game of tomorrow it will be entitled to rank with the strongest teams of this section of the country.

So far the present season the Adams have met the Scott-Graffs and the Cloquet team. Both of the games resulted in victories for the Adams. The team the present season is the strongest that the popular athletic association has ever placed in the field.

• • •

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 the Big Duluth base ball team will play the Scott-Graff team. The teams will line up as follows:

| Big Duluth. | | Scott-Graff. |
|---|---|---|
| Hammerbeck | c. | Wike |
| Kegler | p. | Sloan |
| Cari | 1b. | West |
| Swanstrom | 2b. | Case |
| Hillbur | 3b. | Gillon |
| A. Swanstrom | ss. | Hefferman |
| Johnson | rf. | Ulberg |
| P. Skomars | cf. | Stenberg |
| Quinn | lf. | Rakowsky |

All of the teams of the Duluth-Superior league will be busy tomorrow. Some exciting contests are looked for, as the race in the league is getting very exciting.

EX-GOVERNOR PAYS $2,000 FINE

Frank W. Rollins Pleads Guilty to Charge of Trying to Smuggle.

New York, May 21.—Frank West Rollins, former governor of New Hampshire, made his promised statement yesterday in answer to the charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of customs duties brought against him by customs inspectors last Friday. It took the form of a plea of guilty, and Judge Hand, sitting in the United States circuit court, construed it as an admission that Mr. Rollins had violated the law "knowingly, willfully and maliciously," and fined him $2,000. The laws provides a maximum penalty of two years in prison, a fine of $5,000 or both. The former governor took a big roll of bills from his pocket and paid his fine without comment.

The total value of the articles which the former governor neglected to declare is given as $4,736. The original complaint named Mrs. Rollins, his wife, and their son Douglas, as parties to the conspiracy, but the federal grand jury handed down but one indictment, naming only the former governor. As soon as Mr. Rollins learned of it, he promptly entered his plea, and when he paid his fine he visited the customs house, where it is said, he paid an additional $1,500 duties in order that further proceedings be dropped.

FISH DEFENDS THE INSURGENTS

Says They Are Merely Insurging Against Tyranny in the House.

Washington, May 21.—"The whole atmosphere of the house has changed of late, and many public questions are given the utmost consideration and the fullest debate on the floor of the house. Such have been the fruits of the contest waged for greater freedom of action and the rights of representatives; yet more remains to be done, and that it will be done within the next few weeks, admits of no doubt."

With these words Representative Fish, insurgent Republican from New York, closed a speech which he delivered in the house yesterday in which he defended the insurgents and their course, asserted that they were the real supporters of the best policies of the Republican party, and resented the criticism which has been heaped upon them.

Incidentally, Mr. Fish paid his respects to a number of his New York colleagues, associated with the regular wing of the party, and prophesied that the people would not return them to congress.

"Insurgents Against What?"

"Those of us who are unwilling to carry out every wish of the speaker and the house organization are derided as 'insurgents'," Mr. Fish said. "Insurgents against what? Republican policy? No, not that; but against the tyrannical rule of the house."

He attacked his New York Republican colleagues for an alleged attempt to commit the New York delegation to the adequacy of the rules of the house and for dragging in the name of Theodore Roosevelt with intent to lead people to believe that he stands for Cannonism."

"Republicanism," Mr. Fish continued, "does not mean the stifling of legislation drawn in the interests of the people and labor at the behest of corporations, nor does it stand for writing of tariff schedules, either by those who have special interests, to subserve, or for the benefit and at the behest of certain legislative cronies. The recent special elections in Massachusetts and New York attest it. It is no time to attempt to drive men out of the party."

ERIE MAKES TERMS WITH EMPLOYES

Baltimore & Ohio Standard to Be Reached During Next Year.

New York, May 21.—A full agreement between the Erie railroad and its conductors and trainmen, on an advanced schedule of wages, was reported last night at a conference between Vice President J. C. Stuart of the railroad and representatives of the employes.

Under the terms of the agreement a material advance will take effect June 1, while the Baltimore & Ohio standard will be established by degrees during the year 1911 on the Erie.

Freight crews will get the benefit of the full advance July 1, 1911, and it will be extended to the passenger department Sept. 1, 1911.

Two other agreements by the conductors and trainmen were made, a settlement having been effected with the Delaware & Hudson, and the terms were made with the Boston & Albany. In both cases the New York Central award was made the basis of the new schedule.

Satisfactory wage scales have now been arranged with all except two of the larger Eastern railroads—the Reading and the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Negotiations are now pending with these companies.

IOWA NEGRO WINS SECOND HONORS

Indiana Takes First Place in Interstate Oratorical Contest.

Omaha, Neb., May 21.—Levy T. Pennington, a junior of Farlham college, Richmond, Ind., won the annual contest of the Interstate Oratorical association last night. His subject was "The Evolution of World Peace."

Henry F. Coleman, colored, a junior student of Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Iowa, was awarded second honors. His subject was "The Philosophy of the Race Problem."

In announcing the winner, Association President J. Willis Hamblin of St. Paul accorded to the colored man the honor of announcing to the audience the name of the second award before the last.

Coleman is a graduate of Boone, Iowa, high school and his oration, he says, was written during his leisure hours while working in a livery stable.

Ten States Interested.

Ten states form the Interstate Oratorical association—Ohio, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana.

The number of speakers in the annual contest is limited to seven. The contestants delivered addrees before the judges, who eliminated the least meritorious. Those dropped this year were Minnesota, Illinois and Missouri. The contestants from the several states competed in preliminary contests in which nearly 7,000 students took part.

BEAUTIFUL GIRL IS BURIED IN BALLET GARB.

Sheldon, Ill., May 21.—A mystery has arisen in this neighborhood with the discovery of the body of a beautiful young woman buried in the Prairie Dell cemetery near Watseka, three weeks ago, garbed in the costume of a ballet dancer. Investigation by State's Attorney Pallisard, has met with little success.

The body is believed to be that of Miss Delvina Nichols, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Nichols, who arranged for the burial. Mrs. Nichols went from Houston, Tex., according to her own story, to Youngstown, Ohio, upon receiving word that her daughter had died April 29 at a Youngstown hospital. She brought the body in a richly made casket to Watseka, where members of the Nichols family formerly lived.

BLACK HAND MAN IS HELD IN $60,000 BAIL.

New York, May 21.—Sixty thousand dollars bail, the largest bond ever demanded in Newark, N. J., was fixed in the case of Augustino Sarno, accused of being the leader of a Black Hand gang. Six charges, including bomb-throwing, highway robbery and larceny, were placed against him, and $10,000 bail was fixed on each charge.

In Brooklyn Hyman Edelstein, a well-to-do truck owner, was held in $30,000 bail, charged with being the head of the "Arsenic club," which has for years levied blackmail by poisoning horses.

BOLD THIEVES FAIL TO ROB UTAH BANK.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 21.—An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Bank of Layton, a town twenty miles north of here, was attended by sensational incidents yesterday.

Two men overpowered Hiram Evans, night watchman, and compelled him to conduct them to the home of Lee Ellison, cashier, half a mile away. Here they broke in and Cashier Ellison was ordered to accompany them, in his bare feet and partially clothed, to the bank.

At the point of a revolver, the cashier opened the vault door, but told the robbers that the inner door was locked with a time lock. After a consultation the bandits decided it was futile to attempt to force the time lock, and left.

LAKE MOHONK MEETING ENDS

Peace Delegates Hear Cheering News From Around the World.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 21.—The sixteenth annual session of the Lake Mohonk Conference on Interlational Arbitration concluded its deliberations last night. The most important happening was the official announcement to the conference by Secretary Knox, through Solicitor of the State Department James Brown Scott, of the probable early establishment of an international court of arbitral justice.

This assurance, coupled with President Taft's recent declaration in favor of arbitration treaties containing no reservations as to national honor or interest, and the presence here of the dean of Worcester, Eng., and Rev. William Thomas of London as delegates for the churches of all sorts and denominations in the British and German empires, to urge American churches to join in a world peace league, infused the degelates with a spirit of optimism.

Hear About Peace Outlook.

Other cheering news was the official announcement that Peru has accepted the offer of mediation by the United States, Brazil and Argentina to act as mediators in her dispute with Ecuador, and an unofficial report that Ecuador will do likewise; and the near approach of the celebration of 100 years of peace between the United States and Great Britain, with an object lesson in limitation of armaments for more than ninety years on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river.

Among the speakers at last night's session were Benton Gilreath of Birmingham, Ala.; Oscar Whitelaw of St. Louis, assistant treasurer of the United States; N. C. Shafer, superintendent of public instruction of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, United States commissioner of education.

AERONAUTS LAND AT IONIA, MICH.

Honeywell and His Companion Cross Lake in Their Baloon.

Ionia, Mich., May 21.—The balloon Centennial, piloted by Capt. H. E. Honeywell, and carrying also W. F. Assman, which left St. Louis Thursday in an attempt to capture the Lehm cup for long distance flights, landed yesterday at the little town of Shiloh, ten miles north of Ionia. The balloon had been in the air twenty-two hours and covered 450 miles.

Crossing Lake Michigan from Kenosha, Wis., the balloonists made good time at high altitude and had hopes of reaching New England until they encountered a calm over Central Michigan.

After vainly trying different altitudes for a favorable wind, they landed between 3 and 4 o'clock, dropping near the Pere-Marquette depot and having an hour before train time to wrap their pack. They left for St. Louis.

Capt. Honeywell said they kept at a high altitude all night because of rain storms below them, and passed Kenosha at a height of 2,000 feet.

"We saw a tug chase us," he said, "but soon left it behind. During the morning the heat was intense and blistered our faces.

"Passing Grand Haven harbor about noon, we were saluted by the whistles of steamers on the lake, and we passed five miles north of Grand Rapids about 1 o'clock in the afternoon."

Menominee Matron Dead.

Menominee, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Margaret Clancy, aged 29 years, the wife of M. L. Clancy of a local business college, died in childbirth at the family home on Main street. The funeral will be held from the home of the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Madigan of Windsor, Ont.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM MINNESOTA

Cornhuskers Defeat Gophers in Annual Field Meet Held at Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., May 21.—Fast work by the new men of the squad gave Nebraska the victory over Minnesota in the track meet here yesterday. Five Nebraska men won "Ns" by taking either one first or two seconds. Reed and Graham tied for individual honors, each winning a first and second and tieing for another first.

In the 100-yard dash, Hill of Minnesota tied the Nebraska university record of 10 seconds.

The Nebraska men excelled in the long-distance runs and the hurdles. Nebraska lost the 220-yard hurdle by an accident to Powers, who fell over the third hurdle and was unable to continue.

The final score was: Nebraska, 63; Minnesota, 49.

The summary:

Mile run—Clark, Nebraska, won; Fiedeman, Minnesota, second. Time, 4:42.

Half-mile run—Hill, Minnesota, won; Amberson, Nebraska, second. Time, 2.03¾.

120-yard hurdle—Won by Flack, Nebraska; Fleming, Nebraska, second. Time, 17 seconds.

Pole vault—Graham and Shock of Nebraska tied. Height, 10 feet.

Shotput—Frank of Minnesota won; Shonka, Nebraska, second. Distance, 40 feet 6¾ inches.

High jump—Graham of Nebraska won; Osteign, Minnesota, second. Distance, 5 feet 6 inches.

Discus throw—Frank of Minnesota won; Grant, Minnesota, second. Distance, 114 feet 8 inches.

Broad jump—Munson, Nebraska, won; Graham, Nebraska, second. Distance, 22 feet 3½ inches.

100-yard dash—Won by Hill of Minnesota; Reed, Nebraska, second. Time, 10 seconds.

220-yard dash—Won by Reed of Nebraska; Hill of Minnesota second. Time, 22 2-5 seconds.

Football Schedule.

Grand Forks, N. D., (Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota University football schedule for this year has been as follows: Oct. 1, Grand Forks high school in Grand Forks; Oct. 3, university alumni in Grand Forks; Oct. 15, Carleton in Grand Forks; Oct. 22, Hamline university at St. Paul; Oct. 29, Fargo college at Fargo; Nov. 5, agricultural college at Grand Forks.

ABE ATTELL IS IN GREAT FORM

New York, May 21.—Abe Attell, featherweight champion, was at his best last night in the 10-round bout he fought before the National Sporting Club of America with Tommy Murphy of Brooklyn.

The first six rounds were all Attell's. He was faster, cleaner and cooler. In particular, his left jab to the face was puzzling and damaging.

In the seventh and eighth, Murphy worked to close quarters and did some wicked in-fighting. They were his only rounds. With a burst of speed Attell let loose all he knew in the ninth and made Murphy look almost like an amateur. In the tenth, the champion was content to hold a safe lead.

Contracts and Releases.

Chicago, May 21.—The following bulletin was issued today by President T. M. Chivington of the American association:

Contracts:

With Minneapolis, William Lelivelt.

With St. Paul, Louis Laroy, Fred Liese.

With Toledo, Harry Kirsch, George Boice.

Releases:

By Louisville to Chicago Nationals, Andrew Coakley; to Lincoln, Neb., Z. Z. Hagerman.

By Columbus to Rochester, N. Y., Roy Beecher; to Grand Rapids, Mich., Fred Cook (optional), A. L. Jacobson.

By Minneapolis to Des Moines, A. L. Sage.

By St. Paul, Pete O'Brien and Ed Donalds (unconditionally).

By Toledo to Monmouth, Ill., William Roes, Fred Lamline (optional), Clarence Miller (optional),; to East Claire, Wis., Dan Calahan, John Downing.

CONDITIONS RIGHT FOR BIG REGATTA.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 21.—Conditions early today were almost ideal for the eighth annual regatta of the American Rowing association over the Henley course on the Schuykill river this afternoon. Forty crews and nearly 200 oarsmen from the rowing centers of the East are entered for the twelve events on the program. The first race will be started at 2:30 p. m. and the crews in the final race will be called to the starting buoys at 6:10 p. m.

The race of the day probably will be that for the junior college eights in which Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia are entered.

The race for college freshmen eights is also one of the star events, the crews entering being from Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

THE GREATEST FAN IN THE COUNTRY

PRESIDENT TAFT AT A BALL GAME IN ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, May 21.—President Taft does not miss any opportunities of witnessing the national game. This picture of him was made while attending the ball game at National League Park here recently, and shows him conversing with Governor Hadley of Missouri

The deeper one goes into the virtues of Franklin air cooling the more unfavorable water cooling appears.

Franklin air cooling not only equals water cooling but in addition has virtues not possessed by water cooling.

The water-cooled motor consists of two separate mechanisms—the engine and the cooling system. If one gets out of order the other is disabled.

The Franklin motor is one mechanism—the engine. The cooling system is not a mechanism; it is not anything separate or distinct from the engine. It utilizes the fly wheel, the engine boot and the hood but does not add mechanism.

There is not a single condition of water cooling the Franklin can not meet, but there are a number of conditions in which the water-cooled automobile can not meet the Franklin.

The Franklin can meet the water-cooled automobile in any road test fast or slow, mud, sand or hills, and if the work is severe enough the Franklin will outdo the water-cooled automobile every time.

The Franklin cooling system is unaffected by cold or hot weather; it does not require any attention.

In St. Louis county there are 183 Civil war veterans who will on May 30 think with reverence of their dead comrades and of the days now long past when the air was thick with the smoke of war and the whole country from one end to the other was in confusion.

In all the United States there are now but 571,960 veterans of the Civil war. They are going faster as the years roll on, and soon will come the time when the younger generation will keep fresh the memory of the men that the country might not be divided.

In Minnesota there are 4,515 veterans. In every village, town and city there will be held appropriate exercises in honor of the living as well as for those who have passed to the great beyond.

Decoration or Memorial day, as many of the old soldiers wish it called, is to them the most beautiful day of the year. On this day fond memories are brought back of ones who were loved but who are no more. Thrilling scenes are brought back with the coming of the day as though they took place but yesterday. It is mostly all a day of peace and quiet. It is a time to think of the crisis through which this country passed so many years ago and to give thanks that all ended so well.

Of late years it has been more of a picnic day, a day of sports and other amusements. This is not pleasing to the old soldiers who feel that the American public could give at least one day in the year to them. An effort has been made to have sporting events suppressed so far as possible and the day spent more quietly. In many cities this quiet is now a feature of Memorial day.

All over the United States the graves of the soldiers who have gone are being decorated, and the ones who live are being made to feel that they are appreciated. The graves of unknown soldiers are being decked with flags and flowers, and the waters are being strews with flowers, in memory of those who lost their lives while doing their duty aboard ship.

South Not Forgotten.

In the South, as well as in the North, the graves of those who wore the grey are being decorated. Some of the Southerners are buried in the North. Their graves will not be forgotten. They fought for what they thought was right, and very tenderly will remembrances be laid on their resting places.

In the schools the significance of the observance of the day is being taught to the children. No one is being allowed to grow up these days without knowing what the date stands for.

On this date the old soldiers are being lauded by enthusiastic younger speakers; the country from one end to the other, from North to South, is being decked with flags, and everywhere patriotism is being shown. Foreigners say they never see any signs of patriotism in America, but on two days of the year—Decoration day and the Fourth of July—they would have to search but little to find the true feeling of all and the esteem in which our heroes are held.

The Day in Duluth.

In Duluth the day will be observed with appropriate exercises. The burden will be taken completely off the shoulders of the veterans, who are failing in individual strength with the passing of the years. The Citizens' staff has taken charge, and the veterans will be called on only to take part in the exercises planned in their honor.

The executive committee of the Citizens' staff is composed of: J. E. McGregor, chairman; E. B. Dunning, Harvey Clapp and Norton Mattocks. The officers are: B. P. Neff, president; S. S. Williamson, vice president; H. L. Dresser, secretary; J. E. McGregor, treasurer.

The observance of the day in Duluth will be after the usual custom. On the Friday before Memorial day one member of the citizens' staff and one Grand Army man will visit each of the city schools, where short talks will be made to the children.

Sunday, May 29, the members of Culver and German posts, G. A. R., will attend services at the Endion Methodist church. Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the church, will preach an appropriate sermon.

On the afternoon of Memorial day the graves of the soldiers who fought during the Civil and Spanish-American wars will be decked with flowers and flags.

The parade will be in charge of Col. F. E. Resche. It will be headed by the Third Regiment band and the two local posts will be in line. The Spanish War Veterans, the militia companies, members of the citizens' staff and the school children will complete the parade.

For the old soldiers who have become feeble and unable to stand the walk, carriages will be provided. There are many who do not want to miss the Memorial day exercises but who are unable to be long upon their feet.

The Parade.

The parade will form as follows:

FIRST DIVISION.
Police.
Chief Marshal, Lieut.-Col. F. E. Resche, Third Infantry, M. N. G.
Staff of Chief Marshal.
Third Regiment Band.
Maj. H. V. Eva, Third Infantry, M. N. G. Staff.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Office-holding and desire for office-holding in St. Louis county has been much talked of recently, but there has been little actual filing for office. To date the only names of candidates enrolled in the county auditor's office are those of one candidate for auditor, two candidates for senator, two for sheriff, one for judge of probate and three for county commissioner. The list is made up thusly:

St. Louis County Office Sweepstakes.

Auditor—Odin Halden.

Sheriff—William J. Bates and Ed Woolway.

Senator—Fiftieth district, Thomas M. Pugh and Bert N. Wheeler.

Judge of probate—S. W. Gilpin.

County commissioner—Neil McInnis, U. S. Grant McMahon and John Tischer.

Mr. Wheeler, who has filed for the Prohibition nomination, is the only candidate to appear who is not a Republican.

Although these are the only aspirants who have made formal confession of their designs, many others are talking of filing or being talked of as prospective candidates for this or that office. Among the possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for sheriff is Charles Jesmore, former mayor of Eveleth and at present alderman-at-large in the council of that city. Mr. Jesmore has been in Duluth for several days and left for his home this morning. He said last evening that during his stay in the city he had been approached on the subject by numbers of his friends, but had not decided one way or the other on the proposition.

Mr. Jesmore has been one of the wheel horses of range Democracy for years. He has served his city as mayor four terms, and during the time he occupied the executive chair gave the community a sound, conservative and economical administration.

The Eveleth man hesitated to discuss his suggested candidacy for sheriff, but admitted that he has given the subject some thought. However, he said that any other good man might run would be given his hearty support if he was not a candidate himself. He was emphatic in declaring that he is not now a candidate, and that he has at this time no definite intention to declare himself a candidate.

However, it is not in the least impossible that he will enter the race.

John R. Meining of Duluth, who formerly lived at Merritt, on the range, is expected to file for sheriff. The Virginia Enterprise recently made the positive statement that Mr. Meining will do so in the near future. He is a traveling salesagent of the Duluth Candy company, and has a wide acquaintance on the range and in the city. Mr. Meining has in the past, on several occasions, been a candidate for the nomination, without success. He believes that he is now more fortunately placed than ever to make the run, and is confident that he will win.

J. D. Lowe of West Duluth, it is rumored, will file on the Democratic ticket. He has been state boiler inspector for the last four years, and is well and favorably known in all parts of the county. Before his appointment to the boiler inspection service, Mr. Lowe was a locomotive engineer. He has lived in Duluth for the last sixteen years. His home is at 316 North Sixtieth avenue west.

Charles H. Graham of Aurora has announced his intention of seeking the nomination for the office of county superintendent of schools. Mr. Graham is one of the oldest school men, in point of service, on the range. He was connected with the schools at Aurora as principal and teacher for a number of years.

"Better look out, Bill. Paddy can set up the beer for the boys a good deal cheaper than you can," warns the Gilbert Herald, in commenting on a rumor that William Eaton of Virginia plans to go after the senatorial scalp of P. R. Vail, who is a brewery man. Dr. Welrick, mayor of Hibbing, who has been counted upon by certain of his friends to get into the senatorial contest in the forty-ninth, has not been heard from of late, but if he permits his friends to have their way about it, he will be a very strong factor in the situation.

A dispatch from Owatonna says that Former Mayor Charles I. Reigard of that city will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination against Congressman C. Tawney. It having developed at a meeting of the insurgents' executive committee that he has decided to remove from the state to Oregon—at least, temporarily. If he can dispose of his interests there he may return to Minnesota after several months' absence. No attempt was made to pick a candidate, it was said, the conferees devoting their attention largely to outlining a plan of campaign against Tawney. Representatives of Winona, Mower and Steele county insurgents promised their colleagues those counties would make it interesting for Tawney.

Frank A. Day, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, has gone to a hospital in St. Paul for a slight operation. The trouble is a minor one, and Mr. Day's friends are not at all alarmed.

"We don't hear any more about Roosevelt's opinion of the Taft administration, I notice," said a prominent politician who was lounging in a local lobby some days ago. "Of course, when Roosevelt says he didn't write letters such as those described in the Washington dispatch, we believe him. There is one thing, however, that sticks in my crop, and that's the similarity between this incident and incidents that were more or less frequently observed during the Roosevelt regime.

"When he was president, the colonel had a canny way of finding out—at least, trying to find out—in what direction the frog of public sentiment was going to jump. Some intimation would mysteriously come out from Washington to the effect the administration was likely to do this or that about a pending proposition, and the president then would let the proposition alone until the country had been heard from. He would thus find out how the public felt about the problem of the moment, and Roosevelt usually was on the popular side of questions. There was a reason, you see.

"Now, it occurs to me that John Callan O'Laughlan was one of the closest of the colonel's newspaper friends in those days. In fact, it is my recollection that the paper for which O'Laughlan was then correspondent printed now and then some of these White House "feelers." I wouldn't think of saying I believe the then president told the correspondent what to write and then later denied that he had given utterance to what may have appeared as a result of his suggestion. Mr. O'Laughlan wouldn't need any such deflated instructions, possibly. Being a good friend of the president, and later an assistant secretary of some-thing-or-other in one of the departments, probably he showed an inventive turn of mind and got rean inventive turn of mind and got results without finding it necessary to ask the president what to say.

"At any rate, it does not strike me as being beyond the range of possibility that, returning from Europe after being with Col. Roosevelt for some time, Mr. O'Laughlan incidentally and casually let it become known that the colonel longed to know what is the attitude of the people toward the Taft administration. It might occur to whoever the returning traveler should happen to speak of the subject, that the quickest way to let the colonel know would be by crediting him with a desire to boost the Taft administration.

"It is my humble opinion that Col. Roosevelt now has no doubt as to what is the public opinion of the Taft administration.

"And I have no doubt, myself, that Mr. Roosevelt will be just as eager now to be on the right side of questions that may come up as he has been in the past."

"Lind will draw from twenty to forty thousand more votes than any other man the Democrats can nominate for governor," remarks the Ada Herald, commenting on the efforts of Twin City newspapers to nominate Hammond for the Democrats. "It's no use, boys," says the Herald. "The Democrats are going to pick John Lind as their standard bearer this year and then the people are going to elect him governor."

Prospects are good for a lively mix in the Thirty-second legislative district, which is comprised of Chisago, Kanabec and Pine counties. The senator representing the district is Victor L. Johnson, who will be unopposed for renomination. The vivacity of the campaign will be limited, if it materializes, to the fight for the two seats in the lower house apportioned to the district.

Something Doing in the 32nd.

Henry P. Webb of Sandstone, who represents Pine county in the legislative delegation, will be opposed for renomination by J. Adam Bede. Everybody knows who Bede is. Mr. Webb is an ex-mayor of Sandstone, a merchant and a banker. He served his second term in the last legislature and made a good record. Bede may be expected to put up the hardest fight he is capable of, as it would probably appear unseemly and undignified in a former congressman, even though he have some repute as a humorist, to suffer defeat in a contest for a state legislative seat.

Kanabec county is represented by Henry Rines, another member with a good record who has served two terms. He is a former county auditor of Kanabec, having held that office for a period of ten years, and is a newspaper publisher. He has not definitely decided to run again, but if he does his opponent is likely to be W. A. Howard, the present county attorney, who stands well in the community and may be expected to put up a good fight for the honor.

Then there is another complicating possibility. Sheriff Charles Andrews of Chisago county, which portion of the district has the senatorship, may get into the race. He has not announced that he will do so, but there is talk of his shying his castor into the ring.

Two Wilkin county editors have got into the field for legislative honors. They are Francis H. Mathews of the Wilkin County News, published at Campbell, and Moyle Edwards of the Breckenridge Gazette. Phillip S. Converse of Detroit, Becker county, has made formal announcement that he is a candidate also from the Sixtieth legislative district, which was represented two years ago by John McGrath, R. J. Wells and H. O. Bjorge.

A more or less informing story of how J. Adam Bede came to lose his seat in congress is going the roads of the press of the country. It is reprinted here with credit to the Washington correspondence of the Cleveland Plain-dealer, and with no attempt say whether it approximates the truth:

Swiping of Bede's Jokes Fatal.

"Think of a man being defeated for congress because somebody swiped all his best jokes.

"A visitor from Minnesota here the other day told a little crowd at his hotel that Adam Bede missed re-election in the Eighth Minnesota district the last time for just that reason.

"It seems, according to the visitor's story, that a fellow by the name of Barker, who is a sort of boss of the Eighth district, cares not at all for Adam Bede. Now, as everybody knows, Bede was regarded as one of the chief wits of congress. He always had more stories to tell than any seven other men engaged in national legislation. This ready fund of stories was always a great help to him in making a campaign. He would send his crowd home in a good humor and they would vote for him.

"Well, Barker thought and thought how to defeat Bede. One day at 3 o'clock an idea came. He made a deal with one C. B. Miller to oppose Bede and the fight was on.

"Bede started to make a few speeches in a remote corner of his district, and Barker sent a stenographer down with instructions to take down all Bede's funny stories. Then when the fight grew warmer Barker billed his friend Miller just about one day ahead of Bede in each town. When Bede arrived and began to tell his jokes the crowd would act bored, for they had heard the same stories the night before. Bede dug up some new ones, but Barker had arranged that they should be wired ahead to Miller.

"After about a week of this Bede became a fallen idol. They refused to vote for a man who appeared to be trailing along about one block in the rear of the joke parade.

"Today Miller occupies Bede's seat in the house of representatives."

Money makes the mare go, whether the beastie belongs to the brewer or the prohibitionists. The Anti-saloon league, it is said, hopes to have available for campaign purposes this year $60,000. How much the other side can manage to scrape up is not stated. At any rate, the league will have much more of the "stuff" this year than they had two years ago, and, according to report, it will be judiciously used in senatorial districts, less attention being paid to the fortunes of option candidates for the lower house.

"Dry" War Chest Isn't To Be Empty.

The organization behind the two forces are said to have coincidentally adopted the program of making a non-partisan fight in every senatorial district. The county optionists figure that the house will be safely for their cause, and the liquor people don't care if it is. It's a fight to the finish for control of the upper house, for without that the optionists can do nothing that will help their cause. The house can pass option measures till it gets black in its multi-fashioned face, and the senate can nonchalantly ignore the fact, if the liquor liberals have their senate way in the election.

The Anti-saloon league is the sustaining organization of the county option movement and its leaders say they find the chances are much in their favor.

The other fellows are not saying a thing.

THE MAN THE JOB NEEDS

Something About Judge Alfred Jaques, Democratic Candidate for Congress From the Eighth Minnesota District. . .

BACK in the early sixties there was a school in a small Illinois town that served its time and its patronage much as the "prep" school of this period serves its day and its pupils. This Illinois educational institution was known as a "select school" and was presided over by Prof. S. H. Waldo, who was an able and a learned Yale man.

There came one day to Prof. Waldo's school a stockily built youth, whose blue eyes twinkled with good humor, but at times took on a steely hue when determination triumphed over easy good humor. The new pupil hadn't had all the opportunities enjoyed by some of the other pupils before coming into the Waldo school, and he found that he must work before coming into the Waldo school, and he found that he must work harder than other lads of his age if he wanted to win his way to their grade in the school.

When that thought took form in his mind, the teachers and pupils had an opportunity to observe with what singleness of purpose the new student could devote his energies to the realization of an object that he set before himself as a goal. He stuck to that job until he had completed it. Then he might have slowed up a bit, of course, but he had become interested in making progress along those lines and he kept right on until he quit the school. And all the time he was there he found time to be a loyal schoolmate, an energetic follower of the sports of his fellows, and always a friend to the lad that needed a friend.

The same qualities that were his characteristics then distinguish him now. That was long ago. Now he is a man in the prime of life, young in spirit as then, but with a mind stored with the fruits of hard work, of clean living, and of loyalty to friends and principles that were not lightly made his own.

The student of the early sixties is the prospective Democratic nominee for congressman from the Eighth Minnesota district of today, and his name is Alfred Jaques.

JUDGE ALFRED JAQUES.

THE Jaques personality is an interesting one. There is in it nothing of the spectacular, nor of lack lustre. The absolute squareness of the man in his attitude toward every other man and every measure is inevitably the first and most persistent impression that comes to him who gives thought to what manner of man he is. He knows men, and he has faith in men. Democracy, with the "D" writ large, has spelled the political faith to which he has adhered since he cast his first vote, but the "lower case" democracy, (to use a slang phrase of the print shop) is the word that tells what has been his creed and his guide in all his relations with man.

As a lawyer, Mr. Jaques is able, careful and conscientious. Of him it is said by those who know him well that he has never descended to pettifogging tactics to gain a point in court, and the courts before which he has appeared for many years have a cordial respect for him as a man and an attorney, while as a trial lawyer he has inculcated a healthy respect for his powers in the minds of able advocates who have opposed him.

As a politician, he is almost unique. He has been a candidate for office twice. Once he was elected. Another time he was not elected. There is nothing unique about that, certainly, but his political activities have been in behalf of others rather than for himself. It is related of him that on numerous occasions, when it was not supposed that he was taking the slightest interest in the campaign except as a voter, he has quietly gone to work in vigorous fashion to bring out the party vote—and other votes, too, maybe—because of a conviction in his mind that some probably obscure candidate on the ticket was in need of help and deserved it. Jaques saw that he got the help. And that is almost unique, as politicians go.

AT THAT, he is not essentially a politician except insofar as any citizen who takes an active and intelligent interest in affairs of government is a politician in the truest sense of the word. He is a scholar, but he doesn't permit his liking for scholarly pursuits to shut out the other good things of life.

From 1887 to 1889 Mr. Jaques was special judge of the municipal court of Duluth. He was elected to the office at a regular election and ran on the Democratic ticket, of course. Judge Jaques was indorsed for the office by the bar association and had no opposition at the polls. In 1896 Judge Jaques and the late Roger S. Powell were nominated by the Democrats for places on the district bench, but Judges Cant and Ensign were elected. In that election Judge Jaques made a very good showing against the Republican nominees, who still retain their judgeships.

Since that campaign, Judge Jaques' political activities have been only of the kind that help the other fellow. They were not calculated to accomplish any other purpose. Kindly in his estimates of his fellow, his judgment of men is unerring, say those who have seen evidences of his work in behalf of others.

As has been said, the judge has been a consistent Democrat since he became old enough to vote. His father, William Cowpen Jaques, was a Jackson Democrat and a man of strong political convictions. Among the presidential candidates for whom he voted were Polk, Cass and Pierce. Then came the beginnings of a crisis. He voted for Fremont, then for Lincoln in two campaigns and once for Grant. After that came the candidates Greeley, Cooper, Streeter, Butler, Weaver, and finally Bryan. The son, back there in the Illinois town of Geneseo, in Henry county, and after he struck out from the old home, stuck to the Democratic ticket.

IN HIS home life, as people here in Duluth know him, he is most happily situated. The judge has four sons, two who are now students in the University of Minnesota, and two who attend public school in the city. Where the sons are concerned, Judge Jaques is distinctly and decidedly "one of the boys."

When the judge went to St. Paul to attend the Jefferson day banquet not so very long ago, a man came into a throng of Democrats, asking for him. And some one who knew him well, replied:

"Jaques? No question about where he is. He's over at the university churming with his boys."

And that's where he was and what he was doing.

Mrs. Jaques, the mother of the four boys who churn with their father, is a daughter of George W. Shaw, and comes from the town where the husband and father grew up, got his schooling, married, and began to vote the Democratic ticket.

Besides voting the Democratic ticket, being sociable and friendly, delving deep in the lore of the law, and churming with his boys, Judge Jaques delights in the pleasure of the gymnasium the hand-ball court, and the skating rink.

THE same persistence and high resolve that Jaques, the youth of the Geneseo school, exhibited when he applied himself to the task of reaching his goal, may reasonably be expected to manifest themselves in Judge Jaques, the Democratic candidate for congress from the Eighth Minnesota district, it may be assumed.

At any rate, when a group of friends talked to the judge about the coming struggle, he contented himself with remarking:

"I think maybe I'll show some of you older fellows I can make a pretty lively campaign."

And his friends heartily agreed with him.

WITH A WEDDING GUEST,

It Is Alleged, Bride-to-Be Eloped on Day of Marriage.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 21.—Annie Robeskie of Pittston, who was to have married Anthony Morris, is supposed to have run away with Frank Kallan, one of the wedding guests, who is a married man.

An hour before the wedding ceremony was to have taken place Kallan and the girl were seen to be in deep conversation. Nothing has yet been learned of their whereabouts.

Morris, the jilted man, is indifferent as to whether she returns or not.

SIX MILLION WOMEN GET ONLY $270 A YEAR.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—That 6,000,000 women of the United States are at work under untoward conditions, at salaries averaging $270 per annum, was the declaration of Mrs. Raymond Robbins of Chicago before last night's session of the National Woman's Trade Union league executive board.

Mrs. Frederick C. Howe of Cleveland said that "man is made in the image of God. Therefore for a woman to ask a raise in salary was blasphemy."

The day sessions were executive.

SOME PASSAGES FROM A DEFENDER'S DIARY

(From the New York Evening Post.)

May 1, 1912.—At St. Paul. Thought on getting up that this was my day for defending Hitchcock. Carpenter reminded me it was Ballinger's turn. Spoke to 13,000 persons on the value of the Northwest to the Union, and assured them that no brighter star than R. A. Ballinger had ever come out of the West—certainly Lochinvar. He had stuck to me through thick and thin, and I have stuck by him no matter what yellow weeklies and others may think.

As for Wickersham's easy going ways about a little thing like a date, I said that this only showed the bigness of the man. Saw St. Paul defeat Toledo, 7 to 6. Nothing like the national game.

May 2, 1912.—At Chicago. Today I defended Philander—good, brave old Philander! Told my auditors what a true, kind friend he had been, and how disgusted I was that the newspapers continue, in their shameful ignorance, to abuse him. Made this also a "double-header" speech day by denouncing demagogues and the reckless press. Had intended to save this for Milwaukee. Can understand now why T. R. founded the Ananias club.

May 3, 1912.—Milwaukee. Had meant to defend Hitchcock today, but something in a morning newspaper led me to say a kind word for Wickersham. Declared he was not trying to be political boss of New York, or going to sell the Philippines to the trusts, and denied that he wrote decisions to please the administration. That his opinions always coincide with my wishes is due merely to the fact that I think in terms of law—more than some presidents can say. Admitted he sometimes arranges dates on public documents with kind hearted free-handedness.

May 4, 1912.—St. Louis. Hitchcock's turn. "A fine, able administrator first, who works until daybreak every night," politician only second. No matter if he did get me my nomination, he is a good one.

May 5, 1912—Cincinnati. Had meant to defend myself today against the newspapers, but a slur on the Payne-Aldrich tariff this morning made me mad. Explained that the Paine-Aldrich tariff was the best tariff ever passed. Defended the Republican party from the charge that it had not kept its campaign pledges; pointed out that the platform did not specifically promise downward revision. Why will people forget this? I thought I had talked enough against it. Saw Charley's nine trounce the New Yorks.

May 6, 1912.—Louisville. Defended Aldrich because, even if he is in retirement, he worked hard for me while senator. Reminded the people that during the worst of the insurgency in 1910 my best friends and supporters were Aldrich, Kean, Lodge, Elkins and Hale, a brave and loyal old guard. Told them I was satisfied Mr. Aldrich's work for the monetary commision would immortalize him. Louisville, 8; Kansas City, 6.

May 7, 1912.—Springfield, Ill. Took the liberty of telling the people of this state that sufficient justice had not been done to ex-Speaker Cannon, a splendid watch-dog of the treasury, a real rock-ribbed Republican, who made congress efficient. In many aspects like Lincoln, notably in his courage and refusal to know when he was defeated. Spoke before the Fifth Ward Clam Chowder club.

May 8, 1912.—Buffalo. Defended my apointment of Governor Hughes to the supreme bench. Buffalonians still growling because I took him out of politics. Let them know straight from the shoulder that this was the best appointment I ever made.

May 9, 1912.—Albany. Defended my position on the income tax as proposed in 1910. Showed wherein Justice Hughes was wrong. Visited the fair for indigent inebriates.

May 10, 1912.—New York. Defended my railroad legislation of 1910. Agreed that it was not all that I had hoped for, but, like the Payne-Aldrich tariff, was the best railroad legislation ever passed by the Republican, or any other party. Boston, 3; New York, 0.

May 11, 1912.—Trenton. Defended my whole cabinet. Decried this constant criticism by an irresponsible press, by demagogues, etc., etc.

May 12, 1912.—Philadelphia. Defended my conservation policy. Denied that the interior department had any intention of making a present of the Cunningham claims to J. P. Morgan—Knox is taking care of him. Philadelphia, 4; Washington, 2.

May 13, 1912. Home again. Defended the Washington baseball team. Boston, 13; Washington, 1.

June 1, 1912.—Off on another educational tour. Defended Wickersham today at Richmond. Wish I could make a fuss over calling Sept. 26 Sept. 11?

June 2, 1912.—Atlanta. Defended the statue of Robert E. Lee and Hitchcock.

June 3, 1912.—Savannah. Defended the Payne-Aldrich tariff before the Society for Providing City Flowers.

June 4, 1912.—Charleston. Defended the Republican party and the income tax.

June 5, 1912.—Wilmington, Del. Defended Philander Knox. A better man than Zelaya in every way. One of Pittsburg's finest products. Does not make any difference if our South American trade has gone all to pieces, Knox is Root's equal.

June 6, 1912.—Philadelphia. Philadelphia, 3; New York, 2. A good word for Ballinger before the Golden Sunshine Society of Modern Mothers.

June 7, 1912.—Washington. Defended the good old protectionist party. Admitted that I used to be a free trader when in college, and that I had often admitted that protection meant paying certain manufacturers out of the treasury, but it is a system that has saved the nation more than once. The best tariff bill ever passed is the Payne-Aldrich tariff; thanks to that great man, Nelson W. Aldrich.

June 10.—Knox.
June 11.—Cannon.
June 12.—Aldrich.
June 13.—Hitchcock.
June 14.—Ballinger.
June 15.—Wickersham.
June 16.—New York, 3; Washington 1.

SOCIETY

Preparing for graduation, from the grade schools, from the high school, from the Eastern finishing schools and college is the occupation of the mothers at home and those who have no young people at these ages to plan for are planning their own wardrobes for the summer. There is a little belated house cleaning, much entertaining of visiting seamstresses and little bridge playing and much quiet.

Duluth society was interested in the announcement at Calumet by Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Whisler of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lucile Whisler, to Dr. Varier of that place.

Miss Whisler is well known, being the niece of Mrs. John Panton of this city, and having spent a year with her aunt here. She is well known among the younger society people. The engagement was announced at a luncheon of thirty covers last Saturday at which Mrs. Whisler was hostess. The wedding will not take place until next spring.

Many Duluthians are interested in the May festival concert tomorrow afternoon in which the Flaaten conservatory orchestra will be presented in several ambitious numbers. The young people have been rehearsing for weeks and will be welcomed by a large audience.

The last dancing party of the year at which the members of the Palestine assembly will be hosts will be given Thursday evening of next week in the ball room of the Masonic temple.

INFORMAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. C. Mickelson entertained informally Wednesday afternoon at her home, 17 East Third street, in compliment to her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Meyer of Portland, Or., and her sister, Mrs. Allen of Michigan. Miss Grace Spurbeck entertained informally this afternoon in honor of Mrs. Meyer.

AN economical plan in buying jewelry is to go to a store where there is absolutely no question about quality. When you buy here you don't pay any more than you would at an indifferent store, but you're certain about the quality. That's more important in choosing diamonds, jewelry, watches and silverware than almost any other articles of merchandise.

whenever possible. Next to this comes yellow, and a pale shade of green or blue, but the latter colors must be very pale, otherwise they will make the occupants of the room look quite plain. These shades have a great faculty for collecting dust and therefore the wisest and most economical plan is to buy those made of paper rather than the delicate silk ones.

A great deal of expense is saved if they are made at home. The best plan is to start on small shades. Buy one ready-made from a shop, and after ascertaining how it is put together, purchase some soft silk or crinkled paper, and copy the pattern.

If a darker shade is required, it is a good plan to line the silk or paper with white, as they will throw off a brighter light.

Electric light should never be used in a living room unless it is shaded, and a fairly dark color should be chosen, for the eyes will grow tired and the nerves be affected if a strong, white light is glaring upon them all evening.

Shaded lamps form the ideal lighting as far as the eyes are concerned, and if placed on the table, the shade should be deep enough to shelter the eyes from the direct glare of the light.

Some of the handsomest shades for gas or electric lamps are furnished from large silk squares, with a round hole cut in the center to fit over a wire frame, bordered with a fringe of beads.

Cleaning Silver Dress Trimming.

Silver dress trimming may be cleaned by covering the trimming with dry magnesia. Let it lie for two hours, rub it in carefully and gently, and then brush off with a hard brush.

Removal of Tar From Fabrics.

Turpentine will remove tar from any kind of fabric.

HINTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

By MILDRED WYCKOFF.

When a Woman Is Prettiest.

All efforts to fix the age of greatest beauty are fruiteless, for the excellent reason that it differs in almost every individual at 18 and 20, and who by the time they have reached 35 are mere caricatures of their former selves. The beauty that survives the thirtieth birthday is self-made.

There are other women who are really in a beautiful at 40 or 50, because a lifetime of sweet thoughts is written on their faces.

Exercises to Increase the Height.

If you think it would be an improvement to be a little taller than you are the following exercises might help you:

1. Stand flat on the floor and gradually raise yourself on your toes. Remain in this position for a moment, then drop back into the first position.

2. Touch the fingers to the floor without bending the knees.

3 Stand flat on the floor and bend the body from side to side at the waist line.

4. Do the same swinging the body backwards.

5. With feet apart, bend the body backwards as far as possible, at the same time throwing the hands back.

"What Can I Do to Prevent My Hair Failing?" Gertrude T. Inquires.

For this condition a thorough massage of the scalp is needed, and should be given night and morning until the skin glows. This simple operation may be done with the finger-tips and will remove the local anaemia of the scalp. After the massage, a good hair tonic should be well rubbed into the roots of the hair.

About Using Toilet Powder.

The use of toilet powder is sadly abused. That a little powder will cover a multitude of blemishes is the idea most girls have, and, instead of removing disfigurements which would yield easily to hot water and soap, or careful dieting, they prefer to cover them up with powder.

MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA'S ENGAGEMENT PROMISES TO BE A BRILLIANT MUSICAL EVENT

THE MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

Thus far the prospects for a brilliant series of concerts when the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra appears in Duluth June 3 and 4 are more encouraging than ever before in the history of Duluth concerts.

The orchestra has this year done the best work in its career and the nine weeks' tour, which will culminate in the Duluth festival, has proven a triumph for the orchestra under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer and the soloists traveling with the company. Duluth, too, has done its share in extending its preliminary support in a more generous and prompt manner than in previous years and the concerts are assured a large and appreciative audience at every performance. The advance subscription list, which was to have closed this evening, will be extended until Wednesday evening of next week. The advantage in early subscriptions is a material reduction in the price of the tickets and the first choice as the plan of seats will be available to subscribers all day next Friday and after that will be open to the general public. Any one interested in the concerts may subscribe for his tickets in advance by communicating with Horace W. Reyner.

The musicians of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra are for the most part of European birth and education. All are professional musicians who devote their entire time to music and there is hardly a famous orchestra in the country or Europe which has not contributed musicians to the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, and hardly a great conductor in the world under whom some of the musicians have not played.

Richard Czerwonky, the concert master, who will be heard in a solo, "Gypsy Airs," by Sarasate, was brought to America about four years ago by Dr. Karl Muck, when he came to Boston as conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, under permission from the German emperor. Mr. Czerwonky was second concert master and soloist of the Boston orchestra and prominent in that city as a soloist, teacher and as leader of the Czerwonky string quartet.

Carlo Fischer, first cellist of the orchestra, is one of the best known and popular musicians in the West, and is in constant demand as a soloist. Mr. Fischer filled engagements under various European conductors and was later first cellist of the Pittsburg orchestra under Victor Herbert. Then, following a three-year engagement as first cellist of the Cincinnati orchestra under Van der Stucken, he was engaged by the Minenapolis orchestra. During the Duluth engagement he will play a solo, "Scherzo," by Van Goens.

Henry J. Williams, the harpist of the orchestra, has made a national reputation as a master of his difficult and classic instrument. Coming from the famous Queen's Hall orchestra of London, where he played under England's most renowned conductor, Henry J. Wood, he traveles as a soloist in America for three years.

Mr. Williams will play a solo at the school children's matinee.

The Duluth engagement will begin with a school children's matinee Friday, June 3, to which only the school children of the city will be admitted and for whom every provision is made for their comfort and care. The regular festival for the Duluth public will begin Friday evening, when the Tschaikowski symphony will be the feature. A Saturday matinee will follow and the series will close with the Saturday evening concert, which will include many operatic selections.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

ORCHESTRA OF LOCAL TALENT

Ambitious Program Will Be Presented By Duluth Students.

The concert to be given tomorrow at the Lyceum by the Flaaten Conservatory orchestra and the vocal pupils of the conservatory is one which should receive generous patronage from lovers of music.

The director, Gustav Flaaten has thrown open to the school children of the city the whole of the family circle and the balcony at a nominal price, and it is to be expected that the parents will take advantage of this opportunity to give to their children a musical treat, and the example of what can be done by other young people under proper guidance.

HENRY G. LAVICK,
Violin Soloist at the Flaaten Orchestra Recital.

The program gives selections from the classical as well as the romantic schools.

The orchestra will consist of ten first violins, fourteen second violins, four violas, four 'cellos, three basses, two flutes, two clarinets, one oboe, two trumpets, two horns, three trombones, tympani and drums.

The program is as follows:

Overture—"Ossian" ..... Gade
"Kamenow Ostrow (cloister scene).. ..... Rubenstein
Duet from "Lakme" ..... Delibes
Misses Claire Foltz and Ruth Brown.
Symphonie, No. 5 ..... Haydn
Largo cantabile.
Minuetto allegretto.
"Azucena's Lament," from "Il Trovatore" ..... Verdi
Mrs. John Batson.
Romanzo ..... Tschaikowsky
"A Magic Song" ..... Meyer-Helmund
Miss Ruth Brown.
Violin and 'cello obligato by Messrs. Roy and Alphin Flaaten.
"Spinning Chorus," from "The Flying Dutchman" ..... Wagner
First sopranos, Misses Van Stone, Elvene Dhols and Claire Foltz; second sopranos, Mrs. John Batson, Misses Susan Norton and Ruth Brown; contraltos, Misses Glen Bartholomew, Florence Webb and Etta Newstrand.
"Spring Song" ..... Mendelssohn
Violin solo—"La Folia" ..... Corelli
Henry G. Lavick.
Henry VIII Dances... Edward German
Morris Dance, Shepherd's Dance and Torch Dance.
Accompanists, Misses Riblette and Brown. Harp parts played by Miss Katherine Pearson.

WILL BE HEARD IN CONCERT HERE

Duluthians Looking Forward to Appearance of Rena Vivienne.

At the Lyceum theater, Wednesday evening, June 8, Rena Vivienne, the Duluth girl who has won an enviable name on the operatic stage will again delight her many friends in this city who have watched her career with unceasing interest. Miss Vivienne will give a song recital and her admirers will no doubt be eager to note how the three years' interval have treated her since she was last in Duluth.

During the second season of the "Madam Butterfly" tour Miss Vivienne was leading prima donna, and immediately upon the close of the tour in April, 1908, she sailed, with her mother for Europe. They went first to Italy, visiting Naples, Venice, Verona, Rome, Florence and Milan, going thence to Switzerland and finally to Berlin where Miss Vivienne studied German opera and language up to the time she returned to America in March, when she came on an urgent cable from Savages offices in New York. Her mother who has been with her ever since she left Duluth did not accompany her on the voyage for the season that Miss Vivienne did not know what the outcome of her visit might be and it was her intention at the time to return to Berlin. But her mother has since joined her here and it has been hinted that the young prima donna will be a conspicuous member of an important operatic production next season under the Savage management.

Miss Vivienne is at present filling leading roles at the Boston opera house where a spring season of the older operas are being given, after which she will immediately come to Duluth for her concert and a few weeks' visit.

WILL MAKE HER DEBUT IN OPERA

New American Prima Donna Said to Be Equal of Sembrich.

New York, May 21.—A notable event in American music annals will happen soon at Cincinnati. An American girl, whose voice is said to be equal to that of any living soprano, is to make her bow in a new grand opera.

Edna Blanche Showalter, a young woman of 21 is the singer. The opera is the work of Floridia, an Italian composer, long a resident of this country; and the libretto is by Paul Jones. The production of the opera is under the auspices of the Ohio valley exposition to be held in Cincinnati in August and September.

There will be two sets of principals, Miss Showalter alternating as prima donna with Mme. De Pasquali of the Metropolitan opera house, New York. David Bispham will sing the principal baritone role, and other artists of very high rank are to appear in the cast. A magnificent production is promised and, it is to be noted with satisfaction, the opera is to be sung in English. This is a rather large straw to show the way the wind is veering, musically, in America.

Miss Showalter is a coloratura soprano. Critics in the East declare that more than any of the young sopranos she is equipped as to voice, temperament and artistic intelligence to be the successor in the musical world of Marcella Sembrich, so long the reigning queen of colorature singers.

Miss Showalter is American by birth and by education. She has been trained wholly in New York. She has appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Gustave Mahler; with the People's Symphony orchestra under the direction of her teacher, Franz X. Arens; and has sung as soloist at many other important musical functions in the East. Her voice and art have charmed equally. At Carnegie hall an audience of 2,500 at her debut with the People's Symphony orchestra, gave her twelve enthusiastic recalls. There has been no dissenting opinion among the critics to the general verdict that Miss Showalter is to speedily take her place among the great song-birds of the operatic world.

A firm of New York managers is arranging an extensive concert tour for this young prima donna, to follow her operatic season in Cincinnati.

LECTURE RECITALS.

Interesting Preliminary to Symphony Orchestra Concerts.

Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker will give a series of lecture-recitals during the next two weeks throughout the city, preliminary to the series of local concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. The second evening concert by the orchestra will be devoted to operatic music and the feature of the first evening concert will be the fifty Tschaikowsky symphony. Both of these will be the theme of Mrs. Stocker's lectures. She will discuss "Lohengrin," parts of which will be played by the orchestra and will analyze the symphony. The lecture will be illustrated at the point.

The lecture-recitals are free and a collection will be taken as at a church service. The object is to interest people throughout the city in the works to be played at the festival.

Next Monday evening, May 23, the lecture musicale will be given at the Lester Park Methodist church; Tuesday evening, May 24, at the Blaine high school in Superior; Friday, May 27, at the West Duluth Swedish Evangelical church with illustration on the fine new organ at that church; Monday evening, May 30, at the First Baptist church and Wednesday evening, June 1, at the Endion Methodist church.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and a stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the effected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

THE MODISTE

Voiles, varied with silk stripes, dots and blocks, and of very open mesh, is a safe and becoming decision for afternoon gowns.

With the growth and popularity of the linen gown, there is seen some danger of its over-elaboration into a frock which can only be worn on smart occasions.

• • •

A new wrist bag ready for summer is made of any fine leather in a small swagger shape, and has a double strap handle fastened to the top edge of the bag, which is long enough to slip over the wrist comfortably—the latest method of carrying the bag.

• • •

Gold gypsy hoops are not so much worn as heretofore. Long carrings of all kinds are fashionable, especially those which have the stones set in little hanging chains. Any colored stone is suitable for wear in the morning set in gold; but at night brilliants would be best, and most attractive.

Hats are still flower shows of color and size, and the natural good taste of the Parisian milliner is hard put to it to retain style and simplicity with the overloading of artificial blooms which the present mode insists upon. The flowers themselves are of enormous individual proportions, and the more they differ from nature's coloring and size the greater is their vogue.

This year the keynote of fashion is simplicity—not of material as much as style. We must realize, however, that the apparent simplicity of dress is fraught with danger for the amateur and small dressmaker. "Cut" was never more necessary, especially as we are allowed no voluminous draperies or trimmings to hide deficiencies. We also have to be most careful in the wearing of these skimpy and very short skirts and plainly-cut bodices.

GUARANTEED BRIDGE WORK

The immense advantages and possibilities of bridge work in the hands of skillful dentists are not fully understood by the general public. It is generally supposed that where most of the teeth are missing a plate is the only recourse. Nothing is farther from the truth. If you have two firm teeth, we can attach a bridge, without a plate, that will be perfectly firm, look as well as natural teeth and chew your food to your entire satisfaction.

THINK GOD'S THOUGHTS

By CARA REESE.

Why don't you try to think God's thoughts for Him sometimes and not wait always to think them after Him?

Why don't you summon up courage enough to be original in good thoughts and not wait to have rules of conduct and moral patterns laid down by the Lord through His messengers and spokesmen before you make a move in that direction? Think God's thoughts for Him sometimes and not ever and always come lagging, tagging after. The Giver of all gifts must grow sorrowful ofttimes to note how His people, even His saints, ever wait to have the same old lessons impressed over and over again.

Think God's thoughts for Him sometimes and do not delay, waiting in idleness for some "message," some "sermon," some "bulletin" or "opinion." Think the good thoughts without being told from pulpit, forum or publication so often. You ought to know by this time that in an ethical sense there is such a thing as bolting the door after the treasure is stolen; that no one should live unto himself alone. Yet you sit stupidly as a child waiting to be instructed, accepting no responsibility until the clarion call of authority rouses you to action, absolutely without a care or a thought until the law is laid down and your specific duties outlined.

You certainly ought to know a little of the workings of the great Mind by now and think a few thoughts in common. You certainly ought to have as much realization of your duty toward your fellow creatures as those who lecture or exhort. You certainly ought to know that anything which is of interest to humanity should not lack vital interest to you. Alas! you not only wait for message and command, but frequently like a child you whimper, "I was never bidden," and offer this as an excuse for negligence.

Why wait to be told, warned or bidden? Can you not think God's thoughts for Him sometimes and not always after Him? There is not always so much hesitancy when it comes to evil imaginings. The thoughts then are not only abreast, but sometimes in the lead. Satan leads on in a figurative sense, but if the truth were known his hosts are usually outstripping his speed. You can jump and leap far enough ahead when it comes to wickedness or mischief, but not so nimble when it comes to the exercise of Christlike traits and a striving and yearning for the redemption of a world of sinners.

It is because so many really good people are so slow in the motion, or because of wilful procrastination, or the shirking of individual thinking on grave subjects that the wheels of evangelization of reform movements, of moral uplift and civic betterment move so slowly and frequently come to a dead halt, stuck in the mud, spiked or in a rut. God's thoughts are those of grandeur and honor and mightiness, but it is possible for the finite to enter somewhat into the spirit of these and entertain in common. Think God's thoughts for Him, and not always after Him.

HUSBAND NO WOMAN WANTS

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

Most of the trouble of this, our mortal life, are due to husbands — and wives. The husband at his worst is one of the most objectionable bipeds who ever trod the earth since the grand old gardener and his wife, "hand in hand with wandering steps and slow from Eden took their solitary way." And it is this creature whom no woman wants, because he is an insult to her intelligence and an outrage on her womanhood. He is a moral caricature of a man. The pity is that when once you get him you cannot lose him—at least, not without making a public exhibition of yourself in the courts.

I shall probably be told, no matter how indubitably horrid a man may be, there will aways be some girl or other in the world willing to marry him. I am sure this is so; it is not less her priviiege than her peculiarity. I have no doubt a good women often does marry a bad man. My concern for the moment is merely to point out that she will not want him.

I cannot agree with the jurist who said that any sort of a husband is better than no husband at all, even taking into consideration that husbands of serviceable sorts are scarcer than when I was a girl.

Some time ago a lady advertised for sale a baboon, a pig, and a mule, the reason given being that as the advertiser is now married she has no further use for them." Whether this was a mere inconsequence of language, or whether she had discovered that all the qualities of her menagerie were combined in her husband, is not a matter on which it would be fair for me to offer an opinion; but the husband that no woman wants does prove the Darwinian theory, by showing how near man sometimes is to the brute. I have no doubt whatever. And I do not forget that there are two sorts of brutality possible to a husband of this kind, either or both of which he may possess. He may be brutal mentally and physically. I think mental brutality in a husband is more refined torture to a woman than physical beating.

I have often heard women admit in cross-examination in the courts, "Yes, he has often struck me in his drunken fits or uncontrolled temper, but in intervals he tried to make amends and be kind." But the mental brute is always brutal. He has no intervals of kindness at all. The habitual sneer, the perpetual bullying, the sulky indifference which characterizes him in all his relations with her, renders her life with him one long tragedy and humiliation.

No girl wants a husband who marries merely to save the expense of regularly employing a housekeeper, nor does she want one so mean that while spending many dollars a week on his own pleasures, he forgets even to take her for a weekly ride on the street car. A jealous husband is an insult to her, because all jealousy implies distrust. A stupid one reflects on her intelligence, an unreasonable one is impossible to please, and a very poor one limits her choice in hats. One who is always busy never has any time to give her; and one who is never busy has no money to give her; one who never remembers her weaknesses has no chocolates to give her; and one who has forgotten all about his honeymoon has no kisses to give her. Without hats, money, chocolates, and kisses, the life of a woman with a husband lacks completeness. It is a disappointing experiment in the unnecessary hazardous.

THE EVENING STORY

THE DELAYED LETTER

By Winifred Joyce.

When Cousin Jane had asked Beulah to post the letter, the girl had nodded half-carelessly her assent as she slipped a letter into her jacket pocket. Beulah had other things to think of just then, or so at least she told herself. Nevertheless, she fully intended to stop at the village postoffice while out for her favorite constitutional—a ride on her bicycle. It was of accident rather than of actual intent that she forgot the envelope snugly reposing in her jacket pocket until the next time she wore that jacket—never an especial favorite with its owner—almost a week later.

If Cousin Jane had been a dozen years or so younger, I might have felt just a tiny bit worried, thinking that it might have been a love letter, she told herself placidly. But when she had extricated the letter from her pocket and studied the superscription for a moment or two, the young woman wrinkling up her pretty brows, began to grow justly dubious as to whether, notwithstanding Cousin Jane's forty odd years, it might not be a more important communication than she had dreamt of after all.

Faith, still studying the address, puckered up her fair brows again. She had known the man to whom the letter was directed all her life—Blake Emerson, the grave, gray-headed student, living a dozen miles away. But to connect him in such a way with Cousin Jane—was that not perhaps going rather too far? It was only that she had heard by chance that day that Blake Emerson was going abroad at once, and for an indefinite period. Cousin had heard it, too; and Beulah had noted how her cheek had paled at the unexpected news.

Cousin Jane's voice broke in upon her imaginings. Beulah rammed the letter back into her pocket with a hasty gesture.

"Are you going out, dear? If you are, I wish you would call at Collingwood's on the way. He has never sent those books along."

Beulah's answer was an irrelevant one, or at least so Cousin Jane thought. She turned and faced her elder relative, putting two small hands upon her shoulders.

"Cousin Jane, why did you never marry? You are so pretty—so pretty still, dear. And I really want to know."

"Nobody asked me, dear. No, that isn't quite true, either," Cousin Jane amended judicially, and blushed again. "I had—reasons, Beulah. Isn't that enough to satisfy even a curious puss like you?"

"Not quite," Beulah returned truthfully.

But when Cousin Jane had left her, she drew out the forgotten latter from her pocket and scanned it again with added interest. She felt that she had got her answer about Blake Emerson at last.

As she leaned her elbows on the mantel-shelf, cogitating the subject, the letter slipped from her hand and fell with a little flutter into the smouldering ashes of the fire below. Quickly as she stooped to recover it, one corner was slightly charred.

"How careless Cousin Jane would think me, if she knew. It must have a fresh envelope now."

Beulah sought out the desired covering, and deftly made the exchange. As she did so, with no intent to look, a chance word in the closing sheet momentarily caught her eye; the next, honor and rectitude were flung to the winds, and she was scanning the lines as though her very life depended upon it. Of what went before or came after, she heeded nothing. Those few sentences alone seemed to have burned themselves into her very brain.

"I know that you will forgive me when I tell you that what you wish can never be. I promised Beulah's mother that, till the child was married, I would never leave her. It is enough to tell you at present that she has refused to marry Wilbur Hoyt."

Beulah's fair cheeks were rosy-red now. She glanced half-defiantly back at the flushed face which fronted her in the little, old-fashioned, oval mirror above the mantel-shelf.

"You are a greater fool even than I thought, my good girl; do you know that? Out of pique you refused the man you loved, and now you have ruined Cousin Jane's life as well as your own."

The frown gathered between her brows as she stood staring hard into the glowing embers. When at length she looked up there was a new expression of determination in her gray eyes.

"I've a right to spoil my own life, if I like; but not Cousin Jane's. And I want Will—want him—want him, though I've sent him from me and am too proud to tell him so."

She sat down before the typewriter which she and Cousin Jane used jointly for any business correspondence. She did not consign the elder woman's letter to the flames, as at first she had thought of doing. Instead, she carefully replaced it in its envelope, and presently, on a second sheet of paper, clicked off the following brief amendation:

"Beulah has changed her mind again. She is going to marry Wilbur Hoyt."

Already the sunlight of day was dimming to greyness as Beulah hurried across the garden to the disused stable where she kept her bicycle. Soon she was spinning out along the muddy roads in the direction of the Goddards, where Blake Emerson kept bachelor state, a dozen miles away.

But ere long she was forced to admit that she had departed over-hastily upon her enterprise. Darkness had fallen, and with no lamp to guide her or warn her of approaching vehicles, the girl was practically helpless. A puncture in her tire had seemed the climax to her difficulties, when the "toot" of an approaching automobile warned her that other dangers still lurked in store. The motor whizzed past her, then drew up abruptly a few paces away, and the light of a lamp was flashed full upon her.

"Can I be of any assistance?" a man's voice said.

Even under cover of the friendly darkness, Beulah flushed suddenly rosy red. For it was a voice which, so she told herself, she would have known though she had been in her grave. Perhaps it was because of this that she did not answer immediately. He flashed his lantern in her direction again.

"Puncture? That's beastly. I'll back my machine into the hedge and see if I can fix things for you. Why! Beulah—Miss Sinclair!"

"Oh, but I mustn't trouble you!" Beulah said quickly, but she allowed him to examine her disabled bicycle and catalogue the extent of its damages. He glanced up, frowning slightly.

"I could fix it up for you, but it would take time. Besides which, you haven't got a light; so what I was going to suggest was that you'd allow me the pleasure of taking you home again. There's plenty of room for your machine, too."

He made the suggestion diffidently, a trifle unsure as to how this disdainful young woman might be inclined to receive it. But Beulah looked up with the sudden, bright smile which he had always thought one of her chiefest charms.

"If I am not taking you out of your way. But I should have explained that I am not on my way home. I have an errand to the Goddards."

He made no comment; though again, beneath the light of the lantern, she thought he frowned slightly. Blake Emerson was a single man, and a wealthy one to boot, and he was telling himself that he might have expected it—though not of Beulah. In silence he assisted her into the motor, and busied himself about the safety of her bicycle. Only once he spoke.

"You have dropped something, I think. A piece of paper. Ah, a gust of wind has caught it. I will get it for you."

The wind had not carried the paper far. Hoyt came back along the road with it, brushing the mud from it with his pocket handkerchief. But even when he reached her he did not return it at once. The man's face was transfigured—illumined. His usually quite voice trembled.

"I did not mean to read it, Beulah; but the words seemed to leap out to meet me. Darling, is it—can it be true?"

Then Beulah was the emendation which had been intending merely to gladden Blake Emerson's eyes had told its own story. It had slipped from the only partially fastened envelope in the darkness with this result.

She glanced down demurely. But her answer was never spoken. Nevertheless, Wilbur Hoyt knew that, in common with Blake Emerson, his waiting time at last was ended.

The Fairy in the Belfry.

BY ANNIE JAMES.

PIETRO was so weary! He had been quite ill all that day, but when the time for ringing the church bell came he dragged himself from his poor little bed (in a garret room) and proceeded to the church to perform his chore. Pietro was a bellringer—a pale, frail little chap, 12 years of age.

Winter and summer, at exactly the same hour each morning and evening, Pietro might be found in the old belfry, ringing the great bell. "Clang-clang! Cling-clang!" went the bell's mellow voice. And it was Pietro who could make it sound like the voice of some sweet singer. And whenever Pietro took hold of the bell's rope and drew the bell into motion people on the streets within sound of the great bell stopped to listen attentively. "Like angels singing," an old lady had said once. "Sounds as though the bell's clapper were tapped gently by a fairy's fingers," an old man had replied.

But on the evening of which I write Pietro was ill. All day long he had been flushed with fever, and an aching hard to endure was in his limbs. Oh, how he longed to lie in his bed, poor as it was, instead of dragging himself out to go to the church to ring the bell! But he received a small sum of money for his work as bellringer, and that income kept him clothed and fed. Of course, his clothing was cheap and his food simple, but clothes and food he had. So he felt that no matter how ill he was he must go to his work.

As Pietro climbed the belfry stairs a weakness overcame him and he sank on the steps. He dropped his head on his arms, wondering what he should do. He could not mount another step. And from where he sat he could not reach the bell rope. Oh, to be so ill at bellringing time was hard! For two years to other hand had touched that bell rope. It was when Pietro's father died that Pietro became bellringer. His father had been so employed during his life, and it was he who had taught Pietro to ring the bell. On account of Pietro's youth and small size he could not perform the other duties which fall to the bellringer, and so he was employed to ring the bell only. Once, when his mother was ill, the church sexton was asked to ring the bell in the boy's absence, and it proved so unsatisfactory that Pietro was requested to attend to the ringing himself in future.

And now, on the evening of this story, Pietro found himself so weak that he could not climb another belfry step and lay on the stairs in an agony of fever and pain.

"Oh, what shall I do?" he cried in a low voice. "If only papa might have lived—or mamma!" (Pietro's mother had died during her illness and the child was an orphan, depending solely on his own resources).

"Don't worry, dear Pietro." It was a sweet voice that spoke to him. As it was now quite dark on the belfry stairs, Pietro could not see who was addressing him. But he had never heard so tender and sympathetic a voice since his dear mother died.

"Do not bother about the bell, dear Pietro," repeated the voice. "I will ring it for you. And you shall return to your bed and shall not leave it again till you are quite well, for I will be here to perform your work for you."

Then Pietro heard a soft step on the stairs just above him and at the exact time for the bell's ringing it rang out on the evening air, oh, so gloriously! Even Pietro had never heard such ringing. The tones were sweeter than the voices of children in a holy anthem on a most holy day. Pietro sat upright to listen. The music of the bell filled him with delight; it made him forget his fever and aching. In fact, his limbs became strong and he arose and stood on the stairs, half expectant. What hand knew how to ring the bell in that way? Had some angel come from heaven to help him? But no, those things never happened any more. Angels could not come to earth.

And in the streets below the people congregated to listen, spell-bound, to the bell's ringing. Never had they heard such music from the bell before. And after the ringing had stopped they gathered about the church door, waiting to greet the young ringer when he should come out.

And Pietro, after the ringing, felt not ill at all, and with a joyousness in his heart went down the stairs to issue from the church. Just as he reached the lower step a soft hand touched his shoulder. "Wait," spoke the voice that had addressed him on the belfry stairs. "Wait, I wish to speak with you."

A sensation of happiness came over Pietro. "You are a fairy," he whispered. "At first I did not realize who you are. But now I know you to be a fairy, and you have come to help me because I have been ill."

"Yes, and I shall ring the bell for you every night till you are well again. And"—the fairy paused—"and then I shall lead you to another place where you will have a happier and better life than here living in an attic."

"Oh, how can I thank you?" asked Pietro, eagerly. "But—I must be going now, for I must not linger in the church after the bell has stopped ringing."

"I'll be here tomorrow—to ring the bell for you," said the fairy. Then she disappeared in the darkness of the great church and Pietro went out of doors, pausing on the steps leading from the high-arched door. About the lower steps stood groups of village folks and when Pietro appeared they rushed about him, praising his bell ringing. "Never have we heard anything like it before," they declared. "See how white the child looks," one old woman cried out on getting a glimpse of Pietro's pale face. "He's becoming an angel—he is not a human like the rest of us. See—he looks strangely!"

In vain did Pietro try to explain that he was ill and that he had no hand in the ringing of the bell that evening, but he could not be heard. All those assembled seemed to think Pietro something above the ordinary mortal and they pressed closely about him, trying to touch his shabby, patched coat. "He's no longer a human," they cried excitedly. "No human could bring such music from a mere church bell. The angels have assisted him at the ringing. He will become a saint."

In the midst of all this excitement Pietro made his way from the crowd and gained his own doorway. Entering, he hurried to his own little attic room and lo! what a change had taken place there. In one corner stood a little organ, an instrument that Pietro had longed to own. He had wanted to learn to play so that he might become church organist after the aged organist now employed should be too feeble to render his services any longer. And there was the organ for his use. And in an opposite corner of the now attractive room stood a dainty white bed with soft coverlet and pillows. And a carpet covered the floor, and flowers bloomed in the deep window. Pietro stood spellbound for a minute. He was brought to the reality of the moment by a gentle tap on his door. Opening it, he saw his good old landlady there. Her eyes almost started from her head when she saw the interior of the attic room. "Where did you get all this, Master Bellringer?" she gasped.

"A good fairy brought it to me," he replied honestly. "And she also rung the bell for me this night."

"Ah, I have heard many talking of the bell's ringing this evening," said the old landlady. "And they came to me, asking me about you. I told them you had been ill all day, and that I was making gruel for you to eat on your return from your bellringing. But—I cannot understand how this all came about! No one has entered, carrying furniture up here. I watch the door myself, and not a soul has called during your absence. I heard you come in, and at once got the gruel to fetch to you. And—I had almost forgot it! Here it is, Master Pietro." And the good old woman set a tin tray in Pietro's room on which rested a bowl of hot gruel.

Pietro tried to explain to his landlady about the fairy, but she shook her head. She, too, thought the little bellringer was becoming something more than human. "It comes from ringing the church bell while so young," she said, looking admiringly at Pietro.

"And the angels from above have come here and furnished up your room. But—I expect to come in here some day and find you have flown away. You are not a common-mud lad."

Pietro was forced to smile at his landlady. But her words came true in a very short while, for after Pietro learned to play the organ the fairy came one night and led him far, far away from the attic room to a great city where he was engaged to play a wonderful pipe organ in a great cathedral, a place that was one of the wonders of the world. And great throngs of people came on purpose to hear the child organist play, for none had ever played as he played in that great house of God. And his playing, like his bell-ringing, became a marvel, and he could not make the people believe that his inspiration and help had come from the belfry fairy on the night when, too ill to perform his work, she had come to do it for him.

"You are a fairy," he whispered.

Happy Boy.

GEE, whiz! Isn't it fun,
When school is out,
To break and run
Across the playground,
And yell and shout
With all your might,
When school is out?

Gee, whiz! Isn't it great
To go off fishing
In th' evening late;
And by the moonlight
To wander away?
'Tis much more fun
Than when it's day!

That Chink: A Dialogue for Boys.

(Appropriate for the last day of school entertainment.)

(Scene in a boy's den. A boy sitting reading beside a table. Books and papers scattered about carelessly.)

BERT (boy reading)—Well, I like the promptness of Jack. He told me he'd be here at 7 o'clock. And now it's a quarter to 8. (Looks at his watch). I'll tell him that promptness is one of—— (Tap at door; then door opens and in walks Jack).

Jack—Hello, Bert! Guess I'm a bit late, but I stopped down the street to see some fun. (Sits down astride a chair.)

Bert—What was the fun that could prevent you from keeping an engagement promptly eh? (Tosses book aside and rises and stretches his arms as if tired of study.)

Jack (laughing)—Well, a crowd of boys had got that chink laundryman on a rail and was riding him about town. Gee! You should have seen the fun! Chink was holding on for dear life, and he was so frightened that his cue stood up straight. Honest Injun. It was great! (Laughs loudly at remembrance.)

Bert (outraged)—Do you mean to tell me that the boys of this town have been using a fellow-creature in that horrible manner? Why, it's worse than heathenish—it's downright criminal. And—I haven't seen you since a certain thing happened yesterday. But (becomes excited) that very Chinaman, whom you call "that Chink," saved the life of a little girl, Mary Sommers. If I am right, Mary is related in some way to you. (Looks straight at Jack, who winces.)

Jack—Why, that's news to me. I haven't heard a word about my little cousin's accident. Come, tell me about it.

Bert—Why, yesterday afternoon, just as your little cousin Mary was about to cross the street an automobile came down upon her. The machine was going at top speed—which is in violation of the law, of course—and Mary did not seem to have heard or seen it. And the chauffeur could not stop the auto, try as he might. In another moment Mary Sommers would have been run down, crushed to death by the great touring car, had not a most noble soul been standing on the corner at the time, and who rushed wildly to the child's rescue. Before anyone knew what was going on, for the whole thing transpired so quickly, the bystander had Mary in his arms and bodily threw both himself and the little girl to safety. They rolled over in the dust, but rolled sufficiently far enough away from the rushing auto to be unharmed. In no other way could the Chinaman have saved both himself and your Cousin Mary.

Jack (jumping to his feet)—Did that Chink—I mean that Chinaman—save my little cousin's life in that manner?

Bert—He certainly did. And what is more, I beheld it with my own eyes. I was half a block away from the corner, but saw the rushing auto and the thoughtless, innocent little girl crossing in its path, all unaware of the danger that, like a cannon ball, was coming upon her. But for the timely action of that Chink you would have been called to your uncle's, Mr. Jack Sommers' home, today to view the remains of——

Jack (excitedly, putting out his hands imploringly)—Stop, Bert. Stop. Oh, it's horrible. And to think that only a few minutes ago I watched with amusement a rough crowd of wild boys misusing that poor Chinaman, and did not raise a hand to help him. And—what did my uncle do when he learned of the noble yellow man's bravery? I hope he behaved handsomely toward him.

Bert (ironically)—Oh, I haven't heard that he did anything, except to inform the police of the chauffeur's driving his machine above the speed limit. But it is to be hoped that he'll at least give the Chinaman his laundry to do. That will be the least he can do.

Jack—Honestly, old man, I feel doubly ashamed of myself for having looked on at the rude, cruel treatment of the Chinaman tonight. I—— (Interrupted by a loud noise in the street below. Both boys rush to the window and look down).

Bert—There seems some sort of commotion there—a crowd of boys.

Jack—'Pon my honor! It's that gang again after the Chinaman. There he is—coming down the street—almost even with your gate. Let's go to the rescue.

Bert—You stay here. I'll run down and bring the fellow in. (Rushes out and immediately returns, followed by a Chinaman.)

Jack (during Bert's absence)—Well, I've been a brute. (Looks from window.) Ah, there, Bert has him, and is bringing him in. (Enter Bert and Chinaman.) Ah, my poor fellow! (Extends his hands to the Chinaman.) I have much to thank you for; also your pardon to beg for having watched that gang of ruffians handling you so cruelly tonight without raising a hand to help you But—you are a whiter fellow than I am, and—I have been a coward while you have proven yourself a hero. Let me tell you now, that from this night I am your staunch friend.

Bert—That's the thing to do, Jack, old fellow. I knew you were only thoughtless, not really heartless. We hear so much against our yellow brother that we go out of our way to heap outrages on his back. I say, we're all God's creatures, no matter what country we are born in.

The Chinaman — Thankee, thankee muchee; velly nice young genmen. I—I—I talkee no muchee American. But—— (Looks his gratitude at both Bert and Jack.) Velly nice genmen.

Bert (laying his hand on the Chinaman's shoulder)—You may not talk much American, my good fellow, but you can teach many of us how to act the hero. Come I shall accompany you to your laundry, and I shall also report that gang's treatment of you to the police. I guess we can do something with them for their ruffian manner toward you. Do you want to come, too, Jack?

Jack—Bet your boots I do, old chap. I want to make amends for my heartlessness a little while ago. A human creature is a human creature, be he one color or another; and I mean to see that he has a square deal whenever I can. And—let anyone call this fine fellow a Chink in my presence again, and I'll—— (Doubles up his fist and shakes his head threateningly as he follows Bert and the Chinaman out of the room.)

CURTAIN.

"You are a whiter fellow than I am, and from this night I am your staunch friend."

About Coins.

THE 3-cent pieces with a star for a device were coined from 1851 to 1873. Those bearing the dates 1863 and 1873 are quite rare. Nickel coins of the same denomination, with the head of liberty, were issued from 1865 to 1889. The only real rare ones are of 1877, when none were struck for circulation. Some were placed in proof sets and sold at the mints in the current year for a slight advance over face value.

The smallest current coin in the world is used by the natives of the Malay Peninsula. It is a sort of wafer made from the resinous juice of a tree, and is worth about one two-thousandth part of the American copper penny. The smallest metal coin in circulation is the Portuguese three-reis piece, worth about six one-hundredths of an American cent.

Babe the Runaway: Story of a Little Cub Bear.

BY MAUD WALKER.

BABE sat in the cave, all alone. His mother had gone out to get some food for him, and he was impatiently awaiting her return. He did not like being left alone, but since his big brother had gone out into the woods for himself, Babe had no one to stay with him when his mother was absent from the cave.

Babe was a fine cub bear, and if you could have looked in on him on the morning of which I write, you would have thought him very cunning. His body was as round as a butter-ball, and his coat of fine dark hair as soft as silk. His eyes sparkled with youth and mischief, and his impatience was due to his wanting to get out to play. But his watchful mother had forbidden his leaving the cave while she was away. "There is danger lurking in the woods," she had explained to Babe. "Danger, the sort we fear, is always on the outlook for such creatures as we are. So, while mamma is away you must stay close indoors, or some evil might befall you."

And with this warning still in his ears, Babe sat pouting and bemoaning the fact that the sun was warm and bright and the wind blowing freshly over the mountain side, while he, poor little cub, sat in the dark, cold cave, awaiting his mother's return.

After a while Babe decided to go to the cave door and look out. There could be no possible danger in his doing that. All he wanted was a touch of a sunbeam and a breath of the breeze he coveted so much. So he got both; and then the desire for more took possession of him.

"I'll go into the yard—where the sun pours down so warmly," he said. "And I'll stay close to the cave door. There can be no harm in my getting outside a few moments."

So, into the yard he went and pretty soon he was tumbling about in the warm sunshine, playing ball with a round stone he found close to the cave door. He tossed the ball into the air; then he would catch it in his fat paws. Again, he would roll the ball down the side of the mountain for a few paces, rushing after and rescuing it before it had time to get far away. But as he played with the round stone—about the size of an ordinary rubber ball that boys play with—he forgot to keep close to the cave entrance, and once, when the ball rolled farther away than had been his intention to let it go, he ran after it and failed to get it, for it tumbled over a little precipitous bank on the steep mountain side. For a moment Babe watched the ball at the bottom of the mountain crevice. Then saying to himself, "Oh, what does it matter if I run round by the path and go down the mountain side to reach the spot where my plaything has rolled? I may be disobeying mamma—but a little thing like that is not very naughty."

Once so far away from the cave, Babe decided it was great sport to go out by himself, and knowing that it would be sometime yet before his mother would return home, he ran about on the mountainside, making a loud noise. "Ha, ha, ha!" he cried, gaily, tossing the ball about. Just as he was thinking it time to return to the cave, a soft footfall was heard behind him, and, turning about, Babe beheld a great tall man—a creature that was strange to him, and who frightened him terribly. With a little wail of fear the cub ran down the mountainside as fast as he could go, getting farther and farther away from the cave at every step.

The great tall man who had frightened Babe so much followed after him, carrying a gun over his shoulder. He tried repeatedly to get a good aim at the fleeing little bear, so that he might bring him down with a bullet; but Babe darted from one boulder to another, then behind clumps of bushes and trees, so rapidly that the hunter could not get a good chance at him.

After running till almost out of breath, Babe stole a glance behind him, and, to his great relief, the horrible hunter was nowhere in sight. Evidently Babe had outrun him, and now he was somewhere on the mountainside, still looking for Babe, or another of Babe's kind. And Babe, trembling in every limb, crept behind a great mass of rocks and lay close to the damp ground. He was afraid to return home. But the longer he lay there the more uneasy he became. What would his dear mother say? What was she doing now?—for surely she had returned home ere this.

And so the hours wore away and darkness began to fall on the mountainside. And still the runaway Babe lay in hiding. And still he shook with fear and longed to be once more in his snug cave house, warm and happy, listening to his mother's tales of her early cubhood.

After a little while a slow rain began to fall. Then Babe's agony increased. With fear and loneliness came discomfort. Oh, how foolish he had been! Oh, the penalty of disobedience! Could he but see his dear mother and his happy home once more before he died, he would ask for nothing more! Indeed, Babe really thought he must die that night.

It was about 8 o'clock when Babe's ears caught a familiar voice calling him. It was his own dear mother's voice, and it came from a little way above the place where he was hiding. He quickly crept from his dark corner and ran up the mountainside, answering the dear call: "Here I am, mamma. Come down the path and meet me. I'm so cold and afraid!"

When his mother met him a few moments later, Babe almost fainted of joy. The agony of his two or three hours in hiding had made him hysterical, just like a real child. And when he felt his mother's big, warm, loving paws about his neck he cried and cried, unable to speak for quite some time. At last, when his mother had gotten him into their own dry, cozy cave again, he was able to speak, and to tell of his disobedience, and of his punishment on account of it.

"Ah, my son," said Mamma Bear, "you see what disobedience costs one, don't you? Suppose the hunter had wounded or killed you—as is often the case with disobedient cubs—how could you ever have explained your conduct to me and asked my forgiveness? Ah, if only cubs knew that the warnings given them by their experienced parents are of the greatest value, they would be more obedient. Every little while we learn of a lost cub on the mountainside, and, of course, the poor little creature has fallen a prey to some wicked hunter, or been so fatally wounded that he has crept off into some hole and died in his agony, without a mother's loving care. Now, my son, I hope you'll never forget this day's lesson."

"Oh, Mamma, I shall never so much as put my head from the cave when you are away," declared Babe. "I was really very naughty to go out to play in the sunshine, since the woods are so full of danger, and I so young and inexperienced. But I suffered the penalty of my wrongdoing, and never will I forget the agony of that time spent in hiding behind those cold wet rocks, nor the feeling of fear that seized me when I saw that awful hunter with his gun pointed at me. Oh, it was so terrible. And I thought I would never again see you, my good, forgiving mother."

And Babe fell to crying softly. But his dear old mother put a loving paw about his neck and said: "Come, dearest child, and have some supper. Here is some fresh honey—the sweetest you ever ate. And I have forgiven you for your disobedience, and know that you are sincerely sorry for having been naughty during my absence. And more than that, my son, I feel somewhat responsible for your conduct today, for I should not have left you alone. After this I shall have you accompany me on my journeys after food, for it will afford you pleasure, myself good company, and I shall be teaching you how to be self-supporting; and then if anything should happen to me, you will know how to take good care of yourself."

And then the two sat down to supper, and they enjoyed the meal so much, for it was very sweet to be together in their snug cave again, and to feel so safe there. And after their supper some neighbors came in—a dear old bear and his wife and young daughter—and they spent a very enjoyable evening. And Babe told with much feeling his very narrow escape from being shot dead, and admitted that he had been rightly punished for his running away.

"Ah, my son," said old Mr. Bear, shaking his head knowingly, "if all disobedient cubs would come off as easily as you did! But most of them never return to tell the tale. It is to be hoped that you will take the trouble to relate your experiences to the other wild young cubs in the neighborhood, that they may profit from your experience."

"I certainly shall," promised Babe earnestly. And he spoke from his very heart, for he hoped sincerely that no other cub would act as he had acted that day, and that no other cub would run so close to a gun as he had run, for in nine cases out of ten the runaway cubs would fare worse than he had fared. He had been spared in a most miraculous way.

Helpful Hints for Our Young Artists.

LESSON NO. 102—JOHNNY CATCHES A FISH.

Our Puzzle Corner

CHARADE.

My first is that
Which we all love to see
Crowning a man,
Woman and baby.
Sometimes it is coarse,
Sometimes it is fine;
Without it in plenty
Most ladies repine.

My second is used
For clothing and such;
The rich have it in plenty,
The poor haven't so much.
My too put together
Cover sofa and chair;
Though 'tis rather old-fashioned
'Tis seen everywhere.

CURTAILINGS.

1. Doubly curtail a sweet syrup and get part of an atlas. 2. Doubly curtail garments worn by little boys and get a kitchen utensil. 3. Curtail an aquatic mammal and get a large body of water.

REBUS.

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLES.

CHARADE—Chairman (Chair-man).
ADDITIONS—1. Wind-lass. 2. Fir-kin. 3. Fare-well.
LETTER ENIGMA—Mountain.

WORD PUZZLES.

(a) A word of one syllable: 1. It is often applied to a horrible crime. 2. It is applied to an "art." 3. It is used to describe a color. 4. It denotes gloom of countenance. 5. It is a man's name.

(b) A word of one syllable: 1. It is something we all love to see in nature. 2. Something we dislike when attributed to a person. 3. It denotes envy. 4. It looks lovely on the sea. 5. Artists cannot paint pictures without it.

HELP THE POLICEMAN.

"Mr. Policeman, please help me find my two boys. They were here just two minutes ago."

ZIGZAG PUZZLE.

This zigzag contains five words of three letters each. If the words are rightly guessed and written one below another, their zigzag letters, beginning with the upper left-hand letter and ending with the lower left-hand letter, will spell the name of an animal. The cross-words are: 1. Something most ladies like to have in the latest style. 2. A small bed. 3. Denoting distance. 4. A certain kind of tree. 5. A fish.

The Big Back Yard

IN the big back yard,
'Neath a spreading tree,
Ned, Polly and May—
Dear, sweet, happy three!

Go to play each day
In a huge pile of sand.
They dig pond and rivers,
And build mountains grand.

And when evening falls
They level it o'er,
So when morning comes
It is ready once more

For digging and building,
'Neath the spreading tree.
Ned, Polly and May
Are a most happy three!

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE BIJOU

Master Illusionist of the Country Will be Big Feature for Next Week, in Conjunction With an All Star Vaudeville Program. ∴ ∴ ∴

Patrons of the Bijou, commencing Monday afternoon, will see what is claimed to be the greatest vaudeville show that has ever been offered at this popular theater. Not only is it one of the best bills ever put together, but it is the most expensive as well. Heading the list will be the Great Albini, who is today the recognized master of all magicians and illusionists. Mr. Albini has appeared at the Bijou before, but never with such an array of mysterious illusions as he brings for this engagement, illusions that have mystified the best magicians and illusion producers and makers of the country.

Recently Albini was to appear in Chicago for one week only. His illusions proved to be such a drawing card that he was re-engaged, playing nine weeks, and was the talk of the vaudeville going public. It requires a half a baggage car to transport this one act's apparatus. The illusions that are presented by Mr. Albini this season are all new and will be shown for the first time in Duluth.

Among some of the wonderful illusions that Albini will present are: "The Sato Chair," which has never before been done by any other illusionist; "Transparent," a new and mystifying illusion; "The Bridal Chamber;" "The Glass Trunk;" "Cremation" (not the old style), and many others that are new and just as mysterious. Between each illusion Albini will introduce several of the newest tricks in magic.

One of the best sketches in vaudeville is presented by the winsome mirthmaker, Estelle Wordette, who is supported by an excellent cast, with Thomas Russell as leading man. Mr. Russell is a big favorite in the East, and has been prominent in the leading stock companies of the East for several years. Miss Wordette is a universal favorite and many who have not had the pleasure of seeing this clever little artist have heard or read of her. Her vaudeville offering this year is a lively little sketch entitled "A Honeymoon in the Catskills." The following is a recent notice from the Boston Globe, when the act was appearing at the American music hall in that city: "Estelle Wordette in her own original playlet, 'A Honeymoon in the Catskills,' with the aid of Thomas Russell and her dog, Nursey, is easily the hit of the bill at the American this week. The scene represents a private parlor in the Hotel Kaaterskill during the rain storm which has been in progress for three days. The newly-wedded pair have arrived with the storm and the young husband is becoming tired of being petted and pampered by his devoted wife. He resents certain of her attentions, and the fun starts at this time, and until the close of the act there is not a dull moment. For keeping the audience in roars of laughter the act is the best offered at the American this season."

Another big laughing hit that will be prominent on the program, will be George De Voy and the Dayton Sisters. Their work is lively and full of ginger from start to finish, and their eccentric dancing is a feature in itself. The Misses Dayton are both excellent singers, and have a charming stage presence, while Mr. De Voy furnishes the comedy of the act. With the dancing of the trio the act is first-class from start to finish.

Beulah Dallas, the sweet-voiced Southern singer, will furnish one of the delightful numbers of the week's program. Miss Dallas has beautiful gowns, and is a picture on the stage.

A special European feature, which will be the added feature for the week will be the Scott Brothers, a foreign importation. They are two of the most daring and skillful gymnasts that have ever crossed the Atlantic. They present numerous equilibristic feats that are new and entirely original with themselves, including their exclusive feat known as "Scott's Loop the Loop," an accomplishment that has been a sensation in the largest hippodromes of Europe. They carry an upright circle that is two feet wide and twelve feet high. The men take head to head positions with their feet braced against the extreme points of the circle, and in this position make several revolutions around the loop. The secret of this marvelous feat is accuracy. The least misjudgment or loss of balance might cause a serious accident as the men are always in a perilous position. This feat is said to be without exception the most sensational that has ever appeared on the Bijou stage, and it holds the audience spellbound until they see the gymnasts safely on the stage floor.

James B. Adams, who is making a big hit singing the illustrated songs, will sing for his second week's number, the beautiful ballad entitled "When the Sun Goes Down." The moving pictures will be all new and exclusive, showing pictures of the better class.

Matinees are given every day at 2:45, and performances every night at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30. All scholars under 14 years of age are admitted for 5 cents. Performances are given Sunday afternoon and night.

Lyceum Notes.

Of all the entertainment companies that have come and gone in the last three decades, the Flint entertainment is probably the only one that for thirty-two years has held its place as one of the leading theatrical attractions of each season. For thirty-two years Dr. Flint has expounded and demonstrated to the public, and in all that time he has held an enviable reputation as being at the head of his own class and also among the leaders of all humorous entertainers. Mrs. Flint became a member of the Flint aggregation, the performances have taken on a charm and a refreshing newness, and her elaboration of old scenes and invention of new ones has infused new life into the entertainment that has been a leader for so long. Children attend the Flint entertainment today as their grandfathers did before them, and Dr. Flint declares that several new generations will grow up before the Flint entertainment becomes a thing of the past.

The Flints will be seen at the Lyceum for one week commencing Monday, May 23, on which night all ladies will be admitted free.

Through the discernment of her manager, Maurice Campbell, Miss Henrietta Crosman has hit upon one of the greatest successes in refined comedy ever seen in this country. Her play is "Anti-Matrimony," and deals with the distorted views of an American who has spent some years abroad. The comedy is by Percy MacKaye, the logical successor of Clyde Fitch, and is a rippling, bubbling thing of joy. Miss Crosman's art has never been seen in a more worthy vehicle, and, while the play has a serious story running through it, with a well-defined moral, this charming actress invests every line of her part with an interest that fascinates as well as keeps her audience in good humor. The surrounding company might well be called an all star cast, for all the principals have headed casts in latter years. It will be seen at the Lyceum June 2.

Comparatively few people can afford the luxury of traveling abroad, but everybody can enjoy the delights of travel, and without any of its many discomforts, by traveling via Lyman H. Howe's "Travel Festival" in the Lyceum May 29, 30, 31 and June 1, when a return engagement will be played. In his new program Mr. Howe will escort his travelers to the barbaric plains of Algeria, show them the curios customs, life and dress of Moor and Arab, take them to the Montreal ice palace and winter carnival, then through the scenic grandeur of the Rockies in winter. Into the heart of the great Canadian wilds, where the severe life of the lumber camp is shown. By taking them to the fighting top of a battleship he promises every one an experience which can happen to few, for, as a rule, the public is rigidly excluded there. The stirring and striking scenes on deck below impart a new sensation. In fact, the entire program is extremely diverting and delightful, ranging from the sublimely beautiful scenes of sunset and moonlight on land and sea to the distinct novelty of dissolving portraits of English statesmen.

Miss Ruth Peebles, prima donna of "The Prince of Tonight," which will be at the Lyceum June 10, 11 and 12, was riding in an Illinois Central coach one day and overheard the conversation of a bevy of matinee girls, who were discussing different well-known stars.

"Who is this Henry Woodruff, the leading man in 'The Prince of Tonight'?" asked one of the girls.

"Why," spoke up a second, "my father says he saw Woodruff in 'The Black Flag' in 1865."

"My aunt saw him in 'The Girl I Left Behind Me,' during the world's Fair," said a third.

"I saw him in Ben Hur'," chirped another.

"I remember him in 'Mary of Magdala'," said the second girl who had spoken. "And I saw him in 'Brown of Harvard'."

"That's nothing," said a little girl in the corner, who had been a good listener, "I have you all beaten. I saw him in an elevator the other day, and what's more, girls, his hair is real."

Ruth Benson, an English actress, is this season appearing with Grace George in "A Woman's Way." Besides appearing in England and the United States, Miss Benson has also experienced the delights of "trouping" in South Africa and India.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Marie Dressler Scores Happy Return In "Tillie's Nightmare"—Henry Miller In "Her Husband's Wife"—Revival of "Jim, the Penman."

NEW YORK, May 21.—Ever so many of the old friends of Marie Dressler rejoiced that she had really found a success in "Tillie's Nightmare," and had once more earned the right to lift her head among the worshiped of Broadway.

She has had rather a hard row to hoe for some time past. Her English venture proved a dismal failure, and her lease of a London theater for the purpose of introducing Londoners to American comedy at first-hand was only the forerunner of a series of disasters on her return to her native heath. Now she has really "put it over," as they say, and "Tillie's Nightmare"—which is better than it sounds—will remain at the Herald Square the better part of the summer—nay, perhaps, all summer, if Marie' energy is proof against the seductions of the seashore.

The opening night resembled a gala night at the Grand opera. For once this season all the regular first-nighters turned out. The house was packed from pit to dome. Everywhere the rarest toilets were seen. Outside, the automobiles kept coming and going. The lobby was congested with well-dressed people, and splendid floral pieces were on view in the rear spaces. It seemed as if people actually sensed a success.

And yet "Tillie's Nightmare" came very near proving a nightmare in fact when it was first launched. Early reports boded disaster. Lew Fields was ready to withdraw it; only Marie's objection could not be overcome. She believed in it. She singled out the strong points in the piece and begged for more time. Fields remembered that "The Jolly Bachelors" had started a failure and been turned into a Broadway hit by hard work. So Ned Weyburn was told to rehearse and rehearse until it was in shipshape, and lo! after seven weeks of tireless work, success was in view!

Now everybody is over his troubles, and Miss Dressler is the special favorite of the day. Even the judicious laugh at her comicalities as she drudges at Skineatelas boarding house, whose weird dream forms the fabric of the fantastic series of spectacles which comprise the play. The star's hit was assured from the moment she finished the first stanza of the touching ballad, "Heaven Protects the Working Girl," which she sings to her own piano accompaniment. In the course of the evening she is the heroine of a department store wedding, a yachting romance, a trip through the clouds in an airship, and she gives realistic imitations of a pitiable victim of mal de mer and over-liberal potations of champagne. Her rough-and-ready grotesquerie was never more in evidence, and her humor roused the liveliest laughter and applause. Her piece de resistance is a travesty on Tetrazzini, a scene of heavy emotional acting and an imitation of the Greek and Salome dances.

One of the big theatrical events of the season is the Actors' Fair, for the benefit of the actors' fund, at the armory of the Seventy-second Regiment, N. Y. N. G., and to which every member of the profession practically contributed in one way or other. The enormously large armory, was completely in the hands of the actors and stars and satellites, theatrical meteors and comets met you on the most familiar footing. The spacious drill hall resembled a typical fair or exhibition. It was decorated with all the skill that the best stage decorators and mechanicians can apply. Down stairs was a regular cafe chantant, where continuous free performances are given by noted artists. The first number on the program was a song by David Bispham, followed by solos by distinguished musical virtuosos. Part of the Indians from the Wild West show gave performances, alternating with the Maoris from the Hippodrome, in their peculiar dances. Besides the cafe there was a regular theater in the building, with a stage, where some of the best known players gave performances—not only of vaudeville, but playlets and dramas, including one by August Strindberg, the foremost Scandinavian playwright, who has so far proved too radical even for the regular boards. Among the players were Camille Dahlberg, Carlotta Nillson, May de Sousa and others whose names are familiar to playgoers everywhere. It is the most democratic affair in the actor-world, for when it comes to charity, stage people forget all about the center of the stage.

Henry Miller has moved into the Garrick with his new farce by A. E. Thomas, entitled "Her Husband's Wife." Thomas is the dramatic critic of the New York Sun, and this is the first production that he has not reviewed since he took hold about a year ago. He did not even respond to the enthusiastic call for "author" that went up after the second act. By every token he might have done so, with the perfect assurance that this perfunctory courtesy was really intended, which is seldom the case.

He has written an excellent comedy about a happy married young woman who imagines herself a hopeless invalid and desires to further insure her husband's happiness after her death by selecting her own successor. She is very careful to pick out a plan spinster, Emily Ladew, who, because she was disappointed in a love affair, has purposely suffered herself to become old-fashioned. Emily secretly resents being picked out for her friend's successor because of her decided plainness, and in a malicious sprit of revenge adorns herself in her rarest fineries and accepts the commission of making herself agreeable to her prospective husband. But she does it to such a good purpose that she arouses the jealousy of the wife, who thereupon casts her medicines to the dogs and resolves to live on indefinitely, quite cured of her hallucination that she has not long to live. Emily wins her old lover and everything ends happily.

Henry Miller's role is that of the wife's Uncle John, who acts the part of a sort of comical Providence watching with amused interest over the absurd little wife and furthering the intrigue like a true comedy conspirator. He has seldom been more human and wholly appreciable. And, indeed, much of the success of the piece is distinctly due to the fine comedy spirit that has been infused into the performance by this artistic producer. The author was lucky in getting such a cast to interpet his maiden effort. Laura Hope Crews was delightful in the role of the wife. She gave just the right touches to the droll humorsomeness and a rich sentiment. Grace Elliston scored as Emily. She emphasized the plainness of the character in the first act in order to throw her natural beauty into stronger relief in the next. Orme Caldera was very good in a light comedy part and Robert Warwick was capital as the husband.

One of the artistic events of the season was the revival at the Lyric of Sir Charles L. Young's effective society melodrama, "Jim the Penman," in which nearly every participant scored individually. Wilton Lackaye was James Ralston. Florence Roberts was Mrs. Ralston, Theodore Roberts was Baron Hartfeld, John Mason played Captain Redwood, Frederick Pauling appeared as Hon. Notherby, Marguerite Clark and Thurlow Bergen played opposite as Agnes and Lord Drelincourt, and others in the remarkable cast were Jeffreys Lewis, Louis F. Massen, Grace Reals, Ernest Glendinning and Arthur Forrest, who played the part of Louis Percival.

It seemed like old times to see the fine amalgamation of genius, each part played by a veteran and the whole performance taking on the festive air of a notable occasion. It would be difficult to pick out any one in the cast deserving special notice. Down to the smallest role it was artistically done. A remarkable interest attached to Theodore Roberts's work as the rascally Baron and confederate of the forger. But John Mason was seen at his best in the part of the detective, and Florence Roberts, in the last act, rose to the best demands of the part of the disappointed wife in her scene with Ralston.

There has not been a more enthusiastic audience in New York this season. Wm. A. Brady, as the producer, had to make a speech before the curtain and the audience cheered when he announced that he had declared his independence of the syndicate.

Bertha Kalich will carry out her contract with the Shuberts next season and appear under their management, instead of that of Harrison Grey Fiske. This was arranged last year, but owing to illness, she was prevented from appearing in anything but "The Witch" at the New theater. Her plays will include "Youth," Max Halbe's epochal drama, and "Sold," from the Russian of George Erastor. In addition she will get an American play to carry her through the season.

• • •

"The Dollar Princess" will reopen at the Knickerbocker in August to continue its run after thirty-three weeks, which carried it through the greater part of the present season.

• • •

The engagement of "Caste" at the Empire theater has been so well patronized that it has extended till June 4.

• • •

Frang Worthing was the victim of a malicious rumor the past week, which reported that he had been obliged to leave the company presenting "Is Matrimony a Failure" at Pittsburg, because of tuberculosis of the throat. The next night he was prominent among the professionals who attended the opening performance of Marie Dressler at the Herald Square. Apparently he was none the worse, though he admitted that he had not been in entirely good health for some time and had retired in order to get a rest. He denied having a serious throat trouble.

• • •

James K. Hackett discovered a new playwright and has accepted his maiden effort, "The Wings of Peace." The young man, whose pen name is Ernest Blais, is not yet 22 years of age.

• • •

Viola Allen, who has just finished a long tour in F. Marion Crawford's play, "The White Sister," has gone to London. She has mapped out an extensive foreign tour during her summer vacation, which is to be devoted partly to business and partly to pleasure. Miss Allen will go first to London, where she will witness several successes of the English metropolitan stage; and thence to Stratford-on-Avon as the guest of the trustees of the Shakespeare Memorial theater, to see the prize play, "The Piper," written by Josephine Peabody Marks, wife of a professor of Harvard University, which is to be done for the first time at the Shakespeare Dramatic Festival. Since Miss Allen will then return to London to meet George C. Tyler head of the firm of Liebler & Co., to look over a new play now being written for her for American production next year. If the play proves successful, Miss Allen will appear in it in London immediately after next Easter. From London Miss Allen will go to paris, where she will inspect all of the prevailing dramatic successes, thence to Oberammergau, for the Passion Play.

• • •

Joseph M. Gaites will present a new musical comedy called "The Girl of My Dreams," with book by Wilbur D. Nesbit and music and lyrics by Karl Hoschna and Otto Hauerbach. Johnny Hyams and Lella McIntyre. Rehearsals begin early in July.

• • •

Harriet Burt, until recently leading woman with De Wolf Hopper, has made her debut in vaudeville at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue. Miss Burt will be seen in a new musical playlet by George Henry Payne and T. A. Robbins. The sketch takes its title from that of a song to be sung by Miss Burt, called "Silver Idaho."

• • •

Rose Stahl will make her farewell appearance in New York in "The Chorus Lady" at the Academy of Music June 3. She closed her engagement at that theater the 16th inst. and early in June she will leave for London. Next season she will appear in "The Chorus Lady" a short time on the road, and later will be seen in a new play which Charles Klein is writing for her.

• • •

James T. Powers has closed his season in "Havana" and after a rest will again be seen in his familiar role for the coming year.

Sam Bernard has laid aside "The Girl and the Wizard" and is receiving suggestions for next year's vehicle. He does not yet know himself what he will do, but it will be something to suit him.

• • •

Ada Lewis and Will Archer are the latest additions to the cast of "The Summer Widowers," in which Lew Fields is to play.

• • •

Rehearsals of "Up and Down Broadway," the new summer review which is to be the attraction during the warm weather at the Casino theater after the conclusion of the engagement of "The Chocolate Soldier," and in which Eddie Foy will be the featured player, have been begun under the stage direction of William J. Wilson. The review is by Edgar Smith, with music by Jerome and Schwartz. The chorus features will be of special interest and the girls have been selected by Mr. Wilson from a list of more than 800 candidates.

"The Bad Girl of the Family" is the title of a new play by Frederick Melville, which has proved a hit at King's theater, Hammersmith. This is the second success that the young playwright has had this season, one of his efforts still enjoying a long run at the Aldwich theater. There are eighteen scenes in "The Bad Girl of the Family," which is a melodrama of the old Adelphia type, a kind of play the popularity of which never seems to die in London.

• • •

In saying farewell at the Comedy theater Laurence Irving announced to the accompaniment, by the way, of generous applause, that he will return to America next season when he will produce two more plays by Eugene Brieux, in addition to reviving "The Three Daughters of Mon. Dupont." He will also be seen in a comedy by Harrison Rhodes and Howard Herrick.

• • •

When the announcement was made that Julius Cahn, M. Reis and John Cort had opened the doors of their theaters to the Shuberts, Eddie Foy, upon hearing the news, remarked: 'Hurray! The country's going Shubert by 100,000 majority."

• • •

"The Lottery Man," with Cyril Scott and the original Bijou theater cast will, more than likely be a summer attraction in Chicago.

Harry Clark has been added to the cast of "Up and Down Broadway."

• • •

Lulu Glaser, having closed her season in "Just One of the Boys," is now the guest of Ralph Herz (Mr. Glaser), in Chicago.

• • •

Eddie Foy has added an additional rumble seat to his auto.

• • •

Senor and Senorita Dressler have ordered twin beds shipped to their cottage at Manhattan Beach.

• • •

Stella Mayhew and her husband, the male modiste, Bill, the Taylor, are going honeymooning in the halls of Londons. "The Jolly Bachelors" will try to do without them for a spell.

• • •

The Shuberts are studying plans for a suitable den for the two Foxes. Miss Schefi, of course, will tour in her private car; the rolling palace, formerly used by Charles M. Schwab, may be leased.

• • •

Corine is engaged to a Southerner, "Madame Troubadour" is said to have arranged the match.

• • •

With Miss Florence Roberts playing in the production of "Jim the Penman," in which company her former leading man is also a conspicuous member, a revival of the rumor that she is to marry the handsome actor may be expected.

• • •

In his parting speech at the Comedy theater, Laurence Irving declared that he and his wife "are wedded to Brieux's art." (Will Brigham Young please write.)

• • •

Marguerite Clark declares that she is merely engaged, not married, to Robert Dempster.

Nora Bayes entered the offices of the Shuberts a few days ago and asked: "Has my husband been here; I haven't seen him for an hour."

• • •

Although John Mason asserts that an actor shouldn't marry, he is rumored to be perilously near "The Witching Hour."

• • •

Broadway is wondering if Louise Dresser contemplates another Renovation; matrimonially, of course.

Blanche Ring cannot understand why Louise Dresser "beat her" to the song, "Put on Your Slippers; You're in for the Night."

• • •

Viola Gilette, so rumor has it, is engaged to George J. McFarland. Both are members of "The Beauty Spot" company.

• • •

Mabel Barrison is doubly married to Joseph Howard. Not only are they man and wife, but they are business partners in a half dozen enterprises. They are soon to celebrate a wedding anniversary.

BRAND NEW NOSE,

Cut From His Leg, Worn By Hoosier After Fight.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21.—Henry Bond, whose nose was sliced off by Henry Dance in a fight in the Claypool kitchen, appeared in police court Wednesday wearing a very serviceable nose that had been cut from his leg and spliced on in place of the missing member.

Bond has been in the City hospital since the fight about a month ago and the hospital surgeons arranged the substitute by grafting a little skin from Bond's own leg. The results of their work is very satisfactory to Bond and, in deed, according to all who saw Bond in court, he now has a very handsome nose.

Dance was bound over to the grand jury by Judge Collins under $1,000 bonds. He is charged with assault and battery with intent to kill.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Trouble. A Duluth Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or acking back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidnew disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Duluth people testify to permanent cures.

William Bain, 1402 E. Fourth St., Duluth, Minn., says: "About three years ago I was in poor health as the result of disordered kidneys. My back also ached considerably. As I had heard and read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills, I made up my mind to try them and I procured a supply. After I had used two or three boxes, I was relieved and I have not had to take any medicine for my kidneys since. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NEGRO CONVICTS IN PANIC

When They Heard That Dr. Hyde Was Coming.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 21.—There is a panic on among the 750 negro convicts at the penitentiary through a fear that Dr. B. Clark Hyde, recently convicted of the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope, will soon be an inmate of the prison. They have heard enough about Dr. Hyde to believe that he is a most wonderful man, who can administer poison in such a secretive way as to produce death without causing any suspicion to rest upon himself, and that is quite enough for any negro to know about a man, whom he will dread even worse than death itself.

FORBES WILL BE READY

For Another Ascension in Near Future, He Tells His Friends.

New York, May 21.—A. Holland Forbes and J. C. Yates, who had a thrilling experience and narrow escape from death during a balloon ascension from Quincy, Ill., last week, have arrived in this city from Centre, Ky., where their balloon dropped.

Mr. Forbes was still sore from the shaking up he got when the balloon shot down 300 feet with fearful velocity, but said he would be all right in a few weeks and ready for another ascent. Mr. Forbes went to his summer home at Fairfield, Conn., where he will recuperate from the effects of the tumble.

Mr. Yates, who took photographs in the interest of astronomical science, is also in fairly good condition.

(Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Edwards.)

AMERICANS are constantly meeting so many emergencies—big vital ones at that—that "readiness" may well be called a national trait; but now and again unusual Americans step out of the line and challenge attention because of the bold way in which, in the regular course of business, as it were, some unusual condition is fronted and overcome.

Thus, in a thoroughly prosaic age, the spirit of Paul Revere still lives, and the man who carries the message to Garcia without asking why or when or where is the American of Americans.

One ses not need to go back as far as the Johnstown flood or the Chicago fire to find men who face and overcome seemingly insurmountable difficulties. In American engineering, railroad, diplomatic, and even in professional life, tame as it ordinarily seems, the man of the moment is the man for whom Americans readily throw up their hats.

Of the hundred and one spirited stories from the San Francisco earthquake and fire there is one involving a newspaper publisher that stands out in bold relief.

"Boys," he said instantly grasping the situation, almost while the rumblings of the fearsome quake were still in the air, "this will be followed by a tremendous fire, and everything where we are now will be destroyed like so much paper."

"What are we to do?" he was asked. His reply was:

"Get shovels, axes, picks, dig a big hole in which to bury the typesetting machines and such parts of the big press as we can strip off in the shortest notice. There is not a moment to lose!"

It was done—and after the fire had passed the machinery was dug up and a rag of a newspaper printed in a tent.

J. Ross Clark's Startling Report.

Shipwreck, fire, flood play havoc with puny man's plans, and none knows this better than J. Ross Clark, brother of Former Senator Clark, whose activities include railroads, mines, ranches, world without end.

J. Ross Clark is a native of Pennsylvania and a Far-Western man by choice. The early days found him in Montana, seeking his fortune, and in due course he went into banking with his brother and flourished immensely. But not rethring is J. Ross Clark's disposition, so little is he before the public that his big affairs seldom attract attention.

The rule is that the man who commands, or rather compels other men to do his bidding, must have more than the ordinary amount of iron in his blood, and to top it off must be considerable of an egotist. J. Ross Clark, by all the rules by which men are ordinarily judged would not, at first glance, be classed as a man of energy and action. He seems too amiable, too polite, too considerate of other men's feelings. Yet he is always getting big financial projects out of a hole, along the practical side. His latest exploit is to replace in well nigh startling fashion some 120 miles of railroad in the Far Southwest that in a night fell a victim to devastating mountain flood-waters, actually burying cars, locomotives, and track from a few inches to as much as thirty feet under rocks and sand, and blocking traffic on a through line for an indefinite time.

It chanced at the time that there were a number of passenger trains on the part of the road that was completely destroyed by the floods, and for three days the passengers on one train were marooned in the Nevada deserts, ate up everything in the dining cars, went hunting big game back in the mountains, and at night played guitars and poker, and organized entertainments. They had a jolly time, it seems, knowing that J. Ross Clark would send a relief party by hook or by crook. Mule-outfits and wagons slowly made their way over the deserts to the lost passenger train, and in due course, after many misadventures, the travelers reached a small town on the borderland of civilization, and were ultimately restored to their friends. A vote of thanks was given to J. Ross Clark, and he smiled and turned to digging out the lost railroad.

In order to understand the singular situation, it must briefly be explained that this section of the road crosses the Nevada and Arizona state line, through a natural pass some 130 miles long. This pass is one of the wonders of the whole far Western country. Its sides are often as steep as Gibraltar, and the walls pinch together in places, leaving a trail scarcely wider than is needful to supply the right of way for a single railroad track. It cuts through mountains whose general altitude is 6,000 feet.

The pass is, in short, the bed of an ancient river, and is the sink or drain for 100 miles of mountainous region round about, whose peaks are covered with eternal snows. The Virgin river, or creek, flows through the pass, being the only outlet for the water, and naturally there comes now and then a year when the flood-waters develop powers of destruction that are irresistible. J. Ross Clark has in years gone by had all sorts of trouble in Meadow valley, as it is termed, but the best engineers in America have said that it is the only natural outlet for a railroad in this entire region, and consequently Mr. Clark has been forced to try to overcome, in a measure, the relentless forces of nature by such mechanical tricks as are of man's cunning. Immense sums have been spent in ballast, drainage and other precautionary measures—but the flood-waters this spring were too powerful.

As soon as he learned of the disaster, Mr. Clark called the best engineers in America, and parties were sent far afield in the mountain fastnesses to learn it, as reported again and again, there was no other way over those 6,000-foot ranges. In due course, the answer came that there was no other way. Then Mr. Clark decided on a bold ruse. "We must cut a groove on the side-wall of the pass, high above the bed of the canyon, and build there," he said. All manner of substitutes, less expensive, were thought out, such as building tracks on stilts, eighteen feet above the floor of the canyon, but Mr. Clark decided on actually cutting the walls of the living rock, thus to solve, once and for all, the enormously expensive problem of defeating the destructive floods. Meantime, much of the 120-mile section that was buried under twenty to thirty feet of sand will be abandoned, as it will cost too much to dig it out. Some one has figured that the desperate emergency that Mr. Clark is big enough to meet will cost $20,000,000, if not more, but Mr. Clarke still keeps a-smiling.

Checking the Raging Colorado.

Another American railroad builder who likes trouble and the more the better seemingly, is Epes Randolph, a Kentuckian by nativity. He has recently been building roads in Old Mexico and here and there has had to scale and get around peaks 10,000 feet high. His labor is largely done with Yaqui Indians, at one time regarded as blood-thirsty and untamable, but Randolph seems to have no difficulty in making terms with them. In fact, in so far as the work may be done with shovels, picks and axes, he seems, in some mysterious sort of way, to have turned the Yaquis from thoughts of the bloody warpath to the more beneficial ones of building up the country. Curiously enough, the first thing these Indians do with their wages is to go to the railroad store and buy not geegaws but America-made shoes. It is their one great delight to find their feet shod as the pale face covers his.

Randolph is known in Washington as one of the stiffest poker players that ever graced that poker-crazed city of statesmen, and there are men who tell startling stories of just how long and how hard he will play the game, if, as a last resort, they will accept his shirt and his boots.

But poker-nerve is not much different, it may be, or, at least, is only a symbol, of the nerve that Randolph, as a big American "trouble man," has to show in the course of his railroad building. One of his greatest feats was heading off and turning back the flood-waters of the Colorado river, and saving 12,000 settlers from losing their all in the Imperial valley in California. Previously five unsuccessful attempts had been made to head off the river on its rampage.

Briefly, the river had broken through some head-gates that an irrigation company had made, at a point just below the international boundary line, and as the adjacent land slopes sharply down from the river levee for hundreds of miles, the angry torrents were soon swirling like lightning through ancient river beds, and were widening hour by hour and threatening to turn 6,700 miles of agricultural lands into a great inland sea. Salton Sink had already been filled, and near and far there were 12,000 settlers and six small towns with millions in property in the direct path of devastation. The valley was panic-stricken; men, women and children fled for their lives.

Everybody's plans to stave off the impending disaster had dismally failed. Bags of sand by the thousands of tons were dropped across the gap in the river, but were carried away like straw. Then engineers tried heavy rush mattings and brush, but the Colorado seemed insulted and raged more furiously than ever. To cap the climax, a large island, near the break, used as a base of operations, was washed away—and then complete disaster seemed inevitable.

It was at this critical moment that they sent for Epes Randolph, the biggest "trouble man" in the whole Southwestern country. The first thing he did was to wire 500 miles around for rock, gravel, timber, stone and rubbish; and all the freight trains in transit within the 500-mile zone were unloaded and used to rush ballast and debris to the break in the Colorado. Then came trains of old steel rails, ties, steam dredges, forty miles of steel cable, five-eighths of an inch thick, steam pumps, steam shovels, pile drivers, 600 horses and mules, ploughs, scrapers, eight yard engines, 1,150 laborers, including 450 Indians, and many volunteers. It was like the bivouac of a great army, out in the desert, and the work of checking the river went on eighty-six days and eighty-six nights, and cost over $3,500,000. As a last resort, when the dam was to be tested against the full force of the flood, Randolph ordered locomotives stationed where they could be dumped into the breach. But the construction held, the river was turned, and Randolph quietly disappeared—to take up other duties.

A River Conqueror of the East.

An Eastern man who is entitled to take his stand alongside Epes Randolph as a checker of turbulent waters is J. Waldo Smith—popularly known as Waldo Smith to his friends and the engineering profession. As chief engineer of New York city's project of bringing a gigantic supply of water to the city from the very heart of the Catskill mountains, 100 miles distant—a plan which calls for the expenditure of $162,000,000—Mr. Smith has on hand a civic enterprise second only to such feats as the building of the Panama canal; and in its own way New York's water problem furnishes quite as many difficulties to those who are gradually overcoming them as are to be found at Panama.

There is a story of Mr. Smith and the Passaic river of New Jersey, which illustrates well the man's temper.

At the time that the incident happened Mr. Smith was employed by a New Jersey water company which supplied that necessary of life to a thickly settled district, including half a dozen cities, such as Paterson, Rayonne and Jersey City.

At that time, too, the floods were very high in the Passiac and its tributaries, and the surging waters, strewn with great trees, logs, out buildings and general debris, came down upon the water company's pumping station at a place called Little Falls, threatening to wreck the entire plant and that done, a serious famine would fall upon the most populous section of the entire state of New Jersey; some 60,000,000 gallons for domestic use was the demand made daily at that time on the water company.

Mr. Smith, then but a few years with the company and not yet in his 30's, was in charge of the pumping station. As the water rose inch by inch, showing no signs of abatement, but, on the contrary, giving every indication of breaking all flood records for the Passaic, he saw that he was in for a stiff fight. Quietly he informed the little force of men under him that he was going to stay in the pumping station and save the plant, no matter what happened, and every mother's son of them was going to stay with him and help him save it. He said it more or less smilingly—he is noted in his profession for his amiability—but he spoke with a grim earnestness withal and the men stayed. Then, under their leader's direction, they barricaded the doors and windows with heavy oaken planks—made the opeulngs water tight—and put up all sorts of emergency brakes to prevent the anticipated flood pressure from causing the building to collapse.

Ten feet high the flood waters rose and swirled against and around the walls of the pumping station. Its walls were bombarded by logs and other heavy debris until they shook under the rapid succession of blows. Once an oaken plank in one of the barricades snapped in two under the force of a particularly heavy blow and a stream of water shot in upon the men who were defying one of nature's greatest terrifying agencies to destroy them and the property they had in charge. But in an instant, under the direction of Mr. Smith, new planking was forced into place, the waters were forced back, human brain and brawn outwitting them in what seemed their moment of victory.

For hours Mr. Smith and his men watched with straining eyes their barricades, as from higher and higher above them came down the sound of blows upon the walls outside. Then, slowly, but surely, the noises began to creep down and down upon the walls, they came with less force and less frequently, and finally—after what must have seemed an eternity to the strained nerves within—they ceased altogether. The flood had receded, the danger was over. The plant had been saved. There would be no water famine, with all its attendant miseries in the most populous section of New Jersey. And all the while that the battle had gone on the pumps had been kept steadily at work, sending the life-sustaining water to its consumers.

It was this bit of emergency work that turned the eyes of the engineering profession upon Mr. Smith, especially the men interested in the civic water supply question, and a few years later, after having become the chief engineer of the company for whom he fought the flood at Little Falls, he entered the employ of the city of New York and has been a big man in the metropolitan water supply service ever since.

How Smith Fooled the Experts.

At least once in the course of his present gigantic task, Mr. Smith has met a good sized emergency.

The Catskill mountains lie west of the Hudson river; New York is on its eastern bank, and the plan is to get the water to the city by taking it under the Hudson river in great siphon like tunnels. One day a great professional hue and cry arose that Mr. Smith had blundered. He was actually ordering or planning these tunnels at Storm King on the Hudson, where soundings from boats had showed nothing but infinite depths of mud. Besides, the geologists were against Mr. Smith. They knew there was no rock under the river's bed at Storm King, for miles down.

The word was quietly passed that Waldo Smith had at last met his Waterloo. But he paid no attention. Then some of the scientific journals began hinting that all was not as it should be and Mr. Smith showed his hand. He had had two borings made, going down under the river from each bank and meeting far under midstream, and this enabled him to know every inch of the formation through which he had planned his tunnels. Thus, while the geologists and others guessed that there was no rock under the river at Storm King through which to drive the great siphons, the borings had proved to Mr. Smith that the rock was there nevertheless.

Mr. Smith is a Massachusetts boy by birth, and his boyhood home was in the town of Lincoln. His mother, now in the eighties, is still alive and he is most attentive to her in her advanced years, never missing an opportunity to be at her side.

He is characteristically frank, open and approachable. He sits in a large room, wide open to the hall, and talks to callers without using any private room, and there are many around who are within earshot. For a man who has such large figures on his mind, he is quite a relief from the little-big-man who surrounds himself with all manner of devices for keeping the public out.

The Yankee Who Stopped an African War.

Perhaps the story of how Maj. F. R. Burnham, the noted American scout, single-handed stopped a great African war, best illustrates the kind of man he is when an emergency comes, and in his life, crowded, as it has been with great siphons, the borings had proved adventures in many parts of the world—America, Africa, Alaska, Mexico, Canada—emergencies have come upon him many times.

The man who really caused England all the trouble and expense of the second Matabele war in South Africa was a witch doctor of the name of M'Limo, who was looked upon as a sort of god by his tribesmen. The Matebeles bowed down before his black magic and superstitiously followed him, even to taking up their spears against the British.

In the first war with the Matebeles Burnham had served as a scout and received recognition of his services a gold campaign medal and a large tract of Rhodesian land. When the second war with the same natives broke out Scout Burnham found himself attached to the staff of Sir Frederick Carrington, and in the course of time that leader put it up to his American scout to put a stop to hostilities by either capturing or killing the witch doctor M'Limo.

That worthy had taken good care to establish himself in a secret cave in the heart of the Matopa mountains, but after Burnham had been on his trail for some time he learned through a native woman the location of the magician's den, and with one companion, he made his way thither. M'Limo was found in his yard, or what corresponded to a yard, and his visitors, professing ignorance of the black's power, the latter consented to prove them by giving an exhibition of them in his cave of enchantment. But no sooner was the trio within the cave than Burnham shot the fetich doctor dead in his tracks. For his manner of meeting and solving instantly the great emergency that confronted him, Burnham was much criticised in certain quarters, but the sudden end of the war justified him throughout the greater part of the civilized world.

Maj. Burnham, who got his title as chief of scouts in the field for Lord Roberts during the Boer war, was born in Minnesota in the days when the Indians often strayed off the reservation and went on massacring expeditions; in other words in 1861. When he was a babe, his parents, fleeing from the Indians, were obliged to hide him in a corn shock, and the story goes that he was none the worse for the adventure. Those who hold that the force of early circumstances mould a man's career will find in this episode food for reflection.

Today Maj. Burnham makes his home on a 10,000 acre ranch in the heart of the forest reservation country, miles from the white man's influences. He has always been on the outposts of civilization, and he likes to be there still.

In congress today, from an Alabama district, is a man who gained world-wide fame by volunteering to meet what seemed a critical emergency looming up before an American battle fleet—Richmond Pearson Hobson. Today, the federal supervisor of New York harbor is Capt. Cameron McRae Winslow, who, as Lieut. Winslow, in 1898, led the little party of volunteers that undertook to cut the Cuban cables off Cienfuegos, that the Spanish forces on the island might have no means of communication with the home country. By many critics and some historians, this act has been called the bravest of the Spanish war; for three hours the men in the boats were under the hottest sort of fire from about a thousand Spaniards on shore, yet Lieut. Winslow and his men stuck to the task until two of the cables had been cut. It was emergency work of the fiercest sort, and very properly Lieut. Winslow was advanced in numbers for displaying during the period of emergency what his superiors called extraordinary heroism.

Both Hobson and Winslow are splendid instances of the manner in which the rank and file of American manhood unquestionably stands ready to meet emergencies, no matter how big or dangerous to life, when called upon. And just as these two young men, who were absolutely unknown to the general public before they met their emergencies, made themselves famous by daring to wrestle with the unexpected, so there will be other Americans in the future, now unknown, who will make themselves at least national, and perhaps world reputations in divers walks of life—war, politics, money making, what not—in like manner.

HE'S A COUSIN O'MINE

CZAR NICHOLAS II
Of Russia.

KING GEORGE V
Of England.

There is a remarkable resemblance between the czar of Russia and King George V of England. The czar was born on May 18, 1868. He was the eldest son of Emperor Alexander III and of Princess Dagmar, daughter of the late King Christian IX of Denmark. King George of Great Britain was born on June 3, 1865. ## FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO BE ERECTED AT GRAND FORKS

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the erection of new churches the city of Grand Forks is taking on new laurels for itself, having constructed two splendid edifices within the past two years, while this year a third will be reared, equalling those already constructed and even surpassing them in several details. The church edifice to be erected this year is that of the congregation of the First Presbyterian churh, and $70,000 will be expended in making the improvement. The contract for the work will be let within a few days.

In planning for the building of their new house of worship, the Presbyterians have combined beauty and size in a happy manner. The building will be constructed on property owned by the congregation having a frontage of 298 feet, with one side being 161 feet deep and the other being 140 feet deep. The church is to be placed on the center of this plot.

Plans have been prepared on what is known as the Jacobian style of architecture, a style prevalent in England in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The building will have a frontage of 143 feet and a depth of 117½ feet. The tower will rise to a height of 65 feet. The church will have a seating capacity of 1,100 and the Sunday school will have facilities for caring for 600 children. The basement of the building will provide a combination dining room and entertainment hall, seating 350 persons. It is complete with dressing rooms, stage, etc.

The building will be constructed of colonial sand mold brick, laid in white mortar and trimmed with Bedford limestone. The white mortar will havo the effect of making lighter the general effect of the dark red brick.

This building has been made possible through the united action of the congregation and the work of the building committee, A. I. Hunter, A. A. Veitch and S. S. Titus, together with J. Bell De Remer, the architect in charge. It is to be enclosed by Oct. 15, 1910, and is to be ready for occupancy by Feb. 1, 1911.

GILBERT

Gilbert, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Modern camp initiated a large class at their last meeting. The class unmbered some thirty and were secured by Deputy Councilor Strand. County Attorney John H. Norton of Duluth was present and assisted in the work. The Gilbert camp is a hustling organization having a membership of over 100 members. The nucleus of the lodge here was the old Sparta camp which was one of the best in Northern Minnesota when Sparta took to wheels and joined Gilbert. The old team of foresters of the Sparta camp was one of the best drilled in the country at the time of removal of Sparta.

The First Methodist Episcopal church of Gilbert was organized here Sunday by Rev. E. K. Cooper district superintendent of the Duluth district, assisted by Rev. W. R. Palmer of Biwabik. A large number were received into membership and officers were chosen as follows: Trustees, Dr. H. M. Frances, R. S. Hartley, C. G. Fulton, E. J. Tradewell, E. L. Copeland and Karl Fredrickson. The church here is the result of the efforts of W. R. Palmer who began the work here a year ago. The church has secured building lots west of the high school, where they will erect a modern church. The church has a strong ladies aid society which has been doing good work during the winter in raising funds for church purposes.

August Ferry of Eveleth, has purchased a lot in the First addition to Gilbert and will erect a hardware store there in the near future.

Thomas Fitzgerald and Miss Kate McCurdy were married recently in Duluth. Mr. Fitzgerald is proprietor of the Gilbert hotel.

N. J. Colvin has returned from his trip to the Twin Cities, where he was in attendance at the convention of the Knights of Paythias of Minnesota, as a delegate.

A. D. Halladay, assistant superintendent of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad was in town a few days ago on business connected woth the removal of the depot at Pettitt. It is planned to make a union depot in that locality for the use of the Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth, Mesaba & Northern. This will be a move in the right direction as the travelling public has not been getting a square deal by the Duluth Mesaba & Northern in the way of depot accommodations. Passengers heretofore have been compelled to wait out on the open platform for the arrival of trains in all kinds of weatuer.

Otto Lindbloom and family and Mrs. O. R. Olson and family departed recently for their old home in Finland. The Lindbloome will make their home there in the future and the Olsons will return after an extended visit with friends and relatives.

Gilbert has now a large lodge of Odd Fellows. The order was instituted here under the authority of Grand Master W. M. Barber of Long Prairie and A. L. Bolton of St. Paul, grand secretary. Degree teams from Eveleth, Biwabik and Virginia put on the work very ably. Officers were elected as follows: Past grand master, Edward Kircher; noble grand, C. O. Welch; vice grand, Thomas Morrison; recording secretary, E. L. Pryor; permanent secretary, O. R. Olson; treasurer, J. B. Thompson; trustees, Robert Proud, D. M. Mouser, and Jacob Weiner. An elegant luncheon was served by Mrs. C. O. Welch. The ceremonies lasted until 5 o'clock in the morning.

Dr. Clemans at Walker.

Walker, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. E. C. Clemans, secretary of the anti-saloon league, will deliver a lecture at the opera house Sunday evening. Dr. Clemans is noted as a fluent talker. There will be no services in Walker churches Sunday evening, so as to allow every one to attend this lecture at the opera house.

Milwaukee Facing Big Deficit.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 21.—Milwaukee will face a deficit in the city treasury of $216,816.27 at the end of 1910, according to a statement prepared by Controller Carl P. Dietz, Deputy Leslie S. Everts, and Chief Clerk Louis Liebscher, which was submitted to Mayor Emil Seidel on Friday.

The statement which was prepared to guide the new administration in carrying out its policies shows that little which requires expenditure of money can be accomplished this year.

Aged Inventor Dead.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—George Vevitt, aged 91, was found dead in bed on Thursday. He had been a resident of Madison for sixty-one years and had always claimed that an invention which had to do with the running of water from water tanks into the tending tanks of an engine was stolen from him.

Scrap Over Placing Flag.

Valley City, N. D., May 21.—Robert Anderson and ex-Mayor Cowell engaged in a heated argument near the postoffice on Front street which resulted in the ex-mayor landing on Mr. Anderson. It appears that the controversy arose over the Platou flag incident, the ex-mayor taking exception to Mr. Anderson's remark that Dr. Platou was a fool if he put an American flag above the Norwegian flag. Bystanders interferred when Cowell struck Anderson and the trouble was at an end.

Telephone for Northome.

Northome, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A local telephone system is being installed. Frank Gallagher is in charge of the work, and expects to have the telephones ready for use in a couple of weeks. The local exchange is being put in with the expectations that the Northwestern Telephone company will extend its line from Blackduck to International Falls in the near future, thus giving this place long distance connections.

Grand Marais Attorney Dies.

Grand Marais, Minn., May 21.—After a short illness of peritonitis, L. C. Titus, a well-known local attorney, died yesterday.

A Real Family Remedy

A family remedy is one that any member of the family—man or woman or child—can use with safety in those common ailments which from time to time attack some of its members. A boy cuts himself or runs a nail into his foot—a small matter in itself, but if not properly attended to, lockjaw may set in, and death in its most horrible form will result. Or a slight cold may attack the most robust member of the family—nothing serious in itself, and yet every case of chronic catarrh, bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis, or consumption, starts with a common cold, which, if neglected, ends in death, perhaps after years of intense suffering.

When the celebrated Swedish chemist, Dr. P. Hakansson, discovered the antiseptic and antitoxic known as Salubrin, the discovery was hailed by the medical profession of Sweden, (where physicians are paid by the government for teaching the public how to avoid sickness and to cure common ailments without having to call in a doctor,) as a most valuable medical discovery, and on recommendation of the medical faculty of the Royal University of Lund, the government remitted the tax on the alcohol used in the manufacture of Salubrin, thus enabling Dr. Hakansson to produce Salubrin at such a low price that even the poorest person can afford to keep a bottle on hand for cases of emergency. As a result, Salubrin has become the one great family medicine of Sweden, the annual sales amounting to over 1,250,000 bottles in a population represented by little more than one million families.

Salubrin has proven equally efficacious in all cases of external injuries and ailments, such as wounds, sores, skin eruptions, as well a affections of the mucous membrane such as catarrhal and bronchial troubles, and is used either externally as a linament or internally in five to ten parts of hot or cold water, or is inhaled as a vapor. In every case Salubrin destroys all disease germs and assists nature in removing or overcoming the ailment. No one who ever tried Salubrin will be without a bottle in case of need. 50c at druggists.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NOW USING NEW HOIST

Rogers-Brown Company Starts Sullivan Hoist and Air Compressor.

Very Large Amount of Important Building Going on at Deerwood.

Deerwood, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Rogers-Brown Ore company started its Sullivan hoist for the first time this week. The new air compressor was also started, together with the new cage hoist. All the other new machinery will be running in full blast in the course of a few days, and it is expected that it will handle the three-ton skip in an easy manner. The starting up of this machinery means a large increase of employes.

It is reported that the Rogers-Brown Ore company contemplates building twenty-two more miners' cottages in the near future out in Cuyuna. They are to be erected according to the plans of those formerly erected by this company. It is also rumored that a co-operative store is to be started in the town of Cuyuna. This enterprise is to be capitalized by a number of business men who are interested in the mining industry.

Deerwood Building Boom.

There is a large amount of building going on here. The fine new Adams hotel is completed and the carpenters have started to run up the studding. This is to be a two-story frame building containing twenty-two rooms on the second floor. The ground floor will consist of a lobby and office, ladies' sitting room, travelers' office, kitchen and dining room and the proprietor's apartments. A barn which runs under the entire building will be divided into a bowling alley, pool and billiard hall and a laundry. The proprietors contemplate erecting an acetylene gas plant. The total cost of the building will be in the neighborhood of $12,000.

The foundation for the Roman Catholic church has been completed and the committee is awaiting bids for the carpenter work. It is thought that this building, when completed, will have cost about $2,000, and be large enough for the present.

The Dower Lumber company has just completed the erection of one of the finest lumber sheds in this part of the state.

R. J. Hilyar's large dance and lodge hall is rapidly nearing completion. It will be of hardwood finish throughout and will have a spacious balcony for the musicians.

Mrs. W. F. Barten has had a porch added to her residence, which addition has made it one of the finest and most modern buildings in the town. She recently had installed a heating plant, with hot and cold water accommodations on every floor. This building has been leased to Dr. W. L. Chowning of Minneapolis for hospital purposes, and Mrs. Bartens is having built on the same smaller building erected on the same lines on adjoining property, which will cost approximately $3,500.

James McCarville's property across Serpent lake from Deerwood, commonly known as "Hunter's Point," has been platted into town lots, which are now on the market.

Victor Wickstrom's new hotel building is rapidly nearing completion, and it is expected that the building will be completed and ready for occupancy about July 1. This building will accommodate about fifty or sixty people. It will be modern in every respect. Acetylene gas is to be used for illuminating.

FIRE REPORTS WIDE OF TRUTH

Reported Damage in Vicinity of Northome Were Gross Exaggerations.

Northome, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contrary to the reports in the city dailies that forest fires have been threatening the villages and towns in this section, there has not even been enough smoke to cause the residents here any alarm. Aside from a few brush fires made necessary by the state compelling the loggers to burn their slashings there have been no fires to endanger either life or property.

The rainfall during the past three days has been sufficient to extinguish all small fires and there is no immediate danger from that source.

MUCH DRAINAGE WORK UNDER WAY

One Crookston Engineer Alone Has Charge of 500 Miles.

Crookston, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some conception of the amount of drainage work being done in this section can be realized by the verified statement that Drainage Engineer O. L. Hamery of this city at the present time has the supervision of 500 miles of drainage ditches, practically all located in Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, although there are a few miles in Beltrami county and a few in Polk.

On practically all of this work the contracts have been let and on many of them dirt is being moved at the present time and the ditches will be completed the coming fall. The ordinary land is in splendid shape this spring for ditching with dry land walking dredges where the greater part of the work is being done, though in some of the larger jobs floating dredges are being used.

Mr. Hamery is but one of many drainage engineers in Crookston and surrounding territory, and thus it will be seen that the work in the aggregate is tremendous, and shows a disposition to have the drainage system completed in this section of the state within a few years and in shape for tile drainage, which will become general in a comparatively short time.

ATTORNEY UNDER FIRE

A. E. SCHWITTAY, Marinette, Wis., Attorney Who Has Figured in Several Sensations, the Latest Being Defendant in Disbarment Proceedings.

CROOKSTON READY FOR LARGE CROWDS

Polk County City to Care for All Attending Big Development Meet.

Crookston, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crookston is preparing to entertain one of the largest crowds that ever came here at the summer meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association. Indications from all directions point to an attendance that will be a surprise to everyone with the exception of Secretary McKenzie, who has been in the field and who has some conception of the very general intention of every county and every commercial club to be represented by a full delegation, barring circumstances that might arise at the last moment.

Every available room and bed is being provided, and the restaurants and hotels will all have extra help during the three days, June 1 and 2, and at that the city will be taxed to its capacity to take care of the crowds.

The intention of the Iron Range and Duluth delegations to have their sleepers sidetracked here, as will the Twin City delegation, will relieve the situation to some extent, but even with those delegations taking care of, the citizens will stand ready to open their homes if necessary to take care of all the delegates.

SUCCESSFUL FIELD MEET.

Eighth Annual Contest at Grand Forks Concludes Saturday.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21—(Special to The Herald.)—When the eighth annual interscholastic field meet comes to a close this afternoon, another splendid success in that line will have been achieved by the state university. The fight for first place in the finals that are being pulled off seems to lie between Fargo and Grand Forks, both of these cities having many places.

To run off the preliminary events took all day Friday and this morning, as the list of eighty entries was such as to take up a tremendous amount of time.

Tonight the annual declamation contest will be held, six students being chosen for the final contest. In all, there were over forty high school students of the state entered, but the preliminaries yesterday afternoon and this morning lowered that number to the six who go on tonight.

WHIRLS INTO RAPIDS.

Clerk Employed at Grand Rapids, Wis., Dam Nearly Drowns.

Marinette, Wis., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert Knapp of Menominee, employed as a clerk at the Grand Rapids dam, will never again try to cross the boom over the log chute at that place. He tried it once too often and every one who saw him go whirling down the foaming rapids never again expected to see him alive. Twenty feet from the outlet there is an overhead timber which spans the chute. In whirling around past it, Knapp lifted his arms up in despair and clutched it. He succeeded in holding on and was quickly pulled to terra firma.

Loses Big Toe; Also Bunion.

Ashland, Wis., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bad bunion on the big toe of John Hurley of this city finally cost him the toe. The toe was amputated at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday and although he loses the toe, he gets rid of the bunion too.

An operation of skin grafting on the head of George McCari, an Italian miner from Bessemer was also performed this morning. He was partially scalped by a mine fire last fall.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend one, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 94 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

IN MEMORY OF LATE KING.

Sons of St. George of Calumet to Hold Memorial Exercises.

Calumet, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the regular meeting of "One and All" lodge, Sons of St. George, Thursday evening, the question of holding memorial services in Calumet for the late King Edward was discussed, and favorable action taken. A temporary committee was appointed to take the matter up with St. Andrew's society of this city, so that joint services may be conducted.

The memorial services may be held a week from next Sunday, June 5, in the evening, provided suitable arrangements can be made.

The following officers were elected by One and All lodge for the ensuing term: President, Warley Barnes; vice president, Alex Thomas; past president, William Paynter; messenger, J. MacAllister; assistant messenger, Fred Pedlar; financial secretary, John Nekervis; treasurer, Harry Williams; chaplain, W. Uren; inside sentinel, J Prisk; physician, Dr. J. C. Abrams; delegate to grand lodge, Charles Mugford; alternate, John Nekervis.

WHITE ELEPHANT HOTEL.

Hawarden Inn at Gladstone, Minn., Is Being Dismantled.

Marquette, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because the building is too pretentious, the size of the city considered, the Hawarden Inn at Gladstone has been a white elephant on the hands of its owners for nearly twenty years. Its doors have now been closed, and it is probable that they will be opened only to remove them. Proprietor after proprietor has tried every possible way to make both ends meet, and has failed. The present owners have made a large outlay in the hope of saving their investment, but neither as a hotel, hospital, sanitarium or other institution has the Hawarden inn paid operating expenses. Now the building has been dismantled. The structure itself, though expensive to erect, is useless and in all probability it will be wrecked. It contains much pine and other material and fittings of value.

UPPER MICHIGAN PAVING.

Several Cities Expect to Do a Large Amount.

Marquette, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some large paving jobs will be carried on in Upper Michigan this year. The city of Crystal Falls expects to spend between $30,000 and $40,000 on Superior street the coming summer, and a like amount will be expended at Negaunee in improving Iron street. Creosoted wood blocks have already been adopted as the material in the latter city. Ironwood, metropolis of the Gogebic iron range, will do considerable paving work this year, and so will a number of the municipalities in the Copper country. Preparatory to the work at Crystal Falls, the Chicago Northwestern railroad is lowering the grade of its tracks at a cost of many thousands of dollars.

TOOK MANY HERRING.

Two Sault Ste. Marie Fishermen Make a Very Large Haul.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fish market was flooded with Soo Rapids herring the other day as the result of the work of two local fishermen, Frank Brown, Jr., and Alex Cadreau, who captured between 1,100 and 1,200 herring with their dip nets from a canoe in the rapids within a few hours. This is the largest catch reported for the same length of time for many years.

HIS RETURN HIS UNDOING.

Alleged Thief Returned to Scene of Crime to Be Captured.

Winona, Minn., May 21.—Samuel Thompson, aged 26, the farmhand who made away with $500 in cash belonging to John Thompson, a prominent farmer residing south of Lewistown, last February, is in jail in Winona.

His capture was brought about as a result of the clever maneuvering of Sheriff W. E. Parr, after two and a half months of quiet search. Since the time of the early morning robbery on Sunday, Feb. 27, the fugitive has been enjoying a sojourn abroad, having gone back to hi sold home in Norway after an absence of thirteen years. But his decision to come back to this country of the free to begin all over again a touch of life on "Easy street," proved a most disastrous move for the thief.

Thompson, and his employer, also Thompson, had driven to Lewistown on Saturday, Feb. 26, to deliver a load of hogs, the sale price of which amounted to $1,000. The farmer placed his role in his strongbox in the home where it remained during the night. In the morning the employe seemed to be unusually long about his chores, and an investigation was made. He had disappeared and $500 of the hog-money had gone with him. The other half of the boodle, though within hand's reach, was left untouched.

DULUTHIAN ON THE JOB.

Henry Kimpel Assisting in Building Rochester Postoffice.

Rochester, Minn., May 21.—Henry Kimpel has arrived from Duluth to assist Harry Frigge in arranging for the preliminary work in the construction of the new postoffice. Both men are employes of the Northern Construction company, the contracting firm. They will see to the vacating of the site, the securing of sand, stone, brick and the other materials, etc.

MOORHEAD NORMAL PLANS.

President Announces What Will Be Done During Commencement.

Moorhead, Minn., May 21.—President F. A. Weld of the Moorhead normal school has announced the program for the annual commencement exercises. The sermon will be preached by Dr. S. Banks Nelson, theme will be, "The Student as the Picket-post." On Monday, May 30, Miss Kepple, teacher of elocution, and J. Harrold Powers, head of the music department, will give a recital of "What Every Woman Knows." There will be class events and receptions. The commencement exercises will be held Friday evening, June 3. The address will be delivered by Karl Mathie and the diplomas will be presented by C. A. Nye, resident director. Following this will be the alumni banquet and reception. There will be 124 graduates.

THREE YEARS IN WAUPUN.

For Jail Bird Who Crippled Park Falls Man for Life.

Phillips, Wis., May 21.—The sheriff has gone to Waupun with Jesse Pinkerton, who was sentenced by Judge Parish to three years in the penitentiary for assaulting William Loomer of Park Falls, crippling him for life. The defendant and his victim were living at Park Falls. He is alleged to have first shot at Loomis and then struck him with his gun. He escaped from the sheriff and was finally located in Michigan and brought back here for trial. Pinkerton is an old offender having served a term in prison for larceny committed in Rhinelander.

ECKLES' PROPERTY WILL BECOME CATHOLIC SCHOOL.

Oconomowoc, Wis., May 21.—The James H. Eckles property on Lake La Belle, valued at $250,000, was sold at administrator's sale Thursday to the Redemptorist Fathers, a Jesuit order of St. Louis, for $33,0000. The property comprises twenty-nine acres of land and a handsome residence. Judge K. M. Landis and George H. Eckles, Chicago, conducted the sale. The property will be used for a Catholic theological seminary.

Black Hills Snowstorm.

Pine City — Pine county has been at the state fair a number of times, and as the investment appears to have been a good one another will be shown this year at the great state institution. At the recent meeting the county commissioners appropriated $500 for the display.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Aberdeen, S. D.—Frank. McCormick, chief train dispatcher for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway at Aberdeen, has returned from a tour of the South. He was in Texas and other states and reports the southern country to be in a flourishing condition.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Within the next two weeks Deputy Imperial Potentate Frank J. Treat of the imperial council of the Ancient and Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will deliver the charter to Kem temple.

Fargo, N. D.—Ed. L. Lindgren, the Northern Pacific conductor who was badly squeezed between two cars at Lake Park, Minn., one day last week, is getting along nicely. His sister, Miss Freda, of this city received a letter from him which states that he hopes to be able to leave for his home at Moorhead within a week or ten days.

Bismarck, N. D.—The Grand Army post of Bismarck is preparing an excellent program for Memorial day exercises. James W. Foley will read some of his poems suitable for the occasion. Deputy State Supt. E. J. Taylor will deliver a short oration.

Fargo, N. D.—A dispatch from Mrs. N. C. Young of Fargo, who has been attending the General Federation of Women's clubs' convention at Cincinnati, states that Mrs. Frank White of Valley City was elected a director of the organization.

Pierre, S. D.—Nancy R. Cooper, who was found guilty of grand larceny by the jury in circuit court here, has been given a sentence of two years in the penitentiary. She was convicted of stealing silverware from the Depot Cafe, where she was employed. The defense was that only petit larceny had been committed.

Grand Forks, N. D.—M. Akrann of Norwich, this state, who is at present visiting his old home in Norway, was present in Christiania during Theodore Roosevelt's stay in that city, and in a letter to a local paper he tells of the affair.

Minot, N. D.—Christ Ganea, 23 years of age, died at the Northwestern hospital as a result of a wound received three years ago while hunting with friends. One of the men with Ganea jokingly remarked that he would shoot him and turned the gun which he did not know was loaded. The deceased is of Russian birth.

Devils Lake, N. D.—Steve Jones, who has been assisting in procuring a right-of-way for the Soo railway through Devils Lake, reports that he is making good progress and that deeds for the property desired will pass in a few days.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—The Naval Reserve boys will soon appear in bran new white uniforms. The new uniforms are furnished by the government, and are the regulation article. Assurance of official support for a training ship has been received, and it is likely that Commander Werder will soon decide upon the type of ship he wants and will then put in a requisition.

Fond du Lac—Guy D. Smith of Manistee, Mich., has been elected superintendent of the city schools, to succeed Thomas Loyd Jones, who will become principal of the Madison high school. Mr. Smith's salary will be $2,100.

Chippewa Falls—Claiming that the killing of one of their number by a steam shovel on Wednesday was an omen due to the approach of the comet, Fred Genny and his gang of Italian workmen employed by the Soo railroad have quit their jobs and returned to Pittsburg.

Milwaukee—United States Marshal H. A. Weil left Milwaukee Thursday afternoon in charge of several prisoners for Fort Leavenworth prison. Edward Klimis, oleo moonshiner, was among them. His sentence is for one year. Albert Fuchs, another oleo moonshiner, sentenced to six months, and Frank Roesler, counterfeiter, sentenced to five years, were other prisoners.

Madison—The board of directors of the Wisconsin branch of the American Society of Equity has decided not to remove the state headquarters to Eau Claire, as was contemplated.

Chippewa Falls—The employers' colliability law of Wisconsin is to be tested in the supreme court as to its constitutionality. Judge W. H. Stafford, attorney for William H. Ladd, has received a citation signed by Chief Justice C. J. Winslow from the supreme court of the state, whereby the Soo railroad appeals from a decision rendered against it in favor of Ladd after a hearing on March 15 and 22, 1910.

Madison—State Banking Commissioner Berg has issued a charter to the State Bank of Sheboygan Falls. The new bank has a capitalization of $30,000, and the president is Henry Hillеman.

Wausau—Carl A. Zemke was pursued by a lynx on Wednesday at his home, four miles from here. Zemke noticed the wild animal leaping for him, and he headed toward his home on a run.

Green Bay—Mrs. Mary Ann Smith, believed to be the oldest resident of Brown county, died here at the age of 101 years. She was born in Belgium and at the age of 6 hid in a haystack after the battle of Waterloo to escape the soldiers.

CITY'S GROWTH REFLECTED IN MANY EXTENSIONS

Many Petitions Are Presented for Water and Gas Mains.

Purchasers of Residence Property in Duluth Exacting in Demands.

The question which has characterized the real estate market all during the spring, as far as big investment deals are concerned, continues and real estate men are beginning to believe that few deals of that nature will be made during the coming year. Money for investment is not plentiful and, although the advantages of investments in Duluth realty are obvious and nobody can be found to question their stability and promise for profits are slow in entering the market.

Residence lots are being dealt in freely all over the city and the movement is growing. It is confined to no one section. Woodland, Lakeside, the Normal school district, the additions on the hill near the boulevard, the West end, West Duluth, and the districts farther to the west near the steel plant site are all sharing in the deals being made in residence property.

Most of the purchases are for actual and immediate use. Homes are being erected in countless numbers and of various kinds from the $500 cottage to the $10,000 or $20,000 home in the East end district. Few big business buildings are under construction or even in contemplation, but most of the builders are nevertheless busy with residence construction work.

Though sales of residence property may bring the realty dealer small returns, in the present day, purchasers of that class of property are just as exacting as those who buy property for investment purposes—perhaps more so, for the purchaser of residence property has not only money at stake but the happiness and comfort of himself and his family are also at stake.

The days have gone by when about all a man asked about a piece of property he intended to buy was "how much land?" and "what price?" Here are some of the things the modern purchaser asks about before he makes his purchase:

What part of the city is it in?
Are the surroundings cheerful?
Is the location healthful, away from the smoke of the city?
Does the site afford an attractive view of the lake or bay?
Is the street graded?
Is there an alley in the rear?
Are the local improvements such as street grading and curbing and concrete walks, paid for?
Is the district shaded by trees?
Is there a good water supply?
What is the street car service?
Are electric lights available?
In what direction does the property front?

These and other questions are asked by the prospective purchaser and the dealer must be ready to answer them and explain if any of the answers are unsatisfactory. If the questions can be answered satisfactorily, the purchaser is justified in making the purchase.

The growth of the residence districts of the city during the last year or two is shown by the number of water and gas main extensions which petitions have been filed with the water and light department. Petitions for about forty-six extensions have already been granted by the board and forty other petitions are being circulated. They will be submitted this year and the extensions will undoubtedly be made.

The number of extensions asked is evidence of the great strides that are being made in extending the limits of the built-up portion of the city. When water and gas mains are being extended, the district to which the extensions are being made is growing. Lots are being utilized for home-building. The people who petition for the improvements must guarantee a certain amount and where the guarantee exceeds the amount of water they use, they show confidence in their section of the city in signing to pay the guaranteed amount.

The sale of bonds for extraordinary extensions of water and gas mains is almost vitally necessary, but it is unlikely that the bonds voted at the last city election will be floated this year. There is no demand in the bond market for 4 per cent bonds and it is probable that unless there is a change in the market, 4 per cent bonds will have to be voted next year.

The big extensions planned and the reservoir for the middle system are badly needed by the city. Duluth has not kept ahead of its growth with its water and light system as it should. The city that builds for the future

Many beautiful homes adjoining this addition. Lakeside school within three blocks and churches close by. Lots in the immediate neighborhood are held at a greater price than that asked for these lots and are probably worth it, but we made our money in the purchase of Loeb's addition. This beautiful tract of land has been owned by an estate for years, and the heirs decided to turn it into money, therefore we had an opportunity of securing it at a price that enables us to quote the above unheard of prices on the lots and still make money. The title to all these lots is perfect and we furnish a Torrens Certificate of Title to Each Buyer.

Our idea in selling these lots without a down payment at $1.00 OR $2.00 WEEKLY is simply to give the small investor a chance. We know that on these terms we'll sell them all in a few weeks, whereas if we wanted $50 down it would take us much longer and the expense of selling would be much greater.

NEAT BUNGALOW FOR NEWLYWEDS COULD BE BUILT IN DULUTH FOR $3,100

-FLOOR PLAN-

This illustration shows a design for a cozy and inexpensive bungalow of five rooms. It would make an ideal little home for two in which to begin housekeeping, its feature of convenience and compactness appealing especially to a bride who plans to do her own housework. A bungalow plan has the convenience of a flat, with the advantages for light and air of a detached dwelling, and every opportunity for individuality of design, all of which go to make a thoroughly attractive home. A cottage of this type is most appropriately erected on a suburban lot, preferably of large size, with irregular grades, a few trees and shrubs and a garden.

The plan shown above, though small is roomy in effect and conveniently laid out. From a spacious porch a vestibule leads into a room, which is a large, cheerful apartment, lighted by casement windows. A wide fireplace on the side opposite the entrance to the room adds much to its attractiveness. The dining alcove, used as it is as in connection with the living room, is serviceable for a large dinner party as for the family group—the extension table not being limited to the area of the alcove, as is readily appreciated by a glance at the plan. So, though the house is small, it is convenient for entertainment. In the kitchen, the fixtures and cabinets are provided for all purposes, thus making a complete and useful arrangement. Access to the basement is gained from the kitchen. A small rear porch has space for a refrigerator.

The arrangement of the bedrooms and bathroom off a small private hall, is a good feature of the plan. Ample closet space is also provided. The bedrooms are well lighted and ventilated and of ample size for their purpose.

As the sketch shows, the exterior presents a pleasing appearance by its simplicity of detail, its window groups, and low, wide eaved roof. The exterior walls of the home are of stucco and the roof of stained cedar shingles. The windows as shown, are casement windows hinged to swing out.

The foundation is of concrete with only part excavated for basement, with heater room, fuel room and cellar. The floors throughout are of maple and the finish in the hall, living room and dining alcove stained fir or Southern pine, and in the kitchen bathroom and bedrooms enameled pine.

A bungalow, as above described, would cost to build in Duluth or vicinity, including heating plans and plumbing, $3,100.

CITY'S GROWTH REFLECTED IN MANY EXTENSIONS

usually attains the future for which it builds and when it does, it is far ahead of the city that built only for the present and trusted the future to take care of itself.

The proposed extension of the street railway line to Eleventh street and Seventh avenue west continues to hold the interest of a large number of people. No announcement on the part of the street railway company has been welcomed with such joy by so many people. It is a distinct answer to the demands of the public for cheaper living. It affords for the first time, an opportunity for the man of moderate means or the skilled mechanic to acquire property for a home with street car facilities at a moderate price.

Mayor Cullum is continuing his efforts to secure the extension to Eleventh street instead of to Ninth street, as proposed by the street railway company. Ninth street will not be graded for some years, and, even when it is, the street railway company will be able to branch off at Ninth street for its extension to Fourteenth avenue east, still maintaining the line to Eleventh street, which would aid a great many more people and open up a much greater territory than would the extension to Ninth street only.

The extension of the street railway line on Piedmont avenue to Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street will probably be ready for the running of cars about June 1. The extension has long been desired by people in that district. The district is quite thickly settled now, but will be much more so when street cars are provided for the workingmen having their homes there. Property is comparatively cheap, and many who could not build homes on the street railway further down the hill will be able to have homes of their own when the new extension is in use.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR APARTMENT BUILDINGS

Berkshire and Barrington at Eighth Avenue East and First Street.

Apartments for Twenty Families in Two New Buildings.

Ground was broken this week for the new apartment buildings to be erected in the East end for Charles E. Bassett, mention of which was made in The Herald some time ago. The contract has been let to Hugh Fawcett.

The two buildings will be located at the corner of Eighth avenue east and First street, the Berkshire facing the street and the Barrington facing the avenue. The Berkshire will contain eight apartments of sixand seven rooms each, and the Barrington twelve apartments of three, four or five rooms each.

The buildings will be four-story, brick and stone, and will be of modern construction and finish. Mr. Bassett, the owner, owns several other apartment buildings in the same district. The plans for the new buildings were prepared by Kelly & Lignell.

The building situation is growing brighter, but it has by no means reached the roseate condition predicted earlier in the season. The Fidelity building is the only big office building announced thus far. Several smaller business buildings, some apartment houses and many residences make up the bulk of the building to be done in the city during the year as far as is known now.

Bray & Nystrom are preparing plans for a residence to be erected by Mrs. Margaret Melville on Fourth street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east. It will be a two-story frame building of modern construction and will cost about $6,000.

* * *

Bray & Nystrom are taking bids on a store and flat building to be erected at Twenty-second avenue west and First street, at the northwest corner, for A. Wiberg. The building will be arranged for two stores and four four-room flats. The building will be of modern construction, two-story brick, and will cost about $10,000.

* * *

W. J. Sullivan, who was with Bray & Nystrom for some time, has gone into business for himself, and has opened an office at 312 Palladio building.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein is preparing plans for a double brick terrace to be erected on Tenth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets for A. J. Harker.

* * *

Mr. Wangestein is also preparing plans for a duplex frame flat building to be erected on Seventh street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues east for George L. Riedel.

* * *

The plans for the new Floodwood school, which are being prepared by Kelly & Lignell, will be out for figures during the coming week.

SUNDAY, MAY 22

We Will Clear Up the Few Remaining Tracts in

HOMECROFT PARK

Last Sunday we advertised for sale the last block of Acre lots in Homecroft Park.
Since then we have sold more than three-quarters of our last holdings in this beautiful suburb.

All That Remain Will Be Closed Out Sunday

You must decide on or before Sunday, May 22nd, if you want to get a splendid tract of stoneless soil, of the finest black loam, absolutely perfect for market gardening, within a few blocks of the city and all city improvements, such as water, gas, etc.

Each Tract Will Make Twelve 25-Foot Lots

Situated on the direct line of development, Duluth will, in a few years, completely sweep over and engulf this whole addition, forcing values up to many times the present price of this property.

Some of the investors in Homecroft Garden Tracts are already figuring on subdividing into lots just as soon as the car line is extended along in front of the property. When they do so they will be able to get the amount they put into the entire tract out of one or, at the most, two lots. The remaining ten lots will be clear profit!

A Self-Supporting Truck Farm—High Priced City Property Soon

One of these tracts will easily pay for itself if cultivated—no better or richer soil can be found anywhere than that of Homecroft Park!

For a Self-Supporting Home—For a Paying Market Garden—For a Chicken Farm—For a Gilt-Edged Investment—You Can't Beat Homecroft Park. Come out on Sunday and see the property!

Buy one of these tracts NOW and in a few years it will have paid for itself out of its own earnings, and at the same time will have multiplied in value tenfold and more!

You never before had a chance at so sure and certain an opportunity to make big money on a small investment! Take it now, or it will pass you forever!

PRICES AND TERMS Our prices and terms on this magnificent property are exceptionally low and easy.

One Dollar Down Secures Any Tract—Pay the balance in little weekly sums of $1.50 to $2.00. The whole tract need cost you only $200, although we have some at a higher price. You pay no interest—all the profits from the increasing value of the property go to you from the day you pay your first dollar!

If you don't want to cultivate or spend your whole time on one of these tracts—buy as an investment. Taxes are very low—and use the place as a Country Home. Spend a few weeks there in the summer—have an open-air place of your own to drop out to on Sundays! Homecroft is much nearer to the car line than many places inside the city limits that pay four and five times as much in taxes!

HOW TO GO—Take Woodland car to end of the line. Our big sign will show you the way.

RESIDENCE LOTS SOLD

Few Deals in Business Property Are in Air in Duluth.

East End and Lakeside Are Favored in Purchases of the Week.

The East end residence district and Lakeside came to the front this week, being the most favored of the residence districts of the city in the deals closed during the week. Lakeside and Lester Park have been coming to the front quite regularly lately, and dealers in property in that section of the city say there is a continued demand for good residence sites.

Several deals in business property are said to be hanging fire, but the major portion of the business is being done in residence property, which is being taken off the market for use as home sites.

The most important deal reported this week was the purchase through Stryker, Manley & Buck by A. C. Dunn of a lot in the residence district on First street near Twenty-sixth avenue east. The property was sold by Elliott C. Clark through Charles P. Craig & Co. The lot is one of the finest available in that district. The consideration was not made public.

* * *

Other sales reported this week by Stryker, Manley & Buck are:

House and lot on Otsego street, in Lester Park, sold by H. O. Munson to James McKay, $2,750. The seller was represented by J. D. Howard & Co.

House and two lots at the corner of Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street, sold by Joseph C. Anderson to B. A. Everly, $1,850.

Lot on Third street near Tenth avenue west, sold by C. R. Haines to Charles J. Rosso, $1,050.

Lot in Hall's addition to Oneota, sold by Anna E. Rodgers to A. Hagen, $300. The seller was represented by the Scott-Kreidler company.

Katie T. Lewis has sold to Nelson R. Miller a property on the north side of Lombard street between Forty-first and Forty-second avenue east for $1,600.

* * *

Emil Rudberg has sold to Jacob Erickson thirty-five feet on the north side of Sixth street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues east, the consideration not being given in the deed.

* * *

David C. Barr has sold to Stella A. Thomas two lots on the northwest corner of Twenty-eighth avenue east and First street.

* * *

Some of the recent sales of Richardson, Day & Harrison are:

To E. Olson, lot 1, block 4, Chambers' First division, for $400.

To Louis A. Wiek, lot 12, block 8, Chambers' First division, $325.

To Olaf Johnson for William F. Norton estate, lot 12, block 5, Norton's Proctor outlots, $150.

To Dr. Eugene F. Warner, east half lots 8 and 7, and west ten feet of lot 6, block 6, Sterling division of Duluth, for $2,450.

To Marshall F. Long for William F. Norton estate, lots 20, 21, 22 and 23, block 1, Norton's addition to Proctor, $300.

Mary A. Winchell has sold to Alice B. Thayer two lots on the northwest corner of Fifty-ninth avenue east and London road.

* * *

F. Southerland has sold to Even Hanson a triangular lot at Twenty-first avenue west, Piedmont avenue and Sixth street.

* * *

Sales made by N. J. Upham & Co. are as follows:

Duluth Home company to Henry Hewitt, lot 6, block 92, Endion division, $6,000.

Homer Fulton to Fred G. Hofler, lot 10, block 109 Endion division, $500.

NEW ADDITION GOES ON MARKET

Loeb's Addition to Lakeside Is Platted---Sale at Homecroft Park.

Loeb's addition to Lakeside is going on the market today and the prospects are that the lots will have a ready sale. The large tract, which L. S. and S. Loeb purchased last fall has been platted into about 250 lots and they will go on the market on easy terms.

The streets in the new addition have been graded to a width of sixty-six feet with sixteen-foot alley in the rear of lots. All lots are 50x140 and some are 50x200. The addition is within five minutes walk of the car line, there being concrete walks all the way to the addition on Forty-seventh avenue east.

L. S. & S. Loeb company has opened an office in the Alworth building and will devote its energies to floating the new addition. Salesmen will be at the addition this afternoon and Sunday and it is expected that many prospective home owners will visit it.

• • • •

With a final burst of selling energy Sunday, W. M. Prindle & Co. will sell the remaining tracts at Homecroft Park on the hill near Woodland. Since the district went on the market last fall, many lots have been sold, but a few remain and they will be closed out Sunday. The sales are made on easy terms and the soil is excelent for market gardening.

From St. Paul in Auto.
O. S. Bergman of St. Paul, accompanied by Harry Wolf of that city, made an auto run from the Capital City to Duluth yesterday in his 60-horse power Packard. The distance was covered in ten hours, which time included a stop-over at Pine City. Mr. Bergman said the roads were quite satisfactory most of the way, but he struck a stretch near Rutledge that was enough to wear out the patience of the most patient autoist. For 400 feet the sand was so deep that the wheels sank in it to the hubs, and there was no way of getting out of the soft road because of the stumps that covered the road sides. Mr. Bergman will make the return run tomorrow.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

ABANDON HOPE OF HOLDING WRESTLING MATCH

Chicago, May 21.—Hope of holding the Gotch-Zbyszko wrestling match within the city limits of Chicago on Memorial day was practically abandoned today. A writ of mandamus to force the issuance of a permit was issued against the city, but Mayor Busse promptly filed an appeal, which cannot be heard until after May 30. Pending hearing on the appeal, the writ of mandamus remains inoperative.

It is not improbable that an attempt to hold the match in an abandoned race track outside of the city limits will be made.

Western Track Meet.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—The annual track and field championship meeting of the Western division of the Amateur Athletic union was held here this afternoon. The entries exceeded all previous records here for a scratch event. Twenty-nine men were entered in the five-mile run.

High School Meet.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 21.—Three hundred Iowa high school athletes are entered for the annual high school track meet at the Drake stadium today. The three Des Moines high schools, Iowa City and Sioux City seem to be the contenders for first place. Rain fell this morning, but the track is in good shape.

CHIEF'S AUTO WILL BE CONSIDERED AGAIN.

The council Monday night will again take up the question of purchasing an automobile for the chief of the fire department and giving the men one day off in every seven beginning July 1. Both propositions came up at the last meeting, but they were postponed a week upon request.

The firemen were recently voted one day off in every seven beginning Oct. 1, but it is now claimed that there is enough money in the treasury to start the day off each week three months earlier. The purchase of the automobile has also come in for much discussion, and the outcome is still as doubtful as ever.

MINNESOTAN TO CRUISE FOR SCIENCE

THE CARNEGIE.

St. Paul, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A world's cruise for three years in the interests of science will be made by Prof. H. D. Frary of the department of mathematics of the college of engineering at the state university. He has received a commission for the work from the Carnegie institute in Washington.

For the first part of the trip, as far as Cape Horn, Prof. Frary will act as chief assistant engineer and will have charge of the gas producer engine on board the non-magnetic yacht "Carnegie." The purpose of the cruise is to make a magnetic survey of the earth to investigate the terrestrial magnetism, after which charts of the word will be drawn showing magnetic conditions, which will be in use in reading the compass at sea.

The trip will extend from Washington, where the party starts June 1, to the mouth of the Amazon, up that river and return for 1,000 miles, and thence down the coast of South America to Cape Horn, at which point Prof. Frary will replace the chief engineer furnished by the United States geological survey. Short cruises in the Indian ocean will be made and the trip will extend up the Pacific and back again at Cape Horn. Prof. Frary will leave June 1 and will be gone three years.

RUN OVER BY AUTOMOBILE

Superior Man Has Thrilling Escape on East Superior Street.

Presence of Mind Probably Saved Him From Fatal Accident.

Orley Warden, salesman of a Superior wholesale paper company, owes a whole skin and possibly his life to his presence of mind.

With a heavy automobile coming head-on towards him, and without time to get out of the road, he threw himself face downwards on the pavement at Third avenue east and Superior street last night about 10:30 o'clock, directly in the road of the machine, which passed over his body without injuring him.

Warden had walked as far as Third avenue east and Superior street to get a car for Superior. Deep in thought, he didn't look around as he stepped off the curb in front of the car. Had his mind not worked like a flash he might have been maimed for life or fatally injured. If he had attempted to get out of the way he must inevitably been struck. He took the only course open to him, and escaped unscathed except for a bruise on his knee, sustained in his quick flop to the brick pavement.

The driver sounded his horn and instantly set the brakes, but the automobile went about fifteen feet before it came to a stop. The passengers went back to learn what had happened to their supposed victim, and were overjoyed to find that he was still alive. They helped him to his feet and assisted him to a drug store. Warden's "wind" was knocked out of him, but after a rest of a few minutes he was found to be safe and sound.

Later he walked down to Blackwood's cigar store, where he told his experience. Seeing a Superior car passing, he made a break for the door, and those who watched him stated this morning that a ten-second sprinter would have had to "go some" to beat him, despite his recent narrow escape.

Notice of Dividend.

Calumet & Arizona Mining company has declared dividend of One Dollar ($1.00) a share, payable June 20th, 1910, to stockholders of record June 3rd, 1910. Transfer Books close at close of business June 3rd, 1910, and re-open June 13th, 1910, at ten o'clock a. m.

GORDON R. CAMPBELL, Secretary.

D. E. H., May 21, 23, 24, 25 and 26.

LORIMER MAY ATTACK DENEEN IN THE SENATE.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Lorimer of Illinois is expected to arrive in Washington tomorrow. He may address the senate Monday to ask his colleagues to suspend judgment on the charges that members of the Illinois legislature were bribed to vote for him for senator. It is reported also that when he speaks under the guise of personal privilege he will attack Governor Deneen and others of his political opponents.

Hermantown Memorial Social.

Hermantown, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ladies' aid society of Hermantown will entertain at a social Memorial day at the Swedish Lutheran cemetery. Tents will be erected for refreshment booths and flowers and plants suitable for the decoration of the graves will be on sale from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon.

Will Open Bridge to Mexico.

San Antonio, Tex., May 21.—It was announced here today that the new international bridge between Brownsville, Tex., and Matamoras, Mex., will be formally opened July 21 and 22. President Taft, Col. Roosevelt, President Diaz, Governor Campbell of Texas and the governor of Tamaulipes, Mex., have been invited to attend.

FEVER IN DISEASES.

Youth's Companion: The normal temperature of the human body is about 98.6 deg, a temperature which the initial forces of the body are able to maintain at a constant figure almost entirely without regard to the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere. Any elevation of the body temperature above 98.6 deg or 99 deg is called fever, and is an indication of something wrong. So also is a fall of the temperature below the normal point; but this is a rarer condition than fever and is due usually to special causes which it is not necessary to consider here.

Since fever is the most evident symptom of the number of different diseases and the one that gives character, as it were, to many acute infectious diseases, it has come to be synonymous with disease itself, and it is common to speak of some one being sick of a fever. But fever is so far from being the disease that it is often the curative and life saving condition.

Many infections, such as pneumonia and typhoid fever, would be more often fatal if it were not for the high body temperature that characterized them. In pneumonia, for example, it has been noted that the higher the temperature—under certain limits, of course—the more favorable is the course of the disease. It is therefore not a wise thing to give remedies to reduce fever unless the elevation of temperature is has continued a very long time or is so high—over 104 deg—as to threaten in itself the normal performance of the vital functions.

Sometimes, of course, the fever may get out of control, and from being inocuous only to the germs of the disease actually endangers the life of the patient. In such case treatment to reduce the temperature is called for.

This is best done by means of cool water in the form of a bath tub. The patient should be put into a bath at 80 or 90 deg, the water then being gradually reduced to about 70 deg, or he may be wrapped in a sheet wet with cold water or sponged with cold water.

Water is a safer and better remedy than the so-called antipyretic drugs, the use of which is bad for the already weakened heart.

This cool water treatment should always be supplemented by the freest possible use of fresh air, even in very cold weather. The old-fashioned belief that a person with a fever is going to "take cold" easily has no foundation whatever.

PORK CHOPS, NORWEGIAN STYLE.

New York Sun: "Well, Bill, what have we got for breakfast this morning?

So says Sam. The rest of the household has gone off for a week, taking the cook along and leaving Bill and Sam at home to rustle there for themselves or to go out for their meals if they should so prefer. They have elected to stay at home and Bill has undertaken to do the cooking, and this morning Sam asks him what they've got for breakfast, Bill answers promptly:

"Pork chops, Norwegian style," at which Sam says:

"What?" and then Bill explains.

"Don't you remember the Norwegian cook we had once? This is the way she used to cook pork chops, the way, she said, they cook them in Norway.

"First you boil them, this, they say over there, to drive out the devil from the pork, which I imagine may mean to kill the trichinae. You know, sometimes when you fry pork chops you don't cook them entirely through; and then cook them too much you make them dry and hard. But Norway style you boil them first till they are thoroughly cooked and then you lay them in flour, taking up on them just flour enough to cover them and then you fry them till they are well browned.

"And here's your pork chops now. What do you think of them?"

Sam's opinion was friendly.

QUEER CASE OF INSANITY

Man Found Wandering in Woods Is Sent to Insane Asylum.

Does Not Know His Own Name or Former Residence.

Without the least knowledge of himself, a man with money in his pockets and evidently of good family was ordered to Fergus Falls this morning after an examination as to his sanity in probate court.

He was listed as John Doe and in his pockets nearly $75 in money, a diamond of about a carat and a half in size and a street car transfer, issued by the Detroit, Mich., Street Railway company, were found.

Some time ago he was found wandering about the woods in the vicinity of the poor farm. He was taken there for safekeeping and as he seemed to know nothing of himself, information of insanity was filed against him by the superintendent.

The man is about 26 years of age. He refused to answer questions, in fact, he seemed unable to understand. He did not know where he was going, where he had come from, what he was doing in the woods, his name or any other information concerning himself. He talked almost continually to himself but ceased on the approach of any one.

His is one of the most unusual cases ever presented before the local court and a strenuous effort will be made to identify him, although there is but little on which to work.

Morris Lynch of Bovey was also found to be insane. He insists that a man in Bovey is "after him."

Sarah Margaret Patterson imagines all sorts of things. Her condition is not thought to be serious, but the hospital treatment was recommended for her.

OLD HOTEL CLERK KNOWS 'EM.

New York Sun: "Do I believe that a man's name as he writes it is an indication of his character?" repeated a hotel clerk who has been behind the counter in several cities. "I don't know about character, but I do know that the best of them unmask their real temperament when they write their names on a hotel register—and I hold that there's a difference between character and temperament.

"A man may be billions and yet have a good character. A man may be a crank and yet hold a job in a bank. I knew a preacher who had a case of dyspepsia that would have made an angel jump over a ten-rail fence, but he was all right on the religious goose. I'm talking about temperament that shows itself when a man grabs a pen and writes his name on the register and where he hails from.

"When a man spreads a John Hancock brand of chirography on the book of arrivals I know what sort of room he wants. I know he has to have a bed in which he can wallow like a buffalo.

"When a guest writes his name as he would sign it in a lady's album I put him in the finicky class. I know he wants a thin glass from which to drink ice water.

"The arrival who uncovers himself the quickest is the man who tries to write differently from anybody else and has an acquired autograph. The man who develops the trait of getting something under false pretenses begins by trying to assume an autograph. I always know that this fellow will have a rumpus with the waiter or the bell-hop or the liquid dispenser.

"There is one chap that reaches my heart—the man who writes 'and wife' for the first time after his own name, for he can't disguise the fact by his manner, to say nothing of his chirography, that he has just started on the first lap of his honeymoon. He doesn't try to counterfeit his natural penmanship, but he writes 'and wife' as if he thought we were on, wondering how we knew it.

"All things being equal, the newly married arrival is the most agreeable guest in the house. A fellow with a new wife wears velvet shoes so that his kick is never felt. I think if anybody writes a perfectly natural autograph it is the man who has just been married. Then if ever a man tries to be just what he is.

NO USE FOR IT.

Collector Loeb at a dinner in New York, said of a customs criminal:

"He was taken aback when we produced our proof—as was taken aback as the Washington father. A Washington man took his little boy to church one Sunday morning. A missionary preached, telling about the ignorance of the heathen in the tropics and after the sermon a missionary collection was taken up. The little boy noticed that his father put in a suspender button.

"He said to his father on the way home:

"'Didn't I understand the preacher to say that those savages went naked, father?'

"'Yes, my son,' was the reply. 'I'm glad to find you were so attentive.'

"'Then, father, said the boy, 'why did you put a button in the plate?'"

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Market Shows Weakness in Short Session on Heavy Liquidation.

Flax Is Strong and All Options Score an Advance Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—Wheat declined sharply today on heavy liquidation. May opened at $1.09⅛ bid, and went to $1.09¼ bid, and closed $1.08½ nominal, 1⅝c under yesterday. July opened with offers at $1.09¼, sold at $1.08¾, $1.08⅞, $1.08¼, and closed $1.08¼ bid, 1c under yesterday. September opened with offers at 99¾c, then at 99⅝c, sold at 98½c, and closed at 98⅞c bid, 1⅝c under yesterday.

Flax was strong, May opening with bids at $2.10, advancing to $2.16 bid, selling at $2.12 and $2.15, closing at $2.15 bid. July opened at $1.99 bid, sold at $2.03, $2.06, and closed at $2.06 bid. September opened $1.69½, sold at $1.71, and closed at $1.71 bid. October opened with offers at $1.62, sold at $1.63, $1.64, $1.63½, and closed at $1.63½.

Durum continued exceedingly sick, reflecting the weak cash situation here. Durum lost 2c. Cash was ½c over July, and the mills offered 1c over. Oats closed ⅝c off, the market continuing on the decline. Rye and barley closed unchanged.

The bulls faced an imposing array of bearish facts, and were unable to hold up values by the strong-arm work which they have employed for some time. Heavy liquidation sent values tumbling. In the face of the holiday there was a rush to sell.

The shorts had covered, and the market was in a favorable position for an onslaught. The bears hammered it incessantly toward the close, and there was no support. Earlier in the day some support came from buying by shorts and against downs. As the market drew to a close, it was dejected, and the professional element, which had turned to the selling side, was flooding the various markets with selling orders.

Light general rains throughout the wheat belt of the Central and the Northwestern states caused profit taking from yesterday's bulge at the opening today. The market rallied, and on the upturn there was moderate buying from shorts, and at Chicago the chief support was from Bartlett-Patten, who bought lightly in the most distant month. Values weakened under heavy pressure, and all opposition was swept aside.

All grains declined in sympathy with wheat, oats and durum being especially sick.

The bulls regarded the estimate of decreased world's shipments as favorable and they paid some attention to reports of the Hessian fly and rust, but definite facts outweighed theories and the props which the bulls have used lately to brace the market were ineffective.

The trade is nonplussed over the situation in May and many traders think that a lively scrap will materialize before the May option is on the shelf. The shorts are finding more satisfaction in handing over the actual grain than in endeavoring to cover in a market in which holdings are concentrated and offerings are limited. So far as learned, no stuff was sold to Chicago today.

Commission houses expect to have more wheat for sale in the near future. Country offerings are said to be larger than for some time and most traders believe that there is much more wheat in the country than at this time last year. The American Society of Equity is counselling its members to hold their stuff, but traders believe that the farmers will soon recognize the bearishness of the situation and will feed out their supplies while the going is good and before the winter wheat begins to come on the market and the harvest of the spring wheat approaches.

Flax was erratic in a light trading market. A few buying orders sent prices up and offerings were limited. Profit-taking in the distant months caused those futures to firm.

During the morning the market developed pronounced selling pressure and values declined ⅝@¾d from the opening. Selling was attributed to the bearish Prussian official report and continued free Russian offerings. Barrell's crop reports follow: Argentina: wet weather has interfered with the harvesting of the corn crop. There will be a considerable decrease in acreage in wheat over last year. Australia: No further developments are noted. Wheat is moving a trifle easier, and export shipments will be larger. Generous rains are failing. India: No news has been received from the country this week. It is, therefore, presumed that conditions continued favorable. Russia: Semi-official reports received from governmental sources indicate satisfactory condition over a largely increased area in twenty-three and twenty-five districts in this country. Weather favorable and crop progressing satisfactorily. Reliable private advices show enormous reserve stocks of wheat and rye still to come to market. United Kingdom: Continued cold weather has retarded growth, but warmer weather is now being experienced. Europe: Conditions are noted as favorable in all countries, with the exception of France and some drouthy sections in Italy. France is suffering from a continuation of cold weather, but it is now warming up, and the outlook should show decided improvement. United States: (Winter wheat) The copious rainfall experienced during the past week in the winter wheat belt has put a new phase on the entire situation. In a letter received from Mr. Le Count, from Salina, Kan., he says, speaking generally of the crop:

"The Kansas crop is improving every day. The soil is in perfect condition, and all we need now is warmer weather to bring out all there is in this crop. I am satisfied the government report of 2,000,000 acres abandoned in Kansas is too high. The balance of the crop that is standing is doing fine, and we will see Kansas turn out more wheat this harvest than the people are looking for at present. In the Northwestern part of the state there is the best prospect I have ever seen. After I see the Southwestern part of the state I will tell you how much wheat I think Kansas will raise, judging from the present outlook."

Mr. Le Count's reports this week have been uniformly favorable, those from Nebraska received early in the week indicate that the drouth which was effectually broken, will no longer be a factor. Much damage has been done by it, and in most sections it is irreparable. The outlook at present in Nebraska is for a crop smaller than last year's. In the rest of the belt conditions continue favorable, although the dry soil is still noted in Central and Southern Illinois, Central Indiana, Missouri, Kansas and Texas. Little fear is expressed in any of the states, with the exception of Illinois, Indiana, and Missouri. Taken as a whole, the outlook in winter wheat is more satisfactory than for some time past.

Spring wheat—The dought in spring wheat country was entirely relieved by heavy rains, which continued over forty-eight hours during the past week, and the best posted authorities in the Northwest say that conditions in that section now are absolutely perfect, with the outlook for one of the largest crops on record, should no untoward accident befall the plant.

Clement Curtis said: "We have thirty-two reports this morning from Central and Southern Illinois which indicate widespread injury to the growing wheat, and a very extensive infestation of the Hessian fly. A number of correspondents report wheat is falling and this condition will be a growing one until the harvest period, and until then the full extent of the fly damage will not be known. The worst reports are from the western counties; not over half a crop is indicated in St. Claire, Madison, Randolph and Pike counties."

Broomhall cabled: "World's shipments of wheat and flour for Monday next (exclusive of North America), estimated at 6,800,000 bu against 7,744,000 bu last week. Of this amount Europe will take about 6,000,000 bu. The total shipments last week amounted to 11,552,000 bu and those of a year ago 9,648,000 bu. Arrivals of breadstuffs into the United Kingdom will aggregate about 4,000,000 bu. He predicts that there will be some decrease in quantity of breadstuffs on passage to United Kingdom. Shipments from United States and Canada of 2,918,000. The total world's shipments aggregate 9,718,000 bu. India—The wheat crop of the united provinces is officially estimated at 112,000,000 bu, but Broomhall states that this figure is subject to correction. The crop last year amounted to 63,200,000 bu and 81,600,000 bu in 1907. The shipments from India this week amount to 384,000 bu against 728,000 bu last week and 568,000 bu a year ago. Broomhall predicts that the shipments next week will aggregate about 640,000 bu."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Break in Options Follows Heavy Selling of Wheat.

Chicago, May 21.—A break of 2c in May and more than a cent for July and September options resulted today from heavy selling and lack of any organized support. Receipts were much larger here than the official figures made manifest. The explanation was that the arrivals by lake had not all been unloaded in time to be included in the formal reports. Foreign markets were weak. The domestic cash demand and the flour trade were reported as slow, and the Chicago receipts seemd to confirm assertions that there is plenty of old wheat to be had. Rain west and promise of more tonight in Kansas formed another influence in favor of a decided dip in quotations. The market opened ¼c to ⅜c down at $1.00⅛ to $1.00⅜ for September. The marginal dollar a bushel mark was quickly smashed and a decline to 99½c ensued.

Profit taking by local shorts caused a temporary rally. Reports of storm damage in Oklahoma helped, but in the last fifteen minutes the weakness again became acute, and the close was easy with September at 99⅛@99¼, a net loss of 1⅝c.

Corn was carried down by the force of the drop in wheat. There was, however, considerable short covering by commission houses during the decline. September opened a shade to ⅛@¼c off at 61⅝c to 61¾c and fell to 61¼c.

Prices continued on the downward grade. The close was weak with September ¾@⅞c net lower at 60⅞c.

Stop-loss liquidation was in evidence in the oats pit. The chief factor was the weakness in wheat. September started ⅛c to ¼c lower at 38¼c to ⅜@⅝c and declined to 38⅛@¼c.

The provisions pit was almost deserted. Prices opened 2½c to 5c lower at $22.75 for September pork, $12.47½ for September lard and $12.37½ to $12.40 for September ribs. Further recessions were recorded.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Fails to Get Away From Nervous Strain.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 21.—Wheat continues to be under the same nervous strain today that has prevailed recently. Sentiment was bearish and a distinctly easier undertone was apparent. July wheat opened ¾c lower than yesterday, May ⅞c lower and September 1½@⅝c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 150,000 bu for one day. Rain fell in the Northwest over night and the forecast is for fair weather with rising temperatures. Minneapolis today received 130 cars of wheat as compared with 146 cars a year ago, Duluth 25 cars against 13 cars and Winnipeg 78 cars against 49 cars. May opened $1.08½; high, $1.08¾@⅞; low, $1.08⅛; closed, $1.08⅜. July opened $1.08¼@⅜; high, $1.08¼, low, $1.07⅜@½; closed, $1.07⅝. September opened 99c; high, 99c; low, 97½@⅝c; closed, 97⅝c.

Flax—Receipts, 8 cars; year ago, 2; shipments, 7. Demand continued strong for spot and to arrive in May at 2½c below the Duluth May option and to arrive after May at the even July price. Offerings were light. Closing price, $2.12½.

Barley—Receipts, 28 cars; year ago, 20; shipments, 41. Barley held firm today. Demand was good for both feeding and malting grades. Closing prices were unchanged. Closing range, 53@61c.

Cash wheat was in strong and steady demand. The demand continued in excess of the receipts, and elevator stocks were drawn upon. No. 1 northern was 1@2½c above the July option. Closing prices: No. 1 northern, $1.08⅝@1.10⅝, to arrive, $1.08⅝@1.10⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.06⅝@1.06⅝, to arrive, $1.06⅞@1.06⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.05⅝@1.06⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 56@57c; No. 3 white oats, 37½@38½c; No. 2 rye, 70@73c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,978 tons. Shipments were heavy, and the market was about steady. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $18.00@18.25.

Millers reported a slight improvement in the flour demand. Shipments continued to increase, and prices held firm. Shipments today, 52,623 bbls; last week, 278,345 bbls; corresponding week last year, 270,543 bbls. First patents in wood f. o. b. Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.10.
